I. Replace each italicized words with a synonymous one.

It is believed that our inherited (1) genetic characteristics play the decisive (2) role in our being beautiful, attractive and appealing to other individuals. Although there is no clear (3) theory on what beauty really is and how it works, the results of a recent scientific research (4) seem to confirm (5) the hypothesis that our facial features are determined (6) by our brains. Their possible role is to reflect (7) health and fertility as well as genetic superiority - the quality that people, supposedly (8), share with animals which, like humans, have their own sexual preferences. Most species of birds, for example, rely on the brightest colours of plumage when selecting (9) their partners (10). To them, the vivid shades (11) of the feathers indicate the potential partner’s genetic fitness to produce healthy children (12).

In humans, similarly, beauty shows (13) our well-being and our sexual attractiveness, but as far as our facial characteristics are taken into account, people tend (14) to regard as extremely charming (15) the faces with the highest degree of symmetry. And equally effectively, the facial properties may also indicate the appeal of the whole body.

The game of solving difficult (1) puzzles has always filled (2) people with the feeling of a profound excitement (3). No wonder, then, that the fascination (4) of treasure hunting has invariably been associated with the possibility of realizing the most improbable (5) dreams. According to what the psychologists claim, there is a little boy in every treasure hunter. Yet, the chase (6) of hidden valuables has recently become a serious venture (7) with amateur and professional seekers equipped with highly sophisticated devices (8) like metal detectors, radars, sonars or underwater cameras. What raises the adrenaline level in these treasure-obsessed fanatics are legends, myths, old maps and other variety (9) of clues promising immeasurable (10) fortunes buried beneath the earth's surface or drowned in the ancient galleys.

For many treasure hunters the struggle of hint searching is even more stimulating (11) than digging out a treasure trove composed of golden or silver objects, jewellery and other priceless artefacts. The job is, however, extremely strenuous as even the most puzzling (12) clues must be thoroughly analysed (13). Failures and misinterpretations occur (14) quite frequently, too. Yet, even the most unlikely clue or the smallest find is enough to reinforce the hunter's self-confidence and passion. Indeed, the delight in treasure finding doesn't always depend on (15) acquiring tremendous amounts of valuables. Whatever is detected, be it a rusty sundial or a marble statue, brings joy and reward after a long and exhausting search.

The huge (1) mountain of Kilimanjaro is one of the most distinctive (2) entities within the severe land of the African wilderness. Rivers carrying life to the forests and jungles below flow from beneath the eminence, whereas in the endless plains of this continent an astonishing (3) diversity of animal species have evolved to take advantage of the immense (4) African habitat. They have adapted and survived (5) in their different shapes and sizes. Some of them are big, some small, some eat plants and some live on meat. There are those which wander (6) alone, unlike the others which gather (7) in herds. The multiplying millions of herbivores are balanced by the frightening (8) meat eaters - carnivores whose body build has been shaped for speed (9) and for the strength indispensable (10) to outmanoeuvring their prey. These superior predators which have conducted (11) their daily struggle for survival in the harsh African environment all live in unfavourable surroundings where the punishment for weakness (12) is often deadly. The reality of Africa best pictures (13) the exciting cruelty of nature towards the weakness of individual animals as only the existence of the whole species is essential. However, big predators like lions or tigers don't usually tolerate company and might, then, be exposed to mortal danger (14), were it not for their perfect attributes and an incomparable skill at killing. They should never be judged (15) by human standards. It is obvious they don't kill out of hatred, but for the simple reason of remaining alive during their lone struggle in this hostile habitat.

The thrill of gambling has accompanied mankind throughout its whole complex history. The ancient people whose perception (1) of life was determined (2) by a belief in mysterious (3) phenomena considered their existence a game of chance governed by their gods' good-will (4). Therefore, the objects of gambling frequently became the items of a spiritual (5) offering which were supposed to influence the gods' decisions on the events to come. In the course of time, gambling turned into a highly favoured pastime (6) among wealthy (7) members of many societies and at present it is said to be one of the most rapidly developing branches of the entertainment industry. It is practiced in its different forms in almost all the corners of the globe. Annually, millions of individuals try (8) their luck in casinos at bingo, roulette, dice or card games. Another widespread (9) habit of gambling takes the form of betting on the results of sports events like horse racing or football matches.

Unfortunately, on many occasions practice of gambling turns into an addictive habit. Habitual (10) players find it an irresistible temptation (11) to place a bet so as to provide themselves with the desirable thrill. The alluring prospect of winning vast (12) fortunes drives (13) the notorious gamblers to seek for excitement often at the cost of a disrupted family life and damaged psyche. Those who escape into the imaginary (14) world of gambling successes experience the illusory feeling of being independent, unbeatable (15) and always within the reach of a stroke of good luck.

I. Write in the correct words.

For thousands of years, stone, wood and animal skin had been the basic materials used by ancient civilisations for house building, ship construction or producing elementary tools. However, the first synthetic products which _ p _ _ _ _ _ d (1) in the 19th century were _ _ _ f _ _ _ _ _ d (2) from cellulose and quickly gained _ r _ _ _ _ (3) replacing their heavy, less durable and antiquated counterparts. The commercial success of celluloids has become even more conspicuous in the twentieth century as dozens of new _ _ p _ _ _ _ _ _ s (4) for plastic goods have been invented. Nowadays, life without celluloid dishes, synthetic furniture and garments as well as other manifold polimeric products would be un _ _ _ _ _ _ n _ _ _ _ (5).

What makes them so favoured and common a merchandise are their exceptional _ t _ _ _ _ _ s (6). Besides being _ _ s _ _ _ _ _ _ (7) to mechanical damage, they have outstanding thermal and electrical insulation properties and certain kinds of synthetic products _ _ d _ _ _ _ (8) the process of fast biodegradation, which makes them environment _ _ _ _ _ _ y (9). In addition, the cost of the production of plastic is relatively low. Hence, the polimeric _ _ t _ _ _ s (10) are being churned out for use of the packaging, motor, construction, aviation, medical and many other industries. Recycling as means of _ e _ _ _ g (11) with this massive plastic waste is easy and effective, too. Thus, one may safely assume that our _ _ _ _ _ _ n _ _ _ _ (12) on synthetic materials will never end.

I. Replace each italicized word with a synonymous one.

Vocational education has always been closely related (1) to the character of a society, the importance it attaches to work and the social values respected (2) by the members of its community. Its primary (3) goal is to teach the skills and a practical competence (4) requisite for different types of employment.

In the past, professions were inherited by descendants of families from the older generations. The mastery accomplished by forefathers (5) and passed on to their successors (6) in vocations like carpentry or weaving was incomparable to the relatively poor level of craftsmanship in the era of massive industrialization. In the 19th century traditional (7) skills achieved after many years of rigorous (8) apprenticeship were abandoned (9) giving way to the factory system where experience-building training was applied (10) directly on the job. Consequently, the number of craftsmen (11) performing high-skilled manual work began to decrease (12) as they were gradually replaced by machinery and, finally, by perfectly precise (13) computers.

This rapid computerization, however, has created a wide gap between those whose knowledge of modern technologies is profound (14) and those who still lag behind. Given that computers and their various uses are much more complicated than anvils or chisels, it definitely takes an equally intensive and elaborate training to educate good and productive (15) workers nowadays.

I. Write in the correct words.

Have you ever given any _ _ _ _ g _ _ (1) to the concept of the protection of our natural resources and the significance it _ e _ _ _ (2) on our sound existence? It may have been recognized by only a few of us what consequences our wasteful life may _ _ _ d (3) to unless we undertake some proper _ _ _ s _ _ _ s (4) to conserve our natural habitats and their key components - wildlife, vegetation, soil and water supplies.

This question requires still more publicity, for sure. Hardly ever do we _ _ _ _ z _ (5) how much effluent gets _ _ _ _ _ _ _ d (6) into water or how many tons of waste our populations can churn out daily. In our hectic life, we seldom think of the vast _ r _ _ (7) of woodlands, including the rain forests, that get cleared every minute. We aren't usually _ _ _ c _ _ _ _ (8) of the fact that the ozone _ _ y _ _ (9) is being depleted due to the greenhouse effect. How much do we know about the animal species being on the _ _ _ g _ _ (10) of extinction? Lastly, who is to _ _ _ m _ (11) for our abysmal ignorance?

One possible response is the incredible intensity of life that we are living almost all the time. Statistically, an average couple has more to acquire in the 20th century than their _ _ c _ _ _ _ s (12) did several decades ago - education, the financial means for securing the family with a flat or a house, a car, a stereo and other variety of rudimentary accessories that the civilized world has to offer and without which our earthly _ x _ _ _ _ _ _ _ (13) seems unimaginable. Therefore, the answer is simple. It is ourselves that should face the _ _ _ r _ _ _ s (14) of devastating the natural environment that we _ _ _ g _ _ _ _ (15) from, but for which we don't give much consideration in principle.

The anxiety of many investigators has again been aroused (1) by reports of the Abominable (2) Snowman which was encountered somewhere in the Himalaya region by an expedition of mountaineers aspiring to reach the peak (3) of Mount Everest. This cautious (4) creature which is also known as the Yeti made the poor explorers' hair stand on end as it started to howl, grunt and whistle early at daybreak (5) while they were sleeping soundly in their tents. The petrified men jumped out of their sleeping bags just to see the monstrous creature rushing towards (6) the forest. They had no doubts that what they had seen was most bizarre (7) and unique. Their amazement grew even stronger when they examined the monster's gigantic footprints left in the snow.

Sir Michael Edmundson - a distinguished (8) expert on unexplained phenomena, who was first to analyse this intriguing (9) report, considers the occurrence an exceptional opportunity to clear up (10) the Yeti mystery once and for all. He has already devised (11) a scheme to try to capture (12) the Snowman in the place where it was spotted by use of a system of complicated traps. Not that he intends to do the apprehensive creature any harm or keep it in captivity (13) for his own good, but his objective (14) is to prove that disregarding the Yeti story as being a sheer deception (15) has been an unfortunate misjudgement accepted by too many for too long.

Every now and then we hear someone claiming to be psychic (1) or to experience precognitive dreams or to have premonitions (2) about imminent misfortunes (3). Sometimes, we meet people who have participated in spiritualistic seances where they have witnessed (4) miraculous parapsychological occurrences or listened to mediums making their pessimistic (5) prophecies about the future or even using their second sight for reviving (6) past memories (7).

Parapsychology or extrasensory perception which includes such phenomena as psychokinesis, clairvoyance and out-of-body experiences is fiercely disparaged (8) by its opponents finding no scrap of evidence for the reliability of performances like foreseeing future events or passing (9) messages without any use of the sensory means, namely, by telepathy. Nevertheless, the acquisition of information by use of nonsensory channels can sometimes be of great advantage to those who aspire at solving (10) the most enigmatic questions like the mysterious cases of crime or missing individuals. Although officially the police deny having resort (11) to parapsychology, they do benefit from its vast potential whenever any clear (12) evidence is diminishing (13). The psychics are then employed (14) with the hope that their original practices will throw new light on many cases.

Despite the growing interest in extrasensory perception and its possible applications, conventional scientists disregard it as highly uncertain (15).

How do you _ _ _ _ _ _ d (3) to your kids' constant begging for a pet? Of course, you may consider purchasing a hamster or a turtle a matter of _ _ _ _ _ _ f _ _ _ _ g (4) your children's every whim, but just think about the more utilitarian purpose that your pets may _ _ _ _ v _ (5).

Apart from being lovable little friends, pet animals, _ _ _ e _ _ _ _ y (6) dogs, may act as houseguards scaring away any intruders or _ _ _ _ _ _ g (7) its owners about potential danger. Cats are common vermin eaters while horses provide an alternative _ _ _ _ s (8) of transport.

A huge variety of animals are kept in houses for emotional reasons. Birds' soft singing can help _ _ _ _ u _ _ (9) tension, the majestic movements of colourful exotic fish are _ _ _ o _ _ (10) for their tranquilizing effect, too, and stroking an animal's hair is scientifically proven to act as an _ _ t _ _ _ _ (11) for stress.

Are you still in two _ _ n _ _ (12) whether to visit the nearest pet shop and fulfill your kids' requests? Or perhaps, you should go to the local animal shelter to find out if you can offer some affection to a lone caged pet that will otherwise be destroyed.
