The Oxford Primary Skills series is designed to be used alongside your main coursebook, to further develop reading and writing skills. The series uses a balance of familiar and new language in a range of contexts.

Levels 5 and 6 are made up of twelve teaching units, to be used in order. The texts progress in difficulty from unit to unit, introducing new vocabulary and structures and developing writing skills. The grammar and vocabulary syllabus is designed to be consistent with what the children are learning in their main coursebook.

Reading
The series introduces children to different types of written English, using a variety of texts. Children will be motivated when they find that they can read and understand ‘real’ text types such as advertisements, newspaper reports or traditional tales – all written in language appropriate to their stage of learning. Through doing various types of comprehension activities, children will develop the skills of reading and listening for gist and detail, which are essential for all-round communicative competence. Finally, by doing vocabulary exercises and becoming competent dictionary users, children will develop skills that will enable them to approach new words and texts with confidence.

Writing
In the Writing section of each unit, children practise and revise writing subskills such as paragraphing and sequencing. They will also learn how to improve their writing by using language appropriate to the context. Children are given a variety of writing tasks, which will develop their ability to use the language more flexibly. Their writing confidence will develop as they produce a wide range of texts, including research reports, a film review and a holiday brochure.

More words
The More words section at the back of the book presents supplementary vocabulary which children can use in their writing tasks. Some of these words will be new; others are presented as revision. It is to be stressed that these words are optional and it is perfectly possible to complete the course without using this additional section.

Tour of a unit
The twelve units cover topics that children are likely to meet in their main English coursebook or in other school subjects. Each unit follows the same structure:

Reading
Before reading
Each unit begins with open class discussion questions. These questions are designed to focus children on the unit topic. They help children to draw on their own understanding of the topic, and from this to make predictions about the content of the text.

It may be useful to pre-teach a few words in the text which could cause special problems, but do not try to solve every difficulty beforehand. Guessing the sense of unknown words is an important part of developing reading skills.
Read and listen
Each text is recorded on the Teacher’s CD. Play the recording as children follow in their books. Listening to the reading text and reading silently will develop children’s ability to read for gist. It is not important for them to understand every word at this point. Reading without interruption is important if they are to gain a general understanding of the text. After reading and listening, ask a few simple comprehension questions to ensure children understand the gist.

Vocabulary
In the vocabulary exercise that follows the Reading section, children choose highlighted words from the text to complete the sentences or match to the definitions. Presenting new vocabulary in context, and encouraging children to look up the definitions in their dictionaries, develops children’s confidence and competence as independent readers.

Reading comprehension
The exercises in the Reading comprehension section will allow you to monitor children’s understanding of the text, both in general and in detail. Make sure that children understand the task. Answer one or two of the questions with the class if you feel this is necessary, then let the children finish the exercise on their own. The exercises could also be given as homework, giving children the opportunity to re-read the text at their own speed – an ideal way to build on their work in class.

The last exercise on the Reading comprehension page is intended to promote classroom discussion and introduce related topics. Encourage children to express their own ideas and opinions. They could also discuss the questions at home with their families in their own language, then report their findings back to the class in English.

Writing
The Writing page begins with a short text which children can use as a model for their own writing. Children should read the text through, focusing on gaining a general understanding. Again you can ask a few simple questions just to check comprehension. These texts do not present new or difficult vocabulary as they are designed to focus on writing sub-skills rather than vocabulary development.

Below each text are writing tips in preparation for the task that will conclude the unit. They cover a variety of writing points: lexis, syntax, idiom and structure. Tell the children that you want them to make use of these tips in their own writing. Use the exercise which follows the writing tips for practice and reinforcement. Children should complete these exercises on their own, but do feedback as a class before they move on to the writing task.

Read the instructions for the final writing activity with the children, to be sure that everyone understands what they have to do. Less confident writers can stay close to the model text, copying its structure while substituting vocabulary; other children may be able to write more independently. Children who are progressing well with their writing may be encouraged to use the optional More words section at the back of the book, which provides additional vocabulary that can be used in the writing task.

4 Answer the questions. Write Asif, Kati, Josh or Sang-mi.
1 Who plans to travel to a competition? Kati
2 Who started learning their skill when they received a present?
3 Who has a talented parent?
4 Who learnt their skill from a parent?
5 Who plans to study in a different country?
6 Who started learning their skill when they were six?
7 Who has a room full of prizes?
8 Who uses the Internet?
9 Who gets money for their skill?
10 Who is meeting a famous person?
11 Who is going to perform in another country?
12 Who has a talented family?

5 Write True or False.
1 Asif’s family is also good at art. False
2 He paints pictures of people.
3 He lives in Paris at the moment.
4 Kati learnt to play chess when she was eight.
5 She has won many prizes.
6 She is going to Russia soon.
7 Josh likes cooking for other people.
8 He already works in a restaurant.
9 He hasn’t won any prizes.
10 Sang-mi’s brothers are also talented pianists.
11 She is playing in Japan soon.
12 She has played all over South Korea.

6 Discuss these questions with a partner or with your class.
1 What do all of the children have in common?
2 Do you think these children are happy? Why or why not?
3 Would you like to be gifted like these children? Which of these talents would you most like to have?
4 Are there any famous talented children in your country?
All about me

I'm quite good at Maths and Science, but I'm a very active person, too. I like doing all kinds of sports, like football and tennis, but my favourite sport is rugby. I prefer team sports to individual sports like running or swimming because I'm a sociable person as well. I enjoy being with my friends in a team. My best friends are on my rugby team.

I started playing rugby when I was seven years old. My dad bought me a rugby ball for my birthday and I practised every day. Now I'm on my school team and I love it. We practise on Mondays and Thursdays. We always have a good time because all my team mates and my coach are cheerful and funny.

When you finish your writing, always check for mistakes. Look for:

a  incorrect spelling

b  incorrect tenses

c  incorrect punctuation

7 There are mistakes in each sentence below. Rewrite them correctly.

1  I like running I like swimming too.  I like running, I like swimming, too.
2  I'm quiet good at Art and Music.
3  I'm very good at football tennis and basketball.
4  My mother teaches me the piano when I was four.
5  I love dancing its my favourite activity.
6  I'm practise every day after school.

8 Write about you and your favourite activities. Answer these questions to give you ideas. Use some of the new vocabulary to describe yourself.

paragraph 1
What kind of person are you? What activities are you good at?
What is your favourite activity?

paragraph 2
When did you start doing this activity? Did you take lessons or did you learn by yourself? How often do you do it now? Why do you enjoy doing it?

9 When you finish, check for mistakes in your work.
Volcanoes

There are volcanoes all over the earth. They can be on land, underground, or under the sea. They can be dormant, which means they may erupt again, or they can be extinct, which means they will not erupt again. There are different types of volcanoes and some are more dangerous than others.

Volcanoes become dangerous when they erupt. Volcanoes erupt when red-hot rock, called magma, rises from inside the earth and comes out of a hole in the ground. Some of it flies into the air, along with black ash. You can see this from many kilometres away. When the rock comes out of the hole, it is called lava, and it is so hot it is liquid. It can move across the land. Lava can destroy trees, roads and homes.

When lava cools, it becomes solid rock and forms a mountain shape. These types of volcanoes are called stratovolcanoes, and are the most common type. One of the most famous stratovolcanoes is Mount Vesuvius in Italy. In 79 AD, Mount Vesuvius erupted and completely buried the city of Pompeii. In 1883, a stratovolcano called Krakatau in Indonesia erupted, destroying more than a hundred towns, and causing big changes to the environment and the climate. Mount Vesuvius is dormant and has not erupted since 1944. Krakatau erupted as recently as 2009.
There are also volcanoes under the surface of the sea. These are called submarine volcanoes. If a submarine volcano erupts many times, it grows until it reaches the surface of the sea. The top forms an island. In 1963, fishermen near Iceland were surprised when they saw ash and steam rising from the sea. It was a submarine volcano. It grew and formed an island called Surtsey. The Hawaiian islands, in the middle of the Pacific Ocean, were also formed by submarine volcanoes, millions of years ago. Now, they are visited by thousands of tourists every year, even though they are not extinct and could erupt at any time.

Supervolcanoes are much bigger than stratovolcanoes and are underground. They are the most dangerous of all volcanoes. You can't see them, but you can see hot water and steam rising from thousands of holes. The largest supervolcano is in Yellowstone National Park in the USA. If it erupted, the explosion would cause the sky to turn very dark and there would be black rain. A supervolcano eruption would cause our climate to change completely. The temperature across the world would fall because the ash in the air would stop heat from the sun from reaching us. Even though the eruption might only last a few weeks, these changes would last for many years. Luckily, these volcanoes don't erupt very often - only once about every 600,000 years.

2 Would you like to visit a volcano? Why or why not?
3 Volcanic eruptions are very dangerous but they are natural events. What other dangerous natural events can you think of?
Writing

More words: Weather, page 52

(A) Hurricanes are huge storms that can be hundreds of kilometres wide. They form in warm, wet conditions, usually over oceans and seas in tropical areas. They have winds that can travel up to 120 kilometres per hour and spin round. They can last for many days.

(B) Hurricanes travel quickly across the ocean and create huge waves. They sometimes go across land and this causes a lot of damage. Their winds destroy buildings, pick up cars and rip trees out of the ground. Their heavy rains can cause severe flooding.

(C) Scientists use computers and satellites to watch hurricanes. The scientists can then warn people when a hurricane is going to go over land so they can leave the area or go into special shelters.

We can make our writing easier to read by grouping the information into topics. Match these topics to paragraph A, B or C from the text.

Damage caused by hurricanes _____
Staying safe in a hurricane _____
What is a hurricane? _____

When you write, first make notes of your ideas. Then group your ideas into topics. Then write one paragraph for each topic.

   1 Talk about how people lived 3,000 years ago:
      What kinds of jobs did they do?
      What kinds of houses did they live in?
   · What did they wear?
   2 What do you know about China now and a long time ago?

2 Read and listen.

The Kings

From 1700 until 1100 BC, the area of China around the Yellow River was ruled by a family of kings called the Shang. They were rich and very powerful. The king and his family lived in large palaces, decorated with beautiful objects. They had many servants who made them food and did all the work in the palaces, so they had an easy life. When a king died, they buried him in an underground tomb and filled it with expensive objects — jewellery, works of art and weapons.

The People

The richest people of ancient China were priests and warriors. They lived in cities with very high walls. Their houses were large and made of wood or brick. They wore beautiful gowns made of silk. They didn’t work, and spent their time hunting and horse riding.

Other people lived outside the walls, in houses made of mud. They were merchants and craftsmen, so they worked for their living. They were not poor, but they were not protected during wars.
Most of the people during this time were farmers. They lived in villages in the countryside. They worked in fields with tools made of stone, grew grain such as rice, and kept animals. The best place for farming was by the Yellow River. Here the warm, wet conditions were perfect for growing rice.

The farmers lived in small houses made of mud or bamboo. Inside, there wasn’t any furniture, and they slept on the mud floor. They were very poor. They had to obey the kings and the rich people all the time and give them food and gifts. They didn’t have a very easy life.

Important Developments

During the time of the Shang, there were some interesting inventions. The Chinese discovered how to make bronze, by mixing other metals together. Bronze is an important metal because it is strong and lasts for a very long time. The Chinese made all kinds of things from bronze – pots for cooking, cups for drinking, jewellery and weapons.

But perhaps the most important development during the time of the Shang was writing. Once a civilization can write, people can pass on information about themselves, their lives and what they believe. Although the Chinese started writing at this time, they didn’t have paper yet, so people wrote on animal bones, on stone, on bamboo, and even on turtle shells!

So, life for people in ancient China was quite different from our lives today.

7 Discuss these questions with a partner or with your class.
   1 What do you think was the most interesting thing about ancient China?
   2 Do you think life was similar for people in your area 3,500 years ago? What do you think was the same and what do you think was different?
   3 Do you think life was better then or is it better now for most people?
I live in Liverpool. Today Liverpool is a huge and busy city, but a thousand years ago it was a Viking settlement. The Vikings came from cold places like Norway, Denmark and Sweden to find new land in Europe. In 900 AD, some Vikings arrived in England in longboats. They settled in Liverpool. We know this because many areas of Liverpool still have Viking names, for instance, Crosby, Toxteth and Croxteth.

The Vikings built villages and lived in homes made of wood called longhouses. Many families lived in the same longhouse together. They grew grain such as wheat and barley, and kept animals like sheep, pigs and cows.

The Vikings were also skilled craftsmen. Many Viking items have been found in Liverpool such as silver bracelets and bronze weapons.

Make your writing more interesting by using examples. It may be interesting to know that Vikings had animals, but it’s more interesting to know which specific animals they had: sheep, pigs and cows.

Introduce examples with these phrases:

like such as for example for instance

The examples come after a general point. Two or three is a good number to include. Can you find some examples in the Viking text above?

8 Match the general points with their examples.

1 They grew a lot of fruit, such as
2 People of different nationalities came, such as
3 Weapons were made of different metals, like
4 The Romans settled in many places, for instance,
5 Aztecs built beautiful structures, for example,
6 Interesting objects have been found, like a weapons and jewellery.

b bronze, lead and silver.
c figs, lemons and oranges.
d Chinese and Italian.
e England, Turkey and Egypt.
f statues and pyramids.

9 Write about your area a thousand years ago. Answer these questions to help you, and use examples to make your writing more interesting.

Who lived there? Where did they come from?
When did they arrive? Where did they settle?
What did they do? What did they eat? What did they wear?
What did they leave behind?

1. Discuss these questions.
   1. What do you know about polar bears?
      Where do they live?
      What do they eat?
   2. What do you know about penguins?
   3. Are these animals dangerous?
   4. Do you know what endangered means? Do you think these animals are endangered?

2. Read and listen.

Polar Bears

Polar bears are our biggest land predators and they can look frightening. An adult male can weigh up to 600 kilograms and be three metres long. When a polar bear stands on two legs, it is taller than a man.

Their habitat is snow and ice in cold northern countries like Alaska, Greenland and Canada. In winter, they travel across the frozen seas looking for prey. They eat seals and other animals and they are excellent hunters.

They have white fur, so it is difficult to see them in the snow. They have sharp, strong claws which help them to catch and hold their prey. They also have long necks, small heads and large, flat feet. This makes them very strong swimmers.

Sadly, changes in climate mean that polar bears are now an endangered species. In places like Hudson Bay in Canada, temperatures have been getting warmer since 1950. This means that the sea has been freezing later every year, so the bears have less time to hunt on the ice. As a result, hungry bears go into towns looking for rubbish to eat.

Conservationists have tried to keep the bears away from towns, but sometimes they have to catch them as the bears can attack people when they are hungry. The bears are not killed. They are taken by helicopter far from the town so that the animals can look for food in their normal habitat.
Penguins

Penguins are birds, although they cannot fly. They are excellent swimmers because of their body shape and their wings, called flippers. They can dive deep into the sea to find prey. They eat krill, which are tiny sea animals, fish and squid. Their beaks are sharp, which helps them to catch prey, but also to fight.

Penguin feathers are black on their backs and white on their fronts – in this way, they are camouflaged from their predators when they are swimming. Underwater predators like seals and sharks cannot see them very well against the light surface of the water. Flying predators like eagles find them difficult to see from the top against the dark ocean.

There are different species of penguins living in different areas of the world, but almost all of them live in the southern hemisphere. Most penguin species have an extremely cold and icy habitat – they are one of the few animals that live in Antarctica.

Like polar bears, penguins are becoming rare. This is partly due to climate change, but also due to water pollution killing their prey and oil spills from large ships. Other human activities are resulting in fewer penguins, including accidents with fishing nets, and people collecting too many of their eggs. We must act carefully now to save penguins from becoming endangered.

Vocabulary

3 Match the words from the text to the definitions.
1 attack (verb) try to hurt
2 ___________ (noun) people who look after our environment
3 ___________ (noun) dirty, dangerous chemicals and gases that damage nature
4 ___________ (noun) a group of animals or plants that are the same

4 Correct the information in bold.
   1 Adult polar bears are smaller than people.
   2 Polar bears live in cold places in the southern hemisphere.
   3 Polar bears have white feathers, so they are difficult to see in the snow.
   4 Very hungry polar bears may attack penguins.
   5 Penguins can fly extremely well.
   6 Penguins eat fish, krill and seals.
   7 Flying predators cannot see penguins against the light snow.
   8 Penguins in many places are becoming more common.

   1 Why are polar bears endangered?
   2 Why are penguins becoming rare?
   3 Do you know about any other endangered animals?
   4 Do you think people can do anything to save these animals?
Great white sharks are the biggest ocean predators. They grow up to six metres long and can weigh more than 2,000 kilograms.

They have strong tails and pointed fins so they swim fast – about 24 kilometres per hour. They have approximately 3,000 teeth which they use to catch their prey.

Great white sharks live in cool seas and oceans all over the world. They eat seals, fish, sea turtles, and they sometimes attack small whales. They don’t eat humans! If they attack humans it’s because they are curious - not to eat them.

Great white sharks are excellent hunters and well-camouflaged so they can hide and wait for their prey. They are grey on top, so they are difficult to see on the rocky sea floor.

Use numbers in your writing to make your descriptions more accurate and interesting. Describe size (metres, centimetres), weight (kilograms), speed (kilometres per hour) and age (years).

Often, it is impossible to know the exact numbers, so we use approximate numbers. We use phrases with these – can you find them in the text?

up to tells us the number could be smaller than this or the same more than / over tells us the number is bigger than this approximately / about / roughly tells us we don’t know the exact number, or the number varies

8  Match the two parts of the sentences.

1  Cheetahs can run
2  Giraffes are very tall –
3  Elephants live to
4  Camels can live for
5  Millipedes have got
6  Hippos can weigh a  approximately 60 years old.

b  more than 3,000 kilograms.
c  up to 120 kilometres per hour.
d  sometimes over five metres.
e  roughly 300 legs, depending on the species.
f  about six months without water in winter.

Preserving Food

For thousands of years, people have tried to find ways to keep food for longer. In the past, this was important as people needed to save fresh food for times when it was hard to find, such as the winter. Today there are still many places without electricity and people living in these places need to preserve food in ways that don't use fridges. They need to make food last as long as possible.

1 Drying

Drying is the oldest type of food preservation. If water is removed from food, the bacteria can't grow. In ancient times in hot countries, people simply left fruit and meat outside to dry in the sun and the wind until all its natural water was gone. This made the fruit last a very long time. Drying fruit sometimes results in a completely new product. For example, grapes turn into raisins and plums turn into prunes. Drying food in the sun does not work in cooler or wetter climates, but people have other methods to preserve food in cold places.

2 Salting

Salting food, especially meat and fish, is another very old way to preserve food. Bacteria cannot grow in a very salty environment, so salted food lasts a long time. In many countries, salted fish or meat has become a traditional food and people still eat it today. For example, in Portugal the national dish is salt cod fish, and although people could buy fresh fish and refrigerate it, they prefer to eat the preserved fish.
3 Canning

A more modern way to preserve food was discovered in 1809 by an inventor called Nicolas Appert. He found that if food is heated at high temperatures and then sealed in a container, the food lasts for months. This is because the bacteria are killed when they are heated and cannot grow again without air. Vegetables and fizzy drinks in cans, and jam and juice in bottles are preserved using this method.

4 Freezing

Another newer method of food preservation is freezing. In the 1900s a scientist called Clarence Birdseye went to the Arctic. He noticed that when fish was caught it froze quickly in the icy conditions. He realised that freezing food slowed down the growth of bacteria. Back home, he invented a way of fast-freezing food. Frozen food was first sold in 1930 and was very popular, especially in North America. Today millions of people have freezers in their homes. All sorts of food, from vegetables to pizza, is frozen in factories before it is transported to supermarkets for us to buy.

Vocabulary

3 Use the words from the text to complete the sentences.

1. You can preserve plums if you dry them in hot, dry places.
2. Scientists found that freezing makes ________ grow much more slowly.
3. If you have electricity, you can ________ food to preserve it.
4. There are many different ________ for preserving food, like salting and drying.
5. Food is ________ by lorries from farms to supermarkets.
6. Bacteria ________ meat if it is not kept in the fridge.
7. When we dry something, the water is ________ from it.
8. Ice cream is a frozen ________.
9. In ________, people put vegetables into cans before they are taken to shops.
10. Scientists ________ different ways to preserve food a long time ago.
11. Although drying is a ________ method, people still use it today.
12. If food is completely sealed into a ________, no air can get in.

4 Answer the questions. Write D (drying), S (salting), F (freezing) or C (canning).

Which method of food preservation ...

1 takes the water out of the food?  ____
2 is the newest way to preserve food?  ____
3 works because air can’t reach the food?  ____
4 only works in hot, sunny places?  ____
5 was particularly popular in America?  ____
6 is still a popular way to preserve fish in Portugal?  ____
7 is the oldest?  ____
8 was invented in a very cold place?  ____

5 Write True or False.

1 In ancient times, people preserved food to eat in winter.  True
2 Bacteria can grow in all types of food.  ____
3 Drying food works well in cold countries.  ____
4 Raisins are dried plums.  ____
5 Some people like salt fish more than fresh fish.  ____
6 Heating food to high temperatures destroys bacteria.  ____
7 Freezing food destroys bacteria.  ____

7 Discuss these questions with a partner or with your class.

1 Which frozen / dried / salted / canned foods do you eat?
2 Do you eat more fresh food or more preserved food? Which do you prefer?
3 Can you imagine life without a fridge? Try to imagine what you would eat for breakfast, lunch and dinner if you couldn’t eat any refrigerated food.
Canning is a popular way to preserve food. This is the process of canning green beans.

Step 1 First, the beans are picked in the fields. Then, they are transported by trucks to the factory.

Step 2 The beans are washed and cut up. Next, they are quickly put in boiling hot water. This keeps them green and firm and removes air.

Step 3 The beans are then inspected. Only beans that are the correct size, colour and quality are selected.

Step 4 After that, cans are filled with beans. Hot water is added to remove air and salt is added for flavour.

Step 5 Then the lids are put on and sealed. The cans are cooked at high temperatures for about 12 minutes.

Step 6 Finally, the cans are labelled and transported to shops.

When you describe a process ...

- Write an introduction, explaining which process you are describing.
- Divide the process into steps, and use headings to separate the steps.
- Use words and phrases such as first, then, next, after that, finally to introduce the steps.
- Use the passive tense to describe what is done at each step.

8 Describe the process of making chocolate. Use the notes below.

chocolate / make / from cocoa beans

Step 1 beans / pick / on the farms they / leave / to dry in the sun they / transport / to factories

Step 2 beans / clean / roast / shell they / make into / rich brown chocolate liquid

Step 3 fat in the liquid / remove / to make cocoa butter cocoa butter / turn into / cocoa powder

Step 4 different ingredients / add / to make milk and dark chocolate

1 Look at the photos and discuss these questions.
   1 What do you think these buildings are used for?
   2 How old do you think they are?
   3 Where do you think they are?

2 Read and listen.

What can you do with an old building that isn’t used anymore? Why not restore it and use it for something else? Here are some examples of old buildings that have been transformed into museums.

The Roubaix Museum

It’s difficult to imagine a swimming pool becoming a museum, isn’t it? Well, that is exactly what happened in the small French town of Roubaix. The beautiful building was first built in 1927 and was used as a swimming pool until 1985.

People then decided to reopen the building as an art gallery. Since then, the original designs have been carefully restored. The building has been filled with fantastic collections of paintings, sculptures and textiles. But the best thing about the new museum is the room with the swimming pool. The pool is much smaller and you can’t swim in it now, but it is really amazing. There are statues all around it. The sun shines through the beautifully restored windows into the gallery and it all looks spectacular. The museum is still called La Piscine – that’s French for ‘swimming pool’!

The Thanjavur Art Gallery

It’s not often that you can visit a palace, but if you go to Thanjavur in India you can spend as long as you like exploring one. Thanjavur is one of the oldest cities in India. It is well-known for its beautiful architecture, its music and its art. One of the best tourist attractions is the Thanjavur Art Gallery, which is in a 17th century palace.
Before the building was transformed into a gallery, it had been unused for years. Since it has become a gallery, it has been filled with bronze and stone sculptures, paintings, and musical instruments. There’s also a library full of ancient documents, and a music hall. It’s an unforgettable and historical place to visit.

The Nomadic Museum
Perhaps the most incredible transformation is the Nomadic Museum. Designed by a Japanese architect, this art gallery was created from 148 metal shipping containers and recycled paper tubes. Although this gallery is made from old, used materials, it is truly an amazing building and a fascinating example of modern architecture.

The gallery was created in 2005 to show an exhibition of photographs to people around the world. How would it reach all these people? The museum is nomadic – it actually travels around the world! Because it’s made of shipping containers, it can be shipped overseas. It has already been to New York, Tokyo and Mexico City – maybe it will come to your country soon!

   1. Do you like watching films? How often do you watch a film?
   2. Look at the different types of films. Which are your favourites?
      Comedy  Romance  Adventure  Cartoons
   3. How long ago do you think films were invented? What do you think the first films were like?

2. Read and listen.

The History of Film: Frequently Asked Questions

Q. Who invented films?
A. It’s difficult to say. Lots of people played a part in the development of the cinema. A man called Muybridge made the first moving picture in 1878. It was a film of a horse running and it was only a few seconds long. By 1895, other people had invented various machines for showing moving pictures, but many of these could only be watched by one person at a time. The development of machines that could project films onto a screen was important. Thomas Edison was one of the first to show very short films to audiences of 20 or more people. His films showed acrobats and dancers performing, or everyday events like a man sneezing!

Q. What were early films like?
A. At first, films were only a few minutes long. They were black and white and silent. They were usually documentaries about different places or news events, or comedies showing people falling over and making funny faces. Later they became longer stories, but there was still no sound. Instead, there might be a musician playing a piano in the hall while the film was shown.

Q. What were the most popular kinds of early films?
A. Musicals were probably the most popular kind of film throughout the 1930s and 1940s. A very famous actress and singer at that time was Shirley Temple – she was only a five-year-old girl but everyone loved watching her sing and dance.
Q: When did films get colour and sound?
A: The very first movie to be in colour and to have sound was shown in 1927. It was called The Jazz Singer. From then on, more and more films were produced in colour, and almost all films had sound.

Q: When were cartoons invented?
A: Cartoons, or animated films, were first made in the 1890s. Cartoons are made from hundreds of drawings, photographed one by one. Each drawing is slightly different from the one before. When they are shown very quickly, it looks like the characters and objects in the drawings are moving. One of the earliest animated movies and the very first Disney feature-length film was Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs. Until that time, cartoons had been short, and only shown before the main movie. Now cartoons were watched by children and adults alike in cinemas.

Q: How are films different today?
A: Many films are now made using computers. Computer-generated imagery, or CGI, is pictures that are made on computers. They are used for special effects in films. For example, the dinosaurs in Jurassic Park, and the scenes in Titanic when the ship is sinking, were done with CGI. Toy Story was the first feature-length film created completely with CGI, in 1995.

One of my favourite films is 'Night at the Museum'. It's a comedy and it was made in 2006.

The plot is easy to understand. It's about a man called Larry who gets a job in a museum. He discovers that an ancient stone in the museum makes everything come alive at night! One night, three bad men break into the museum to steal the stone. Larry and his new friends have to save the museum.

I love everything about the film, but my favourite scene is when Larry meets the tiny cowboy and some tiny Roman people. I also like the scenes with the dinosaur.

I would definitely recommend this film because it has a great plot, the characters are fantastic, and the special effects are spectacular.

When you write a film review...

The Greedy Farmer

Once upon a time, there was a farmer who lived in a small village. He was not very wealthy but he was very ambitious. He wanted to make more and more money. In the spring time, when it was rainy, he called out, "If it were sunny, I could plant some wheat. I wish it were sunny!" The next day, by chance, it became sunny, and the farmer planted some wheat. After a few weeks, he began to get impatient. His crop needed rain now. He called out, "If it were rainy, it would be useful for my wheat." The following day, it rained.

Now he thought he could get everything he wanted. The very next day he called out, "If it rained more, my wheat would grow higher and higher." The following day, it rained again.

That summer he had the biggest and best crop he had ever had. He harvested his wheat and collected it in a big pile. He should have been happy, but he was so greedy he called out, "If it had rained even more, my wheat harvest would have been even bigger!"

Suddenly heavy rain began to pour. It rained harder and harder and didn't stop until all of the farmer's wheat washed away with the water.
Brotherly Love

A long, long time ago, two brothers lived in a village. They were both farmers and grew corn. The older brother had many children to feed so he had very little money. The younger brother also had a big family to look after. Although the brothers were poor, they lived happily.

One year, there was a drought and the corn did not grow well. The brothers collected their small harvest and stored the grain in their barns.

That night, the older brother could not sleep. He was worried about his brother. Would he have enough grain to feed his family? At last, the older brother got out of bed. He went to his barn and filled a bag with grain. Then he went silently to his brother's house and secretly added the grain to his brother's pile.

Every night, he did the same thing. He took some of his own grain and added it to his brother's store. But, after a while, he noticed something strange. His pile of grain never looked smaller in the morning.

One night, he decided to find out why. After it had got dark, he hid near his barn and watched. At last, a man approached with his own bag of grain. At first he did not know who it was. Then, he was amazed to see his own brother. Every night the younger brother had done the same thing - taken grain from his own pile to give to his brother.

It was true brotherly love!

The Handsome Stag

Once upon a time, there was a handsome stag with enormous, amazing antlers. One day, he stood quietly and looked at himself in a lake. He thought, ‘My antlers are beautiful! But these thin legs of mine are so horrible I wish I could hide them. I wish they were bigger.’

Just then, a hunter came along and shot an arrow toward the stag. Immediately, the stag leapt into the deep, dark woods and ran quickly out of sight. As he ran, his beautiful antlers got caught on the branches of a low-growing tree. He finally pulled himself free. Without the incredible speed of his legs, he would have been hit.

After that, when he looked at his thin legs, he was happy and proud.

FATHER AND SON RESCUED AT SEA

Last Friday morning, Australian man Ben Hammond and his teenage son Michael were rescued from their fishing boat in the Coral Sea. They had set off from Murray Island, off the north-east coast of Australia, twenty days earlier on a fishing trip. They had only planned to go for a few hours.

'Everything was great at first,' said Mr Hammond. 'The weather was fine, and the fishing was good. But then there was a sudden wind. We lost control and were sent out to sea.' The wind was the beginning of a massive storm.

After a few days, their boat ran out of fuel. They couldn't call for help because their mobile phones had no signal, so they turned them off to save the batteries. Rescuers had difficulty finding them because of the storm. However, the storm may have saved their lives. 'It was lucky the weather was quite bad,' said Michael 'If it hadn't rained we wouldn't have had anything to drink. We only had two bottles of water to begin with.'

Over the next few weeks, they just tried to stay alive and well. They protected themselves from the sun by covering their heads. They managed to catch some fish, which they ate raw. And they drank the rain water.

Eventually, they discovered they had a mobile phone signal. They sent text messages to their family. The emergency services found them and a rescue helicopter was sent to pick them up. They were taken to a clinic where they were treated for sunburn and dehydration. Mr Hammond had lost over 20 kilograms. He said, 'I'm just happy to be alive!'
HELIQUPTER RESCUES
MEN ON MOUNTAIN

Two French men were airlifted by helicopter from Mount Snowdon in Wales yesterday evening. Luc Morel and Marc Dubois had set out in the morning when the weather had been good. They had reached the peak and were on their way back down. Unfortunately, at about 4pm it had started to rain and then the mist had come in. It was difficult to see, and Marc slipped and fell.

'We wouldn't have gone if we had known about the bad weather,' said Marc. 'But we hadn't listened to the weather forecast.'

Luc used his mobile to phone the emergency services and a dramatic rescue operation took place.

'If they hadn't phoned so early we wouldn't have found them,' said one rescue worker. 'If they had left it longer, it would have been dark.'

The rescue operation lasted for about two hours. Fortunately Marc wasn't badly injured. They were both wet and tired, but they were well, and happy to be back down.

Brave Teens Save Swimmer

An Italian tourist, Mario Marino, was rescued yesterday afternoon from the Atlantic Ocean by two teenagers in a fishing boat. Mario had gone swimming off the coast of Florida when he was pulled out to sea. He tried to swim, but eventually got tired and started shouting for help.

Luckily Ali Sultan, 17, and his brother Ahmed, 15, were passing in their boat. They heard the swimmer’s cries and went to help. ‘If he hadn’t shouted, we wouldn’t have found him,’ said Ali.

The two boys pulled Mario into their boat and took him back to the beach. ‘I’m really grateful to the boys,’ Mario said. ‘If they hadn’t arrived, I wouldn’t have made it.’

Mario spent the night in hospital, but fortunately he was fine. He said, ‘I’m ready to get back into the water!’

When you write a newspaper report ...
• Think of a headline. Write a short phrase, not a full sentence:
  Brave Teens Save Swimmer
• Summarise the story in the first sentence:
  An Italian tourist was rescued yesterday from the Atlantic …
• Answer all the important questions: who / what happened / where / when?
  Mario Marino / rescued from the sea / Atlantic Ocean / yesterday
• Include quotes from people using direct speech:
  ‘I’m really grateful to the boys,’ Mario said.

8 Match the sentences with the correct headline. Write A or B.

1. Discuss these questions.
   1. What is your first language? Can you speak more than one language?
   2. How many languages are spoken in your country?
   3. Do you know the names of any languages from different countries? Do you know what languages people speak in India?

2. Read and listen.

Traditionally, the language that people learnt and spoke depended on where they lived. For example, people who lived in the Assam region of India spoke Assamese, though now people there may speak Hindi or Bengali, or even English!

Some of the Indian languages are extremely old. One of the earliest known written scripts in the world came from India. It is called Harapan and it has pictures like Egyptian hieroglyphs. The problem is that nobody can read or understand Harapan today.

Sanskrit is also an ancient language. Some of the written stories in Sanskrit are more than 5,000 years old. But Sanskrit is almost a dead language as few people actually speak it today - there are only around 200 thousand people who can speak Sanskrit well.

These days, English is very widely spoken, especially in government and education, and it is sometimes called the working language of India. Although people have many different mother tongues, English is often the second language which is acquired once formal education begins.

But English is not the dominant language in every aspect of Indian life. In homes across the country, hundreds of very old dialects are being passed on from generation to generation. Outside the home, films are being produced, and newspapers and books are being written in all the major languages, and over 50 languages are taught in schools.
So is it difficult having all these different languages? We talked to some school children in India to find out.

Haresh, 11, Kashmir

'I'm from Kashmir. I speak Urdu because it's the official language here – most of my classes are taught in Urdu. I also speak Kashmiri because my parents speak it at home to me, and I speak a little English at school. I think learning languages is important because it's important to communicate with people.'

Samir, 12, Delhi

'I live in a big city called Delhi. It is really multilingual here. I speak Punjabi at home because my older relatives don't understand any other language. Some of my friends speak different languages at home. I'm learning English at school, but I also learn lots of English by watching English cartoons on TV, so I think it's fun to learn other languages.'

Mala, 11, Rajasthan

'I live in Rajasthan and Hindi is my first language. I'm learning English at school. My parents speak a dialect called Malvi. I speak this a little too, but I can't write anything in Malvi. I prefer speaking and writing in Hindi. I really like watching Hindi films! I'm glad I can speak different languages.'

Hello Sharifa,

My name's Carmen. I'm 12 years old and I live in California in the US. My teacher gave me your email address. She told me that you wanted to write to someone in America to practise your English.

Let me tell you about California. Many people from different countries live here. My parents are from Puerto Rico, so I speak Spanish. Of course I speak English too and I'm learning French at school. Some of my friends speak different languages at home, but we speak English to each other. How about you?

In my free time, I like going to my friends' houses. We usually watch movies and eat lots of popcorn! Sometimes we go to our favourite fast food restaurant for burgers.

Write soon and tell me about you and your country!

From,

Carmen

When you write an email to a friend …

• Start with a friendly greeting and the person's name:
  Hello / Hi Sharifa,

• Use friendly, informal expressions:
  Let me tell you … / Tell me about … / How about you? / Write soon!

• Separate different subjects by using paragraphs: personal details / why you're writing / where you live / your family / the languages you speak / your free time activities

• End by saying who the email is from:
  From, Carmen

8 Number the parts of the email in the correct order.

a I speak Arabic, but I'm also learning French and English at school. I'm not very good at French. How about you? ______

b From, Sharifa ______

c Thanks for your letter! Let me tell you a little about me. I'm Sharifa and I'm from Jordan. I live in Amman with my parents and grandparents. ______

d Hello Carmen, ______

Study Skills

Are you learning English? Do you like English, but find it difficult to remember new grammar and vocabulary? Would you like some ideas about how to make your language learning easier?

If you answered 'yes' to any of those questions, here's some advice that we hope will help.

Learning Vocabulary

- Each time you learn a new word, write it in a vocabulary book with its part of speech. You don't have to translate the word into your language. Try using a synonym to help you remember what it means. You should also look it up in a dictionary and write the English definition.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Word</th>
<th>Synonym</th>
<th>English definition</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>amusing (adjective)</td>
<td>funny</td>
<td>something that makes you laugh or smile</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

- When your teacher asks you to learn some words for a vocabulary test, you should write them down on a piece of paper or a sticky note and put them on your bedroom wall. Every time you see the words, you will think about their spellings and their meanings.

- Draw spidergrams. These are fun to do. Draw a circle and write the name of a topic in the middle. Draw lines from the circle to other shapes and write the names of subtopics in the middle of those. Then draw lines from each of these shapes and write words connected with the topics.
Learning Grammar

- After you’ve learnt a new grammar point at school, you should go home and look through what you did in the lesson. Look at sentences in your coursebook and highlight examples of the new grammar. You could use a coloured pen to underline the examples, or circle them.

- Then, in a notebook, write the name of the new grammar point, for example, ‘The Past Simple’, and then write simple sentences about yourself, using the new grammar. So, if you’ve just learnt the past simple, write some sentences about what you did yesterday.

| I went to school at 8.00.      | I played with my friends at break time. |

- Make a test for a friend or your brother or sister! This can be a lot of fun – because you are doing this with a friend, you won’t be nervous. Write five to eight sentences using the grammar point. Then, you can erase the verb, or just leave a blank space where the verb should be. Your friend should try to write the verb correctly. You will be learning as you write the test, and then your friend can make a test for you, too.

Remember!

If you are not sure about something, you should always ask a teacher, parent or friend for help. Asking questions is one of the best ways to learn!

A British School Day
My school day starts at 8.50 a.m. However, we don't have lessons right away. First, we have registration where the teacher calls out all our names. We have assembly in the hall at 9.15. Our head teacher gives out certificates to hard-working pupils and she gives us advice about studying and listening carefully to our teachers. Lessons start at 9.30. We do lots of subjects including Maths, English, Science and History. My favourite subject is History because I like learning about the past.
Break time's at 11.00 when we usually go out into the playground. We have lunch in the canteen at 12.30, although we don't have to eat the school dinners. We can bring a packed lunch if we want to. In the afternoon, there are more lessons and school finishes at 3.15.

When you write a description of a day or week or any time period ...
• Organize your composition in a logical time order:
  My school day starts at 8.50.
  We have assembly at 9.15.
• Use linking words to make your writing more interesting to read:
  ... starts at 8.50. However, we don't have lessons ...
  ... lunch in the canteen at 12.30, although we don't have to eat ...
• Vary the word order of your sentences so they sound different, and more interesting:
  We have assembly at 9.15.
  Lessons start at 9.30. (not: We have lessons at 9.30.)

8 Read the paragraph below. Rewrite it using linking words and varying word order, so it is more interesting to read.

We start school at 8.30. We don't have lessons then. We go to our first lesson at 8.45. We have Maths class. I don't like Maths, but I'm good at it. After Maths, we have Science at 9.30. We have English at 10.15. We have break time at 11.00. We don't go outside. We stay in the canteen.

9 Write a description of your school day. You can draw a picture to illustrate your composition if you like.

Welcome to Sharm el-Sheikh!

Sharm el-Sheikh is one of Egypt's biggest and most popular resorts. It lies south of the Sinai Peninsula between the desert and the Red Sea. The climate is hot and sunny all year round and there are lots of exciting activities for everyone.

The amazing Red Sea

The Red Sea is famous for its sea life and clear, beautiful water. You can snorkel close to the shore in places such as Garden Reef Bay and see colourful, tropical fish and other incredible sea creatures swimming amongst the coral. There are around 1,500 different types of sea life along the coast and over 400 species of coral.

For the more adventurous visitors, the Red Sea is perfect for scuba diving. Don't worry if it's your first time. You can take a course at a diving school with trained instructors who will teach you everything you need to know. You can then go on a diving trip where you will discover the amazing sights of the deep sea, and may even come across an ancient shipwreck.
If you want to see what lies under the surface of the sea, but don’t want to go in the water, take an hour-long trip in a glass-bottomed boat instead. See the brightly coloured fish swimming right under your feet.

The spectacular Sinai desert

If you prefer to stay on dry land, the desert offers all kinds of thrilling adventures. If excitement is what you want, try quad biking across the dunes.

If you’re looking for a quieter kind of adventure, go on an organized group safari where you’ll spot rare and beautiful birds and have the truly unforgettable experience of a camel ride! At night, you can camp in the open air, under the starry sky. Imagine watching the sun rise over the desert when you wake up.

The treasures of Na’ama Bay

No visit to Sharm el-Sheikh would be complete without finding some fantastic souvenirs to remember your holiday. Na’ama Bay is the place to go for shopping. Here you will find whatever you are looking for, from beautiful silver jewellery in the modern shops, to traditional handicrafts like carpets and bags in the busy, colourful markets.

Na’ama Bay is also home to some of the region’s most luxurious hotels and you will find restaurants offering some of Egypt’s most delicious dishes.

So if you’re looking for an experience you’ll never forget, come to Sharm el-Sheikh on your next holiday. We are waiting to welcome you!

7 Film reviews

Complete the film review with the words below. Check the meanings of the words in your dictionary.

| plots | audience | costumes | climax | blockbusters | soundtrack | produced |

One of the biggest blockbusters ever is the film Titanic. It was produced in 1997, but is still watched on DVD by thousands of people every week.

There are really two separate storylines – the story of a ship sinking, and the story of two young people in love. The two people are the stars of the film, played by Kate Winslet and Leonardo DiCaprio. The climax of the film is when the ship is sinking, and the audience doesn’t know who will survive.

It is not only the plot which is fantastic, however. As the story takes place in 1912, all the characters, but especially the rich people, are dressed in beautiful old-fashioned costumes. In addition, the music adds to the story – the soundtrack is almost as popular as the film itself.
