ABOUT THE BOOK

The attention-getting, humorous story starters in this book will surely spark the imagination of the most reluctant story writer. The antics of characters with unusual names will motivate young writers to complete the stories and even create their own stories about the subjects. Reading Level is 3.5–4.5.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Dennis Paul has been an educator for over twenty years. He taught for eleven years in a one-room school, working with students in grades K-8. He also has served as a special education teacher in a school for homeless students, and as a teacher for acute care adolescent hospital programs.

SUGGESTIONS

Below are suggestions for expanded use of the FUNbook of Creative Writing.

✔ Have students share their stories with the class through oral reading.
✔ Place students together to create a cooperative story.
✔ Help students spin off the story ideas to create original plots.
✔ Have the whole class brainstorm ideas for various conclusions to a story.
✔ The teacher underlines selected words in students' stories and has them find synonyms for those words (as a vocabulary enrichment activity).
✔ Divide students into groups to create dialogue for the characters and then act out the story for the class.
✔ Have students draw original artwork relating to each story written.
✔ Collect each writer's own stories in an individual Fun Folder of Creative Writing.
Dear Teachers and Parents,

Faced with a writing assignment, many students go into shock, recover, and then ask, “What do I write about?” The FUNbook of Creative Writing provides reluctant writers with story starters that will help ease the shock. As a teacher for over twenty years, I know how difficult it is to motivate students to write original stories using their own imaginations. Many language arts textbooks lack good, funny, creative, and attention-grabbing story starters. The story starters in this book are about characters with unusual names that are involved in extraordinary situations. My students love to read them aloud and even come up with their own ideas.

The FUNbook of Creative Writing can be used with large or small groups. Write one of the story starters on the board before class begins. Ask the students to think about what would happen next in the story. Have volunteers tell how they would continue the story and how they would end it. Telling stories aloud helps other students think of their own ideas when it is time to put them on paper.

Another way to ease reluctant writers into the process is to have each person in the class contribute the next sentence in a story. I do this with my students and when parents visit the room, the students proudly point to the part of the story that they contributed.

Sometimes I put each story starter on an index card and ask each student to pick one out of a box. I also have two students write a story as a team. In this way, slower students can learn from their partners as they exchange ideas and thereby not be solely responsible for the entire assignment.

I know that the FUNbook of Creative Writing will motivate your students in class or at home.

Sincerely,

Dennis E. Paul
Herb Waffle woke up one morning to find that all his neighbors were standing on the sidewalk in front of his house. They were carrying signs and looked very angry. One of the signs read, “No More Sheep!” Another read, “Herb Waffle Move Out Now!”

Herb has 72 sheep in his front yard. Recently he had planned to buy 28 more. He decided to get dressed and go out to talk to his angry neighbors. Maybe he could tell them something to make them forget about being angry. As he got dressed, he began to think of something to say.

When he went outside, he suddenly shouted...
Oscar Hudnut was really excited! He was driving to his new job. He is supposed to watch all of the sheep on Arnold’s Sheep Ranch. “Wow!” he thought, “I can’t believe I am going to be watching all the sheep at Arnold’s ranch. What an easy job this will be. There are 6,779,002 sheep at the ranch, but all they do is eat all day. How could any of them get into trouble just doing that?”

He drove up to the ranch and got out of his car. “Look at all the sheep,” he said out loud. “This is going to be fun!”
Lulu Lumpit delivers chickens to restaurants and chicken ranches. One day she had a load of 50,513 chickens she had to deliver to Chuck’s Fine Food Cafe. It’s located on Highway 99, which is very busy. As she was driving, she thought of all the chickens she had delivered over the past 10 years. “I really do deliver a lot of chickens,” she thought. Just then, as she checked the traffic in her rearview mirror, she thought she saw a chicken looking at her. “That’s strange,” she thought. “For a minute, it looked like a chicken was looking at me. They usually don’t pay any attention to me.” She looked up and saw two chickens looking at her. “Gee,” she thought, “I wonder what they are thinking?” [finish the story]
Carl Gargle has a 200-pound cat named Snowball. He was on his way to buy a new kitchen window. Snowball had thrown his food dish through the window when he discovered that Carl had bought some cheap cat food instead of his favorite. Carl has had a lot of trouble with Snowball. For instance, last week he ate a pair of Carl’s favorite shoes. “I don’t know what I am going to do with Snowball,” he thought. “He is costing me a lot of money. I have to figure out a way to make Snowball behave more like a normal cat.”
Herb Fern is a very rich man. He has $600,000,000.47 in the bank. He doesn’t like to spend a lot of money on his clothes or his car. He likes to buy bread that is a few days old. He always reads the newspaper at the library so he doesn’t have to buy his own copy.

Something was about to happen that would change Herb’s life forever! He was in the bank, checking on his money, when the manager of the bank walked up and... [finish the story]
Oscar Fafner loves living on the 78th floor of his apartment building. He likes the view of the city, the fresh air, and his quiet neighbors. He loves everything about his apartment, except for one thing. The elevator in his building has been broken for six years. It takes him five hours a day just to walk down and back up the stairs. "I have to find a new way to get back up to my apartment," he said one day. "I am sick of walking up and down all these stairs!" He began to think of some way to solve this problem. Then one day, he had an idea. He... [finish the story]
Wilma Bing was not a happy camper. She and her cat, Randolph, were camping by Lake Fuzzner. She loved to come up to the mountains and camp, but now she was surrounded by hundreds of other tents. There were radios blaring, and people were playing football. It was so noisy that Wilma couldn't hear a bird even if it sat on her shoulder and chirped into your ear! Randolph wasn't happy either. Wilma usually had to watch Randolph very carefully when they were at home. He was always getting into trouble. “I wish I could hear the peaceful sounds of the forest instead of all this noise,” she said. She looked at Randolph. Randolph looked at her. Wilma began to think of a plan... [finish the story]
"When I decided to become the first person to hop across the United States," thought Melvin Noggle, "I don't know what I was thinking!" Melvin Noggle was in Pennsylvania, about 10 miles from Pittsburgh. He was hopping along Highway 24, and he was exhausted! His sister, Nina, was riding behind him in a van with the words "Melvin Noggle Hops Across America" in big red letters.

Each night, Melvin slept inside the van. Nina made sure he drank enough water during the day. Each morning, he had to get up and start hopping. Melvin had been hopping for a month, and they still had a long way to go. "Oh, well," Melvin thought, "at least Pennsylvania is kind of flat." He looked at the highway stretched out in front of him. "At least there aren't any dogs like the ones that started chasing me in New Jersey!"

As he hopped along, he thought he saw a few dark clouds in the distance.

Nick Muldoon is very happy. He is on a two-week vacation and he is driving to Pelican Beach. He needs this vacation because he works at the Ace Dynamite Factory. He has to make sure that all of the dynamite is safely packed into boxes before it's loaded onto trucks to be shipped. He needs a lot of peace and quiet. Pelican Beach is usually a very quiet place. He always goes there on his vacation because there are no noisy crowds, no loud noises, no loud music, and, especially, no fireworks. Even the seagulls are quiet.

As he arrived at the Pelican Beach Hotel and began to take his suitcase out of his car, he thought he heard...
Duffy Ziltch was looking at the clock. “Oh great,” he said, “it’s almost 5:00 and I can’t wait to go home!” Duffy runs the Lost and Found Department at the Bovine City Bus Station. It was packed with all the items people leave behind on buses. He had suitcases, eyeglasses, bowling balls, false teeth, birdcages, and even a piano. Just as Duffy was about to turn off the lights, Nelson Noodle, the bus driver who usually drives the bus to Walrus Falls, came through the door.

“Duffy, don’t close up yet! I have something here that someone left behind on my bus.” Duffy couldn’t see what Nelson was holding because he backed into the room. Nelson suddenly turned around, and there in his arms was a very large chimpanzee.

“Hey!” Duffy shouted, “You can’t bring a monkey in here!”
Sally Sneed is a scientist. She studies the plants that grow in cold climates. A month ago, Sally received a letter from Dr. Lester Lumpit, a world-famous scientist. The letter said:

“Dear Sally, I have discovered something very strange in the mountains of Antarctica. Would you be interested in coming to Antarctica? I need your help with a new discovery. Sincerely, Dr. Lester Lumpit
P.S.: Please hurry!”

Sally made plans to go right away. After traveling by jet, she finally reached Antarctica. Dr. Lumpit met her at the airport. They decided to travel to the mountains the next morning to see the new discovery.

As they rode to the mountains on snowmobiles, Dr. Lumpit said, “I am so glad you are here, Sally. I’ve never seen anything like this in all the years I have worked here. I never thought I would see a giant...”

Nelson Noodle was driving his bus back to the Bovine City Bus Station. Suddenly his beeper went off. He looked down at the tiny display and read the message, “See the boss when you get back.” When he got back, he knocked on the door, which was half open. “You wanted to see me, Mrs. Ginch?” Nelson asked nervously.

“Nelson, please sit down. I have a job for you...an unusual job,” she said as she swiveled around in her big chair. “A group of magicians is having an annual convention right here in Bovine City,” she continued, “and they want a bus to take them around to see all the sights. Will you do it?” she asked.

“Well, I guess it wouldn’t be too tough driving some magicians around,” he said. “Sure, Mrs. Ginch, I’ll do it.”

Arnold Sharpel works at Dave’s Superhighway Hotel on Highway 99. He used to work in the laundry room and was responsible for washing all the towels. He did such a good job, he was promoted to assistant manager. Arnold was a little worried because the manager, Elmo Flecktone, was going on vacation. Arnold would be in charge of the hotel for two weeks. Elmo had told him not to worry, but Arnold began to think of all the things that could possibly go wrong.

“What if the electricity goes off?” he thought. “What if there is an accident or lots of people start to complain about the food or their rooms?” It was 9:00 in the morning and Arnold was behind the front desk. Everything was going fine and Arnold was beginning to relax. Just then a huge bus pulled up in the parking lot.

There was news at the Ace Bowling Ball Factory. Arney Beagle, who drills holes into the bowling balls, had heard that the company was going to make a big announcement. As he pulled into the parking lot, he saw Arnel Wheese, the president of the Ace Bowling Ball Company. Mr. Wheese began to speak, "We have decided to buy a new machine, the Winsock 2000 Bowling Ball Drilling Robot which will be controlled by a huge computer. This robot will drill all the holes in our bowling balls from now on! I also want to announce that I am giving Arney Beagle a new job. He will be in charge of the Winsock 2000 Bowling Ball Drilling Robot."

Arney did not know what to say. He did not want to be in charge of a computer that was taking over his job. He did not know what to do.

The Bovine City Restaurant is very busy. Pearl Magillicuty is the manager and cook at the restaurant. There is another restaurant in town. It’s called Jake’s Fine Food, but most people go to the Bovine City Restaurant because they like Pearl’s cooking. Lately, some strange things have been going on. Someone left little cards on some of the seats. They read, “The food in this restaurant is no good! Save your money! ...A friend”

“Who could be leaving these cards?” Pearl wondered. She was in the kitchen chopping all the cabbages so she could cook some cabbage soup. It was usually the Tuesday Night Special at the Bovine City Restaurant. As she was chopping, she noticed a note inside one of the cartons of cabbages. It said, “Give up now or else!”

Pearl was worried now. Who could be doing this? [finish the story]
Nelson Noodle is a bus driver for the Bovine City Bus Company. He was driving on the highway and he was thinking, "I wish something exciting would happen."

Suddenly he noticed an old man standing by the side of the road carrying a big package. He was waving one hand to flag down the bus. Nelson stopped the bus. The man had on a huge, gray overcoat and he wore a hat pulled down over his eyes.

"Going to Walrus Falls, mister?" Nelson asked. The man stepped up onto the bus carrying the big package. "That will be $3.75, please." Nelson held out his hand. The man took out his wallet, gave Nelson the money, and quickly took a seat near the back.

"That’s strange," Nelson thought. "He never said a word. I wonder why he is carrying that huge package." [ finish the story ]

Gloria Gussit fixes all the dishwashers, washing machines, refrigerators, and microwaves at Linda Bink's Fix-It Shop. She was known all over Bovine City as the person to call if you have a problem with an appliance.

Gloria and Linda were in the shop when the phone rang. “Linda Bink’s Fix-It Shop, Linda Bink speaking.” Linda always answered the phone. “You want Gloria Gussit to come where? ...to fix what? Is this some kind of joke?” Linda shouted into the phone. “Sure I'll tell her ... uh huh ... okay... goodbye.” Linda sat down at her desk. She reached over and flipped a switch on the intercom so she could speak to the people in the shop.

“Gloria, you better come to the office. I just got a call from The White House! They want you to fix the presidential microwave! They're sending a helicopter here now.” [finish the story]

Vern Lobbit is the gardener at Ajax Elementary School. His biggest job is mowing the lawn all around the school. It takes him 24 hours because the lawn and the football field are huge. He was riding on his mower cutting the grass when he looked down and saw a large hole. There was a pile of dirt next to the hole, a really big pile. As he shut his mower off and walked toward the hole, he noticed the other holes that were hidden by the tall grass. There were at least a dozen giant holes with dirt beside them. Vern looked down into one of the holes. "I wonder what kind of animal made these?" he thought nervously. "It can't be gophers... unless the gophers are the size of my dining room table!" “Yes, this is Lulu; what’s the problem?” she asked.

“Well, you see, I don’t have a car so I ride my bicycle to my job at the Donut Factory. It’s 116 miles away, so I have to start riding when it is still dark.”

“Okay, but how can we help you?” Lulu questioned.

For the last few days, Erleen has noticed a change in Buster. Usually Buster swims around his tank and does a few jumps when Erleen comes into the room. Now Buster just swims in place and looks at Erleen. Usually Buster has a great appetite and eats all the food Erleen sprinkles into the tank. Now, Buster just takes a few bites and looks sad.

“I wonder what is wrong with Buster?” Erleen thought, “I wonder why he looks so sad?”
The annual Walrus Falls Bowl-O-Rama starts in two days. The best bowlers from everywhere will compete. Chester Bigalow is the best bowler in Walrus Falls. He always wins the Bowl-O-Rama.

Chester was practicing when he noticed a newspaper someone had left behind. It was open to an article about the Walrus Falls Bowl-O-Rama. Chester picked it up and read: “An unknown bowler has entered the annual Walrus Falls Bowl-O-Rama. Nothing is known about him and he has refused all interviews. Our sources tell us he is very, very good. Chester Bigalow is going to have a tough job winning again this year.”

Chester sat down. He began to feel a little nervous. “I wonder who this new contestant is?” he thought. He decided to practice a lot more!

"What's the matter, Nino?" Gus asked.

"I was polishing a hubcap on this car and it suddenly fell off... and look what was hidden inside!" he answered excitedly.

There on the ground was a little box. It looked like the kind that holds an extra key. Nino reached down and picked it up. Inside was a gold coin.

"Wow! Do you think this belongs to the owner of the car?" Nino asked in a low voice.

"I don't think so," answered Gus. "I remember that the Walrus Falls Museum reported a robbery last month."

All the people in Bovine City had heard about the dognappers. They had heard of missing dogs in Walrus Falls. People in Bovine City reported to the police that their dogs were missing, too. After a few hours, the dog owner would receive a phone call. The voice on the phone always said the same thing. "If you want to see your dog again, leave $500.00 in small bills in locker number 14 at the Bovine City Bus Station." The police investigated, but they could not catch the dognappers.

As Mr. Gallop came into Nino’s office, Nino was taking the Super Pillow out of a large case. “Here, Mr. Gallop, put the pillow on my desk and sit down. Then put your head down on the pillow and tell me what you think.” Mr. Gallop sat down and put his head on the Super Pillow. As Nino searched for some test results, he couldn’t wait any longer.

“Well, Mr. Gallop, how do you like it?” he asked hopefully. But there was no answer. There was no answer because Mr. Gallop was fast asleep!
