Acknowledgements

My thanks go firstly to Fiona Davis for her encouragement, constructive suggestions, and eye for detail. Fiona’s considerable editorial expertise has helped me enormously in writing the book. Thanks, too, to Lynn Townsend for guiding the project so professionally, and to Lynn, Nora McDonald and Linda Matthews for their work in the final stages.

Nick Withberick and Peter Sunderland gave extensive feedback on drafts of the book. Their experience was invaluable in helping me revise the grammar reference and exam practice material in particular. Thanks are also due to Sam Brown, Claire Fooks, Nathalie Key, Suzanne Hewings and Hannah Templeton for their assistance in drafting sample answers.

At home, thanks to Ann and Suzanne for being always willing to listen, help and support.

The author and publishers acknowledge the following sources of copyright material and are grateful for the permission granted. While every effort has been made, it has not always been possible to identify the sources of all the material used, or to trace all copyright holders. If any omissions are brought to our notice, we will be happy to include the appropriate acknowledgements on reprinting.

Recordings produced by Leon Chambers at The Soundhouse, London.

Design by Kame Design.
Contents

Introduction

vii

1 Tenses

Simple and continuous tenses; perfect tenses; present perfect continuous and past perfect continuous .......................................................... 1

2 The future

Will, be going to + infinitive, shall; present tenses for the future; future continuous, future perfect and future perfect continuous; be to + infinitive; future in the past 13

3 Modals 1

Ability; possibility; conclusions, willingness, habitual events; necessity, deduction; 'not necessary'; obligation 24

4 Modals 2

Complex modal forms; dare and need; had better; be allowed to; be supposed to; other verbs with modal meanings 34

5 Nouns, agreement and articles

Compound nouns and noun phrases; subject-verb agreement; countable and uncountable nouns; articles 43

6 Determiners and quantifiers

No, none, not a, not any; much, many, a lot of; less of; all, both, whole; every, each; (a/the) few, little; less, fewer; much, many, etc. * (? ) 53

7 Adverbs and adjectives

Position of adverbs; quite, rather, already, yet, still, even, only, really; position of adjectives; gradable adjectives; patterns after adjectives 62

8 Comparison

Comparative and superlative forms of adjectives and adverbs; comparisons with as ..., comparisons with so ..., too ..., enough 71

9 Verb patterns 1

Verbs with two objects; verb + object + adjective; verb + reflexive pronoun; verb + each other / one another 81

10 Verb patterns 2

Verb + to-infinitive / -ing; verb + (object) + bare infinitive; verb + object + to-infinitive / -ing; verb + object / possessive + -ing; other patterns after verbs 90
11 Relative clauses
Defining and non-defining relative clauses; relative pronouns; other words beginning relative clauses; prepositions in relative clauses

12 Relative clauses
Participle clauses; to-infinitive clauses; adjective phrases; prepositional phrases

13 Adverbial clauses
Adverbial clauses including time clauses, contrast and concession clauses, reason clauses, purpose and result clauses

14 Conditionals
Real and unreal conditionals; if ... not and unless; even if and even though; if only and wish; other conditional expressions

15 Participle, to-infinitive and reduced clauses
Participle clauses including present participle (-ing) clauses, past participle (-ed) clauses, participle clauses after conjunctions and prepositions, to-infinitive clauses, reduced clauses

16 Noun clauses
That- noun clauses; which- noun clauses; whether and if

17 Conjunctions and connectors
Sentence conjunctions and connectors including: before, until; hardly; no sooner; scarcely; first(by); at first, last(by); at last; however; even so, even though; on the other hand, on the contrary; as well as, apart from, because of, besides, despite / in spite of, due to, during

18 The passive
Using the passive; active and passive verb forms; passive forms of verbs with two objects; get + past participle; get/have + object + past participle

19 Reporting
Structures in the reported clause - that- clause, to-infinitive and -ing verb tense in reporting; modal verbs in reporting; reporting questions; should in that- clauses; present subjunctive
Introduction

To the student

Who is this book for?
This book is for anyone preparing for the Cambridge Certificate in Advanced English (CAE) or Certificate of Proficiency in English (Proficiency/CPE) exams and covers the grammar needed for these exams. You can use it to support a CAE or Proficiency coursebook, for extra grammar practice on a general English language course, or with practice tests as part of a revision programme. You can use it class or for self-study.

How do I use this book?
There are two ways to use this book. You can either start at Unit 1 and work through to the end of the book, or you can do the online Entry test to find out which units you need most practice in and begin with those. Go to www.cambridge.org/elt/grammarforcae.

What is in this book?
This book contains 25 units. Each unit is in four parts:

A: Context listening This introduces the grammar of the unit in context. This will help you to understand the grammar more easily when you study section B. It also gives you useful listening practice. Play the recording and answer the questions. Then check your answers in the Key.

B: Grammar Read through this section before you do the grammar exercises. Start points act as a brief reminder of grammar that you probably already know, and you should look at these before reading the more advanced explanations. Material likely to be relevant to students taking Proficiency is indicated with a bar in the margin.

C: Grammar exercises Write your answers to each exercise and then check them in the Key. You can refer back to section B when you are doing the exercises.

D: Exam practice Each unit has a writing task and one other exam task. These have been designed to give you practice in the grammar for that unit as well as helping you to get to know the different parts of the CAE and Proficiency exams. The Use of English tasks test the grammar presented in that unit, but they also test other areas of grammar (which are presented in the rest of the book). Tasks similar to those in the Proficiency exam are indicated with a bar in the margin.

Appendices
The Appendices give more information about some of the grammar points presented in the units. They include lists of verbs commonly found in particular grammatical patterns, and further examples of points explained in Section B.

The Key
The Key contains:
• answers for all the exercises. Check your answers at the end of each exercise.
• sample answers for all the writing tasks in the Exam practice section. Read these after you have written your own answer. Study the language used and the way the ideas are organised. Examples of the grammar points practised in the unit are highlighted in the sample answers.
The Recording scripts
There are recording scripts for the Context listening in each unit, and for the Exam practice listening tasks. Do not look at the script until after you have answered the questions. It is a good idea to play the recording again while you read the script.

The Entry test
The Entry test is available online at www.cambridge.org/elh/grammarforcae. You can do this test before using the book to help you choose what to study. Answer the questions and then check your answers in the online Key. This Key tells you which units are most important for you.

To the teacher
This book offers concise yet comprehensive coverage of the grammar students need to be successful in the Cambridge Certificate in Advanced English (CAE) and Certificate of Proficiency in English (Proficiency/CPE) exams. It can be used for self-study or with a class. It will be particularly valuable for revision, for students retaking one of the exams, and for candidates in classes where some students are not entered for the exam. Sections A, B and C are designed to be useful for all advanced level students whether or not they are entered for CAE or Proficiency.

The Entry test
The online Entry test can be used diagnostically as a means of prioritising the language areas to be covered, either for a class, or for individual students.

What is in this book?
A: Context listening This section is suitable for classroom use. Many of the tasks can be done in pairs or small groups if appropriate.

B: Grammar This section is designed for private study, but you may wish to discuss those parts which are particularly relevant to your students' needs.

C: Grammar exercises This section can be done in class or set as homework. Students can be encouraged to check their own work and discuss any difficulties they encounter.

D: Exam practice This section can be used to familiarise students with the task types found in the CAE and Proficiency exams, while offering further practice in the grammar for each unit. Each task is followed by a Grammar focus task. The Grammar focus task highlights how the grammar studied in the unit is used in the exam task. The book contains at least one task from most parts of the Reading, Writing, Use of English and Listening papers in the CAE and Proficiency exams. Although the tasks have the same format as those found in the exams, the content has sometimes been changed to reflect the focus on grammar found in this book. In addition, there are more tasks from the Use of English paper than the others because this paper tests grammar more than the others. The Writing tasks cover a wide range of the tasks which students may come across in the exams, including articles, essays, reviews and proposals. Tasks similar to those found in the Proficiency exam are indicated with a bar in the margin. The Writing hints offer extra support in the form of useful words and expressions.

In classes where there are students who are not entered for either of the exams, you might prefer to set Exam tasks as extra work for exam candidates only. Alternatively, you could set the tasks for all students, as a further opportunity to practise the grammar of each unit.
A  Context listening

1. You are going to hear part of a radio phone-in programme. Before you listen, look at these pictures. What do you think the topic of the phone-in is?

2. Listen and check whether you were right. As you listen, answer the questions.

Which of the callers (Karen, Dave, Beryl or Keith) ...
1. ... lost something on the train one day? .............. Beryl ..............
2. ... travels to work by bus? ......................
3. ... works at home permanently? ..................
4. ... may buy a motorbike? ......................
5. ... has always liked travelling by train? .............
6. ... used to catch the train at a quarter past seven in the morning? .............
7. ... is working at home temporarily? ..............
8. ... has never owned a car? ......................

3. Listen again and fill in the gaps. Identify the tenses you used.

1. I ........................................... to London for over ten years.
2. I ................................................ over an hour when they announced that the train was cancelled.
3. I .............................................. at home happily for the last five years.
4. I .............................................. late for work twice this week.
5. I .............................................. of buying a motorbike.
6. I .............................................. at home while our office block is being renovated.
7. I .............................................. to her only a couple of times before then.
8. I .............................................. travelling by train ever since I was young.
9. I .............................................. to phone in to your programme for the last half hour.
10. Yesterday, I ........................................ all my work by 2.30.
B Grammar

1. Simple and continuous tenses

START POINT

- Present continuous
  - I'm working at home while our office block is being renovated. (= temporary state)
  - I'm phoning from the train. (= action in progress)
- Present simple
  - Public transport has a number of advantages over driving. (= permanent state)
  - I catch the train at 7.05 as the station near my home every morning. (= habit or regular event)
- Past continuous
  - I was travelling home when the train broke down. (= action in progress at past point)
- Past simple
  - I sold my car last week. (= completed past action)
  - I drove to work for a couple of years. (= past situation that doesn't exist now)
  - I caught the train every morning at 7.15. (= repeated past action)

We usually use simple tenses with verbs that describe an unchanging state rather than an action:

I love trains.

(See Appendix 1.1.)

We can use continuous tenses with state verbs to emphasise that a situation is temporary or untypical:

I'm appreciating being able to get up later than usual. (= emphasises that this is a temporary arrangement)

Now that I work at home I appreciate being able to get up late. (= suggests that this is now a more permanent arrangement)

With some verbs that describe mental states (e.g. consider, understand) and attitudes (e.g. hope, regret), continuous tenses suggest a process going on at the time of speaking, or emphasise that the process continues to develop:

I'm regretting selling my car already. (= emphasises that I have started to regret it and that this regret may grow)

I regret selling my car. (= describes an attitude that is unlikely to change)

Some verbs have different meanings when talking about states and describing actions:

I'm now thinking of buying a motorbike. (think of (action) = consider)

Do you think that's a good idea? (think (state) = asking about an opinion)

(See Appendix 1.2.)
We usually use the present simple with verbs that describe what we are doing as we speak:
I admit that it can be frustrating at times. (I agree that it is true when I say 'I admit')
I predict that increasing numbers of people will start working at home.
(> See Appendix 1.3.)

We often use the past simple in a narrative (e.g. a report or a story) to talk about a single complete past action, and the past continuous to describe the situation that existed at the time:
I dropped my purse while I was getting off the train.
When we talk about two or more past completed actions that followed one another, we use the past simple for both:
She woke me up and offered me a lift.
When we talk about two actions that went on over the same period of past time, we can often use the past continuous or the past simple for both:
I was listening to music while I was driving here. or I listened to music while I drove here.

We usually use continuous tenses with adverbs such as always, constantly, continually and forever to emphasise that something is done so often that it is characteristic of a person, group or thing:
I was forever arriving late for work.

We can use either the present continuous or present simple to describe something we regularly do at a certain time:
At 8 o'clock I'm usually having a leisurely breakfast. or At 8 o'clock I usually have ...

We often use the present continuous or past continuous:
- to make an enquiry or a statement of opinion more tentative:
  I'm hoping we've got Dave Jones on the line. (= implies that the speaker is not sure whether Dave Jones is there)
- to make a request or an offer more polite:
  Karen, were you wanting to say something?

2 Perfect tenses

START POINT

- I've lived in Spain, and the trains are so much more reliable there. (past situation relevant to the present)
- I've just sold my car and so now I go to work by bus. (recent action with consequences for the present)
- I've enjoyed travelling by trains ever since I was young. (situation continuing until the present)

Perfect tense

- This morning I'd read a couple of reports before I got off the train. (past event before another past event)

We use the present perfect to talk about a situation that existed in the past and still exists now, and the past simple when the situation no longer exists:
I've commuted to London every weekday for over ten years, and I actually enjoy it.
I commuted to London every weekday for over ten years before I started working at home.
We use the present perfect to talk about a repeated action that might happen again:

\textit{I've arrived} late for work twice this week so far.

and the past simple for a repeated action that won't happen again:

\textit{I arrived} late for work twice this week. (= the working week is over; I won't arrive late again this week)

When we give news or information, we often introduce a topic with the present perfect and then give details with other past tenses:

\textit{The new high speed rail link between the north of England and the Channel Tunnel has opened.}

\textit{It took} 15 years to build and \textit{cost} nearly ten billion pounds.

When we use a time expression (e.g. after, as soon as, before, when) to say that one event happened after another, we can use either the past simple or past perfect for the event that happened first:

\textit{I'd read} a couple of reports before I even got to work. or \textit{I read} a couple of reports ...

3 Present perfect continuous and past perfect continuous

We use the present perfect continuous (have been + -ing) to talk about an action in progress in the past for a period until now, and which is either still in progress or recently finished:

\textit{I've been working} at home for the last five years. (= action still in progress)

\textit{Sorry I'm late. I've been trying} to find a parking place. (= action recently finished)

We often prefer the present perfect continuous to say how long the action has been in progress:

\textit{I've been trying} to phone into your programme for the last half hour.

\( \Delta \) We use the present perfect to talk about a completed action or series of actions when we are interested in the result:

\textit{I've called} the bus company a number of times to complain.

\textit{They've bought} new trains and have really improved the service.

We use the past perfect continuous (had been + -ing) to talk about an action in progress over a period up to a particular past point in time:

\textit{I'd been waiting} over an hour when they announced that the train had been cancelled.

If we are not interested in how long the action went on, we often use the past continuous rather than the past perfect continuous:

\textit{I was waiting} on the platform when they announced that the train had been cancelled.

rather than \textit{I'd been waiting} ... (= there is no mention of how long the person was waiting.)

\( \Delta \) We use the past perfect when we say how many times something happened in a period up to a particular past time:

\textit{I'd spoken} to her only a couple of times before then.

We don't usually use the present perfect continuous or the past perfect continuous to describe states:

\textit{I'd owned} a car ever since I left college. (not \textit{I'd been owning} ...)

---

---
C Grammar exercises

1. Complete this radio news report with the verbs given. Use these tenses – present simple, present continuous, past simple, past continuous – giving alternatives where possible. Sometimes you may need to change the order of the adverb and verb.

Emergency services were bombarded with phone calls from all over the north of England last night by people who (1) ................................................. (report) seeing blue objects shoot across the sky. Mrs Linda Hayward (2) ................................................. (drive) along the B456 road at the time.

'I usually (3) ................................................. (come) along that bit of road at about ten. As I (4) ................................................. (go) past the old barn, I (5) ................................................. (see) a single bright blue light going across the road in front of my car. I (6) ................................................. (stop) the car and (7) ................................................. (watch) it for about fifteen minutes. It (8) ................................................. (travel) quite slowly from east to west and then it suddenly (9) ................................................. (disappear). Until now I never (10) ................................................. (believe) in UFOs, although my son forever (11) ................................................. (try) to persuade me that they (12) ................................................. (exist). But now I (13) ................................................. (think) that maybe he (14) ................................................. (be) right.'

At the height of the panic, police stations (15) ................................................. (get) around a thousand calls an hour from members of the public. Sergeant Ron Drake of the Ambledale police (16) ................................................. (be) particularly busy. 'Between 10 and 11 o’clock we (17) ................................................. (receive) around thirty calls. The callers said they (18) ................................................. (see) a single blue light about as big as a car over the village. We now (19) ................................................. (consider) searching the fields around Ambledale for any evidence left behind.'

Dr Bart Masow, a lecturer in astronomy at Trumpton University (20) ................................................. (offer) a simple explanation. 'The reports that (21) ................................................. (come) in last night (22) ................................................. (suggest) that it (23) ................................................. (be) a meteor shower. This (24) ................................................. (be) not unusual on a small scale, but last night’s shower (25) ................................................. (seem) to have been very large. In fact, we (26) ................................................. (get) an increasing number of meteor showers, and my department currently (27) ................................................. (research) possible reasons for this.'

But many witnesses to the events (28) ................................................. (believe) that they (29) ................................................. (observe) more than a meteor shower, and the Ministry of Defence (30) ................................................. (say) that they (31) ................................................. (take) the reports of UFO sightings very seriously.
Complete the sentences using the verbs in the box. Use the same verb in each pair of sentences. Use the present simple, present continuous, past simple or past continuous.

appear attract expect hate look measure see think

1 a I’m thinking about taking a gap year before I go to university and going travelling around South America.
   b A: Why’s Terry having a party?
      B: I think it’s his birthday.

2 a A: How did the cat get up into the tree?
   b: I think he was chasing a bird.
   b A: Let me know when the post arrives.
      B: Why, you something important?

3 a A: Did you enjoy your time at boarding school?
   b: No, I hate every minute of it.
   b As the boat was thrown about by the huge waves, she looked across at Paul and wondered if he this, too.

4 a This month’s special exhibition of South African art over 5000 visitors a day to the museum, whereas we normally only get about 2000.
   b As the home of William Shakespeare, Stratford tourists from all over the world.

5 a you that big house over there? It’s my uncle’s.
   b I split up with Alex when I found out that he someone else.

6 a A: What happened to your wrist?
   b: I the window for some new curtains when I fell off the ladder and sprained it.
   b I was given this pedometer for my birthday. You just hook it on your belt and it how far you walk during the day.

7 a A: What on earth are you doing down there?
   b: I one of my earrings — it fell off and rolled under the bed.
   b A: Which course are you going to apply to?
      B: Well, this one on anthropology interesting.

8 a Our neighbour’s cat at our door every morning, demanding to be fed.
   b Chris is incredibly busy. At the moment he in Hamlet at the Crescent Theatre.
Complete the sentences with an appropriate form of the verb given. Use the past simple, present perfect, past perfect and past perfect continuous tenses. Use each tense at least once in each group of four sentences, but give alternatives where possible.

1 play
   a. We .................................. 35 matches so far this season, so we're all feeling pretty tired.
   b. After the match, she admitted that she .................................. badly.
   c. .................................. you .................................. rugby or football at the school you went to?
   d. We .................................. really well all year, so it came as a big surprise when we were beaten by Wales last December.

2 make
   a. We .................................. the right decision in emigrating to Canada in the mid-1990s.
   b. Henson never thought about retirement. In fact, he .................................. a documentary film about the indigenous people of Chile when he died.
   c. A: When did you realise that you .................................. a mistake in joining the army?
      B: When I was posted to Afghanistan.
   d. Korean scientists believe that they .................................. a breakthrough in the fight against cancer by developing a technique for containing the disease. They reported their findings at the AAL conference in New York this week.

3 eat
   a. The couple described how they .................................. in the dining room when the explosion destroyed the hotel.
   b. My mother was a vegetarian, and as children we rarely .................................. meat.
   c. I .................................. prawns a few times before last week without any ill effects, but the ones I had at the restaurant made me very sick indeed.
   d. A: Would you like some of these cherries?
      B: Yes, please. I .................................. any fresh fruit for days.

4 run
   a. Over the last year I .................................. workshops on creative writing in twelve colleges and universities.
   b. She was breathing hard as if she ..................................
   c. She .................................. only two marathons before breaking the world record in the Pan-African Games.
   d. I was late for work so I .................................. most of the way.
4 Complete the sentences using either the present perfect or present perfect continuous form of the verb given. Sometimes both are possible.

1 Alice ___________ (compete) in the London Marathon twice before, but hopes to achieve her best time this year.

2 Income from manufacturing exports still provides the largest proportion of the country’s export earnings, but the proportion ___________ (drop) for many years.

3 The house ___________ (belong) to the Beecham family for over 250 years, but the present owner, Donald Beecham, is selling it.

4 Campbell ___________ (serve) a life sentence for murder since 1990, but his lawyers are arguing for an early release.

5 So far, attempts to rescue the climbers from the ledge where they camped during the storm ___________ (fail).

6 A: I’d like a career where I can travel and meet people.
   B: ___________ (consider) becoming a tour guide?

7 A: ___________ (swim)? You look really exhausted.
   B: I am. I did fifty lengths of the pool.

8 A: Did you manage to get in touch with Tony?
   B: No, I ___________ (try) three times in the last hour, but he’s always engaged.

9 A: Hello, Stannard’s Plumbers. How may I help you?
   B: My hot water tank ___________ (burst) and my sitting room is flooded!

5 Choose the correct tense. Sometimes both are possible.

A: Good morning, Mr. Davies. What can I do for you?
B: Well, doctor, (1) I’ve been getting / I’ve got some really bad headaches.
A: Okay. Can you tell me exactly when these headaches (2) were starting / started?
B: Oh, yes, I (3) have remembered / remember it vividly – it was on a Friday three weeks ago. I (4) had been working / had worked in front of my computer all week because I (5) did / was doing a job for an important client – (6) I was working / I’ve been working as a website designer for the last few years, you see. I (7) had just finished / had just been finishing when the pain started, and by the end of that day I (8) was feeling / felt really bad.
A: Okay. And how (9) have you slept / have you been sleeping?
B: Not very well, actually. Usually I’m asleep as soon as my head (10) his / is hitting the pillow, but recently (11) I’ve been having / I’m having difficulty getting to sleep.
A: I see. Now, (12) I’m noticing / I notice that you wear glasses. (13) Have you had / Were you having your eyes tested recently?
B: No, I (14) haven’t had / didn’t have them tested for a couple of years, I suppose.
A: Okay, what (15) I suggest / I’m suggesting is that first you get your eyes tested. Then when you (16) are working / work at your computer, take frequent breaks to rest your eyes. If that (17) hasn’t solved / doesn’t solve the problem, come back and see me again.
Exam practice

Reading
You are going to read three extracts which are all concerned in some way with memory. Choose the answer A, B, C or D which you think fits best according to the text.

---

Being a hostage
(This extract is from a book called Bel Canto by Ann Patchett. In the story so far, kidnappers in a Spanish-speaking country in Latin America have taken a number of people hostage. One of these is Mr Hosokawa, the Chief Executive Officer of a big Japanese company, Nansui. Mr Hosokawa loves opera, which has inspired him to try to learn Italian in the past. Another hostage, Gen, is Mr Hosokawa’s translator.)

But in this vast ocean of time Mr. Hosokawa could not seem to startle up any concern for Nansui. While he stared at the weather he never wondered if his abduction had affected stock prices. He did not care who was making his decisions, sitting at his desk. The company that had been his life, his son, had fallen away from him as thoughlessly as a coin is dropped. He took a small spiral notebook from the pocket of his tuxedo jacket and, after inquiring as to the correct spelling from Gen, added the word garía to his list. Incentive was key. No matter how many times Mr. Hosokawa had listened to his Italian tapes in Japan he could remember nothing that was on them. No sooner had he heard the beautiful words, dimora, patrono, than they vanished from memory. But after only one week of captivity look at all the Spanish he had learned! Ahora was now; sentarse, sit; ponerse de pie, stand up; sueltelo, sleep, and requetebueno was very good, but it was always spoken with a certain coarseness and condescension that told the listener not that he had done well but that he was too stupid to merit high expectations. And it wasn’t just the language that had to be overcome, there were all the names to learn as well, those of the hostages, those of the captors when you could get one of them to tell you his name. The people were from so many different countries that there were no easy tricks of association, no familiar toehold from which to pull oneself up. The room was full of men he did not know and should know, though they all smiled and nodded to one another. He would have to work harder to introduce himself. At Nansui he had made a point of learning the names of as many of his employees as was possible. He remembered the names of the businessmen he entertained and the names of their wives whom he inquired after and never met.

---

garía is the Spanish word for ‘mist’
1 Mr Hosaka finds it easier to learn Spanish now than to learn Italian in Japan because A he didn’t write down words in Italian.
   B he found it difficult to learn from tapes.
   C he now has more motivation to learn.
   D the captors and other hostages are good teachers.

2 Which of the following best explains why Mr Hosaka finds it difficult to learn the names of the captors and other hostages.
   A He has always been bad at learning people’s names.
   B They have Spanish names.
   C He is not sufficiently motivated to do so.
   D They are not Japanese.

The purpose of memory

As Matthew Wilson, of the Picower Institute for Learning and Memory in Cambridge, Massachusetts observes, memory is like everything else in biology. It has evolved to serve a purpose and is honed for that purpose, which in this case is to react appropriately to the stimuli an animal meets in the environment by drawing on the experience of previous encounters. That is emphatically not the same as having a perfect memory for each of those encounters. Instead, memory should generalise from similar experiences and disregard the individual details.

And indeed that is most people’s everyday experience. The elderly are notorious for remembering every detail of their childhood but being unable to recall what they did last week. Such inability to remember details is often regarded as a failing, whereas so-called eidetic (or photographic) memory is often admired by outsiders.

In Dr Wilson’s view this perception is probably wrong. Indeed, an ideal memory would have generalised from experience to such an extent that individual events no longer need to be remembered at all; merely the appropriate response to the situation. So the fact that the elderly, who already have vast experience to draw on, do not waste precious storage capacity on adding things that will not aid their survival could well be the result of evolutionary adaptation rather than an indication of waning powers.

3 In what way, according to Matthew Wilson, are memory and everything else in biology similar?
   A They all adapt to changing circumstances.
   B They all originate in our animal instincts.
   C They all vary across individuals.
   D They are all far from perfect.
4. In Dr Wilson’s view, why do older people remember fewer details of a recent situation than do younger people?
   A. They have reduced ability to remember facts.
   B. They do not have the brain capacity to store details.
   C. They lose the ability to react to a stimulus.
   D. They do not need to be able to remember details.

The myth that memory is perfect

One in four of us is susceptible to false memory syndrome. With prompting and coaxing, one in four of us can be led to believe that something has occurred in our past that, in fact, has no basis in truth. After the 1992 Amsterdam plane crash, a study showed that an impossible 60% of those interviewed claimed to have seen the event. Witness testimony is vulnerable to suggestibility and in particular there are differences of reliability with regard to age, race, presence of a weapon and duration of exposure to the evidence. Older people are more likely to pick someone from an identity parade. Own-race bias (ORB) means that the identification of someone of one’s own race is more accurate than of someone of another race.

It can be seen that memory is a more malleable phenomenon than everyday sense would lead us to believe. This makes the ‘truth’ itself more fallible, particularly when it involves an individual drawing upon it. In order for us to survive and to lead balanced and healthy lives, we have become accomplished practitioners in false memory syndrome. Thankfully this is a very necessary part of everyday existence: a survival imperative. What would your life be like if you could remember everything?

5. In what way does the 1992 Amsterdam plane crash exemplify false memory syndrome?
   A. People claimed they saw the plane crash in order to please the interviewers.
   B. More people claimed to see the plane crash than actually did.
   C. People’s memories of the event were influenced by their age.
   D. People don’t quickly forget a traumatic event like this.

6. In the writer’s view, memories are unreliable because
   A. people are prejudiced against other races.
   B. people only remember what they want to.
   C. people are influenced by what others say and do.
   D. people try to remember everything.
Grammar focus task

This is an extract from the first text. Without looking back at it, fill in the gaps using the past perfect or past simple of the verb in brackets.

But in this vast ocean of time Mr. Hosokawa could not seem to starle up any concern for Nansai. While he (1) stare (stared) at the weather he never (2) wonder (wondered) if his abduction (3) affect (affected) stock prices. He (4) not care (did not care) who was making his decisions, sitting at his desk. The company that (5) was (was) his life, his son, (6) fall (fell) away from him as thoughtlessly as a coin is dropped. He (7) take (took) a small spiral notebook from the pocket of his tuxedo jacket and, after inquiring as to the correct spelling from Gen, (8) add (added) the word guaira to his list. Incentive (9) key (be) key. No matter how many times Mr. Hosokawa (10) listen (listened) to his Italian tapes in Japan he could remember nothing that was on them. No sooner (11) hear (heard) the beautiful words, dimora, patrono, than they (12) vanish (vanished) from memory. But after only one week of captivity look at all the Spanish he (13) learn (learned)!

Writing

You have recently read an article in an English language magazine aimed at young adults, which reported a survey finding that television was considered to be the most important invention of the last 100 years. You decide to write an article arguing that another invention has had as great an impact. Describe the invention and the impact it has had on our world, and say why you think it is a more important invention than television.

Write your article in 300–350 words.

Writing hints

This task gives you the chance to practise a range of tenses:
- past simple when talking about the impact of television Television brought films and news into people’s homes.
- present perfect when talking about the impact so far of your chosen greatest invention
  The mobile phone has changed the way we conduct conversations.
- present simple to describe the characteristics of your chosen greatest invention
  Jet engines provide much more power than propellers.
A Context listening

1 Which of these activities would you like to do on a visit to the USA?

2 Jessica is doing a course in American Studies at a British university. As part of this programme she will spend her third year studying at a university in Los Angeles in California. Her friend, Kelly, wants to visit her while she is there. Listen to them talking about their plans. Which of the activities shown in Exercise 1 do they mention?

3 Listen again and fill in the gaps.
   1 I'm spending .......... a few days sightseeing in New York.
   2 I ...................... in Los Angeles on the 20th.
   3 I ...................... for my own place.
   4 It ...................... a long time to catch up.
   5 I ...................... up there if it's not too expensive.
   6 ...................... you stop over anywhere on the way out?
   7 When I come to see you, you ...................... in California for nearly six months.
   8 You ...................... longer, won't you?

4 How many different ways of referring to the future have you used? ..............
B Grammar

1 will, be going to + infinitive and shall

START POINT

- will
- I think I'll fly directly to Los Angeles. (= a decision made without planning)
- Everyone says America's a great place - I'm sure you'll have a fantastic time. (= a prediction based on opinion or experience)
- I'll be 21 on 21st January. (= a fact about the future)
- I'll meet you at the airport. (= willingness)

- be going to + infinitive
- First I'm going to stay with Don and Suzanne. (= a decision already made)
- The cloud's building up. It's going to rain this afternoon. (= a prediction based on outside evidence)

We can sometimes use will instead of be going to to make a prediction based on outside evidence, but when we do, we usually include an adverb:
The cloud's building up. It'll definitely rain / it's definitely going to rain this afternoon.

We can use will or be going to in the main clause of an if-sentence with little difference in meaning when we say that something is conditional on something else:
If I don't go now, I'll / I'm going to be late for my next lecture.

⚠️ We use will, not be going to, when the main clause refers to offers, requests, promises and ability:
If my plans change, I'll let you know, of course. (= promise)
If you bring your tent, we'll camp on the coast for a few days. (= ability; ‘we will be able to camp’)

In formal contexts, we can use shall instead of will with I or we:
- in questions that ask about intentions:
  Shall I / we see you before you leave? (= Will I / we have the opportunity to see you?)
- in statements about the future, although will is more usual:
  When I finish my course I shall have some time to travel around America. or
  When I finish my course I will have some time ...

2 Present continuous and present simple for the future

START POINT

- present continuous
- I'm spending a few days sightseeing. (= event intended or arranged)

- present simple
- Lectures start on 27th July. (= event as part of official schedule)
Compare the use of the present continuous for the future and be going to:
I'm flying on 15th July at ten in the evening. (= already arranged)
I'm going to fly up there if it's not too expensive. (= the speaker intends to fly but has not made the arrangements yet)

We tend to avoid be going to go and use the present continuous (be going to) instead:
Then I'm going to San Francisco, rather than Then I'm going to go to San Francisco.

We can't use the present continuous for future events which are outside people's control:
It's going to rain this afternoon. (not It's raining this afternoon.)

We can use either the present simple or will to talk about official arrangements:
The semester begins on 7th December, or The semester will begin on 7th December.
The present continuous is used in informal arrangements:
You're not staying with them the whole time, then? (= informal arrangement) (not You don't stay with them the whole time, then?)

We use the present simple, or sometimes other present tenses, to refer to the future in time clauses with a conjunction (e.g. after, as soon as, before, by the time, when, while, until); in conditional clauses with if, in case, provided and unless; and in clauses beginning with suppose, supposing and what if:
As soon as I book my tickets, I'll let you know. (not As soon as I will book ...)
It'll be good to know I can contact them in case I have any problems. (not ... in case I will have any problems ...)
What if I don't like it? (not What if I won't like it?)

3 Future continuous, future perfect and future perfect continuous

We use the future continuous (will + be + present participle) to talk about something predicted to happen at a particular time or over a particular period in the future:
I'll be studying really hard during the semesters.

We use the future perfect (will + have + past participle) to make a prediction about an action we expect to be completed by a particular time in the future:
By the time you come I'm sure I'll have got to know the city really well.

We use the future perfect continuous (will + have been + present participle) to emphasise the duration of an activity in progress at a particular point in the future:
When I come to see you, you'll have been living in California for nearly six months.

We can also use the future continuous, future perfect and future perfect continuous to say what we believe or imagine to be true:
Dad won't be using his car, so I'm sure it's okay to borrow it. (= an activity happening now or at a particular point in the future)
They'll have forgotten what I look like. (= an event that took place before now or before a particular point in the future)
My plane's been delayed. Don and Suzanne will have been waiting for me at the airport for hours. (= an activity continuing to now)
4 be to + infinitive

Be to + infinitive is commonly used:

● in news reports:
  Extra lifeguards are to be posted at the beach after a shark was seen swimming close to the shore.

● to talk about official plans, and rules or instructions:
  Students are to hand in project reports at the end of semester two. (active)
  Project reports are to be handed in at the end of semester two. (passive)

⚠️ We only use is / are / am to + infinitive to talk about future events that people can control:
  The weather will still be warm even in winter. (not The weather is still to be warm.)

We often use be to + infinitive in if-clauses when we mean 'in order to':
If she is to get a good grade in her project report, she needs to work on her statistics. (= in order to get a good grade, she needs to work on her statistics)
Compare: If she gets a good grade in her project report, she will be really surprised.

5 Future in the past

A number of forms can be used to talk about a past activity or event that was still in the future from the point of view of the speaker:
I was going to see an aunt in Seattle a couple of years ago, but I cancelled the trip because she got ill. (= a plan that didn’t happen)
I knew I would be feeling awful by the end of the flight. (= a prediction made in the past)
(> See Appendix 2.)

We can use was / were to + infinitive and was / were to have + past participle to talk about the future in the past, particularly in formal contexts. With was / were to + infinitive we don’t know whether the event actually happened unless the context makes this clear:
First, I flew to New York and then I was to go on to Chicago. (= we don’t know whether the speaker went to Chicago or not)

⚠️ was / were to have + past participle is used for things that were expected, but didn’t actually happen:
I was to have visited my aunt, but she was taken ill. (= the visit didn’t happen)

Unlike is / are / am to + infinitive (see B4 above), we can use was / were to + infinitive whether or not people can control the event:
Helen left England for Australia in 1964 for what she intended to be a short visit, but it was to be 30 years before she returned to her home country.
C Grammar exercises

1 Complete the sentences using the verbs in the box. Choose the most appropriate form.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>verb</th>
<th>will have / am having</th>
<th>persuades / will persuade</th>
<th>am-starting-out / will-start-out</th>
<th>is going to depart / departs</th>
<th>will rise / are to rise</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>miss / will miss</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>is going to melt / is melting</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>will be enjoying / enjoys</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>will be believed / is to be believed</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>will agree / agrees</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>see / are going to see</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

1 A: Do you want to come out for a meal tonight?
   B: I'm starting out... early tomorrow morning - my flight's at six - so I don't think I'll come, thanks.

2 The next train for London ....................... from platform six at 16.07.

3 I ....................... some friends over for dinner on Saturday. Do you want to join us?

4 They reckon the Greenland ice sheet ....................... within a few years.

5 A: Gary doesn't want to come on holiday with us, then.
   B: He says that now, but I'm sure Hannah ....................... him to change his mind.

6 By the middle of the week, temperatures ....................... to 30° C.

7 The striking workers have said that they will prevent finished goods leaving the factory until the management ....................... to their demand for improved working conditions.

8 I'm not sure when I'll be home tonight. Expect me when you ....................... me.

9 A: The coach leaves Oxford at exactly 5.00 from the bus station.
   B: What if I ....................... it?
   A: You'll have to take the train.

10 If the research ....................... , children now spend more time playing computer games than watching television.

11 A: It's Daniel's first week away at university. I wonder how he's getting on?
   B: I'm sure he ....................... himself.

2 Choose the most appropriate future form. Sometimes more than one form is possible.

1 You'll freeze if you ....................... out dressed like that. Put on a warm coat!
   (you'll go / you're going to go / you go)
2 When I retire next year, a lot of travelling around North America.
(I'm doing / I do / I'm going to do)

3 A: Have you been in touch with Pat yet to say we can't come? You said you'd do it.
B: Sorry, I forgot. her know tomorrow when I see her at work.
(I'm going to let / I shall let / I'll let)

4 Look at that stupid cyclist. an accident.
(He'll cause / He's going to cause / He causes)

5 A: What do you want done with this box?
B: If you just leave it there, it upstairs when I go.
(I'll take / I'm taking / I'm going to take)

6 A: What this evening?
(are you doing / are you going to do / do you do)
B: Oh, I don't know. Maybe watch a DVD.
(I'm going to / I'll / I'm watching)

7 Please note that next week's concert at 7.00, not 7.30 as advertised in the programme.
(is commencing / will commence / is going to commence)

8 Mr Kerr angry if you don't hand your homework in today.
(is being / is going to be / will be)

9 A: Bob Dylan a concert in London next month.
(will do / is doing / does)
B: book some tickets?
(Am I going to / Will I / Shall I)

10 The air tickets around a week to reach you.
(shall take / will take / are taking)

11 The French oral tests next Monday.
(are starting / will start / start)

12 When Guy 50, Gemma 18.
(is / will be / is going to be)
(is going to be / is to be / will be)

13 If we get much more rain, the river its banks.
(is probably going to burst / will probably burst / is bursting)
3 Complete the sentences using a future form of the verbs given. Use the same future form for all the sentences in each group. Use:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>present simple</th>
<th>future continuos</th>
<th>be to + infinitive</th>
<th>future perfect</th>
<th>present continuous</th>
</tr>
</thead>
</table>

1 _get - go - terminate_ a All change, please - this train ........................................... here.
   b What time does our plane get (our plane) to Athens?
   c The cat runs away from me as soon as I ........................................... near it.

2 _buy - have - need_ a A: What are you going to town for?
       B: I ........................................... some new shoes.
   b A: Jane's not looking very well.
       B: No, apparently, she ........................................... a major operation.
   c A: I've made a list of the things you ........................................... for the field trip to Iceland.
       B: Thanks, that's really helpful.

3 _negotiate - watch - work_ a On April 1st next year I ........................................... at the university for 25 years.
   b A: It's such a pity that Helen is away and can't watch the match with us. You know how much she loves tennis.
       B: I'm sure she ........................................... it on TV in her hotel room.
   c The next statement from the trade union leaders is expected at ten o'clock this evening. By that time they ........................................... with the employers for nearly 36 hours.

4 _come - do - support_ a Justin's not feeling well, so he ........................................... tonight after all.
   b Who ........................................... (you) in the rugby world cup final next week, England or South Africa?
   c A: What do you think Susan ........................................... at the moment?
       B: Oh, she'll still be in bed.

5 _create - launch - leave_ a The computer firm Clark Campbell ........................................... 300 new jobs at its assembly plant just outside Dublin.
   b All mobile phones ........................................... outside the examination room.
   c The government ........................................... an enquiry next week into allegations of corruption in the civil service.
6 analyse – have – move
   a. The bank predicts that by the end of next year, over 80% of its customers will ....................... to online banking.
   b. Natasha ..................... her exam results by now. I wonder how she’s got on.
   c. My research is going rather slowly at the moment, but I’m certain by the end of the year all of my data .......................

7 go – have – make
   a. She .................. a speech at the conference next week.
   b. I .......................... out there – it’s pouring with rain and I haven’t got an umbrella.
   c. We .......................... risotto for dinner. Is that okay with you?

4 Complete these texts using the future forms of the verbs in brackets. Give alternatives where possible. In some cases, you will need to use the future in the past.

THE NEWS IN BRIEF

A complete ban on tobacco advertising in the EU (1) comes / will come / is to come (come) into effect at midnight tonight. Initially, the ban (2) begin (begin) last October, but last-minute legal moves by the tobacco companies forced a delay. EU health ministers issued a statement welcoming the ban, and saying that it (3) reduce (reduce) smoking-related disease significantly.

* * * * *

A Brazilian rocket has exploded after an engine ignited by mistake just days before its planned lift-off. The unmanned rocket (4) carry (carry) two satellites into space. A new launch (5) take place (take place) in March.

* * * * *

The Australian actress Niki Kardman (6) star (star) in a film about the life of Princess Diana made by the director Baz Leeman. Ms Kardman said, ‘When Baz said he (7) make (make) a film about Diana’s life and wanted to cast me, I jumped at the chance.’

* * * * *

The novelist Arnold Miller has died. Miller worked as a journalist in London during the 1960s before moving to Canada, where he (8) spend (spend) the rest of his life. He spoke exclusively to The Daily Reporter last month, in what (9) be (be) his last major interview. A special report on his life and work (10) appear (appear) in next Friday’s edition.
D Exam practice

Use of English
Read the following texts on ageing. For questions 1–4 answer with a word or short phrase. You do not need to write complete sentences.

A

Every revolution has a turning point - a time when the original impetus for change has run its course. History shows that this is often a vulnerable time. Opinion on where to go next is sharply divided. Indecision prevails at precisely the moment when decisive action is most essential. The longevity revolution is no exception. We know where we’ve come from and why, but we don’t have a clear plan of where to go now. Ours has been a revolution from - from the terrible waste of life caused by premature death - not a revolution to. We are at our turning point now. The decisions we take in the next few years will have far-reaching consequences for the state of future society.

Two hundred years ago most people died before their time. Well, we fixed that. Rarely has a revolution succeeded so well. What we now experience are the deaths associated with old age, with degenerative conditions. Much of modern medicine is concerned with fighting these, pushing back the frontiers of survival further and further. But suddenly we are not so sure about where we are going and why. Many are the news stories trumpeting that we will soon all live to 130, 200 or 400 years, but what about the New Yorker cartoon that showed one old man saying to another; ‘I hope I die before science makes me live to 150’.

The ambivalence of our attitudes reflects the confusion of rapid change. Not long ago the attainment of old age was hailed as a success. Ageing today is widely seen as a failure, unless you are as extremely old as Jeanne Calment. I remember being deeply struck by a remark from a former medical colleague whose research was on heart disease: ‘There is nothing interesting about the ageing of the cardiovascular system,’ he exclaimed. ‘It just rots!’ What, I wondered, did he feel was the point of his work? What, for that matter, is the point of mine?

1 Why, according to the writer, is this ‘vulnerable time’ (line 2) of particular significance?
2 What is meant in the context by the phrase ‘The ambivalence of our attitudes’, in line 17?
Ageing is a physical phenomenon happening to our bodies, so at some point in the future, as medicine becomes more and more powerful, we will inevitably be able to address ageing just as effectively as we address many diseases today. I claim that we are close to that point because of the SENS (Strategies for Engineered Negligible Senescence) project to prevent and cure ageing. It is not just an idea; it’s a very detailed plan to repair all the types of molecular and cellular damage that happen to us over time. And each method to do this is either already working in a preliminary form (in clinical trials) or is based on technologies that already exist and just need to be combined. This means that all parts of the project should be fully working in mice within just ten years and we might take only another ten years to get them all working in humans.

When we get these therapies, we will no longer all get frail and decrepit and dependent as we get older, and eventually succumb to the innumerable ghastly progressive diseases of old age. We will still die, of course – from crossing the road carelessly, being bitten by snakes, catching a new flu variant etcetera – but not in the drawn-out way in which most of us die at present. So, will this happen in time for some people alive today? Probably. Since these therapies repair accumulated damage, they are applicable to people in middle age or older who have a fair amount of that damage.

I think the first person to live to 1,000 might be 60 already.

3 Which word in the first paragraph conveys the writer’s certainty that ageing will be cured?

4 What opinion does the writer’s use of ‘ghastly’ in line 12 convey?

Grammar focus task

Without looking back at the texts, add will and one of the following verbs to these extracts in the most natural places.

live die be able to happen get have

1 We’ll inevitably address ageing just as effectively as we address many diseases today.
2 The decisions we take in the next few years far-reaching consequences for the state of future society.
3 Many are the news stories trumpeting that we soon all to 130, 200 or 400 years.
4 When we get these therapies, we no longer all frail and decrepit and dependent as we get older.
5 We still, of course.
6 So, this in time for some people alive today?
Writing

You are on the committee of an organisation called Sport for Youth, which encourages young people to become more involved in sports. The next annual conference will be held in your home town. Delegates have received a provisional programme, but you need to write a letter to them shortly before the conference giving them further details about the first day, and suggesting what they might do in the evening. Read the provisional programme and some notes you took at a recent meeting of the organising committee.

15th Annual Conference of 'Sport for Youth'

Provisional programme for Day 1

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Time</th>
<th>Event</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>9.30</td>
<td>Registration — all day</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>10.30–11.00</td>
<td>Opening talk by Peter Taylor</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>11.30–1.00</td>
<td>Coffee</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1.00–2.00</td>
<td>Talks</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2.00–5.00</td>
<td>Lunch</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Evening free</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Write a letter to delegates in 180–220 words.

Writing hints

This task gives you the opportunity to practise future forms:

- will
- Internet access will be available.
- present continuous for the future
  - Peter is talking about sport in schools.
- present simple for the future
  - The registration desk opens at 8.30.
Modals 1
ability: possibility: conclusions, willingness, habitual events; necessity, deduction; ‘not necessary’: obligation

A Context listening

1 Look at these newspaper headlines. What do you think the stories are about?
School evacuation in South Wales
More air travel chaos looms
Sport the answer to obesity crisis
Borland link opened

2 3a) Listen to a radio news summary and check whether you were right.

3 3a) Listen again and fill in the gaps.
1 Air passengers could be left badly today.
2 The cabin staff have left the new working conditions.
3 Firefighters have left the fire under control fairly quickly.
4 I think it is of great benefit to the island.
5 There are restrictions on the number of people moving here.
6 Schools take a more active role in encouraging children to take up sports.
7 They encourage their children whatever encouragement they can.
8 It is warm, sunny and dry, with temperatures up to 22° C.

4 In which of the extracts do the words you have written refer to:
1 ability?
2 necessity?
3 obligation?
4 possibility?
5 prediction?

24
B Grammar

START POINT

- We'll get wealthy people from the mainland who can afford second homes. (= general ability)
- Before the bridge was built we could only get to the island by ferry. (= general ability in the past)
- May / could / might
  - Up to 100,000 people may experience delays. (= it's possible this will happen)
  - Air passengers could be hit badly today. (= it's possible)
  - It might be a number of months before the sports centre is back in operation. (= it's possible this is true; less certain than may or could)
- Will / would
  - That will push up house prices. (= prediction about the future)
  - If schools highlighted the importance of physical exercise, this would have a major positive impact on children's attitudes to sport. (= prediction about an imaginary situation)
- Must
  - The cabin staff must accept the new working conditions. (= a rule or order)
  - This negative attitude to sport mustn't be allowed to continue. (= it's not allowed or not a good idea)
- Don't need to / needn't / don't have to
  - Parents don't need to / needn't be very interested in sport themselves. (= it's not necessarily true)
- I'm sure I don't have to spell out the chaos being caused in the airline industry. (= it's not necessary)
- Ought to / should
  - Parents ought to / should give their children whatever encouragement they can. (= obligation and recommendation)

1 can, could, be able to: ability

We can use be able to instead of can or could, particularly in more formal contexts:

- The hotels on the island are able to accommodate hundreds of visitors. or
- The hotels on the island can accommodate ... (less formal)

We use be able to to talk about ability on a specific occasion in the past:

- Firefighters were able to bring the fire under control fairly quickly. (not Firefighters could bring ...)

We can use either could or be able to in negatives in the past:

- They couldn't / weren't able to prevent the fire damaging the school's sports centre.

We usually prefer can or could with verbs of sense (e.g. feel, hear, see, smell, taste) and verbs of thinking (e.g. believe, remember, understand):

- I can't believe Mr. Wade is being so confrontational.
We use be able to in perfect tenses, -ing forms, infinitives, and after modal verbs:

- We’ve now been able to contact him.
- The film star hates not being able to leave her house.
- They’ve got to be able to adapt to change.
- Parents might be able to help.
- We prefer can and could in passives:
  - The news can be read on our website.

To talk about a future ability, we use will be able to:

- Islanders won’t be able to buy properties.
- We use can or be able to to talk about possible future arrangements and can (or more politely could) to ask for permission:
  - The President can’t / is not able to visit the country until next month.
  - Can / Could I ask you what you think of the new bridge?

2 may, might, can, could: possibility

To talk about a more general possibility of something happening we can use can or may:

- The temperature in the mountains can / may fall below freezing even at this time of year.

We use could to say that something was possible in the past:

- It could be a very rough journey, too.

We don’t use may to ask questions about the possibility of something happening. Instead we use could or the phrase be likely to:

- Could the negotiations finish today, do you think?
- What time is the meeting likely to finish?

Might is sometimes used in questions, but is rather formal.

- We can use these modals in negative sentences, including those with words like only or hardly, to say that things are not possible or that it is possible that things are not the case:
  - The company can hardly be described as a success. (= it is not possible to describe it as a success)
  - He could never be accused of being lazy. (= it is/was not possible to accuse him of this)
  - I think we should call off the strike, but other people may / might not agree with me.
  - (= it’s possible that people don’t agree with me)

3 will, would, used to: conclusions, willingness, habitual events

We can use will to draw conclusions or state assumptions about things we think are true:

- No doubt you will have heard the news by now.

We use will (not) to talk about (un)willingness or refusal to do something:

- The minister says he will resign if no solution is found.
- We will not be bullied by management.
- The computer won’t let me print documents.
We use would to talk about willingness in the future, in conditionals, and when we say that we are willing but unable to do something:

Many people would be happy to pay higher taxes for better public services.
The minister would be pleased to accept the invitation if it were not for other commitments.

⚠️ We don't use would to talk about willingness on a specific occasion in the past:
David Wade agreed to meet the union representatives. (not David-Wade-would-agree ...)

⚠️ We can use will (present) and would (past) to talk about characteristic behaviour or habits, or about things that are true now or were true in the past:
Some parents will actually discourage their children from taking up a sport.
Many passengers would get seasick during the crossing.

We can use either would or used to to talk about things that happened repeatedly in the past:

The crossing would / used to take over an hour at least.

⚠️ We don't use would to talk about past states:
We used to be terribly isolated here because the ferry service was so bad.
(not We-would-be-terribly-isolated ...)

4 must, have (got) to: necessity, deduction

We can use either must or have to to say that it is necessary to do something, although have to is less formal and is also preferred in questions:

Schools must / have to play a more active role in encouraging children to take up sports.*

When we say that something was necessary in the past we use had to, not must:

Up to 200 teachers and pupils had to be evacuated from a school in South Wales today.

To say something is necessary in the future we use will have to:
To stay in business we will have to cut our costs.

We use must when we decide for ourselves that something is necessary or important:

I must give you my email address.
Have to suggests that someone else or an outside circumstance or authority makes something necessary:

The council has to close two city centre car parks following a health and safety report.

We usually use must, rather than have to, when we conclude that something (has) happened or that something is true:

The bridge must have cost a fortune.

In negative conclusions we use can't or couldn't:

That can't be right, surely? (not That-mustn't-be-right, surely?)

Sometimes we can use either have to or have got to, although have got to is more informal.

We use have to with frequency adverbs and with other modal verbs:

Islanders normally have to queue for half an hour to get on the ferry.

The airlines will have to return to the negotiating table.

If have is contracted (e.g. I've), then we must include got:

They've got to be changed. (not They've-to-be-changed.)

When we use the past simple we prefer had to rather than had got to:

The manager seemed to be doing a good job. Why did he have to go? (not Why-had-he-got-to-go?)
5 didn't need to, didn't have to, needn't have: not necessary

To say it was not necessary to do something in the past, we use didn't need to or didn't have to:

He didn't have to wait long for a response. (= he didn't actually wait long)

To show that we think something that was done was not necessary, we use need not (needn't) have:

The event organisers expected the bad weather to affect ticket sales. However, they need not have worried, as every ticket was sold. (= they worried but it was not necessary)

6 should, ought to: obligation

We can often use either should or ought to to talk about obligation (in giving advice and recommendations, saying what we think is a good idea and talking about responsibility):

I think we ought to / should keep Borland for the islanders! (= it's a good idea or I recommend this)

The authorities ought to / should prosecute companies that cause pollution. (= talking about responsibility)

We can use either should or ought to to say that something is likely because we have planned it or expect it to happen:

The contractors say the road will take five years to complete, but they should / ought to be able to finish it faster.

We use shouldn't rather than oughtn't to if something is unlikely:

If you're in the south of the country, you shouldn't be troubled by any rain today.

The use of should and ought to is for actions or events the speaker sees as desirable.

Otherwise, an alternative to the modal is used. Compare:

It should be sunny tomorrow, but you're likely to see an occasional shower.

C Grammar exercises

1 Choose the correct verb. Sometimes both are possible.

1 Adult ladybirds may / might be black, red or yellow.

2 We can / We'll be able to get into the city centre in less than 20 minutes when the new railway line is finished.

3 I left Doncaster because I wasn't able to / couldn't find a job there.

4 A: We've had a parcel delivered. It's from New Zealand.
   B: Well, it couldn't / mightn't be from Ken. He's working in Australia at the moment.

5 A: I can't find my purse anywhere.
   B: May / Could you have left it in the restaurant?

6 Not so long ago, more than 20 species of fish could / were able to be found in this river.

7 A: Apparently, there's been an accident in the High Street.
   B: That might / could explain why the bus is taking so long.
8 A: Donna says she'll definitely pay the money back.
B: I wish I was able to / could trust her.
9 This camera is a bit cheaper than the other one, although it mightn't / can't be as good, of course.

2 Alan is talking to Martha just before and after a job interview. Choose the correct verb. Sometimes more than one is possible.

Before
A: What time (1) have you to / have you got to / must you be there by?
M: 10.30.
A: You (2) must / have to / have got to be really nervous.
M: Terrified! But it doesn't matter, I know I won't get the job.
A: You (3) haven't got to / mustn't / can't be sure of that. You've got just the right experience and qualifications.
M: But I feel so tense. I (4) can't / couldn't / mightn't create a very good impression in the interview.
A: I'm sure you'll be okay. You (5) should / must / ought to be more positive.

After
A: I got it!
M: Congratulations! What (6) had you got to / must you / did you have to do?
A: Well, mainly (7) had got to / had to / must tell them about why I wanted to work for the company.
M: And does the job sound good?
A: Fantastic. I'll (8) have to / must / have got to do a lot of travelling.
M: Well that (9) oughtn't to / shouldn't / mustn't be a problem for you.
A: Not at all, and I may (10) must / have to / have got to spend some time at their office in Barcelona.
M: Well, I think we should certainly go out for a meal to celebrate.
A: Good idea. But first I (11) have to / 've got to / must call my parents and let them know. They'll be waiting to hear from me.

3 Choose the correct sentence ending. Sometimes both are possible.

1 I have to get up early tomorrow, so I a mustn't be too late going to bed tonight.
   b don't need to be too late going to bed tonight.
2 When we got to the station we found that the train was half an hour late, so we a didn't need to rush after all.
   b needn't have rushed after all.
3 The meeting will be quite informal, so you a don't need to wear a suit.
   b don't have to wear a suit.
Fortunately, he wasn't badly hurt in the accident, so he a needn't go to hospital.
b didn't need to go to hospital.

Gwen has lost a lot of weight during her illness, so you a needn't look surprised when you see her again.
b mustn't look surprised when you see her again.

The tennis courts are open to the public, so you a needn't be a member of the club to play here.
b mustn't be a member of the club to play here.

The house was in good condition when I bought it, so I a didn't need to decorate before I moved in.
b didn't have to decorate before I moved in.

As it turned out, the exam was quite easy, so I a didn't have to spend all that time revising.
b needn't have spent all that time revising.

Match the sentence beginnings and endings, completing them with one of the verbs in the box. Use each verb once.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>shouldn't</th>
<th>would</th>
<th>could</th>
<th>will be able to</th>
<th>used to</th>
<th>will</th>
<th>wouldn't</th>
</tr>
</thead>
</table>

1. I said I'd pay for her ticket but she
   a. cause dangerous driving conditions.
2. In just a few years from now everybody
   b. take me too long.
3. I still remember how they
   c. accept my offer.
4. Forecasts are warning that heavy snow
   d. play together so well as children.
5. Here's some really nice cheese that I don't
   e. watch TV on their computers.
6. We live in an old house that
   f. belong to a politician.
7. Writing my geography assignment
   g. have tasted before.

1. I said I'd pay for her ticket but she wouldn't accept my offer.
2. ..........................................................
3. ..........................................................
4. ..........................................................
5. ..........................................................
6. ..........................................................
7. ..........................................................

30
D Exam practice

Listening

(3 b) You will hear three different extracts. Choose the answer (A, B or C) which fits best according to what you hear. There are two questions for each extract.

---

Extract One

You hear two people on a radio programme discussing music education for children.

1. What do the two people agree about?
   A Young children should learn an instrument that needs a lot of concentration.
   B Children should learn an instrument when they are young.
   C It is important for young children to learn some music theory.

2. Why does the woman think the piano is not the best instrument for young children to learn?
   A It is not possible to play simple tunes on the piano.
   B Playing the piano can discourage children from learning another instrument.
   C Most young children are not mature enough to learn the piano.

---

Extract Two

You hear part of an interview with a rock climber.

3. In Ben’s view, what is the best way to improve as a climber?
   A take the advice of other climbers
   B learn from the mistakes you make
   C watch more experienced climbers

4. Why does Ben prefer to climb with others when it is icy?
   A He can learn new techniques from them.
   B He gets nervous in icy conditions.
   C He lacks experience in icy conditions.
Extract Three

You hear part of an interview with a well-known restaurant critic called Amanda Downing.

5 According to Amanda, how do most waiters react when they realise she is a restaurant critic?
   A They give her special attention.
   B They get very nervous.
   C They give her free food or drink.

6 In what way, according to Amanda, are most restaurant owners completely wrong?
   A They think customers choose a restaurant only for its quality of service.
   B They misjudge customers’ motivation for going to restaurants.
   C They think that they have different priorities to their customers.

Grammar focus task

Complete these extracts from the recordings. Two options are possible in each sentence.

1 As well as improving manual dexterity and concentration, it seems that it .......................... help emotional development, too. (could / may / must)

2 But a rather academic approach like that ........................ turn children off for life if they're not ready for it. (ought to / will / can)

3 But at the end of the day you ........................ learn independently, through trial and error. (I've got to / should / ve to)

4 When I was younger I ........................ do most of my climbing during summer holidays, and I haven't done much winter climbing. (would / might / used to)

5 You're such a household name, it ........................ be terrifying for staff when you go into a restaurant. (must / should / could)

6 It ........................ be considered unethical to accept a gift like that. (could / would / 's got to be)

Now listen again and compare your answers with what the speakers actually say.
Writing

You work for a large company based in a town centre. Most of the employees of the company drive to work. The director of the company has asked you to prepare a proposal on reducing car use by employees including:

- an outline of why it would be a good thing to reduce car use
- possible ways of achieving this
- problems in introducing changes
- your recommendations on what should be done.

Write your proposal in 300–350 words.

Writing hints

This task gives you the chance to practise modal verbs to:

- make recommendations

  The company should consider giving grants for staff to buy bicycles.

  The reliability of public transport needs to be improved.
- talk about the possible consequences of changes

  This would be a popular move among staff.

  This could decrease the use of private cars.
A Context listening

1. Listen to this extract from a radio drama. Two police officers are discussing a major art theft from the fourth floor of a modern art gallery. Which of these pictures a–f do the police officers discuss?

2. Listen again and match the sentence beginnings and endings.

   1. Anybody trying to do that would
   2. After that they might
   3. So someone else must
   4. Do you think he might
   5. But of course, he might
   6. I suppose he could
   7. The driver must
   8. The forensic team should

   a. have opened the door from the inside.
   b. be hiding some information from us.
   c. have been seen from the street below.
   d. have finished examining the building by now.
   e. have been expecting them and that he was part of the gang?
   f. have been lowered by rope from the roof.
   g. have been waiting nearby.
   h. be lying.

3. Which of the sentences in Exercise 2 include these grammatical patterns?

   1. modal verb + have been + past participle
   2. modal verb + have + past participle
   3. modal verb + have been + present participle
   4. modal verb + be + present participle
B Grammar

1 may / might / could + have + past participle may / might / could + be + present participle

START POINT:
But of course he might be lying. (not But of course, he can be lying.) (= now: it's possible he's lying)
They could have got in through a window up on the fourth floor. (= in the past: it's possible they got in)

With a future time reference we can use may / might / could + be + present participle and may / might / could + have + past participle to say it is possible that something will happen in the future:
Ray's flight was cancelled, so he may / might / could be arriving much later than expected.
The thieves may / might / could have left the country by the time we get to the airport.

We can also use might / could + have + past participle (not may) to criticise someone because they didn't do something we think they should have:
A: I told the head cleaner he could go home.
B: You might have asked me first. I wanted to ask him a few questions.

2 may / might / could + have been + present participle

We can use may / might / could + have been + present participle to talk about situations or activities that were possibly happening at a particular past time:
Do you think he might have been expecting them?

3 would / will + have + past participle

We use would have + past participle to talk about an imaginary past situation:
People would have seen them from the street below.

To show that we think a past situation actually happened, we use will have + past participle:
If they smashed a window to get in, people living nearby will certainly have heard something.

We can use would have been able to to talk about a possible past ability:
You don't think they would have been able to jump from the block across the road, do you?

4 should / ought to + have + past participle

We use should / ought to + have + past participle to talk about something that didn't happen in the past, particularly when we want to imply some regret or criticism:
He must know that he ought to have called the police as soon as he found the door open.
We should have been contacted earlier. (passive)
We can also use should / ought to + have + past participle to talk about an expectation that something happened, has happened, or will happen:

The forensic team should have finished examining the building by now.

5 must / can't / couldn't + have + past participle

START POINT

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Active</th>
<th>Passive</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>someone else must have opened the door from the inside.</td>
<td>It must have been opened from the inside.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

We can use must have + past participle to draw a conclusion about something in the past.

To draw a conclusion about a past event, saying that it was not possible, we use can't have + past participle or couldn't have + past participle:

One man alone couldn't have carried all those paintings. (not ... mustn't have carried)

To draw a conclusion about something happening at a particular past time, saying that it was likely or certain, we use must have been + present participle:

The driver must have been waiting nearby.

6 must have (had) to

We can use must have to say that we draw a conclusion based on what we know about a present situation:

He must have to know the entry code, too.

And must have had to to conclude something about a past situation:

The robbers must have had to bring a van around to the front of the building.

7 must be + present participle

We can use must be + present participle to draw a conclusion about something happening around the time of speaking. We can use must be + present participle or must be going to to draw a conclusion about something likely to happen in the future:

I'll speak to the curator of the museum later. She must be feeling devastated.

They're taking the head cleaner to the police car. They must be going to arrest him. or They must be arresting him.

8 dare and need

START POINT

| He got annoyed easily, so I didn't criticise him. | A good car needn't cost a lot. |
| She dared me to jump across. | We need to talk to him. |

Dare and need can be used either as modal verbs (+ bare infinitive) or ordinary verbs (+ to-infinitive).

As modals, dare and need are mostly used in negative contexts. If not doesn't follow the verb, dare can be used either with or without to:

But no one would have dared (to) climb up the outside of the building.
We can't include to after needn't:
We needn't interview everyone in the block. (not We needn't to interview ...)

9 had better
We can use had better instead of should / ought to, especially in spoken English, to say that we think it is a good idea (or not) to do something:
We'd better find out all we can about that guard as soon as possible.
We'd better not go in until the forensic team has finished.
△ We use should or ought to when we talk about the past or make general comments:
I should / ought to have phoned her earlier.
People living around here should / ought to support the police more. (not People living around here had better ...)

10 be allowed to
We can use could or was / were allowed to to say that in the past someone had general permission to do something:
Only the security guard could / was allowed to stay in the museum after it closed.
To talk about permission on a particular occasion, we use was / were allowed to (not could):
Although he had no ID, the man was allowed to enter the building.
△ In negative sentences we can use either could or was / were allowed to when talking about permission in general or on particular occasions:
They let reporters into the crime scene, but they couldn't / weren't allowed to take photos.

11 be supposed to
We can use be supposed to to express a less strong obligation than with should or ought to. Using be supposed to often suggests that events do not happen as expected:
The entry code is supposed to be known only by the security guard. (= suggests that it was in fact known by others)
We can use be supposed to to report what people think is true:
The building is supposed to be one of the most secure in the country. (= people say it is.) (not the building should / ought to be ...)

12 Other verbs with modal meanings
A number of other verbs are used with similar meanings to modal verbs:
No one is to enter the building until the police give permission. (= obligation - formal)
Everyone present was required to give a statement to the police. (= obligation)
How did they manage to get in? (= ability)
We have succeeded in narrowing down the list of suspects. (= ability)
He might be prepared to tell us more. (= willingness)
The suspects have refused to co-operate. (= unwillingness)
From the evidence we have found, it follows that it was a carefully planned operation.
(= conclusion - formal)
We can conclude that the paintings were stolen by professionals. (= conclusion)
C Grammar exercises

1 Choose the correct verbs. Sometimes more than one is possible.
   1 A: We could / can / were allowed to use the university’s telescope to watch the comet last night.
      B: You must have got up / must have had to get up / must have to get up really early to see it.
   2 I didn’t dare admit / didn’t dare to admit / couldn’t be admiring that I’d dropped his laptop. He will have been / would have been / can have been so angry with me.
   3 The weather forecast said it might be raining / can be raining / could have rained later, so we’d better to / we ought to / we’d better take an umbrella when we go out.
   4 The work on repairing the bridge must have started / is supposed to start / ought to start next month, but there have been a lot of complaints about it. It’s the height of the tourist season, so they oughtn’t to / couldn’t / mustn’t have chosen a worse time to do it.
   5 You should / must / will have been mad to jump off the wall like that. You might / will / could have broken a leg.
   6 Kevin can have known / must have to know / must have known the brakes on the car weren’t working properly. He really should have warned / ought to warn / had better have warned me when he sold it to me.
   7 A: I’m afraid I spilt some coffee on the sofa this morning.
      B: You can / may / might have told me earlier! My parents will be home soon and they’ll be furious.
      A: But they need never to / need never / mustn’t have to know. I bought this stain remover, and I’m sure it will get it clean.
   8 There have been yet more delays in building our new office block. They must / should / were supposed to have finished by now, but I’m starting to think that I could / might / can have retired before it’s built.

2 Complete the sentences using the verbs from the box in one of these forms:

   have * past participle  be * present participle have been * past participle  have been * present participle cause change find make snow talk wait work

   1 A: The clouds are getting really dark.
      B: Yes, I think it could ....be snowing........ by morning.
   2 A: So how did the explosion happen?
      B: They think it may ...................... by a gas leak.
3 A: You were born in Wooton, weren't you. It's supposed to be a lovely village.
   B: It certainly used to be, but it may ........................................ - I haven't been there for years.
4 A: I rang Terry's doorbell twice, but there was no answer.
   B: He must ................................... in the garden.
5 A: Cutting those roses was so difficult. I've still got thorns in my hands.
   B: You might ................................. it easier if you'd been wearing gloves.
6 A: I thought we were meeting Les at the theatre.
   B: Yes, he should be here by now. I suppose he might ......................... for us inside the theatre.
7 A: That suit she was wearing must have cost a fortune.
   B: Do you think it might ......................... of silk.
8 A: When Kathy said 'He's really lazy', do you think she meant me?
   B: Well, she could ......................... about someone else, I suppose.

3 A group of geography students are going on a field trip to Iceland. Their teacher is talking about the arrangements. Rewrite the underlined parts using one of the words or phrases from the box. You need to add extra words in each case.

allow are to compulsory managed recommend possibility of refused succeeded

"Unfortunately, the authorities (1) won't allow us to carry out fieldwork on the glacier. Apparently, because of weather conditions it's not safe at the moment. Instead, (2) we've been able to arrange a boat trip to study coastal features, and (3) we may see whales. So (4) you should bring a pair of binoculars if you can. You might also want to bring a camera, too. In past years, students have (5) been able to take some excellent photographs during our Iceland fieldwork. Let me remind you, however, that no portable stereos with external speakers (6) should be taken on the trip, although (7) you may bring an MP3 player if you want to. And finally, can you remember that (8) everyone must arrange their own private medical insurance for the trip. I'll check next week that everyone has done this ... "

1 have refused to...
2 ....................
3 ....................
4 ....................
5 ....................
6 ....................
7 ....................
8 ....................
4 Read these extracts from newspaper and magazine articles. Choose one phrase from each of the pairs in the box to complete the sentences.

must have been going through / could have been going through could be facing / can be facing could have been prevented / can have been prevented must have been / must have to be ought to give / ought to have given would not have been able to grow / will not be able to grow might be working / might have been working must get easier / must be getting easier

1 An enquiry into last year’s explosion at the Amcon Refinery that killed 25 workers and injured hundreds more concluded that it ........... could have been prevented ........ if the refinery had installed a hazard warning system, as safety officers had recommended.

2 There is some evidence to suggest that Jonathan Myles ................................................... as a secret agent during the 1960s, although even after the end of the Cold War this was never confirmed.

3 Andy Smith, chief executive of the Schools Examination Authority said:
   ‘The newspapers claim that the improving results show that exams ................................................... But we are absolutely certain that standards have remained the same.’

4 Although Arthur Rodway suffered from a long and painful illness, he never showed any sign of what he .................................................... and continued to take on film roles until just a few months before his death.

5 Mr Wise will return to court in London on January 31st to hear his sentence, having been warned yesterday that he ..................................................... a long period in prison.

6 I interviewed Hemingway in the idyllic garden of his house in the south of France, with vineyards behind us and the clear blue sea in front. My first question was: ‘You ..................................................... so disciplined to ignore all this and work. How do you continue to write so much?’

7 Lampard ..................................................... them the lead just before half time, but he shot straight at the goalkeeper, who made an easy save.

8 For centuries the flooding of the Nile was very important because, without it, the people ..................................................... crops in the dry desert. But global warming has changed the traditional patterns of agriculture in this part of the world.
D  Exam practice

Use of English
For questions 1-8, complete the second sentence so that it has a similar meaning to the first sentence, using the word given. Do not change the word given.
You must use between three and six words, including the word given. Here is an example (0).

0 Those working with pre-school age children will probably find the course interesting.
INTEREST
The course is likely to be of interest to... those working with pre-school age children.

1 During the winter I prefer watching football to playing it.
SOONER
During the winter I ......................... it.

2 Karen says it takes less than an hour to drive there, but I'm sure she has got it wrong.
MUST
Karen says it takes less than an hour to drive there, but she ......................... a mistake.

3 Students wishing to enrol on the course should complete all sections of the application form.
REQUIRED
Students wishing to enrol on the course ......................... in all sections of the application form.

4 She decided to move to a part-time job so that she could spend more time with her young children.
ORDER
She decided to move to a part-time job ......................... able to spend more time with her young children.

5 I really messed up the first question in the exam. I wish I had considered it more carefully before answering.
THOUGHT
I really messed up the first question in the exam. I should ......................... it more carefully before answering.

6 The factory has been able to reduce its CO₂ emissions by 50% in the last year.
SUCCEEDED
The factory ......................... back its CO₂ emissions by 50% in the last year.

7 It's a long walk home, so I advise you not to miss the last train.
BETTER
It's a long walk home, so ......................... the last train.

8 They didn't mention the subject of unpaid holidays until the end of the interview.
BRING
Not until the end of the interview ......................... the subject of unpaid holidays.
Grammar focus task

Look at your answers to the exam practice.
1. Which answer refers to something that didn’t happen in the past? ..........
2. Which answer draws a conclusion about something that happened in the past? ..........
3. Which phrase could be replaced by shouldn’t with a similar meaning? ..........

Writing

Last year you went on an organised walking holiday for a week, walking along a long-distance footpath to a different hotel each night. A friend has written to you asking whether you would recommend the holiday that you went on and the company who organised it. Read the extract from your friend's letter and some extracts from the diary you wrote during your holiday. Write a letter to your friend saying what you thought about the holiday, how it could have been better, and whether you would recommend the holiday and the company.

Since you told me about your walking holiday, I've thought about doing the same. I enjoy walking a lot, although I'm not very fit. I'll be going on my own, so it would be good to meet some friendly people on the tour. I hope it won't be too expensive, though. I'm saving up to buy a car, so I don't have much money. Would you recommend the holiday? And what about the company you went with?
Love,
Martha

June 3rd
Beautiful scenery again, but really hard work in the hills. Struggled to keep up with rest of the people in the group.

June 4th
Exhausting walk again. Chloe really knowledgeable - but got us lost again. Excellent lunch along the way - but very expensive!

June 5th
Climbed more to others in group as we walked. Nice people! More not ready for us when we got there. But great food again.

Write your letter in 180–220 words. Do not write any postal address.

Writing hints

This task gives you the chance to practise complex modal forms, particularly when you say how things might have been different:

It could have been better organised.
They should have warned us that it would be very expensive.
It might have helped if we had walked more slowly.
Nouns, agreement and articles
compound nouns and noun phrases; subject–verb agreement; countable and uncountable nouns; articles

A Context listening

1 Nazim has applied to do a college course in Environmental Science. You are going to listen to part of his interview for a place on the course. What questions do you think the interviewer will ask?

2 Listen and check whether you were right.

3 Listen again and write one word in each gap to complete the compound nouns.

1 climate ……change……  2 …………………-making  3 rain …………………
4 river …………………  5 ………………… saving  6 lighting …………………
7 ………………… scheme  8 the arms …………………  9 mountain …………………

Which of the following forms do each of the compound nouns take?
noun + noun ……  noun + -ing form ………… -ing form + noun ………

4 Read these pairs of sentences from the interview. Explain the differences in meaning in the words in italics.
1 a There’s been a drought there for a number of months, and river levels are low.
   b The main problem has been the effect of the drought on food supplies.
2 a And what are your plans for the future, after you’ve left college?
   b It’s hard to imagine a future without farming in an area like that.
3 a And what are your plans for the future, after you’ve left college?
   b Have you got any questions about the course here at the college?
B Grammar

1 Compound nouns and noun phrases

START POINT

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>noun + noun</th>
<th>-ing form + noun</th>
<th>noun + -ing form</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>climate change</td>
<td>recycling scheme</td>
<td>energy-saving</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Some compound nouns are usually written as one word (e.g. rainforest), some as separate words (e.g. climate change), and others with a hyphen (e.g. energy-saving).

The first noun in a compound usually has a singular form, even if it has a plural meaning: decision-making (not decisions-making)

Instead of a compound noun we can use:
- noun + s + noun when the first noun is the user of the second noun:
  - a women’s clinic, a boys’ school
- noun + preposition + noun:
  - a book about energy conservation, a book about grammar (a grammar book is also common)

We can sometimes use noun + s + noun or noun + of + noun with a similar meaning:

the charity’s aim or the aim of the charity

We are more likely to use noun + s + noun:
- when the first noun refers to a particular person or group of people or to talk about time:
  - Mike’s job, next year’s field trip
- when we talk about a process or change over time: the destruction of the rainforest
- with a long noun phrase: Mike is the brother of someone I went to school with.

We can use noun + of + s or a possessive pronoun to talk about something that someone owns, or about a relationship:

an old jacket of Mike’s, a friend of mine

When we talk about a relationship between people, we can also use a noun without ‘s’:

She’s a friend of my mother’s. (Or less commonly) She’s a friend of my mother.

Compounds often combine with other nouns or compounds to form longer combinations:

decision-making process, energy conservation scheme

2 Subject-verb agreement

Some nouns with a singular form, referring to a group (e.g. government, class, department, team), can be used with either a singular or plural form of the verb, although in formal contexts a singular verb is often preferred:

The government has (or have) introduced some really interesting projects.

(See Appendix 3.1.)
We usually use a singular verb:
- when names and titles (e.g. of countries, newspapers, books, films) ending in -s refer to a single unit: The Netherlands has begun to tackle the problem.
- with a phrase referring to a measurement, amount or quantity: Only a few miles separates the villages involved in the project.
- after percent (also per cent or %) referring to a singular or uncountable noun: 10% of the country's energy comes from wind power. But if percent refers to a plural noun we use a plural verb:
60% of people there are malnourished.

We usually use a plural verb:
- with nouns that normally have a plural form: congratulations, outskirts, clothes. (See Appendix 3.2.)
- The following nouns ending in -s take a singular verb = news, linguistics, mathematics, physics, and politics, statistics, economics when they refer to the academic subject: I noticed that statistics is included in the course.
- after a / the majority / minority of; a number of; a lot of; plenty of; all (of); some of * a plural noun / pronoun: The majority of people there are farmers.
- We use a singular verb with the number of: The number of people suffering from malnutrition is increasing.

When the subject of a sentence is complex, the following verb must agree with the main noun in the subject:
Levels of income from the sale of handicrafts have increased.

When the subject follows the verb, the verb agrees with the subject:
Among the projects invested in by the government is the use of low-energy light bulbs.

If the subject is a clause, we usually use a singular verb:
If the subject is a that-clause, we use a singular verb:
Having responsibility for the whole project in the area means that you are more committed.
- If the subject is a wh-clause, we use a singular verb before a singular or uncountable main noun, and a plural verb before a plural main noun. Compare:
What's needed now, though, is to expand work like this.
What is needed are more schools.
(What's needed is more schools. would be acceptable in informal speech.)

3 Countable and uncountable nouns

Many nouns in English are uncountable: they are not used with a/an or in the plural. For example: advice, equipment, information. (See Appendix 4.1.)

Some nouns are used uncountably when we are talking about the thing in general or the general idea, but countably when we are talking about particular examples or particular types of the thing or idea:
The charity's project has been a success. (= a particular example of success)
Financial success isn't everything. (= success in general)
You'd be able to get by with a basic knowledge of some statistical techniques, but The desire for knowledge is a fundamental human instinct.

Other nouns like this include: business, knowledge, sound. Some of these (e.g. knowledge) are only used countably in the singular. (See Appendix 4.2.)
Some nouns (e.g. accommodation, speech, work) have a different meaning when they are used countably and uncountably. Compare:

She gave a speech about global warming.

Children usually develop speech in their second year.

(See Appendix 4.3.)

We use a good / great deal of and amount of before uncountable nouns:

There’s a great deal of interest in recycling in the country.

It’s saving an enormous amount of our natural resources.

\[\text{Using these before a plural countable noun is incorrect and you should avoid it in exams. However, they are sometimes used in this way in informal contexts.}\]

We use a number of before plural countable nouns:

There’s been a drought there for a number of months.

and plenty of and a quantity of before either uncountable or plural countable nouns:

There was plenty of opportunity for me to travel around the country.

I saw a huge quantity of trees being cut down.

4 Articles

We use the:

- with singular, plural or uncountable nouns when we expect the listener or reader to be able to identify the thing or person referred to:

It’s a project run by a European charity.

The charity’s aim ...

- when a following phrase or clause identifies what particular thing we are talking about:

the climate in this region, the impact of climate change, the ecology of mountain environments

- when we talk about things that are unique:

in one part of the world, the sky, the future; the first / next time; the only / main problem; the smallest improvement, the arms trade, the environment

\[\text{Some 'unique' nouns can be used with a/ an when we describe a type or aspect of the thing. Compare:}\]

*What are your plans for the future? and It’s hard to imagine a future without farming in an area like that.}\]

We use a/an:

- when a singular countable noun is introduced for the first time into a spoken or written text:

He’s the head of a project run by a European charity.

- to talk about an unspecified person, thing or event:

I didn’t have a shower for days.

- to describe someone/something or say what type of thing someone/something is:

It’s a beautiful country. It’s an international organisation.

- to say what a person’s job is:

You think that as a politician, you’d be able to do this?

\[\text{We use the or no article to give a person’s title or their unique position:}\]

*He’s the head of a project there, or He’s head ...}

- in number and quantity expressions:

*an hour, three times a year, 50 cents a litre, a huge number of, a bit...
We use no article:
- with uncountable and plural nouns when we talk generally about people or things rather than about specific people or things: I’ve always been fascinated by plants and animals. They haven’t had rain for months.
- with some singular nouns referring to institutions (e.g. school, college, hospital, prison, university, work) when we talk about them generally. Compare: after you’ve left college and the course here at the college
- with countries: Brazil, Switzerland, Norway but the Netherlands, the USA, the UK, the Philippines, the Gambia
- with meals (e.g. dinner, breakfast), special times of the year (e.g. Ramadan, Easter), the names of months and days of the week (e.g. in June) ▲ We use articles to talk about, for example, a particular meal: We had an early dinner. It was the summer after my operation.
- with by to talk about means of communication and transport: by post / email / phone; by car / taxi / bus / plane / air / sea. Compare: We had to go by boat, and sometimes we had to carry the boat.
- (or the) with seasons: I like to go skiing in winter or in the winter.
  ▲ We always use the when it is understood which particular season it is: I’m going to Nepal in the summer. (≠ next summer).

C Grammar exercises

1 Choose the correct phrase. Sometimes both are possible.
   1 I don’t like tomatoes, so I left them at the side of the plate / the plate’s side.
   2 Do you know Sue Lane? I was a colleague of her / a colleague of hers at Carbuild.
   3 It was the decision of Adam / Adam’s decision to take out the loan, so he has to take responsibility for repaying it.
   4 I’ve seen two really good programmes on TV this week. The first was a horror film / a film about horror, and the second a documentary about apartheid / an apartheid documentary.
   5 John is someone I worked with in Malaysia’s brother / the brother of someone I worked with in Malaysia.
   6 The average temperature of the Earth’s surface / the surface of the Earth has fallen slightly over the last century.
   7 He apologised without the hesitation of a moment / a moment’s hesitation.
   8 My house is by a children playground / a children’s playground, so it can be quite noisy.
   9 Did you know that I used to go to school with a cousin of John Lennon / a cousin of John Lennon’s?
   10 The construction of the new library / The new library’s construction took so long that building costs were ten times higher than first expected.
11 When I got home I found that an envelope had been pushed through my letters box / letter box. In it was a congratulations card / a congratulation card from Aunt Alice.
12 Jerry got into journalism when she was asked to do some book reviews / books reviews for the local newspaper, and then she took over as the crimes reporter / crime reporter.

Nazim has been accepted on the Environmental Science course (see page 43). Read this email he sent to a friend during a field trip. Fill in the gaps with a present tense form of the verbs in brackets.

Hi Cathy,

Greetings from Nepal! I’m sending this from an internet café in a small town north of Kathmandu. The town itself isn’t very interesting, but the surroundings (1) ……………..(be) beautiful – I can see the Himalayas through the café window!

The lectures here are brilliant. The Politics and Ecology courses are great, but Economics (2) ………………..(be) really difficult – although maths (3) …………..(be) certainly not my strong point!

I’m really learning a lot about the country and its environmental problems. Sixty percent of Nepal’s population (4) …………………..(live) in the mountainous parts of the country south of the Himalayas, and the majority of these people (5) …………………..(depend) on growing crops and keeping animals. The standard of living in Kathmandu and the other cities (6) …………………..(have) risen a lot recently, and the number of people likely to move into the cities (7) …………………..(be) expected to increase. It’s a real problem here. The Himalayan Times, the local English-language newspaper, (8) …………………..(have) just published a survey showing that most young people would stay in their home villages if jobs were available.

I was planning on coming home at the end of June, but the college (9) ……………………..(have) arranged for a few of us to stay during the summer on a WWF conservation project in a region in the north called Helambu – there (10) ……………………..(be) just a few kilometres between the village where I’ll be working and the border with China. Among the various projects that have been set up (11) ……………………..(be) a scheme for producing biogas locally – that’s gas produced from plant and animal waste. Using biogas for cooking rather than wood (12) ……………………..(mean) less deforestation. All my living expenses (13) ……………………..(be) being paid for by the WWF. Maybe I’ll travel around Nepal after. What I’m really hoping to see (14) ……………………..(be) the tigers in the Chitwan National park.

Hope all is well with you. I’ll send more news when I can.

Nazim
3 Choose one word or phrase from each of the pairs in the box to complete the sentences. In some cases, both words or phrases are correct.

advertising / advertisements  advice / tips  explosives / ammunition fresh fruit / vegetables  jobs / work  meetings / foreign travel rubbish / empty bottles  salt / cups of coffee

1 Her job involves a good deal of .........................
2 Make sure you eat plenty of ............................
3 What I don't like about the magazine is the huge number of ......................... in it.
4 Many people should reduce the amount of ......................... they consume.
5 The Students' Handbook includes a great deal of ............................ on study skills.
6 The police discovered two rifles and a large quantity of ............................ in his apartment.
7 I have a huge amount of ............................ to do at the weekend.
8 I was shocked by the amount of ......................... left behind after the party.

4 Fill in the gaps using the words in the box. Use the same word to complete the sentences in each pair. Add a / an if necessary.

competition  conversation  importance  iron knowledge  paper  shampoo  time

1 a He lists his interests as reading, listening to music and good ......................... b It's very difficult to hold ............................ with Sarah because she keeps interrupting all the time.
2 a Customers have benefited from lower prices resulting from .........................
       between the supermarkets.
     b A: I see you've bought a new bike. B: Actually, I won it in .........................
3 a Our council is encouraging everyone to recycle ............................
     b Professor Tench has recently published ............................ on her research.
4 a You can only tell whether you like ............................ by washing your hair with it a few times.
     b A: Do we need anything from the chemist's?
       B: Just ......................... and a tube of toothpaste.
5 a Don't leave the flower pot outside. It's made of ............................ and it will go rusty.
     b I burnt a hole in my trousers with .........................
6 a Has there ever been ......................... when you've regretted moving to Australia?
   b Definitions of poverty have changed over .........................
7 a When parents take an active role in schools, children see their parents placing ......................... on their education.
   b The manuscript is of great historical .........................
8 a Humans are driven by the pursuit of ......................... b Living in Dublin gave me ......................... of Irish history.

Add a, an or the to these texts where necessary.

1 a an the (× 3)
   My brother wasn't very good at taking exams and he left school at 16. At first he went to work in construction industry. But he didn't enjoy it, so he took evening course in accounting. Eventually, he started company offering financial advice. He's now managing director, and it seems that company's doing really well.

2 a (× 3)   an the (× 3)
   A: Do you remember summer we went to Sweden? 1995, I think it was.
   B: It was wonderful holiday, wasn't it? And so good to see Joakim again. I'll never forget picnic we had with him. There were huge number of mosquitoes.
   A: Yes, I remember. And then when sun was going down there was amazing sky
       - bright orange.
   B: And then his car broke down as we were going home, and we had to go back by bus.
   B: No, we got taxi, didn't we?
   A: Oh yes, that's right.

3 a (× 4)   the (× 5)
   Linda has busy life as lawyer, but in her free time she really enjoys hiking. Most weekends she drives out into countryside and walks for few hours. She says she likes to forget about work, and she doesn't even take mobile phone with her. In summer she's going hiking in Philippines. She's never been there before, but friend she's going with knows country well.
Exam practice

Use of English

Read the text below and think of the word which best fits each space.
Use only one word in each space.

The origins of chess

A great deal has been written about the origins of modern chess, and there
(1) ... still considerable debate about the subject. (2) ... theory most widely accepted is that its earliest ancestor was Shaturanga, a game played in India from around AD 600. (3) ... with modern chess, Shaturanga was played on a board with 64 squares. Pieces such as Kings, Queens and Knights were able to move in different ways with (4) ... aim of capturing other pieces and, at the end of the game, the opponent's King. Unlike chess, it was played by four people, (5) ... with their own army, the other main difference (6) ... the use of dice to decide which piece moved each turn. Some chess historians believe that the game in fact derives
(7) ... a Persian game, Shatranj, the first references to which also
(8) ... from the sixth century. In Shatranj, the powers of the King to move and capture pieces (9) ... more limited than in Shaturanga. (10) ... there may be disagreement about its origins, it is generally accepted that chess in essentially the form it is played today appeared in southern Europe around the end of the fifteenth century and quickly spread (11) ... the continent. (12) ... this time, the Queen had become the most powerful piece of all. Today, chess has become one of the world's (13) ... popular games. It is played by millions of people both informally and in tournaments, and (14) ... number of people playing online
(15) ... increasing with access to the Internet.
Grammar focus task

Without looking back at the text, complete these sentences with the, a or an (+ no article). One sentence from each pair is based on the text.

1. a. Chess is played by millions of people both informally and in ................. tournaments.
   b. Of all .................... chess tournaments I’ve competed in, this was the best organised.

2. a. .................... theory most widely accepted is that its earliest ancestor was Shaturanga.
   b. There are many books written about ..................... chess theory.

3. a. A great deal has been written about the origins of modern chess, and there is still considerable debate about ..................... subject.
   b. The origins of chess is ..................... subject I know very little about.

4. a. Its earliest ancestor was Shaturanga, ..................... game played in India from around AD 600.
   b. The rules of ............. game have changed little since the fifteenth century.

Writing

The Council wants to improve the sports facilities in your town. You have been asked to conduct a survey of the opinions of local people and prepare a report suggesting which facilities to focus on. In your report:

- say what sports are most popular among the people surveyed
- say what people think about the facilities available now
- suggest what new sports facilities should be provided to encourage interest in sports.

Write your report in 220–260 words.

Writing hints

This task gives you the chance to talk about:

- groups and organisations such as ‘the public’ and ‘the council’. Remember with nouns like these you can use either a singular or plural form of the verb (the council has / have spent a lot of money), but make sure you use the same form consistently throughout your answer.
- percentages and parts of a group.
  - 90% of funding comes from...; 10% of those questioned have...; a number / majority / minority of users have found that...; the number of users has fallen
Determiners and quantifiers no, none, not a, not any; much, many, a lot of, lots of; all, both, whole; every, each; (a / the) few, little; less, fewer; much, many, etc. + (of)

A  Context listening

1 You are going to listen to three people talking about running. Write down three benefits and three possible problems of taking up running as a hobby.

benefits:
possible problems:

2 Listen to three people giving their views on running. Which of the benefits and possible problems you have listed do the speakers mention?

3 Listen again and fill in the gaps.

1 a Until then I did a bit of sport at school, but I didn't do .......... much .......... outside school at all. (Speaker 1) b In fact, I suppose I didn't have ...................... interests. (Speaker 1)

2 a Now I run a few kilometres ......................... day. (Speaker 2) b You can be sure that .................. one of us will have a really good time.
   (Speaker 3)

3 a Inevitably you get ......................... injuries, too – everyone gets aching muscles after a long run. (Speaker 3)
   b It's one of ....................... sports where no special equipment's needed. (Speaker 2)

4 a I certainly go out a lot ....................... during the winter. (Speaker 3)
   b But surprisingly I seem to have ....................... injuries now than when I was younger. (Speaker 3)

4 In which pair of sentences are the words you have written interchangeable? ............

53
B Grammar

1. no, none, not a, not any

   START POINT

   No two pairs of running shoes are the same. (not any)
   None of them like the thought of running long distances. (not any of)

   We use neither of instead of none of when we talk about two people or things:
   Neither of us did any exercise.

   We don’t usually use not a / not any in initial position in a clause. Instead we use no and none of:
   None of the runners is under 60. (not Must of the runners ...)

   If it is clear from the context what is meant, we can use none without a following noun:
   I’ve had none so far. (no injuries)

2. much, many, a lot of, lots of

   START POINT

   Did you do much running last winter?
   There could be many reasons for the current interest in running.
   *I get a lot of satisfaction out of it."
   You get to meet lots of interesting people."
   We use much (of) (uncountable noun) and many (of) (plural noun) particularly in negative sentences and in questions. In affirmative sentences we usually use a lot (of) or lots (of). However, in more formal contexts we usually prefer much (of) and many (of).

   If it is clear from the context what is meant, we can use much and many without a following noun:
   I didn’t do much outside school at all.

   We can use much of and many of to mean ‘a large part of’ or ‘a large number of’:
   I used to spend much of my free time sitting around.
   I was in first place for much of the race.

   We can use many between the or a possessive pronoun (e.g. my) and a plural noun:
   *I’m one of the many thousands of older people who now run regularly.
   Even his many injuries didn’t make him give up running.*

   We usually use many rather than a lot of or lots of with time expressions (e.g. days, minutes, months, weeks, years) and ‘number’ of (e.g. thousands of dollars):
   I spend many hours training.
   Running clubs often have many hundreds of members.
3 all, both, whole

START POINT

All (of) my friends like watching sports on TV.
I suppose all exercise carries some risk.
I thought the whole event was brilliant.
Sometimes I go whole weeks without running.
By the time we got to the bus stop both of us were completely exhausted.

To make negative sentences with all (of) we usually use not all (of) rather than all ... not:

- Not all the effects are positive. or The effects are not all positive. (not All the effects are not-positive.)
- None of and not all (of) have different meanings:
  - Not all of them like the thought of running long distances. (= some of them do)
  - None of them like the thought of running long distances. (= not one of them does)

We usually put all after the verb be and after the first auxiliary verb:

- Next spring we’re all going to Madrid.
- They could all have been Olympic athletes.

If there is no auxiliary, we usually put all before the verb:

- We all went running together.
- We sometimes use all after the noun it refers to:
  - My friends all think I’m crazy. or All my friends think I’m crazy.

To talk about two things or people we use both (of) in affirmative sentences or neither (of) in negative sentences:

- We certainly both got a lot fitter. Both of us were completely exhausted.
- Neither of us did any exercise. (not Both of us didn’t do any exercise.)

Before singular countable nouns we usually use the whole rather than all (of) the:

- I thought the whole event was brilliant.
- Before day / week / night / month / summer, etc. we prefer all rather than the whole:
  - After I’ve been sitting at my computer all day I can’t wait to go out for a run.
  - I might go all week without a run.
- We can use all the or the whole before way and time:
  - I was really surprised when I managed to run all the way. or ... the whole way.

4 every, each

START POINT

I go running on Wednesday and on Friday, and I try to run ten miles each day. or ... every day.

Before a singular countable noun, we use each (of) to talk about two or more things or people, and every to talk about three or more things or people. Sometimes we can use either every or each with little difference in meaning.
We use every:
- with almost, nearly, practically, virtually to emphasize we are talking about the group as a whole:
  Now I run nearly every day.
- to talk about events at regular intervals: every other kilometre, every single day, every few weeks, every six months:
  I go out running every couple of days.
We use each:
- when we talk about both people or things in a pair:
  I had to wear a bandage on each knee, or ... on both knees.
- as a pronoun:
  We were each given a medal for completing the 5km fun run.

5 (a / the) few, littler, less, fewer (than)

START POINT
A few of my friends are quite good at team sports.
I seem to have fewer injuries now than when I was younger.
There is little evidence that running causes major problems.
You should eat less protein as you prepare for a race.
There’s not much you can do about it.

Few (of) and little (of) are often rather formal. Less formally, we use phrases such as not many and not much.

We often use a few and a little to suggest that a small quantity or amount is enough, or more than we would expect:
He’s won a few medals.
I’ve been training to get a little pain in my knees.
In formal contexts, we often use few and little to suggest that a quantity or amount is not enough, or is surprisingly low:
Before I joined the club I had very few friends who lived nearby.

We can also use the few and the little followed by a noun to suggest ‘not enough’: It’s one of the few sports where no special equipment’s needed.
I used the little time I had to prepare for the race.

In comparisons, we use less with an uncountable noun, and fewer with a plural noun:
I should eat less chocolate. You should eat fewer biscuits.
The opposite of both less and fewer is more:
I should eat more chocolate. You should eat more biscuits.

In conversation, some people also use less (than) before a plural noun referring to a group of things or people:
There were less than 20 competitors.
△ This is grammatically incorrect and would be marked wrong in a formal written exam.
Fewer (than) should be used instead:
There were fewer than 20 competitors.

When we talk about a period of time, a distance or a sum of money, we use less than, not fewer than:
My aim is to complete the course and do it in less than six hours.
(See Appendix 5 for information about subject–verb agreement when these and other determiners and quantifiers are used.)

6 much, many, both, all, each, none, few, little + (of)

We usually need to put of after these words when they are followed by a pronoun, a determiner or possessive form:

We know that not all of us will finish the course. Few of the runners were under 65.

Many of Alice’s friends are runners.

Informally after both and all we can leave out of before the, these, those; this, that (with all); possessive pronouns (e.g. my, mine) but not before them, you, us; it (with all):

I’ve been running regularly all of my life. or I’ve been running regularly all my life.

Both of us decided to do more exercise. (not Both of us decided …)

C Grammar exercises

1 Fill in the gaps using the correct form of the verb in brackets to form either the present simple or the present perfect. Sometimes both are possible.

1 Next week, my work colleagues are doing a bike ride across France for charity.
   They won’t cycle the whole way — they each ………… do ………… (do) 30 kilometres a day and follow by car the rest of the time. That’s just as well, because none of them ………… (be) terribly fit. A number of people ………… (have) already agreed to sponsor them, and they hope to raise a lot of money.

2 I think that everything ………… (be) now ready for the party. One of my sisters ………… (have) organised the drinks, and each of the people coming ………… (have) agreed to bring some food.

3 I’m having trouble selling my house. Although a lot of interest ………… (have) been shown in it — I’ve had lots of phone calls and visitors — the majority of potential buyers ………… (seem) surprised at how small it is. And not everybody ………… (like) the fact that there’s no garden.

2 Choose the correct option. Sometimes both are possible.

1 The nuclear power station is in an earthquake zone, and it’s worrying that there have been a few / few minor tremors here in the last couple of months.

2 There were four candidates in the election and every / each got about 5000 votes.

3 We didn’t have snow once all / the whole winter.

4 The hurricane will go north of the city, so little / a little major damage is expected.

5 We were all / We all were astonished by her exam results.

6 She got a lot of feedback on the course, but all of it wasn’t / not all of it was positive.
7 Not all / None of the seats in the carriage were taken, and I sat down by the window next to a man using a laptop.
8 Is there less / fewer caffeine in green tea than in coffee?
9 We are trying to preserve few / the few remaining areas of rainforest in the country.
10 These old bookshelves will all be / all will be replaced by cupboards.
11 It takes me fewer / less than 30 minutes to walk to work.
12 When I was in hospital, Martha visited me each / every single day.
13 Although the management said they were going to restructure the company, in fact they made a few / few changes.
14 Nowadays, nearly every / nearly each new car is fitted with airbags.
15 When I got on, all of the / the whole bus seemed to be full of screaming schoolchildren.
16 Did your children all / all your children go to university?
17 Usually he records other people’s songs, but few / a few of the tracks on his latest album he wrote himself.
18 The company has fewer / less than 20 employees.

3 Complete the sentences using the pairs of words or phrases in the box.

many / a lot of no / not any neither of / none of much / a lot of not any of / none of many / the many

1 a A KLM flight from Amsterdam overshot the runway at Heathrow Airport yesterday, but none of the crew or passengers was hurt.
   b My parents came all the way to Sydney to see me, even though neither of them likes flying very much.
2 a When you’re in Prague, order a coffee in one of the cafés around the Old Town Square, and watch the world go by.
   b Storms have been sweeping across parts of the country overnight.
3 a I hope you like the present I put effort into finding just the right thing for you.
   b Among linguists, there is debate about the origin of the word ‘quiz’.
4 a The new anti-malaria drug took years to develop.
   b I’ve got friends who live in London.
5 a The government has allocated two million euros to the project, but the money has been spent yet.
   b A: Have you been able to fix your car?
   B: No. It’s the usual problems, so I’ll have to take it to the garage.
6 a ......................... major damage was done to the building by the earthquake.

b I tried to organise a tennis competition at my college, but there was ......................... interest, so I gave up the idea.

4 Complete the newspaper article with one of these words or phrases. Use each word and phrase once.

all all of all (of) both both of each of every few few of little little of many many of much much of none none of

‘5 PORTIONS A DAY’ FALLS ON DEAF EARS

Despite the government’s ‘5 portions a day’ recommendation to eat more fruit and vegetables, a recent study has found that (1) ................. British teenagers are taking its advice.

A thousand teenagers were questioned in the survey, (2) ...................... of them between the ages of 14 and 17. While (3) ......................... said they knew about the campaign, (4) ......................... the young people questioned, just 5%, said it had influenced their eating habits. In answer to the question ‘How many pieces of fruit have you eaten in the last week?’, an incredible 50% responded (5) .........................

Sam Brown, 15, and Sarah Goodall, 16, were among the young people who took part in the survey. (6) ......................... them conceded that fruit and vegetables didn’t figure greatly in their diets. Sam admitted: ‘I don’t eat (7) ......................... fruit at all, maybe just an apple sometimes. I don’t think (8) ......................... my friends are different.’ Sarah felt that the busy lifestyle of today’s teenagers was partly to blame: ‘I’m not into vegetables, and (9) ......................... the time I’m too busy to eat fruit after dinner, I’ve got homework to do or friends to see.’

(10) ......................... agreed that the government’s campaign wouldn’t affect what they ate. Sam said: ‘(11) ......................... the posters and adverts are hard-hitting enough. Their message is just ‘Eat fruit or veg with (12) ......................... meal.’ If they want teenagers to eat more fruit and vegetables, they’ve got to convince us that it’s really important.’

(13) ......................... scientists have warned that failure to eat fruit and vegetable, particularly by young people, can lead to obesity, cancer and a host of other diseases. Professor Jess Adams from Queen’s Hospital said: ‘(14) ......................... the research points to a close relationship between levels of fruit and vegetable consumption and health, but surprisingly (15) ......................... this research is reported in the press or on television. This means that the message is not getting across. The government tries to highlight the problem with its campaigns, but unfortunately there is (16) ......................... sign that they have any long-term impact. Ultimately, however, it’s up to (17) ......................... us to think about what we eat and make healthy choices.’
D  Exam practice

Listening

You will hear a woman called Janet Naylor talking about her experience as a volunteer in Tanzania. Complete the sentences.

Janet can now do voluntary work because she is free of ____________________________.

Most of Janet's friends were ____________________________ by her decision to volunteer.

Janet disagrees with people who say that she is ____________________________ the people she is trying to help.

Janet advised on a project to improve ____________________________ in a farming community.

The villagers had been dependent on ____________________________ from charities to survive.

The scheme aimed to make the villagers ____________________________ in agricultural production.

Janet's job was to help the villagers sell any ____________________________ crops.

Janet believes that the ____________________________ of the village have been changed dramatically by the scheme.

Grammar focus task

Complete the extracts from the talk using the words in the box.

all  few  less  many  much  whole

1  I've worked in marketing for ..............much .............. of my life.
2  ......................... were impressed, I think, and a lot said that given the opportunity they'd like to do something similar.
3  I must say that not ......................... of them were so keen when I told them later about how basic the conditions were.
4  But a ......................... clearly disapproved of what I was doing.
5  The ......................... region was on the brink of starvation and handouts from charities were the only thing that kept people alive.
6  The scheme had been underway for ......................... than a year when I arrived.
Writing
The Principal of your college is concerned that many students have part-time jobs and that these are interfering with their studies. As the student representative on the staff-student committee, you have been asked by the Principal to interview 50 students and write a report of your findings. Here is his note outlining what he wants you to find out.

Thanks for agreeing to do the survey. I'm interested to find out:
• how many students have part-time jobs, what kinds of jobs they have, and how many hours a week they work
• what negative effect having a part-time job has on their studies
• what students think are the advantages of having a part-time job.

As you know, I'm thinking of putting a limitation on the number of hours students can work in part-time jobs. If you have any thoughts on whether this would be a good or bad idea, put them in the report.

Write your report in 220-260 words.

Writing hints
This task gives you the chance to practise determiners and quantifiers:
Many / Most / Few / All of the students ...; A few students said ... less time for relaxation, fewer hours a week, most weeks, little work
A Context listening

1. You are going to hear an interview with an author. In the interview he mentions three countries. Look at these photos. Which countries do you think they show?

2. (6 7) Listen and check whether you were right. Why is each of these countries important to the author?

3. Read these eight extracts from the interview. The words on the right have been removed. Put an arrow to show where you think the words came from.

   1. I suppose I'd been a writer (always)
   2. I left teaching and I started writing. (professionally)
   3. I go back on every occasion. (possible)
   4. I know how a book is going to end. (always)
   5. I'm up at about 7.00 in the morning. (generally)
   6. I prefer finding information from books. (as a rule)
   7. I still speak Swedish. (quite well)
   8. My mother was a gentle woman. (rather)
   9. I'm sketching out the plot. (still)

(6 7) Listen again and check your answers.

4. Read these further extracts from the interview. Tick (✓) those where you can add very before the underlined adjective and put a cross (✗) where this is not possible.

   1. Some of my close friends thought I was mad to give up my job. ✗
   2. I rarely have a clear idea at the beginning of how the characters will develop.
   3. I was happy to teach during the day.
   4. It felt fantastic having my first book published.
   5. I've just finished his excellent novel Restless.
   6. I felt bad leaving the children.
   7. There are a lot of historical links between Norway and the north of Scotland.
   8. My mother was a rather gentle woman and always even-tempered.
B Grammar

1 Position of adverbs

START POINT

There are three main positions for adverbs:

- Front position:
  - Normally, I write for about six hours a day.

- Mid position:
  - I usually start work by about 8.00. I'm generally up at about 7.00. I had never been to Norway before.
  - If my books hadn't been successful, I would happily have stayed in teaching, or I would have happily stayed ...

- End position:
  - He writes simply.

Many adverbs can go in any of these positions, depending on context or style:

- Gradually, they grew into real people, or They gradually grew into real people, or They grow gradually into real people.

Some adverbs tend to appear in particular positions:

- Always, never, adverbs of indefinite frequency (hardly ever, often, rarely, regularly, seldom); and degree adverbs (almost, hardly, nearly, quite, rather, scarcely) are usually put in mid position:
  - I rarely have a clear idea. I always know how a book is going to end.

- Constantly, continually, regularly, absolutely, completely, entirely, greatly, perfectly are usually put either in mid or end position, but not in front position:
  - I greatly admire William Boyd. (not Greatly I admire ...)

- Adverbs of place (e.g. upstairs) and adverbs of definite time and frequency (e.g. last January, monthly) are usually put in end position.

- Adverbs of time or frequency consisting of more than one word (e.g. as a rule, from time to time, every so often) are usually put either in front or end position, but not mid position:
  - As a rule, I prefer finding information from books. (not I as a rule prefer ...)

We avoid putting an adverb between a main verb and a direct object, or following an
-ing form or to-infinitive:

- I still speak Swedish quite well. (not I still speak quite well Swedish,)
- I started writing professionally. (not I started professionally writing,)
- I'd like to go back again. (not I'd like to go again back,)

In end position we usually put adverbs of place before adverbs of time:

- I hadn't been to Norway before rather than I hadn't been before to Norway.

2 quite, rather; already, yet, still; even, only; really quite, rather

The usual position for quite is before a / an and an adjective, where it means moderately:

Eva is quite a dominant figure.
Less often, quite is used between a / an and an adjective, where it means 'completely':

It's a quite remarkable story.

The usual position for rather is between a / an and an adjective. Less often, but with a similar meaning, rather is used before a / an and an adjective:

My mother was a rather gentle woman, or My mother was rather a gentle woman.

- With a singular noun or a lot of but no adjective, rather must come before a / an:
  - There was rather a shortage of teachers at the time. (not There was a rather shortage ...)
  - I had rather a lot of writing to do. (not *I had a rather lot of writing to do. *)

already, yet, still

Already can go in either mid or end position:

I'd already decided that I wanted to write about a single-parent family, or I'd decided initially that ...

Yet is usually put in end position in negatives, questions and expressions of uncertainty:

I don't know if I can tell you yet.

Still usually goes in mid position:

I'm still sketching out the plot.

even, only

Even and only usually go in mid position, but if they refer to the subject they usually come before it:

He can even speak Swedish. Sometimes even I'm surprised.

Only my close family had read anything I'd written.

really

The meaning of really can change according to its position in a sentence. Immediately before an adjective it means 'very'. In other positions it can mean 'actually' or 'in fact':

I'd been feeling really tired.

My friends thought I was joking, but I really had decided to leave teaching.

3 Position of adjectives

START POINT

| his excellent novel | his novel is excellent |

Many adjectives can be used either before the noun they describe, or following the noun and a linking verb such as be, become, feel and seem that connects a subject with a word or phrase that describes the subject.

The following adjectives can be used immediately after a noun:

- many participle adjectives:
  - There'll be a lot of people waiting eagerly to get hold of it. (= a lot of people who will be waiting)
  - Some of the geographical settings used in A Woman Alone are based on places I visited.
  - (* settings which are used in A Woman Alone*)
- adjectives used after indefinite pronouns (e.g. something, nothing):
  - I really don't think it was anything special.
  - There was nothing extraordinary about my first novel.
Some participle and -ible/-able adjectives can be used either before or immediately after a noun, (e.g. affected, alleged, applicable, available, possible, required, stolen, suggested):
I go back on every possible occasion, or ... on every occasion possible.
The following adjectives have different meanings when used in the different positions:
concerned, involved, opposite, present, proper, responsible.
And what about your present writing project? (present = current)
All the people present ... (present = in that particular place)
(See Appendix 6.1)
Many -ible/-able adjectives can only be used immediately after a noun when the noun follows a word such as first, last, next, only + superlative adjectives, or when extra information is given after the noun:
It was the most difficult decision imaginable.
Elsa is a woman susceptible to periods of depression.

4 Gradable adjectives
If an adjective is gradable, we can say that a person or thing can have more or less of the quality referred to (e.g. ambitious, busy). Gradable adjectives can be used with adverbs such as extremely, slightly or very:
somewhat ambitious, extremely busy, slightly different, very rich, pretty strong
If an adjective is non-gradable, we don’t usually imagine degrees of the quality referred to (e.g. huge, impossible). To emphasise the extreme or absolute nature of non-gradable adjectives we can use adverbs such as absolutely, completely or totally:
absolutely huge, completely impossible, practically unknown, almost unique, totally useless
Some adjectives have both gradable and non-gradable uses:
- some (e.g. common) have gradable and non-gradable uses with different meanings:
  Bardreth isn’t a very common surname. (gradable = frequent)
  Elsa and my mother have certain common characteristics. (non-gradable = similar)
  (See Appendix 6.2)
- some (e.g. diplomatic) have gradable and non-gradable uses with only small differences in meaning between them:
  You’re being very diplomatic. (gradable because it refers to the quality the person has)
  He worked as the diplomatic correspondent of a national newspaper. (non-gradable because it refers to the type of correspondent he is)
  (See Appendix 6.3)

Some non-gradable adjectives (e.g. actual, financial, medical, major) are rarely used with a preceding adverb such as absolutely or completely: I’d expected to pay about £1000, but the actual cost was much higher. (not ... the absolutely-actual-cost ...)
Gradable adjectives can be used as non-gradable adjectives, and vice versa, when we want to give special emphasis or when we are being humorous:
You’ve got £100 – wow, you’re virtually rich!
It was my first proper meal for three days, and I felt almost human again.
5 Patterns after adjectives

When an adjective comes after a linking verb, we can use a number of patterns after the adjective, including a to-infinitive or an -ing form:

I was unwilling to leave teaching.
It felt fantastic having my first book published.
Some of my close friends thought I was mad to give up my job or ... mad giving up my job.

Many adjectives can be followed by a that-clause, including some that can also be followed by a to-infinitive or an -ing form:

I was aware that I needed rest.
I was greatly relieved that my subsequent books sold quite well or ... relieved to find ...
I felt bad that I was leaving the children or I felt bad leaving the children.

(See Appendix 7.)

C Grammar exercises

1 Complete the sentences by writing the words in brackets in the correct order. Give alternatives where possible.

1 Not wanting to wake the children, I climbed the stairs quietly. (quietly – stairs – the)
2 Most days I walk to work, but ......................... the car if the weather's bad.
   (I – sometimes – take)
3 She ..................... her parents. (ever – hardly – visits)
4 When I bumped into his car, he began .................... at me. (angrily – shout – to)
5 Ken thinks we should sell our car and buy bikes instead, and ..................... with him. (absolutely – agree – I)
6 Natalie is on a working holiday in New Zealand. She ..................... and should be home at the end of June. (last – left – week)
7 ..................... for a meal after work to catch up on news. (go – occasionally – we) 8 Have you been .....................? (before – Sweden – to) 9 We ..................... to see a film. (go – out – seldom)
10 As I walked out of the room, she ..................... (loudly – singing – started)
2. Complete the sentences using the adjectives in the box. Use the same adjective in each pair of sentences. If possible, include the adverb given in brackets.

(severely) critical (very) genuine (rather) odd (highly) original (extremely)-particular (thoroughly) professional (pretty) wild

1 a She's extremely particular about what she eats, and never touches processed food at all.
   b There are so many hotels in the city to choose from. Why did you go for that ....... particular ....... one?

2 a The launch of the space shuttle has been delayed due to a ................. fault.
   b The operating instructions were ...................... and difficult to understand.

3 a The vase is a ..................... antique, not a recent copy.
   b I'm sure Melanie wouldn't lie to you - she's a ................. person.

4 a After protests on the streets, the government had to reconsider its ................. decision to double the tax on petrol.
   b He's admired around the world for his .................. style of guitar playing.

5 a She is a dedicated teacher, ..................... and hard-working.
   b I couldn't fix my computer myself, so I had to get some ..................... help.

6 a As soon as I'd eaten the oysters, I had a ..................... feeling in my stomach.
   b All the houses on this side of the street have ..................... numbers.

7 a The strike comes at a ..................... time for the company, which has just invested in a major new factory.
   b The report was ..................... of the Principal's management of the college, and she was forced to resign.

8 a The disease was passed on to chickens by ..................... birds.
   b It's a ..................... area of moorland, a long way from roads and settlements.

3. Complete the sentences with a to-infinitive or -ing form of the verb in brackets. Give alternatives where possible.

1 When the phone rang she was busy ........... doing ........... her homework. (do)
2 When I see pictures on TV of the flooding near the coast, I'm thankful
      ..................... inland. (live)
3 You're welcome ..................... as long as you like. (stay)
4 It was terrible ..................... her so ill. (see)
5 My teacher's rather old and he's inclined ..................... asleep during lessons. (fall)
6 I never felt comfortable............................ in the same office as Theresa. (work)
7 As soon as you're ready..........................., I'll call for a taxi. (leave)
8 You should take the job. You'd be foolish........................... an offer like that. (turn down)
9 I felt terrible.............................. to help them. (not to be able)
10 When the weather's very cold it's difficult.............................. my car. (start)
11 Maria's already lent me a lot of money and I feel awkward.............................. her for more. (ask)
12 Certain newspapers are always quick.............................. the government if anything goes wrong in the country. (blame)
13 The trains have narrow doors, and it's awkward......................... on and off. (get) 14 I felt bad.............................. her to do all the clearing up after the party. (leave)

4 Choose the correct position for the adjectives and adverbs in these conversations. Sometimes both are possible.

1 A: It says on the website that the film starts at 6.20. But there'll be adverts before, so (1) I imagine the proper film proper won't start until 6.45. Shall we meet about half six?
   B: Fine. And is Lucy coming?
   A: (2) I haven't yet heard back from her yet. I think she's coming, although I know
      (3) she's had a really bad cold really. I've got her a ticket. Unfortunately, (4) the only available seats available were right at the back, and (5) I still had to pay quite a quite ridiculous price for them.

2 A: Sorry to bother you, madam, but we're just making a few enquiries. (1) Have you seen unusual anything unusual in the street over the last 24 hours?
   B: Well, I was a bit surprised to see Mr Jones going in and out of his house last night.
   Normally, (2) only I only ever see him early in the morning.
   A: And Mr Jones lives where exactly?
   B: (3) He's the living man living in (4) the opposite house opposite — number 35.
   A: Could you describe him for me?
   B: (5) He's rather a rather tall man, in his mid thirties, with blond hair.

3 A: So which way are we driving across the mountains?
   B: I downloaded some information from a travel website, but (1) the given instructions given aren't very helpful.
   A: Why not?
   B: Well, (2) the suggested route suggested takes you up the narrowest and (3) steepest imaginable road imaginable, and (4) there are rather a rather lot of hairpin bends on it. I'm used to driving in mountains, but (5) even I even would be worried about driving along that road.
D Exam practice

Use of English

For questions 1-6, think of one word only which can be used appropriately in all three sentences. Here is an example (0).

0 It's going to be difficult to finish the work by the deadline, but I'm sure I'll manage it.

I run most aspects of the business myself, but I have an accountant to manage the financial side.

That box looks really heavy – can you manage to lift it by yourself?

1 West Nile Virus is a potentially fatal infection, and the mosquito __________________ is becoming increasingly widespread.

Jason wasn't in the house when the window was broken, so he couldn't be __________________.

Any __________________ employer will take steps to ensure the safety of their workers.

2 Harry should have been here ages ago, and I'm __________________ that he might have got lost.

There was a mistake in the maths paper, but the students __________________ will be allowed to take the examination again.

The academic writing classes are open to all students, but we are particularly __________________ to help students from overseas.

3 Tony Austin's performance was a highly __________________ mix of songs, poetry and stories.

My __________________ plan was to drive to Greece, but I eventually decided it was too far.

There is a copy in an art gallery in St. Petersburg, but the __________________ painting was lost many years ago.

4 School sports day will be held on Thursday July 1st, or Friday July 2nd in the __________________ that the weather is bad on Thursday.

Tonight's match is the first __________________ to be held in the stadium since its reopening.

We only expected about a hundred people at the meeting, but in the __________________ the hall was completely full.

5 When the Socialists were elected to power, it was a __________________ moment in the history of the country.

The company director refused to resign, even though the report was __________________ of his performance.

Recent research has shown that diet is __________________ to the prevention of many types of cancer.
6 Sarah didn’t come into work this morning, but she seemed ...................... well when I saw her last night.

I ....................... understand your objections, but I still think we should accept the recommendations.

He always seems to have ....................... combed hair, even when the wind is blowing!

Grammar focus task

1 Look again at the adjectives you have written in the sentences in question 3 and 5. In which are they used as gradable adjectives and in which are they used as ungradable adjectives? ...............

2 Look again at the adverb you have written in the sentences in question 6. In each sentence, decide whether other positions are possible for this adverb.

Writing

You have seen this announcement in the English Language Learning Magazine.

English Language Teacher of the Year Award

Write and tell us why your language teacher should win.
Tell us a little about his or her background.
Say why you think he or she is an outstanding teacher.
Say how he or she has helped you to learn.
The winner of the winning entry will receive a £250 prize and the winning teacher will be presented with a trophy.

Write your competition entry in 220–260 words.

Writing hints

The task gives you a chance to practise gradable and non-gradable adjectives:

- usually non-gradable – essential, excellent, fascinated, necessary, outstanding, perfect
- usually gradable – angry, entertaining, enthusiastic, helpful, patient

If you use a gradable adjective, consider using an adverb such as exceptionally, highly, immensely, rather, really, very.
A Context listening

1 You are going to hear four friends discussing where to go on holiday. They have already decided to go to Greece, either to Athens or the island of Corfu. What are the advantages of going to each place?

2 Listen to the discussion. How many of the advantages you identified do they mention?

3 Listen again and complete these extracts by writing three words in each sentence.

1 If we don’t decide soon, it’ll be .......... late .......... to .......... get anywhere to stay.

2 They all look pretty good, and they’re right next to .......... beach .......... the island.

3 It says in my guidebook that there are reasonable hotel rooms for .......... 40 euros a night.

4 It was .......... holiday I’ve ever had.

5 And it would be .......... being in a city.

6 It’s still supposed to be a really beautiful place, so we’ll want to see .......... we can.

4 How are the comparative and superlative statements formed?
1 Adjectives and adverbs: comparative and superlative forms

START POINT
Accommodation would be cheaper in Athens.
It's probably the cheapest host in Athens.
I want to come home more relaxed and healthier more healthy.
The walking tour in France was the healthiest/most healthy holiday I've had.
It will be more expensive to get to Corfu than Athens.
It's the most expensive flight this day.

There are exceptions to the comparative and superlative forms illustrated above.

We usually add -er/-est to one-syllable adjectives.

However, we use more/most
- before past participle adjectives:
  I want to come home more relaxed.
- before fun, real, right, wrong:
  It'd be more fun to go to Corfu.

We can usually add -er/-est or put more/most before two-syllable adjectives.

However, we always use more/most with
- participle adjectives:
  It was the most boring holiday I've ever had.
- adjectives ending -ful or -less:
  It would be more peaceful than being in a city.
- afraid, alert, alike, alone, ashamed, cautious, complex, direct, exact, famous, frequent, modern, special, recent:
  I'm more afraid of flying than travelling by boat.
The Parthenon is one of the most famous buildings in the world.

We usually put more/most before three- or more syllable adjectives.

However, we can add -er/-est to
- unhappy, unhealthy, unlikely, unlucky, unsteady, untidy:
  I came back feeling unhappier than when I went away. or
  I came back feeling more unhealthy ...

We can use a sentence with two comparatives to say that as one thing changes, another thing also changes:
The longer we leave it, the more expensive it's going to be.

We can use less/least as the opposite of more/most with all adjectives, including one-syllable adjectives:

Hotels in Corfu are quite cheap—although less cheap than they used to be.
It was the least expensive flight I could find.

In informal contexts we usually prefer not as ... as rather than less than:
It's probably not as unsupervised as some of the other Greek islands.
The forms and uses of comparative and superlative adverbs are similar to those of adjectives, although most adverb comparatives and superlatives are formed with more and most rather than -er/-est:
We could live more cheaply in Athens.
Most importantly, we need to book our flights soon.
Common adverbs which take -er/-est include hard and fast.

2 Superlatives: special cases

START POINT
That's the most convenient of the flights from London ...
It's one of the most famous buildings in the world.
They're right next to the best beach on the island.
After a superlative we usually use of before plural words and in or on before singular words for places or groups.

For emphasis we can put an of-phrase at the beginning of the sentence:
Of the flights from London, that's the most convenient ...

START POINT
In informal contexts we sometimes leave out the after a linking verb (see page 64), particularly when the superlative is at the end of a sentence:
Which one's cheapest?
△ We can't leave out the when we go on to say what group of things is being compared:
That's the most convenient of the flights from London ...
When most + adjective is used without the, most means something like 'very':
The route he took was most odd.

3 Comparisons with as ...

START POINT
Isn't Corfu likely to be as hot as Athens at that time of the year? (= equally hot) Getting to Corfu is just as easy as getting to Athens. (= equally easy to get to)

Before the first as we can use words and phrases such as about, almost, just, just about, nearly, and informally not anything like, nothing like, nowhere near, not nearly to indicate the degree of similarity:
The heat is nowhere near as bad as people say.

In negative forms we can use not as in informal contexts, or less commonly not so:
Corfu is certainly not as quiet as it used to be; or ... not so quiet as it used to be.

We use as much / many as or as little / few as to say that a quantity or amount is larger or smaller than expected:
There are reasonable hotel rooms for as little as 40 euros a night.
There are as many as 12 flights a day to Athens from London.
We also use as much / many as with a noun phrase, a clause, or the words ever, possible, and usual:
We want to see as much as possible.
We can put a singular noun between an adjective and the second as:
We want as cheap a flight as possible.
△ Notice that we use a/an in front of the noun.
The negative form of sentences like this can use either not as or not such:
Getting there is not as big a problem as you might think.
△ Notice that we use not as + adjective + a/an + noun but not such a/an + adjective + noun.
as + clause
We can use a clause after as to compare two situations:
Maybe we could hire a car, as we did last year.
In writing and formal spoken contexts, as can act like a relative pronoun:
The fee will be £35, as was agreed at our last meeting. (* which was agreed)
In formal contexts we can sometimes invert the subject and verb after as (and also than) in comparisons:
They travelled by train, as did my brother, or ... as my brother did.
△ as or like
When followed by a noun, as is used to describe the job or role of someone, or the function of something, and like is used to say that one person or thing is similar to another:
My friend Mark used to work there as an English teacher.
Sounds like a good deal.

4 Comparisons with so ..., too ..., enough
Comparative clauses with so, too and enough are followed by clauses beginning that or to-infinitive.

so + adjective + that-clause
It gets so hot that a lot of people leave the city.
More formally we can use so + adjective + as + to-infinitive with a similar meaning. Compare:
The difference in price is so small as to not be worth bothering about. (formal)
The difference in price is so small that it’s not worth bothering about. (informal) too + adjective + to-infinitive
If we don’t decide soon, it’ll be too late (for us) to get anywhere to stay.
adjective + enough + to-infinitive
It’s easy enough to get into the centre from there.
In formal contexts we can use sufficiently before adjectives to express a similar meaning to enough:
I’m not sufficiently familiar with the city to act as your guide, or I’m not familiar enough ...
C Grammar exercises

1 Complete the sentences with an appropriate comparative or superlative form of the adjectives in the box. Give alternative forms where possible.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>alert</th>
<th>close</th>
<th>common</th>
<th>concerned</th>
<th>deep</th>
<th>handsome</th>
<th>harmful</th>
<th>magnificent</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>narrow</td>
<td>poor</td>
<td>respected</td>
<td>sad</td>
<td>thrilled</td>
<td>unhealthy</td>
<td>venomous</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

1 Redbacks are among the ................. spiders in this part of the country. Unfortunately, they’re also the ..................

2 The road seemed to be getting ......................... as we drove ......................... into the forest.

3 I know coffee isn’t good for me, and certainly ......................... than tea, but I’m at my ......................... early in the morning after a couple of cups of coffee, and I would find it difficult to give it up.

4 It was the ......................... I had ever come to a fully-grown elephant, and I was terrified. But even then I realised that I was in the presence of one of the ......................... creatures on earth.

5 The head of Presto Stores argued that without supermarkets to provide cheap and fresh food, we would all be ......................... and ..........................

6 When Diana saw Nick at the party, she thought he was the ......................... man she had ever seen and went over to speak to him. But she soon realised that he was ......................... with looking good than talking to her.

7 I couldn’t have been ......................... when Professor Hackman agreed to meet me to discuss my research. He’s one of the ......................... scientists in his field. But I was ......................... than angry when he phoned to say that he couldn’t meet me after all. I realise that he’s a very busy man.

2 Complete the sentences using the words given in comparative or superlative forms. You may not need to use all the words. Give alternatives where possible.

1 It may not be (a) the most beautiful part of the city, to live in, but it’s certainly (b) ..........................

   a beautiful - city - in - most - of - part - the - the b cheapest - the
2 Harold was (a) ......................... the three Stevens brothers, and he became perhaps
(b) .............................. a in - the - of - oldest b artist - famous - generation - his - in - of - most - the 3 I think Richard should run first in the relay. He's (a) ........................., and probably

(b) .............................. a in - of - the - team - the - youngest b fittest - the

4 We were staying in (a) ............................., but the airline lost our luggage and we had to spend the first couple of days wearing old jeans and T-shirts. It was
(b) .............................. a exclusive - hotel - island - most - of - on - the - the b embarrassing - most - the Complete the sentences in these radio news stories. Choose the correct or more likely option in each pair. Sometimes both are possible.

With just a few days before the general election, as (1) ............... many ............... (many / much) as 100,000 people have demonstrated in the capital of Manistan as attacks on opposition candidates have continued. When voters were asked about their intentions in a recent opinion poll, as (2) .................................. (little / few) as 10% said they would be voting. This is seen as a protest against the way in which the ruling party has conducted its campaign.
However, a government spokesman claimed that the figure of 100,000 demonstrators was 'inaccurate', as (3) ......................... (were the poll findings / the poll findings were).

President Clarke has claimed that thanks to recent medical advances, malaria could be eradicated worldwide within as (4) ......................... (little / few) as ten years. In a speech to the World Health Organisation, she said that a cheap vaccine against malaria is just around the corner, (5) ............................. (as it is / as is) a cure for hepatitis B. She called on developed countries to invest (6) ............................. (as much / so much) as possible so that they can have the maximum impact on those most affected in poorer countries.

The former Formula One world champion Carl Nielsen left hospital today just six weeks after his horrific crash in the Monaco Grand Prix. Speaking to reporters outside his home, he said that damage to his back was not as (7) ............................. (serious a problem / a serious problem) as first thought, and he hoped to return to as (8) ..........................
(normal life / normal a life) as possible. But there is (9) ............................. (not such a / not a such) positive outcome for the spectator who was hit by debris from Nielsen's car. He is said to be still in a critical condition.
A 64-year-old man who works \( \ldots \) (like/as) a school crossing warden has become the country's biggest ever lottery winner. Mark Johns from London said that the win had come at the perfect time for him. He said: 'I'm not \( \ldots \) (so/as) young as I was, and I can now look forward to a comfortable retirement.'

4 Match the pairs of sentences. Rewrite each pair as one sentence using so + adjective + that-clause.

1. I was exhausted. - a. It can easily fit into your shirt pocket.
2. Adam is tall.   - b. He has to bend down to get through doorways.
3. The job offer was very good. - c. The building had to be evacuated.
4. The comet is very bright.  - d. The actors couldn't make themselves heard.
5. The traffic outside the theatre was very loud. - e. It can be seen with the naked eye.
6. The camera is very small. - f. I couldn't turn it down.
7. The results were awful. - g. Our teacher made us take the test again.
8. The fire was serious. - h. I couldn't go any further.

I was so exhausted that I couldn't go any further.

5 Four of the sentences in Exercise 4 can be written using either too + adjective + to-infinitive or enough + to-infinitive. Find them and rewrite them.

1. I was too exhausted to go any further.
2.
3.
4.

D Exam practice

C P E

Reading

Read the three texts below and decide which answer (A, B, C or D) best fits each gap.

Cycling is good news – so what’s stopping us?

The government’s recent campaign, encouraging us to leave our cars at home and get on our bikes, has had some success, with a slight increase (1) .............. the numbers cycling to work. We all now know the benefits – cyclists have (2) .............. health problems than non-cyclists, and they don’t damage the environment. But we won’t become a nation of cyclists until we (3) .............. two major barriers. First, exhaust fumes in heavily congested streets can be as (4) .............. to the lungs as cigarette smoke. So we must have more cycle lanes separating cars and bikes. Second, bikes need to be used for everyday transport. Cycling in many cities has been cornered by enthusiasts who weave in and out of traffic, ignore the lights, trespass on pavements and shout abuse at cars that (5) .............. their progress. Only when British commuters emulate their French, German and Scandinavian counterparts and use bicycles to go about their business in their everyday clothes (6) .............. large numbers start pedalling.

1 A on B of C in D to
2 A fewer B smaller C less D lower
3 A prevent B reduce C beat D overcome
4 A risky B bad C unhealthy D damaging
5 A interfere B impede C counter D restrain
6 A must B should C will D may

Why do birds eat seeds?

Powered flight requires fuel. For birds, that fuel is food; and since flight demands that bulk and weight should be (7) .............. to a minimum, the more compact and powerful that fuel is, the (8) .............. . Seeds have both those qualities. The nourishment they contain is there to enable a developing seedling to build a stem and leaves so that it can start to manufacture food on its own (9) .............. , but that same nourishment can also feed birds and it is so rich and so conveniently packaged that many birds eat little else. (10) .............. It is of no benefit to a plant to have its seeds destroyed in the stomachs of birds, many plants armour their seeds to prevent that (11) .............. . Birds, in response, have evolved special tools and strategies to ensure that they can continue to plunder this valuable food supply that (12) .............. their needs so well.

From The Life of Birds, by Sir David Attenborough

78
Comparison

7 A kept B managed C maintained D controlled
8 A greater B better C lighter D higher
9 A accord B account C way D terms
10 A Although B While C Despite D Since
11 A happening B appearing C following D proceeding 12 A becomes B agrees C suits D pleases

Reflexology

By walking barefoot across the open countryside, early man was inadvertently enjoying the benefits of reflexology, a therapeutic form of foot massage. Both ancient Chinese and Egyptian cultures practised foot massage (13)................ the aim of improving general health, but it was not (14)............... the early twentieth century that reflexology reached the West. Reflexologists believe that specific points on the feet (15)............... to areas of the body, and that these areas can be stimulated by applying gentle pressure to the soles of the feet. Some doctors have criticised reflexology, pointing in particular to the short (16).............. of training programmes. (17).............., it is possible to gain a qualification in reflexology with as little as six months of home study. However, many thousands of people (18).............. to have enjoyed improvements to their health from reflexology, especially in reducing levels of stress.

13 A in B by C with D to 14 A to B in C until D before
15 A correspond B match C complement D equal 16 A course B duration C time D continuation 17 A Arguably B Definitely C Actually D Certainly 18 A believe B insist C say D claim

Grammar focus task

These sentences are based on the texts. Without looking back, complete the sentences with the comparative and superlative forms.

1 Exhaust fumes in heavily congested streets can be ............ polluted ............ to the lungs ............ cigarette smoke.

2 For birds, food is fuel and ................................ compact and powerful that fuel is, the ................................ .

3 Seeds are ......................... rich and ......................... conveniently packaged ......................... many birds eat little else.

4 It is possible to gain a qualification in reflexology with ......................... ......................... six months of home study.
Writing
Your college has asked you to write an information sheet for students on effective study skills. Information should be included on managing your time, how to read difficult books, and remembering information.

Write your information sheet in 220-260 words.

Writing hints
This task gives you the chance to use comparative and superlative forms:
more difficult than, easier to remember than, a more efficient method, the most popular methods, it’s better to
You can also use comparisons with as ... as:
as often as possible, not as difficult as ...

Useful language study periods, timetable, reading strategies, visual images
Verb patterns 1
verbs with two objects: verb + object + adjective; verb + reflexive pronoun; verb + each other / one another

A  Context listening

1 You are going to listen to part of an introductory lecture in a course on first language learning. Do you know what your first words were? Or the first words of a child you know?

2 The lecturer tells the students about the first five lectures in the course. Here are the titles of these lectures. Listen and number them in the order they will take place.
   Listening and learning: the interrelationships ..............
   Early communication: parents and play ..............
   Patterns of communication: learned behaviour? ..............
   Private conversations: talking to toys ..............

3 Listen again and fill in the gaps.
   - I recently (1) bought my two-year-old daughter a cuddly elephant, and it has become the 'person' she talks to each morning lying in bed.
   - The first stage of interactive play might be a child (2) ...................... or (3) .................................
   - A broken toy handed to a parent with an 'Aaa' might mean (4) '..........................'.
   - (5) ................................ is a similarly important part of this process of listening and understanding.
   - Dr Jackman will be (6) ........................................ in detail in later talks.

4 Which of the following patterns do the phrases you have written have?
   1 verb + person / people + thing(s) ........................
   2 verb + thing(s) + for + person / people ........................
   3 verb + thing(s) + to + person / people ........................

5 Decide whether the phrases in Exercise 3 could be rewritten using the other patterns.
   1 ✓ bought my two-year-old daughter a cuddly elephant ✓ bought a cuddly elephant for my two-year-old daughter ✓ bought a cuddly elephant to my two-year-old daughter
1 Verbs with two objects

After many verbs with two objects, we can reverse the order of the objects if we put for or to before the indirect object:

I recently bought my two-year-old daughter a cuddly elephant. or
I recently bought a cuddly elephant for my two-year-old daughter.

A child might offer their mother some food. or
A child might offer some food to their mother.

We often use this pattern to focus particular attention on the indirect object or when the indirect object is much longer than the direct object:

She lent the book to one of the students who asked for some additional reading. (not She lent one of the students who asked for some additional reading the book.)

We use for + indirect object with verbs such as build, find and get:
Go to the toy box and find the car for me. or Go to the toy box and find me the car.

We use to + indirect object with verbs such as give, offer and show:
She gave a toy to me. or She gave me a toy.

We can use either for or to + indirect object with verbs such as play, read and write.

Often there is a difference in meaning:
I couldn’t find her email address, so I had to write a letter to her. (not She was too young to write herself, so I wrote the letter for her. (+ instead of her))

Sometimes the meaning is very similar:
Reading stories for/to young children is an important part of this process.

Some verbs with two objects cannot have their objects reversed with for/to, including ask, guarantee and refuse:
Most parents ask themselves the question: ‘Did they copy that from us?’ (not … ask the question for … to themselves …)

(See Appendix 8.4–8.6.)

If the direct object is a pronoun, we usually use direct object + for/to + indirect object:
I bought it for my daughter. Give it to me.

While I bought my daughter it and Give me it might be heard in informal speech, this pattern is usually considered to be bad style and should be avoided in writing.
Some verbs can only have two objects in the pattern direct object + for/to + indirect object:
- for (These verbs include collect, fix and mend.)
  Mend this for me. (not Mend me this.)
- to (These verbs include describe, explain and mention.)
  Dr Jackman will be describing this process to you in detail. (not Dr Jackman will be describing you this process in detail.)
  (> See Appendix 8.4 (ii) and 8.5 (ii).)

2 Verb + object + adjective
Some verbs (e.g. believe, consider, prove) can be followed by an object + adjective:
We might consider first language learning natural ... (object = first language learning; adjective = natural)
This is usually considered rather formal. Less formal alternatives can be made with verb + object + to be or verb + that-clause:
We might consider first language learning to be natural ... or We might consider that first language learning is natural ...
(> See Appendix 8.7.)

3 Verbs + reflexive pronouns

Let me introduce myself. I'd like to talk about what I call 'private' conversations - children talking to themselves.
When the subject and the object of a sentence refer to the same person or thing, we use a reflexive pronoun as the object rather than a personal pronoun. The reflexive pronouns are: myself, yourself, herself, himself, itself, ourselves, yourselves, themselves.

After some verbs we can use a reflexive pronoun or leave it out with little difference in meaning. These include aclimatise ... to, adapt ... to, (un)dress, hide, move, prepare ... for, shave and wash:
As my three year-old daughter dresses (herself), she likes to talk.
We include the reflexive pronoun for emphasis. In this example, we might include herself to emphasise that she dresses without help.

Some verbs commonly used with reflexive pronouns can have different meanings when used with a personal pronoun. These include apply, compose, distinguish and explain:
When a child is applying herself to painting a picture ... (= working hard at it)
She took some sunscreen and applied it to her arms and legs. (= spread it on)
(> See Appendix 8.8.)

A few verbs are very often used with a reflexive pronoun followed by a particular preposition: busy ... with, distract ... from, pride ... on:
When children appear to be busying themselves with their toys ...
(> See Appendix 8.9.)

83
Some verbs are rarely or never used with a reflexive pronoun in English, but often are in other languages. These include complain, concentrate, get up, get hot, get tired, lie down, meet, relax, remember, sit down, and wake up:

From the moment they wake up ... (not From the moment they wake themselves up ...)

With verbs followed by direct object + preposition + indirect object we usually use a personal pronoun, not a reflexive pronoun, as indirect object:
Parenis sometimes hide an object behind them. (not Parenis sometimes hide an object behind themselves.)

△ If we need to make it clear that the subject and indirect object refer to the same person, we use a reflexive pronoun. Compare:
Maria didn't buy the teddy bear for her. (her = could mean either Maria or someone else)
Maria didn't buy the teddy bear for herself. (herself = Maria)

4 Verbs + each other / one another

Compare the use of verbs with reflexive pronouns and each other / one another:
Sue and Ken blamed themselves when their daughter broke her arm. (= they said it was the fault of both of them)
Sue and Ken blamed each other / one another when their daughter broke her arm. (= Sue said it was Ken's fault and Ken said it was Sue's fault)
(> See Appendix 8.10.)

With some verbs (e.g. agree, coincide, play) we have to use the preposition with before each other / one another:
It is wonderful to see two small children playing with each other peacefully.
(> See Appendix 8.11.)

After the verbs embrace, fight, hug, kiss, marry and meet we can use each other or (with) one another, but this can be omitted:
Two small children at a nursery school might hug (each other / one another) when they meet.

For emphasis we can separate each and other:
If their language is more developed, they might each blame the other for a broken toy or a spilt drink.
C Grammar exercises

1 Describe each situation using They + verb + (with) + each other. Choose from the verbs in the box.

agree blame compete disagree know miss resemble respect trust work

1 We look alike.
We resemble each other.

2 You were right!

3 I always like to be better than you!

4 I admire your character.

5 I believe that you’re honest.

6 I’m sorry you’re not here.

7 We met 20 years ago.

8 We’re employed in the same office.

9 It was your fault.

10 You were wrong!

2 Complete the sentences using the pairs of objects in the box. Give all possible word orders, adding prepositions where necessary.

some apples / me your car / you some chocolate / myself a £10 gift voucher / me a favour / you your glass / me how to print out a document / me those letters / you a lot / you the mistake / the manager a seat / me them / you some water / you

1 I’ll be a bit late getting to the concert tonight. Can you save

2 I’m on a diet, so I’m trying to cut down on sweets, although I do allow

85
3 I have to go past the postbox on my way home. I'll post
........................................................................, if you like.

4 I haven't eaten any fruit all week. Can you buy
...................................................................................... when you're at the supermarket?
I'll pay ........................................................................ when you get back.

5 A: Can I ask ....................................................................... ?
B: Of course.
A: Can you show ........................................................................... ?

6 I'm sure they could repair ................................................................. at Smallwood's garage. They're very good there, but it would probably cost
.......................................................................................

7 In my local supermarket I noticed a sign saying 'Two for the price of won!' I pointed out ......................................................................................, and a week later she sent ....................................................................................... to say 'thank you'.

8 A: Can you pass me the water, please?
B: Give ............................................................................... and I'll pour
....................................................................................

3 Complete the sentences by adding an appropriate personal or reflexive pronoun, an adjective from box A and an ending from box B.

A

fit guilty incapable independent lucky responsible unable

B

of the murder for its collapse to play again of the Soviet Union to sing to be alive of maintaining order

1 After undergoing a minor operation on her throat, she found
...............................................................................................................

2 Although the police didn't have hard evidence against Karl Stevens, they still believed
...............................................................................................................

3 The police officers lacked experience in crowd control and proved
...............................................................................................................

4 After all his injury troubles, Marcus has now pronounced
...............................................................................................................

5 When I looked at the damage to my car in the crash, I considered
.............................................................................................................
6 Mary Wallis had been the company's CEO for five years and the board of directors held ................................................. .

7 In 1991, Estonia declared .............................................................. .

4 Complete the sentences with a personal pronoun, a reflexive pronoun or a reflexive pronoun + preposition. Sometimes a pronoun may not be necessary. Write the reflexive pronoun in brackets if it can be omitted.

1 When the police came to arrest him, Thomson hid ............(himself)......... under the floorboards until they had gone.

2 He had always prided ................................................... his physical fitness, so it surprised him when he found it so difficult to acclimatise ................................. walking in the mountains.

3 Sarah came in carrying a big box of chocolates. At first I thought they were for me, but she said she'd bought them for ......................... because she'd had such a bad day at work. So I had to content ......................... a couple of rather boring biscuits.

4 I tried to prepare ......................... the interview by looking at the company's website and familiarising ......................... their range of products.

5 Thanks for taking the children to the zoo last week. They enjoyed ......................... enormously. I'm looking forward to having lunch with you on Thursday. Shall I meet ......................... outside the restaurant at about 12.30?

6 My father had broken his arm and couldn't shave ........................., so I had to do it for him. I found it really difficult and had to concentrate ......................... hard.
Use of English

For questions 1–8, complete the second sentence so that it has a similar meaning to the first sentence, using the word given. Do not change the word given. You must use between three and six words, including the word given. Here is an example (0).

0 If there is a fire, you must not use the lift to leave the building.

EVENT
In the event of a fire, you must not use the lift to leave the building.

1. Nina was driving the car at the time, but I don’t think the accident was her fault.
RESPONSIBLE
Nina was driving the car at the time, but I don’t hold ................................the accident.

2. Jack has such a vivid imagination, it is possible that he invented the whole story.
MADE
Jack has such a vivid imagination that he might ................................the whole story.

3. I had only just got home when the phone rang.
SOONER
No ................................the phone rang.

4. Although Karen and Mark have very different personalities and interests, they seem to have a good relationship.
ALONG
Although Karen and Mark have very different personalities and interests, they seem to ................................another very well.

5. I hadn’t seen Martha for over 20 years, but I didn’t find it difficult to recognise her at the airport.
DIFFICULTY
I hadn’t seen Martha for over 20 years, but I had ................................her at the airport.

6. She is proud of being able to write clearly.
ABILITY
She prides ................................to write clearly.

7. Once Dr Smithers had given us a clear explanation of the procedure, we were able to go ahead with the experiment.
EXPLODED
Once Dr Smithers had ................................, we were able to go ahead with the experiment.

8. The government has banned all exports to the country except for food and medicine.
EXCEPTION
The government has banned all exports to the country ................................food and medicine.
Grammar focus task

1. The answer to question 6 includes the pattern verb + reflexive pronoun + preposition.
   Which prepositions usually go with the following verbs in the same pattern?
   - disguise
   - impose
   - console
   - familiarise
   - organise
   - brace
   - acclimatise
   - distance
   - tear away
   - busy

2. The answer to question 7 includes the pattern verb + direct object + to + indirect object.
   Which of these verbs can also be followed by direct object + to + indirect object?
   - prove
   - fetch
   - point out
   - collect
   - owe
   - offer
   - build
   - repair
   - choose
   - hand
   - introduce

Writing

Your friend has applied for the post of editor of a weekly newsletter for members of staff in a large company, and you have been asked to write a letter of reference for him or her. Include information about your friend’s relevant experience and the skills and characteristics that make him or her suitable for the job. Here is an extract from the job advertisement.

Write the letter of reference in 220–260 words.

Writing hints

The task gives you the chance to practise using verbs with two objects and verbs followed by an object and adjective:
- She gave me the opportunity to retrain ...
- She had to write reports for the company ...
- She explained the procedures to her colleagues ...
- I always found her helpful ...
- I consider her suitable for the post ...
10 Verb patterns 2
verb + to-infinitive / -ing; verb + (object) + bare infinitive; verb + object + to-infinitive / -ing; verb + object / possessive + -ing; other patterns after verbs

A Context listening

1. Listen to part of an interview from a radio travel programme. The reporter is talking about his recent visit to the island of Lombok in Indonesia. Which of these problems did the reporter encounter on his trip?

seasickness shark attack passport left at home volcanic eruption hurricane missed flight stung by jellyfish missed boat

2. Listen again and fill in the gaps.

1. I’d been so anxious to get into the taxi that I’ve forgotten to pay it up.
2. It ...................... to Bali and then taking a ferry to Lombok.
3. We were ......................... outside the harbour for hours.
4. A number of people ........................ to the coral reefs off the northwest coast.
5. When I was younger I used to ....................... in the sea.
6. As it swam past I ....................... me across the stomach.
7. I really ......................... me so well.
8. As we ......................... the amazing sunset, it was almost possible to believe it.
9. I ......................... the camera in my mobile phone, but the quality was pretty poor.
10. I ......................... that the Lombok people are very kind.
11. I ......................... for a few more days, but I didn’t have time.

3. Notice that in each space in Exercise 2 you have written two verbs, and that the second verb has either a to-infinitive or an -ing form.

1. In three of these sentences you could use the other form of this verb and still have a correct sentence. Which three? ........................

2. In only one of these three would the sentence have a similar meaning with either a to-infinitive or an -ing form. Which one? ........................

90
1. Verb + to-infinitive / -ing

Some verbs can be followed by either a to-infinitive or an -ing form with little or no difference in meaning:

I started to scream. or I started screaming.

Other verbs like this include: begin, not bother, cease, continue.

We normally avoid using two -ing forms together:

I was beginning to feel quite at home there. (not I was beginning feeling ...)

After the opinion verbs hate, like, love and prefer we can use either a to-infinitive or an -ing form with little difference in meaning.

However, we prefer a to-infinitive when we say we do something regularly. Compare:

When I was younger, I used to hate to swim in the sea. (= implies regular swimming)

When I was younger, I used to hate swimming in the sea. (= implies swimming in general)

After would (d) with hate, like, love or prefer, we use a to-infinitive, not an -ing form:

I'd love to think that it could avoid a huge expansion in visitors.

Some verbs can be followed by either a to-infinitive or an -ing form but the meaning of the verb is different:

I came to realise that the Lombok people are very kind. (= talking about a gradual realisation)

It came swimming towards me. (= saying that something swam in your direction)

(See Appendix 10.)

We use an -ing form after a verb with a preposition:

I put off going home for as long as possible.

We use an -ing form after to when to is a preposition:

I'd really been looking forward to staying at the Hotel Sanur in Masaram.

In negative sentences, the position of not can influence meaning. Compare:

I regretted not speaking the local language. (= I didn't speak the language and regretted it)

I didn't regret speaking the local language. (= I spoke it and didn't regret it)

I was told not to exercise. (= they said I shouldn't exercise)

I wasn't told to exercise. (= they didn't say I should exercise)
2 Verb + (object) + bare infinitive

When let and make have an object, this is followed by a bare infinitive:

They made us wait outside the harbour for hours.

We use a to-infinitive after a passive form of make:

We were made to wait outside the harbour for hours.

We can also use have + object + bare infinitive when we say that we caused someone to do something:

I had him wait for me while I went swimming.

When the verbs of perception feel, hear, notice, observe, overhear, see, watch have an object, this is followed by an -ing form or a bare infinitive:

I felt it stinging me across the stomach. Or I felt it sting me across the stomach.

I sat on the beach and I watched the sun setting. Or I watched the sun set and then went home.

We usually prefer an -ing form when the action is in progress or we want to emphasise that it continued for some time, and a bare infinitive when an action is complete or we want to emphasise that it lasted for a short time.

We use a bare infinitive in certain idiomatic phrases with dare, make, let and hear:

I dare say you're tired after your journey. (I think this must be true)

I had to make do with a less luxurious hotel. I had to let go of the rope.

He let slip that he hadn't got a driving licence. I heard tell there were sharks around.

(See Unit 4 for more on dare.)

After help we can use either a bare infinitive or to-infinitive:

Some of the villagers helped carry me back to my taxi, or

Some of the villagers helped to carry me back to my taxi.

3 Verb + object + to-infinitive / -ing

After some verbs we have to include an object before a to-infinitive in active sentences:

A number of people had encouraged me to go to the coral reefs off the north-west coast of the island.

Other verbs like this include: advise, persuade, tell.

(See Appendix 9.4.)

Some verbs can’t include an object before a to-infinitive:

I decided to go ahead.

Other verbs like this include: agree, guarantee, refuse.

(See Appendix 9.1.)

With some verbs we have to include the preposition for before an object + to-infinitive:

I arranged for the taxi to collect me.

Other verbs like this include: advertise, apply, campaign, pay, wait.

(See Unit 24 for more on prepositions after verbs.)
Some verbs are only followed by an -ing form when they have an object:
I saw the jellyfish coming towards me.
Other verbs like this include: feel, find, hear.
(See Appendix 9.5.)

4 Verb + object / possessive + -ing
Some verbs can be followed either by an object or, more formally, a possessive form:
I really appreciated them looking after me so well, or
I really appreciated their looking after me so well.
Other verbs like this include verbs of (dis)liking (appreciate, detest, (dis)approve of, (dis)like, enjoy, hate, love, object to) and verbs of thinking (forget, imagine, remember, think of).
\(\Delta\) We can only use a possessive form to talk about a person or a group of people:
The experience with the jellyfish was awful. I’ll never forget it swimming towards me.
(not ... its swimming towards me)
We don’t use a possessive form if the object is complex:
I really enjoyed Arun and his sister showing me around. (not ... Arun’s and his sister’s ...)

5 Other patterns after verbs
The to-infinitive can also have perfect, passive, and continuous forms.
Verb + to have + past participle
We use forms of the perfect infinitive to talk about an event that happened earlier or is complete:
The Savaks are thought to have originally come to Lombok from India or Burma.
This is particularly used to talk about actions that did not happen or may not have happened:
I was supposed to have arrived on the 14th October.
I was supposed to have been flying from London to Singapore.
The mountain’s thought by some to have been created by the god Baturu.
Verb + having + past participle
We use the perfect -ing form to emphasise that one action happens before another:
I really regret not having taken my camera with me.
This form is most often used with the verbs admit, deny, forget, recall, regret, and remember.
Verb + to be + present / past participle
Future actions can also be indicated using the continuous infinitive (verb + to be + present participle) and the passive infinitive (verb + to be + past participle):
I hope to be going back again.
More flights to the island are expected to be introduced next year.
C Grammar exercises

1 Choose the correct answer. Sometimes more than one option is possible.

1 The President has urged people vote / has urged to vote / has urged people to vote 'Yes' in tomorrow's referendum on joining the European Union.

2 After Arthurs injured his knee last year, a number of specialists advised him to give up / advised to give up / advised him giving up football, but he is still playing as well as ever.

3 As we entered the art gallery, we were not asked to use / were asked not to use / were asked to not use flash photography.

4 Despite the likely opposition from local residents, the council has suggested widening / has suggested to widen / has suggested widen the main road going through the village.

5 A video recording from a security camera at the bank was used in Thomas's trial. It clearly showed pointing / showed him pointing / showed him to point a gun at the cashier.

6 If you have any questions, please write to me at the above address. I can't guarantee you to reply / guarantee to reply / guarantee you replying immediately, but I will certainly write back before the end of the month.

7 'You can lead a horse to water but you can't make it drink / make it to drink / make it drinking.' (a proverb)

8 We really appreciate you help / appreciate you helping / appreciate your helping us move house.

9 I've decided to look for a new job as I enjoy not sitting / don't enjoy to sit / don't enjoy sitting in front of a computer all day.

10 Now that Kevin has bought a house in Edinburgh, I will have to advertise for someone to share / advertise someone sharing / advertise someone to share my flat with me.

2 Complete these texts using each verb in the appropriate form. If necessary, add a preposition and/or object before the verb.

A be have sack steal talk

"I think it's fair to say that Jim Thompson wasn't liked in our company and when he was made sales manager, many of us objected to (1) ...be ...promoted. Over the next few weeks, things just got worse. When we walked past his office, we often heard (2) ................ to his friends on the phone. Then one of my colleagues caught (3) .................... some money from the cash box. Eventually, a group of us went to the Managing Director of the company and demanded (4) ..................... Thompson dismissed. But despite our objections, the MD said that he wasn't prepared (5) ..................... his own son. "

94
KEEPERS CRITICISED AFTER BEAR ESCAPE

When a bear broke out of its cage at Dudland Zoo last week and climbed a nearby tree, there wasn't much the zookeepers could do. They failed (1) ................................... it with the large net they had, and then just had to wait (2) ................................... hungry. They put some honey, the bear's favourite food, inside its cage, and eventually the bear came back and began (3) ................................... it. Since then, there has been a lot of criticism of the zoo staff by local residents. Mo Baker, 41, of Sea Street said: 'I accept that keepers couldn't have done much to prevent (4) ................................... but they didn't even bother (5) ................................... the police.'

The director of Dudland Zoo has said that an enquiry into the escape is now under way.

---

Hi!

Do you remember (1) ................................... that you wanted a recent photo of me? Well, here it is. Yes, it's not very flattering, but you know how I hate (2) ................................... my photo taken. Can't wait (3) ................................... you again in July. Until then, you'll have to make (4) ................................... with this photo! Btw, let me know when your flight gets in and I'll get Jenny or Tom (5) ................................... you from the airport.

Must go. We're off to the cinema tonight, so I have to hurry (6) ................................... dinner ready. Will email again soon.

Love,

Luis
Complete the sentences with phrases from the box. Use a to-infinitive, bare infinitive or -ing form of the verb (including perfect, passive, and continuous form).

argue with him, be a successful businesswoman, get more exercise, be killed in the earthquake, take a couple of paracetamol, be here an hour ago, go at the weekend, pay for both of us, talk on my mobile.

1. If your headache doesn't go soon, try taking a couple of paracetamol.
2. The Department of Health has just launched a campaign to encourage people.
3. Around 2000 people are believed.
4. Ray's invited me over for a meal on Wednesday after work, but I'd prefer.
5. I didn't want to speak to James, so when he walked past I pretended.
6. He had such a bad temper that no one dared.
7. They say that Mark can be quite aggressive, but personally I've never heard him.
8. She started life as a teacher, but went on.
9. I hope nothing's happened to Emily. She should.
10. When the waiter brought the bill, Alice discovered she'd left her purse at home, so I ended up.
11. Now that Laura has gone away to college, I really miss.
12. Last week's problems with the computer system at the university are thought.
Exam practice

Reading

Read the following magazine article. In items 1–7 that follow, choose the best answer, A, B, C or D.

My life as a human speed bump

Giving up a car has not been quite the liberating experience that George Monbiot had hoped.

Seventeen years after giving up my car, I still feel like a second-class citizen. I am trying to do the right thing, but the United Kingdom just isn’t run for people like me. Take our bus services. My home city, Oxford, has invested massively in a park-and-ride scheme: buses shuttle people into the centre from car parks on the periphery. At first I thought this was a great idea. Now, having stood for what must amount to weeks at bus stops, watching the full double deckers go by every couple of minutes without stopping, I realise it’s not just the roads which have been monopolised by drivers, but also the public transport system.

Or take the bike lanes. Most consist of lines painted on the road where it is wide and safe, which disappear as soon as it becomes narrow and dangerous. One of them, in Oxford, has been gravelled, which shows that the people who designed them have never ridden a bicycle. When we asked for a bike lane on one of the city’s busiest streets, the council chose instead to narrow the street and widen the pavements. In the hope that the bicycles would slow down the cars. The cyclists, perversely reluctant to become human speed bumps, started travelling down the pavement.

Now there is almost nowhere reserved for people like me. Out of political cowardice, councils and the police have given up enforcing the law. Preventing people from parking on the pavement would mean cutting the number of parking places, as the streets are otherwise too narrow. Though they cannot complete a sentence without using the words “sustainable development”, this action seems impossible for our councillors to contemplate. In one part of Oxford they have solved the problem by painting parking places on the pavement. Since my daughter was born, and I have started pushing a pram, I have been forced to walk in the middle of the road. In one respect this makes sense: the pavements are so badly maintained that she will only sleep when she’s being pushed down the smooth grey carpet laid out for the cars.

My problem is that by seeking to reduce my impact on the planet, I joined a political minority that is diminishing every year. As car ownership increases, its only remaining members are a handful of eccentrics like me, the very poor and those not competent to drive. None of these groups wield political power. Our demands are counter-ascensional, and therefore of little interest to either politicians or the media.

Now, to my horror, I find I am beginning to question even the environmental impact of my 17 years of abstinence. It is true that my own carbon emissions have been suppressed. It is also true that if everyone did the same thing the total saving would be enormous. The problem is that, in the absence of regulation, traffic expands to fill the available space. By refusing to own a car I have merely opened up road space for other people, who tend to drive more fuel-hungry models than I would have chosen. We can do little to reduce our impacts on the environment if the government won’t support us.

There are some compensations, however. About three or four times a year I hire a car. When I stop at motorway service stations, I am struck by the staggering levels of obesity; it appears to be far more prevalent there than on trains or coaches. People who take public transport must at least walk to the bus stop. The cyclists among us keep fit without even noticing.

Being without a car in Oxford has forced me to embed myself in my home town. It throws me into contact with far more people than I would otherwise meet. There are a couple of routes which make cycling a real pleasure: the towpath along the Thames, for example, takes me most of the way to the station. But overall, as far as self-interest is concerned, I would struggle to claim that giving up my car was a wholly positive decision.
1. The writer's view of the Oxford park-and-ride scheme is that
   A. the large volume of cars prevents it from operating effectively.
   B. it has been an unqualified success.
   C. it has suffered from insufficient investment.
   D. it has become too popular.

2. The writer thinks that cyclists started travelling down the pavement in one of Oxford’s busiest streets because
   A. the council put speed bumps in this street.
   B. the pavement is very wide.
   C. there is no bike lane in this street.
   D. in the bike lane cyclists are too close to cars.

3. In what way does the writer believe that Oxford city council has shown ‘political cowardice’?
   A. It is reluctant to prevent cars parking on pedestrian areas.
   B. It doesn’t want cyclists on the city’s roads.
   C. It has narrowed some roads to discourage cyclists from using them.
   D. It has a policy of sustainable development.

4. According to the writer, the ‘political minority’ that he is part of
   A. is becoming poorer.
   B. has little political influence.
   C. consists of people who can’t drive.
   D. includes people who act in a strange way.

5. In paragraph 5, the writer suggests that the effect of his actions has been to
   A. discourage the government from giving support.
   B. lower maintenance standards for pavements.
   C. create more room on the road for other cars.
   D. encourage others to drive bigger cars.

6. The writer’s observations at motorway service stations suggest to him that
   A. car drivers are more overweight than public transport users.
   B. people who own cars are thinner than people who hire them.
   C. people who use public transport don’t get enough exercise.
   D. cyclists ride bikes in order to keep fit.

7. According to the writer, being without a car in Oxford
   A. has been a completely positive experience.
   B. has increased the number of people he knows.
   C. has forced him to stay at home more.
   D. has been a complete mistake.
Grammar focus task

These are extracts from the text. Without looking back, fill in the gaps with either a bare infinitive, to-infinitive or -ing form of one of the following verbs.

cut do enforce narrow push question reduce travel

I am trying (1) .................................................. the right thing, but the United Kingdom just isn’t run for people like me.

When we asked for a bike lane on one of the city’s busiest streets, the council chose instead (2) .................................................. the street and widen the pavements, in the hope that the bicycles would slow down the cars. The cyclists, perversely reluctant to become human speed bumps, started (3) .................................................. down the pavement.

Out of political cowardice, councils and the police have given up (4) .................................................. the law. Preventing people from parking on the pavement would mean (5) .................................................. the number of parking places, as the streets are otherwise too narrow.

Since my daughter was born, and I have started (6) .................................................. a pram, I have been forced to walk in the middle of the road.

My problem is that by seeking (7) .................................................. my impact on the planet, I joined a political minority that is diminishing every year.

Now, to my horror, I find I am beginning (8) .................................................. even the environmental impact of my 17 years of abstinence.

In which of these would it be possible to use either form? ..................................................

Writing

Each year, senior citizens from the local community are invited to look around your college, to meet and be entertained by students, and to have refreshments. After this year’s visit you were asked to write an article for the college newsletter. Tell readers about the event and encourage other students to get involved next year. Use the information in the programme and the quotations from some of the visitors to write your article.

Senior Citizens’ Visit July 15th

Programme

2.00 Visitors arrive. Welcome speech from Principal
2.00-2.30 Guided tour of college by students
2.30-3.30 Concert by students (music, drama, dance)
3.30-4.30 Coffee / tea & cakes. Students and senior citizens in groups
4.30 End of visit
Excellent! Hope we can come for a longer visit next year. Could tour groups be smaller?

The entertainment was superb. The dancing, in particular, was very professional. Rock band a bit noisy, though.

Lovely to talk to young people about their lives. They were very interested in what life was like for us when we were young, too.

The cakes made by the students were first class.

Write your article in 180-220 words.

Writing hints

This task gives you the chance to practise using verbs followed by either an -ing form or a to-infinitive:

- We can't wait to come back!
- We enjoyed hearing about their experience.
- Some might have to be used with an object:
- We appreciated them looking after us.
- We encouraged the visitors to join in.
Relative clauses 1
defining and non-defining relative clauses; relative pronouns; other words beginning relative clauses; prepositions in relative clauses

A  Context listening

You are going to hear part of a commentary about the story of radio from an audioguide in a museum of science and technology. Before you listen, look at these pictures. What do you think the commentary is about?

a  [Image of vacuum tubes]
b  [Image of Hertz's experiment]
c  [Image of a person]
d  [Image of wireless telegraph]
e  [Image of a person]

2  Listen to the commentary. Number the pictures in the order they are mentioned.

3  Listen again and fill in the gaps.
1  He devised an experiment ................. in which ................. a spark jumped across a gap in a metal ring when a sparking coil was held a few metres away.
2  For most people, however, it is the Italian Guglielmo Marconi ......................... name is mainly associated with the development of radio.
3  The first public demonstration of the power of radio came in 1901, ......................... Marconi announced that he had received a transmission from across the Atlantic.
4  There are just a few of the 'wireless telegraphs' the factory produced left in the world, an example ......................... you can see in Case 2.
5  Radio waves could not carry speech until a method had been developed ......................... the low-frequency waves produced in a microphone could be combined with high-frequency radio waves.
6  In Britain, the popularity of radio increased until 1952, ......................... four out of five households owned one.

4  What do the words you have written refer to?
1  He devised an experiment ................. in which ................. a spark jumped across a gap in a metal ring when a sparking coil was held a few metres away.

101
1 Defining and non-defining relative clauses

START POINT
The old photograph that you can see ahead of you shows Marconi at Signal Hill. (defining relative clause)
The story of radio probably begins with Heinrich Hertz, who was the first to produce radio waves in a laboratory. (non-defining relative clause)
Relative clauses give more information about someone or something referred to in the main clause.
Defining relative clauses specify which or which type of person or thing we mean.
Non-defining relative clauses simply add extra information about a noun.

We put a relative clause as close as possible to the noun it refers to:
There are just a few of the 'wireless telegraphs' the factory produced left in the world, rather than
There are just a few of the 'wireless telegraphs' left in the world that the factory produced.
Some relative clauses refer back to the whole idea in the previous clause, not just the previous noun. Most of these begin with which:
The owner of the old radio claims that it is in excellent condition - which is obviously not the case.

2 Relative pronouns
Adding information about people
● defining relative clause (subject pronoun):
There were many people who doubted that Marconi would ever succeed.
(Or informally: There were many people that doubted ...)

● defining relative clause (object pronoun):
Augusto Righi was an Italian physicist whom Marconi studied with in the 1890s.
(Or informally: an Italian physicist (that) Marconi studied with.)
(Very formally: Augusto Righi was an Italian physicist whom Marconi studied with.)

● non-defining relative clause (subject pronoun):
The story of radio probably begins with Heinrich Hertz, who was the first to produce radio waves in a laboratory.

● non-defining relative clause (object pronoun):
Augusto Righi, who Marconi respected greatly, guided his research.
(Very formally: Augusto Righi, whom Marconi respected greatly, guided his research.)

△ Whom is now used only in very formal styles, mostly in writing.
Adding information about things or animals

- defining relative clause (subject pronoun):
  The invention that made this possible was the vacuum tube.
  More formally: The invention which made this possible ...

- defining relative clause (object pronoun):
  The model (that) you can see in Case 1 shows how this works.
  More formally: The model which you can see ...

- non-defining relative clause (subject and object pronoun):
  Marconi opened a ‘wireless telegraph’ factory in England, which employed around 50 people.
  Marconi’s ‘wireless telegraph’ factory, which he set up in England, employed around 50 people.
  ▲ Although some people use that here, it is grammatically incorrect and should be avoided in written exams.

In both defining and non-defining relative clauses we can often use who, that or which with collective nouns referring to groups of people (e.g. company, government, orchestra):

The company who/which/that made the first radios was set up by Marconi.

3 Other words beginning relative clauses

We often use when after a noun referring to a time, or words such as day, period, time:

The first public demonstration of the power of radio came in 1901, when Marconi announced that he had received a transmission from across the Atlantic.

More formally, we can often use a preposition + which:

It was a period during which they met very infrequently. Or ... a period when ...

Less formally, we can use *that or no relative pronoun in defining relative clauses:

I can still remember the time (that) I first watched television. Or ... the time when ...

We often use why after reason:

You can probably guess the reason why radio began to lose some of its popularity. Or informally ...

... *the reason (that) radio began to lose ...

We often use where after a noun referring to a location, or words such as case, condition, example, experiment, instance, point, process, situation, system:

Move now to room 36, where you can find information and displays.

Marconi’s goal was to find a system where telegraphic messages could be transmitted.

More formally, we can use preposition + which:

He devised an experiment in which a spark jumped across a gap in a metal ring.

We use whereby (or a preposition + which) in formal contexts to mean ‘by which way or method’:

Technology is the process whereby/ by which humans modify nature to meet their needs and wants. Or less formally ... the process where ...

We use whose + noun to talk about something belonging to or associated with a person, town, country, or organisation:

For most people, however, it is the Italian Guglielmo Marconi whose name is mainly associated with the development of radio.
In formal uses, noun * of which * can sometimes replace whose * noun:
Project Geneva is a computing project, the purpose of which is to analyse very large amounts of data on environmental change. or Project Geneva is a computing project whose purpose is to analyse large amounts of data on environmental change.

4 Prepositions in relative clauses

A preposition usually comes before the relative pronoun in formal styles:
In 1901 Marconi made the announcement for which he will always be remembered.

After a preposition we usually use whom rather than who in formal styles:
Augusto Righi, with whom Marconi studied in the 1890s, was a physicist.
Augusto Righi, whom Marconi studied with in the 1890s, was a physicist.

A preposition usually comes later in the clause in less formal styles:
In 1901, Marconi made the announcement which he will always be remembered for.
Augusto Righi, who Marconi studied with in the 1890s, was a physicist.

We can use of which and of whom (or very informally of who) after all, both, each, many, most, neither, part, several, some, a number (e.g. one, two, the first, the second, half, a third) and superlatives:
Radio entertainers, many of whom became household names, were highly paid.

We can use a preposition, usually from, with where and when:
Marconi set up a transmission station in Cornwall, from where the first transatlantic radio message was sent.

A number of common prepositional phrases are used in non-defining relative clauses with which. These include: in which case, at / by which time, as a result of which:
In Britain, the popularity of radio increased until 1952, by which time four out of five households owned one.
C Grammar exercises

1 Match the sentence halves and join them with one of the words in the box.

when where whereby which whose why

1. The new factory will be located in an area.
2. The photograph reminded him of the time.
3. Any complaints should be sent to the Broadcasting Regulator.
4. The journalists have reached an agreement.
5. I couldn’t see any reason.
6. The university has introduced an initiative in

a. job it is to maintain standards in television programmes.
b. he used to live in New York.
c. talented students can complete their degree in only two years.
d. Maude should be offended by my letter.
e. there are high levels of unemployment.
f. they will be paid for a minimum 35-hour working week.

1. The new factory will be located in an area where there are high levels of unemployment.

2 Underline all the possible relative pronouns that can complete each sentence. (--- means that the sentence is correct with no relative pronoun.) If there is more than one possible answer, decide which one(s) are less formal.

1. The new drug should be of benefit for anyone ......................... suffers from severe hay fever.
   A who B - C which D that ‘that’ is less formal than ‘who’ here.

2. Did the committee ..................... took the decision on the new housing estate meet local protesters?
   A - B which C who D whom

3. The wallpaper, ...................... is available in a number of colours, is based on an eighteenth-century design.
   A which B that C - D who

4. Howard Stevens was one of the artists .................. Carlson worked with in his youth.
   A whom B - C which D who
5 Conservationists have called for a programme to eliminate the rats .................are killing seabirds on the island.
   A that  B which  C who  D whom
6 A government spokesperson, .................. did not wish to be named, said that there had been a major disagreement between the Prime Minister and the Finance Minister.
   A which  B that  C who  D -
7 Were the coins ................. he dug up worth a lot of money?
   A who  B which  C that  D which 8 He was survived by his wife Mary Trotter, ................. he married in 1936.
   A whom  B that  C -  D who

3 Complete these sentences with an appropriate preposition.
1 There were many excellent matches in the World Cup, the best ......... which, in my view, was France against Brazil in the semi-final.
2 There were criticisms of the way ................. which the election was conducted.
3 Celebrations begin at nine o'clock, ................. which time a huge bonfire will be lit.
4 We climbed to the top of the mountain, ................. where it is possible to see three countries.
5 She has recently published a collection of short stories, most ................. which first appeared in the London Literary Magazine.
6 They showed enormous kindness to me, ................. which I will always be grateful.
7 We will soon notify you of the date ................. when the goods will be despatched.
8 He was married in 1253 to a woman named Purcelle, ................. whom nothing more is known.
9 The train drivers are threatening to strike next week, ................. which case I'll have to work from home.
10 We're trying to speed up the process ................. which decisions are made in the company.
Match information from A and B to write definitions of the words and phrases below. Use a relative clause in your definition.

A
- A political system.
- A Muslim doctor.
- A narrow piece of wood at the end of a swimming pool.
- A piece of equipment like a lift.
- Housing for old and ill people.
- Women's narrow trousers.
- An early period in human history.
- A person or company.

B
- They end just below the knee.
- People can move food in it between the floors of a building.
- People made tools and weapons only out of stone then.
- Their job is to organise the sending of goods from one place to another.
- Help can be given there if it is needed.
- Parties are represented in parliament according to the number of people who vote for them.
- They use traditional methods to treat people.
- People can dive from it.

1. Sheltered accommodation is housing for old and ill people in which / where help can be given if it is needed.
2. A diving board is
3. Capri pants are
4. A shipper is
5. A hakim is
6. A dumb waiter is
7. The Stone Age is
8. Proportional representation is
Use of English

Origami

Origami is the art of paper folding, the aim of which is to make objects using folds and creases. In general, these objects begin with a square sheet of paper, sides may be different colours, and this is usually folded without cutting. The origins of origami are disputed, believing that it began in Japan, others that it originated in China, from it was taken to Japan in the seventh century. It may also have developed independently in the West. is undisputed is that it reached its greatest development in Japan. Origami was mostly a traditional art carried for amusement, but it has also been put practical use, such as producing boxes, mats and umbrellas. It is also used in studying the principles design. Probably the most famous modern origami artist was Akira Yoshizawa, died in 2005. He pioneered origami as creative art, as well as devising a symbolic method of representing paper folding. This allows enthusiasts worldwide to copy his models from books, if they do not speak Japanese. ___, all, he created more than 50,000 models, only a few hundred designs, which were shown in his books. In 1998, he was one of the exhibitors at the Louvre in Paris for was probably the greatest exhibition of origami seen.
Grammar focus task

Without looking back at the text, write the two sentences as one, including a relative clause.

1 Origami is the art of paper folding.
The aim of origami is to make objects using folds and creases.

2 In general, these objects begin with a square sheet of paper.
The sides of these sheets of paper may be different colours.

3 Some believe that origami originated in China.
   It was taken to Japan in the seventh century.

4 Probably the most famous modern origami artist was Akira Yoshizawa.
   Akira Yoshizawa died in 2005.

5 Akira Yoshizawa created more than 50,000 models.
   Only a few hundred designs were shown in his books.

Writing

At a recent meeting of your college student committee, there was a discussion of fundraising for good causes. Here is an extract from the minutes of the meeting.

5 Any other business

5.1 Daphne Jones noted that college students raised over £4,500 for a number of good causes last year (including Oxfam, UNICEF, people with visual impairment, homeless people), but that the maximum raised for any one good cause was only £520. She suggested that next year one particular good cause should be identified, and all funds raised should go to this.
5.2 After discussion it was decided to ask students to write proposals. Students should:
- identify a good cause and say why they would like the college to support it
- suggest what fundraising activities might be done
- say what part they will play in the fundraising process.

The college student committee will select the best proposal and choose the student to be in charge of fundraising.

You decide to write a proposal for them. Write your proposal in 300-350 words.

Writing hints

The task gives you the chance to practise using nouns followed by relative clauses:
- a company which might agree to sponsor us ...
- The reason why I am suggesting this charity is ...
- a charity, the aim of which is ..., a fundraising activity in which ...

Useful language
- a contribution, a sponsored event / walk / swim, sponsorship, proceeds from the sale, a charity event / concert / appeal
Relative clauses 2
participle clauses; to-infinitive clauses; adjective phrases; prepositional phrases

A  Context listening

1 You are going to hear an interview with a food photographer. Which of these items do you think she uses in her work and what for?

2 Listen and check whether you were right.

3 Listen again and write what the speakers actually said.
1 When I was quite young - 10 or 11 - I started using an old camera which belonged to my father.
2 It was easy to find a photographer who wanted to take an assistant for no pay!
3 She was really the first person who encouraged me to take up food photography.
4 I was the youngest person in the competition who won any of the major categories.
5 The biggest problem is the heat that is produced by the lights.
6 The food in photographs which are used to illustrate cookbooks and magazine articles isn’t always entirely authentic.
7 Personally, I prefer food that is not made of cardboard!
8 I generally have with me a spray bottle which contains glycerine mixed with water.
9 We use cotton wool balls that have been soaked in water.

4 Look at your answers for Exercise 3. In which did the speakers use:
1 a present participle (-ing form)? ..........
2 a past participle (-ed form)? .............
3 a to-infinitive? .............
Grammar

1 Participle clauses

START POINT

I started using an old camera belonging to my father.

The food in photographs used to illustrate cookbooks and magazine articles isn’t always entirely authentic. And then we put in some material to substitute for the food.

We can often reduce a defining relative clause so that it begins with a present participle (-ing), past participle (-ed), or to-infinitive. Usually we do this to sound less formal.

- -ing clauses correspond to defining relative clauses with an active verb, and -ed clauses correspond to defining relative clauses with a passive verb:

  The editor working on the cookbook or magazine is often there, too. (≠ The editor who is working ...)

  A challenge facing food photographers is how to keep food looking fresh. (≠ A challenge which faces ...)

  The big problem is the heat produced by the lights. (≠ ... the heat that is produced ...)

  Personally, I prefer food not made of cardboard! (≠ ... food which is not made of cardboard.)

verbs which are not normally used in continuous forms may be used in reduced relative -ing clauses. We use:

  This spray bottle contains glycerine mixed with water. (not ... is-containing ...)

However, we can say:

  I generally have with me a spray bottle containing glycerine and water.

other verbs like this include belong to, comprise, consist of, constitute, equal, own, possess, resemble, result from, surround.

It is not always possible to use a reduced form of a relative clause.

- we can’t use a reduced form when the first verb in the relative clause is a modal verb:

  A technique that might be used in photographing meat is to use a glycerine spray.

  Food that can’t be frozen is particularly difficult to photograph.

- we can’t use an -ing reduced form when we are talking about a single, completed action.

  Compare:

  Sometimes the chef who created the dish in their restaurant comes to the studio. (not ... the-chef-creating-the-dish ...)

  The chef preparing the food today works in a well-known restaurant. (≠ The chef who is preparing the food today ...)

In written English particularly we can use a reduced relative clause beginning with - -ing -ed to talk about a future event:

- being + -ed to emphasise that a situation is continuing or will happen in the future:

  There was a major photography competition being held in Paris. (≠ ... which was being held in Paris)

  The work being shown in next month’s exhibition is all by young French photographers. (≠ The work which will be shown ...)

- to be + -ed to talk about a future event:

  A food stylist prepares the food to be photographed. (≠ ... which will be photographed)
Reduced relative clauses can also be used instead of non-defining relative clauses, particularly in written English:

Her photographs, taken in her studio in California, have appeared in magazines across the world.
(... which were taken in her studio in California ...)

My parents – not having much money – rarely took us to restaurants. (... who didn’t have much money ...)

These are usually written between commas or dashes.

2 to-infinitive clauses

We often use a to-infinitive clause instead of a relative clause after:

- a superlative + noun (phrase):

  I was the youngest person in the competition to win any of the major categories.

- the first / second etc. + noun (phrase):

  She was really the first person to encourage me to take up food photography.

- the only / the next / the last / another / one + noun (phrase):

  By the time we photograph the food, it’s completely cold. The only thing to do in that case is to create steam from elsewhere.

to-infinitive clauses can sometimes replace relative clauses with modal verbs:

We have a number of techniques to help us.

Often we can use an active or passive to-infinitive clause with little difference in meaning:

The only thing to do in that case is to create steam from elsewhere, or The only thing to be done in that case ...

3 Adjective phrases

Adjectives and adjective phrases can be used after nouns with a meaning similar to a relative clause. Often the adjective is followed by a to-infinitive or a preposition, or is used with an adverb:

It was easy to find a photographer willing to take an assistant for no pay! (a photographer who was willing to take an assistant for no pay)

It’s a job difficult for even a skilled photographer. (a job which is difficult for even a skilled photographer)

Glycerine’s a liquid, completely colourless, that’s often used to sweeten food. (a liquid which is completely colourless)

A few adjectives (e.g. affected, available, present) can be used alone after a noun with a meaning similar to a relative clause:

We use cardboard or any other material available, or ... material which is available.
(See Unit 7, B3.)

4 Prepositional phrases

We can give additional information about a thing or person using a prepositional phrase. Often these have a meaning similar to a relative clause:

The vegetables around that succulent piece of meat could be made from plastic.
(The vegetables which are around ...)
C Grammar exercises

1 Match sentences 1-7 with sentences a-g. Write two new sentences using the same information. In the first use a relative clause, and in the second use a reduced relative -ing or -ed clause.

1 Some jewellery has been stolen from Buckingham Palace.
2 The Internet is bringing about a degree of cultural change.
3 All the passengers have been released from hospital.
4 People can expect to pay over 100 euros.
5 Our teacher came hurrying into the room.
6 Is that woman your sister?
7 Barton Green will be the location of the new sports stadium.

a Such change has not been seen for centuries.
b It is situated five miles from the city centre.
c They were injured in the train crash.
d It belongs to the Queen.
e They want tickets for the cup final.
f She is playing the piano.
g She was carrying a huge pile of textbooks.

1+2
Some jewellery which / that belongs to the Queen has been stolen from Buckingham Palace. Some jewellery belonging to the Queen has been stolen from Buckingham Palace.

2 Use the information in the boxes to complete these newspaper extracts. Use reduced relative clauses beginning with an -ing or -ed form, being + -ed or to be + -ed. If a reduced relative clause is not possible, use a relative clause + relative pronoun (e.g. which).

1 The government has brought in new legislation affecting Britain's 5.4 million dog owners. From next year all dogs will have to be tagged with tiny electronic chips

............................................

They will hold information about the dog's owner.

It will affect Britain's 5.4 million dog owners.

2 The inquiry into the wreck of the oil tanker Patricia, has produced its final report. The report, .............................................., is thought to show that the captain was mainly responsible for the collision with a smaller vessel.

..............................................

It sank off the south-west coast in 2007.

It is to be published tomorrow.

3 The road bridge .............................................. will not now be completed until next January, nearly four years behind schedule, after yet another accident on the site. A section of the bridge .............................................. fell from the crane .............................................., causing major damage to parts already completed.

..............................................

It is being built across the River Neem at Walden.

It was being lowered into position.

They were lifting it.
4 Demonstrators against the play Global Strife at the Crest Theatre in London, claiming it to be ‘anti-religious’, have succeeded in preventing it being performed. The theatre management, cancelled last night’s performance. On Thursday, a number of demonstrators caused damage to the theatre and terrified members of the audience.

5 Researchers in New Zealand are developing a new drug. A group of 20 elderly people were given the drug over a two-year period, and results showed a significant slowing down in memory decline. The drug, will now be tested on a larger group before being made more widely available.

3 Complete the sentences with phrases from the box. Use a to-infinitive clause, an adjective phrase or a prepositional phrase. Make changes and additions as necessary.

- ring today about the car
- very similar to Romanian
- pass the French exam
- take part in the London Marathon
- would be happy to help out
- announce large-scale redundancies
- you should contact the human resources manager
- look at the environmental effects of nuclear power
- the south side of the city
- orbit the Earth

1 In 1962, John Glenn became the first American to orbit the Earth.

2 If you want to find out if there any job vacancies in the company, the person should contact the human resources manager.

3 The government has set up yet another enquiry.

4 It was really expensive living in the centre, so we’ve just bought a flat.

5 You won’t have to organise the party yourself. I’m sure there’ll be a lot of people.

6 At 91, Abraham Weintraub is the oldest competitor ever.

7 The state language of Moldova is Moldovan, a language.

8 Out of my entire class, I was the only student.
9 With fewer cars being sold around the world, Nisda has become the latest car company.
10 You're the tenth person. I'm sorry, but it's already been sold.

4 Underline the eleven relative clauses in this newspaper article. Then, where possible, rewrite the relative clauses as reduced relative clauses.

Monitors to cut home electricity use

Monitors which show the real-time cost of electricity use are to be provided free of charge to homes across the UK in an effort to slow down climate change. Under the new government proposals, from next year electricity suppliers will have to provide the devices – which have cut power use by up to 6.5% in Canada – to all customers who want them. Domestic appliances which are left on unnecessarily are estimated to waste £500 million of electricity a year.

Traditional electricity meters are usually kept out of sight in cupboards. However, the monitors, which use microchip technology and a digital display, are intended to be placed in full view as a constant reminder of the electricity that is being used in a house at any given moment.

The Environment Secretary said: 'People want to do their bit to help protect the environment as well as save money, and visual display units that are provided free of charge will help people do both.' A spokeswoman for the Electricity Consumer Council said it supported any plan that would give customers access to free monitors. The shadow environment secretary said: 'Although it is an interesting and welcome measure, there are still many details that should be considered, not least the reliability of these meters.'

However, the Energy Retail Council has criticised the proposal, saying that it did not go far enough. In a statement, their chief executive said: 'We had hoped the government would recommend the introduction of 'smart meters' – which communicate electricity consumption to both the customer and the energy supplier – rather than meters that are only able to do half the job.'

1 showing the real-time cost of electricity use
2 electricity use
3
4
5
6
7
8 9 10
11
The letter

The letter came one Saturday at the end of April, when Imogen Doody was retrieving balls from the canteen roof. This was part of her job as caretaker, and the whole process represented an ongoing battle between her and the entire male population of the school. She knew they threw them up on purpose, but she had to remain one step ahead. Once she had the balls in her possession, she could confiscate them for a fortnight. It was a hot day, even hotter on the roof, so she was anxious to get down as soon as possible.

She could see the postman walking up the path from the main school building. Patrick Saunders, an odd man - the children called him Postman Pat. He ambled and stopped to talk to anyone who was interested, which meant his delivery times were unreliable. She remained where she was on the edge of the flat roof, not wanting to be seen, unwilling to talk to him. From her high position, she could see that he was nearly bald, and there were clusters of dark freckles on his head, brown against the unconvincing wisps of his pale hair. She didn’t like this glimpse of his frailty. It made her feel sorry for him, and she knew she wouldn’t be able to express that sympathy.

He rang twice, and kept shifting his bag from one shoulder to the other while he waited. Doody resented this. Why should she have to worry about his aching back? He chose to be a postman.

She threw down a ball - orange, soggy, in need of new air - and he jumped. He squinted at her through the fingers of his free hand, and she was pleased that he couldn’t see her properly.

"Why are you ringing the bell?"

"I’ve got this."

She waved a letter at her. "You can put letters through the letter-box. Get it? Letters - letter-boxes."

He shrugged and turned away. "Please yourself. It’s registered post."

"Hang on, she called, and came down the ladder. He was waiting for her at the bottom.

"It’s not addressed to you."

"Doodly scowled at him. She put her hands into her pockets and pulled out a handful of small balls, multi-coloured and very bouncy. She dropped them, and they scattered in all directions. Their bouncing continued until they settled cheerfully into drains, corners, dips in the tarmac, delighted with their miraculous escape. So you ring the doorbell twice to give me a letter that you’re not going to give me?"

"It’s your address, but it says Imogen Hayes."

She tried to take it from him, but he moved it out of her reach. "That’s me. How many Imogens do you know?"

"So why’s the name different? Is it your undercover name?" He looked pleased with himself.

"Yes," she says. "I’m a Latin sleeper. Waiting to be activated. Perhaps that’s what you’ve got there. My orders: Anything would be more interesting than the reality of her present life. She reached for the letter, but he moved it away again."

Agner was brewing inside her; bubbling away ominously, but she wanted the letter, so she made herself speak in a calm manner. "It’s my maiden name. I was Imogen Hayes a long time ago. Now I’m Imogen Doody, Mrs Doody to you."

He gave in. He was looking very uncomfortable, with beads of sweat on his top lip, his feet shuffling. She searched the letter out of his hand and he didn’t resist. "You have to sign for it."

She took his pen and signed the electronic screen he put in front of her. "Should she offer him a cold drink?"

If he’d done his job properly, he wouldn’t have been standing so long in the hot sun.

"Thanks!" he shouted at his retreating back. He didn’t turn round. He let himself out of the gate and plodded heavily past the blue iron railings of the school. He was stubborn, but too pedestrian for a real argument.

Doodly was pleased to have had the last word, and the fact that it had been a gracious word made her feel even better. She decided to make herself a glass of lemonade before opening the letter.
1. In the first paragraph we learn that Imogen
   A. resents a certain aspect of her job.
   B. secretly intends to throw the balls away.
   C. will need to return the balls to their owners eventually.
   D. is upset by the attitude of the boys at the school.

2. Imogen feels sorry for the postman when she sees him coming up the path because
   A. he is showing signs of age.
   B. he walks slowly.
   C. she thinks he is lonely.
   D. the children tease him.

3. Why does the postman find it hard to see Imogen when he looks up?
   A. His backache makes it difficult for him to stand up straight.
   B. His eyesight is poor.
   C. She is hiding from him on the roof.
   D. The sky behind her is very bright.

4. The postman suggests that the surname on the letter is Hayes rather than Doody because
   A. Imogen is using a false name.
   B. the letter writer has made a mistake.
   C. Imogen changed her name when she married.
   D. Imogen has done something illegal.

5. Imogen decides not to offer the postman a cold drink because
   A. she wants to open the letter quickly.
   B. she is annoyed that he made her sign for the letter.
   C. she doesn’t want to talk to him any longer.
   D. she convinces herself that he doesn’t deserve it.

6. The writer suggests that the reason the postman avoids an argument with Imogen is that
   A. he wants to get out of the heat.
   B. he knows he wouldn’t win.
   C. he is angry with Imogen.
   D. he is late in delivering his letters.

7. What do we learn about Imogen from the text?
   A. She doesn’t like to talk about her feelings.
   B. She finds it difficult to express her feelings in a positive way.
   C. She is satisfied with her life at present.
   D. She is reluctant to get into conversation with people.
Grammar focus task

Without looking back at the text, can you remember exactly how the relative clauses in these extracts were reduced?

1. She could see the postman, who was walking up the path from the main school building.
   (She could see the postman walking up the path from the main school building.)

2. ... there were clusters of dark freckles on his head, which were brown against the unconvincing wisps of his pale hair.

3. She put her hands into her pockets and pulled out a handful of small balls that were multi-coloured and very bouncy.

4. I'm a Latvian sleeper who is waiting to be activated.
   (Note: A 'sleeper' here means a spy who only becomes active a long time after they are put in place by their organisation or country.)

Writing

The tourist board of your country is preparing a new brochure for overseas visitors which includes a section with the title Holidays by the sea. You have been asked to contribute a piece about a seaside holiday resort. You should include information about:

- what people can do during a holiday there
- types of accommodation available
- the advantages of a seaside holiday over one in the countryside or a city.

Write your contribution to a brochure in 220-260 words.

Writing hints

This task gives you the chance to practise using participle clauses to give more information about nouns:

- a beach situated nearby, events held every year, shops selling fresh fish, boats sailing past

Useful language:

- breathtaking, superb, glorious, magnificent; coastline, coastal scenery, estuary, windsurfing
Adverbial clauses
adverbial clauses including time clauses, contrast and concession clauses, reason clauses, purpose and result clauses

A Context listening

1 Sarah and Don are being interviewed about their eating habits. Before you listen, here are some definitions of words and phrases used in the interview. What do you think they are? Check your answers in the Key.
   1 Food with substances added to it to preserve it or to give it a new colour or taste.
   2 A meal cooked before you buy it so that you only have to heat it before eating.
   3 A combination of the correct quantities and sorts of food eaten every day.
   4 The process of getting the right sorts of food and drink in order to keep you healthy.

2 (a) Listen and complete the sentences 1–10 using the phrases a–j. Add a word or phrase to link each sentence.
   1 At the weekend I like to make something myself so as not to eat processed food all...
   2 We'll usually go out to eat .................................................................
   3 She also talked to me about the food she made ........................................
   4 If I get hungry, I'll eat some fruit, .......................................................en
   5 I don't eat much for breakfast ...................................................................
   6 I have to get out by 7.30 ...........................................................................
   7 Sometimes I get up in the night and have a snack, ........................................
   8 I was absolutely exhausted ........................................................................
   9 I don't have the opportunity to go shopping ..............................................
   10 It's very hard to put a healthy diet into practice ...........................................

   a at school I'd buy a bar of chocolate       f I'm always in a rush b none of us likes cooking                 g I had to run for the bus yesterday
   c I know it's bad for me                   h I'd learn about diet and nutrition d I know all about the theory             i I'm working e catch my bus                              j eat-processed-food all the time

3 Look at the word or phrase you wrote in sentence 5 in Exercise 2. What other word or phrase you wrote has a similar meaning? What about in sentence 7?
B Grammar

1 Adverbial clauses: general

START POINT
I seem to eat less healthily as I get older.
Although I'd like to eat more fresh food, I don't have time to prepare meals in the evenings.
An adverbial clause is a type of subordinate clause, linked to a main clause. It adds extra information to the main clause about such things as time, reason or purpose. Most adverbial clauses begin with a conjunction (e.g. as, although) and can come before or after the main clause.

An adverbial clause must be connected to a main clause; we can't use it as a separate sentence:
I don't eat much for breakfast because I'm always in a rush.
(not I don't eat much for breakfast. Because I'm always in a rush.)
We only use one conjunction to connect an adverbial clause and a main clause:
(not Because I'm always in a rush, so I don't eat breakfast.)

2 Time clauses

We don't use will in a clause with a time conjunction (e.g. before, until, when) to talk about a future action or an action that is completed before another in the main clause:
I'd like to have something more substantial before I leave home in the morning. (not ... before I will have home in the morning.)
When I've written up the research, I'll let you have a copy. (not When I will have written up the research, ...)

START POINT
I generally have a sandwich and a packet of crisps as / when / while I'm sitting at my desk.
We can use as, when or while to talk about something that happens when something else takes place.
As can sometimes mean either 'because' or 'during the time that':
I opened the window as I was cooking. (e ... because I was cooking or ... while I was cooking)

We use when (not as or while) at the beginning of an adverbial clause which:
- refers to a point in time:
  I remember once I was eating some sweets in my bedroom when my mother walked in.
- describes the circumstances in which the event in the main clause happens:
  When I get home late, I take a ready meal out of the freezer.
- refers to a past period of our lives:
  When I was younger, my mother used to keep an eye on what I ate.
- talks about 'every time' something happens:
  When / Whenever I've had one of those ready meals, I feel hungry by the time I go to bed.
We prefer as or when to say that when one thing changes, another thing changes at the same time:
Of course, as I put on weight, it gets more and more difficult to exercise. (rather than ... when / while I put on weight)

We use as or when to highlight the moment that something happens:
As / When I turned the corner, the bus was just pulling up and I had to run to catch it. (not While I turned ...)

3 Contrast and concession clauses

We use although, or, less formally, though to say that there is a surprising contrast between what happens in the main clause and the adverbial clause:
Sometimes I get up in the night and have a snack, although I know it's bad for me.

or to introduce a clause (a concession clause) that suggests the opposite of the main clause:
Although I don't enjoy cooking, I prepare a meal for myself every evening.

We can use though at the end of a clause:
In some ways, it's better now, though. (not ... it's better now, although.)

We can use while with a meaning similar to although. The while clause can't follow the main clause:
Although I'd like to spend more time over breakfast, it's just impossible. or While I'd like to spend ... (While is usually more formal than although.)

We can use despite the fact that / in spite of the fact that or despise / in spite of -ing with a similar meaning to although:
Despite the fact that I know all about the theory of a healthy diet, it's very hard to put it into practice.
In spite of (my) knowing ...
In spite of (my) knowing ...

We can use while or whereas to say that there is a contrast with something in the main clause. The while / whereas clause may come before or after the main clause:
If I got hungry at school, I'd buy a chocolate bar, whereas nowadays I'll eat some fruit. or ... while nowadays ...
Whereas nowadays I'll eat some fruit, at school I'd buy a chocolate bar. or While nowadays ...
We can use whilst as a more formal alternative to while.

(See Unit 14, B3 for even if and even though.)
4 Reason clauses

START POINT

I must be eating too much because I've been getting a bit overweight recently.

Because it's so easy to buy ready meals from the supermarket, it makes me quite lazy.

I have to get out by 7.30, so I really don't have time.

A very common way of giving a reason or explanation for something, particularly in speech, is to use an adverbial clause with because. A clause beginning so is also often used to express a similar meaning.

Most recipes in magazines are no use to me because of the time they take.

The preposition because can also be used before a noun or noun phrase to give a reason for something.

Formal alternatives to because are as, since, and for:

She made a particular effort because / since / as I was often ill as a child.

She taught me with great patience for I was often inattentive.

For is now considered old-fashioned.

Informal alternatives to because are seeing that and seeing as:

We'll usually go out to eat seeing that / as none of us likes cooking.

In formal contexts we can also use clauses beginning with inasmuch as (also written in as much as) and in that, which clarify what has been said by adding detail:

I'm quite a good cook inasmuch as I can easily follow most recipes, or ... in that I can follow most recipes.

I think that's true, in that I am more regularly then, or ... inasmuch as I am more regularly then.

5 Purpose and result clauses

To talk about the purpose of an action we can use in order / so as + to-infinitive:

I have to get out by 7.30 in order to catch my bus, or so as to catch ...

Informally, it is more common to use a to-infinitive to express the same meaning:

I have to get out by 7.30 to catch my train.

In negatives we prefer to use in order not / so as not + to-infinitive rather than not + to-infinitive:

I like to make something myself so as not to / in order not to eat processed food all the time.

However, in contrastive sentences we can use not + to-infinitive, but ... -to-infinitive:

I buy ready meals not to eat well, but to eat quickly; or

I buy ready meals not in order / so as to eat well, but in order / so as to eat quickly.

We also use in order that and so that to talk about a purpose:

She also talked to me about the food she made in order that I'd learn about diet and nutrition or less formally ... so (that) I'd learn about ...

We often use modal verbs after in order / so that:

It'll be interesting to read the results of the research so that I can see how typical my diet is.

She also talked to me about the food she made so that I'd learn about diet and nutrition.
C Grammar exercises

1. Complete the sentences with as, when or while. Give all correct or likely alternatives.
   1. You wouldn't think it now, but .......... when I was very young I used to have curly, brown hair.
   2. Did you see her hands shaking ............... she spoke? She must have been so nervous.
   3. It's more and more important for business people to speak foreign languages ............... business becomes increasingly international.
   4. How old were you ............... you got married?
   5. ............... the structure of the novel might at first appear chaotic, in fact it is very carefully organised.
   6. I was so tired last night, I must have gone to sleep ............... my head hit the pillow.
   7. ............... my children get older, I find they get even fussier about the food they eat.
   8. She always brings a bunch of flowers ............... she comes to visit.
   9. ............... I sat down to take my maths exam, I realised I'd forgotten to bring my calculator with me.
   10. Put the whole tomatoes into a saucepan of boiling water, switch off the heat, and drain after a few minutes. ............... they are cool enough to handle, peel them carefully.
   11. ............... the level of pesticides in the potatoes is well below the legal limit, the public have been advised to avoid eating them for the time being.

2. Match clauses 1–7 with clauses a–g, and write two new sentences, one beginning Although ... and the other using Despite ... -ing. Put the clauses in the more likely order.

   1. people were still swimming in the river
   2. sales of cigarettes have actually increased
   3. she fell heavily at the start of the race
   4. we were eventually only a few minutes late
   5. the alarm went off when the house was broken into
   6. we had never spoken to each other
   7. she helped a number of passengers out of the crashed coach

   a. nobody bothered to call the police
   b. we lived in the same village
   c. smoking is now banned in public spaces
   d. she was badly hurt herself
   e. we got lost on the way
   f. there were plenty of warning signs
   g. she went on to finish second
1. Although there were plenty of warning signs, people were still swimming in the river.

2. Despite there being plenty of warning signs, people were still swimming in the river.

3. Complete the sentences using a phrase from A and an ending from B.

A

- in order that
- so as not to
- in that
- seeing that

B

- she could get to the concert on time
- the front wheel is smaller than the back
- it's so poorly paid
- some broken tiles could be repaired
- damage its roots
- larger planes can land there
- she's so fit
- they are carnivorous
- be overheard

4. Choose the correct or more likely options in these texts.

A

Hello Alison

I couldn't contact you this (1) morning because / morning. Because we had a power cut here. Sorry.

Thanks for the invitation to lunch tomorrow. I'm not sure I'll be able to make it, (2) though / although. (3) In spite of that / In spite of the fact that we've got extra staff at work, we're struggling to meet the deadline to finish writing the software. This means I've got a huge amount of work to do (4) before I go / before I will go on holiday at the end of the week. I feel really guilty (5) seeing / seeing that this is the second time this year I've had to turn down your invitation.

Hope to see you in the near future.

Regards,

Ros
B
'I'm sorry I'm not here to take your call. Please leave a message after the tone and I'll get back to you as soon as I can.'

'Hello, Robert, it's Martha. I'm afraid I have to cancel our meeting tomorrow. My father's just phoned to say my mother's been taken ill. (1) Because of / Because it sounds quite serious, (2) I'll have to / so I'll have to take time off to go and see her. I may be away for a few days, but I'll have my laptop with me (3) while / while I'm there (4) so as I can / so that I can do some work. When (5) you will get / you get the chance, give me a ring and we'll sort out another time to meet. Bye for now.'

C
(1) Inasmuch as / Inasmuch that advertising is their major source of revenue, the mass media seek to appeal to as large an audience (with as much purchasing power) as possible. However, in recent years popular newspapers have had declining advertising income (2) despite the fact that / despite that sales have increased. They need, therefore, to find alternative sources of income (3) not to / in order not to fail as profit-making enterprises. One possibility is to offer competitions, which readers pay to enter. (4) Whereas / Although a number of newspapers have done this, most have now withdrawn this activity. It has been found that relatively small amounts of revenue are raised overall (5) as / for the administrative costs of running a competition are substantial.
D  Exam practice
Use of English
Read the text below and think of the word which best fits each space. Use only one word in each space. There is an example at the beginning (0).

The Spanish way of life

The inhabitants of this very varied country have (0) ....... things in common (1) ............ for a natural sociability and a zest for living. Spaniards commonly put as (2) ............ energy into enjoying life as they do into their work. The stereotypical mañana (leave everything (3) ............ tomorrow) is a myth, but time is flexible in Spain and many people bend their work (4) ............ as to fit in with the demands of their social life whenever they can, instead of letting (5) ............ be ruled by the clock. The day is long in Spain and Spanish has a word, madrugada, for the time between midnight and dawn, (6) ............ city streets are often lively.

Spaniards are highly sociable (7) ............ that they like nothing better than spending leisure time in the company of others. In many places people still go out in the evening for the paseo, and the streets are crowded (8) ............ strollers at this time. Eating is invariably communal and big groups often (9) ............ up for dinner. Not (10) ............ , Spain has more bars and restaurants per head than any (11) ............ country.

Traditionally, the state in Spain has been very inefficient at providing public services, although this has improved in the last 20 years. The Spanish have therefore always relied (12) ............ their families and personal connections, rather than institutions, in (13) ............ to find work or seek assistance in a crisis. This attitude has sometimes (14) ............ to a disregard for general interests – such as the environment – if they come into (15) ............ with private ones.
Grammar focus task

Without looking back at the text, can you remember which conjunctions are used to connect these clauses?

1. Many people bend their work so as to fit in with the demands of their social life.
2. Spaniards are highly sociable whereas they like nothing better than spending leisure time in the company of others.
3. The state in Spain has been very inefficient at providing public services, but this has improved in the last 20 years.
4. The Spanish have therefore always relied on their families and personal connections, rather than institutions, to find work or seek assistance in a crisis.

Writing

The editor of your college / workplace newsletter sent you this note:

Hello

Would you like to do a review for the magazine of a couple of DVDs that you’ve seen recently? Take two of the same genre (e.g. comedy, thriller, documentary). Say what the films are about, and why you like them and would recommend them.

Also say what makes them different.

Let me know what you think?

Thanks,

Alan

Write your review of the DVDs you have chosen in 220-260 words.

Writing hints

This task gives you the chance to practise writing sentences including adverbial clauses:

- to describe the films
  Before she came to the village, she travelled throughout Europe.
  She married him despite disliking him at first.
- to give your opinion of the films and why you recommend them
  While I don’t usually enjoy his performances, he was terrific as the President.
  I can’t wait until she appears in her next film.
A  Context listening

1. Look at these photos of places where wild animals can be seen. Which places are shown here?
   a b
   c

2. 14a Listen to part of a radio discussion programme where three people are being interviewed about the opening of a new zoo. Which speaker or speakers (Mark, Debbie, or Wendy) make these points?
   1. Only rich people have the opportunity to see wild animals in their natural environment. P5 and 31
   2. Captive breeding programmes are important in preserving wild animals. .................
   3. Animals may suffer when they are being taken to zoos. ................
   4. Many animals now in zoos were born there. .................
   5. It is unacceptable to keep animals in cages or small enclosures. .................
   6. Safari parks haven’t always looked after animals well. .................
   7. The main purpose of zoos and safari parks is to make money. .................
   8. Game reserves need to be supported by governments in developed countries. .................

3. 14a What word or phrase did the speakers use to link these ideas? Listen again if you are not sure.
   1. we didn’t have zoos + most people would never see wild animals in real life ..........
   2. we expand captive breeding + many more animals will die out .................
   3. wild animals are born in a zoo + it’s still cruel to keep them in a small enclosure ..........
   4. I’m all in favour of safari parks + the animals are well looked after .................
   5. they say they are concerned about the welfare of animals + they are still businesses mainly out to make a profit .................
   6. developed countries put money into these reserves + species will be preserved .................
1 Real and unreal conditionals

START POINT

Conditional sentences may suggest that an event or situation is:

- real – it is true, generally happens, has happened or is likely to happen
- unreal – it is imaginary or untrue, did not happen or is not likely to happen.

Real conditionals

If there is a health problem, we deal with it quickly.
Before safari parks were opened, if people wanted to see lions and giraffes, they had to go to a zoo.
If we don't provide safe havens for animals, many will die out.

Unreal conditionals

If they were in the wild, they would have more space to roam free.
If we had introduced captive breeding programmes sooner, we would have prevented the extinction of a number of animals.

Real conditionals

We can use a wide variety of other patterns in the if-clause and the main clause:

If we're going to protect animals in Africa, we'll need to invest much more money in game reserves.

If we close zoos, we might deprive people of the opportunity of seeing wild animals.
If you think closing down zoos will improve the chances of survival of endangered species, you're making a big mistake.

We don't usually use will in the if-clause:

If they're not eaten by the larger animals first, they'll be killed by visitors' cars. (not If they won't be eaten ...)

We can use will when we talk about a result of something in the main clause:

Certainly we should have captive breeding programmes if it will help save species, or ...
If it helps save species.

or when we want to show that we strongly disapprove of something:

A: That zookeeper was really annoyed with me.
B: Well, if you will throw stones at the animals, it's not surprising!

Unreal conditionals

We can use modals other than would in the main clause:

If we'd introduced captive breeding earlier, animals now extinct might have survived.
We don't usually use would in the if-clause:

*If we had more funding, we would be able to do even more educational work. (not if we would have more funding...)*

⚠️ We can use would when we talk about a desired outcome:

If it would remove some of the concerns of Save the Animals, they could be involved in drawing up plans for the new zoo.

Mixed conditionals

We can sometimes vary the basic types of conditionals by mixing the tenses:

If past tense, would have + past participle

If it wasn't so expensive, we would have opened many more safari parks around the country.

(= it is very expensive, so we didn't open any more)

If + past perfect, would + bare infinitive

If game reserves had been set up earlier, there would now be fewer animals in danger of extinction.

(= game reserves were not set up earlier, so more animals are in danger of extinction)

In formal contexts we can use were instead of was in the if-clause:

If it were not for zoos, most people would never see wild animals, or less formally ... was not for ...

⚠️ We prefer to use were in the expression If I were you ... giving advice.

We can use if ... were + to-infinitive rather than *if + past simple to talk about imaginary future situations:

If the government were to ban zoos, it would put captive breeding programmes at risk.

(= if the government banned zoos ...)

⚠️ We don't usually use this pattern with state verbs (e.g. belong, doubt, know, understand):

If we understood more about animal behaviour we would be in a better position to protect them.

(= not if we were to understand more about ...)

if and politeness

In addition to indicating conditions, if-clauses are also used to tell or ask people to do things in a polite way:

If I could just get a word in here ...
If you'll wait here, I'll fetch the manager.
If I could just have your attention for a moment ...

Mark Archer, if I could come to you first ...

2. if ... not and unless

START POINT

Unless we expand captive breeding, many more animals will die out, or if we don’t expand...

In real conditional sentences, we can often use either unless or if ... not when the meaning is 'except if'.

We usually use if ... not but not unless:

- when we say in the main clause that an event or action in the if-clause is unexpected:

  I'll be surprised if we don’t get permission to build the zoo.
• usually in questions:
  How will children learn about wild animals if they don’t see them in zoos?
• when the meaning is similar to ‘because ... not’ rather than ‘except if’:
  If developing countries don’t have the money to establish nature reserves, more developed countries must offer help.
• in unreal conditional sentences:
  If we didn’t have zoos, most people would never see wild animals.

We use unless but not if ... not when we introduce an afterthought:

We must have zoos if we want children to learn more about wild animals – unless their parents are rich enough to go on holiday to Africa, of course.

3 even if and even though

We can use even if to mean ‘whether or not’ and even though to mean ‘despite the fact that’:

Even if wild animals are born in a zoo, it is still cruel to keep them in a small enclosure.

(= whether or not animals are born in a zoo)

Even though they say they are concerned about the welfare of animals, they are still businesses mainly out to make a profit. (= despite the fact that they say they are concerned)

4 if only and wish

We can use if only / wish + past simple to say that we want a present situation to be different, and if only / wish + past perfect to say that we regret a past event:

I wish the situation was / were different. Or If only the situation was / were different.

If only we had acted sooner. Or I wish we had acted sooner.

We can use if only / wish + would to criticise someone, to say that we want someone to change their behaviour or that we want something to change:

I wish Debbie Hall and the people in Save the Animals would read the scientific research on the value of zoos.

⚠️ We can’t say I wish I would:
I wish I worked in a zoo. Or I wish I could work in a zoo. (not I wish I would work ...)

5 Other conditional expressions

A number of other expressions are used at the beginning of conditional clauses:

I’m all in favour of safari parks provided (that) / providing (that) the animals are well looked after.

So / As long as developed countries put money into these reserves, species will be preserved.
I’m willing to support the proposal on condition that animals are kept in large enclosures.

In the event of the alarm sounding, visitors should leave the zoo by the nearest exit.

Supposing the proposal is rejected, what will you do then?

An alarm will sound in case of animals escaping from the safari park.

We must protect natural habitats, otherwise more animals will become extinct.

But for the existence of zoos, many people would never have seen wild animals.
C Grammar exercises

Rewrite each sentence, beginning the new sentence with If .... Keep the meaning of the new sentence as close as possible to the meaning of the original sentence.

1 I don’t have a reliable car, so I probably won’t drive to France.
   If I had a reliable car I would probably drive to France.

2 With a student card you can get a discount at the bookshop.

3 You can borrow my laptop for the evening as long as you promise to bring it back tomorrow.

4 By using more efficient light bulbs, there could be a 5% reduction in electricity consumption.

5 I wasn’t promoted, so I didn’t have to move to our head office in Madrid.

6 You’ll have to leave the house by 7.00 to catch the 8.30 train.

7 I didn’t know you were a vegetarian, otherwise I wouldn’t have cooked lamb for dinner.

8 I didn’t study hard, and that’s why I have such a poorly paid job now.

Complete the sentences using a word or phrase in the box and the verb in brackets.

- even if
- even though
- if
- unless

1 I didn’t tell my parents I was coming to a night club .... If they knew... where I was, they’d be really annoyed. know

2 It’s so cold, it would be surprising ................ we .................. snow tonight. not get

3 Malcolm looked at some of my recent paintings, but .................. he .................. them he didn’t show it. like

4 She didn’t seem at all tired ..................... she .................. all day. drive

5 The town hall is a beautiful old building. It would be a great shame .................. it .................. to be pulled down. be

6 I haven’t lost any weight ..................... I ..................... lots of exercise. do

7 ..................... you ..................... David Mitchell’s first novel, I’m sure you’ll like this one, too. enjoy

8 ..................... it ..................... soon, there will still be water rationing in this part of the country. rain
9 I could pick you up at about eight, and we could go to the party together –
                        ... you ... ... ... to go on your own, of course. (prefer) 10 Where shall we go ... the restaurant ... open tonight?
                        (not be)
11 ... a buyer ... be found for the company, it is likely to close by the end of the week. (can)
12 Miles has announced that ... he ... to be beaten in tomorrow's tennis final, he will not consider retiring from the sport. (be)
13 The latest opinion poll suggests that ... the election ... to be held today, the ruling party would again have a huge majority. (be) 14 He's a very good mechanic, ... he ... any formal qualifications. (not have)

3 Match the sentence beginnings and endings, joining them with one of the words or phrases from the box. Sometimes more than one word or phrase is possible.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>in the event of</th>
<th>on condition that</th>
<th>but for</th>
<th>in case</th>
<th>providing</th>
<th>otherwise</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>1 I'll be in my office just before the exam</td>
<td>a they remained outside a ten-mile zone around the nuclear power station.</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2 Aid must reach the refugees before the rainy season starts,</td>
<td>b the traffic isn't too heavy on the motorway.</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>3 The demonstrators arrested were allowed to go free</td>
<td>c a head-on collision.</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>4 Car airbags were designed to prevent chest injuries to the driver</td>
<td>d anyone has any last-minute questions.</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>5 He would have gone on working until he was 65</td>
<td>e his poor health.</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>6 We should get to the airport by 5.00</td>
<td>f many thousands will die.</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

1 (if) I'll be in my office just before the exam, in case anyone has any last-minute questions.
2 ......................................................
3 ......................................................
4 ......................................................
5 ......................................................
6 ......................................................
4 Choose the correct verb forms in these conversations. Sometimes both are possible.

1
A: I feel terrible.
B: Well, if you (1) will stay / stay out until three in the morning, what do you expect?
A: I don’t think I’ll go to school today.
B: But supposing they (2) phone / would phone to find out where you are? What shall I tell them?
A: Okay, I’ll go – if it (3) will make / makes you happy.

2
A: Grandad, before you blow out the candles, you’ve got to make a wish.
B: Well, I wish I (1) had bought / would have bought a house with a smaller garden. It’s a lot of hard work to look after it.
A: And what else are you going to wish for?
B: I wish I (2) have / had more energy to play with my grandchildren.
A: And anything else?
B: I suppose I wish I (3) was / would be a young man again.
A: And have you got any more wishes?
B: Yes, I wish you (4) stopped / would stop asking me questions and let me eat my birthday cake!

3
A: You’re still here! I thought you’d left this morning.
B: If it (1) didn’t snow / wasn’t snowing so much, (2) I’d have left / I’d leave ages ago.
A: But it wasn’t snowing this morning. If (3) you’d got up / you got up earlier, you (4) could get / could have got there easily.
B: Okay, okay. I’ll go now.
A: No, you shouldn’t drive if it (5) will be / is dangerous.
B: Right, I’ll stay here then!
Exam practice

Listening

(14b) You will hear five short extracts in which people are talking about cooking. While you listen you must complete both tasks, but you will hear the five extracts twice.

Task One

Choose from the list A–H the person who is speaking.

| | |
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th></th>
<th></th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>A</td>
<td>a nurse</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>B</td>
<td>a retired person</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>C</td>
<td>a student</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>D</td>
<td>an author</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>E</td>
<td>a lawyer</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>F</td>
<td>a teacher</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>G</td>
<td>a lorry driver</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>H</td>
<td>an unemployed person</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Task Two

Choose from the list A–H what each speaker is expressing.

| | |
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th></th>
<th></th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>A</td>
<td>admiration for people who can cook well</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>B</td>
<td>a pride in his or her cooking ability</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>C</td>
<td>a reluctance to cook</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>D</td>
<td>a criticism of current trends in cooking</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>E</td>
<td>a desire to learn to cook</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>F</td>
<td>a wish to try food from other countries</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>G</td>
<td>an awareness of his or her poor diet</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>H</td>
<td>a dislike of unfamiliar food</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Grammar focus task

Complete these sentences using one of the phrases, a or b. Sometimes both are possible.

1. Dinner isn’t a time to talk and relax unless I’ve got friends round.
   a. unless I’ve got
   b. if I haven’t got

2. …………………… the place I’m going to, I’ll generally take food from home.
   a. Unless I know
   b. If I don’t know

3. My mum did all the cooking ……………………… away.
   a. unless she was
   b. if she wasn’t

4. …………………… so busy, I’d certainly like to cook more.
   a. Unless I was
   b. If I wasn’t

5. I might work through from 8 in the morning to 3 in the afternoon without a break and then I might go out for a walk.
   a. unless the sun’s shining
   b. if the sun isn’t shining

Writing

As part of a study project you have been asked to write an essay on the impact of the growth of the urban population. Read the instructions.

You should write an essay with the following title:

THE GROWTH OF CITIES: PRESENT AND FUTURE CONSEQUENCES

In your essay, you should –
• explain why people move to urban areas from the countryside
• discuss some of the consequences of this trend
• give your view on what is likely to happen in the future.

Write your essay in 300–350 words.

Writing hints

This task gives you the chance to practise conditional clauses:
If people live in the countryside, they may find it difficult to travel to hospitals.
If more jobs aren’t provided in the countryside, people will continue to move to cities.
Unless better housing is built in cities, people will have a poorer quality of life than in the countryside.
Governments need to make rural areas more attractive by improving health and educational facilities; otherwise, cities will continue to grow.
Participle, to-infinitive and reduced clauses
Participle clauses including present participle (-ing) clauses, past participle (-ed) clauses, participle clauses after conjunctions and prepositions, to-infinitive clauses, reduced clauses

A Context listening

1. Sam Green has taken three months off work to do a sponsored walk through Italy raising money for charity. Each week he sends an article to his company for its newsletter. Listen to two of his colleagues talking about Sam's latest article. Which of the problems does Sam talk about?

2. Complete the sentences 1–6 using the phrases a–f.
   1. Because I had fallen over a number of times,
   2. Because I was exhausted by a difficult few days,
   3. Before I left Naples,
   4. After I had left the sprawl of the city behind me,
   5. When I opened up my sleeping bag,
   6. After I had been woken up by a scratching sound,
      a. I walked up into the hills.
      b. I found a large rat trying to get into my backpack.
      c. I was only interested in finding a bed for the night.
      d. I discovered a scorpion.
      e. I was feeling thoroughly miserable.
      f. I bought yet more walking socks.

3. Listen again and write down what Sam actually said.
   Having Fallen over
   1. Because I had fallen over a number of times...
B Grammar

1 Participle clauses: general

START POINT

Walking into each village, I was met by a pack of unfriendly dogs.

Found mainly in the south of the country, scorpions in Italy can give a nasty bite but are rarely dangerous.

Having spent a couple of hours exploring Amalfi, I'm now ready for an excellent Italian dinner.

Participle clauses are more common in writing, and are often used to express ideas in an economical way.

The implied subject of a participle is usually the same as the subject of the main clause:

Snarling aggressively, the dogs were pretty terrifying at first. (= the dogs were snarling and the dogs were pretty terrifying)

In careful speech and writing we avoid a participle clause when the subjects are different:

Snarling aggressively, I kept away from the dogs.

In this example, the writer is trying to say that the dogs were snarling and he kept away from them. However, it sounds as if he was snarling! The more accurate alternative is:

The dogs were snarling aggressively, so I kept away from them.

In formal English, a participle clause can sometimes have its own subject, which is often a pronoun or a noun phrase including a pronoun:

Scorpions in North Africa, some measuring up to 20 centimetres, can kill adults.

When we use not in a participle clause it usually comes before the participle:

Not wanting to carry my backpack any further, I went to the first hotel I came across.

2 Present participle (-ing) clauses

We can use a present participle clause to talk about something that takes place at the same time as, or just before, an action in the main clause:

Opening up my sleeping bag, I discovered a scorpion.

A present participle clause can be used to give background information:

Living mainly in warm climates, scorpions have existed for over 400 million years.

and after quoted speech, to say what someone was doing while they were talking:

‘Wait for me here,’ said Frank, running out of the house.

Present participle clauses can also be used to talk about a reason or result:

Arriving in Amalfi early in the afternoon, I had time to look around the town.

(= because I arrived in Amalfi early in the afternoon)

3 Past participle (-ed) clauses

We can use a past participle clause to talk about reasons and conditions:

Made from the softest leather imaginable, they are as comfortable as a pair of slippers.

(reason = because they are made from the softest leather imaginable)

Sold in Britain, the boots would have cost a lot more. (condition = if they were sold in Britain)
Past participles combine with forms of be and have to create passives and perfect forms:

Having fallen over a number of times, I was feeling thoroughly miserable. (→ I was feeling thoroughly miserable because I had fallen over a number of times)

We can use either having + -ed or a present participle with a similar meaning to describe consecutive events. However, having + -ed emphasises that the action in the participle clause is complete before the action in the main clause begins:

Having climbed to the top of the hill, I could see all the way to the Mediterranean. or Climbing to the top of the hill, ...

Being made so welcome at the hotel, I was reluctant to leave. (→ because I was made so welcome)

Having been woken up by a scratching sound, I found a large rat trying to get into my backpack. (→ after I had been woken up)

4 Participle clauses after conjunctions and prepositions

We can use a present participle clause after a number of conjunctions and prepositions, including: after, before, by, in, on, since, when, while, with, without, unless, until:

Before leaving Naples, I bought yet more walking socks. or less formally Before I left Naples, I bought yet more walking socks.

We can also use with (or informally what with) to introduce a reason for something in the main clause. Notice that a subject has to come between with and -ing:

With Naples being such a busy city, I was surprised to find a hotel room so easily.

What with sleeping badly, and some very steep hills to walk over, it was quite a relief to get to Amalfi this afternoon. (→ because I had slept badly)

In formal contexts we can use a past participle after (al)though, as, if, once, when, while, unless and until:

Walking through Italy was a fantastic experience, but if asked, I'm not sure I'd do it again.

or ... but if I was asked ...

5 to-infinitive clauses

We can use a clause beginning with a to-infinitive to talk about purpose, result or condition:

I walked up into the hills to avoid the long trek around the coast. (→ purpose)

I got to the hotel early, only to find that I couldn’t check in until later. (→ result)

To hear him grumbling last week, you’d think he was about to get on the next flight home. (→ if you had heard him grumbling)

6 Reduced clauses

We can sometimes use a 'reduced' clause beginning with a conjunction or adjective, but with no verb. Reduced clauses are usually fairly formal:

While in Naples, I did what all visitors do. or While I was in Naples, ...

Exhausted by my walk, I went straight to bed. or Because I was exhausted, ...
C Grammar exercises

1 Match the pairs of sentences. Rewrite each pair as one sentence starting with a participle clause in an appropriate form.

1 She swam strongly. a) I found it easy to design my own website.
2 Colin got out from under the car. b) He was covered in oil.
3 I can’t speak Portuguese. c) I was starting to feel a bit faint.
4 Manchester United are favourites to win again. d) They have already beaten Real Madrid twice this year.
5 I was shown how to use the software. e) She put on her glasses.
6 I hadn’t eaten or drunk anything for hours. f) They were written in Latin.
7 She began to read her speech. g) She was able to cross the river in just a few minutes.
8 The two letters were sent in 1406 to the French king. h) I found travelling in Brazil difficult.

1 + g) Swimming strongly, she was able to cross the river in just a few minutes.

2 Read this extract from a blog about a visit to London. Rewrite the underlined parts using a participle clause, to-infinitive or reduced clause.

While in London I just had to go to the British Museum. There’s so much to see and I only had time to spend a few hours there. First, I went to the collection of clocks and watches. When I saw the pocket watches, I was reminded of the old watch my grandfather used to wear. I don’t think I ever saw him without it. Then I went to the Money Gallery. They’ve got an incredible collection of coins, and some of them are over 2000 years old. Next stop was the Chinese collection. Because I’d lived in Hong Kong for so many years, I was very interested in this. Some of the jade objects were stunning. After I looked at the Chinese collection, I had hoped to see the Mexican collection. Unfortunately, when I got there I found that it was closed. Because I’d spent the whole morning walking around the museum, I decided that I wanted to do something very different in the afternoon. So I went to the London Eye in order that I could get a bird’s-eye view of the city. When they are looked at from the top of the Eye, some of the biggest buildings appear quite small – even St. Paul’s Cathedral, across the river. After that, because I was tired from all the walking, I went back to my hotel room and slept for a couple of hours before I went out to have dinner.
3 In these sentences, is the subject of the participle and the main clause the same (S) or different (D)? If it is different, rewrite the sentence correctly.

1 Painted bright yellow, I could see the signs clearly from a distance. .......... D ..........
   Because the signs were painted bright yellow, I could see them clearly from a distance. .......... S ..........
2 Hearing a noise from one of the bedrooms, I quietly climbed upstairs. .......... S ..........
3 Laughing at her new hat, Kate looked really angry with me. .......... S ..........
4 Kept in the fridge, the cheese should stay fresh for weeks. .......... S ..........
5 Holding her umbrella tightly, she went out into the storm. .......... S ..........
6 Talking to each other in the library, I asked them to keep quiet. .......... S ..........
7 Caught in traps put on the riverbed at night, many fishermen depend on crayfish for their livelihood. .......... S ..........
8 Worried that Judy hadn't arrived, I decided to phone her home. .......... S ..........

4 Complete each sentence using one of the words in the box and an appropriate form of the verb in brackets. Use either an -ing, an -ed or being + -ed verb form.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>although</th>
<th>before</th>
<th>if</th>
<th>once</th>
<th>since</th>
<th>while</th>
<th>with</th>
<th>without</th>
<th>unless</th>
<th>until</th>
</tr>
</thead>
</table>

1 Unless otherwise stated, all software contained on the CD is for demonstration purposes only. (state)
2 My book on the European Union, I interviewed more than a hundred members of the European Parliament. (research)
3 No longer in the day-to-day running of the business, Mr White retains a keen interest in its development. (involve)
4 Defence Minister, he was head of the army for five years. (make)
5 Her parents, she took their car and drove into town. When they found out, they were furious. (ask)
6 Not school had anyone told me to 'sit down and be quiet'. (leave)
7 The virus doesn't have serious effects, but it remains in the body for life. (each)
8 The wind hurricane force, ships have been advised to head for land. (reach)
9 I slept deeply by a fire engine going past the house. (wake)
10 Guilty, she could face ten years in prison. (find) Instincts and learned behaviour

To survive, an animal has to be able to do certain things as soon as it is born or it hatches. (0) ............................................................... by its genes, some parts of an animal’s behaviour are innate. This kind of behaviour is vital for a young animal. (1) ............................................... it recognise danger and food. But animals need also to adapt their behaviour as they gain experience, and most show some degree of learning, even insects. Butterflies are (2) ........................................... attracted to coloured flowers, and have a built-in preference for particular colours, but they (3) ........................................... learn to adapt these preferences on the basis of their experience. This (4) ........................................... to learn makes the animal’s behaviour much more (5) ........................................... to changing environments. A butterfly that couldn’t learn to change its flower colour preference would quickly die of (6) ........................................... if there were no flowers of the preferred colour around.

A bird will recognise its mother very early in its life. Having (7) ............................................... what she looks like, chicks are then able to avoid making (8) ............................................... approaches to other potentially dangerous birds in the community. Mammals often have an even greater degree of (9) ............................................... care, some staying with their mother even until her next offspring is born. Not all animals have the same opportunities to learn, however, and those that are not looked after by their parents have to be (10) ............................................... from the start.
Grammar focus task

Look back at the text. Find:
1. two sentences that include a participle clause with a present participle (-ing) form of the verb
2. two sentences that include a participle clause with a past participle (-ed) form of the verb
3. one sentence that includes a to-infinitive clause

Writing

Your English club magazine is producing a special issue focusing on novels by women authors. Write a review of a novel you have enjoyed by a woman author. Give a brief outline of the plot, say what you particularly enjoyed about it, and say why you would recommend it to other readers.

Write your review in 220–260 words.

Writing hints

This task gives you the chance to practise using present participle clauses and past participle clauses to:
- summarise the action in the novel
  Set in an Italian village, the novel...
  Living alone, she found that she was ...
  With his family facing starvation, he decided to ...
- give your opinion
  Having read the novel twice, ...
  Although written over a hundred years ago, the novel still ...
A  Context listening

1 You are going to hear Joe Simpson, head of the Norton Wildlife Trust (NWT) encouraging some residents of Norton to volunteer for some local projects. Before you listen, look at these pictures and identify the activities.

2 [Exercise] Listen to the talk. Which of the activities are mentioned?

3 [Exercise] Listen again and decide whether these statements are true (T) or false (F).
1 The NWT owns Norton Marsh. .............
2 Broadstone Park is now a wilderness. ..........
3 The NWT gets its money from the Montague family. ..............
4 Initially, the most important task is clearing overgrown plants and trees. ............
5 NWT volunteers are invited to barbecues. ..............
6 One of the jobs that volunteers can do is publicise the NWT. .............
7 Only members of the NWT can work on the project. ..............
8 The NWT was given the Marsh by Mr Reynold’s brother. ..............
9 Volunteers can usually get a lift to the Marsh. ..............

4 [Exercise] Listen again and complete these extracts with the words you hear.
1 I can guarantee ...................... and we organise barbecues and other social events.
2 We will be very grateful for .......................................................... .
3 Nine o’clock is ................................. , on Saturday and Sunday mornings.
4 Just come along to the Marsh and we’ll show you .......................................................... .
5 Can I ask .......................................................................................................................... ?

5 Look at your answers to Exercise 4. What words begin each clause you have written?
1 that- noun clauses

In informal contexts we often leave out that at the beginning of a that- noun clause:
It's also good to know that they're helping the environment, or ... to know they're helping ...
I can guarantee that you'll make a lot of new friends, or I can guarantee you'll make ...

We usually use the fact that (rather than that):

- when the noun clause is subject:
The fact that you're not a member of the trust makes no difference. (rather than That you're not a member of the trust makes no difference.)

- after a preposition or after verbs such as change, face and overlook:
  We have to face (up to) the fact that we don't have enough resources at the moment.
  (⇒ See Appendix 11.1.)

Depending on meaning, we can use words like argument, assumption, belief, claim, idea, notion, and view instead of fact:
The idea that it's all hard work is just wrong.

2 wh- noun clauses

When a wh- noun clause follows certain nouns (e.g. example, problem), we often have to include of before the wh-word:
We'd like to follow the example of what they've done at Broadstone Park.
(⇒ See Appendix 11.2.)

Some verbs (e.g. advise, teach) must have an object before the wh- word:
I'll be happy to advise you when to come.
(⇒ See Appendix 11.3.)

Noun clauses beginning how are commonly used after certain verbs (e.g. decide, know):
It's entirely up to you to decide how much time you can give.
(⇒ See Appendix 11.4.)

We can use a wh- noun clause, but not a that- noun clause, after a preposition:
If you've got any questions about what I've said so far, I'd be happy to answer them. (not ... about that I've said so far ...)
We can also use noun clauses beginning with whatever (= anything, or it doesn’t matter what), whoever (= the person/group who, or any person/group who), or whichever (= one thing or person from a limited number) to talk about things, people or times that are indefinite or unknown:

We will be very grateful for whatever time people can spare.

You can phone whoever is in charge of arranging lifts on the weekend you want to come.

Rather than a wh- noun clause, we can often use a noun or pronoun which has a meaning related to the wh- word:

Why most people volunteer is that they want fresh air and exercise, or

The reason (why/that) most people volunteer ...

Clearing the vegetation is what is urgently needed, or Clearing the vegetation is something which/that is urgently needed.

Other words used in this way include the place (rather than where), the time (rather than when), the way (rather than how) and somebody/someone (rather than who).

3 whether and if

We can use whether as the wh- word in a noun clause when we talk about possible choices.

Whether has a similar meaning to if:

I can’t remember whether it rains on Sundays.

Notice the difference between sentences with whether- and that- noun clauses:

I didn’t know whether if the bus service has been cancelled. (= it may or may not have been cancelled)

I didn’t know that the bus service had been cancelled. (= it was cancelled; now I know)

In rather formal contexts, particularly in writing, we can use as to with a meaning similar to ‘about’ or ‘concerning’ before a whether noun clause:

There was some debate as to whether he could legally give us the land.

We use whether, not if–

- before or not:

  I don’t know whether or not I’d be able to come on a regular basis.

  △ However:

  I don’t know whether if I’d be able to come on a regular basis or not.

- before a - infinitive:

  I can’t make up my mind whether to help on Saturdays or Sundays.

- usually after a preposition, and also after the verbs advise, choose, consider, debate, discuss, enquire, question:

  You can think about whether you’d like to be involved.

  You can choose whether you want to work indoors or outdoors.

- in a clause acting as a subject or complement:

  Whether you help with the outdoor or indoor work depends on you. (= subject)

  What I’m not clear about is whether we can get a lift to the reserve. (= complement)
Read these comments by a resident, a fire officer and a climate change expert about a recent flood. Complete each text with that or the fact that.

1. Nobody really thought (1) ____________. flooding this bad would happen again, but as the river level rose, we had to face up to (2) ____________. we’d have to leave our home. Personally, I blame the fire service. (3) ____________. it’s been raining heavily here for five days should have meant that they were better prepared to help us.

I really feel (4) ____________. some of the criticisms of my fire officers are unfair, although (5) ____________. today is a public holiday did mean that many of our staff weren’t here to help with the rescue. However, we warned residents yesterday (6) ____________. they might have to evacuate their houses with little notice, and the difficulty in evacuating people from their houses wasn’t helped by (7) ____________. they wanted to take large amounts of personal belongings with them.

We can’t ignore (8) ____________. climate change is going to increase the risk of flooding, and a number of studies have suggested (9) ____________. winter river levels throughout the country will be much higher than in the past. Unfortunately, the situation in this area is complicated by (10) ____________. so many trees have been cut down on the hills around here and rainwater flows more quickly into the rivers. So there’s a real possibility (11) ____________. serious flooding could now happen here every winter.
I rented a car yesterday and drove about 50 miles from Paris to Chartres. The area around Chartres is very flat. That’s probably the reason (1) why it was built. I noticed the cathedral was so impressive and dominates the landscape from (2) ... At first, I wasn’t sure (3) ... of the cathedral. I’m pretty independent and like to wander around on my own. But this time I decided to go for it, and I’m really glad I did – the guide was excellent! She talked a lot about (4) ... it was begun before 1200 and (5) ... Some of the stone was transported from hundreds of miles away – I’ll never understand (6) ... (7) ... isn’t known. Apparently in those days architecture was a cooperative effort by the stonemasons working on the site. She also gave us some idea of (8) ... It sounds like an incredibly hard life. I thought the stained-glass windows were awesome. I was so impressed with (9) ... and creates patterns on the cathedral floor. After the tour, I looked again at my guidebook and noticed that it mentioned the ‘easy climb’ up the north tower, so off I went. But (10) ... must have been super-fit. For me it was a long, exhausting climb, and there were times when I didn’t know (11) ... The magnificent view was certainly worth the effort when I got to the top, but be warned!
3. Match the sentence beginnings and endings, joining them with whatever, whoever or whichever.

1. Mr Phelps has resigned as managing director, and it will be a difficult job for _____________.
   a. is sitting in it.

2. I must have that painting, and will pay _____________.
   b. side they are on.

3. The police have said that to protect the public they will take _____________.
   c. replaces him.

4. I’ve bought this armchair that adjusts itself to the body shape of _____________.
   d. action is necessary.

5. We’ve got lots of cakes, so just choose _____________.
   e. it costs.

6. At the first modern Olympic games in 1896, athletes could wear _____________.
   f. comes first.

7. Houses next to the river are at risk of flooding, _____________.
   g. one you want.

8. Both the number 45 and 47 buses go into town, so get on _____________.
   h. they wanted to.

1+e. Mr Phelps has resigned as managing director, and it will be a difficult job for whoever replaces him.

4. Complete the sentences using the notes in brackets and where, what, when, why or how. Add any other words necessary.

1. Our Maths teacher made the exam quite easy for us. In our last lesson he gave us some ____________. (examples / would) be in the paper, and he ____________. (told / questions) to answer.

2. A: There’s a job advert here for a train driver. Do you think I should go for it?
   B: But ____________. (know / to drive) a train?
   A: No, but I’m sure they’ll be able ____________. (teach / to do). I might send for an application form.

3. When I got to hospital, a nurse took me into a room and ____________. (showed / to sit). I was very anxious ____________. (would happen / next) and ____________. (asked / the doctor) would be coming.

4. A: Remember ____________. (time / were) in London and our wallets and train tickets were stolen?
   B: I certainly do. Then we had ____________. (problem / to get back) to Manchester without tickets or money.
   A: ____________. (reason / mention) now is that the man who gave us the money to get home is on the front of today’s paper. He’s wanted for robbing a bank!
Exam practice

Use of English

For questions 1–12, read the text below and then decide which answer (A, B, C or D) best fits each space. There is an example at the beginning (0).

Homework: how useful is it?

Homework is an (0) ingrained part of school life in most countries around the world. However, there is still considerable debate among teachers about (1) whether homework has a significant educational value. On the one side are those who (2) allow that it takes too much time away from other useful activities. On the other are those who see homework as reinforcing school lessons so that concepts will not be forgotten. (4) Supposing is often neglected in this debate is the role of parental involvement and (5) much or not the child’s home provides support for effective homework. Middle-class families regularly spend time helping with homework by providing facilities and being interested. These are the same families who can (6) propose other educational experiences like overseas holidays and weekend museum visits. Parents in low-income families often don’t have the time to make homework a priority or aren’t able to afford a computer or additional books. (7) Much money they have goes on the basic necessities of life – accommodation, food, clothing and heating. Their children are more (8) accustomed to spend weekends doing part-time jobs or playing on the street. However, the (9) supposing that only middle-class parents support their children’s education is quite obviously wrong. Not (10) anything well-to-do parents give the support they should, and some parents living in the most impoverished circumstances (11) that find the time and energy to involve themselves in their children’s homework. In general, (12) any, the family’s economic status is a major factor in determining the value of homework.

0 A ingrained B established C allowed D accustomed
1 A if B that C whether D supposing
2 A tell B describe C claim D propose
3 A more B most C such D much
4 A Whatever B Which C That D What
5 A whether B why C whatever D if 6 A show B propose C bring D offer
7 A Whichever B That C Whatever D Which
There are six noun clauses in the text on page 151. Find and underline them.

Dear Editor
Many recent letter writers have called for the rapid expansion of renewable energy. I agree that the burning of fossil fuels is a major cause of global warming and climate change and needs to be phased out. But renewable energy sources like solar and wind power will never provide enough energy to allow us to reduce our dependence on coal and oil or enable developing countries to expand their industries. Only nuclear power can do this.

David Wallace
Melbourne, Australia

Write your letter in 300-350 words. Do not write any postal address.

Writing hints
This task gives you the chance to practise using noun clauses:
The issue of what to do with nuclear waste needs to be resolved.
He overlooks the fact that technology is advancing rapidly.
No one knows whether renewable energy sources will ever provide sufficient electricity for our needs.
He is quite correct in saying that nuclear power is the only realistic option.
Useful language
carbon neutral, hydro / wind / solar / tidal / geothermal energy Conjunctions and connectors before, hardly, first(y), however, even so, on the other hand etc.

A Context listening

1. Which of these do you think learner drivers find most difficult?
   reversing around corners overtaking parking starting on a hill getting into the correct lane changing gear driving at night using the rear-view mirror

2. Listen to Marie and Sam talking about their experiences of learning to drive. Which of the things in Exercise 1 were particular problems for them?

3. Listen again. In what order does Marie mention these advantages of being taught by a professional instructor?
   a. he passed on useful tips ...........
   b. he was always encouraging ...........
   c. he used a dual-control car .........
   d. he could tell when she was ready to take her test ...........

   In what order does Sam mention these advantages of being taught by his mother?
   e. she was calm most of the time ..........
   f. he got lots of time to practise ..........
   g. she knew a quiet place to practise ..........
   h. he didn't have to pay for lessons ..........

4. What words or phrases are used to connect these ideas?
   1. I stalled in the middle of the road + my instructor stayed completely cool ..even if..
   2. I had the mirror positioned + I couldn't judge where the back of the car was ..............
   3. it was disappointing to have replacement instructors + the replacements were patient and helpful ..........
   4. it's expensive to have driving lessons + I would recommend it ..............
   5. my mum doesn't have a professional qualification + she has lots of experience ..............
   6. I didn't do anything stupid + she stayed calm ..............

153
B Grammar

1 Sentence connectors and conjunctions: general

START POINT

My mum used to come and collect me from college in the car and I’d drive home. What’s more, she’d let me drive when we went shopping.

A sentence connector (e.g. what’s more) links one sentence with another.

My mum taught me to drive because I couldn’t afford to pay for driving lessons.

A conjunction (e.g. because) links clauses within a single sentence.

(> See Appendix 12.)

To link two clauses, we use only one conjunction, not two:

Although it’s expensive having driving lessons, I’d really recommend it.

(not Although it’s expensive to have driving lessons, but I’d really recommend it.)

We usually put a comma between clauses linked by a conjunction:

As long as I didn’t do anything stupid, she stayed pretty calm.

▲ When because or while (referring to time) begin the second clause in a sentence, we don’t need a comma.

Sentence connectors usually come at the beginning of a sentence and less often at the end or in another position. The only ones that can’t come at the beginning are too and as well:

You can spend a lot more time practising, as well.

We usually put a comma after a sentence connector at the beginning or end of a sentence:

My mum thought I was ready to take my driving test. However, I failed first time.

There are lots of advantages in having your parents teach you. There’s the cost, for instance.

When a sentence connector comes elsewhere in a sentence, punctuation is more variable.

▲ Sentence connectors can be used to link clauses in a sentence if the clauses are joined with and, but, or, so, or a semi-colon (;), colon (:), or dash (–):

My instructor was very experienced and, as a result, he had lots of useful tips to pass on.

Having a professional teach you to drive is best; however, it can be very expensive.

2 before, until (conjunctions)

Sometimes we can use either before or until with little difference in meaning:

She wouldn’t let me drive on busy roads before/until I could control the car well.

▲ We use until, not before, to highlight that an action continues to a particular time and then stops:

I just carried on having lessons until my instructor said I was ready to take the driving test.
3 hardly, no sooner, scarcely (conjunctions)

After hardly and scarcely the second clause usually begins with when or before; after no sooner it begins with than or when:

We'd hardly driven out of our road before we were showing at each other.

I'd no sooner passed my test than / when my friends started asking me for lifts.

We often use a past perfect in the clause with hardly, no sooner or scarcely and a past simple in the other.

(For word order in sentences with hardly, no sooner and scarcely, see Unit 21.)

4 first(ly), at first; last(ly), at last (sentence connectors)

We use first or firstly to label the first point in a list and last or lastly to label the final point. We use at first to indicate that there is a contrast between two past situations, and at last to show that something happened later than hoped or expected. Often at last suggests annoyance or some inconvenience that results from the delay:

Firstly, cars like the one I learnt in have dual controls.

At first, I couldn't get the hang of this at all.

I passed my driving test at last, after taking it five times.

We don't use at last to label the last point in a list:

First, I had to practice starting on a hill ... Finally / Lastly, the instructor made me reverse around a corner. (not At last, the instructor made me reverse ...)

5 however

However is often a sentence connector, but can also be used:

- as an adverb when it is followed by an adjective, adverb or much / many:

  My instructor never got annoyed, however badly I was driving. (not despite how badly)

- as a conjunction when it means ‘in whatever way’:

  However I had the mirror positioned, I just couldn't judge where the back of the car was.

6 even so (sentence connector), even though (conjunction)

Even so has a meaning similar to however. We use it to introduce a fact that is surprising given what has just been said:

He was great and I didn't want to be taught by anyone else. Even so, I always found the replacements very patient and helpful.

We use even though to say that a fact doesn't make the rest of the sentence untrue:

Even though she doesn't have a professional qualification, she's got lots of experience to pass on.

7 on the other hand, on the contrary (sentence connectors)

We use on the other hand when we compare or contrast two statements. We sometimes introduce the first statement with on the one hand:

It may be that the quality of the tuition is better with a professional driving instructor. On the other hand, it's cheaper if your parents teach you, or.

On the one hand, it may be that the quality of the tuition is better with a professional driving instructor. On the other (hand), it's cheaper if your parents teach you.
On the contrary is used similarly, but emphasises that we reject the first statement and accept the second:
Some people say that it's more expensive to be taught by a driving instructor than a friend or relative. On the contrary, it works out cheaper.

8 Prepositions commonly confused with conjunctions and connectors

These are prepositions, and can't be used as conjunctions or sentence connectors:
As well as being calm and patient, he was always very encouraging. (not As well as he was calm and patient ...)
Apart from the cost of insurance, I think it's much better to be taught by your parents. (not Apart from the insurance costs were high ...)
I think there's a lot of other good things about having your parents teach you, besides saving money. (not ... besides you can save money)
I'd recommend professional driving lessons despite / in spite of the expense. (not ... despite - in spite of they are expensive)
The lesson was cancelled due to the heavy rain. (not ... due to it was raining heavily)
We used to stop driving at some point during the lesson, and he would ask me how I felt I'd improved. (not ... at some point during we were having the lesson ...)

C Grammar exercises

1 Match the items, joining them with the conjunction or sentence connector given.
2 Write either one or two sentences, as appropriate. There may be more than one way of joining the sentences.
3 1 Amy was on the phone for hours — a it's a public holiday
4 she always finds time to talk to students — b such a move would be controversial
5 the restaurant's closed next Monday — c we got onto the motorway
6 he's a seismologist — d I noticed she'd been crying
7 tuition fees have been increased — e he studies earthquakes
8 we travelled much faster — f the number of applications has fallen
9 the government is being urged to build — g his shoes were black 10 more nuclear power stations — h how busy she is 156

1 (later)  Amy was on the phone for hours. Later, I noticed she'd been crying.
2 (no matter)
3 (because)
4 (that is to say)
5 (as a result)
6 (once)
7 (however)
8 (except that)

Choose the correct word or phrase. Sometimes both are possible.

1 She isn't very interested in science subjects. On the contrary / On the other hand, she really loves studying history.
2 There are a number of problems with your suggestion. At first / Firstly, it's very expensive. Then there is the question of getting planning permission.
3 I had hardly / scarcely stepped through the door when the telephone rang.
4 He walked quickly down the corridor before / until he reached the last door.
5 My aunt was followed into the room by my two nieces and three nephews. Lastly / At last came my uncle, carrying all the suitcases.
6 I knew I had the right qualifications and experience for the job. Even though / Even so, I felt very nervous as I walked in to face the interview panel.
7 At college I had only two tutorials a week, but this didn’t mean I had nothing to do the rest of the time. On the contrary / On the other hand, I studied at least six days a week.
8 I didn’t know anything about your illness before / until your mother mentioned it.
9 Once he’d done the washing up and got the children to bed, Matt sat down in front of the fire. Lastly / At last he had some time to himself.
10 There was a loud bang. At first / Firstly, she thought it was thunder. Then she realised it must have been an explosion.
11 Even though / Even so the snow had stopped falling, it was still freezing cold.
12 We had no sooner / hardly started driving than the children said, ‘Are we there yet?’
3. Complete the sentences using a word from box A and a phrase from box B.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>A</th>
<th>B</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>consequently</td>
<td>she's looking for a new flat</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>in case</td>
<td>it isn't very heavy</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>in contrast</td>
<td>there's a power cut</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>meanwhile</td>
<td>in Marketing they get an hour</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>otherwise</td>
<td>the weather's bad</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>whereas</td>
<td>we'll have to walk miles to the bridge</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>while</td>
<td>I prefer Italian</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>unless</td>
<td>my parents are letting me borrow theirs</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

1. I'm saving up to buy my own car. Meanwhile, my parents are letting me borrow theirs.
2. I always keep some candles in the house.
3. My husband adores Chinese food.
4. The boat is made entirely of fibreglass.
5. We should be able to wade across the river.
6. Your sister can stay with us.
7. The lunch break in the Personnel Department is 30 minutes.

8. We're planning on having a picnic in the park.

4. Complete these extracts from emails. Choose from the words and phrases in the boxes.

A
although at first because because of despite during even so even though firstly while

I'm in Jamaica for a week. (1) Although it's a work visit, I've had a few days free, so I decided to have a go at windsurfing. (2) I'm here. I'd never tried it before (3) I'm not a very good swimmer. (4) I found it really difficult to stay upright, but it wasn't long until I was going quite fast. (5) I didn't go far from the beach.

B
as well as as well as before even though hardly in addition in spite of no sooner until what's more

The weather here is terrible. (1) Heavy rain, we've had gale force winds. (2) The bad weather, we're doing a lot of walking. Yesterday was typical. When we got up it was wet - of course - and we decided to wait (3) the rain stopped. The sun came out by midday and we set off for Wicklow Hill. We had (4) started to climb than it began pouring down! (5) the wind was so strong, we were almost blown over. But we still got to the top!
Use of English

Read the text below and think of the word which best fits each space. Use only one word for each space. The exercise begins with an example (0).

Psychology: the science of the mind

Psychology is the study of the mind, by far the most sophisticated machine (1)……………… Earth. But how can (2)……………… as inaccessible as the mind be studied? Even (3)……………… we were to open someone’s skull and look inside, we would only see the brain, not the mind in action. (4)……………… we cannot observe the mind directly, it controls everything we do. Therefore, psychologists study human behaviour in (5)……………… to discover (6)……………… the mind works. The behaviour (7)……………… interests them ranges from simple acts such as feeding, to much more complex skills (8)……………… language. Psychologists measure behaviour, and often use statistics to show that (9)……………… they find is reliable evidence and not just down to chance. The scientific knowledge gained from this research is then used by practising psychologists. For example, clinical psychologists – (10)……………… make up the largest group of specialists – help people with emotional problems (11)……………… with their difficulties. Research findings are not only used by psychologists, but also by other professionals who are concerned (12)……………… the ways people interact – doctors, teachers and judges, to name just a (13)………………. A substantial body of psychological knowledge has been built up since the nineteenth century. Nevertheless, the enormous complexity of the mind (14)……………… that there will always be more to learn about it, (15)……………… much research is undertaken.
Grammar focus task

Without looking back at the text, complete the sentences with connecting words or phrases.

1 Even if we were to open someone's skull and look inside, we would only see the brain, not the mind in action.

2 We cannot observe the mind directly, it controls everything we do. Psychologists study human behaviour... to discover how the mind works.

3 A substantial body of psychological knowledge has been built up since the nineteenth century... the enormous complexity of the mind means that there will always be more to learn about it... much research is undertaken.

Writing

You have been invited to write an article for an international student magazine, The World Today, about healthy eating. The article should explain:

- the principles of healthy eating
- why healthy eating is important
- what the consequences are of not eating healthily.

Write your article in 220-260 words.

Writing hints

This task gives you the chance to practise using words and phrases that connect ideas within and across sentences:

although, in order to, as well as, therefore, consequently, in addition, above all

Useful language

essentially, it is of particular significance for, it is particularly important, by eating well, can lead to, might result in
A Context listening

1 You are going to hear an interview with a government minister talking about crime statistics. Before you listen, look at these newspaper headlines and match them with the crimes they refer to.
   a burglary
   b firearm offences
   c street crime
   d car crime
   e vandalism

   STREET ART SPRAYED IN CAPITAL

   More kids attacked in mobile thefts

   GUN CONTROLS FAILING, SAYS POLICE CHIEF

   Gang linked to 500 break-ins

   VEHICLE THEFT COST £800M

2 Listen to the interview. Which crimes are mentioned?

3 Listen again. According to the minister, are these statements true or false?
   1 The chance of being a victim of crime has fallen by 40% in the last ten years. ........
   2 Peter Miles appointed a new head of the police service. ........
   3 The government has spent a lot of money on CCTV. ........
   4 The government copied the Make Amends scheme from another country. ........
   5 More people get mugged now than ten years ago. ........
   6 More people sell drugs now than ten years ago. ........
   7 The figures in the report are completely accurate. ........
   8 Violent crime is on the increase. ........

4 Listen again and complete these extracts with the exact words used in the recording.
   1 Yes, indeed, I was delighted when I ......................... the figures.
   2 This has meant that a much higher proportion of offenders ......................... during the last ten years than ever before.
   3 People ......................... less graffiti in city centres, for example.
   4 These ......................... a particular target for street robbers.
   5 Well, it's certainly true that more people ......................... selling drugs.
   6 If I can give a personal example, my house ......................... only last week.

Are the verbs you have written in an active form or a passive form?
18

B Grammar

1 Using the passive

START POINT

The government has published a report today. (active: focus on the government)
A report has been published by the government today. (passive: focus on a report) (See Appendix 13.1 for the main passive verb forms and Unit 23 for passives with introductory it, e.g. It is claimed that ...)

We often use passive verbs
• when the agent (the person or thing that performs the action) is not known:
  My house was broken into only last week.
• when the agent is 'people in general':
  The details can be found at the back of the report. (= anyone can find these details)
• when the agent is unimportant, or is obvious:
  A much higher proportion of offenders have been arrested. (= the agent is clearly the police)
• when we don't want to say who the agent is:
  It may be that some minor mistakes were made in collecting the figures. (= she might not want to say who was responsible for the mistakes)
• to describe procedures or processes, focusing on what was done rather than who did it:
  The figures were collected over a ten-year period.
• to avoid repeating the agent in a description or narrative:
  The police have good use of CCTV. It's been introduced into many city centres, rather than
  The police have made good use of CCTV. The police have introduced it into many city centres.

In informal contexts we often use active sentences with a subject such as people, somebody/ someone, something, we, they or you even when we do not know who the agent is. In more formal contexts we often use a passive to avoid mentioning an agent:
People are seeing less graffiti in city centres. or more formally Less graffiti is being seen ...

Some verbs describing states (e.g. have, become, seem) are not usually made passive:
Other countries have a similar policy. (not A similar policy is had by other countries.)

Other verbs describing states can be passive (e.g. intend, know, own):
Our latest poster campaign is intended to reassure people.
(See Appendix 13.2 and 13.3.)

2 Active and passive verb forms

Compare these passive forms of active verb patterns.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Active</th>
<th>Passive</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>They started to keep records ten years ago.</td>
<td>Records started to be kept only ten years ago.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(See Appendix 13.4.)</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>This figure is expected to fall as they start using new technology to trace stolen phones.</td>
<td>This figure is expected to fall rapidly as new technology starts being used to trace stolen mobiles.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(See Appendix 13.5.)</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
They made them repair the damage.
(See Appendix 13.6.)
The police caught them selling drugs.
(See Appendix 13.7.)
We expect the figure to fall rapidly.
We want the crime rate to fall still further.
(See Appendix 13.8 and 13.9.)

People found guilty of vandalism are made to repair the damage they've caused.
More people were caught selling drugs.

This figure is expected to fall rapidly.
Other verbs in this pattern have no passive:
(not The crime rate is wanted to fall still further.)

Perfect forms are also possible:
More people claim to have been the victims of crime.
More people have been caught selling drugs this year than ever before.
This figure is expected to have fallen by next year.

Most passives with modal verbs are formed with modal + be + past participle or modal + have been + past participle:
The reason for this can be found in the huge increase in the number of mobile phones.
Some of the fall might have been caused by lower rates of reporting. (past)

3 Passive forms of verbs with two objects

START POINT

I was delighted when our crime statistics department gave me the figures. (active)
I was delighted when I was given the figures by our Crime Statistics Department. (passive)
(See Unit 9.)

Verbs followed by object + complement in the active have one passive form:
Attitudes to committing crime have changed significantly since Peter Miles was appointed head of the police service.
(See Appendix 13.10.)

4 get + past participle; get / have + object + past participle

START POINT

It's true that more people get mugged today than they did ten years ago, or ... are mugged ...
People think more carefully about committing a crime if they know they might get caught, or ... might be caught.
Particularly in speech, we can use get + past participle instead of be + past participle.

Get + past participle is most commonly used to talk about events we see as unwelcome (e.g. get mugged). However, we can also use it with events the speaker sees as positive:
When we got elected ten years ago ...
We don't use ger + past participle with verbs describing states:

He was known to be a highly effective senior police officer. (not He got known to be ...)

We can use either have + object + past participle or (more informally) ger + object + past participle:

- to say that someone arranges for someone else to do something for them:

  Virtually every person in my road has had/got a burglar alarm fitted recently.

- to say that something unexpected, and usually unpleasant, happens to someone:

  I had my TV and stereo taken. or very informally I got my TV and stereo taken.

We can use a reflexive pronoun with ger (not have) to suggest that the subject was responsible for the event:

People will think more carefully about committing a crime if they know they're going to get themselves arrested.

C Grammar exercises

1. Complete these texts with the appropriate form, active or passive, of the verb.

A

Acupuncture (1) has been practised (practise) in China for over 3000 years, and today it (2) is/was used/was widely used alongside conventional medicine. In traditional Chinese medicine, no symptom (3) is/are viewed (view) in isolation. Instead, the body and the mind (4) are/are evaluated (evaluate) together. The goal of acupuncture (5) is/to be considered (be) to create harmony in the body by restoring the flow of Qi (pronounced 'chee'). This (6) is/are considered (consider) to be the life force involved in all body functions. Qi (7) is/are collected (collect) in the organs and (8) travels/is travelled (travel) through energy channels in the body. Acupuncturists (9) believe (believe) that diseases (10) occur/is occurring (occur) when the circulation of Qi (11) is/is prevented (prevent), whether by injuries, heat, cold or other factors. By redirecting the flow of Qi, acupuncture can (12) help (help) cure disease.
B

The first mobile phones (1) .................................. (construct) in Stockholm in the 1950s – but were not very mobile! They could only (2) .................................. (use) in cars because the receiver and transmitter (3) .................................. (weigh) over 40 kilos and had to (4) .................................. (carry) in the boot. But technology (5) .................................. (advance) so quickly that by the 1990s mobiles could (6) .................................. (hold) in the hand and people talking on their mobiles (7) .................................. (become) a familiar sight everywhere from trains to restaurants. Of course, not everyone welcomed mobiles, and in the mid-1990s their use (8) .................................. (ban) from many schools to prevent children using them in classrooms. Even recent research which (9) .................................. (suggest) that prolonged exposure to emissions from mobiles might be a health hazard (10) .................................. (not discourage) their use, and analysts now (11) .................................. (predict) that by 2025, 95% of all electronic communication (12) .................................. (conduct) by mobile phone.

2. Write passive sentences with a similar meaning to the first. Start with the word(s) given and use the verb in italics. In some cases, the passive is not possible.

1 They paid him a million dollars to appear in the film.
He was paid a million dollars to appear in the film.

2 His name is Robin, but his friends call him Bobby.
His name is Robin, but ........................................................................

3 Dr Davies demonstrated the procedure to us in the chemistry lab.
We ........................................................................................................

4 The managing director will announce the news to staff later today.
The news ..............................................................................................

5 They have offered me a new job in Hungary.
I ............................................................................................................

6 People saw him push the goalkeeper just before he scored.
He ..........................................................................................................

7 The medical staff have declared the surgery a complete success.
The surgery ........................................................................................

8 We watched the rescuers pull the man from the sea.
The rescuers ........................................................................................

9 My English teacher suggested the idea to me.
I ............................................................................................................

10 My uncle bought me this necklace when he was in Zimbabwe.
This necklace ....................................................................................

165
3 Complete the conversations using the pairs of verbs in the box. Use be + past participle, get + (object) + past participle, or have + (object) + past participle. Add the object in brackets where this is supplied and give alternatives where possible.

| own – break into | rob – steal | cut – clean | catch – infect | wake up – throw out |

1 A: Did you hear about Natasha?
   B: What happened?
   A: She was / got robbed on her way to college.
   B: No! Is she okay?
   A: Yes, she's fine, but she .................... (her handbag)

2 A: You're looking tired.
   B: I ......................... early by my neighbour's dog.
   A: Don't they keep it inside at night?
   B: Usually, yes, but I think it must ..................... because it was barking so much.

3 A: James looked different somehow.
   B: He'd ..................... (his hair)
   A: Yes, and I think he'd ...................... It looked much smarter! (his jacket)

4 A: What an amazing house!
   B: It ......................... by Jason Norman. You know, the rock singer.
   A: I know him, yes.
   B: The problem is, he's never there, and it keeps ......................

5 A: What happened to your coat?
   B: I ......................... on some barbed wire as I was climbing over a fence. I hurt my arm, too. (it)
   A: Ouch. That looks nasty. You ought to go to the doctor. It might ......................
Rewrite the underlined part of the sentence using a passive form where possible. If it is not possible, write 'No passive'.

1 When they invited Malcolm to give the main presentation at the conference he was delighted and wrote immediately to accept.

   Malcolm was invited to give...

2 During our military training they made us run five kilometres before breakfast.

3 Sandra felt that the pay and conditions at Trimco were unsatisfactory, and many of her colleagues seemed to support her.

4 We wanted Barbara to come to the party.

5 I still have only a very vague memory of the explosion. I remember someone asking me to leave the building because there was a gas leak, but not much after that.

6 She was really unhappy that they hadn't picked her for the team.

7 Although at first the children were frightened by Mr Jennings' strictness, after a few weeks most of the children in the class came to like him.

8 They caught him trying to break into an expensive sports car.

9 More than anything else, our cat likes people tickling him behind the ears.

10 My children impressed me yesterday. They did all the washing and ironing without anyone asking them.

11 Someone heard her remark that Nicholas was too old for the job.

12 Henry performed badly in the last match, and we need him to play better this week.

13 People expect over 100,000 demonstrators to march through the capital in protest against the government's decision to go to war.
Reading
You are going to read a newspaper article. Six paragraphs have been removed. Choose from the paragraphs A-G the one which fits each gap 1-6. There is one extra paragraph which you do not need to use.

Alexander McCall Smith: Terrible Orchestra?
Bestselling author Alexander McCall Smith explains why he started a band for useless musicians

There are two emotions a parent can feel when watching the school orchestra perform. One is pride – the most common emotion in the circumstances – and the other is envy. Wouldn’t it have been great fun to be in a school orchestra and now... it’s too late. Or is it?

1. These musical islands are full of amateur orchestras, but most of these are really rather good. We wanted something that would cater for those who really were very weak players, those who might have got as far as Grade 4 on their instruments and hovered around that level for years. So we formed the Really Terrible Orchestra in Edinburgh, a city known for having a number of fine amateur orchestras. The name was carefully chosen: what it said was what you would get.

2. Those who joined generally lived up to the name. Some, though, stood out for their musical weakness. One cello player some years ago even had the notes played by the open strings written in pencil on the bridge of the instrument. Another – a clarinetist – had had only three or four lessons and could not go above the middle B flat. He played only the bottom notes, and not very well.

3. Our heads turned, we decided to hold a concert at the Edinburgh Festival Fringe. The important thing about the Fringe is that anybody can perform, with the result that there are always a certain number of appalling performances which attract tiny audiences.

4. The fortunes of the orchestra continued to improve, even if its playing did not. We presumed to make two CDs, which somehow got into the hands of radio stations abroad. We have now been played more than once by the Australian Broadcasting Corporation, by the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, and by National Public Radio in the United States.
Even if the orchestra never gets to New York, that will be enough. Of course New York was where the famous Florence Foster Jenkins would appear, at the Carnegie Hall, and torture her audience with her terrible singing. Perhaps it's ready for an orchestra that will live up to her.

The response was overwhelming, particularly from clarinetists. I suspect that a very high proportion of the population is exposed to the clarinet at some stage and that British attics are crammed full of forgotten clarinet cases. Many of these were dusted off for the first meeting of the Really Terrible Orchestra, as were various other instruments. We appointed a professional conductor, Richard Neville Towle, a well-known Edinburgh musician and founder of the ensemble Ludus Baroque, and we began to rehearse. The result was cacophony.

The Really Terrible Orchestra, however, was an immediate hit. The concert sold out well in advance, as it has done every year since, attracting an audience of more than 500 people, some not actually related to the players.

‘We are pretty awful,’ admitted one of the bassoonists. There is a very wide range of playing abilities, she added, noting that she herself had only passed Grade 3, the examination normally taken by 11-year-old British schoolchildren.

Eight years ago my wife and I decided that we would do something about never having played in the school orchestra. We are both very challenged musicians: at the time she played the flute — hesitantly — and I played the bassoon — extremely incompetently.

Which makes one wonder: what is it that makes people want to listen to a group of extremely bad musicians torturing a piece that most of them cannot play? Is there something about failure and its cheerful acceptance? Whatever it is, there’s certainly something quintessentially British about it. And the orchestra does a very fine ‘Land of Hope and Glory’ — a semitone flat.

Now what has become the world’s most famous amateur orchestra is about to perform in London. The Cadogan Hall is the site of this imminent musical disaster, and all 800 tickets vanished in a trice.

An orchestra needs to perform, and we decided to hold a concert. Wisely, we took the view that the audience should be given a glass of wine, or even more than a glass, before the concert. This assisted their enjoyment and understanding of our idiosyncratic performance. Virtually every piece we played was greeted with shouts of applause and a standing ovation.

The orchestra’s fame spread. Earlier this year the New York Times, for a mention in which many professional musicians would sell their souls, devoted a quarter of a page to an article about the Really Terrible Orchestra. A few days after the appearance of the article the orchestra’s chairman, Peter Stevenson, received an approach from the same New York impresario who had first taken the Beatles to the US.
Grammar focus task

Without looking back at the text, complete the sentences with an appropriate form (active or passive) of the verb in brackets.

1. Eight years ago my wife and I ...................... that we would do something about never having played in the school orchestra. (decide)
2. I suspect that a very high proportion of the population ...................... to the clarinet at some stage ... (expose)
3. We ...................... a professional conductor, Richard Neville Towle, ... (appoint)
4. This ...................... their enjoyment and understanding of our idiosyncratic performance. (assist)
5. Virtually every piece we played ...................... with shouts of applause and a standing ovation. (greet)
6. ... there are always a certain number of appalling performances which ...................... tiny audiences. (attract)
7. The concert ...................... well in advance, as it has done every year since, ... (sell out)
8. We have now ...................... more than once by the Australian Broadcasting Corporation, ... (play)
9. Now what ...................... the world's most famous amateur orchestra is about to perform in London. (become)
The following extracts are taken from letters to a national newspaper on the subject of the importance of university education. You decide to write a letter responding to the points raised and giving your own views.

... University shouldn’t be for the rich elite alone. Students from all backgrounds should be encouraged to go....

... The country doesn’t need large numbers of university-educated students. Over the next few years we are likely to see more and more graduates who are unemployed or who work in unskilled jobs....

... Your correspondent Mr Smithers (12th July) is wrong. It is actually in everyone’s interest to contribute to universities. Universities need money, and this must come from the whole of society....

... Creating a pool of university-educated people contributes enormously to our economic development and to producing knowledgeable leaders of our society....

Write your letter in 300–350 words. Do not write any postal addresses.

Writing hints

This task gives you a chance to practise using a variety of passive forms:

- are learned, are expected to pay, are being asked to fund, are being educated, will be left behind

Useful language

- graduate (verb), a graduate, skilled / unskilled jobs, I am writing in response to, the opinion was expressed
19 Reporting

structures in the reported clause - that-clause, to-infinitive and -ing; verb tense in reporting; modal verbs in reporting; reporting questions; should in that-clauses; present subjunctive

A Context listening

1. If you lived close to an airport, what problems would you be most concerned about?

2. There are plans to expand the small airport near the village where Kath and James live. Kath has been to a meeting to discuss the plans, and she tells James about it. Listen to their conversation. Identify three advantages and three problems of the airport expansion that were mentioned at the meeting.

3. Listen again and complete these extracts with the words you hear.

   1. They told us that the expansion would create 2000 jobs directly.
   2. They a growing number of people in the local area supported the expansion.
   3. They us informed about future developments.
   4. They there and look at the plans in detail.
   5. She the airport authorities were not telling the truth.
   6. She our local politicians with our objections.
   7. She also suggested inviting the Minister for Transport to hear our complaints.

   I to her.

4. Put the past tense verbs you have written in one of the columns according to the pattern that follows them. Which one of the verbs can also be followed by one of the other patterns?

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>verb + that-clause</th>
<th>verb + to-infinitive</th>
<th>verb + object + that-clause</th>
<th>verb + object + to-infinitive</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>told</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
1. Structures in the reported clause: that- clause

Reporting verbs can be followed by a number of structures in the reported clause. The most important ones with that- clauses are given below. (See Appendix 14.)

- verb + that (See Appendix 14.1.)

  Sue reckoned that the expansion would damage tourism.

  I agree that the plans will change the area.

- verb + object + that (See Appendix 14.2.)

  He convinced me that noise wouldn’t be a problem for us. (not He convinced that noise wouldn’t be a problem for us.)

- verb + (object) + that (See Appendix 14.3.)

  She warned (us) that the airport authorities were not telling the truth.

Compare the use of tell and say in the reported clause:

They told us that the expansion would create around 2000 jobs. (tell + object + that)

They said (to us) that it might increase tourism in the region. (say + (to + object) + that)

- verb + that or verb + object + to-infinitive (See Appendix 14.4.)

  I found that his reassurances were quite convincing; or more formally

  I found his reassurances to be quite convincing.

- verb + (to / wish + object) + that (See Appendix 14.5.)

  They admired (to us) that they’re not sure exactly how many people it will attract.

  I agree (with the anti-expansion group) that the plans will change the area.

We often leave out that in informal contexts, particularly with the most common reporting verbs (e.g. reckon, say, tell, think). However, we don’t usually leave it out if the that- clause doesn’t immediately follow the verb:

Sue reckoned (that) the expansion would actually damage tourism.

I agree with the anti-expansion group that the plans will change the area.
2 Structures in the reported clause: to-infinitive and -ing

These are the most important structures with a to-infinitive or -ing form in the reported clause:

- verb + to-infinitive (See Appendix 14.6.)
  - I've decided to wait and see what happens next.

- verb + object + to-infinitive (See Appendix 14.7.)
  - They encouraged us to go to the village hall.

- verb + (object) + to-infinitive (See Appendix 14.8.)
  - I expected them to be confrontational or
    - I expected to hear more objections.

- verb + to-infinitive or verb + that (See Appendix 14.9.)
  - They promised to keep us informed or They promised that they would keep us informed.

- verb + object + to-infinitive or verb + object + that (See Appendix 14.10.)
  - She advised us to write to our local politicians with our objections or
  - She advised us that we should write to our local politicians with our objections.

- verb + -ing or verb + that (See Appendix 14.11.)
  - She suggested inviting the Minister for Transport to hear our complaints or
  - She suggested that we should invite the Minister for Transport (not She suggested to invite ...)

3 Verb tense in reporting

START POINT

When reporting, we often change the tense that was in the original:

'The airport authorities were not telling the truth.' → She warned that the airport authorities were not telling the truth.

'We carried out the trial flights last month.' → Mr Kelly said that they had carried out the trial flights last month or Mr Kelly said that they carried out ...

We don't usually change a past perfect verb:

'We had hoped for more support.' → He said they had hoped for more support.

We can use a present tense verb for a situation that still exists when we report it:

James said he's worried about the nuclear power station on the coast or ... said he was worried ...

We usually use a past tense in the reporting clause. However, we can use the present simple to report current news or views, what is always said or what many people say:

I hear that Boeing 737s will be landing there.

Everyone I've spoken to thinks it's awful.

4 Modal verbs in reporting

A modal verb in the original sometimes changes in the report:

- will changes to would, can to could, and may usually changes to might:
  - 'It may increase tourism in the area.' → They said it might increase tourism in the region.
However, if the situation we are reporting still exists or is in the future, modals don’t change if there is a present tense verb in the reporting clause:

‘We’ll be displaying copies of the plans in the village hall.’ → They say they’ll be putting copies of the plans in the village hall.

We can use either form if there is a past tense verb in the reporting clause:

‘The expansion will create 2000 jobs.’ → They told us that the expansion will / would create around 2000 jobs.

- shall changes to would to talk about the future, and to should to report suggestions, recommendations and requests for advice:
  ‘I shall decide later.’ → He said he would decide later.
  ‘What shall we do next?’ → He asked what they should do next.

- must doesn’t change or changes to had to when it is used to say it is necessary to do something:
  ‘You must look at the plans before making any decisions.’ → He said I must / had to look at the plans before making any decisions.

Had to is more natural in speech.

- could, should, would, might, ought to and used to don’t usually change in the report:
  ‘We ought to write to our local politicians.’ → She suggested we ought to write to our local politicians.

5 Reporting questions

START POINT

What are your views on this?” → They asked what our views were. or They asked (for) our views.

Have you got any more questions?” → They wanted to know if / whether we had any more questions.

(See Unit 16 on the choice between whether and if.)

The usual word order in the reported wh-, if- or whether-clause is the one we would use in a statement, and we don’t use a question mark or the do auxiliary:

‘How exactly will it boost tourism?’ → I asked how exactly it would boost tourism.

‘Where did you get your figures from?’ → She asked where they had got their figures from.

We can use a negative form of do to report a negative question:

‘Why don’t you want the airport to expand?’ → He asked why I didn’t want the airport to expand.

If the original question begins what, which or who, followed by be + complement, we can put the complement before or after be in the report:

‘Who’s Sue Ray?’ → He asked who Sue Ray was. or He asked who was Sue Ray.

To report a question with should asking for advice or information, we can use a to-infinitive:

‘What should we do to protest?’ → Someone asked Sue what to do to protest. or ... what we should do to protest.

We don’t use a to-infinitive to report a why question:

‘Why should we believe them?’ → She wanted to know why we should believe them. (not She wanted to know why to believe them.)
6 Should in that-clauses; the present subjunctive

We sometimes use should + bare infinitive or should + be + past participle (passive) in a that-clause to report advice, orders, requests and suggestions about things that are desirable or need to be done:

I suggested that she should contact our MP. (= suggestion)

She demanded that we should be shown the details of the flight paths. (= order)

They urged that the expansion plans should not be rejected. (= advice)

We don't use this pattern to report statements with other functions:

She warned us that the airport authorities were not telling the truth. (= warning) (not He warned us that the airport authorities should not be telling the truth.)

In formal contexts, we can often leave out should and use only the bare infinitive or be + past participle (the present subjunctive):

I suggested that she contact our MP.

They urged that the expansion plans not be rejected.

(> See Appendix 14.12.)

C Grammar exercises

1 Complete the sentences with an appropriate form of the reporting verbs in the box. Add a preposition or pronoun if necessary.

check claim commiserate emphasise explain grumble persuade reassure reveal whisper

1 Before I parked my car outside Frank's house, I ..................... him that this would be okay.

2 It took a long time to feed all the customers, and by the time we got around to the last ones ...................... that their food was cold. But I just ignored their complaints.

3 I know that Philip enjoys his work as a gardener, but when he ...................... to be the best job in the world, I wasn't sure whether he was being serious or not.

4 The company hadn't paid me for the work I'd done for them, but when I phoned, they ...................... that a cheque was on its way.

5 Carlson didn't want to speak to the police yet. He didn't want to ...................... anyone that he knew who the murderer was until he had concrete evidence.

6 When Teresa handed me the report she said that it was only a first draft. She ...................... that it should remain confidential until the statistics had been verified.
7 Just before I stood up to make my speech, my friend Jenny came up close and me that my shirt was hanging out at the back.
8 Terry said that he was going to re-paint the car himself, but I managed to that this was a bad idea and that he should get it done professionally.
9 When I heard about her disastrous job interview, I phoned Martha to her.
10 At first, the security guard stopped me going in, but when I....................him that I had an appointment with someone in the building, he let me through the barrier.

Stephen is an engineering student who has applied for a job when he leaves university.
Complete these extracts from Stephen’s letter of application using the notes in brackets. Use a that, to-infinitive or -ing clause in your answer and give alternatives where possible.

Dear Mr Clarke,

I am writing with reference to the post of Senior Research Engineer advertised in Engineering Monthly. I assume
(1) the post is / the post to be... (the post) still vacant.
My supervisor, Professor Ken Newton, has advised
(2) (apply) and has assured (3) (my research), which is described in detail in the attached papers, will be of interest to you.
I expect (4) (complete) my PhD by the end of the year, and I propose (5) (publish) the findings of my research soon afterwards. I believe (6) (my qualifications and experience) appropriate for the post.
I hope (7) (hear) from you in the near future.

Yours sincerely,

Stephen Finch

Stephen Finch
Stephen got an interview, but wasn't offered the job. Complete his account of the interview to his supervisor.

“They asked (8) ................................ (explain) the main purposes of my research.
I (9) .................................... (tell) I was working on a new hydrogen fuel cell. I admitted (10) .................................... (have problems) in the early stages of the work. They were very helpful. They suggested (11) ........................ (look at) Chris Hume's work at the University of Harford. They agreed (12) ................................ (me / my research) has many practical applications. They even invited (13) ................................ (visit) their laboratories if it would help in my research.

Although they didn't offer me the job, they recommended (14) ................................ (write) to them again after I've finished my PhD, and in the meantime they agreed (15) .................................... (contact) if any other similar jobs come up. Of course, they couldn't promise (16) .................................... (offer) a job in the future, but they were very encouraging.’

3 Change the sentences into reported speech. Give alternative tenses where possible.

1 'I broke my leg when I was skiing.' → She said …[(that)] she broke / had broken her leg …
when she was skiing .

2 'It's going to rain later today.' → He thinks …………………… later today.

3 'Why don't you walk to school any more?' → She asked …………………… .

4 'I don't think this is my coat.' → She didn't think …………………… .

5 'Diane can speak six languages.' He said …………………… .

6 'Are you going to college next year?' → She asked …………………… next year.

7 'You must set the alarm when you leave the house.' → She said …………………… .

8 'Who was your favourite teacher when you were at school?' → She asked me …………………… when I was at school.

9 'Where have I left my handbag?' → She couldn't remember …………………… .

10 'I'm playing football this afternoon.' → He said …………………… yesterday afternoon.

11 'I won't be able to give you a lift after all.' → He said …………………… , so I'll have to take a taxi.

12 'How much do you earn?' → He wanted to know …………………… .

13 'We might go to France again in the summer.' → She mentioned …………………… in the summer.

14 'What shall I do with this painting?' → He wanted to know …………………… .
The organisation Stop Poverty! campaigns for more aid and fairer trade for developing countries. Report these items from a speech made by its leader.
Use a that-clause which includes, if possible, a present subjunctive.

1 Double-aid!

3 Millions of people are being cheated of a proper living!

5 The current trading rules are not fair!

7 Don’t rewrite trade rules to favour richer countries!

8 Help developing countries to expand their own industries!

9 Stop Poverty! is to launch a new public awareness campaign!

1 She proposed that aid be doubled.
2 She demanded ......................
3 She argued ....................... 6 She urged .........................
4 She recommended ................... 7 She insisted ......................
5 She said ......................... 8 She advised ......................

9 She announced ....................
Exam practice

Listening

You will hear two professional photographers, Alan and Maggie, talking about various aspects of their work. Decide whether the opinions are expressed by only one of the speakers or whether the speakers both express the opinion.

Write A for Alan,

M for Maggie,

or B for Both.

1. Studio photography is more predictable than landscape photography.
2. Careful preparation can make people look unnatural in photographs.
3. Photographers have to be good communicators.
4. Not having a formal training can be an advantage.
5. I welcome criticism of my photographs.
6. Digital technology has had a negative impact on photography.

Grammar focus task

In these extracts from the discussion, are either of the alternative endings also correct? Write 'yes' or 'no' next to each option.

1. My art teacher suggested that I go along.
   a. ... me to go along.
   b. ... that I should go along.

2. I encourage them to look at the location in a different way.
   a. ... that they look at the location in a different way.
   b. ... to look at the location in a different way.

3. Cartier-Bresson claimed that photography is a way of life.
   a. ... photography to be a way of life.
   b. ... it that photography is a way of life.

4. It’s great when people consider that an exhibition of mine is a success.
   a. ... it that an exhibition of mine is a success.
   b. ... an exhibition of mine to be a success.

5. A colleague of mine persuaded me to switch to a digital camera.
   a. ... that I switch to a digital camera.
   b. ... to switch to a digital camera.
Writing

Your company sent five senior managers to a language school in Britain this year to improve their English. Read this message from your Director, on which you have made some notes, and the comments made by the managers. Use this information to write a report for your Director.

Weekend trips interesting (e.g. London, Oxford). Evening social events arranged by students.

3 weeks too short (even with 3½ hours of tuition per week).

School disorganised (e.g. kept changing our classrooms).

Excellent teaching: Course too short.

Stayed with local families: Very friendly. Food awful.

Had to pay for books, weekend trips, etc. Expensive.

Now that the managers are back from their English course, I’d like you to get some feedback from them. Can you please prepare a report covering:

- quality of the teaching and accommodation
- social activities
- problems

Add your recommendation on whether we should repeat the exercise with the same school next year. Was it good value for money?

Thanks.

3 weeks

£780 per person per week.

Write your report in 180–220 words.

Writing hints

This task gives you the chance to practise reporting, particularly in sentences with their clauses:

The managers said that the teaching was excellent.

One participant complained that the food wasn’t very good.

Some participants noted that the school was rather disorganised.
A Context listening

1 You are going to listen to two college friends talking about adventure holidays. What activities are shown in these pictures?

2 Listen to the conversation. Which of these items does Alison advise Ben to take with him?

- air tanks for scuba diving
- cooking equipment for camping
- a face mask
- insect repellent
- leather trainers
- a life jacket
- plastic trainers
- a sleeping bag
- a snorkel
- a sun hat
- a tent

3 Listen again. Change these sentences to show exactly what Alison or Ben said.

1 I went for the adventure holiday based in Brisbane.
2 One of the local organisers met me at the airport.
3 They should provide all the equipment.
4 But you don’t have to be a very good swimmer.
5 Preferably plastic trainers.
6 By the end of the holiday I was exhausted, but I was very fit!
7 You’ll certainly need some insect repellent.
8 I don’t imagine you’ll need to take a tent and cooking things.
Grammar

Substitution

1 one / ones

START POINT

They do diving holidays in quite a few places. I went for the one based in Brisbane. (one = diving holiday; one replaces a singular countable noun or a noun phrase)

Take a couple of pairs of old trainers – preferably plastic ones. (ones = trainers; ones replaces a plural noun)

We don’t usually use one / ones:

• to replace an uncountable noun. Instead we use some:
  Don’t forget insect repellent. You’ll certainly need some. (not ... need-one.)

• to talk about a specific item. Compare:
  Do you know anyone who’s got a sleeping bag? I was hoping to borrow one.
  Have you still got your sleeping bag? Can I borrow it? (= a particular sleeping bag)

• after the, unless it is followed by an adjective:
  ‘Are these your trainers?’ ‘No, the leather ones are mine.’
  or unless there is a descriptive phrase after one / ones:
  They had a number of adventure holidays on offer, and I chose the one that was cheapest.
  I went for the one based in Brisbane.

• after a possessive adjective (e.g. my). Instead we prefer a possessive pronoun (e.g. mine), or a phrase with an adjective:
  You can borrow mine, or You can borrow my old one, rather than You can borrow my one.
  A one / ones is sometimes used after a possessive adjective in informal speech.

We don’t usually use ones on its own to replace a noun phrase. Compare:

‘You’ll need trainers.’ ‘Okay, I’ll bring some. or I’ll bring some old ones.’ (not I’ll bring ones.)

We can either include or leave out one / ones after which, whichever; superlatives; either, neither, another, each (but not every); the first/second/last; the other; this, that, these, those; and often after colour adjectives:

‘I can’t decide whether to go on the adventure holiday to Thailand or Australia.’ ‘I’m sure you’ll enjoy whichever (one) you go on.’

Get your own facemask. Buy the best (one) you can afford.

I’ve had three holidays with TransWorld Adventures, but the first (one) was the best.

I’ve got these two sleeping bags, but this (one) is rather dirty. (these ones and those ones are only used in informal speech.)

We had two small boats to practise sailing in. One was green and the other (one) was red. I used to sail in the green (one).
2 so + auxiliary verb + subject; neither, nor, not ... either

START POINT

We can use so instead of a clause after certain verbs to do with opinions (e.g. expect, suppose, think), but not after others (e.g. accept, know, be sure):

'Will I be met at the airport?' 'I expect so.'

'Apparently, the mozzies are really bad at that time of year.' 'I've heard that, too.' (not I've heard so...).

(See Appendix 15.1.)

Some verbs are commonly used before not or in not... so in short, negative replies:

'You won't need a sleeping bag if it's really hot.' 'I suppose not.' or 'No, I don't suppose so.'

Other verbs like this include: appear, seem, believe, expect, imagine, think. (With the last four verbs we prefer not... so in informal contexts):

'Do you think I'll need to take a tent and cooking things?' 'I don't imagine so.' or formally 'I imagine not.'

Before not we can use be afraid (= showing regret), assume, guess, hope, presume, suspect:

'Do they offer any holidays in Africa?' 'I'm afraid not.' (not I'm not afraid so.)

We can use so + pronoun + auxiliary verb in a short answer to say that we can see that something is true, now that we have been told, particularly if it surprises us:

'It mentions a holiday in Tasmania here on their website.' 'Let's see... So it does.' (= I can see it now that you have told me)

'It says on their website that they run a holiday in Tasmania.' 'Yes, it does. I noticed that this morning.' (= I knew that before you told me) (not So it does.)

We can use so in a similar way (implying 'I knew before you told me') in short answers with verbs such as appear (after it), believe, gather, hear, say, seem, tell, understand:

'Apparently the mozzies are really bad, particularly at the time of year you'll be going.' 'So I've heard.'

We can use so + auxiliary verb + subject to say that a second person does the same thing as the person already mentioned. In the negative we use neither, nor, or not... either:

'Ted like to go to Tasmania.' 'So would I.'

'I'm not really a very good swimmer.' 'No, neither am I.' or 'Nor am I.' or 'I'm not either.' or 'I'm not a very good swimmer either.'

184
3 do so
We can use a form of do so to replace a verb and the word or phrase that follows it to complete its meaning:
When asked whether they intended to offer holidays in Africa, TransWorld Adventures said they had no plans to do so. (do so = offer holidays in Africa)
He planned to go to Australia this year, but now that he has lost his job he has little chance of doing so. (doing so = going to Australia)

We can use do so where the verb describes an action, but avoid it with verbs that describe states and habitual actions:
We went down the river by boat, and saw a lot of wildlife while doing so.
Some people didn’t enjoy the hard work, but I did. (not but I did so …)
Do so is mainly used in formal contexts. Less formally, we use do it or do that with a similar meaning:
We put up our tents by the side of the river. We did that at about four o’clock every afternoon. or formally We did so …
We use do (rather than do so) in informal English, especially after modals or perfect tenses:
‘Do they provide all the equipment?’ They should (do).’
‘Could you have gone to Thailand instead?’ Yes, I could have (done).’
We can often leave out do.

4 Ellipsis: leaving out words after auxiliary verbs and after to

START POINT

‘Have you decided yet?’ ‘Yes, I have.’ (* Yes, I have decided.)
A lot of people go to the Great Barrier Reef when they’re in Australia. Were you able to? (* Were you able to go to the Great Barrier Reef?)
We often leave out or change verbs to avoid repeating them.
(* See Appendix 15.4.)

We can sometimes use to instead of a clause beginning with a to-infinitive when it is clear what we are talking about:
I’d certainly like to go back to Australia. I hope to next year. (* to go back to Australia)

We can use to or leave it out:
- after verbs such as agree, promise, start:
  I want to read a lot about Australia before I go. I’ve started (to) already.
  (* See Appendix 15.2.)
- after most nouns (e.g. idea, opportunity) and adjectives (e.g. frightened, willing) that can be followed by a to-infinitive clause:
  I’ve always wanted to go, but I’ve never had the chance (to) before.
  I hope they don’t ask us to swim if there are sharks around. I’d be afraid (to).
  (* See Appendix 15.2.)
• after want and would like in if-clauses and wh-clauses:
  We must talk about it more. You can come over whenever you'd like (to).
  We don't use to after like:
  You can come over whenever you like.

We can use to but we can't leave it out:
• after verbs (e.g. expect, mean, need) which must have a complement:
  You can borrow mine if you need to.
  (> See Appendix 15.3.)
• after a negative:
  You don't have to sail on your own if you don't want to.

When have (got) is a main verb in the first clause or sentence, we can often use either have (got) or do to avoid repetition in the following clause or sentence:

Have you got a sleeping bag? I'm sure you have. (= I'm sure you have got a sleeping bag.) or I'm sure you do. (= I'm sure you do have a sleeping bag.)

When have is followed by a noun to describe an action (e.g. have a shower, have a shave, have a good time) we usually use do:

I wasn't really expecting to have a good time, but I did.

When we use the verb be in the previous sentence or clause, the to-infinitive form of be is repeated in the next:

I'm not a very good swimmer. 'You don't have to be.' (not You don't have to.)

C Grammar exercises

1 Read the underlined parts of these dialogues. Cross out the words which can be left out.

1 A: What was wrong with Sue?
   B: She was frightened, or at least she appeared to be frightened.

2 A: You should have asked me. I could have given you a lift into town.
   B: Thanks, but I didn't like to ask you. I know how busy you are.

3 A: Has Sarah eaten anything today?
   B: No, I don't think she has eaten anything today.

4 A: My grandmother would have been shocked by all the changes in the village.
   B: Yes, I'm sure she would have been shocked.

5 A: Don't forget we're going out tonight. Can you leave work early?
   B: Okay, I'll try to leave work early.

6 A: Jackie's a vegetarian, isn't she?
   B: I'm not sure. I think she might be a vegetarian.

7 A: Why don't you come on holiday with us?
   B: I can't afford to come on holiday with you.
8 A: We could get to the island across the new bridge.
B: But it hasn't been opened yet.
A: I thought it had been opened.
9 A: I hope I get promoted this time.
B: You certainly deserve to get promoted. You work really hard.
10 A: I didn't know you were getting married.
B: Sorry. I thought you did know I was getting married.

2 Replace the underlined word(s) with one or ones where possible. If it is possible to omit one or ones, put the words in brackets.

1 A: Do you want one of these sweets? B: Are there any green sweets left?
B: No, they've all gone.
2 A: It's about time we got some new curtains.
B: Okay, well, let's go out and buy some new curtains.
3 A: Which of these dresses do you think I should wear tonight?
B: Actually, I like the dress you're wearing.
4 A: Have you spent all that money? B: What money?
A: The money you were given for your birthday.
5 A: I know it's muddy outside, but shall we go out for a walk?
B: But I haven't got any wellies. A: You can wear my old wellies.
6 A: To get to your house, do I take the first or second turning?
B: You can take either turning.
7 A: Why did you buy those green apples?
B: They were the cheapest apples I could find.
8 Have you seen the car keys? I can't find the car keys anywhere.
9 The mirror is like the mirror my parents have got in their sitting room.
10 This glass has got a crack in it. Have you got another glass?
11 I dropped my brother's mobile phone and had to buy him a new mobile phone.
12 A: Does this button turn the camera on?
B: No, you want the button in the middle.
13 We've got chocolate biscuits or these biscuits. Which biscuits would you prefer?
Complete the sentences where possible with so, do, do so or so do, using an appropriate form of do. If it is not possible, suggest an alternative.

1. She stood up slowly, and was obviously in pain as she ..........and so ...........
2. A: Miller played really badly, didn't he?
   B: But ..................... the rest of the team.
3. A: Incredible storm last night. Look – the wind's blown that old tree down.
   B: ......................... it has. What a great shame!
4. A: Are you going to Spain again for your holidays?
   B: I might ....................., I haven't decided yet.
5. Louise will be meeting us at the airport. At least, I hope .....................
6. A: Apparently, Adam's dropped out of college.
   B: Yes, I'd heard ....................., too.
7. A: They say it's going to snow tomorrow.
   B: ......................... I gather.
8. We do more or less the same job, but he earns much more than I .....................
   B: ......................... she has. She told me she couldn't afford to run it any longer.
10. A: We can take a short cut if we wade across the stream.
    B: What's the point of .....................? The bridge isn't far.
11. He has yet to win a tournament, but he came close to ..................... in Monaco.
12. A: Do you really think she'll lend you the money?
    B: I'm sure .........................
14. A: Great film, wasn't it?
    B: ......................... it was.
Hi Chris

I tried phoning you earlier, but you must have been out. But I just have to tell somebody about the terrible day I've had ...

It started badly and got worse! When I got up the kitchen was flooded — I'd left the freezer door open! I've never left the freezer door open before. By the time I'd finished mopping up all the water, it was getting late. I was going to take my big handbag to work, but I was so rushed I picked up my small handbag by mistake, leaving my purse behind, so I didn't have any money. Luckily, I bumped into Bob at the station and he was able to lend me some money. My office key was also still at home, so when I got to work I had to borrow an office key.

Then I had to get to an important meeting. Our company is hoping to do some business with a Japanese firm. My boss thinks we have a good chance of winning a deal soon, but I don't think we have a good chance of winning a deal soon. I thought the meeting was on the fourth floor — in fact, I was certain it was on the fourth floor. But it had been rearranged and nobody had bothered to tell me. So I was 20 minutes late. I wasn't very happy, and my boss wasn't very happy either. To make matters worse, I'd been hoping to run through my presentation over breakfast, but I'd had no time to run through my presentation over breakfast. So my talk went really badly. Afterwards, my boss said she was disappointed with the way the meeting went. But I was disappointed with the way the meeting went, too.

After such a dreadful day, I was hoping I'd have a quiet evening, but I didn't have a quiet evening. When I got home I found that my cat had knocked over some glasses — you remember the beautiful old Swedish glasses that my parents gave me? I wonder if I'll be able to replace them? I don't expect I'll be able to replace them.

The only good thing is that it's the weekend. Come over whenever you want to come over. In fact, are you able to come over tomorrow? If you're not able to come over tomorrow, how about Sunday? Or are you still too busy decorating the house? I hope you're not too busy decorating the house. But give me a call and let me know.

Love,
Beth x
D EXAM PRACTICE

LISTENING

You will hear part of a radio interview in which David Evans, a chef in a British school, is talking about his work. Choose the answer (A, B, C or D) which fits best according to what you hear.

1. What was the students’ initial reaction to the food they were served?
   A. They didn’t like being the subjects of an experiment.
   B. They would rather have eaten traditional British food.
   C. They were not sure whether it was good or bad.
   D. They felt that it was an adventure for them.

2. According to David, why do some students have difficulty in accepting the ‘restaurant system’?
   A. They are uncomfortable eating meals with adults.
   B. They are not used to having meals with others.
   C. They don’t like talking about food.
   D. It takes too long to be served their food.

3. What main role do the staff play in the school restaurant?
   A. They check that students are eating their meals.
   B. They learn about the students’ home lives.
   C. They deal with students’ complaints about the food.
   D. They help students learn about a balanced diet.

4. According to David, where does most of the food served in the restaurant come from?
   A. anywhere that can provide fresh ingredients
   B. the school grounds
   C. all over the world
   D. suppliers close to the school

5. In David’s view, which of his previous jobs prepared him best for his work as a school chef?
   A. teacher
   B. manager
   C. waiter
   D. cook

6. Why does David think that his approach could be difficult to introduce in other schools?
   A. Many students are resistant to change.
   B. Not all students see healthy eating as important.
   C. Other schools don’t see healthy eating as a priority.
   D. Parents would be unwilling to accept it.
Grammar focus task

1. Complete these extracts from the interview by writing one word in each space.
   1. Some people thought she'd be crazy to go ahead with the plan, but she was ______ to.
   2. I think it was quite adventurous for them to try what they saw as unusual, the kinds of foods they normally wouldn't have the opportunity to eat at home, or wouldn't ______ to.
   3. We've also got a small herb garden behind the science block. Students can help with this if they're ______ to.
   4. Interviewer: And do you think the approach to food you've taken here could be adopted in any school?
      David: No, I don't think all schools would be ______ to.
   5. But any school could take some steps to make students aware of the importance of healthy eating. I'd certainly ______ them to.

2. In which of these is it possible to omit to after the word you have written and leave a correct sentence?

Writing

Your college has money to spend on improving the buildings and facilities. The Principal has asked each class to suggest how the money should be spent, and your class has decided it would like the library to be extended, more books to be bought and the resources (e.g. computers) to be upgraded. Write a proposal to the Principal outlining the benefits of your proposal.

Write your proposal, which may include headings, in 220–260 words.

Writing hints

When you give the consequences of a proposal you can use phrases such as Doing so, In doing so, and By doing so to avoid repetition:

An expanded library could be used as a classroom. Doing so will provide additional teaching space for the school.

Computers with Internet access should be bought. By doing so, the college can improve the research facilities at the college.
A. Context listening

1. Which of these qualities and characteristics might people use in describing you?
   - application
   - confidence
   - dedication
   - enthusiasm
   - loyalty
   - modesty
   - determined
   - efficient
   - formidable
   - patient
   - persuasive
   - reliable

2. Listen to this speech made in honour of Maria Adams, a music teacher. Which of these qualities and characteristics does the speaker use to describe her?

3. Listen again and say whether these sentences are true or false. If a sentence is false, say why.
   1. Maria was a violinist before she became a conductor.
   2. In the Music in Schools project the council gives children musical instruments.
   3. Musicians are not paid to take part in the Music in Schools project.
   4. Children in city schools now have to pay for their music lessons.
   5. Maria helps children go to other countries to play music.

4. These ideas are expressed in a different way by the speaker. Listen again and write down exactly what he said.
   1. We first met in the mid-1990s.
      - It was in the mid-1990s that we first met.
   2. She sees making music as a fundamental part of a child's development.
   3. The way she calmly and clearly argued her case impressed us most.
   4. I have rarely met anyone with such passion for their beliefs.
   5. The council has tried to make changes to the Music in Schools project a number of times in order to save money.
   6. The council backed down only after Maria threatened to withdraw her support from the project.

What difference do you notice between the sentences given and the ones you have written?
B Grammar

1 Fronting
We can emphasise a particular part of a sentence by moving it to the front of the sentence, changing the usual word order:
She sees making music as a fundamental part of a child's development. → Making music she sees as a fundamental part of a child's development. (fronting of object)
Maria had been writing to me for some weeks. → For some weeks Maria had been writing to me. (fronting of adverbial)
She resisted this. → This she resisted.

2 Cleft sentences

START POINT
It's among children from poorer backgrounds that the Music in Schools project has had most impact. (emphasising among children from poorer backgrounds)
What impressed us most was the way she calmly and clearly argued her case. (emphasising the way she calmly and clearly argued her case)

An it cleft has the structure it + is / was + emphasised part + relative clause. The relative pronoun can be that, which, who or no relative pronoun. When and where are used only in informal English:
It was in the mid-1990s that we first met. or informally ... when we first met.

A sentence with a wh- cleft usually has the structure what- clause + is/was + emphasised part. Sometimes we use all instead of what:
What she was suggesting was that members of the YCO would volunteer their services.
All she ever wanted to do as she was growing up was play the violin. (= the only thing she ever wanted to do)

After the what- clause we usually use a singular form of be (is or was). However, informally, a plural form (are or were) is sometimes used before a plural noun:
What she hopes to see is are children who enjoy a wide range of musical styles.

We can sometimes put a wh- cleft at the end:
The way she calmly and clearly argued her case was what impressed us most.
The Music in Schools project is what came out of our meeting.

To emphasise an action we can use a wh- cleft with what + subject + form of do + form of be + (to) + infinitive:
What she did was (to) convince us of the value of a musical education.

To emphasise a whole sentence we can use a wh- cleft with happen:
What's happened as a consequence is that music has become established as an important part of the national curriculum.
3 Inversion

Start Point

- In front of the committee sat Maria. = verb + subject
- Seldom did she raise her voice. = do + subject + verb
- Never have I heard such a persuasive speaker. = auxiliary + subject + verb

- inversion of normal word order

Word order is inverted after certain words and phrases when these are put at the beginning of a sentence or clause in order to emphasise them. This kind of inversion is found mainly in formal speech and writing.

Inversion occurs after words and phrases with a 'negative' meaning:

- the negative adverbs never (before), rarely, seldom; barely / hardly / scarcely...when / before; no sooner ... than; nowhere; neither, nor:
  - Rarely have I met anyone with such enthusiasm.
  - No sooner had Maria walked through the door than she started to talk about her proposal.
  - I hadn’t met Maria before, and nor had the other members of the committee.
  - (See also Unit 17 B3.)

- only + a time expression (e.g. after, later, then) or a prepositional phrase:
  - Only after Maria threatened to withdraw her support did the council back down.

- the prepositional phrases at no time, on no account, under / in no circumstances, in no way (or no way in informal language):
  - At no time has she ever accepted payment for her educational work.
  - She argued that under no circumstances should children from poorer backgrounds be made to pay for music lessons.

- certain expressions with nor: not only, not until, not since, not for one moment, not once, not a + noun:
  - Not only has she persuaded YCO members to give up their time, but she has also encouraged visiting musicians to give free concerts in schools.

- little with a negative meaning:
  - Little did she realise when she set up the project that it would be so influential.

Inversion also occurs after:

- prepositional phrases of place or movement, and adverbs describing direction of movement (most common in spoken and written narrative):
  - Into the committee room walked Maria. (= Maria walked into the committee room)
  - Along she came to present her proposal. (= She came along to present her proposal)

- verbs describing place and movement which are commonly used with inversion include: be, come, fly, go, hang, lie, live, march, roll, run, sit, stand, swim, walk

- we don’t usually invert subject and verb when the subject is a pronoun:
  - Into the committee room she walked. (not into the committee room walked she.)
4 Inversion in conditional sentences

In formal or literary English, we can use clauses beginning were, should and had, with inversion of subject and verb, instead of a hypothetical conditional:

Were she ever to leave the orchestra, she would be greatly missed. (= If she left ... or If she were to leave ...)

Were he here tonight, I know that he would want to express his thanks personally to Maria.

(= If he was / were here tonight ...)

Should you need any more information about Music in Schools, please feel free to contact me.

(= If you need ...)

Had Maria not been around, music education in most schools in this country would have practically disappeared. (= If she had not been around ...)

In negative clauses with inversion, we don't use contracted forms:

Had Maria not set up the Music in Schools project ... (not Hadn't Maria set up the Music in Schools project ...)
C Grammar exercises

1 Write a new sentence with a similar meaning to the original. Emphasise the information underlined using an it cleft or a wh- cleft at the beginning of the sentence. Sometimes both are possible.

1 I want you to hold the cat tightly while I put on this collar.
   What I want you to do is hold the cat tightly while I put on this collar.

2 She announced she was going to join the air force at her eighteenth birthday party.

3 A: So how did you get the car out of the mud?
   B: We asked a farmer to pull us out with his tractor.

4 A: Would you like a glass of champagne?
   B: No, thanks. I really wanted a cup of tea!

5 A: What do you think's wrong with the car?
   B: The clutch cable could have broken.

6 A: How on earth did you break your nose?
   B: I wasn't looking where I was going and walked into a lamppost.

7 This huge bunch of flowers arrived for me this morning. I don't know who sent them.

8 My parents must have given Colin my telephone number.

9 The research shows a link between salt intake and rates of heart disease.

10 His nervous laugh made me think he was lying.
Match the sentence halves. Write new sentences with a similar meaning starting Should ..., Had ... or Were ...
1 If you require further details, a she might have made a full recovery.
2 If today's match has to be postponed, b the insurance covers a full refund.
3 If anyone had been looking at Martha c please contact our public when the police arrived, information office.
4 If taxes were to be increased further, d there would be a huge public outcry.
5 If the doctors had operated sooner, e we would not have begun the climb.
6 If I were president, f it will be replayed next week.
7 If your flight is cancelled, g they would have noticed the expression of panic on her face.
8 If heavy snow had been forecast, h I would introduce three-day weekends.
1 + c If you require further details, please contact our public information office.
   Should you require further details, please contact our public information office.

Complete the sentences with appropriate words. Use three words only in each sentence.
1 I thought the insurance policy would pay my hospital fees. At no time was I told / was I informed by the company that it did not cover skiing injuries.
2 Seldom ....................... piano playing of such maturity from someone so young. I'm very impressed indeed.
3 He felt someone bump against him on the crowded bus, but only later ......................... that his wallet had been stolen.
4 I found the old bracelet while I was walking along the beach. Little ...................... then that I had made one of the most important archaeological discoveries of recent years.
5 Not since Philip and Gary Neville last played in 2004 ...................... two brothers in the England football team.
6 I asked her to describe her attacker, but only after several minutes ..................... me.
7 No sooner ....................... into bed than his flatmate started playing his drums.
8 The Atlantic crossing took eight days. I was in Harriet's company on several occasions, but not a word ...................... to me until near the end of the journey.
9 Remember that the gas fire is dangerous and on no account ..................... it on.
Rewrite the underlined parts of the conversation, emphasising the word(s) in italics. In each case use fronting, a cleft sentence or inversion.

A: I hear you and Anna didn’t have a great holiday on the island.
B: No, not really, although (1) we liked the island a lot.
(2) The hotel was the real problem.
A: Why? What was wrong with it?
B: Our room was just awful. The shower only had cold water, the air conditioning didn’t work and sparks came out of the light switches when you turned them on.
A: Didn’t you complain?
B: Oh, yes. We phoned the reception desk as soon as we found there were problems.
(3) The hotel porter came along, looked around the room, and said he would send someone to sort things out. (4) He went away and an hour later (5) a man walked in carrying just a screwdriver. We left him to it, and went and had a swim in the pool. But when we got back, nothing had changed. By this time Anna was getting quite annoyed, so she went down to reception to complain. (6) They told her there she was just being fussy. And (7) she got really furious about that. She insisted on seeing the manager, and demanded that something should be done.
A: And was it?
B: Well, we had a steady stream of workers coming into the room after that. (8) An electrician came first and then the next day a plumber. But none of the problems got fixed. (9) It took them three days to decide that we needed another room.
A: You must have been fed up with the hotel by that time.
B: I think (10) the attitude of the staff annoyed me most – they really just didn’t care.
(11) I have never seen such a total lack of interest from people who are supposed to be providing a service. (12) No one apologised once the whole time we were there ...

1 the island, we liked a lot ........................................ 7 ..............................................................
2 ........................................................................ 8 ..............................................................
3 ........................................................................ 9 ..............................................................
4 ........................................................................ 10 ..............................................................
5 ........................................................................ 11 ..............................................................
6 ........................................................................ 12 ..............................................................
D Exam practice

Use of English
Complete the second sentence so that it has a similar meaning to the first sentence, using the word given. Do not change the word given. You must use between three and eight words, including the word given. Here is an example (0).

0 He always calls his house his ‘castle’.
   REFERs
   He always refers to his house as his ‘castle’.

1. The islanders are proud of the cheese they produce and they also like tourists to try the local honey.
   TAKE
   Not only ......................... the cheese they produce, they also like tourists to try the local honey.

2. I was grateful to them for letting me stay with them while I was in London.
   APPRECIATED
   I ......................... up while I was in London.

3. She hated publicity so much that she never gave any interviews to the media.
   HER
   Such ............................. of publicity, that she never gave any interviews to the media.

4. We expected to be told, but in fact nobody explained why he left the company so suddenly.
   DEPARTURE
   We expected to be told, but in fact no ......................... the company.

5. During her illness, she realised that the only choice she had was to take early retirement.
   ALTERNATIVE
   During her illness, she realised that there ......................... to take early retirement.

6. The President had only just been elected when the opposition party called for his resignation.
   VOTED
   No sooner ......................... the opposition party called for his resignation.

7. I’m sure she would do an excellent job if she ever became head of department.
   WERE
   I’m sure she would do an excellent job ......................... head of department.

8. It is distinctly possible that I will get promoted in the near future.
   OF
   There is a ......................... promoted in the near future.
Grammar focus task

Look at your answers to the exam task.
In which three of the sentences you have written are there examples of inversion?

Writing

The editor of your college magazine sent you this note.

Hi!

Would you be interested in writing a short article on global warming? We want something that talks about what young people can do as individuals to slow down global warming, what they should be asking their governments to do, and what the consequences of not preventing global warming are likely to be.

Thanks,

Anita

Write your article in 220–260 words.

Writing hints

The task gives you a chance to practise:

- Cleft sentences
  - What we have to do is change the way we live; It's in our everyday lives that we can make changes.
- Word order after phrases such as Not only, Not until, Never before, Only then
  - Only then will governments make changes.

Useful language:
- Climate change, renewable energy, recycling scheme, fossil fuels
A Context listening

1 You are going to listen to a radio news report. Look at the pictures. What do you think the report is about?

2 Listen and check whether you were right. As you listen, number these events in the order the reporter mentions them.

   a Two power stations were built close to Lake Taal. ................................................................. b People were evacuated from around Lake Taal. .................................................................
   c The Taal volcano erupted and around a hundred people were killed. .................................................................
   d Scientists found that the temperature of Lake Taal was increasing. .................................................................
   e The Taal Emergency Strategy was introduced. .................................................................
   f A state of high alert was declared. .................................................................
   g The Taal volcano erupted and over a thousand people were killed. .................................................................

3 Listen again. Complete each extract from the news report with a noun in the first space and a preposition in the second.

   1 The ............ breakdown ............ in ............ communication cost at least a hundred lives.
   2 There has been an ......................... ......................... the number of people living close to the lake.
   3 The ......................... ......................... the power stations would leave thousands of homes and businesses without electricity.
   4 There was also a dramatic ......................... ......................... the level of radon gas in the soil.
   5 Their concerns increased with the ......................... ......................... thousands of dead fish.
   6 Two days ago the ......................... ......................... around 30,000 people began.

4 Write new sentences with similar meanings to those in Exercise 3. In each case, use a verb related to the noun in the first space.

   1 Communication broke down and this cost at least a hundred lives.
B Grammar

1 Nominalisation

START POINT

There has been an increase in the number of people living close to the lake, or The number of people living close to the lake has increased.

We can sometimes use a noun or noun phrase for an idea usually expressed by a verb. This process is referred to as nominalisation.

Nominalised forms can also be used instead of other parts of speech:

The danger of the situation made it necessary to bring in the army to oversee operations, or The situation was so dangerous that it was necessary to bring in the army to oversee operations.

or more complex stretches of language:

Evacuees will remain in temporary accommodation for the duration of the emergency, or Evacuees will remain in temporary accommodation for as long as the emergency continues.

An adverb modifying a verb changes to an adjective in a nominalised form:

Scientists noticed a sudden rise in the temperature of the lake, or Scientists noticed that the temperature of the lake had risen suddenly.

Noun phrases in nominalised forms are commonly made up of two nouns with a preposition:

The industrial development of the area has increased the number of people living near the lake.

There was also a dramatic rise in the level of radon gas in the soil.

We use nominalisation for a number of reasons:

- to avoid mentioning the agent (the person or thing that performs the action); for example, if we want to be impersonal or to make the agent less important. Compare:

  Two days ago the authorities began to evacuate 30,000 people. (agent = the authorities)

  Two days ago the evacuation of around 30,000 people began. (no agent mentioned)

- to express two clauses more concisely as one clause:

  The building of two power stations just a few kilometres away was strongly criticised by environmentalists, or Two power stations were built just a few kilometres away. This was strongly criticised by environmentalists.

This is particularly a feature of a formal style such as in academic writing and newspapers to give a different focus to the sentence. Compare:

The provision of temporary shelter in a safe location for those displaced is the army's top priority. (New, important information is usually placed at the end of the sentence. The focus here is on 'the army's top priority'.)

Temporary shelter in a safe location for those displaced is being provided, and this is the army's top priority. (no particular focus)
2 do, give, have, make, take + noun

We can sometimes use a form with do / give / have / make / take + noun instead of a verb:

The authorities took immediate action. or The authorities acted immediately.
The decision was made to evacuate an area of 5 km around the entire lake. or
It was decided to evacuate an area of 5 km around the entire lake.

Often, the do / give / have / make / take + noun patterns are less formal than using a verb alone:

When my mother was ill, I had to cook for the family. (more formal)
I had to do all the cooking last week because Mum was away. (less formal)

Common informal alternatives include:

do + the cooking, the gardening, the ironing, the shopping, the washing-up give + a call, an explanation, a hug, a kiss, a look, a ring, a shout, a sigh, a warning, a welcome have + a chat, a drink, a fall, a feeling, a guess, influence, a look, respect, a rest, a shower, a sleep, a talk take + action, aim, a (deep) breath, a decision, a (quick) glance, a look, shelter, a shower, a walk make + an arrangement, an assumption, a comment, contact, a decision, a discovery, progress, a recommendation, a start, use (of)

C Grammar exercises

1 Make these conversations more informal where possible, replacing the parts in italics with appropriate do / give / have / make / take + noun forms.

1 A: Have you (1) washed up yet?
B: I've (2) started on it. But there's such a lot to do, and you know how much I hate it.
A: Well, I'm going outside to (3) work in the garden.
B: (4) Shout if you need any help.
A: No, thanks. You just concentrate on the washing-up!

1 done the washing-up
2 ............................................................... 3 ............................................................... 4 ............................................................... 5 ............................................................... 6 ............................................................... 7 ............................................................... 8 ............................................................... 9 ............................................................... 10 ...............................................................

2 A: Well, I've (1) decided. I'm going to apply for a job at Raggs.
B: Good for you. I (2) feel you'd really get on there.
A: I've (3) arranged to see their head of personnel next Friday.
B: And how will you tell Terry you're thinking of leaving the company?
A: Well, it won't be easy, but I suppose I'll just have to (4) breathe deeply and
(5) explain to him why I want to go.

1 ............................................................... 4 ............................................................... 2 ............................................................... 5 ............................................................... 3 ...............................................................
3 A: Did you (1) talk with Natasha about the holiday?
B: Yes, I (2) called last night and we (3) chatted about it then.
A: And how did she react when you said we weren't going with her?
B: She just (4) sighed and said 'That's okay'. But she was obviously upset.

1 .........................................................  3 .........................................................
2 .........................................................  4 .........................................................

4 A: I'm exhausted. I'm going to (1) shower and (2) rest before we
        (3) cook.
B: I'm pretty tired, too. I'll (4) look at what's in the freezer, or maybe we could eat out?

1 .........................................................  3 .........................................................
2 .........................................................  4 .........................................................

2 Rewrite the sentences to remove the agent. Use a nominalised form of the underlined verb and make any other changes needed.

1 The government released the prisoners unexpectedly.
2 They organised the conference very professionally.
3 Spectators turned out in huge numbers for the match.
4 The army withdrew the troops immediately.
5 We need to shake up top management for the company to be successful again.
6 The banks increased interest rates for the third time in two months.
7 They agreed on extra funding for the project.
8 The prisoners broke out of the jail during a power cut.
9 The companies announced the merger last week.
10 They decided to postpone the race at the last moment.

1 The release of the prisoners was unexpected. / There was an unexpected release of prisoners.

3 Rewrite each sentence using a nominalised form at the beginning. Leave out the agent.

1 After scientists identified the HIV virus in the mid-1980s, there were enormous efforts to produce a vaccine.
  The identification of the HIV virus in the mid-1980s led to/enormous efforts to produce a vaccine.

2 John is obsessed with cars, and this started when he was quite young.

3 The government has expanded the nuclear power programme, but this has been criticised by opposition politicians.
4 The petrol companies have reduced the price of petrol, which is good news for drivers.

5 The council abolished parking charges in the city centre, and as a result shops have reported increased business.

6 Parent organisations are demanding healthier food in schools, and this results from growing concerns about childhood obesity.

7 The train will depart half an hour late because of engine problems.

8 A new college principal has been appointed, and staff may leave as a consequence.

Complete the extracts from newspaper articles using the information in the box. In each sentence, use a nominalised form.

- valuable books have disappeared
- people have responded to its recruitment drive
- the spelling system is complex
- people are strongly resisting increased taxation
- the damage to property is extensive
- the situation is threatening animal and plant species

1 Detectives were last night questioning a man about the disappearance of a number of valuable books from the National Library over recent months.

2 'The teaching method we have developed acknowledges ................., and guides children towards a better understanding in carefully controlled stages.'

3 Hospitals will launch another bid to fill 40 more vacancies with experienced nurses. Last night the Health Minister said .................... was 'excellent', with 7000 calls in two days.

4 Chinese remedies are rooted in 4000 years of tradition, but growing Western interest in alternative medicines has increased .................. Products confiscated by environmental officers included some using the root and seedpods of a rare orchid.

5 The extra public spending will need to be paid for and, with borrowing ruled out, that can only mean putting up taxes. Given ...................., this could undermine the government's chances of being re-elected.

6 Residents of the south coast are beginning to return to their homes after the recent severe flooding. However, .................... means that some will be living in temporary accommodation for many months.
D Exam practice

Reading
You are going to read five reviews of popular science books. Answer the questions by choosing from the reviews (A–E). The reviews may be chosen more than once.

Which review mentions ... ?
1 a recent technological development that has become important for many people
2 scientists who had the ability to imagine the future accurately
3 an ability to think in general terms
4 the unexpected effects of scientific developments
5 a scientist who began an area of scientific investigation important today
6 experiments conducted over a long time with great attention to detail
7 an author’s view that some people are likely to disagree with 8 explanations that are basic and undeveloped
9 someone whose most influential work was done in the early part of their life
10 a book aimed both at people who approve of technology and those who don’t 11 scientific investigations whose value was only later understood 12 a book that both entertains and makes the reader think 13 an author who combines practical experience with an ability to write well
14 a skill that people are born with rather than learn 15 a book criticising scientists for making exaggerated claims

A A Monk and Two Peas by Robin Marantz Henig
The work of an Augustinian monk from Brno laid the foundations of the science of genetics. Gregor Mendel was born in what is now the Czech Republic in 1822 and entered the monastery at the age of nineteen. In the mid-1840s he began to conduct a series of experiments with pea plants grown in the monastery garden and he continued these for twenty years. Over this period, by crossing pea plants which had clear differentiations in height, colour etc and by carefully logging the results, Mendel was able to formulate the basic principles behind heredity. Mendel's work was only published in obscure journals, he was eventually led away from science by administrative duties at the monastery and it was only some years after his death that the significance of his work was appreciated. Mendel's life was a quiet one, but a very important one to the science of the twentieth century. A Monk and Two Peas tells the story very well, explaining clearly Mendel's experiments and drawing out their significance.
B The Maths Gene by Keith Devlin
For those who are mathematically challenged it's an attractive notion that everybody possesses a latent talent for maths and that it is just a question of finding the right key to access it. Devlin, despite the title of his book, is not suggesting that there is a gene for maths that the Human Genome project might identify but he is saying that we have a natural ability to do maths, that it exists in everybody and there are sound evolutionary reasons why this is the case. The ability to do maths, clearly, means an ability to handle abstract ideas and relationships and this provides advantages in evolutionary terms. As human language emerged, so also did a new capacity for abstraction and this formed the foundations on which mathematical thought has been built. Some readers might find Devlin's account of the evolution of language debatable but his ideas about the nature of our mathematical powers and his practical suggestions about how to improve them are constantly stimulating.

C Why Things Bite Back by Edward Tenner
Subtitled 'Technology and the Revenge of Unintended Consequences', Tenner's book is an entertaining look at the myriad ways in which advances in science and technology seem to recoil against us. What we gain on the roundabouts we lose on the swings. Antibiotics promise release from the perils of major diseases and end up encouraging microorganisms to develop resistance to them. Widespread use of air conditioning results in an increase in the temperature outdoors, thus requiring further cooling systems. American football safety helmets become more efficient but this heralds an increase in more violent play and injuries actually rise. Tenner mounts up the evidence in a book designed to appeal to technophile and technophobe alike. And remember, the disaster at Chernobyl was triggered during a safety test. Ironies like that just aren't funny.

D The Undiscovered Mind by John Horgan
How close are we to a full understanding of the workings of the human brain and of human consciousness? If you listened to, and believed, many of those working in the neurosciences, you would imagine that answers lay just around the corner. Not so, according to John Horgan, former journalist on Scientific American and author of The End of Science, another witty and provocative examination of the pretensions of some scientists. To all the important questions about the mind—what processes in the brain allow us to see, hear, learn, remember, reason, etc—only the most rudimentary answers have been offered. A unified theory of consciousness, far from being just within our grasp, seems a long way off. Our attempts to heal the troubled mind are equally hampered by a lack of true understanding. Using the same mixture of sharp, informative prose and incisive pen portraits of many of the people involved that characterised The End of Science, Horgan has produced another immensely readable study of science, its practitioners and their all too human hubris.

E A Brief History of the Future by John Naughton
So rapidly has the Internet become an integral part of many people's lives that it is easy to forget that only a few years ago it was known to the general public, if at all, as a playground for nerdy academics and that it is one of the most astonishing of all man's inventions. John Naughton, fellow of Churchill College, Cambridge and regular journalist on The Observer and other newspapers, has been on the net for many years himself and is the ideal person to write a history of what he calls this 'force of unimaginable power'. Starting with three little-known visionaries at MIT in the 1930s, Naughton traces the story through the engineers like Tim Berners-Lee who realised their vision, and on into what the future may hold. Written with the skill one might expect from a fine journalist and informed with the knowledge of an engineering professor, this is among the first histories of the net but is likely to remain among the best for some time to come.
Grammar focus task

Nominalised forms often have the pattern noun phrase + of + noun phrase. In six of the following extracts from the reviews the preposition that fills the gap is of. Without looking back at the reviews, find the two exceptions. What preposition is used in these?

1. a full understanding of the workings of the human brain
2. the foundations of the science of genetics
3. advances in science and technology
4. the significance of his work
5. the knowledge of an engineering professor
6. widespread use of air conditioning
7. an increase in the temperature outdoors
8. a lack of true understanding

Writing

A new out-of-town shopping centre has been built near your town. It includes over a hundred shops, restaurants and a cinema. You work for your town council. You have been asked to write a report on the impact of the centre on transport, on the environment, on people’s shopping habits and on shops and recreational facilities in the town centre.

Write your report in 300–350 words.

Writing hints

The task gives you a chance to practise nominalised forms:

- the aim of the report, the construction of the out-of-town shopping centre, the increase in traffic

Useful language

- environmental impact, transport facilities, ease of access / easy access,
- a significant negative / positive impact

208
23

It and there introductory it as subject and object; there; common expressions with it's no ... and there's no ...

A Context listening

1 Liz is planning on moving out of her family home and buying her own apartment. What are the advantages and disadvantages of living in a town centre or on the edge of a town?

2 23 Listen to the conversation. Which of the advantages and disadvantages you thought of do Liz and her parents mention?

3 23 Listen again. Do these statements refer to the town apartment (T) or the out-of-town apartment in Canley (C)?
   1 It's been on the market for a long time. .......T........
   2 It's obvious why they've been having problems selling it. ............
   3 It really shocked me to see how bad it was. ............
   4 It's about 15 kilometres from there into the centre. ............
   5 There's bound to be a regular bus service from there. ............
   6 There's no special parking area for the apartments. ............
   7 There's that lovely little river that runs nearby. ............
   8 You couldn't even fit a chest of drawers in there. ............
   9 The rooms in it are quite dark and that made it feel cramped. ............
  10 There is expected to be a lot of interest in the property. ............

4 Look again at the sentences in Exercise 3. Underline all the examples of it or there. Some of the examples of it and there refer back to a thing or a place that has been previously mentioned. Which ones are they? What do they refer back to?

1 It's been on the market for a long time.
   It refers to the town apartment.
Grammar

1. Introductory it as subject

START POINT

It struck me that the Canley apartment might be quite noisy with that busy road nearby. (It refers back to the noun phrase the Canley apartment)

If it’s possible, I’d like to go back and look at the Canley apartment again. (It refers forward to going back and looking at the Canley apartment again)

It’s going to be hard to choose between them. (Introductory it as grammatical subject)

Living in town would make it so much easier to get to work. (Introductory it as grammatical object)

Introductory it as subject is commonly used:

- to talk about weather, time, distance and to describe situations:

  It’s raining again.
  It’s five o’clock.
  It’s quiet in this part of town.

- as an alternative to a that-, wh-, -ing or to-infinitive clause as the subject of the sentence:

  It’s a pity that the town apartment is so small, rather than That the town apartment is so small is a pity.

  It’s obvious why they’ve been having problems selling it, rather than Why they’ve been having problems selling it is obvious.

  It’s certainly an advantage being able to walk to work, rather than Being able to walk to work is certainly an advantage.

  It really shocked me to see how bad it was, rather than To see how bad it was really shocked me.

- It is more usual to use introductory it in these contexts, although in formal language the alternative with a that-, wh-, -ing or to-infinitive clause as subject is often used.

In writing, we don’t usually use introductory it as an alternative to a noun as subject:

The town apartment is more expensive. (Not it is more expensive, the town apartment.)

However, this is quite common in informal speech in order to clarify what is being talked about:

It’d be good to live near work, but it’s more expensive, the town apartment.

We often follow introductory it with be + adjective / noun, but other patterns are possible:

it + verb + to-infinitive clause It might help to run through the pros and cons.

it + verb + object + to-infinitive clause It shocked me to see how bad it was.

it + verb + that-clause It appears that they’re having trouble selling the apartment.

it + verb + object + that-clause It struck me that the Canley apartment might be quite noisy.

(See Appendix 16.1.)

In formal contexts, a common way of reporting what is said by an unspecified group of people is to use it + passive verb + that-clause or it + passive verb + wh-clause:

It is said that the cost of accommodation in the town centre will rise. or less formally

They say that the cost of accommodation in the town centre is going to go up.

210
It was explained how difficult it is to prevent flooding in the area.
or less formally They explained how difficult it is to prevent flooding in the area.
(See Appendix 16.2.)

2 Introductory it as object

We can use it as the object of a verb in a number of patterns:

- verb + it + that- / if- / wh- clause
  I wouldn't like it if I had to get up at 6 o'clock.
  I couldn't believe it when the agent said the decoration was 'in good condition'.

- verb + it + if- clause
  I would appreciate it if you could send me further details of the apartment.
  We've just got to accept that neither of the apartments is perfect. Or informally We've just got to accept it that neither of the apartments is perfect.

- verb + it + adjective + that- / wh- / to-infinite clause
  The owner didn't make it clear whether they were included in the price.
  I think it highly unlikely that the seller will reduce the price. (formal)
  I think it's highly unlikely... (informal)

- leave / owe + it + to somebody + to-infinite
  I think we should leave it to the estate agent to talk to the owner about whether carpets and curtains are included.

- verb + it + as + adjective + that- / if- / wh- clause
  I see it as essential that there should be somewhere to park
  (+ See Appendix 16.3.)

3 There

START POINT

There's a bus stop just outside the apartment block.

There are lots of new apartments being built in the city centre.

There + be is used to introduce new information, saying that a person or thing exists, happens, or is found in a particular place.

Because we use there to introduce topics, the noun after there + be often has an indefinite or non-specific meaning, so we often use a/an, no article, any(one) + noun or something, no(nobody):

There's a car park behind the Canley apartment block (not There's the car park behind the Canley-apartment-block.)

There's something about parking in the information the estate agent gave us.

We can use there with a definite noun when we treat information as already familiar to the listener / reader:

If I ever bought a car, there's the problem of parking at the town apartment.

211
We use there, not it:
- to say or ask if people or things exist or are found in a particular place:
  There's nowhere to park. (not is it anywhere to park.)
- to introduce information about quantities and amounts:
  There are plans to build new apartments not far from the one we looked at.
  There was just a bed, a small wardrobe and some bookshelves.

There + be is often followed by:
- noun + that- / wh- -ing / to-infinitive clause
  There is a chance (that) he might include carpets and curtains.
  There will be a regular bus service from there.
- bound / certain / (un)likely / supposed / sure + to be
  There is a lot of interest in the property.

There is often followed by is, are, was or were. However, also common are:
- there + auxiliary / modal verb + be
  There be someone we know who would redecorate it.
- verb + there + to be
  I wouldn't expect there to be many people interested in buying the apartment. or
  I wouldn't expect many people to be interested ...
- there + arise / emerge / exist / follow / remain / take place
  During the 1990s there emerged a tendency for young, well-paid people to buy apartments in the town centre.
- there + being
  The bus service was withdrawn, there being so few passengers using it.

If the noun after there is singular or uncountable, the verb is singular; if the noun is plural, the verb is usually plural (although there's is often used in informal speech):
There's a supermarket within walking distance.
There are so many things to think about. or informally There's so many things ...

If a noun phrase after there consists of two or more nouns in a list, we use a singular verb if the first noun is singular or uncountable, and a plural verb if the first noun is plural:
There were just some bookshelves, a bed and a small wardrobe. or informally
There were just some bookshelves ...

4 Common expressions with it's no and there's no

It's no wonder they've been having problems selling the apartment; it's in a very poor condition.
There's no hurry to decide.
(See Appendix 16.1.)
C Grammar exercises

1 Rewrite the underlined parts of the sentences where possible, beginning with there.

1 Some tickets are left for the concert. Do you want to go?
2 I thought I heard voices, but when I opened the door nobody was in the room.
3 Jack's having a party this weekend even though his birthday isn't until next month.
4 The first balloon voyage across the Atlantic Ocean was in 1978.
5 You can find plenty of second-hand bookshops in town. In fact, one is opposite the railway station.
6 I knew that my keys were somewhere in the house, but I couldn't find them.
7 Only ten places are available on the course, so I'm going to apply as soon as possible.
8 When I opened the fridge I found that no milk was left.
9 When I got to his office I could hear that Dr Jones was on the phone, so I waited outside.
10 Would anyone like to volunteer?
11 My hands were shaking as I walked into the exam room.
12 Something was on the radio this morning about using weeds as cooking ingredients.

2 Add either it or there to each sentence as appropriate.

1 When the weather is dry, it is estimated that 150,000 people cycle to work in the capital.
2 Fraser has said he will retire from football if he is thought to have no chance of his ankle injury healing in the foreseeable future.
3 Is a swimming pool at the hotel we're staying at?
4 Worried me to see Heather looking so thin.
5 In December 1944 took place a secret meeting between the countries' leaders.
6 Although took hours of practice, I eventually managed to play a simple tune on the saxophone.
7 Most people had left the party and I decided that was time I went home, too.
8 The scientists said that is very little evidence that mobile phone use has any adverse effect on health.
9 How far is from Paris to Berlin?
10 They travelled by bus, being no railway line in that part of the country.
Complete the sentences using an expression with it's no or there's no and one of the words from the box. Add any other words necessary.

- chance
- doubt
- good
- harm
- hurry
- longer
- need
- secret
- wonder

1. A: The opinion polls don't look good for President Broom, do they?
   B: Well, he's raised income tax three times in the last year and over a million people are unemployed. ... it's no wonder ... he's so unpopular.

2. A: If only I'd warned Ken about the bad weather.
   B: .................. blaming yourself for the accident. He knew it was stupid to go walking in the hills when there was a risk of heavy snow.

3. A: Apparently, Jean's looking for a new job.
   B: .................. that she's thinking of leaving. She's been telling everyone about the jobs she's applied for.

4. A: Do you think your sister would lend us her car?
   B: Well, .................. asking her. She can only say 'no'.

5. A: If we run, we might just get the 9.00 train.
   B: No, .................. catching it now. Let's have a coffee and wait for the 9.30.

6. A: Mark's hoping to become a professional tennis player.
   B: .................. that he's very talented, but I don't think he's hard-working enough to be successful as a professional.

7. A: I'm really sorry I missed the meeting.
   B: .................. to apologise. We didn't discuss anything particularly important.

8. A: We used to spend hours playing in the river when we were children.
   B: But it's so polluted now that .................. possible to swim in it safely.

9. A: Come on, we'll be late. The film starts at 7.30, doesn't it?
   B: .................. There's always lots of adverts on before the main film starts.

Complete the conversations by reordering the words in brackets. If necessary, add it or there.

1. A: Why did you move out of the flat?
   B: My flatmates were constantly shouting at each other, and I hate it when people .................. all the time. (argue = hate = people = when)

2. A: Do you think you've got a chance of getting the job?
   B: Not really, but .................. put in an application, does it? (doesn't = hurt = to) 3 A: Hello, I've got an appointment with Dan Jackman. What room is he in?
   B: I'm sorry, but .................. the name of Dan Jackman here. (by - is - nobody) 4 A: Did you find your car keys eventually?
   B: Yes, ..................... I'd left them at home. (out - that - turned) 5 A: Has Jackie had an accident or something?
   B: What makes you think that?
   A: I ....................... limping. (noticed - she - that - was)
6 A: Do you think the concert will be a sell-out?
   B: No, I ...................... many people there at all. (be - don't - expect - to) 7 A: So as a classroom assistant, what do you do exactly?
   B: Well, I ...................... to help the weaker pupils keep up with the rest of the class. (as - my - role - see)
8 A: Did you phone and let your parents know about the car crash?
   B: No, I ....................... them until they got home from work tonight. (best - not - tell - thought - to)
9 A: Did I tell you I'd be leaving early in the morning?
   B: Yes, you ..................... that you'd got a meeting to go to. (had - me - mentioned
      - to)
10 A: Will you be able to email me from the hotel?
   B: Yes, I ..................... access in every room. (Internet - think - is) 11 A: Have we got any eggs?
   B: I know Tasha made an omelette for lunch, but ...................... in the fridge.
      (be - left - might - some)
12 A: Oh, great, lemon sorbet! My favourite.
   B: I ...................... you liked it. (remember - saying - that - you) 13 A: The forecast says it's going to be much cooler tomorrow. Not very good for our walk.
   B: Actually, ...................... it's chilly. I don't like walking in hot weather. (I - if - prefer)
14 A: So, Professor Kent, what was the most interesting part of your recent trip to Uganda?
   B: Undoubtedly, it was being able to see mountain gorillas, although ...................... only 600 or so left in that part of Africa. (are - be - thought - to)
Use of English

For questions 1-5, think of one word only which can be used appropriately in all three sentences. Here is an example (0).

0 He may be nearly 90 years old, but in no ......way...... does his enthusiasm for life appear diminished.

The company is on its ......way...... to becoming the world's largest producer of satellite dishes.

She bought me a bunch of flowers by ......way...... of an apology for getting annoyed with me.

1 Early summer is without ............ the best time to visit the island.

All the tickets have been sold, so there's no ............ of rearranging the concert at this stage.

We were nearly at the end of the meeting before the ............ of redundancies was brought up.

2 She is never ............ with just passing an exam; she always wants an excellent mark.

Jamie's a very responsible boy, so I'm quite ............ to let him look after the children.

If the salt ............ of food is very high, I try to avoid it.

3 They became increasingly ............ about their daughter as she continued to lose weight.

I left there early as I was ............ to avoid the heavy traffic during the rush hour.

My parents were ............ that I should settle down and find a job.

4 There are ............ to be fewer than 4000 tigers surviving in the wild in India.

It's an interesting idea, but I wouldn't have ............ it was very practical.

The nearest village was five miles away, but he ............ nothing of walking there to do his shopping.

5 We first met on May 21st 1997 which, by ............ , happened to be my 21st birthday.

Mr Turner claimed that it was mere ............ that he sold his share of the company the day before it was declared bankrupt.

Perhaps it is no ............ that poets often seem to lead very troubled lives.
Grammar focus task

Look again at the sentences in 1–5. Find all the examples of it and there.

1. In which are introductory it or there used to introduce new information?
2. Which refer to a place or to something mentioned previously?

Writing

You have received this note from your boss. Read it and the other information and write your proposal. Say what was wrong with last year's conference and suggest a suitable location and time for the conference this year.

The time has come to organise the sales conference again. Can you do it this year, please? As you know, it's always in the spring, and it's usually for 3 days in the middle of the week. But we could do it differently – we could make it shorter, or we could hold it at the weekend. And where do you suggest?

Last year we had it at a conference centre in the country, but I don't think that was very popular. Could you ask staff for their views and let me have a proposal, please.

Thanks.

Wouldn't be popular... Especially people with children.

A bit very boring. Nowhere to go.

Staff views

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Where?</th>
<th>When?</th>
<th>How long?</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Conference centre in country</td>
<td>February 5%</td>
<td>2 days 90%</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Conference centre in town</td>
<td>March 70%</td>
<td>3 days 10%</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>In company headquarters</td>
<td>April 25%</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Write your proposal in 180–220 words.

Writing hints

The task gives you the chance to practise sentences with introductory it and there to:

- report the views of staff members
  - It appears that most staff members ... There is a strong preference for ...
- make your recommendations
  - It is important to consider ... There would be overwhelming support for ... I think it vital that ...
24 Complex prepositions and prepositions after verbs complex prepositions; verb + preposition – common patterns;
phrasal verbs: word order

A Context listening

1 Dan is flying tomorrow afternoon to visit his friend Jess in the south of France. What do you know about this part of France?

2 (24a) Listen to their telephone conversation. Which of these instructions best represents the advice Jess gives to Dan?

1 Take a taxi from the airport to Montpellier station. Take the bus from Montpellier to Perpignan. Take a taxi from Perpignan station to the hotel. Eat at Café Mathis on Wednesday evening. Be in the hotel foyer at two o’clock on Thursday afternoon.

2 Take the bus from the airport to Montpellier station. Take the train from Montpellier to Perpignan. Walk from Perpignan station to the hotel. Eat at Le Metropole on Wednesday evening. Be at Café Mathis at two o’clock on Thursday afternoon.

3 Take a taxi from the airport to Montpellier station. Take the train from Montpellier to Perpignan. Walk from Perpignan station to the hotel. Eat at Le Metropole on Wednesday evening. Be in the hotel foyer at two o’clock on Thursday afternoon.

4 Take a taxi from the airport to Montpellier station. Take the train from Montpellier to Perpignan. Take a taxi from Perpignan station to the hotel. Eat at Café Mathis on Wednesday evening. Be in the hotel foyer at two o’clock on Thursday afternoon.

3 (24a) Listen again and write the exact words from the recording. The number of words you should write in each space is given.

1 I’m really sorry, but I’ve messed up (1) our plans (2) for tomorrow.

2 So I won’t be able to pick (1) (1) at the airport after all.

3 I’ve found (1) (3) from the SNCF website...

4 You’ll need to buy a ticket before you get (1) (2).

5 ... when you’ve checked (1) (2), I suggest you get a meal there.

6 I’ll sort (1) (2) when I pick you up on Thursday afternoon.

7 Relax on Thursday morning and walk (1) (1).

4 In which of the extracts can you reverse the order of the words in the first space and the words in the second space?
B  Grammar

1  Complex prepositions

Prepositions can be either simple (one word) or complex (two or more words):
I'm really, really sorry about this.
The bus will only take you as far as the main square.
(See Appendices 17.1 and 17.2.)

Some complex prepositions have a meaning similar to a simple preposition:
I wasn't able to reschedule the meeting, in spite of my efforts. (= despite)
All the people in front of me had been queuing for a long time. (= before)

2  Verb + preposition: common patterns

START POINT
Don't forget to bring your camera with you.
I insist on paying your hotel bill.
After some verbs a preposition is needed to link the verb to what follows. If the preposition is followed by a second verb, the verb must be an -ing form.

- verb + object + prepositional phrase:
  I tried to reschedule the meeting for next week, but it's just impossible.
  (See Appendix 18.1.)

- verb + preposition + object + preposition + object:
  She complained to the company about the unreliability of their bus service.
  (See Appendix 18.2.)

- verb + preposition + -ing:
  Don't worry about getting lost.
  (See Appendix 18.3.)

- verb + object + preposition + -ing:
  I'd advise you against catching the bus.
  (See Appendix 18.4.)

- verb + preposition + subject + -ing:
  You can depend on the train running on time.
  (See Appendix 18.5.)

3  Phrasal verbs: word order

START POINT
I've booked you into a hotel not far from the station.
book into is a transitive, two-word phrasal verb. The object here is you and the particle is into.
While you're strolling around, look out for Café Mabís.
look out for is a transitive, three-word phrasal verb. The object here is Café Mabís and the particles are out and for.
Something's come up at work.
come up is an intransitive phrasal verb. There is no object.
Some phrasal verbs can be used transitively or intransitively with the same meaning:

Feel free to call me back if there's anything that's not clear about tomorrow.

Call back later.

(See Appendix 19.1.)

Others have different meanings when they are used transitively and intransitively:

I've looked up the online timetable and it appears that the last train from Montpellier to Perpignan is at 21.51. (transitive verb = I've found the information)
The weather has been bad over the last week, but it seems to be looking up now.

(intransitive verb = improving)

(See Appendix 19.2.)

With most phrasal verbs, the object can go before or after the particle:

I'll sort out the bill when I pick you up on Thursday morning or I'll sort the bill out when I pick you up on Thursday morning.

(See Appendix 19.3.)

With these verbs we tend to put the object after the particle if the object is long:

You might want to take down some of the information I'm going to give to you, rather than
You might want to take some of the information I'm going to give to you down.

and we always put the object before the particle if the object is a pronoun:

I won't be able to pick you up at the airport after all. (not I won't be able to pick up you at the airport after all.)

If the object consists of two or more items connected with and, it can occur before or after the particle even if one or both of the items is a pronoun:

When I'm next in London I'll look you and your wife up. or
... I'll look up you and your wife. (look up = go and see them)

With some phrasal verbs, the object must go after the particle(s):

When you've checked into the hotel, I suggest you get a meal there. (not When you've checked the hotel into ...)

(See Appendix 19.4.)

With a few phrasal verbs the object must go between the verb and the particle:

Although she was the youngest in the class, she used to order the other children about.

(not ... she-used-to-order about the other children.)

(See Appendix 19.5.)

A few three-word phrasal verbs have two objects, one after the verb and the other after the particles:

I'll take you up on your offer to buy me a meal. (verb = take up on; objects = you and your offer)

(See Appendix 19.6.)
C Grammar exercises

1 Complete the sentences using the notes in brackets. Use an appropriate tense for the verb. If two word orders are possible, give them both.
1 Sam sings really well. He takes after his father (take / his father / after).
2 I decided it was time to ......................... (throw / some of my old exercise books from school / away).
3 Sarah got really angry during the meeting, and eventually she ......................... gather / her papers / up) and stormed out.
4 I ......................... ( bump / Cherie / into) in town. She said she'll phone you later.
5 A: Have I got everybody on the list now?
   B: No, you ......................... (leave / Dave's name / out).
6 I really can't ......................... (tell / the twins / apart), they look so similar.
7 I don't suppose there's any way we can ......................... (talk / you / leaving college / out / of), is there?
8 You should really try and ......................... (get / some food / down), even if you're not hungry.
9 Our neighbours are so inconsiderate. Last night they ......................... (wake / me and my husband / up) at three o'clock in the morning playing loud music.
10 The new shop has loads of computers on show so that you can ......................... (try / them / out) before buying.
11 A: You don't think Gary was telling the truth, then?
   B: No, I think he ......................... (make / the whole story / up).

2 Complete the sentences using a complex preposition which includes the word in brackets and followed by a sentence ending from the box.

their ability to pay their health a cut in their salaries a strict protein-only diet an apology the train driver cream his wishes the 10,000 predicted an excellent art gallery 30th September a terrorist attack

1 The workers got extra paid holiday in exchange for a cut in their salaries. (exchange)
2 The concert attracted only 2,000 people ......................... (against)
3 The pudding recipe's very rich, isn't it? Do you think I could use yogurt
   .........................? (place)
4 I think healthcare should be available to all people, ......................... (irrespective)
5 The city has drawn up plans for the evacuation of thousands of people

6 She's lost a lot of weight recently.

7 Although he didn't spend much of his life in Ireland, he was buried there.

8 My parents want to move somewhere out of the city.

9 It may be only a small town, but it has an interesting natural history museum.

10 He was a bit bad-tempered with me last week, so he gave me a box of chocolates.

11 The road will be closed for major repairs.

12 The crash was found to be the result of negligence.

3 Complete these extracts from a radio news report by expanding the notes in brackets. Choose appropriate forms for the verbs and add prepositions and pronouns where necessary.

1 Police have appealed to witnesses for information about the fire which has led to the closure of the main east coast rail line at Crewebury. A factory next to the line was burned down yesterday, causing major damage to the track. Rail passengers are currently being advised to use the line.

2 In the first interview given by the Foreign Minister since newspapers reported that she personally approved illegal arms sales, she dismissed the reports' 'completely untrue'. She went on to say that the accusation would not prevent her job, and that she intended to continue in her post.

3 Ten youngsters between the ages of 12 and 16 met the Prime Minister today after they competed in the World Youth Maths Challenge. The Prime Minister congratulated the excellent results in the competition. He said that they achieved excellent results in the After School Maths scheme set up by the government to encourage young people's enthusiasm for the subject.

4 The Food and Agriculture Minister, Sheila Davies, quarreled with European counterparts over the issue of fish conservation. During a discussion on the decline in fish stocks, Ms Davies got into a heated argument, which ended out of the meeting.
5 Senior environmental scientists have called on the government to act immediately to protect the country from the effects of rising sea levels by building additional coastal defences. However, a spokesperson from the Environment Department said that the government wouldn’t rush to invest substantial amounts of money on coastal defences when these might not provide a long-term solution.

Add the missing prepositions to this letter.

Dear Jodi,

Sorry I haven’t been touch you for such a long time, but it’s been a busy few months.

Earlier this year I heard that my great-aunt had died. Apart seeing her a couple of times at my parents’ house, I didn’t really know her. So you can imagine my surprise when I found she’d left me a cottage along some money in her will!

When I saw the cottage, I just fell in love with it. It’s close a beautiful little village, and looks out the sea. My great-aunt used it as a holiday home, and I’ve decided to do the same. Unfortunately, it’s been badly looked, so I’ve had to spend most weekends this year sorting the place.

I knew it was need some work, and at first I thought I could get away giving it a quick coat of paint. But I soon realised it was a much bigger job. There were holes in the roof, and the window frames were so rotten some of the panes of glass were danger falling out.

I was walking around the village one Saturday, wondering what best to do, when who should I run but Barney Adams. Do you remember him from school? As luck would have it, he now works in the village as a builder and decorator. We got talking, and he said he’d come and look the house. Naturally, I took him up his offer! He got really enthusiastic about it. He talked me replacing all the windows, and he’s put in a new central heating system place the old coal fires. I’ve had to prevent him extending the kitchen, which he was keen to do! He’s checked the roof, and fortunately that doesn’t need replacing. Thanks Barney, the house is now looking brilliant, and comparison other builders, he doesn’t charge very much.

The next project for me is to clean the mess in the garden, as it’s completely overgrown. If you want to come and help me some time, feel free! You’ll always be very welcome.

Love,

Emily
D Exam practice

Listening

You will hear four different extracts. For each, choose the answer (A, B or C) which fits best according to what you hear. There are two questions for each extract.

Extract One

You hear Mark Harris being interviewed about his new book on immunisation.

1. Why, according to Mark Harris, do most scientists support immunisation?
   A. They are reluctant to disagree with the predominant view.
   B. They believe it is the best way to protect public health.
   C. They think it has worked effectively since it was developed.

2. In this interview, what is Mark Harris’s main message?
   A. Views on the effectiveness of immunisation have changed over time.
   B. It is not desirable to immunise all children against disease.
   C. All immunisation is unsafe to some extent.

Extract Two

You hear a woman talking about snowboarding.

3. According to the speaker, the public don’t realise that
   A. snowboarding is easier than skiing.
   B. snowboarding is difficult for beginners.
   C. snowboarders take their sport seriously.

4. According to the speaker, why don’t skiers welcome snowboarders?
   A. They resent the fact that snowboarders generally have more money than skiers.
   B. They don’t like the disruption that snowboarding causes.
   C. They don’t like snowboarding being dominated by one group.
Extract Three

You hear a woman talking about her job in a lost property office at a major railway station.

5 When she explains that their missing belongings aren’t in the lost property office, most people
   A don’t believe her.
   B are annoyed with her.
   C realise that they have probably been stolen.

6 She believes that most unusual items of lost property
   A are unwanted presents.
   B have been left deliberately.
   C have no value to their owners.

Extract Four

You hear a man on a radio travel programme talking about city audioguides for use on an MP3 player.

7 According to the speaker, the City Sounds audioguide
   A is no better than a guidebook.
   B explains architecture well.
   C includes irrelevant information.

8 The feature of Walk and Talk that the speaker particularly praises is A the style of presentation.
   B the accuracy of the information.
   C the selection of music.
Grammar focus task

Complete these sentences from Extract 3 by writing the object in brackets in one space and an appropriate particle in the other. In which can you reverse the position of the object and the particle?

1. It's always difficult when I tell people that no-one's handed their property in...
   (in their property)

2. I think most of them are secretly convinced that I'm hanging something (lost property) for myself or selling something...
   (for something)

3. People leave something on trains that you really would not believe. (some things)

4. I really think that people 'accidentally' leave unusual things like this on the train because they don't know how else to get rid of something...
   (of them)

5. You'd think people would be able to give something...
   (to someone) or dispose of them in some other way rather than leaving them behind on trains, wouldn't you? (them)

Writing

The tourist authority is trying to increase the number of visitors from overseas that come to your region. It has asked for reviews of local tourist attractions which have some historical interest for publication in its magazine for visitors. Write your review of one tourist attraction. Describe it, outline its historical interest, give your personal view of the attraction, and say why it will appeal particularly to overseas visitors.

Write your review in 300–350 words.

Writing hints

This task gives you the chance to practise using complex prepositions:

- in comparison with other tourist attractions;
- together with restaurants and clubs;
- away from the crowds; as well as other attractions.

(See Appendix 17.)
Prepositions after nouns and adjectives noun + preposition: related verbs and adjectives; noun + preposition + -ing or noun + preposition + noun; noun + of + -ing or noun + to-infinitive; noun + in or noun + of; adjective + preposition

A Context listening

1 Do you prefer reading the news online or in a newspaper? Why?

2 Kate Pearce has set up an online newspaper called Happening. Recently she visited her old school to talk to students about how she set up the paper. Listen to the question and answer session and number these steps in the order Kate mentions them.
   a contact advertisers
   b learn how to design a website
   c give more information about famous people d gather feedback on the website
   e respond to criticism
   f borrow some money
   g design a prototype website
   h increase involvement of teenagers i have the idea of a newspaper
   j for teenagers

3 Listen again and write the exact words you hear in the spaces.
   1 I'd also had the opportunity to do a course on website design, and that
   2 influenced my decision.
   3 But we did ....................... money to live on.
   4 We had real ....................... persuading banks to lend us anything at all.
   5 We took the ....................... work on it for six months.
   6 It was ....................... generate business at first.
   7 I think there'll always be a ....................... traditional newspapers.
   8 And do many people ....................... Happening?
   9 In the early days we used to get quite a lot of ....................... our news coverage.
   10 Young people ....................... very high standards nowadays.
   11 We've ....................... include a section on celebrities.
   12 Young people may be able to have an ....................... government policies.

4 Underline the nouns you have written in Exercise 3, and find the related verb or adjective. Which nouns used the same preposition as the related verb or adjective?
1 Noun + preposition: related verbs and adjectives

Many nouns are followed by the same prepositions as their related verb or adjective:
(> See Appendix 20.1.)
We used to get quite a lot of complaints about our news coverage. or People used to complain a lot about our news coverage.
I wanted to increase young people’s awareness of current affairs. or
I wanted to make young people more aware of current affairs.

A few are followed by different prepositions from their related adjective:
(> See Appendix 20.1.)
We take pride in the design of our website. or We are proud of the design of our website.

Some take a preposition where their related verb does not:
(> See Appendix 20.1.)
Young people may be able to have an influence on government policies. or Young people may be able to influence government policies.

2 Noun + preposition + -ing or noun + preposition + noun

Most noun + preposition combinations can be followed either by an -ing form or a noun:
There have been protests about locating a new nuclear power station on the east coast. or
There have been protests about the location of a new nuclear power station on the east coast.
(> See Appendix 20.2.)

⚠ Some noun + preposition combinations are more usually followed by a noun than an -ing form:
I felt there was a demand for the publication of an online newspaper. rather than
I felt there was a demand for publishing an online newspaper.
(> See Appendix 20.2.)

3 Noun + of + -ing or noun + to-infinitive

Some nouns can be followed be either of -ing or a to-infinitive with little difference in meaning:
The idea of setting up some kind of newspaper for young people came from that time. or
The idea to set up …
I had the opportunity to do a course on website design. or
I had the opportunity of doing a course on website design.
(> See Appendix 20.3.)
Some nouns have more than one meaning and are followed by either of + -ing or to-in infinitive depending on which meaning is used:

Young people get the chance to contribute in various ways. (chance = opportunity)
The banks thought there was little chance of making it a commercial success. (chance = likelihood)
(See Appendix 20.3.)

Some nouns can be followed by of + -ing, but not a to-in infinitive:
The difficulty of persuading the banks to lend us money meant that we had to borrow money from our parents. (not The difficulty to persuade the banks ...)
(See Appendix 20.3.)

Some nouns can be followed by a to-in infinitive, but not of + -ing:
We took the decision to work on it for six months. (not We took the decision of working on it for six months.)
(See Appendix 20.3.)

4 Noun + in or noun + of

We use increase / decrease / rise / fall + in when we talk about what is increasing or decreasing, and increase / decrease / rise / fall + of to talk about the amount of an increase or decrease:
The recent increase in hits on the website means that we can charge more for advertising space. (not The recent increase of hits ...)
We’ve had an increase of about 50% in the last three months alone. (not We’ve had an increase in about 50% ...)

Other nouns like this include: cut, decline, downturn, drop; gain, growth, jump, leap.

5 Adjective + preposition: expressing feelings

Many adjectives which refer to feelings or opinions are followed by particular prepositions:
Young people seem generally very enthusiastic about the site.
They were very wary of advertising on the site.
(See Appendix 20.4.)

6 Adjective + preposition: different meanings

Some adjectives are followed by different prepositions, depending on meaning:
I knew they were concerned about what was going on in the world. (concerned about = worried about)
We have a reviews section, which is concerned with films, CDs, DVDs and books. (concerned with = to do with)
(See Appendix 20.5.)
C Grammar exercises

1 Complete each sentence with an appropriate preposition.
   1 I've been afraid __________ the dark ever since I was young.
   2 As the men came towards him, knives in hand, he felt afraid __________ his life.
   3 Get Brian to do the decorating. He's particularly good __________ wallpapering.
   4 We ought to get our website redesigned. I think it would be good __________ business.
   5 I was really furious __________ Steve for turning up so late.
   6 Local people are furious __________ the decision to build a power station.
   7 I think it's unfair __________ you to blame me for missing the plane. It wasn't my fault the taxi was late.
   8 The teacher kept the whole class in after school, which I thought was unfair __________ those of us who hadn't been behaving badly.
   9 I'm really sorry __________ the coffee on the carpet. I didn't notice your cup there.
   10 I feel really sorry __________ Sarah. She lost all her work when her computer crashed.

2 Rewrite the sentences using a noun related to the underlined verb or adjective. Make as few other changes as possible.
   1 At the meeting we discussed the pros and cons of private education.
   2 She admitted that the salary increase had influenced her decision to take the new job.
   3 The children's spelling has improved noticeably since they were each given a dictionary.
   4 Alex has done very well at university and we are very proud of his achievement.
   5 Although I don't agree with his political beliefs, I greatly admire his writing.
   6 The flooding seriously damaged many of the houses in the village.
   7 When you come to collect the parcel, please bring documents to prove your identity.
   8 Northern Rail has banned the use of mobile phones on its trains.
   9 To solve the problem of severe traffic congestion, drivers are to be charged £10 a day for bringing their cars into the city centre.
   10 The number of students dropping out of college has reduced substantially this year.

3 Choose the correct option. In some sentences both are correct.
   1 Researchers have developed a treatment that they claim can significantly reduce the likelihood of getting / to get skin cancer.
   2 After his heart attack, Tom had the sense of cutting / to cut down on the amount of fatty foods he ate.
3 The government has withdrawn its opposition to using / the use of private hospitals in the National Health Service.

4 Has there been an increase or decrease in visiting / the number of visitors to the National Park over the last ten years?

5 It was Gwen who had the idea of organising / to organise a fashion show to raise money.

6 Have you ever regretted your decision of moving / to move to Sweden?

7 It has been shown that people are more productive when they are given the option of working / to work flexible hours.

8 There seem to be two main factors behind closing / the closure of the car factory.

9 The focus of the conference is on protecting / the protection of endangered species in the rainforests of central Africa.

10 The party still shows no sign of recovering / recovery from its election defeat last year.

11 As she was writing, I noticed she had a very strange way of holding / to hold her pen.

12 A new advertising campaign is being launched today with the aim of encouraging / to encourage children to stay at school until they are 18.

---

4 Add the missing prepositions to these texts.

A: I’m really fed up / with my job. I’ve been doing the same thing at Trimeg for ten years, and I’m tired the same old routine.

B: But I thought you were keen your job. You’ve always seemed so enthusiastic it.

A: Well, I used to be very impressed the managers. But now they’re only interested making money and they seem indifferent how the staff feel. There are rumours that business isn’t going well, so a lot of people are worried their jobs. In fact, one of the senior managers left last week. He obviously wasn’t satisfied the way the company’s being run. Maybe it’s time I started looking around for something new, too.

B (This is part of a speech made by a senior manager at Trimeg to employees.)

I know that some of you have expressed anxiety Mr Madison’s sudden departure the company last week. I was very disappointed his decision to resign. I must admit that the last few months have been difficult, and at times we’ve been very concerned ourselves the future of the company. However, we have now developed an association a firm of retailers in South-East Asia, and we’re extremely pleased this development. We did at first have a disagreement safety standards, but this has been resolved and they have now indicated their satisfaction the design changes we’ve made. We hope to sign a major contract with them in the next few days. To all of you I want to express my gratitude your belief the company and your continuing support the management team.

---

231
Use of English

For questions 1-12, read the text below and then decide which answer (A, B, C or D) best fits each space. There is an example at the beginning (0).

Seasonal affective disorder

Seasonal affective disorder, or SAD, is a type of depression that follows the seasons, with most SAD sufferers (0) ....... symptoms during winter months. These symptoms include disturbed sleep and difficulty staying awake during the day. For many people, SAD is a (1) .............. condition which causes (2) .............. discomfort, but no severe suffering. This form of SAD is sometimes referred to as 'winter blues'. For others, however, it is a serious illness which might (3) .............. them living a normal life.

SAD is clearly a response to the (4) .............. of daylight hours and the lack of sunlight in winter. It is mainly found (5) .............. people living in high latitudes. However, it is rare in those living within 30 degrees of the Equator, where daylight hours are long and constant. The relationship between (6) .............. daylight and SAD is not clearly understood. It is thought that it affects the brain's production of the hormones serotonin and melatonin, but precisely (7) .............. depression is triggered by a fall (8) .............. the production of these hormones is an area for further research.

The most common treatment (9) .............. SAD is light therapy in which sufferers are exposed to a very bright light, of at least ten times the intensity of ordinary domestic lighting, for up to four hours per day. This is (10) .............. in around 85% of cases. Patients who do not respond to light therapy are usually prescribed antidepressant drugs, although there is a growing (11) .............. in psychotherapy for SAD sufferers, enabling them to relax and (12) .............. with the problems induced by the illness.

0 A feeling
1 A mild
2 A the
3 A limit
4 A inadequacy
5 A by
6 A weakened
7 A if
8 A from 9 A with 10 A efficient
11 A enthusiasm
12 A cope
Grammar focus task

Without looking back at the text, decide how many of these extracts have the preposition of after the noun in italics? What other prepositions are used after nouns in the extracts?

1. Seasonal affective disorder is a type of depression that follows the seasons.
2. This form of SAD is sometimes referred to as ‘winter blues’.
3. SAD is clearly a response to the shortening of daylight hours.
4. The lack of sunlight in winter.
5. The relationship between reduced daylight and SAD...
6. It affects the brain’s production of the hormones serotonin and melatonin.
7. It is triggered by a fall in the production of these hormones...
8. At least ten times the intensity of ordinary domestic lighting...

Writing

You are studying Business and English at your college. You want to spend two months during your vacation working in a company in an English-speaking country to get work experience and to practise your English. Write a letter to the Personnel Manager of Arcon, an international company with branches in many countries, explaining who you are, what you would like to do, and why the company should employ you temporarily. Offer to send further information about yourself if the company is interested in employing you.

Write your letter in 220–260 words. Do not write any postal address.

Writing hints

The task gives you the chance to practise using nouns followed by particular prepositions: a possibility of (finding), the experience of (working), a good knowledge of (computers); the opportunity to (improve); an interest in (marketing), an expertise in (information technology); a demand for (temporary positions).

Useful language
I am writing to enquire whether...; I would like to be able to...; to make a useful contribution; Thank you for your attention.
Unit 1

A: Context listening
2 Dave 3 Karen 4 Dave 5 Keith 6 Karen 7 Beryl 8 Keith
3 2 'd (had) been waiting
3've (have) been working 4've (have) arrived
5'm (am) now thinking 6'm (am) working 7've (have) spoken 8've (have) enjoyed
9've (have) been trying 10'd (had) finished

Six tenses are used in these extracts:
- past simple (1), past perfect continuous (2), present perfect continuous (3 & 9), present perfect (4 & 8), present continuous (5 & 6), past perfect (7 & 10)

Grammar exercises
1 2 I was driving 3 come / am usually coming (either is possible to describe something regularly done at a certain time)
4 went / was going (similar meaning) 5 saw 6 stopped
7 watched / was watching (similar meaning) 8 travelled / was travelling (similar meaning)
9 disappeared 10 believed / have never believed (similar meaning) 11 is forever trying 12 exist 13 think (suggests that her opinion has changed) / in thinking (suggests that her opinion is in the process of changing) 14 is / was 15 got / were getting (similar meaning) 16 was 17 received 18 saw / were seeing (this would suggest that the callers phoned while watching the light) 19 are now considering 20 offers / offered (similar meaning) 21 come / were coming (similar meaning) 22 suggest (implies that the likely explanation is that the lights were a meteor shower) / suggested (implies that this explanation is less certain) 23 was 24 is 25 seems 26 are getting 27 is currently researching 28 believes 29 observed / were observing (similar meaning) 30 says 31 take / are taking (similar meaning)
2 2 a expect b are c ... expecting
3 a hated b was hating (focuses on the temporary effect of the war) or hated (focuses on the more general activity of being in a boat)
4 a is attracting b attracts
5 a Do ... see b was seeing
6 a was measuring b measures
7 a'm (am) looking or was looking (similar meaning, although the past continuous is more tentative, suggesting less chance of success) b looks
8 a appears or is appearing (suggests that this is unusual or temporary behaviour) b's (is) appearing

3 1 b had played 2 played (similar meaning). c Did you play
3 d had been playing 4 had played (similar meaning)
2 a made b had been making c had made / made (similar meaning) d have made
3 a had been eating b ate c had eaten d haven't eaten
4 a have run b had been running c had run d ran
4 2 has been dropping is more likely as a situation is being talked about which has changed over a period of time up to now and may well continue to change.
3 has belonged
4 has been serving is more likely because we are told how long it has continued.
5 have failed
6 have you considered
7 have you been swimming
8've (have) tried
9 has been
5 2 started 3 remember 4 had been working 5 had worked 6 was doing 6 I've been working 7 had just finished
8 was feeling / felt 9 have you been deeping 10 hits 11 I've been having 12 I notice 13 If you had 14 haven't had 15 I suggest 16 are working / work
17 doesn't solve

D: Exam practice
Reading
1 C 2 D 3 A 4 D 5 B 6 C

Grammar focus task
2 wondered 3 had affirmed 4 did not care 5 had been 6 had fallen 7 took 8 added 9 was 10 had listened 11 had he heard 12 vanished 13 had learned

Writing Sample answer:
The most important invention of the last 100 years: television or the Internet?
Some people consider television to be the most important invention of the last 100 years. However, there is another invention, which has had an even greater impact on the world: the Internet. Developed in the 1960s, the Internet provides global communication, something no other invention has achieved.

Never before has it been possible for people to communicate so easily, so rapidly and with so many others. An email, for example, can be sent from one side of the world and received on the other in a matter of seconds.

The Internet has transformed the way we conduct almost all aspects of our lives — social interaction, business, education, politics and leisure. Young people in particular communicate with friends and exchange information on social networking websites such as Facebook. The majority of businesses now have their own websites to inform their customers. On many of these sites it is also possible to order goods directly from the business. More and more educational courses use online resources to supplement face-to-face teaching and paper-based material.
Until the Internet came along, it was hard to disagree that television was the major invention of the last hundred years. It provided entertainment, it informed us about events around the world, and it allowed advertising to reach into our homes. But the Internet can do all the things television can and many, many more. Above all, it allows us to interact directly with other people in a way that television never could. It has already changed the world and its potential to change it still further is enormous.

Unit 2

A: Context listening

2 The following activities are mentioned: visiting the Golden Gate Bridge in San Francisco, camping on a beach, sightseeing in New York, visiting the Grand Canyon.

3 2 arrive 3 'll (will) be leaving 4's (is) going to take 5'm (am) going to fly 6 Will 7 'll (will) have been living 8 'll (will) be staying

4 Six ways of talking about the future are used in these extracts: present continuous (1), present simple (2), future continuous (3 & 4), be going to + infinitive (4 & 5), will (6), future perfect continuous (7)

C: Grammar exercises

1 2 depart 's (am) having 4 is going to meet

5 will persuade 6 will rise (as weather is not something people can control, it would be unusual to use he to + infinitive here) 7 agrees 8 see (we usually use the present simple to refer to the future in a time clause with a conjunction such as when) 9 miss 10 to be believed 11 will be enjoying

2 2 I'm going to do 3 I'll let (a promise; I shall is rather formal) 4 He'll agree / He's going to agree 5 I'll agree to (an offer or a decision made without planning) 6 are you doing / are you going to do (we don't use present simple for an informal arrangement) 7 will commence (a formal arrangement) 8 it is going to be / it will be 9 is doing (an arranged event) 10 Shall 1 (an offer) 10 will take 11 are starting / will start / start (will or present simple suggest a formal arrangement; perhaps there are public examinations; present continuous suggests a less formal arrangement; perhaps a teacher is announcing her intentions for a class test!) 12 is (present simple in time clause with when) is going to be / will be (we don't use it in it to be for something that people can't control, such as someone's age) 13 is probably going to burst / will probably burst

3 2 a 's (am) going to buy b's (is) going to have c're (are) going to need

4 a is having been working b will have been watching c will have been negotiating 4 a won't be coming b will you be supporting c will be doing 5 a is to create b are to be left c is / are to launch 6 a will have moved b will have had c will have been analysed

7 a's (is) making b'm (am) not going c're (are) having

4 2 was to have begun 3 will reduce 4 was to have carried / was to carry 5 will take place / is to take place / is going to take place 6 is to star / will star 7 was going to make 8 was to spend 9 was to be 10 will appear / appears / is going to appear

D: Exam practice

Use of English

1 Because the decisions or actions (about ageing) taken now might damage society in the future.

2 We feel at the same time that old age is both a success and a failure.

3 Inevitably

4 That the author sees disease in old age as very unpleasant. / That the author is shocked / frightened by disease in old age.

Grammar focus task

2 The decisions we take in the next few years will have far-reaching consequences for the state of future society.

3 Many are the news stories trumpeting that we will soon all live to 130, 200 or 400 years. (That we will soon all get to 130, 200 or 400 years would also be possible, although the date was used in the original text)

4 When we get these therapies, we will no longer all get frail and decrepit and dependent as we get older.

5 We will still die, of course.

6 So, will this happen in time for some people alive today?

Writing Sample answer:

Dear Delegate,

We look forward to welcoming you to the 15th annual conference of 'Sport for Youth', which will be held in the Town Hall in Congerton from 22nd to 25th September.

You already have a programme for the first day, but here are some further details. The registration desk opens at 8.30 and stays open all day. You can collect a Welcome Pack when you register, and this will include a Certificate of Attendance. In his opening speech, Peter Taylor is asking about the current state of sport in schools. Coffee and lunch are served in the Aspen Room. The cost of these is included in the conference fee. If you need Internet access, then this will be available through computers in the basement at no charge.

No events have been arranged for the first evening, but there are lots of things to do in Congerton. The town has two cinemas, and a theatre which is showing Romeo and Juliet during the conference. There are many pubs and bars close to the conference venue, and some excellent restaurants offering a wide range of food and prices. The conference organising committee will be at the conference hotel to advise and guide you.

Please feel free to contact me before the conference starts if you need any additional information.

Regards,

Anna Reece
Unit 3

A: Context listening
3 2 must accept. 3 were able to bring 4 will be 5 ought to be 6 have to play 7 should give 8 will be 4 2 extracts 2 and 3 extracts 5 and 7 4 extract 1
5 extracts 4 and 5

G: Grammar exercises
1 2 We'll be able to 3 wasn't able to / couldn't 4 couldn't
5 Could 6 could 7 might / could 8 could 9 mightn't
2 2 must 3 can't 4 mightn't 5 should / must / ought to 6 did you have to 7 had to 8 have to 9 shouldn't 10 have to 11 have to / 've got to / must
3 2 b 3 a and b 4 b 5 b a 7 a and b 8 b
4 2 In just a few years from now everybody will be able to watch TV on their computers.
3 1 still remember how they would play together so well as children. (used to is also possible)
4 Forecasters are warning that heavy snow could cause dangerous driving conditions. (will is also possible) 5 There's some really nice cheese that I don't think you will have tasted before.
6 We live in an old house that used to belong to a politician.
7 Writing my geography assignment shouldn't take me too long.

D: Exam practice
Listening
1 B 2 C 3 B 4 C 5 A 6 B

Grammar focus task
1 may (in recording); could also possible
2 will (in recording); can also possible
3 we get (in recording); should also possible
4 used to (in recording); would also possible
5 must (in recording); could also possible
6 could (in recording); would also possible

Writing Simple answer:
Proposal to reduce car use by employees
The problem
Most employees drive to work, despite the provision of public transport in the city.
Benefits of reduced car use Reducing car use by employees would have a number of significant benefits for the company as well as the wider world.
- It would ease parking problems for employees and this might decrease the number of people arriving late due to parking difficulties. Thus, the company's output might increase.
- It would reduce greenhouse gases emitted and thus lower the company's contribution to global warming.
- As we are an influential company in the city, it may encourage other companies to introduce their own schemes for reducing car use.

Possible ways of reducing car use
A number of possible ways of reducing car use are suggested:
- The introduction of a car-share scheme, organized by the company.
- Providing secure bicycle parking at the company to encourage people to cycle to work.
- Promoting the use of public transport by providing travel passes subsidized by the company.

Barriers to change
A number of problems will be faced when changes are implemented, including:
- Resistance to change. For example, some employees said that they take their children to school before coming to work, so are not able to share transport. Others said that they would be unwilling to cycle in wet weather.
- Limitations of the public transport system. Many employees said that the reliability of public transport needs to be improved substantially before they would consider giving up their cars.

Recommendations
None of the suggestions is supported by all employees; I therefore recommend that a mixed approach should be taken to the problem, with the company adopting all three of the proposals.
To overcome barriers to change, the company should organise a publicity campaign highlighting the convenience and financial benefits of car-sharing and the health benefits of cycling. At the same time, the company should join with other major businesses to put pressure on local government to improve public transport.

Unit 4

A: Context listening
1 a, b, d and f
2 2 f 3 a 4 e 5 b 6 b 7 g 8 d
3 1 sentences 1 & 2 2 sentences 3 & 8 3 sentences 4 & 7
4 sentences 5 & 6

G: Grammar exercises
1 I must have got up / must have had to get up (must have got up is a conclusion that it was necessary for A to get up early here, they have a similar meaning.)
2 didn't dare admit / didn't dare to admit would have been 3 might be raising we ought to / we'd better
4 is supposed to start; couldn't 5 must; might / could
6 must have known; should have warned
7 might; need never 8 should / were supposed to (the meaning of should and were supposed to is similar, although should expresses the speaker's view more strongly); could / might 2 2 have been caused 3 have changed 4 have been working 5 have found 6 be waiting 7 have been made 8 have been talking
3 2 have managed 3 there is a possibility of seeing 4 I recommend you to / I recommend that you (should) 5 succeeded in taking 6 are to be taken 7 you are allowed to
2 might have been working 3 must be getting earlier
4 must have been going through 5 could be facing 6 must have to be 7 ought to have given 8 would not have
D: Exam practice
Use of English
1 I would sooner watch football than play 2 must have made
3 are required to fill 4 in order to be 5 have thought about 6 has succeeded in cutting 7 you’d (= had) better not miss
8 did they bring up
Grammar focus task
1 a b 2 b had better not (in 7)
Writing Sample answer:
Dear Martha,
It’s great that you’re thinking of a walking holiday. I enjoyed my week in Italy. But I’m not sure whether this is the holiday for you.
On the plus side, the scenery was incredible and the villages we walked through were lovely. Our guide knew all about the history of the area, so we learned a lot. Each night we stayed in a different hotel, and these were comfortable and served great food — as you’d expect in Italy! The others in the group were very friendly and interesting.
Unfortunately, the guide kept getting lost, even though he was supposed to be really experienced. Sometimes the hotel rooms weren’t ready when we arrived, and I felt they could have been better prepared. Meals were included in the price except for lunch, but this was very expensive. I think they should have warned us about this. But the big problem was hill walking. It was exhausting, and I couldn’t keep up. I think it might have been better for me to go on an easier walk.
And that’s what I’d recommend to you. As (like me?) you’re not very fit, maybe you should find a company that does easier walks. The company I went with only does tours in hilly areas.
You’ll probably be able to find a company that’s cheaper, too. The one I went with was overpriced.
Love,
Natalie
Unit 5
A: Context listening
3 2 decision-making 3 rainforest 4 river levels 5 energy saving
6 lighting energy 7 recycling scheme 8 the arms trade
9 mountain environments noun + noun 1, 3, 4, 8, 9 noun + -ing form 2, 5
4 For more details and examples, see Unit 5, Grammar, part 4
1 a the first time ‘drought’ is mentioned b it seems that ‘drought’ has been mentioned before, so the listener would know what drought is being talked about 2 a talking generally about something that is unique — there is only one future b a particular kind of future which is then specified
3 a talking about college (the institution) in general b talking about the particular college that Natim hopes to study in
C: Grammar exercises
1 2 a colleague of hers 3 Adam’s decision 4 a horror film 5 documentary about apartheid (an apartheid documentary is not a commonly used combination — in the way that a horror film is — so we are more likely to use noun + prepositions + noun) 5 the brother of someone I worked with in Malaysia
6 the Earth’s surface / the surface of the Earth 7 a moment’s hesitation (we prefer noun + s + noun to talk about time) 8 a children’s playground 9 a cousin of John Lennon / a cousin of John Lennon’s 10 The construction of the new library 11 letter box; a congratulations card 12 book review; crime reporter
2 1 is 2 is 3 is 4 lives 5 depend 6 has 7 is 8 has 9 has / have 10 is 11 is 12 means 13 are 14 are 3 2 fresh fruit / vegetables (both are possible) 3 advertisements
4 salt (‘cups of coffee’ might be used in informal contexts)
5 advice (‘tips’ might be used in informal contexts)
6 explosives / ammunition (both are possible)
7 work (‘jobs’ might be used in informal contexts)
8 rubbish (‘empty bottles’ might be used in informal contexts)
4 2 a competition; b a competition 3 a paper; b a paper
4 a a shampoo; b shampoo 5 a iron; b an iron 6 a a time;
b time; 7 an importance (importance would also be possible here); b importance; 8 a knowledge; b a knowledge 5 1 My brother wasn’t very good at taking exams and he left school at 16. At first he went to work in the construction industry. But he didn’t enjoy it, so he took an evening course in accounting. Eventually, he started a company offering financial advice. He’s now the managing director, and it seems that the company’s doing really well.
(He’s now managing director’s is also possible.)
2 A: Do you remember the summer we went to Sweden? 1995,
I think it was.
B: It was a wonderful holiday, wasn’t it? And so good to see Joakim again. I’ll never forget the picnic we had with him.
There were a huge number of mosquitoes.
A: Yes, I remember. And then when the sun was going down there was an amazing sky — bright orange.
B: And then his car broke down as we were going home, and we had to go back by bus.
A: No, we got a taxi, didn’t we?
B: Oh yes, that’s right.
3 Linda has a busy life as a lawyer, but in her free time she really enjoys hiking. Most weekends she drives out into the countryside and walks for a few hours. She says she likes to forget about work, and she doesn’t even take a mobile phone with her. In the summer she’s going hiking in the Philippines.
She’s never been there before, but the friend she’s going with knows the country well.
D: Exam practice
Use of English
3 is 2 The 3 As / Along 4 the 5 each 6 being 7 from 8 come / step / date 9 are / were 10 Although / While 11 across / through / throughout / around 12 By 13 most 14 the 15 is

Grammar focus task
1 a the 2 a The 3 b 4 a a b the

Writing Sample answer:
Sports facilities: present and future
Introduction
Two hundred residents were questioned about their use of sports facilities in the town and their views on these facilities. The report outlines the most popular sports among those questioned, assesses satisfaction with facilities, and makes suggestions for future developments.

Popular sports
Only 20% of the people questioned have used sports facilities in the town within the last year, although over 70% said they did some sport in their last year at school. The most popular sports among men are football and squash. Women prefer swimming, dance or the use of fitness centres. The number of men using fitness centres is small, even though the council has targeted men in its recent ‘Keeping fit’ campaign.

Current facilities
The public are generally satisfied with existing facilities, although a number of people consider the leisure centre in need of refurbishment. The council is / are to make a decision on this soon.
It was pointed out that many of the facilities in the town are becoming increasingly run-down; for example, the tennis courts and the golf course. One person pointed out that 90% of funding for sports facilities comes from local taxes, and that taxes were already very high.

Future developments
In my view, the council should invest in facilities for team sports such as volleyball, hockey and rugby, to enable people to continue playing sports they enjoyed in school after they leave. A new campaign should be launched to attract men to fitness centres. The council should also consider outside sponsorship from local businesses to fund better facilities.

3 1 b many 2 a each b every 3 a a few b the few 4 a less b fewer 4 in sentences 2a and 2b: we can say each / every day and every / each one of us.

C: Grammar exercises
1 1 in / are (Both are possible in this informal context; however, it would be preferred in a formal context); have / be 2 in / has / have (Both are possible, although have is more likely in this informal context.) 3 has; seem; likes 2 2 each / all / the whole (Both are possible, with a similar meaning) 4 little / much / few We were all / it is / was / were 7 Not all 8 less / the few 9 the few 10 will all be / III less / II every / II few 14 nearly every / 15 the whole / II your children all / all your children (Both are possible, with a similar meaning) 17 a few / / fewer (fewer is grammatically correct, although less might be used in an informal context)

3 2 a many b many 3 a a lot of (more natural than much in this informal context) b much (more natural than a lot in this informal context) 4 a many b a lot of (more natural than many in this informal context) 5 a none of b not any of (none of would also be possible) 6 a No b not any (probably written or said want; no would also be possible) 7 4 all (many would also be possible here) 4 few of 3 None / Of 7 much / many / much of 9 many of / of 10 Both / 11 None of / every / 13 Many / 14 All / of 15 little / of / of 16 little / 17 each of

D: Exam practice
Listening
1 countdown: 2 impressed 3 patronising 4 irritation 5 handouts 6 self-sufficient 7 surplus 8 prospects

Grammar focus task
2 Many 3 all 4 few 5 whole 6 less

Writing Sample answer:
Report on part-time employment
Types of employment
Forty-eight of the 50 students interviewed had a part-time job, with 75% working in shops. Four students were involved in education: three taught musical instruments and one helped in a school for disabled children. The remaining eight did babysitting. The students worked between 2 and 30 hours a week. Those in shops worked longest, 15 hours on average, while those doing babysitting had less regular hours. Most weeks they did very little work, but occasionally work up to four nights per week.

Unit 6
A: Context listening
2 The speakers mention the following benefits and problems: benefits: enjoyment, (personal) satisfaction, fitness (good for heart and lungs), sleep better, social contact / friendships problems: time commitment, running injuries (aching muscles, back pain), running in bad weather is unpleasant
Key

3 a genuine b very genuine
4 a original b highly original
5 a thoroughly professional b professional
6 a rather odd b odd
7 a critical b severely critical
8 a wild b pretty wild

2 to live 3 to stay 4 to see / seeing 5 to fall 6 working 7 to leave 8 to turn down / turning down 9 not being able
10 to start / starting 11 asking 12 to blame 13 to get / getting 14 leaving

1 2 I haven’t heard back from her yet. (I haven’t yet heard back from her) would also be grammatically correct, but less likely and rather formal in a conversation.
3 a really bad cold
4 the only seats available / the only available seats
5 a quite ridiculous price
6 1 Have you seen anything unusual in the street
2 I only ever see him
3 He’s the man living in 4 the house opposite
5 He’s rather a tall man / He’s a rather tall man. (Both are possible.)

D. Exam practice
Use of English
1 responsible 2 concerned 3 original 4 event 5 critical
6 perfectly

Grammar focus task
1 Question 3: a highly original mix (gradable); My original plan (non-gradable), the original painting (non-gradable). Question 5 is a critical moment (non-gradable), was critical of his performance (gradable), is critical to the prevention (nongradable).
2 seemed perfectly well (no other positions possible for perfectly).
I perfectly understand your objections, or I understand perfectly your objections, or I understand your objections perfectly.

Writing Sample answer.
I wish to nominate my teacher, Miss Petra Gunnarson, for the English Language Teacher of the Year award. She is in her mid-thirties and has taught English for ten years. She did a degree in English at Stockholm University, where she also trained to teach. She taught in Germany and Australia before coming to work at my college last year.
Miss Gunnarson is an outstanding teacher in many respects. Firstly, she has an excellent command of English. She not only studied it at university but she also lived in Australia, so she speaks perfect diplomatic English. She keeps her English up-to-date by reading and visiting friends in Britain. Secondly, she is remarkably enthusiastic about English. She is fascinated by the language and conveys her interest to her students. Thirdly, she clearly understands the best methods of language learning. Miss Gunnarson’s lessons are quite hard work, but always highly entertaining. We play games and work in pairs so that we speak English as much as possible.

I was always rather shy about speaking English, but Miss Gunnarson has encouraged me to speak and not worry about making mistakes. She is never critical if I try but get something wrong, and full of praise when I get something right. She has also given me the essential skills to help me improve on my own by organizing my time, and trying to learn a few words each day.

Without doubt Miss Gunnarson has had a huge impact on me and my fellow students. She is a wonderful teacher in so many ways.

Unit 8

A: Context listening

3 2 the best... on 3 as little as 4 the most boring
5 more peaceful than 6 as much as

4 1 too + adj. + so-infinite 2 the best 3 as + adj. + as 4 the most + adj. 5 more + adj. than 6 as much as

C: Grammar exercises

1 I most xenious (most harmful would also be possible)
2 narrower / more narrow; deeper 3 more harmful / unhealthier / more unhealthy; most alert 4 closest; most magistrates / handsome / most handsome 5 power; unhealthier / more unhealthy 6 handsome / most handsome; more concerned 7 more thrilled; most respected; more sad

2 1 b the cheapest or cheapest
2 a the oldest of b the most famous artist of his generation
3 a the youngest in the team b fittest or the finest 4 a the most exclusive hotel on the island b most embarrassing

3 few 3 were the poll findings / the poll findings were 4 little 5 as is 6 as much. 7 serious a problem 8 normal a life
9 not much 10 as 11 so / as (both are possible in informal speech, but as is more likely)

4 2 Adam is so tall that he has to bend down to get through doorways. 3 The job offer was so good that I couldn’t turn it down. 4 The comet is so bright that it can be seen with the naked eye. 5 The traffic outside the theatre was so loud that the actors couldn’t make themselves heard. 6 The camera is so small that it can fit easily into your shirt pocket. 7 The results were so awful that our teacher made us take the test again. 8 The fire was so serious that the building had to be evacuated.

5 2 (3 from Ex 4) The job offer was too good (for me) to turn (it) down.

3 (6 from Ex 6) The camera is small enough to fit easily into your shirt pocket or The camera is small enough to fit into your shirt pocket easily.

4 (8 from Ex 6) The fire was serious enough for the building to be evacuated.

D: Exam practice

Reading

1 G 2 A 3 D 4 D 5 B 6 C 7 A 8 B 9 B 10 D 11 A 12 B 13 C 14 C 15 A 16 B 17 D 18 D

Grammar focus task

1 as damaging... as 2 the more... better 3 so... so... that

4 as little as

Writing sample answer:

Improving study skills

Do you find studying difficult? If so, this information sheet is for you. It provides tips on how to study more effectively.

Time management

Managing time is one of the biggest problems faced by students finding enough study time and making the most of your time. Try this:

- Identify periods you know you will be free to study in the coming week.
- Write a list of tasks you have to do – longer tasks like reading a chapter, shorter tasks like organizing notes.
- Match the tasks to the study periods.
- Keep to your timetable, and don’t be distracted by more interesting activities like watching TV.

Reading

Reading a textbook is more difficult than reading a novel, so you need different strategies:

- Set reading targets, such as the number of pages to read each day.
- It’s better to work on a difficult text for short periods, taking frequent breaks.
- If you get stuck, discuss it with a classmate or your tutor.

Remembering information

Everyone has their own methods of remembering information. Here are some of the most popular:

- Study a topic and then get a friend to test you – testing yourself is not as effective as having someone else do it.
- Record information onto an MP3 player and listen to it as often as possible.
- Use drawings in your notes – visual images are easier to remember than words.

Above all, be positive about studying. It’s not as difficult as you might think!

Unit 9

A: Context listening

2 Early communication: parents and play

3 Listening and learning: the interrelationships
Key

1 4 Patterns of communication: learned behaviour?
5 Language learning problems: what and why?
3 2 giving a toy to their mother
4 offering her some food
4 Mend this for me
5 Reading stories for young children
6 describing this process to you
4 verb + person / people + thing(s) 1 and 3 verb + thing(s) + for + person / people 4 and 5 verb + thing(s) + to + person / people 2 and 6
5 2
✓ giving their mother a toy
✓ giving a toy to their mother
✓ giving a toy to her mother (focusses attention on their mother)
✓ offering her some food
✓ offering some food for her
✓ offering some food to her (focusses attention on 'her') 4
✓ Mend me this
✓ Mend this for me
✓ Mend this to me
5
✓ Reading young children stories
✓ Reading stories for young children (focusses attention on the young children and suggests that the children themselves aren't able to read)
✓ Reading stories to young children (focusses attention on the young children and highlights that something is being read out loud)
6
✓ describing me this process
✓ describing this process for you
✓ describing this process to you (describing ... for and describing ... to have a similar meaning)
C Grammar exercises
1 Example answers:
2 They agreed with each other.
3 They always compete with each other.
4 They respect each other.
5 They trust each other.
6 They make each other.
7 They have known each other for 20 years.
8 They work with each other.
9 They blamed each other.
10 They disagreed with each other.
2 myself some chocolate: 3 those letters for you / them for you
4 some apples for me / me some apples; you for them
5 you a favour (a favour of you would also be possible); me how to print out a document; 6 your car for you; you a lot
7 the mistake to the manager; me a £10 gift voucher / a £10 gift voucher to me: 8 me your glass / your glass to me; some water (for you / you some water
3 be guilty of the murder
3 themselves incapable of maintaining order
4 himself fit to play again: 5 myself lucky to be alive
6 her responsible for its collapse: 7 itself independent of the Soviet Union
4 2 himself on (himself) to 3 herself (to make it clear that the chocolates were for Sarah); myself with: 4 (myself) for, myself with 5 themselves you 4 (himself); (no reflexive or personal pronoun needed)
D: Exam practice
Use of English
1 her responsible for
2 have made up
3 sooner had I got home than 4 get along with one
5 no difficulty in recognising
6 herself on her / an ability
7 clearly explained the procedure (to us) / explained the procedure clearly (to us) / explained the procedure (to us) clearly
8 with the exception of

Grammar focus task
1 impose herself on, organise themselves into, brace ourselves for, acquaint himself to, distance myself from, console herself with, familiarise yourself with, establish ourselves as, tear myself away from, busy herself with
2 after you've picked up a 3 every / any 4 alleles 5 build 6 point out 7 repair 8 choose 9 hand / introduce

Writing Sample answer:
To whom it may concern,
I am writing in support of Lucy Mousetley's application for the post of newsletter editor.
I have known Lucy for five years since we met at university. We both worked on the university's weekly newspaper, and Lucy was editor for two years. In this role she demonstrated great enthusiasm and administrative skills. In addition to editing, she had to write articles for the newspaper and set up interviews for the other student journalism like myself. When we asked her for advice, she was always eager to help.
After university, Lucy and I both took jobs at our present company, and I have continued to work closely with her. During the time that I have known Lucy, I have found her reliable and honest in all aspects of her work. She has also earned herself a great deal of respect through her support for junior colleagues, always being happy to explain procedures to them. Although she can at first appear to be rather a shy person, she is in fact very kind and friendly when you get to know her, and always willing to socialise with work colleagues. I have no doubt that she will carry out every aspect of the position to the best of her ability and with great success. In addition, it will give her the opportunity to develop her editorial and communication skills still further. I am happy to recommend her for the post.

241
Unit 10

A: Context listening

1. The commentary is about the early development of radio.
2. The best answer is B. The context is about the early development of radio.
3. The commentary is about the early development of radio.
4. The student asked to write a radio script for a documentary.
5. The commentary is about the early development of radio.
6. The best answer is D. The context is about the early development of radio.
7. The commentary is about the early development of radio.
8. The best answer is C. The context is about the early development of radio.
9. The best answer is A. The context is about the early development of radio.
10. The commentary is about the early development of radio.

B: Grammar exercises

1. 2. advised him to give up 3. asked not to use 4. asked not to use (similar meaning but the first is more likely)
2. The best answer is D. The context is about the early development of radio.
3. The commentary is about the early development of radio.
4. The best answer is B. The context is about the early development of radio.
5. The commentary is about the early development of radio.
6. The best answer is A. The context is about the early development of radio.
7. The commentary is about the early development of radio.
8. The best answer is C. The context is about the early development of radio.
9. The commentary is about the early development of radio.
10. The best answer is B. The context is about the early development of radio.

C: Exam practice

Reading

Grammar focus task

2. to narrow 3. travelling 4. enacting 5. cutting 6. pushing 7. to reduce 8. to question

In 3 we could also use ‘to travel’ and in 6 ‘to push’.

Writing Sample answer:

Senior Citizens’ Visit

In July, a group of local senior citizens came to visit the college. The afternoon started with a welcome speech from the Principal, followed by a guided tour. We then provided entertainment — music, drama, and dance. It was described in feedback as ‘superb’ with the dancing singled out as ‘very professional’. We encouraged visitors to join in songs from the 1950s, which they did enthusiastically. The rock band, though, was too loud for some!

Next came refreshments with cakes baked by students, praised as ‘first class’. It was a great opportunity to talk, and we all enjoyed sharing our educational experiences. We were amazed to learn that some were taught in classes of 50 pupils!

Our visitors left at 6:30, and they all seemed to enjoy the afternoon. One wrote: ‘We appreciated the students looking after us so well, and we’re looking forward to coming back.’ We enjoyed it, too, and can’t wait to see them next year. Thanks to all who helped make it so successful.

Next year we will run a similar event, inviting local children with physical disabilities. But we need more helpers. If you play an instrument, be part of our entertainment. Or act as a guide — we need lots more. Come along and be part of a great day!

Unit 11

A: Context listening

1. The commentary is about the early development of radio.
2. The best answer is B. The context is about the early development of radio.
3. The commentary is about the early development of radio.
4. The best answer is C. The context is about the early development of radio.
5. The commentary is about the early development of radio.
6. The best answer is B. The context is about the early development of radio.
7. The commentary is about the early development of radio.
8. The best answer is A. The context is about the early development of radio.
9. The commentary is about the early development of radio.
10. The best answer is C. The context is about the early development of radio.

B: Grammar exercises

1. The best answer is D. The context is about the early development of radio.
2. The commentary is about the early development of radio.
3. The best answer is B. The context is about the early development of radio.
4. The best answer is C. The context is about the early development of radio.
5. The commentary is about the early development of radio.
6. The best answer is A. The context is about the early development of radio.
7. The commentary is about the early development of radio.
8. The best answer is C. The context is about the early development of radio.
9. The commentary is about the early development of radio.
10. The best answer is B. The context is about the early development of radio.

C: Exam practice

Reading

Grammar focus task

2. to narrow 3. travelling 4. enacting 5. cutting 6. pushing 7. to reduce 8. to question

In 3 we could also use ‘to travel’ and in 6 ‘to push’.

Writing Sample answer:

Senior Citizens’ Visit

In July, a group of local senior citizens came to visit the college. The afternoon started with a welcome speech from the Principal, followed by a guided tour. We then provided entertainment — music, drama, and dance. It was described in feedback as ‘superb’ with the dancing singled out as ‘very professional’. We encouraged visitors to join in songs from the 1950s, which they did enthusiastically. The rock band, though, was too loud for some!

Next came refreshments with cakes baked by students, praised as ‘first class’. It was a great opportunity to talk, and we all enjoyed sharing our educational experiences. We were amazed to learn that some were taught in classes of 50 pupils!

Our visitors left at 6:30, and they all seemed to enjoy the afternoon. One wrote: ‘We appreciated the students looking after us so well, and we’re looking forward to coming back.’ We enjoyed it, too, and can’t wait to see them next year. Thanks to all who helped make it so successful.

Next year we will run a similar event, inviting local children with physical disabilities. But we need more helpers. If you play an instrument, be part of our entertainment. Or act as a guide — we need lots more. Come along and be part of a great day!
7 B / C / D (more formal)
8 A (formal) / D
3 2 in 3 at 4 from 5 of 6 for 7 by 8 at / about 9 in 10 by 4 2 A diving board is a narrow piece of wood at the edge of a swimming pool (that / which) people can dive from. (from which people can dive)
5 Capri pants are women’s narrow trousers that / which end just below the knee.
6 A skimmer is a person or company whose job (it) is to organise the sending of goods from one place to another.
5 A Habib is a Muslim doctor who uses traditional methods to treat people.
6 A dumb waiter is a piece of equipment like a lift in which / whereby people can move food between the floors of a building. (by which people can move food in between the floors of a building)
7 The Stone Age is an early period in human history when / in which / during which people made tools and weapons only out of stone.
8 Proportional representation is a political system in which / whereby parties are represented in parliament according to the number of people who vote for them.

D: Exam practice
Use of English
1 which 2 whose 3 most / many / some 4 where 5 What 6 out 7 to 8 of 9 who 10 a 11 even 12 In 13 of / for 14 what 15 ever / yet

Grammar focus task
2 In general, these objects begin with a square sheet of paper, whose sides may be different colours. (Also possible is 'in general, these objects begin with a square sheet of paper, the sides of which may be different colour'.)
3 Some believe that origami originated in China, from where it was taken to Japan in the seventh century.
4 Probably the most famous modern origami artist was Akira Yoshizawa, who died in 2005.
5 Akira Yoshizawa created more than 50,000 models, only a few hundred designs of /for which were shown in his books. (Also possible is 'Akira Yoshizawa created more than 50,000 models, of which only a few hundred designs were shown in his books'.)

Writing Sample answer:
Fundraising for charity: a proposal
1 The cause
I propose that our college should raise money for the United Nations Children's Fund, UNICEF, the aim of which is to ensure children around the world have access to the support, healthcare and education necessary for a happy and healthy childhood. The reason why I have chosen this charity is that, as young people, we can empathize with the people the charity aims to assist. Supporting UNICEF should help us appreciate the opportunities we have, compared with young people who are less fortunate than ourselves.

2 Fundraising
I have various ideas for fundraising, one of which is to have a cake sale within the college. This could involve all senior students contributing some food, for example cakes or biscuits they have made themselves, and then selling these to the rest of the school. This way everyone could help make a contribution.
Another idea is to have a sponsored walk. For example, we could find out how far some children in developing countries have to walk to school, to water supplies or to hospitals, and then get sponsorship for walking this distance. This would allow students to experience the difficulties faced by many children in poorer societies, and also raise money at the same time.

My role
For the cake sale, I would arrange the time and place for the sale, and also organise people to bake enough cakes and biscuits.
For the walk, I would try to find a company which would agree to sponsor us. Then all participants could wear a T-shirt advertising the cause that they are supporting. I would also find out from UNICEF about the long distances walked by some children in a developing country, and would prepare maps for participants with walking routes of the same distance.
Before both events, I would organise a meeting for the whole college where a group of senior students could present the main aims of UNICEF, why we are supporting this specific charity, and how everyone can get involved.

Unit 12
A: Context Listening
2 She uses: studio lights for lighting the short glycercine to keep the food looking shiny and make cotton wool balls soaked in water and heated in the microwave to create stream a blowtorch to brown or melt the food.
3 2 who wanted > wanting 3 who encouraged > to encourage 4 who won > to win 5 that is produced > produced 6 which are used > used 7 that is not made > not made 8 which contains > containing 9 that have been soaked > soaked
4 1 Sentences 1, 2, 8 2 Sentences 5, 6, 7, 9 3 Sentences 3, 4

Grammar exercises
2 a The Internet is bringing about a degree of cultural change which / that has not been seen for centuries.
The Internet is bringing about a degree of cultural change not seen for centuries.
3 c All the passengers who / that were injured in the train crash have been released from hospital.
All the passengers injured in the train crash have been released from hospital.
4 e People who want tickets for the cup final can expect to pay over 100 euros.
People wanting tickets for the cup final can expect to pay over 100 euros.
5 g Our teacher, who was carrying a huge pile of textbooks, came hurrying into the room.
Our teacher, carrying a huge pile of textbooks, came hurrying into the room.
6 b Is that woman playing the piano your sister?
Is that woman playing the piano your sister?
7 b Barton Green, which is situated five miles from the city centre, will be the location of the new sports stadium.
Barton Green, situated five miles from the city centre, will be the location of the new sports stadium.
8 a The government has brought in new legislation affecting Britain’s 5.4 million dog owners. From next year all dogs will have to be tagged with tiny electronic chips holding information about the dog’s owner.
The government has brought in new legislation affecting Britain’s 5.4 million dog owners. From next year all dogs will have to be tagged with tiny electronic chips holding information about the dog’s owner.
9 e The inquiry into the wreck of the oil tanker Prestige, which sank off the south-west coast in 2002, has produced its final report. The report, due to be published tomorrow, is thought to show that the captain was mainly responsible for the collision with a smaller vessel.
The inquiry into the wreck of the oil tanker Prestige, which sank off the south-west coast in 2002, has produced its final report. The report, due to be published tomorrow, is thought to show that the captain was mainly responsible for the collision with a smaller vessel.
10 a The road bridge being built across the River Nene at Walsden will now not be completed until next January, nearly four years behind schedule, after yet another accident on the site. A section of the bridge being lowered into position fell from the cranes lifting it, causing major damage to parts already completed.
The road bridge being built across the River Nene at Walsden will now not be completed until next January, nearly four years behind schedule, after yet another accident on the site. A section of the bridge being lowered into position fell from the cranes lifting it, causing major damage to parts already completed.
11 d Demonstrators protesting against the play Global Swift at the Cress Theatre in London, claiming it to be ‘anti-religious’, have succeeded in preventing it being performed. The theatre management, advised by police that security could not be guaranteed, cancelled last night’s performance.
Demonstrators protesting against the play Global Swift at the Cress Theatre in London, claiming it to be ‘anti-religious’, have succeeded in preventing it being performed. The theatre management, advised by police that security could not be guaranteed, cancelled last night’s performance.
12 b The inquiry into the wreck of the oil tanker Prestige, which sank off the south-west coast in 2002, has produced its final report. The report, due to be published tomorrow, is thought to show that the captain was mainly responsible for the collision with a smaller vessel.
The inquiry into the wreck of the oil tanker Prestige, which sank off the south-west coast in 2002, has produced its final report. The report, due to be published tomorrow, is thought to show that the captain was mainly responsible for the collision with a smaller vessel.
13 a The road bridge being built across the River Nene at Walsden will now not be completed until next January, nearly four years behind schedule, after yet another accident on the site. A section of the bridge being lowered into position fell from the cranes lifting it, causing major damage to parts already completed.
The road bridge being built across the River Nene at Walsden will now not be completed until next January, nearly four years behind schedule, after yet another accident on the site. A section of the bridge being lowered into position fell from the cranes lifting it, causing major damage to parts already completed.
14 c People who want tickets for the cup final can expect to pay over 100 euros.
People wanting tickets for the cup final can expect to pay over 100 euros.
5 which use microchip technology and a digital display (or using microchip technology and a digital display)
6 that is being used in a house at any given moment (or being used in a house at any given moment)
7 that are provided free of charge (or provided free of charge)
8 that would give customers access to free monitors (or to give customers access to free monitors)
9 that should be considered (or to be considered)
10 which communicate electricity consumption both to the customer and the energy supplier (no reduced relative clause possible)
11 that are only able to do half the job (or only able to do half the job)
D: Exam practice
Reading
1C 2A 3D 4A 5D 6B 7B
Grammar focus task
2 ... there were clusters of dark freckles on his head, brown against the unreaking whites of his pale hair.
3 She put her hands into her pockets and pulled out a handful of small balls, multi-coloured and very bouncy.
4 I’m a Latvian sleeper. Waiting to be activated.
Writing Sample answer:
Salcombe – for a seaside holiday to remember
Salcombe is a delightful and charming town, situated in the south of Devon. The tranquil countryside surrounding Salcombe is ideal both for keen hikers and those who enjoy a more leisurely ramble, while the scenic coastline is breathtaking. It's a superb place to spend a relaxing week or weekend away, escaping from the fast pace of everyday life.
For those wanting a more active holiday, Salcombe is the place to come for sailing. It boasts some of the best sailing waters in England, as the sheltered estuary gives protection from Atlantic currents. There are many sailing schools within Salcombe providing first-class tuition for beginners as well as experienced sailors.
The town has all you need for the perfect holiday. There are cafes, restaurants, art galleries, museums, and great shopping. Find a shop selling Salcombe's famous dairy ice cream, and you'll be in for a real treat. Two glorious beaches can be found to the south of Salcombe, and across the estuary, a short boat ride away, lies the award-winning beach of Mill Bay and Sunnyside Cove.
There are plenty of places to stay in and around Salcombe, ranging from old thatched cottages to four-star hotels. For those of you who love the outdoors, there are many camping and caravan sites located in quiet and pretty surroundings.
Come to the seaside at Salcombe for a more varied experience than a holiday in the countryside and a more peaceful holiday than a city break.
Unit 13

A: Context listening
1 1 processed food 2 a ready meal 3 a balanced diet
4 nutrition
2 2 + seeing that + b 3 + so that + h 4 + whereas + a
5 + because + f 6 + in order to + e 7 + although + c
8 + where + g 9 + while + l 10 + despite the fact that + d
3 Seeing that in sentence 2 has a similar meaning to because.
You could use because in sentences 8 and 9, but it would have different meanings from when and while.
whereas and Despite the fact that in sentences 4 and 10 have similar meanings to although.

C: Grammar exercises
1 2 in / when / while 3 as 4 when 5 While (+ Although) 6 as / when 7 As 8 when 9 every time; whenever would also be possible) 9 As / When 10 When 11 While (+ Although) (In 2, 6 and 10, as and when (and while in 2) have a similar meaning. However, when is more common than as or while in informal contexts.)
2 2 e Although smoking is now banned in public spaces, sales of cigarettes have actually increased.
Despite smoking now being banned in public spaces, sales of cigarettes have actually increased.
3 g Although she fell heavily at the start of the race, she went on to finish second.
Despite falling heavily at the start of the race, she went on to finish second.
4 e Although we got lost on the way, we were eventually only a few minutes late.
Despite getting lost on the way, we were eventually only a few minutes late.
5 a Although the alarm went off when the house was broken into,
obody bothered to call the police.
Despite the alarm going off when the house was broken into,
obody bothered to call the police.
6 b Although we lived in the same village, we had never spoken to each other.
Despite living in the same village, we had never spoken to each other.
7 d Although she was badly hurt herself, she helped a number of passengers out of the crushed coach.
Despite being badly hurt herself, she helped a number of passengers out of the crushed coach.
8 People here don’t put much effort into the job seeing that
it’s so poorly paid.
3 My bike is unusual in that the front wheel is smaller than the back.
4 You need to lift the plant carefully so as not to damage its roots.
5 Pitcher plants are unique in that they are carnivorous.
6 The runway is going to be extended in order that larger planes can land there.
7 She’ll probably recover from the illness quickly seeing that she’s so fit.
8 She left work early in order that she could get to the concert on time.
9 We spoke very quietly so as not to be overheard.
4 a 2 though 3 In spite of the fact that 4 before I go 5 seeing that b 1 Because 2 I’ll have to 3 while (who) would be very formal in this context 4 so that I can (Some people use so as + subject + verb (e.g. so as I can) in very informal English.
However, this is grammatically incorrect and should be avoided in examinations.) 5 you get C 1 Inasmuch as 2 despite the fact that 3 in order not to 4 Although 5 as
D: Exam practice
Use of English
1 except / but 2 much 3 until / to 4 till 5 to 6 where 7 in 8 with 9 meet / turn 10 surprisingly 11 other
12 on 13 order 14 led 15 conflict
Grammar focus task
1 whenever 2 in that 3 although 4 in order to
Writing Sample answer:
I went to recommend two films with a romantic theme: Chocolat and Pride and Prejudice. Chocolat follows the story of a woman, Vianne, and her young daughter who travel constantly, never staying in one place. They move from an old-fashioned village and open an eccentric chocolate shop. Although she is welcomed by villagers, the mayor becomes her enemy. How Vianne becomes part of the community makes for an amusing and heart-warming film. The film is shot in a beautiful setting and includes some fine performances.
The second, Pride and Prejudice, follows the lives of the Bennet family, five daughters and their father and mother. The mother’s aim in life is to help her daughters meet men, so that they may get married. When Elizabeth, the second-oldest daughter, meets Mr Darcy, she thinks he is incredibly proud. But as she goes to know him, she discovers a gentleman beneath his proud exterior. And, of course, they fall in love. The twists and turns of the relationship keep the viewer gripped. While I don’t always enjoy Janet Leigh’s acting, in this film she gives an excellent performance.
The main difference between the films is their period and location. Chocolat is set in twentieth century France and Pride and Prejudice in eighteenth century England. But both films have romance at their heart, and romance is a surefire winner with cinema audiences whenever and wherever films are seen.
Don’t look for special effects in either of these films – they will instead appeal to those who like their films clever, witty, well crafted and beautifully photographed.
Unit 14

A. Context listening
1. Picture a shows a zoo, picture b a game reserve and picture c a safari park.
2. M, W and D 3 D 4 M 5 D and W 6 M 7 D 8 D
3. 2 unlike 3 even if 4 provided that 5 even though 6 so long as

C. Grammar exercises
1. Suggested answers:
   2. If you've got / If you have a student card you can get a discount at the bookshop.
   3. If you promise to bring it back tomorrow you can borrow my laptop for the evening.
   4. If we used / use more efficient light bulbs, there could be a 5% reduction in electricity consumption or if people used / use...
   5. If I had been promoted, I would have had to move to our head office in Madrid.
   6. If you're going to catch the 8.20 train, you'll have to leave the house by 7.30. / If you leave the house by 7.30, you'll be able to catch the 8.30 train.
   7. If I'd known you were a vegetarian, I wouldn't have cooked lamb for dinner. / Or if I knew you were a vegetarian...
   8. If I had studied harder, I wouldn't have such a poorly paid job now.
2. 2 if, didn't get / don't get
   3. if / even if (a similar meaning here); liked / likes
   4. even though / had been driving / had driven / drove
   5. if / was / were (were is more formal)
   6. even though / have been doing / have done / did
   7. if / enjoyed
   8. Even if / if
   9. unless / prefer / would prefer
10. if / isn't
11. Even if / Unless (even if... means that the company is likely to close by the end of the week whether or not there is a buyer. Unless... means that the company is likely to close only if no buyer can be found.); can
12. if / even if / were / were (were is more formal)
13. if / were / were (were is more formal)
14. even if / even though / even if / whether or not he has formal qualifications, even though / despite the fact that he doesn't have formal qualifications, doesn't have
2. 2 Aid must reach the refugees before the rainy season starts.
3. a The demonstrators arrested were allowed to go free on condition that they remained outside a 10-mile zone around the nuclear power station. (‘providing’ is also possible, although it would be rather informal in this sentence)
4. c Car airbags were designed to prevent chest injuries to the driver in the event of a head-on collision.
5. e He would have gone on working until he was 65 but for his poor health.
6. b We should get to the airport by 5.00 providing the traffic isn't too heavy on the motorway.

4. 1
   2 phone 3 will make / makes (similar meaning)
   4
1. had brought 2 had 3 was 4 would stop
3. I wasn't answering. 2 I'll have left 3 you'd got up
4. could have got 5 will be / is (similar meaning)

D. Exam practice

Listening

Task One
Speaker 1 F Speaker 2 G Speaker 3 A
Speaker 4 C Speaker 5 D

Task Two
Speaker 1 C Speaker 2 H Speaker 3 E
Speaker 4 B Speaker 5 G

Grammar focus task
2 a or b 3 a or b 4 b 5 a

Writing Sample answer:

The growth of cities: present and future consequences

People have many different motivations for moving from the countryside to cities, but by far the most significant is the greater opportunity for earning higher wages in urban areas. Rates of unemployment in rural areas are generally higher than in cities and, even if people have a job in the countryside, they are likely to be earning less than they could in a city. Cities have other attractions, too, particularly for young people who want the kinds of educational and entertainment facilities - universities, cinemas, and clubs, for example - that they do not have access to if they live in the countryside. Older people, too, may be attracted to the healthcare facilities found in cities.

The growth of urban areas has consequences, mainly negative, for both cities and villages. Rural areas suffer from depopulation, which means that there may not be enough people to keep health centres and schools open. If a village loses a large proportion of its young people, the remaining older population may not grow sufficient agricultural produce for the village to survive. Unless urban growth is planned for carefully, there can be huge pressure on housing, with the resulting shanty towns seen in many cities in the developing world. The consequent overcrowding and poor sanitation can lead to the spread of disease.

It is vital that the trend towards urbanisation is slowed down; otherwise, the future is bleak. But as long as the world population continues to grow, this is unlikely to happen. The main priority, then, is education and access to birth control. In addition, life in rural areas must be made more attractive to young people, encouraging them to stay. If governments don't take steps to expand employment opportunities, the flight to the cities will continue. The picture is not, however, all negative. In some countries, the problems of living in cities have encouraged older, richer people to move to the countryside, and with them have come educational, health and entertainment facilities. If this pattern continues, we may eventually see a slowdown in the expansion of cities. (Note: a shanty town is an area in or on the edge of a city in which no people live in small, badly built houses)

Unit 35

A: Context Listening

1 1. 2 and 4
2 2 c 3 a 4 s d 6 b
3 2 Exhausted 3 Before leaving 4 Having left 5 But opening up 6 Having been woken up

C: Grammar exercises

1 b Covered in oil, Colin got out from under the car. / Getting out from under the car, Colin was covered in oil.
2 Not being able to speak Portuguese (or Not speaking Portuguese), I found travelling in Brazil difficult.
3 Having already beaten Real Madrid twice this year, Manchester United are favourites to win again. / Having beaten Real Madrid twice this year already.
4 Having been shown how to use the software, I found it easy to design my own website.
5 Not having eaten or drunk anything for hours, I was starting to feel a bit faint.
6 Putting on her glasses (or Having put on her glasses), she began to read her speech.
7 Having learnt 2 instinctively 3 readily 4 ability 5 adoptable 6 starvation 7 learnt/learned 8 unavoidable/unadvised 9 parental 10 independent

Grammar focus task

1 This kind of behaviour is vital for a young animal, helping it to recognize danger and food. Mammals often have an even greater degree of parental care, some young with their mother even until their next offspring is born.
2 Governed by its genes, some parts of an animal's behaviour are innate. Having learnt what she looks like, chicks are then able to avoid making avoidable approaches to other potentially dangerous birds in the community.
3 To survive, an animal has to be able to do certain things as soon as it is born or it hatches.

Writing Sample answer:

Review of Lucia, Lucia by Adriana Trigiani

Lucia, Lucia is a riveting novel of passion and elegance. It is the story of a woman who believes that as a woman she could, and should, be able to have it all.

Set in dazzling and pulsating 1950s New York City, it is the compelling story of how Lucia Santisi follows her heart, changing her life forever. She is the beautiful daughter of an affluent Italian grocer in Greenwich Village. Although engaged to her childhood sweetheart, Danilo DeMartino, a chance meeting with a handsome stranger who promises her a life of uptown glamour causes her to become torn between the two. Their love affair takes a startling turn as secrets are revealed and she finds herself in the center of a stinging scandal. With her reputation at risk, the honour of the Santisi family is in jeopardy.

I found this a thoroughly enjoyable read, with an enchanting story and a set of lively and warm-hearted characters. An element of warm humour makes it pleasurable and light-hearted.

I found the character of Lucia particularly entertaining, and her witty remarks to the men in her life often made me laugh out loud. Having read it three times already, I have found it to be a book that never loses its appeal, and I would strongly recommend it. It is a novel that should be read and passed on to a friend, as it is sure to bring a smile to anyone's day.
Grammar focus task
1 whether homework has a significant educational value
2 that it takes too much time away from other more useful activities
3 What is often neglected in this debate
4 whether or not the child's home provides support for effective homework
5 Whatever money they have
6 the idea that only middle-class parents support their children's education

Writing Sample answer:
Dear Editor,

David Wallace is wrong to say that we need more nuclear power stations. Until the issue of what to do with nuclear waste is resolved, nuclear power can never be the answer to our energy needs. He seems to forget that as the number of power stations increases, so does the chance of another huge nuclear disaster on the scale of Chernobyl.

He claims that developing countries must have nuclear power stations, but few developing countries have access to the huge amounts of money needed to build them. He also overlooks the fact that technological developments in coming years are likely to lead to a rapid expansion in the use of renewable energy. Although not all countries have access to them the full range of renewable energy sources—hydro, wind, solar, tidal and geothermal energy—each country has the potential to develop at least one major source.

Many countries in Africa and the Middle East have massive potential for developing solar energy provided cheap technology becomes available. Eventually, they may even be able to sell their energy to other countries, enabling them to develop still further economically.

Good examples of what might be done already exist around the world. Ireland, for example, is aiming to become a carbon-neutral country, and already 99.9% of its energy comes from renewable sources, mainly hydroelectric and geothermal power. Germany is Europe's leading generator of wind energy, accounting for around 4% of all its energy use. Each country has to consider how best to exploit the renewable energy resources it has available.

I do not believe, then, that it is necessary to drastically increase the number of nuclear power stations. This would simply divert funds from the research into new technologies that is needed for the expansion of renewable energy. We have to face the fact that renewable energy sources are the only answer and all our money and effort should be directed towards their development.

Yours sincerely,

Laura Hernandez
Unit 17
A: Context listening
2 reversing around corners, overtaking and starting on a hill
3 Make: the correct order is c, b, a, d
Sam: the correct order is b, f, g, e
4 2 however 3 even so 4 although 5 even though 6 as long as
C: Grammar exercises
1 a The restaurant's closed next Monday because it's a public holiday. / Because it's a public holiday, the restaurant's closed next Monday.
2 d He was wearing the same clothes as me, except that his shoes were black.
3 c Not that we can't use while here because it is a conjunction. A sentence connector is needed to link the two sentences.
2 in case there's a power cut
3 whereas I prefer Indian (which is also possible)
4 Consequently, it isn't very heavy
5 otherwise we'll have to walk miles to the bridge
6 while she's looking flat
7 In contrast, in Marketing they get an hour
8 unless the weather's bad
4 A
2 while 3 because 4 At first 5 Even so
B 1 As well as 2 In spite of 3 until 4 hardly / no sooner (similar meaning) 5 What's more
D: Exam practice
Use of English
1 on 2 something 3 if 4 Although / While 5 order 6 how 7 that / which 8 like 9 what 10 who 11 cope / deal 12 with 13 few 14 means 15 however
Grammar focus tank
2 Although / While; Therefore in order to 3 Nevertheless; however
Writing Sample answer:
Healthy eating – Learn to eat for a healthy life.
('Healthy eating' essentially involves following a balanced diet which includes all the different food groups in appropriate proportions. Although healthy eating is important for everyone, it is of particular significance for young people. In the early years of life people's bones and muscles grow rapidly, and a good diet is necessary during this period in order to avoid illness. Deficiencies in important minerals can result in health problems, either immediately or in later life. Iron deficiency is common in young people, caused by rapid growth and a fast pace of life, and this can result in anaemia. Consequently, you should eat a diet rich in iron, including red meat and fresh vegetables such as broccoli. Calcium deficiency can lead to osteoporosis in old age, which causes bones to become very brittle and break easily. Therefore, a diet should be rich in calcium, from foods such as yoghurt, cheese, and milk. As well as preventing illness, there are other advantages of healthy eating. Healthy eating provides us with the energy needed for sport or simply going out with friends. In addition, it keeps your mind sharp and allows you to concentrate better on work. By eating well you can keep your skin, hair and nails looking good, too.
There are so many benefits of healthy eating and it doesn't have to be a chore. Eating well can be something enjoyable. Remember: invest in a balanced diet now and you will be rewarded with the health benefits throughout your life!

Unit 18
A: Context listening
1 1 STREET ART SPRAYED IN CAPITAL – e vandalism (here spraying graffiti)
2 MORE KIDS ATTACKED IN MOBILE THEFTS – e street crime (here stealing mobile phones from children)
3 GUN CONTROLS FAILING, SAYS POLICE CHIEF – b firearms offences
4 GANG LINKED TO 500 BREAKINS – a burglary
5 VEHICLE THEFT COST £800M – d car crime (car crime can refer to stealing cars or stealing things from cars)
6 car crime, vandalism (damage to property, graffiti), street crime (stealing mobile phones), drug-related crime, burglary
3 F (Peter Miles was appointed head of the police service) 4 T
4 F (Other countries are copying the government's scheme) 5 T (She agreed that there had been an increase in street crime) 6 F (She said she didn’t know) 7 F (She admitted that there might be mistakes in the figures)
8 F (There is a campaign to reassure people it is falling)
4 1 was given (passive) 2 have been arrested (passive) 3 are owing (active) 4 have became (active) 5 were caught (passive) 6 was broken into (passive)
C: Grammar exercises
1 A
2 is widely used 3 is viewed 4 are evaluated 5 is 6 is considered 7 collect 8 travels 9 believe 10 occur
Writing Sample answer:

Dear Editor,

I am writing in response to recent letters discussing the importance of university education. University is a very valuable experience for the overwhelming majority of students, and many skills are learned in addition to those gained in academic study.

The view was expressed that only those who go to universities should pay for them. But surely everyone in the country benefits when as many people as possible go to university. And access to university should not be confined to those whose parents can afford to pay. Students from poorer backgrounds also have talents to be developed in higher education. When those who do not attend complain about being asked to fund universities for young people, they should remember that graduates go on to support them directly. They become the doctors who care for them in their old age, the bankers who administer their pensions, and the engineers who build their roads and cities. And without university-educated people to fill these highly skilled jobs, we face being left behind by other countries.

In most countries, the percentage of the population having a university education is increasing, and this trend is expected to continue. However, this doesn’t necessarily mean that high levels of graduate unemployment will be seen. In many parts of the world there is currently a shortage of students studying sciences, in particular physics and chemistry. It has to be acknowledged, however, that in some specialist areas too many graduates are being produced. For example, in the UK there are presently far more students graduating with a degree in forensic science than can be justified by the number of jobs available in forensic science. But as time goes by, such imbalances will be put right by the laws of supply and demand.

University-educated students contribute to our economic development, as they are the future workforce of this country, and without that workforce we cannot develop. Knowledge needs to be passed on to them and as they gain new skills they can become future leaders of our society, demonstrating that university benefits not only students but our nation as a whole.

Yours,

Carmen Alexander

Unit 19

A: Context listening

2 Advantages: it would create 2000 jobs at the airport; it might encourage tourism in the region; it would help local business.

Problems: it would damage tourism; the noise; the danger of a plane crashing into the nuclear power station.

3 2 said that 3 promised to keep 4 encouraged us to go 5 warned us that 6 advised us to write 7 we (have) volunteered to write

Grammar focus task

1 decided (active) 2 is exposed (passive) 3 appointed (active) 4 assisted (active) 5 was greeted (passive) 6 attract (active) 7 sold out (active) (The passive form was sold out would also be correct.) 8 has been played (passive) 9 has become (active)
C. Grammar exercises

1. I grabbed / I was grabbing. 2. claimed it. 3. reassured me. 4. reveal to. 5. emphasised. 6. whispered to. 7. persuaded him. 8. commiserate with. 9. explained to me. 10. to apply / me that I should apply. 11. my research / complete / that I will complete. 12. to publish / publishing that / I will publish. 13. my qualifications and experience to be / that my qualifications and experience are / that my qualifications and experience will be / that I will hear. 14. 8 me to explain. 15. them (that) 16. to them. 17. that I had that / problems / to / having / bad problems / not / that I had that / problems / to / having / bad problems / not / 18. that I / should / look at / looking at. 19. 12 with me that my research. 20. 13 me to visit. 21. 14 me to write / that / I / should / write / writing. 22. 15 to contact me / that they would contact me. 23. 16 to offer me. 24. that they would / could / offer me.

2. He thinks / that he's / that he's going / going to rain / to rain later today.

3. She asked me why I don't / didn't / don't walk to school / not walking / school any more / that still exists / the time of reporting.)

4. She didn’t think (that) / that it / was her coat. (She thought that it / wasn’t her coat. / that it / is possible, although less likely.)

5. He said (that) / that Diane / is able to / would be able / would be able to speak six languages.

6. She asked (me) / if / whether I was going / was going to college / college next year.

7. She said (that) / that / I had / must set / the alarm when I leave / left the house.

8. She asked me who my favourite teacher was / who was / my favourite teacher / my favourite teacher when I was at school.

9. She couldn’t remember / she left / had left / her handwriting.

10. He said (that) / that he was playing football / playing football yesterday / yesterday afternoon.

11. He said / that he wasn’t / wouldn’t be able to give me a lift / after all, so I had to get a taxi.

12. He wanted to know how / how much / much I earned / earned.

13. She mentioned (that) / that they might go / like to / to France / to France again in the summer.

14. He wanted to know what he should do with the painting, / what to do with the painting.

5. He said that the current trading / that they are / were not fair / that they were not fair / (present subjunctive is not possible)

6. He urged that poorer countries / be allowed / to trade as / as equals / that trade rules / not be rewritten / to favour / in favour / to favour richer countries.

7. She advised / that developing / that developing countries / be helped / to expand / to expand their / their own industries.

8. She announced that Stop Poverty is to / is / to launch / a new public awareness campaign (a present subjunctive is not possible)

D. Exam practice

Listenning

Grammar focus task

1. a no b yes

2. a no b no

3. a yes b no

4. a no b yes

5. a no b no

Writing Sample answer:

Report on English language course

Introduction

This report is based upon feedback from the five managers who attended the English language course at the English Institute in Britain this year.

Teaching and accommodation

The course lasted three weeks, with 75 hours of tuition. All participants felt that the teaching was excellent, and most said that a longer course would have made even more progress. Participants stayed with local families, and most thought this arrangement was successful. However, one manager complained that the food was poor.

Social activities

These included weekend trips arranged by the school and informal evening activities organized by students. The participants said that all of these were enjoyable, although some pointed out that they were expensive.

Problems

In addition to those mentioned, some participants felt that the school was disappointing, for example, classrooms were often changed.

Recommendations

The overall cost was £2500 per person, and this seems reasonable value for money. However, this figure excluded social activities, books and midday meals, and some participants reported that these extra costs were a problem. My recommendation is that the course should be repeated with the same school for one more year for three weeks, but we should ask the school to include social activities and books in the figure of £2540. If they disagree, then we should try a different school.
Unit 20

A. Context listening
1. The pictures show:
   1. camping 2. cycling 3. river rafting 4. paragliding
   5. canoeing 6. surfing 7. sailing

2. Alison advises Tom to take a face mask, snorkel, sun hat, plastic trainers and insect repellent.

3. One of the local organizers did (meet me at the airport).

4. They should do provide all the equipment.

5. But you don't have to be a very good swimmer.

6. Preferably plastic ones trainers

7. By the end of the holiday I was exhausted, but I was very fit.

8. You'll certainly need some insect repellent.

9. I don't imagine you'll need to take a tent and cooking things.

C. Grammar exercises
1. 2 to ask you / to ask you
2. 3 has eaten anything today / has eaten anything today
3. 4 would have been shocked / would have been shocked
4. 5 to leave work early / to leave work early
5. 6 might be a vegetarian / would only be used informally.
6. 7 might be a vegetarian is more likely.
7. 8 to come on holiday with you / to come on holiday with you
8. 9 had been opened / had been opened
9. 10 to get married
10. Did know I was getting married / did know I was getting married.

B. Exam practice

Listening
1. C 2 B 3 D 4 D 5 B 6 A

Grammar focus task
1. want 2. would 3. willing 4. able 5. advise

2. We can leave out to in

1. ... she was determined to

3. ... if they're willing to.

Writing Sample answer:

A PROPOSAL TO EXTEND THE LIBRARY

Introduction

Class 125 proposes that the money put aside by the college for the improvement of the building and facilities should be used for an extension of the college library. We suggest that a wider variety of books and new computers should be bought. In doing so, the college can ensure that students have state-of-the-art facilities for study.

The benefits

A number of benefits can be identified for both students and teachers:

- The new library would provide a quiet working environment for students in their study periods.
- New reference books would be of value for students working on assignments and teachers preparing for their classes.
- The availability of a variety of novels of various genres would encourage students to read more widely outside school. A large collection of novels should be built up but, as paperback books are quite cheap, it would not cost a lot to do so.
- Computers with Internet access could be used by students and teachers for research purposes.
- Teachers could occasionally have the whole class using computers. Doing so will encourage new and innovative ways of teaching.
Recommendation
The college administration should consult with students and teachers on the design of the extension and on the new facilities. By doing so, it can be confident that they will meet the demands of the users.

Unit 21
A: Context listening
2 The speaker uses the following words in describing Maria Adams:
determined, persuasive, enthusiasm
3 1 F (the council lends them musical instruments)
3 2 T
4 1 F (the council backed down from their plan to make them pay)
5 2 F (People come from other countries to see the project)
4 The sentences you have written have a different emphasis from the ones given. The parts emphasised by the speakers are moved to (or closer to) the front of the sentence. These parts are underlined here:
1 Making music she sees as a fundamental part of a child’s development,
3 What impressed us most was the way she calmly and clearly argued her case.
4 Rarely have I met anyone with such passion for their beliefs.
5 A number of times the council has tried to make changes to the Music in Schools project in order to save money.
6 Only after Maria threatened to withdraw her support from the project did the council back down.

Grammar exercises
1 2 It was at her eightieth birthday party that she announced
2 What we did was (to) ask a farmer to pull us out with his tractor.
4 What I really want is a cup of tea. / It’s a cup of tea that I really want.
5 It could be the clutch cable that’s broken.
6 What happened was that I wasn’t looking where I was going and walked into a lamp post.
7 What I don’t know is who stole them.
8 It must have been my parents who / that gave Colin my telephone number.
9 What the research shows is a link between salt intake and rates of heart disease.
10 It was his nervous laugh that made me think he was lying.
2 1 F Should today’s match have to be postponed, it will be replayed next week, or Were today’s match to be postponed, it will be replayed next week.
3 p Had anyone been looking at Martha when the police arrived, they would have noticed the expression of panic on her face.
4 d Were taxes to be increased further, there would be a huge public outcry; or Should taxes be increased further, there would be a huge public outcry.

5 a Had the doctors operated sooner, she might have made a full recovery.
6 b Were I president, I would introduce three-day weekends.
7 b Should your flight be cancelled, the insurance covers a full refund. or Were your flight to be cancelled, the insurance covers a full refund.
8 e Had heavy snow been forecast, we would not have begun the climb.

Suggested answers:
2 Have I heard 3 did he discover / find / realise
4 did I know / realise 5 have there been 6 did she answer
7 had he got 8 did she say 9 should / must you turn / switch
4 2 It was the hotel that was the real problem / What was the real problem was the hotel.
3 Along came the hotel porter
4 Away he went
5 in walked a man
6 There they told her
7 that she really got furious about
8 First came an electrician
9 Three days it took them
10 what annoyed me most was the attitude of the staff / it was the attitude of the staff that annoyed me most 11 Never have I seen
12 Nor once did anyone apologise

D: Exam practice
Use of English
1 do the islanders / they take pride in
2 appreciated them / their putting me / appreciated the fact that they put me
3 was her hatred / dislike
4 explanation was given of / for his sudden departure from / reason was given for his sudden departure from 5 was no alternative (for her) but / was no alternative but for her
6 had the President / he been voted in then / had people voted for the President then 7 were they ever to become / if she were ever to become / if she ever were to become 8 distinct possibility of my / me getting

Grammar focus task
Sentences 3 and 6. Sentence 7 would also be an example of inversion if your answer was were she ever to become.

Writing Sample answer:
Global warming: it’s our planet
Never before has the world faced a threat like global warming: a potential catastrophe for the Earth, brought about by human activity. And it will have the biggest impact on young people, with climate set to change dramatically in our lifetime. What’s worrying, though, is that we are the group that does least about it, leaving the hard choices to others. So what can we do?
It’s in our daily lives that we can make the biggest difference. Turning off one light might not seem important, but turning it off every day for a year saves a significant amount of energy. The same goes for TVs and computers. What we have to do is change our habits – if it’s not being used, turn it off! Try walking to college or getting the bus, rather than getting a lift from parents. Not only is this better for our health, but it also saves energy.

Naturally, it is governments who make the big decisions, but here we can play a part, too. Write to your MP encouraging them to invest in cycle paths and recycling. Email your MP asking for more renewable energy. We need to put pressure on governments. Only then will they make the changes our economy and society need.

Of course, we could just do nothing. But it is our generation who will have to face the future flooding, storms and high energy prices resulting from inaction now. So whatever you can do to help, do it. It’s our planet, after all.

Unit 22

A: Context listening

2. The correct order in g, c, d, e, b, a, f, h.
3. 2 increase in 3 closure of 4 rise in 5 discovery of 6 evacuation of
4. Suggested answers:
   2. The number of people living close to the lake has increased.
   3. Thousands of homes and businesses would be left without electricity if the power stations closed.
   4. The level of radon gas in the soil rose dramatically.
   5. Scientists discovered thousands of dead fish, which increased their concerns.
   6. 30,000 people began to be evacuated two days ago. / The army began to evacuate 30,000 people two days ago.

C: Grammar exercises

1. 2. made a start
   3. do some / the gardening
   4. Give (me) a shout
2. 1. made / taken a decision
   2. I have a feeling
   3. made an arrangement
   4. take a deep breath
   5. give him an explanation of
3. 1. have a talk with
   2. gave her a call
   3. had a chat
   4. gave a sigh
4. 1. take / have a shower
   2. have a rest
   3. do the cooking
   4. have / take a look
2. Suggested answers:
   2. The organisation of the conference was very professional.
   3. The turnout for the match was huge. / There was a huge turnout for the match.

4. The withdrawal of the troops was immediate. / There was an immediate withdrawal of troops.
5. A shake-up of the top management is needed for the company to be successful again.
6. The increase in interest rates was the third in two months. / There was an increase in interest rates for the third time in two months.
7. An agreement was reached on extra funding for the project. / There was an agreement reached on extra funding for the project.
8. The breakout from the jail took place / happened / occurred during a power cut. / There was a breakout from the jail during a power cut.
9. The announcement of the merger came / was made / took place last week.
10. The decision to postpone the race was taken / was made / was reached at the last moment.

D: Exam practice

Reading

Grammar focus task is used in 3 and 7.

Writing: Sample answer:

‘The Meadows’ out-of-town shopping centre: a report on its impact on Fairfield

Introduction

The aim of this report is to identify the impact of the new out-of-town shopping centre, The Meadows on:

• transport
• the environment
• people’s shopping habits
• shops and recreational facilities in the centre of Fairfield.
Transport

Overall, there has been a positive impact on transport facilities. This is mainly due to the expansion of bus and tram services, providing easy access to the Meadows for customers. These services are regular, punctual and popular with users.

Environment

There have been some negative environmental impacts:
- The construction of the Meadows has destroyed a huge area of land, previously occupied by fields, trees and grasslands. The damage to the ecosystem is considerable, although difficult to measure. Furthermore, the physical arrangement of the area has been substantially reduced.
- The increase in traffic has not only led to more exhaust pollution, damaging the nearby natural environment. It also noise pollution, which disturbs local people and wildlife.

However, there are have also been positive effects:
- The implementation of modern, clean public transport systems along with the limit placed on the number of cars that can access the Meadows, have encouraged more people to use public transport.

Shopping habits

When asked where they prefer to shop since the building of the new centre, an overwhelming majority of people chose the Meadows. The main reasons given were:
- Good accessibility
- Wide variety of shops available
- The proximity of shops to recreational facilities such as cinemas and restaurants
- More pleasant shopping environment than in the town centre
- Longer opening hours.

Impact on Fairfield town centre

The presence of the new shopping centre has caused a slight reduction in the amount of business conducted by shops and recreational facilities in Fairfield town itself. However, as far as it is possible to tell at this stage, the new facilities have not had a significant negative impact on the economy of the town centre.

Unit 23

A: Context listening

3 D T T 4 C C 5 C 6 T 7 C 8 C 9 T 10 C

4 It's obvious why they've been having problems selling it (= the town apartment).

3 It really shocked me to see how bad it (= the decoration in the town apartment) was.

4 It's about 15 kilometres from there (= Canley) into the centre.

5 There's bound to be a regular bus service from there (= Canley).

6 There's no special parking area for the apartments.

7 There's that lovely little river that runs nearby.

8 You couldn't even fit a chest of drawers in there (= one of the bedrooms in the Canley apartments).

9 The rooms in it (= the town apartment) are quite dark and that made it (= the town apartment) feel cramped.

10 There is expected to be a lot of interest in the property.

C: Grammar exercises

1 2 there was nobody in the room. 3 X 4 X 5 there is one opposite the railway station. 6 X 7 There are only ten places available. 8 there was no milk left. 9 X 10 is there anyone who would 11 X 12 There was something on the radio

2 Fraser has said he will retire from football if there is thought to be no chance of his ankle injury healing in the foreseeable future.

3 Is there a swimming pool at the hotel we're staying at?

4 It worried me to see Heather looking so thin.

5 In December 1964 there took place a secret meeting between the countries' leaders.

6 Although it took hours of practice, I eventually managed to play a simple tune on the saxophone.

7 Most people had left the party and I decided that it was time I went home, too.

8 The scientists said that there is very little evidence that mobile phone use has any adverse effect on health.

9 How far is it from Paris to Berlin?

10 They travelled by bus, there being no railway line in that part of the country.

11 It's no good. It's no secret. There's no harm in. There's no chance of. There's no doubt. It's no doubt true. It's no doubt the case. It's no need. It's no longer. There's no need to hurry.

12 I don't think it hurts to. There is (there's) nobody by. It turned out that. I noticed that. She was. She didn't expect there to be. She's my role. I thought it best not to tell. I had (I'd) mentioned (it) to me. (It can be included in informal contexts)

13 I think there is interest. If there might be some left. Remember you saying that. I prefer it if. There are thought to be

D: Exam practice

Use of English

1 question 2 consent 3 anxious 4 though 5 coincidence

Grammar focus task

1 News information

All the tickets have been sold so there's no question...

They're thought to be fewer than...

Mr Turner claimed that it was mere coincidence.

Perhaps it's no coincidence that poets...

2 Place

1 left there early...

...he thought nothing of going there...

Previously mentioned:

If the salt content of food is high, I try to avoid it.

(... with high salt content)

It's an interesting idea, but I wouldn't have thought it was very practical.(... both times is the idea)... he sold his share of the company the day before it was declared... (...the company)
Writing Sample answer:

Introduction
I undertook a survey to identify staff views on the time, duration and location of the annual sales conference.

Time
The conference is traditionally held in the spring and this seems to suit the majority of staff members. The survey indicated that there is an overwhelming preference for the conference to take place in February or March, with only a small minority favouring April.

Duration
In the past, the conference has lasted three days. However, it appears that most staff members consider this to be too long. The general view is that the information could easily be covered in two days. It is possible that the conference could be held over a weekend, although this may inconvenience staff members with families.

Location
This year’s conference should be held somewhere different. There was considerable negative feedback on last year’s venue. People felt confined to the countryside centre for the whole three days. If the conference were held in town, there would be many more facilities available.

Recommendations
I propose that we hold our conference for two days during the working week in early spring. I think it essential that it takes place in town. This would appeal to most staff members, with the likely results of increased motivation and participation.

Unit 24

A: Context listening
2 Instruction 3
3 2 you up 3 out the train times 4 on the train 5 into the hotel 6 out the bill 7 around town
4 The order can be reversed in sentences 1, 3 and 6:
1 I'm afraid I've messed our plans up for tomorrow.
3 I've found the train times out from the SNCF website...
6 I'll sort the bill out when I pick you up on Thursday afternoon.

C: Grammar exercises
1 2 throw away some of my old exercise books from school (more natural than 'throw some of my old exercise books from school away' because the object is long)
3 gathered her papers up / gathered up her papers
4 jumped into Cherie
5 (have) left Dave's name out / (have) left out Dave's name
6 tell the twins apart
7 talk you out of leaving college
8 got some food down / got down some food
9 woke me and my husband up / woke me up and my husband
10 try them out
11 (has) made the whole story up / (has) made up the whole story (or is/was making)
2 2 as against the 10,000 predicted
3 in place of course
4 irrespective of their ability to pay
5 in the event of a terrorist attack
6 thanks to a strict pond-only diet
7 in accordance with his wishes
8 for the sake of their health
9 along with an excellent air gallery
10 by way of an apology
11 at effect from 30th September
12 on the part of the train driver
3 I advised against using
2 dismissed the reports as prevent her (from) doing
3 congratulated them on achieving, had benefited from taking part in 4 has quarrelled / has been quarrelling with her European counterparts over ended in / with her walking 5 protect the country from / against; rush into investing
4 Dear Jodi,
Sorry I haven't been in touch with you for such a long time, but it's been a busy few months.
Earlier this year I heard that my great-aunt had died. Apart from seeing her a couple of times at my parent's house, I didn't really know her. So you can imagine my surprise when I found (out) (optional) she'd left me a cottage along with some money in her will.
When I saw the cottage, I just fell in love with it. It's close to a beautiful little village, and looks out over / on the sea. My great-aunt used it as a holiday home, and I've decided to do the same. Unfortunately, it's been badly looked after, so I've had to spend as much time this year sorting (out) the place (out) (optional) (father position is possible. Very informally, 'out' could be omitted.)
I knew it was in need of some work, and at first I thought I could get away with giving it a quick coat of paint. But I soon realised it was a much bigger job. There were holes in the roof, and the window frames were rotten some of the panes of glass were in danger of falling out.
I was walking around the village one Saturday, wondering what best to do, when who should I run into but Barney Adams. Do you remember him from school? As luck would have it, he now works in the village as a builder and decorator. We got talking, and he said he'd come (over/round) (optional) and look (around / in) / over the house. Naturally, I took him up on his offer. He got really enthusiastic about it. He talked me into (failed to me about) it too possible replacing all the windows, and he's put in a new central heating system in place of the old coal fire. I've had to prevent him (from) (optional) extending the kitchen, which he was keen to do! He's checked (over) the roof (over) (father position is possible. 'over' could also be omitted), and fortunately that doesn't need replacing. Thanks to Barney, the house is now looking brilliant, and in comparison with other builders, he doesn't charge very much.
The next project for me is to clean (up) the mess (up) (fisher position is possible) in the garden, as it's completely overgrown. If you want to come (over/round) (optional) and help me (out) (optional) some time, feel free! You'll always be very welcome.

D: Exam practice

Listening
1 A 2 B 3 C 4 B 5 A 6 B 7 C 8 A

Grammar focus task
2 onto lost property; it is 3 some things behind or behind some things 4 of them 5 them away

Writing Sample answer:

Birmingham's canals: an undiscovered attraction

The city of Birmingham in the English Midlands may not be glamorous in comparison with Venice, but it has more canals — over a hundred miles of them! In 1800, Birmingham was at the heart of the Industrial Revolution, and the meeting place of five major canals. Throughout the nineteenth century, the city's canals were alive with activity, as cargoes were loaded, unloaded and transported as far as Liverpool and London. But in the twentieth century the canals went into decline as a result of competition from railways and then road transport, and the network was in danger of being filled in.

Today, however, Birmingham's canals are once again bearing with life. Where they cut through the city centre, they are surrounded by restaurants and clubs, together with concert venues and shopping malls. The canal boats are busy once again, but in place of the cargoes of coal and iron, they carry residents and tourists enjoying the leisurely pace of life along the waterways.

It is equally enjoyable to walk the miles of towpaths next to the canals. These were the paths originally walked along by horses, pulling barges in the early days before motorised boats. Away from the crowds, it is possible to explore the industrial heritage of the city, as well as make use of the new facilities that have developed around the canals. Recently, I had an excellent dinner on board a restaurant canal boat as it made its peaceful way around the city. The following morning, I was back, drinking coffee on a boat moored in an oasis of calm in the city, watching the world go by.

It is a pity that visitors from overseas usually bypass Birmingham, heading instead for nearby Oxford and Stratford. The canals are a gem in one of the country's most underrated cities, and they offer a view of life in Britain that overseas visitors rarely see. And visitors can be certain that they will be given a warm welcome by those living and working on and around the canals.

Unit 25

A: Context listening
2 b h 3 g 4 f 5 a 6 d 7 e 8 b 9 c

3 2 demand for 3 need 4 difficulty in 5 decision to 6 difficult to 7 need for 8 complain about 9 complaints about 10 demand 11 decided to 12 influence on

4 2 demand + for; 10 demand (verb) + no preposition
4 difficulty + in; 6 difficult (adjective) + to 5 decision + to; 11 decided (verb) + to 7 need + for; 3 need (verb) + no preposition
9 complaint + about; 8 complains (verb) + about 12 influence + on; 1 influenced (verb) + no preposition

C: Grammar exercises
1 2 for 3 at 4 for 5 with 6 about 7 of 8 on 9 about 10 for

2 Suggested answers:
2 She admitted that the salary increase (had) had an influence on her decision to take the new job.
3 There has been a noticeable improvement in the children's spelling since they were each given a dictionary; or The improvement in the children's spelling has been noticeable since they were each given a dictionary.
4 Alex has done very well at university and we take (great / considerable) pride in his achievement.
5 Although I don't agree with his political beliefs, I have great admiration for his writing.
6 The flooding caused serious damage to many of the houses in the village.
7 When you come to collect the parcel, please bring documents as proof of (your) identity.
8 Northern Rail has imposed / placed / put / introduced a ban on the use of mobile phones on its trains.
9 As a solution to the problem of severe traffic congestion, drivers are to be charged £30 a day for bringing their cars into the city centre.
10 There has been a substantial reduction in the number of students dropping out of college this year.
3 2 to eat
3 using / the use of
4 the number of visitors to 5 of organising / to organise
6 to move
7 of working / to work
8 the closure of 9 protecting / the protection of 10 recovering / recovery
11 of holding
12 of encouraging / to encourage

4 A: I'm really fed up with my job. I've been doing the same thing at Trimnape for ten years, and I'm tired of the same old routine.
B: But I thought you were keen on your job. You've always seemed so enthusiastic about it.
A: Well, I used to be very impressed by / with the managers. But now they're only interested in making money and they seem indifferent to how the staff feel. There's rumour that business isn't going well, so a lot of people are worried about their jobs. In fact, one of the senior managers left last week. He obviously wasn't satisfied with the way the company's been run. Maybe it's time I started looking around for something new, too.
2. I know that some of you have expressed anxiety about Mr. Madsen's sudden departure from the company last week. I was very disappointed with his decision to resign. I must admit that the last few months have been difficult, and at times we've been very concerned about the future of the company. However, we have now developed an association with a firm of retailers in Southeast Asia, and we're extremely pleased with/about this development. We did at first have a disagreement over safety standards, but this has now been resolved and they have indicated their satisfaction with the design changes we've made. We hope to sign a major contract with them in the next few days. To all of you I want to express my gratitude for your belief in the company and your continuing support for the management team.

D: Exam practice
Use of English
1 A 2 B 3 B 4 D 5 C 6 C 7 B 8 C 9 B 10 C H D H A

Grammar focus task
of is used after the noun in 5 contexts (1, 2, 4, 6, 8) in is used in 3, between in 5, and in 7

Writing Sample answer:
Dear Mrs Adams,

I am writing to enquire whether there is any possibility of finding temporary work at Arcon in one of your branches in an English-speaking country this summer.

I am a student of business and English, nearing the end of the third year of a four-year course at City College in Athens. I would like to spend some time during the college vacation gaining experience of working in a multinational company. Although I have a very good knowledge of spoken and written English, I would welcome the opportunity to improve my language skills further by working in an English-speaking environment.

I have a particular interest in marketing. If there is a post in the marketing department, I am sure I could make a useful contribution as well as develop my own understanding of the area. I also have an interest in information technology, and have designed websites for organisations at college. My skills in this field might be useful to you.

I am happy in principle to work for no salary, and will be able to pay for my own accommodation and living expenses. However, if Arcon could pay a salary this would be gratefully received.

I realise there must be a great demand for temporary positions of this kind. However, if you feel there is a chance of arranging work for me, I would be pleased to provide further details about myself. In the meantime, I enclose a copy of my CV.

Thank you for your attention, and I look forward to hearing from you.

Yours sincerely,
Nikolaos Koutsis
Recording 1

Presenter: And our next caller is Karen. Karen, what’s your experience of public transport?
Karen: Yes, hello, Gary. Well, I commuted to London for over ten years. I caught the train every morning at 7.15 to get to work for nine o’clock, and I wouldn’t get home until about seven o’clock in the evening. And frankly it was a terrible period of my life, really stressful, mainly because of the unreliability of the train service. I was forever arriving late for work. One day I was travelling home when the train broke down and I eventually got back at midnight. Of course, I had to go to work the next day, so off I went for my 7.15 train. I’d been waiting over an hour when they announced that the train was cancelled. That really was the end for me. I arranged with my employer to work at home and I’ve been working at home happily for the last five years. Of course it meant a big salary cut, but I haven’t regretted it for a moment.
Presenter: Thanks for that, Karen. Can you just stay on the line? I’m hoping we’ve got Dave on the line. Dave, are you there?
Dave: Yes, I’m here, Gary.
Presenter: Great. And what point do you want to make?
Dave: Well, I just wanted to say that my experience is similar to your last caller, although I’m a newcomer to commuting by public transport. I’ve just sold my car and now I go to work by bus. I’d owned a car ever since I left college, but I wanted to do my bit to cut down on pollution. But I have to confess that I’m regretting it already. I’ve arrived late for work twice this week because the bus hasn’t turned up on time. It’s got so bad that I’m now thinking of buying a motorbike. It’ll cause less pollution than a car, and be more reliable than public transport.
Presenter: Well, it sounds like you’re another dissatisfied customer, Dave. But we’ve also got Beryl on the line, and I think she’s more positive. Beryl, are you there?
Beryl: I am, Gary, good afternoon.
Presenter: Hello, Beryl, what do you want to tell us?
Beryl: Well, I’d like to put in a good word for train travel. I’m working at home while our office block is being renovated, and while I’m appreciating being able to get up later than usual, I really miss my daily commute. You get to know the people you travel with every day. I remember one day I dropped my purse while I was getting off the train. Another passenger picked it up, found my address in it, and brought it round to my house later that evening. Another time, I’d been working really hard and went to sleep and missed my station. One of the other passengers was getting off at the next station and she had her car parked there. She woke me up and offered me a lift back to my home. I’d spoken to her only a couple of times before then, but now she’s a really good friend. You meet a lot of nice people, and become a part of the travelling community.
Presenter: Thanks, Beryl. That’s a side of commuting we don’t often hear about. Now somebody else who sees the good side of train journeys – Keith. Are you there, Keith?
Keith: Yes, indeed. Actually, I’m phoning from the train on my way home from work.
Presenter: And are you having a good journey?
Keith: Yes, it’s been fine. But then I love trains. I’ve enjoyed travelling by train ever since I was young. I admit that it can be frustrating at times. There are delays and cancellations, and there are minor irritations like poor mobile phone reception – I’ve been trying to phone in to your programme for the last half hour, in fact – but I catch the 7.05 at the station near my home every morning, and still find there’s something quite magical about stepping on to the train. And there are clear advantages over driving, apart from the lack of stress. I reckon that over the years I’ve saved a huge amount of money by using public transport. I’ve never really considered buying a car. You can also get a lot of work done. On the train yesterday morning, for example, I’d read a couple of reports and prepared for an important meeting before I even got to work. Admittedly, I'm quite lucky. The train company I travel with have invested a lot of money recently. They've bought new trains and have really improved the service.

Karen: Gary...
Presenter: Karen, were you wanting to say something?
Karen: Yes, I just wanted to pick up Keith's point that travelling by train is less stressful than driving. Public transport can be stressful, too, when trains don't turn up or are delayed. What's less stressful is working at home. At eight o'clock I'm usually having a leisurely breakfast when most people are in their cars or on the train. Yesterday, I'd finished all my work by 2.30, so I drove to the local pool for a swim. And today I've been working all day, so now I've got time to relax by listening to the radio for a while. Much better than the stress of commuting.

Presenter: You're very lucky, Karen. We've got another caller on the line...

Kelly: You must be really looking forward to going to America. When are you actually leaving?
Jessica: I'm flying on 15th July. I'm spending a few days sightseeing in New York, and then I arrive in Los Angeles on the 20th. Lectures start on 27th July.
Kelly: Sounds great. And what about accommodation?
Jessica: Well, first I'm going to stay with Don and Suzanne, some friends of my parents.
Kelly: You're not staying with them the whole time you're there, are you?
Jessica: No, I'll be looking for my own place. But I'm really pleased they'll be around. It'll be good to know I can contact them in case I have any problems. They're meeting me at the airport, too. Mind you, I haven't seen them for years. They'll have forgotten what I look like.
Kelly: And what about the course?
Jessica: It looks really interesting. They sent me a reading list but of course I haven't got round to opening any of the books yet. So it's going to take a long time to catch up. I'll be studying really hard during the semesters so that I don't have to do much work in the vacations.

Kelly: And when does the first semester end?
Jessica: 7th December. Then I'm going to San Francisco for a week. I've always wanted to see the Golden Gate Bridge. I'm going to fly up there if it's not too expensive.
Kelly: Do you know when you'll be back in Los Angeles?
Jessica: Probably mid-December. So you can come any time after that.
Kelly: I'm so looking forward to it. I've always wanted to go to the States. I was going to see my aunt in Seattle a couple of years ago, but I cancelled the trip because she got ill.
Jessica: Will you stop over anywhere on the way out? Maybe New York or Chicago?
Kelly: I haven't really thought about it. But I've only got three weeks, so I think I'll fly directly to Los Angeles.
Jessica: Fine. And I'll meet you at the airport, of course. By the time you come I'm sure I'll have got to know LA really well, so I'll be able to show you all the sights.
Kelly: Yes, I suppose you will. When I come to see you, you'll have been living in California for nearly six months.
Jessica: Hard to imagine, isn't it? After Los Angeles, I thought we could go down to a place called Huntington Beach. If you bring your tent, we'll camp there for a few days. The weather will still be quite warm even in the winter.
Kelly: Isn't it your birthday around then?
Jessica: That's right. I'll be 23 on 27th January.
Kelly: Well, that'll be a really good way to celebrate.
Jessica: The best! I'll need to get back to Los Angeles for when the second semester starts. But you'll be staying longer, won't you?
Kelly: That's right. I don't have to be back in England until later.
Jessica: Well, why don't you go to the Grand Canyon? It's supposed to be spectacular.
Kelly: Yeah, I might think about that. Anyway, as soon as I book my tickets, I'll let you know.
Jessica: Okay. We can sort out the details closer to the time.
Kelly: Fine. Look, it's nearly two o'clock. If I don't go now, I'm going to be late for my next lecture. I'll text you.
Jessica: Yeah, see you.
And now on Radio Nation it's 8.30 and here's a summary of the latest news.

Air passengers could be hit badly today as cabin crews stay at home in the latest in a series of one-day strikes. The major airlines are warning that up to 100,000 people may experience delays. The managing director of Travel Air, David Wade, had this warning to the unions.

I'm sure I don't need to spell out the chaos being caused in the airline industry as a result of these strikes, and I would like to apologise to all our customers. However, the cabin staff must accept the new working conditions if the airline is to compete, and the management has no choice but to stand firm on this issue.

But he didn't have to wait long for a response. A union spokesperson said: 'I can't believe Mr Wade is being so confrontational. We will not be bullied by management. Eventually the airlines will have to return to the negotiating table.'

Up to 200 teachers and pupils had to be evacuated from Northfield Primary School in South Wales today after a fire broke out in an adjacent building. Although firefighters were able to bring the fire under control fairly quickly, they couldn't prevent the fire damaging the school's sports centre. The headteacher said it might be a number of months before the sports centre is back in operation, although the school itself should be able to reopen early next week.

The new Borland Bridge, connecting the island to the mainland, was officially opened today by the Transport Minister. However, it's been in operation for a few weeks already and has received a mixed reception from islanders. From Borland, here's our reporter, Anna Curtis.

Yes, the new bridge has stirred up a lot of strong emotion on Borland, and I'm here to gather the views of some of the island's residents. Excuse me, what do you think of the new bridge?

I think it will be of great benefit to the island. We used to be terribly isolated here because the ferry service was so bad. It's only a short distance, but the crossing would take over an hour at least. It could be a very rough journey, too. Many passengers would get seasick during the crossing.

Excuse me. I'm asking people about the effects of the new bridge. They reckon that tourism on the island is set to expand ...

Is that such a good thing? There are already far too many cars and people. We'll also get wealthy people from the mainland who can afford second homes. That will push up house prices and islanders won't be able to buy properties. That can't be right, surely? There ought to be restrictions on the number of people moving here.

It's certainly true that the bridge is going to have a major impact on the way of life of the people here over the next few years. But whether that will be a positive or negative effect, only time will tell.

Following her report on the high levels of obesity among children, the government's chief health adviser, Professor Carmen Brady, has said that schools have to play a more active role in encouraging children to take up sports. She has also criticised parents.

Parents needn't be very interested in sport themselves - but they should give their children whatever encouragement they can. While we were gathering information for our report, we found that some parents will actually discourage their children from taking up a sport on the basis that they might get distracted from their academic studies. This negative attitude to sport mustn't be allowed to continue - not if we are to get on top of the obesity crisis facing the country.

And finally the weather. Well, if you're in the south of the country you shouldn't be troubled by any rain today. It will be warm, sunny and dry, with temperatures up to 22 degrees Celsius. However, in the north you're likely to see an occasional shower, with maximum temperatures of around 15 degrees.

Radio Nation news...
Recording 3b

Extract 1

Man: Research shows that the optimum time to start music education is between the ages of three and four. As well as improving manual dexterity and concentration, it seems that it may help emotional development, too. The piano is the instrument that many parents want their children to start learning, and I think three years old is the right time to start.

Woman: Personally, I don’t think the piano is the best instrument to start with so early. Children have to show a mental, physical and emotional readiness to learn an instrument like the piano, which obviously takes a lot of effort and commitment. In my experience very few children under six are able to take on that kind of challenge. Starting early is vital, yes, but less demanding instruments would be my choice, things like the recorder or a half-size guitar.

Man: No, I think children of that age can learn to play simple tunes on the piano and they soon progress to more complicated pieces. And starting young on understanding musical notation lays down an excellent foundation for later on.

Woman: But a rather academic approach like that will turn children off for life if they’re not ready for it. Enjoyment has got to be the priority.

Man: Well, enjoyment is certainly important, but...

Extract 2

Interviewer: So, Ben, you’re well known in the climbing world as a bit of a leper; you prefer climbing without other people. Is that true?

Ben: Well, to some extent. I’ve always talked to other climbers about the technical side of things – training, equipment, and things like that. But at the end of the day you’ve got to learn independently, through trial and error. If you’re climbing in a group you’ll always compare yourself to others, and that doesn’t always help you to improve. It’s good to admire other climbers, but different things work best for different people.

Interviewer: So you never climb with other people?

Ben: As far as possible, I climb alone, but occasionally I look to others for support. When I was younger I used to do most of my climbing during the summer holidays, and I haven’t done much winter climbing. So I still feel cut off from the rest of the climbing world.

Extract 3

Interviewer: You’re such a household name, it must be terrifying for staff when you go into a restaurant. How do they react?

Amanda: It’s true that a lot of people know me, at least in the restaurant world, so I always eat with a friend and they’ll make the booking. Often, though, I get recognised and when that happens it’s inevitable, I suppose, that they take a bit more care over serving the food. I’ve never been offered complimentary wine, though, or anything like that. That would be just too obvious, and of course it could be considered unethical to accept a gift like that.

Interviewer: And what makes a good restaurant?

Amanda: A good restaurant is one where the management and waiting staff have given some thought to why their customers are there. Most restaurant owners believe that the main reason people go to restaurants is for the food, but that’s completely wrong. The main reason people go to restaurants is to have a good time, not because they’re hungry. So there might be a big difference between the priorities of a restaurant and the priorities of diners. For example, one thing that a restaurant gets judged on is the quality of service. What restaurant owners think is good is service that is efficient, but what customers have as their priority is friendly service.

Recording 4

Police Officer 1: So how on earth did they manage to get in? There’s no sign of a forced entry.

Police Officer 2: Well, I suppose they could have got in through a window up on the fourth floor.

Police Officer 1: But no one would have dared climb up the outside of the building. Anybody trying to do that would have been seen from the street below. You don't think they would have been able to jump from the block across the road, do you?

Police Officer 2: No, it's much too far. Of course, there's always the fire escape around the back of the building. They could have climbed up there reasonably easily, and after that they might have been lowered by rope from the roof. If that was the case, people living in the block of flats behind the museum might have seen something, so we need to talk to them.

Police Officer 1: Right, but we needn't interview everyone in the block, just the people who have windows facing the museum. I'll arrange that.

Police Officer 2: If it wasn't a window, the only other possibility is that they went in through the front door. Perhaps they forced the lock, but the door didn't appear to be damaged at all.

Police Officer 1: And the entry code is supposed to be known only by the security guard.

Police Officer 2: So someone else must have opened the door from the inside.

Police Officer 1: Only the security guard was allowed to stay in the museum after it closed. Do you think they somehow persuaded him to let them in? Maybe they just knocked on the front door and he opened it.

Police Officer 2: He surely wouldn't have done something as stupid as that. Do you think he might have been expecting them and that he was part of the gang?

Police Officer 1: But then why would they have attacked him?

Police Officer 2: I don't know, but we'd better find out all we can about that guard as soon as possible. Now, who was it that raised the alarm?

Police Officer 1: It was the head cleaner who went into the building early this morning. He must have to know the entry code, too.

Police Officer 2: Yes, maybe. He says the front door was unlocked when he got here. But he claims he didn't see anything else unusual until he got to the fourth floor. But of course, he might be lying.

Police Officer 1: Yes, he must know that he ought to have called the police as soon as he found the door open. I wonder why he didn't. I think we should talk to him again. I suppose he could be hiding some information from us, and he might be prepared to tell us more if we put a bit of pressure on him.

Police Officer 2: The other puzzling thing is how they took the paintings away. Apparently, they're very big, so the robbers must have had to bring a van around to the front of the building.

Police Officer 1: The driver must have been waiting nearby and drove up when they'd got the paintings. They could have loaded the paintings up very quickly, and might have driven straight to a port or airport. Anyway, the forensic team should have finished examining the building by now. Once they've done that, I think we should go and look around ourselves ...

Interviewer: Right, perhaps you could tell me something about how you got interested in environmental science, and what experience you have in the subject.

Nazim: Well, I've always been fascinated by plants and animals, and then last year a friend of mine, Mike Proctor, invited me to Brazil. He's the head of a project there run by a European charity. The charity's aim is to help groups of villagers set up their own schools and medical centres. They also encourage sustainable agriculture and the setting up of businesses to sell local handicrafts. Anyway, it was during my stay that I really began to understand the impact of climate change. I want to learn more about this and more generally how decision-making on environmental issues in one part of the world can affect the lives of individuals elsewhere.

Interviewer: You say you 'began to understand the impact of climate change'. Could you give me an example of what you saw in Brazil that influenced you?
Nazim: Yes, of course. We've all heard about the destruction of the rainforest, and I was able to see examples of that. But also people don't realise that the climate in the region is changing, and that the speed of change is frightening. There's been a drought there for a number of months, and river levels are low. I had direct experience of this when I travelled with Mike. Having responsibility for the whole project in the area means that his job involves travelling to some pretty remote areas. Sometimes we had to go by boat to get to some of the villages, and we had to carry the boat because there wasn't enough water in the river.

Interviewer: And is this change affecting the lives of local people?

Nazim: A huge amount. The main problem has been the effect of the drought on food supplies. The majority of people there are farmers, and all of them have lost animals and crops. The charity's project has been a success so far in that levels of income from the sale of handicrafts have increased. But, of course, financial success isn't everything. It's hard to imagine a future without farming in an area like that.

Interviewer: Your trip to Brazil sounds like an amazing experience. And since you've been back, have you done anything to develop your interest in the area?

Nazim: Yes, I've read a book about energy conservation and how this might slow down climate change. And I was particularly interested in how the Netherlands has begun to tackle the problem. The government has introduced some really interesting projects on energy saving in cities - the use of low-energy light bulbs to reduce the consumption of lighting energy, better insulation for homes, and things like that. There's also a massive recycling scheme, which is saving a huge amount of our natural resources. What's needed now, though, is to expand work like this across the world.

Interviewer: And what are your plans for the future, after you've left college?

Nazim: Actually, I'd like to go into politics. We've got somehow to persuade governments in developed countries to change their priorities. For example, even if just a small percentage of the money spent on the arms trade could go into tackling climate change, I'm sure we could make a difference.

Interviewer: And you think that as a politician, you'd be able to do this?

Nazim: I'd certainly like to try.

Interviewer: Before we finish, have you got any questions about the course here at the college?

Nazim: I've noticed that statistics is included in the course. I'm a bit concerned about that.

Interviewer: I wouldn't worry about it. You'd be able to get by with a reasonable knowledge of maths.

Nazim: That's very reassuring. I also wanted to ask about the field trip for second year students.

Interviewer: Okay. Second year students go to Nepal in June, looking at the ecology of mountain environments.

Nazim: That sounds like a fantastic opportunity.

Recording 6a

1 I took up running a couple of years ago. Until then I did a bit of sport at school, but I didn't do much outside school at all. In fact, I suppose I didn't have many interests except playing computer games. Then I went to watch my uncle in a 5k fun run - it was to raise money for charity. I thought the whole event was brilliant and every runner there seemed to be enjoying it. There was another fun run later in the year and I signed up for a laugh. I didn't do any proper training for it, just a bit of jogging around the park after school, so I was really surprised when I managed to run all the way. Now I run nearly every day and I get a lot of satisfaction out of it. My friends all think I'm crazy. None of them like the thought of running long distances. I think about all kinds of stuff when I'm running, and I know it's really good for my heart and lungs. Sure, some people get running injuries, but I've been lucky - I've had none so far.

2 I'd never really thought about exercise and keeping fit until a couple of years ago. My boyfriend and I were in town late and we had to run to catch the last bus home - just a couple of hundred metres. By the time we got to the bus stop both of us were completely exhausted! On the way home we started talking. Neither of us did any exercise and I didn't do much with my free time - just reading magazines and eating biscuits! By the time we got home we'd each decided to take up a different activity for six months and see who could lose the most weight. My boyfriend joined a gym, and I started running in the local park - just a few hundred metres at first, and gradually building up. Now I run a few kilometres each day. Of course, that takes up quite a lot of time and my boyfriend moans about that sometimes. But after I've been sitting at my computer all day I can't wait to go out for a run. We certainly both got a lot fitter and I've lost a lot of weight. Not all the effects are positive, of course; I've had a few problems with sore knees and strained ankles. I suppose all exercise carries some risks, but there isn't much evidence that running causes major problems if you warm up carefully and have good footwear. It's one of the few sports where no special equipment's needed - just a pair of running shoes.

3 I had three older brothers and I think they could all have been Olympic athletes if they'd had the opportunity. So it was quite natural that I would go out running with them. I think I started at about the age of 10, and I've been running regularly all my life. Now that I'm getting older I go out running every couple of days, but if the weather's bad I might go all week without a run. I certainly go out a lot less during the winter. Well, who would want to go running on a horrible rainy day? Inevitably you get a few injuries, too - everyone gets aching muscles after a long run, and I used to get back pains occasionally. But surprisingly I seem to have fewer injuries now than when I was younger. Maybe it's because I run more slowly! Actually, I feel a lot healthier, and I even sleep a little better after I've been out running. But I think the best thing for me is the social contact. We've got a running club in our village - I moved here when I retired - and before I joined the club I had very few friends who lived nearby. Now, many of my closest friends are the runners in the club. Next spring we're all going to Madrid to run in a marathon for over 60s only. Of course, we know that not all of us will finish, but you can be sure that every one of us will have a really good time. My aim is to complete the course and do it in less than six hours. But I know it won't be easy!

Recording 6b

Earlier this year I fulfilled a lifelong ambition of mine by working for three months as a volunteer in an African country. I'm in my late 50s now and I don't have the commitments that have previously held me back. I've worked in marketing for much of my life, and I wanted to use the skills I have to help out in a small way. I applied to do voluntary work a couple of years ago, but it wasn't until about a year later that a suitable scheme came up and I was asked to go. The reaction of my friends to the news was interesting. Many were impressed, I think, and a lot said that given the opportunity they'd like to do something similar - although I must say that not all of them were so keen when I told them later about how basic the conditions were. But a few clearly disapproved of what I was doing. They argued that I was patronising Africans by intervening and telling them how to run their lives. But I saw it rather differently. Ideally, development schemes should be set up by the communities themselves. But sometimes local people don't yet have the necessary skills to make them effective, and need some kind of outside, expert support. And that's where I came in. The scheme I worked on was based in a village of about 200 people in Tanzania. It involved building concrete tanks to capture water during the wet season with the aim of reducing the problem of drought during the rest of the year. With better irrigation would come more reliable crops, so that eventually the villagers would become self-sufficient. There had been a severe drought in the area for the previous three or four years. The whole region was on the brink of starvation and handouts from charities were the only thing that kept people alive. The scheme had been underway for less than a year when I arrived, and my brief was to suggest ways in which the villagers could market any agricultural production that was surplus to their own requirements - any food that they didn't need themselves. I've heard now that the village is making money from its crops and it's built a primary school and a small health centre. It's very gratifying to know that the scheme has completely transformed its prospects, and the village is now well on its way to becoming a thriving community.

Recording 7

Interviewer: In the studio today we have the novelist David Bard, whose most recent book, A Woman Alone, was published last week. Welcome to the programme, David.
David: Thanks for inviting me.
Interviewer: Now, David, you came relatively late to writing, didn't you?
David: Well, I suppose I'd always been a writer — poems, short stories, and so on — but only my close family had read anything I'd written until I had my first novel published in my early forties.
Interviewer: And how did you feel about that?
David: Oh, it felt fantastic having my first book published.

Interviewer: At that time you were a primary school teacher in your native Scotland. At what stage did you leave teaching?
David: Until my third novel was published I was happy to teach during the day and write in the evening and at weekends. But I found that there wasn't enough time to do both as well as I wanted to, so I left teaching and I started writing professionally. Some of my close friends thought I was mad to give up my job, and I was greatly relieved that my subsequent books sold quite well.

Interviewer: So no regrets about leaving teaching?
David: Oh, it was the most difficult decision imaginable! I'd worked at the same school for about fifteen years, and I felt bad leaving the children and also some very close colleagues and friends. But I still live near the school and I go back on every possible occasion.

Interviewer: Tell us something about the process of your writing. How carefully do you outline the story at the very beginning?
David: Before I start writing I always know how a book is going to end, although I rarely have a clear idea at the beginning of how the characters will develop. As I write, gradually they grow into real people in my own mind.
But sometimes even I'm surprised at how they turn out!

Interviewer: And what about your daily work routine?
David: I suppose I'm fairly disciplined in my writing. I'm generally up at about 7:00 in the morning, and I usually start work by about eight o'clock. I work upstairs — we've converted our attic into a study. In the early stages of a new book I'll often go to the city library in the afternoon to do some research.

Interviewer: You don't use the Internet?
David: As a rule I prefer finding information from books, and I only turn to the Internet as a last resort.

Interviewer: Let's go on now to your latest novel, A Woman Alone. I was surprised to find it set in Norway.

David: Yes, I finished my previous book last January. I'd been feeling really tired, and I was aware that I needed rest and a source of fresh ideas. I taught English in Sweden after I left university — and I still speak Swedish quite well — but I hadn't been to Norway before. There are a lot of historical links between Norway and the north of Scotland, so I decided to spend some weeks there.
Some of the geographical settings used in A Woman Alone are based on places I visited while I was travelling around.

Interviewer: And A Woman Alone seems to be more personal than many of your other works.

David: I'd already decided that I wanted to write about a single-parent family. As you may know, my sister and I were brought up by my mother on her own. The mother in the story, Elsa, is very protective of her children, as was my own mother. But although they have certain common characteristics, Elsa is not really modelled on my mother. Elsa is quite a dominant figure and a woman susceptible to periods of depression, whereas my mother was a rather gentle woman and always even-tempered.

Interviewer: And when you're researching and writing books, do you have time to read other people's novels?

David: I do, yes. One novelist I greatly admire is William Boyd. He writes simply, but with great control of language. I've just finished his excellent novel, Restless. It's a quite remarkable story.

Interviewer: I'll certainly add that to my list of books to read. And what about your present writing project? What are you working on now?

David: Well, I don't know if I can tell you yet! I'm still sketching out the plot, so it's very much in the early stages.
Recording 8

Alice: Hi everyone!
Ryan, Luke,
Kathy: Hi / How are you doing? Hi, Alice.
Alice: Listen, we need to make a decision about our holiday. If we don’t decide soon, it’ll be too late to get anywhere to stay. It’s got to be Corfu, hasn’t it?
Ryan: I’m not sure how we’d get there.
Luke: Well, my brother went there last year. He flew to Rome, then took a train to Brindisi, and then had to get a boat.
Kathy: No, it’s not as difficult as that. We could fly from London to Athens and then take a flight from there to Corfu. It takes about six hours. I’ve had a look on the Internet and it looks like there’s a flight that leaves London at about ten in the morning. But we need to book soon. The longer we leave it, the more expensive it’s going to be.
Ryan: But obviously it would be much easier getting to Athens – there’s lots of flights and we wouldn’t have to change.
Luke: Then what about somewhere to stay? Aren’t hotels supposed to be pretty expensive in Corfu?
Alice: Well, I’ve found three that seem possible. I’ve printed off the details here. They all look pretty good, and they’re right next to the best beach on the island.
Luke: Which one’s cheapest?
Alice: Er … this one here. Sixty euros a night for a double room.
Luke: Well, accommodation would be cheaper in Athens, I think. It says in my guidebook that there are reasonable hotel rooms for as little as 40 euros a night. There’s one here recommended. It’s a bit far from the city centre, but it’s on the metro, so it’s easy enough to get into the centre from there.
Kathy: It wouldn’t be as nice as being able to look out over a beach … What worries me is what we’d do in Athens for a couple of weeks.
Ryan: Look, Athens is one of the oldest cities in the world. There’s lots of museums, and then there’s the Acropolis with the Parthenon.
Kathy: I remember going to Rome with my parents once. We spent the whole time looking at museums and art galleries, and it was the most boring holiday I’ve ever had.
Alice: Yeah, I think it’d be more fun to go to Corfu. I much prefer lying on a beach to walking around art galleries all day. And it would be more peaceful than being in a city. I want to come home more relaxed and healthier … not unhealthier than when I went away!
Kathy: Yes, I’d prefer to go to an island, too, although I don’t want to lie on the beach all day. Maybe we could hire a car and explore the island a bit.
Alice: Yeah, we want to see as much as possible, and a car would be the easiest way of getting around. It’s probably not as unspoilt as some of the other Greek Islands, but it’s well-supplied to be a really beautiful place, so we’ll want to see as much as we can. What about the weather in August? I know we all want to see some sunshine, but isn’t Athens supposed to be incredibly hot in August? I’ve heard that it gets so hot that a lot of people leave the city to find somewhere cooler.
Ryan: No, my friend Mark used to work there as an English teacher, and he reckons the heat is nowhere near as bad as people say. Anyway, isn’t Corfu likely to be as hot as Athens at that time of the year?
Alice: I think you get the breezes off the sea …

Recording 9

First, let me introduce myself. I’m Dr Lynn Jones, and I’ll be taking you for the first five lectures in this course on first language learning. I’d like to begin today’s session by highlighting some of the main areas that I’ll be covering with you.

From the moment they wake up, infants are keen to interact and communicate with others. This interaction may not, of course, be with people. Early morning sounds from a child’s bedroom may be them babbling to themselves or speech as a child speaks to their toys.

I recently bought my two-year-old daughter a cuddly elephant, and it has become the ‘person’ she talks to each morning lying in bed. And as my three-year-old dresses herself, she likes to talk to each item of clothing: ‘Red jumper, your turn ...’ So the first lecture will be about what I call ‘private’ conversations.

Of course, a child’s parents are usually their most important focus of interaction, and in the second session we’ll be exploring the part that parents play in very early communication. The first stage of interactive play might be a child giving a toy to their mother or offering her some food. And even before they can use words, infants employ their faces, bodies and sounds to communicate what they want. A hand stretched out to a toy could mean ‘Give it to me’, or a broken toy handed to a parent with an ‘Aaa’ might mean ‘Mend this for me’. Parents encourage this kind of interaction by, for example, hiding an object behind them and asking ‘Where’s it gone?’ At first infants point, and then later verbalise a response.

The importance of infants listening to adults speaking for the development of their own language cannot be overestimated. Many parents play ‘Follow the instructions’ games with their children when they first become mobile, saying things like ‘Go to the toybox and find the car for me!’ or ‘Fetch me your bat’, although as the parents of older children will know, the novelty for children of following instructions soon wears off! Reading stories for young children is a similarly important part of this process of listening and understanding. But even when children are not being actively encouraged to listen, they will be seeking to make sense of the language they hear. When children appear to be busy playing with their toys, or applying themselves to painting a picture, they will be absorbing the speech they hear around them and often copying what they hear in their own speech. So the third area we’ll be looking at is the relationship between listening and the development of speech.

Interactions between infants will often copy parental speech and behaviour. Two small children at a nursery school might hug each other when they meet each morning, because that’s what parents do to the children when they are collected from school. Most parents at some time hear their child say something and ask themselves the question: ‘Did they copy that from us?’ Of course, it is very difficult to assess exactly the extent of parental influence. Take, for example, the area of conflict. It is not uncommon to see in a nursery school two small children playing with each other peacefully one moment, but they might be hitting each other the next. If their language is more developed, they might each blame the other for a broken toy or a spilt drink. While these would be uncharacteristic of normal adult interaction, perhaps the conflicts between parents witnessed by small children somehow are mimicked in these arguments. A fourth area, then, will be the extent to which patterns of communication are copied.

A final subject I will examine during the course is that of problems in language acquisition. We might consider first language learning natural, a normal process that everyone goes through, and Dr Jackson will be describing this process to you in detail in later talks. However, a significant number of children either acquire language more slowly than the usual rate, or never reach an average level of language proficiency. This topic will obviously be of particular importance to those of you who are going on to work with children with learning difficulties, or as speech therapists.

So, first of all then, let’s look at the private conversations that infants engage in ...

Recording 10

Presenter: Hello. All you regular listeners to Traveller’s World will know that our intrepid reporters are sent around the globe, coming back with stories of marvellous times spent in exotic locations. In today’s programme, however, we begin with a trip that had a nightmare start – just to reassure you that even professional travellers can get it wrong. So, Simon Richter, tell us your sorry tale.

Simon: Hello, Jackie. Yes, my assignment was to visit the beautiful island of Lombok in Indonesia. I was supposed to have been flying from London to Singapore and then from Singapore to Mataram in Lombok. I arranged for a taxi to collect me from home in good time, but it eventually turned up an hour late.

Presenter: So you were late to the airport.

Simon: Got there just as they were closing the check-in desk. I handed over my suitcase but then, to my horror, I found I hadn’t have my passport! I’d been so anxious to get into the taxi that I’d forgotten to pick it up.

Presenter: How very unprofessional of you!

Simon: I know. In 25 years of air travel, that’s the first time it’s ever happened to me. So back home I went to get it, and then off to plead with the airline. Eventually they found me an alternative flight a day later. It meant flying to Bali and then taking a ferry to Lombok, but I decided to go ahead. The journey went very smoothly until we got to Lombok. Apparently, there’d been a fire and we were made to wait outside the harbour for hours, and the sea was very rough ...

Presenter: ... and you were seasick.

Simon: Very! And, of course, because I’d changed my flight, I also had to stay in a different hotel. I’d really been looking forward to staying at the Hotel Saran in Mataram, but I had to make do with a less luxurious place – no pool, and no TV in my room.

Presenter: And what about Lombok itself?

Simon: Oh, it was beautiful. A number of people had encouraged me to go to the coral reefs off the northwest coast of the island. I managed to find a friendly taxi driver called Arun to take me and wait for me there. Now, when I was younger I used to hate swimming in the sea. But I went snorkelling for the first time just last year and loved it, so I couldn’t wait to have another go. The coral was just a few metres off the beach, so it was quite safe ...

Presenter: Until ... ? What happened?

Simon: Well ... I’d been swimming for a few minutes. The coral was fantastic – some of the best I’ve seen. And then all of a sudden there was this huge jellyfish in front of me, and I couldn’t get out of the way. As I swam past I felt it stinging me across the stomach. I started screaming – it was incredibly painful – and headed back to the beach. Fortunately, there was a small settlement nearby and some of the villagers helped carry me back to my taxi. Arun was fantastic. He took me to the local clinic and the doctors were excellent. I really appreciated them looking after me so well. It was sore for a few days, though, and I was told to take things easy.

Presenter: So how did you spend the rest of your time there?

Simon: Well, Arun really took care of me. The next day we went on to drive towards Mt Rinjani, the highest mountain in Lombok. The mountain’s thought by some to have been created by the god Batara. According to tradition he created light and the Earth and still lives in Rinjani. And as we stopped to admire the amazing sunset, it was almost possible to believe it. I really regret not having taken my camera with me.

Presenter: No camera?

Simon: Ah, no. That was another of my disasters. I’d picked up my passport, but then I’d left my camera. I tried using the camera in my mobile phone, but the quality was pretty poor.

Presenter: And what about the people in Lombok?

Simon: Arun’s family lived close to the mountain. I was really interested in seeing what it was like in a traditional Lombok family and he invited me to stay with them. Very soon I came to realise that the Lombok people are very kind and hospitable. It wasn’t long before I was beginning to feel quite at home there. Arun’s family are Sasak, who make up about 80% of the population. The Sasaks are thought to have originally come to Lombok from India or Burma.

Presenter: So the trip actually ended quite positively?

Simon: Absolutely! I considered staying for a few more days, but I didn’t have time. But I really hope to go back in the next few years. The island obviously wants to encourage tourism to boost the economy, but I’d love to think that it could avoid a huge expansion in visitors.

Presenter: Thank you, Simon.

Recording 11

The story of radio probably begins with Heinrich Hertz, who was the first to produce radio waves in a laboratory. He devised an experiment in which a spark jumped across a gap in a metal ring when a sparking coil was held a few metres away. The model that you can see in Case I shows how this works. For most people, however, it is the Italian Guglielmo Marconi whose name is mainly associated with the development of radio. Before Marconi’s breakthrough, it was possible only to send electrical messages, or ‘telegraphs’, along fixed wires. This obviously greatly restricted the places to which telegraphs could be sent. Marconi’s goal was to find a system where telegraphic messages could be transmitted without the need for the connecting wires that were used in the electric telegraph. For some time he was only able to transmit signals over a few hundred metres, and there were many people who doubted Marconi would ever succeed. The first public demonstration of the power of radio came in 1901, when Marconi announced that he had received a transmission from across the Atlantic. The old photograph that you can see ahead of you shows Marconi at Signal Hill in St. John's, Newfoundland, where this first transmission was received. Soon after, Marconi opened a 'wireless telegraph' factory in England, which employed around 50 people. There are just a few of the 'wireless telegraphy' factories produced left in the world, an example of which you can see in Case 2. These early radio systems could only be used for Morse code, in which each letter of the alphabet is represented by a combination of dots and dashes. Radio waves could not carry speech until a method had been developed whereby the low-frequency waves produced in a microphone could be combined with high-frequency radio waves. The invention that made this possible was the vacuum tube or thermionic valve. You can see examples of these in Case 3.

In several countries, radio became the main means of communication during the 1930s and 1940s. The next photograph shows friends gathered around the radio in the mid-1930s. Radio entertainers, many of whom became household names, were highly paid. In Britain, the popularity of radio increased until 1952, by which time four out of five households owned one. You can probably guess the reason why radio began to lose some of its popularity in the early 1950s – competition from television.

Move now to Room 36, where you can find information and displays about the early days of television...

Interviewer: Photographs of food are all around us, in advertisements, magazines, and cookbooks. Today's guest is Helena Palmer, who has made a highly successful career out of food photography. Welcome, Helena.

Helena: Thank you.

Interviewer: So how did you become involved in food photography – was your first interest the food or the photography?

Helena: Oh, definitely photography first. When I was quite young – 10 or 11 – I started using an old camera belonging to my father. I became fascinated with taking shots of people – my friends and my family in particular.

Interviewer: And were you also interested in the way food was presented – in restaurants, for example?

Helena: My parents – not having much money – rarely took us to restaurants. But my mother was an excellent cook. I used to take shots of her in the kitchen, and also some of the special things that she'd prepare – birthday cakes, and things like that.

Interviewer: And you left school quite young.

Helena: Yes, I wasn't very gifted academically, so at 16 I left school and went to help out at a local photographic studio. It was easy to find a photographer wanting to take on an assistant for no pay! For a couple of years I lived at home with my parents, who supported me financially. And I was very lucky that the photographer who took me on taught me a lot. She was really the first person to encourage me to take up food photography. She always let me help out with 'food shoots' – wedding cakes, publicity photos for local restaurants, and so on. Then, when I was 18, there was a major photography competition being held in London and one of the categories was 'Celebrations'. So I entered a portfolio of photographs – just for the experience, I thought. By that time I was getting quite into it.

Interviewer: And you won.

Helena: That's right. At that time, I was the youngest person in the competition to win any of the major categories.

Interviewer: Now, it's sometimes said that photographing food is the most difficult job for a professional photographer. Is that really true?

Helena: It can certainly be very difficult to make it look appetizing. Food photography is all done in studios, and the biggest problem is the heat produced by the lights. It can take a very long time to get everything exactly right for a shot, and by that time a chef's carefully prepared salad might look limp or a cream cake becomes a mound of wet sponge.

Interviewer: So how do you get round that?

Helena: Well, firstly, the food in photographs used to illustrate cookbooks and magazine articles isn't always entirely authentic.

Interviewer: You mean it's made of plastic?

Helena: Well, some of it, perhaps, but not all of it! If great food could be copied in plastic,
I'd be out of a job! We have a number of techniques to help us out. First, a lot of the items in the photograph can be set up early - glasses, cutlery, flowers, perhaps. And then we put in some material to substitute for the food - something with the same size, shape and colour. Often we just make this quickly in the studio from cardboard or any other material available, and paint it.

Interviewer: Personally, I prefer food not made of cardboard!

Helena: Don't we all! In the meantime, a food stylist prepares the food to be photographed.

Interviewer: A food stylist?

Helena: Oh, yes, most professional food photographers employ a food stylist nowadays. As soon as I'm satisfied with the setting, lighting, and so on, we take out the artificial food and put in the real thing. But the food starts to dry out very quickly. So I generally have with me a spray bottle containing glycerine mixed with water. Glycerine's a liquid, completely colourless, that's often used to sweeten food. It's great for keeping food looking shiny and moist. Another difficulty is that food is sometimes meant to be hot and steaming, but of course by the time we photograph it, it's completely cold. The only thing to do in that case is to create steam from elsewhere. We use cotton wool balls soaked in water and then put in a microwave. These steam nicely for a couple of minutes, and we position them so that it looks like it's the food steaming. Something else I wouldn't be without is a small blowtorch.

Interviewer: What do you use that for?

Helena: Hundreds of things - quickly melting butter over vegetables, browning toast ... A technique that might be used in photographing meat is to take a piece of, say, chicken, use the blowtorch for a while so that it's nicely golden brown, and then spray some glycerine on the outside to make it look moist. It looks great in the photo, but it might be raw on the inside.

Interviewer: Helena, it's been fascinating talking to you. Thank you so much for coming into the studio.

Helena: My pleasure.

---

Recording 13

Researcher: Thanks to both of you for filling in the questionnaire about your diet, and for agreeing to discuss the issues that it raised. First of all, Sarah, could you describe your eating habits on a typical day?

Sarah: Well, on a typical working day I usually start with a piece of toast and a glass of orange juice. For lunch I generally have a sandwich and a packet of crisps as I'm sitting at my desk. When I get home late I take a ready meal out of the freezer and put it in the microwave. Curries are really good, or something with noodles.

Researcher: And what about you, Don?

Don: I'm pretty much the same, actually, although at the weekend I like to make something myself so as not to eat processed food all the time. I'll perhaps roast a chicken, or do a salad.

Sarah: At the weekend, I'm often with friends and we'll usually go out to eat seeing that none of us likes cooking.

Researcher: Okay. Can you tell me how your diet now is different from when you were younger - say, when you were a teenager?

Sarah: Well, when I was younger, my mother used to keep an eye on what I ate. She tried very hard to encourage me to eat healthily. I think she made a particular effort as I was often ill as a child. She also talked to me about the food she's made so that I'd learn about diet and nutrition.

Researcher: Right. Don?

Don: Yes, I suppose because it's so easy to buy ready meals from the supermarket, it makes me quite lazy about cooking, and in that way my diet isn't so good. But in some ways, it's better now, though. If I get hungry, I'll eat some fruit, whereas at school I'd buy a bar of chocolate. I remember once I was eating some sweets in my bedroom when my mother walked in. I got a long lecture on the dangers of too much sugar.

Researcher: But overall you feel your diet is less healthy than it was, say, ten years ago?

Don: Yes, I think that's true, in that I ate more regularly then and had a more balanced diet.

Researcher: Okay, so what are the main problems you see in your present diet, and what would you most like to change?
Sarah: Well, for me, I think the biggest problem is breakfast. I don't eat much for breakfast because I'm always in a rush. I know that's not good for me, and I'd like to have something more substantial before I leave home in the morning. But I have to get out by 7:30 in order to catch my bus, so I really don't have time.

Don: My biggest problem is that I tend to snack a lot. When I've had one of those ready meals, I feel hungry by the time I go to bed. So sometimes I get up in the night and have a snack, although I know it's bad for me. I must be eating too much because I've been getting a bit overweight recently. And as I put on weight, it gets more and more difficult to exercise. I was absolutely exhausted when I had to run for the bus yesterday.

Researcher: Thanks. And what's preventing you from making the changes that you'd like to make in your diet?

Sarah: I suppose time is the big problem. Although I'd like to eat more fresh food, I don't have time to prepare meals in the evenings. And I don't have the opportunity to go shopping while I'm working.

Don: Well, my problem is that I'm not a very good cook! I actually read a lot about food and health, and what I should be eating. But it's very hard to put a healthy diet into practice despite the fact that I know all about the theory. And most recipes in magazines are no use to me because of the time they take. It would be really helpful to...

Presenters:

Recording:14s

Presenter: Plans to open a new zoo at Twyford have caused a major outcry among animal rights campaigners. With me in the studio to discuss the issue are Debbie Hall, from the organisation Save the Animals which campaigns against zoos, Mark Archer, who plans to open Twyford Zoo, and Wendy Khan, who runs a safari park in the south of England, where visitors can drive their own cars through large enclosures where wild animals run free. Mark Archer, if I could come to you first, why is another zoo needed? Aren't there enough already?

Mark: Well, zoos have a number of very important roles. First of all, they're of enormous educational value. If we didn't have zoos, most people would never see wild animals in real life. The fact that there is a large zoo in this part of the country means that there's a real need for a zoo at Twyford. We want to make it as easy as possible for young people to come along so that they can learn about wild animals. Second, rare and endangered species can be preserved, and, hopefully, bred in captivity, making sure that the species survives. If we'd introduced captive breeding earlier, we would have prevented the extinction of a number of animals. I'm thinking of animals like the Tasmanian tiger or the Chinese river dolphin. Unless we expand captive breeding, many more animals will die out.

Debbie: Well, certainly we should have captive breeding programmes if it will help save species. But this doesn't have to be in a zoo, where animals are often kept in small enclosures and cages. If they were in the wild, they would have more space to roam free. And so many other aspects of zoos are unnatural for wild animals. It's not natural for different species to live separately from each other, or for them to be given food at regular times rather than hunt for it. And then there's the cruelly involved in capturing and transporting wild animals to zoos.

Mark: But what you've got to remember is that many animals in zoos nowadays were actually born in captivity.

Debbie: That's no excuse. Even if wild animals are born in a zoo, it's still cruel to keep them in a small enclosure where they often become unhappy and prone to illness.

Mark: But if there's a health problem, vets deal with it quickly. In the wild, an animal that becomes ill is much more likely to die or be eaten.

Debbie: That's true, of course. In the wild, animals do die through illness or are attacked by other animals. But this is perfectly normal and how they lived for centuries before we started hunting them.
Presenter: Wendy Khan. Can I bring you in here? You were disappointed that Twyford was to be a zoo and not a safari park.

Wendy: Yes, I certainly was. First of all, I agree with Debbie that it's inhumane to keep animals in the conditions you find in most zoos. Safari parks offer all the educational experience of zoos — the close contact with animals — but they also allow animals to roam free in large enclosures. Safari parks are also very active in captive breeding programmes, of course. The decision to make Twyford a zoo rather than a safari park is a lost opportunity.

Mark: I'm all in favour of safari parks provided that the animals are well looked after. Unfortunately, that hasn't always been the case in the past. But they can never replace zoos. They're places where large animals, mainly from Africa — giraffes, elephants, lions, and so on — roam free. But you can't have small animals roaming around — if they're not eaten by the larger animals first, they'll be killed by visitors' cars.

Debbie: If I could just get a word in here ... Save the Animals believes that safari parks are not an acceptable substitute for zoos. Even though they say they are concerned about the welfare of animals, just like zoos, they are still businesses mainly out to make a profit. Entertaining visitors is the priority, not the welfare of animals. Our view is that wild animals should be protected in their natural habitat. There are many successful reserves in Africa, for example, where wild animals roam peacefully.

Wendy: But all that costs huge amounts of money that can only be provided by rich tourists who come to see the animals. Most families can't afford to make trips like that to see them. Safari parks allow city-dwelling children from all levels of society access to ...

Debbie: But animal welfare is more important! In reserves, animals can be monitored and treated for illness and they can be protected from poachers. And they have as much space as they need to live their lives freely. So long as developed countries put money into these reserves, species will be preserved.

Mark: I'm sorry, but that's unrealistic.

Presenter: Well, I'm afraid that's all we have time for tonight. Wendy Khan, Debbie Hall, Mark Archer, thank you.

Recording 14b

Speaker 1

By the time I get home after a hard day, and with the prospect of an evening of preparation and marking ahead of me, the last thing I want to do is spend a lot of time in the kitchen. I live on my own, so dinner isn't a time to talk and relax, unless I've got friends round. I just tend to grab a sandwich and eat it while I'm watching the news or working. If I want good food, there are some pretty good restaurants around here.

Speaker 2

Even when I'm abroad, I'd rather go somewhere that serves the kind of food I'm used to — steak and chips, and things like that. Sometimes this gets to be a bit of a problem if I'm transporting stuff to somewhere off the beaten track. If I don't know the place I'm going to, I'll generally take food from home to keep me going for a few days, and eat in the cab rather than eat out.

Speaker 3

When I was training, I lived at home and my mum did all the cooking unless she was away from home. She really enjoys it, so she didn't mind. Now I realise I should have paid more attention to what she was doing, but she's offered to lend me some recipe books and give me some tips, so that will really help. But just now I'm rushed off my feet. I'm working in the accident and emergency department and we have to do long hours and night shifts every other week. If I wasn't so busy, I'd certainly like to cook more. Hopefully, things will be less frantic when I get moved to the children's ward at the end of the year.

Speaker 4

I went off to France for a year after school and really got hooked on good food and cooking during that time. Unless I've got lemons, first thing, I generally go down to the market to get the best-quality stuff. None of us has got a lot of money to spare, but you can get real bargains at some of the stalls. Then in the evening I cook for my flatmates. They're pretty appreciative, and if they enjoy what I've cooked — well, that's what it's all about.

Speaker 5

I'm at home most of the time and I don't have a set pattern of work. If the writing's going well, I might work through from eight in the morning to three in the afternoon without a break — unless the sun's shining and then I might go out for a walk. This means that I tend not to eat regularly or I forget to buy anything in the shops. I'll often go out and get a take-away or something late in the day. Not very nutritious, I realise, but it's difficult if you've got deadlines to meet.

Recording 15

Linda: Have you seen Sam's article for this week?
Bob: No, not yet. He'd got as far as Naples last week, hadn't he? Go on, read it out.
Linda: Right. He's called it 'Rest and rass: from Naples to Amalfi'.
Bob: 'When I last wrote I was just north of Naples. I was tired, had big blisters on my feet, and, having fallen over a number of times, I was feeling thoroughly miserable. Now, a week later, I'm sitting in a restaurant looking out over the Mediterranean watching the sun go down - and life has improved greatly.'
Linda: That's a bit better. To hear him grumbling last week, you'd think he was about to get on the next flight home!
Bob: He sounds in good form now. Listen to this: 'I had no idea where I was heading when I walked into Naples. Exhausted by a difficult few days, I was only interested in finding a bed for the night. Not wanting to carry my backpack any further than I needed to, I went to the first hotel I came across. But I struck lucky! I found a small, friendly hotel. In fact, the welcome I got at the hotel made me decide to stay for a couple of days. While in Naples, I did visit what all visitors do - I took a tour to Vesuvius and Pompeii. Fascinating places, and it was so good to sit on a coach and give my feet a rest.'
Linda: You've been there, haven't you?
Bob: Yes, I went a couple of years ago. Pompeii is amazing. I don't imagine he rested his feet that much, though - it's such a big place to walk around. What else does he say?
Linda: Let's see... 'But after a couple of days of rest and relaxation, I was ready to get back on the trail. Before leaving Naples, I bought yet more walking socks and a new pair of boots. These are not just any old boots, though. Made from the softest leather imaginable, they are as comfortable as a pair of slippers.'

He must be really pleased. He was getting so many blisters with the old pair.
Bob: Having left the sprawl of the city behind me, I walked up into the hills to avoid the long trek around the coast. There's spectacular scenery up there and beautiful views to the sea. On the downside, though, the hills are covered in thorny bushes, and the whole area is very rocky. At times it was difficult to follow the paths as they're not well marked, and I often had to retrace my steps. I also had a few unpleasant encounters with the local wildlife. Walking into one village I was met by a pack of unfriendly dogs. Snarling aggressively, the dogs were pretty terrifying at first. But I found that if I ignored them, they soon lost interest in me. I met some smaller wildlife, too. The first night on the hills, I pitched my tent, and was ready to sleep. But opening up my sleeping bag, I discovered a scorpion.'
Linda: You're kidding! Aren't they dangerous?
Bob: Well, Sam obviously wasn't sure.
Linda: I'm no expert on scorpions, and I didn't know if this one was poisonous. I shook it out of my sleeping bag well away from the tent, and made sure it was heading off in the opposite direction before I settled down for the night! But then, around two in the morning, having been woken up by a scratching sound, I found a large rat trying to get into my backpack. Fortunately, it ran off when I threw my boots at it. What with sleeping so badly, and a long and difficult walk along some treacherous paths down from the hills, it was quite a relief to get to Amalfi this afternoon. I'm now ready for dinner - I've been recommended the local speciality of Isagne with ricotta cheese - and a few more miles of walking tomorrow towards Ravello. This time, though, it will be along the coast and (I hope) scorpion and rat free! Another report next week.'
Linda: Well, it sounds like he's enjoying Amalfi, anyway. He hasn't got much further to go, has he?
Bob: No, probably another two or three weeks and he'll be back with us.

Recording 16

Joe: First of all, thank you for giving me the opportunity to come and talk to you this evening. I'm sure you all know the area a couple of miles out of the village known as the Norton Marsh. You're probably also heard that the Marsh has been given to the NWT to look after. Unfortunately, the Marsh has been neglected for many years. It's overgrown, paths have disappeared, and the stream running through the area is blocked by rubbish. Our plan is to return the Marsh to its natural state as far as possible. We'd like to follow the example of what they've done at Broadstone Park, which many of you will have been to. A few years ago it was a wilderness. Now it's a thriving nature reserve full of animal, bird and plant life, with a popular nature trail for visitors. Broadstone Park is part of the Montague family estate and, as such, was largely funded by private means. As a charitable trust, we have to rely on contributions from the public, and we have to face up to the fact that we don't have the resources at the moment to achieve our aims. Don't worry, I'm not asking you for your money this evening, but I am asking for your help. We're looking for volunteers to help us work on the Marsh over the next few years. For example, we need people to clear the vegetation, maintain paths, clear the stream and build fences. Clearing the vegetation is something that is urgently needed.

But why should you volunteer? Well, the reason for most people is that they want exercise and fresh air — and it's also good to know they're helping the environment. There's a great social side to the NWT, too. I can guarantee that you'll make a lot of new friends, and we organise barbecues and other social events. If you don't fancy the physical work that's involved at the Marsh, you can still help. We also need people to address envelopes, deliver promotional material, and publicise the NWT on the Net. Whether you help with the outdoor or indoor work depends on you. It's entirely up to you to decide how much time you can give to work at the NWT. We will be very grateful for whatever time people can spare. Nine o'clock is when we usually meet, on Saturday and Sunday mornings. Just come along to the Marsh and we'll show you what to do.

You don't have to make a decision tonight. You can get in touch with me at any time. If you've got any questions about what I've said so far I'd be very happy to answer them.

Man 1: What you've told us is very interesting and I'd like to be involved, but I'm not a member of the NWT. And I've heard it's quite expensive to join.

Joe: The fact that you're not a member of the trust makes no difference. We're just looking for people with enthusiasm, commitment and some spare time.

Woman 1: Can I ask why the Marsh was given to the NWT?

Joe: Well, Mr Reynolds, the man who gave us the land, has been a supporter of the NWT for many years and wanted us to take over the area a long time ago. Unfortunately, he'd been in a dispute over property with his brother and there was some debate as to whether he could legally give us the land. That dispute has now been resolved, so he got his wish, and the land is now ours.

Woman 2: I'd like to be involved, but I don't know whether or not I'd be able to come on a regular basis. Would that be a problem?

Joe: No at all. Come when you can. You'll be made very welcome.

Man 2: I don't have a car. Does the NWT organise lifts to the Marsh as I don't know if I can get there by public transport?

Joe: There's a bus — the number 45 — that goes from town past the Marsh, although I can't remember whether it runs on Sundays.

Woman 2: No, the Sunday service was cancelled a while ago.

Joe: Anyway, we organise lifts for people who don't have their own cars and each weekend one person is responsible. You can phone whoever is in charge of arranging lifts on the weekend you want to come and we'll make sure someone will collect you from your home — and take you back, of course!

Marie: I learnt to drive with a driving instructor, and I think there are lots of advantages to this. Firstly, cars like the one I learnt in have dual controls.
so the instructor can take over accelerating, braking and stuff. Also, my instructor never got annoyed, however badly I was driving. Even if I did something incredibly stupid like stalling in the middle of a busy road, he’d stay completely cool. He was really encouraging as well as being incredibly patient. We used to stop driving at some point during the lesson, and he would ask me how I felt I’d improved, so he’d always be focusing on what I was doing right. Another thing is that being so experienced, he’d get lots of really useful tips to pass on. Like, for example, reversing around corners. At first, I couldn’t get the hang of this at all. However I had the mirror positioned, I just couldn’t judge where the back of the car was. But he told me exactly what to do – how to sit, what I should be able to see out of the mirror and windows, and so on. After that it was dead easy.

There were disadvantages, of course. Occasionally, my usual driving instructor was ill, so the driving school sent along a replacement. That was a bit disappointing because he was great and I didn’t want to be taught by anyone else. Even so, I always found the replacements very patient and helpful.

Another advantage is that experienced instructors know when you’re good enough to pass, which I think is kind of difficult for non-professionals to judge. I just carried on having lessons until my instructor said I was ready to take the driving test.

And he was right – I passed first time. Although it’s expensive having driving lessons, I’d really recommend it.

Sam: My mum taught me to drive ‘cause I couldn’t afford to pay for driving lessons. I think there’s a lot of other good things about having your parents teach you, besides saving money. You’re got to book driving lessons in advance, but you can go out with your parents whenever it suits you. And you can spend a lot more time practising, as well. For example, my mum used to come and collect me from college in the car and I’d drive home. What’s more, she’d let me drive when we went shopping.

My mum was a great teacher. Even though she doesn’t have a professional qualification or anything, she’s got lots of experience to pass on. I was lucky, though, because she knew a deserted airfield near to where we live, and for the first few lessons Mum took me there to practise. She wouldn’t let me drive on busy roads before I could control the car reasonably well. And as long as I didn’t do anything stupid, she stayed pretty calm. The only time I remember her getting stressed was when I was overtaking. I used to find it really hard.

It was very different with my dad, though. He took me out once when Mum was away. We’d hardly driven out of our road before we were shouting at each other. Then he made me practice hill starts for an hour – that’s something I still have problems with – and we just sat up at each other all the time.

Of course, one disadvantage of learning with your parents is that you have to pay a lot to insure the car. But apart from that, I think it’s much better.

---

Recording 19

Interviewer: A government report published today has shown a dramatic fall in recorded crime over the last ten years. With me to discuss the report is the Home Affairs Minister, Kate Pullman. Minister, you must be very pleased with the findings.

Minister: Yes, indeed, I was delighted when I was given the figures. When we got elected ten years ago, one of our priorities was a reduction in the disturbingly high crime figures. Obviously, the policies that we’ve put into place have had a significant impact, so that during our period in office there’s been a 40% fall in the risk of being a victim of crime.

Interviewer: So can you pinpoint what measures have had the most significant effect?

Minister: Well, I think I’d highlight three things. First, attitudes to committing crime have changed significantly since Peter Miles was appointed head of the police service. He’s been successful in getting more police officers on the streets, and this has meant that a much higher proportion of offenders have been arrested during the last ten years than ever before. Second, a huge amount has been invested in surveillance, particularly closed-circuit television. CCTV has been introduced into lots of city centres, and it’s used widely now in helping to prevent car crime in particular. And third, I’d pick out our Make Amanda scheme. Most people found guilty of vandalism are now made to repair the damage they’ve caused, and this has discouraged young people in particular from causing damage to property. The effect of this is becoming obvious. People are seeing less graffiti in city centres, for example. It’s been so successful that a number of other countries are considering adopting a similar policy.

Interviewer: But it’s not all good news, is it? While overall crime levels have fallen, some categories of crime have risen quite sharply, haven’t they? Street crime is up over 25%!

Minister: It’s true that there has been a surge in street crime. The reason for this can be found in the huge increase in the number of mobile phones. These have become a particular target for street robbers. But this figure is expected to fall rapidly as new technology starts being introduced to trace stolen mobiles. If they can be traced, they’ll be a much less attractive target.

Interviewer: And drug-related crime is on the increase.

Minister: Well, it’s certainly true that more people are caught selling drugs. It’s not clear, though, whether there are more people out there selling drugs or whether there has been better policing and so more arrests.

Interviewer: There have been some questions raised about the accuracy of the figures in the report.

Minister: Well, it may be that some minor mistakes were made in collecting the figures, but I don’t think anyone would deny the general trends that are reported.

Interviewer: Finally, can I turn to the issue of the public perception of crime, which the report also investigates. It must concern you that despite the number of crimes falling in recent years, a majority of people believe that the crime rate has actually gone up. Everyone you speak to seems to have been a victim or know a victim of crime. If I can give a personal example, my house was broken into only last week and I had my TV and stereo taken. Virtually every person in my road has had a burglar alarm fitted recently.

Minister: I’m very sorry to hear that. Yes, there is a problem of public perception, but we’re taking steps to improve this. For example, our latest poster campaign is intended to reassure people that violent crime is falling nationally. But it’ll take a long time for perceptions to change, I think.

Interviewer: You don’t believe them, as many people do, that crime is actually on the increase but that fewer crimes are reported to the police?

Minister: I do accept that some of the fall might have been caused by lower rates of reporting, but I’m sure this has had a very small impact on the figures.

Interviewer: Kate Pullman, thank you very much.

Minister: Thank you.

Recording 19a

James: Oh, there you are, Kath. I’ve been looking for you. So how did the meeting go?

Kath: Well, it was really interesting. There were a couple of representatives from the airport, and one of those, a Mr Kelly, spoke first. Then there was a short presentation by Sue Ray.

James: Who’s Sue Ray?

Kath: The head of the No to Airport Expansion group. After that there were questions from the audience. Some of the people there got pretty angry.

James: I’m not surprised! Everyone I’ve spoken to thinks it’s awful.

Kath: Yeah, I thought so, too, before the meeting, but I’m not so sure now. I agree with the anti-expansion group that the plans will change the area, but maybe change isn’t such a bad thing.

James: So the airport authorities have convinced you, then?

Kath: Not entirely. They told us that the expansion would create around 2000 jobs directly – people employed at the airport. They also said that it might increase tourism in the region. I wasn’t so sure about this. I asked how it would boost tourism, and they admitted that they’re not sure exactly how many more people it will attract, although they said it would certainly make it easier for people to get here. Actually, Sue reckoned the expansion would damage tourism because people won’t want to go on holiday anywhere near an airport. They said that a growing number of people in the local area supported the expansion, particularly local business.

277
James: But what about the noise?
Kath: Mr Kelly said the airport had carried out trial flights last month and no complaints had been received from people in the village. He convinced me that noise wouldn't be a problem for us.
James: And what were the airport people like?
Kath: Well, I expected them to be confrontational, but in fact they seemed quite understanding of the complaints. They promised to keep us informed about future developments. They say they'll be putting copies of the plans in the village hall. They encouraged us to go there and look at the plans in detail. They also announced that there would be a public enquiry before any final decision is taken.
James: I'm worried about the nuclear power station on the coast. Won't planes fly directly over it? And if ever a plane crashes into it, it would be a disaster.
Kath: They said that the flight paths they're proposing would keep planes away from the power station. Mind you, when Sue gave her presentation she warned us that the airport authorities were not telling the truth. She obviously doesn't trust them, and demanded that we be shown the details of the flight paths. She wanted to know why we should believe them when they had denied for years that they wanted to expand. They avoided replying to that.
James: And what does the No to Airport Expansion group want to happen next?
Kath: Well, we had a talk about that after the meeting. Someone asked Sue what we should do to protest about the proposal and she advised us to write to our local politicians with our objections and she also suggested inviting the Minister for Transport to hear our complaints. I've volunteered to write to her. And I'm going to go and have a look at the plans. Do you want to come with me?
James: Yes, it'd be interesting to see ...

Recording 19b

Alan: In my line of work, portrait photography, I rarely venture far from the studio. I like the degree of control you have there. I mean, outside you're dependent on the weather and being able to get access to just the right place to shoot from.
Maggie: But that's part of the attraction of it for me. I love searching for the best vantage point, the quietness of waiting for the perfect moment for the shot - which may never come - and seeing the way a scene changes over time.
Alan: So you've never been tempted by studio work?
Maggie: Well, early on I didn't have access to a studio, and later, when I was commissioned to do portraits, I found it quite restricting. It took me hours to set up the lighting and the position of the subject. I felt that creativity was lost, and this was reflected in my photographs.
Alan: That's certainly a risk. The temptation is to set things up so meticulously that by the time of the shoot the subject has lost interest and can't help looking rather false, as if they'd rather be somewhere else.
Maggie: And there's so much more involved in photography than just the techniques of using the camera and lighting.
Alan: Yes, it's not just a question of imagining what you want a portrait to look like, you've also got to be able to convey this to the subject: how you want them to sit, what kind of emotion you want expressed. These aren't the kinds of things you can demonstrate, but you've got to get that message across.
Maggie: It's similar in landscape photography to some extent. Most of the work is for clients - tourist authorities and the like. You've got to listen to your clients and match their needs with your own preferences, and negotiate an agreement on what the end product should look like. If clients want something that I know isn't going to work, I encourage them to look at the location in a different way.
Alan: Yes, negotiating with clients is something that all photography courses include these days.
Maggie: Of course, we're both of a generation where it was rare to have formal training. Personally, I learnt from looking at the photographs of other professionals, making my own judgements about their quality.

278
Alan: I suppose that's where I wanted a teacher of some kind. I remember the hours I would spend poring over an image, trying to discover how they got some lighting effect.

Maggie: It's true, it can take a huge amount of time, but you end up with skills that you'd never be able to learn from someone else. You've got to work these things out by yourself, without other people influencing you. Carriès-Bresson claimed that photography is a way of life, and he was right.

Alan: But I think the way you develop is through comments from people on your own work. Negative feedback can be quite hard to take, but it's a great help in shaping what I do.

Maggie: Yes, it's an important influence on any artist's work. I quite like getting negative feedback because it can point the direction I should be taking in a way that praise never can. In some ways it's great when people consider that an exhibition of mine is a success, but what do I learn from that?

Alan: And of course our lives have been changed radically by the advent of digital photography. A colleague of mine persuaded me to switch to a digital camera shortly after they first appeared in the 1990s, and I've never looked back. Being able to see an image that you've captured pretty well instantaneously is amazing. And the biggest impact of all is on what happens after the image is captured – I mean, being able to adjust images on the computer.

Maggie: But we get into difficulties here with the purpose of photography. For me, a drawing or painting can show something that never actually existed: something that can come entirely from the artist's imagination. A photograph, though, should show something that was in front of the camera when the photograph was taken. Digital technology allows you to interfere with a photograph to show as real what the photographer prefers.

Alan: But don't you think that...

Alison: A company called TransWorld Adventures.

Ben: Oh, that's who I was thinking of going with! They do diving holidays in quite a few places – Perth, Brisbane, Sydney...

Alison: I went for the one based in Brisbane. It was a fantastic experience.

Ben: The website's a bit short on detail, though. What happened when you got there? Who met you at the airport?

Alison: One of the local organising did. And then he drove me to a diving school just outside the city, where I met the others in the group. We had a week there learning to dive, and then we went to the Gold Coast where we had a week of sailing.

Ben: Do they provide all the equipment? It doesn't say much about that on the website.

Alison: They should do. They certainly did for us – all the air tanks, weights and things that you need – although it's useful to have your own face mask and snorkel.

Ben: I'm a bit concerned about the diving. I'm not really a very good swimmer.

Alison: No, neither am I. But you don't have to be. That's the great thing about diving – you don't actually have to be a strong swimmer. What else were you thinking of doing?

Ben: Well, sailing would be great, but I've never sailed a boat before.

Alison: That doesn't matter. Nor had I, but it's really not that difficult, and the instructors are brilliant. And anyway, it doesn't matter if you fall in. The water's warm, and they give you life jackets to wear.

Ben: You think I'd enjoy it, then?

Alison: Oh, I'm sure you would.

Ben: So have you got any good tips?

Alison: Well, make sure you take a sun hat. It's easy to get burned. And take a couple of pairs of old trainers – preferably plastic ones because they get really wet on the boats. I took leather trainers that fell apart, and I had to buy new ones while I was out there. I suppose the other thing is that I didn't realise what hard work sailing is. By the end of the holiday I was exhausted, but very fit!

Ben: Yes, I need to get into better shape. I was also thinking about spending an extra week in Tasmania going river sailing. That's probably hard work, too.

Alison: Sounds great, but I don't think TransWorld Adventures do that, do they?
Recording 20b

Interviewer: Today I'm talking to David Evans, who's a school chef at Academy School in Wales. Now, David, this is a new school, isn't it, and it takes a rather unusual approach to school meals?

David: That's right. When the school opened about this time last year the new Principal proposed that school dinners should be compulsory. Some people thought she'd be crazy to go ahead with the plan, but she was determined to. Obviously, this was quite a risky experiment. Students aren't allowed to bring in sandwiches or fizzy drinks. And each day there are only two options available, one vegetarian. We try to introduce a wide range of styles of cooking. Naturally, at first, students were a little dubious about the food. Most had only eaten what you might call 'traditional' British food, so I think it was quite adventurous for them to try what they saw as unusual, the kinds of foods they normally wouldn't have the opportunity to eat at home, or wouldn't want to.

Interviewer: And rather than having a typical school canteen with individual students lining up to collect food from the kitchen, you have a different arrangement.

David: Yes, we have our restaurant system. We get everybody seated at about 12.30 on tables of six and then one student from each table collects the food from the kitchen and serves it to the others. It's slow, but we deliberately encourage students to sit and talk around the table, including about the food they're eating. There's still some resistance to this, particularly as a lot of our students come from homes where fast food and ready meals are what's normally eaten, and family members eat at different times. They don't have the habits of conversation over a meal or discussions of food. But we see this as part of our mission, to give them basic social skills so they can operate in an adult world.

Interviewer: And what about staff here? What's their part in this?

David: Staff are expected to eat in the restaurant and sit with students, but they're not there to control things. They're there to talk to students about the food they're eating and in this way they learn about nutrition and how important it is to get the right amounts, and that having too much carbohydrate or fat isn't a good thing. Of course, it's not all food talk. An unexpected benefit is that the teachers learn more about students outside the classroom. At first there were grumbles from teachers about being forced to eat with students rather than sitting with other members of staff, but now I think they prefer to.

Interviewer: And you always try to cook with fresh ingredients.

David: Yes, that's right. Although we offer international dishes, both for nutritional reasons and because of environmental concerns, pretty much all of the produce we use is locally sourced. We've also got a small herb garden behind the science block. Students can help with this if they're willing to. So as well as having fresh food, we're reducing the environmental problems associated with transporting food over long distances. We put up a map in the restaurant to show where food has come from. It's not always possible to get local produce, of course, but we do what we can.
David: Well, I've had a varied career. I've been a waiter and a chef in a London restaurant, I've run two small companies, and I went on to train as a teacher. I taught domestic science in a secondary school for ten years before taking on this job. I've found that perhaps the most important part of the job is to listen to what the students say about the food. I spend a lot of time in the restaurant. I go and talk to the students. They'll always give me an honest opinion on whether or not they've enjoyed something. The time I spent in management has helped me most with this. You need to listen to what people are saying to get the best out of them and make the right decisions.

Interviewer: And do you think the approach to food they've taken here could be adopted in any school?

David: No, I don't think all schools would be able to. We're lucky in that we're a new school and we set it up with the ethos that learning about healthy eating is an important life skill, and students and their parents accept that, although sometimes rather unwillingly. It could be difficult to introduce this into an established school where, for example, chips and burgers are a regular feature of school dinners. Introducing a radical change when students are used to doing things in a certain way can be difficult. But any school could take some steps to make students aware of the importance of healthy eating. I'd certainly advise them to. Over time I think we'll see most schools moving in this direction.

Recording 21

The final presentation to be made tonight is an award for Lifetime Service to Music Education, and I'm delighted to say that this goes to ... Maria Adams.

Before I ask Maria to come up and accept the award, I'd just like to say a few words about her. All of you will know of her achievements, first as a highly successful violinist, and then as conductor of the York City Orchestra, but fewer of you will know about her contribution to music education in this country and beyond.

It was in the mid-1990s that we first met. She had been conductor of the YCO for about a year, and I was head of education on York city council. For some time Maria had been writing to me, saying that the council should do more to help children's musical development in the city, particularly for those who came from poorer backgrounds. What she was suggesting was that members of the YCO would volunteer their services, either individually or in groups, to go into schools and play for children and run music workshops. In exchange, she wanted the city council to lend instruments to children and provide free music lessons for children whose parents weren't able to afford them. This was at a time when the government had cut funding for music lessons.

Eventually, I invited her to talk to the committee, so along she came to present her proposal. What she did first was convince us of the value of a musical education. Making music she sees as a fundamental part of a child's development, as essential as an ability to read or write. What impressed me most was the way she calmly and clearly argued her case. By the end of the meeting, all of us had been won over by Maria's arguments and the Music in Schools project was born. Somehow we found the money to support it!

Rarely have I met anyone with such passion for their beliefs. And thanks to Maria's enthusiasm the project has been a tremendous success. Not only has she persuaded YCO members to give up their time willingly, but she has also encouraged visiting musicians to give free concerts in schools when they come to play in the city. Well, 'encourage' perhaps isn't the right word – she's a very persuasive person!

A number of times the council has tried to make changes to the Music in Schools project in order to save money. When this has happened, Maria has demonstrated that she is a determined and persuasive character. Five years ago, for example, there were plans to start charging all children for music lessons, but this she resisted. Only after Maria threatened to withdraw her support from the project did the council back down.

Maria's dream was always to extend her work beyond this city, and with typical energy she set about persuading the government to adopt the project throughout the country. What's happened as a consequence is that music has become established as an important part of the national curriculum. I think it's fair to say that, had Maria not been around, music education in most schools in this country would have practically disappeared. Instead, so successful has it been, that those involved in music education around the world have visited the city to see the project in action.

And then came an invitation to be a special adviser to the government on music education. In this role, she has worked closely with the Minister for the Arts. Were he here tonight, I know that he would want to express his thanks personally to Maria. And as a further acknowledgement of her enormous service to music education we'd like to present her with this lifetime achievement award. Maria Adams, if you'd like to come up onto the stage.

Recording 22

Newreader: People living close to Lake Taal on the island of Luzon in the Philippines continue to be evacuated from the area as the Taal volcano threatens to erupt. Over to our reporter, Katie Hill.

Reporter: Lake Taal lies in the huge crater of the Taal volcano. In the middle of the lake is a smaller volcano which has been showing signs of increased activity over the last few weeks. Taal is one of the most active volcanoes in the world. In 1911 an eruption claimed over a thousand lives and in 1965 villages on the lakeshore were devastated by falling rocks and huge waves on the lake. Although scientists predicted the 1965 eruption, the authorities failed to warn villagers and the breakdown in communication cost at least a hundred lives. After the disaster of 1965, the government introduced the Taal Emergency Strategy. This involved monitoring the volcano for early signs of an eruption and the drawing up of an evacuation plan. Since that time, however, there has been an increase in the number of people living close to the lake, and the government has also encouraged the industrial development of the area. The building of two power stations just a few kilometres away was strongly criticised by environmentalists. In the event of an eruption, these would have to be shut down, possibly for a long period if damage occurs. The closure of the power stations would leave thousands of homes and businesses without electricity.

Last month, scientists noticed a sudden rise in the temperature of the lake. There was also a dramatic rise in the level of radon gas in the soil. Their concerns increased with the discovery of thousands of dead fish, apparently killed by acidic volcanic gases rising from the bed of the lake. As a result they gave a warning that Taal could erupt again at any moment. The authorities took immediate action. The President put government authorities on a state of high alert, saying that the danger of the situation made it necessary to bring in the army to oversee operations. The decision was made to evacuate an area of five kilometres around the entire lake, and two days ago the evacuation of around 30,000 people began. The provision of temporary shelter in safe locations for those displaced is the army’s top priority, and it is now estimated that about 25,000 evacuees have arrived at makeshift camps. Conditions in the camps are reasonably comfortable, and there are adequate supplies of food and water. But no one knows how long they will be away from their homes – or, indeed, if Taal erupts again, whether they will have homes to go back to. All they can do is watch and wait for nature to take its course ...

Katie Hill in the Philippines.

Newreader: The government has announced that ...

Recording 23

Father: So, what do you think? It’s going to be hard to choose between them, isn’t it?

Liz: Yes, there’s so many things to think about. But overall I prefer the out-of-town apartment – the one in Canley.

Mother: Well, look, don’t rush into a decision. It might help just to run through the pros and cons of each of them again.

Liz: Okay. Well, one obvious factor is price. The town apartment’s about a third more expensive than the one in Canley.

Father: True, although maybe you could get them to lower the price a bit. It’s been on the market for a long time, so they’re probably keen to sell it.

Liz: Yes, and it’s obvious why they’ve been having problems selling it – it hasn’t been decorated for years. I couldn’t believe it when the agent said the decoration was ‘in good condition’ – it clearly wasn’t! It really shocked me to see how bad it was.
Father: I'm sure you could get it decorated quite cheaply.

Mother: And what about location? One of the things that worries me about the Canley apartment is that it's about 15 kilometres from there into the centre. Living in town would make it so much easier to get to work.

Father: It's certainly an advantage being able to walk to work rather than having a long commute. It would save you a lot of money.

Liz: Yes, but lots of people work in town and live in Canley, so there's bound to be a regular bus service from there. Didn't the agent say there's a bus stop just outside the apartment block?

Mother: Well, you'd need to look at the bus timetable to check how long it takes to get into town. Personally, I wouldn't like it if I had to get up at six o'clock in the morning to get to work for nine.

Liz: Another thing is that if I ever bought a car, there's the problem of parking at the town apartment. There's no special parking area for the apartments, is there? On the other hand, there's a car park behind the Canley apartment block.

Mother: But you're not likely to be able to afford a car for ages ... It struck me that the Canley apartment might be quite noisy with that busy road nearby.

Liz: But it's in such a great location. There's a lot of open space at the back of the block. It'll be great in summer. And there's that lovely little river that runs nearby.

Father: Yes, but I wonder whether it floods in heavy rain? I've heard there have been problems in the past ...

Mother: It's a pity that the Canley apartment is so small. There wasn't much space in the bathroom, was there? Nowhere to store towels and things. And did you notice that in one of the bedrooms there was just a bed, a small wardrobe and some shelves? You couldn't even fit a chest of drawers in there.

Father: The kitchen was quite small, too.

Liz: I must admit the town apartment is a bit bigger, but the rooms in it are quite dark and that made it feel cramped. I really like the light in the Canley apartment.

Father: Another thing to consider is whether the apartment is going to be a good investment.

Mother: Yes, they say that the cost of property in the town centre is going to go up with more people wanting to move in. Apparently, there are plans to build new apartments not far from the one we looked at.

Liz: Maybe, although the agent's advertisement for the Canley apartment says 'There is expected to be a lot of interest in the property'.

Mother: Oh, I'm sure it's just a way of encouraging people to buy quickly. But take your time to think about it, there's no hurry to decide.

Liz: You really want me to take the town apartment, don't you?

Father: Well, it's obviously your decision, but there are so many advantages of living in town ...

Mother: Yes, and it would be so much easier for us to come and visit you there ...

Recording 24a

Dan: Dan Seville.

Jess: Oh, hi, Dan, it's Jess. Look, I'm really sorry, but I've messed up our plans for tomorrow.

Dan: Oh, no. What's happened?

Jess: Something's come up at work. Well, to be honest, it's a really important meeting. I'm so silly! I arranged it weeks ago and I forgot to put it in my diary. It means I've got to spend a couple of days in Marseille and I'll be heading off there early tomorrow morning.

Dan: Right.

Jess: So I won't be able to pick you up at the airport after all. I tried to reschedule the meeting for next week, but it's just impossible. I'm really, really sorry about this.

Dan: No, don't worry. I'm sure I'll be able to get to your place somehow.

Jess: Well, it means that you'll have to get to Perpignan from Montpellier airport on your own, and I'm afraid it's a bit complicated. You've got to get to Montpellier railway station and then catch a train to Perpignan. If you've got a pen handy, you might want to take down some of the information I'm going to give to you.

Dan: Okay, just a second ... Right, go ahead.

Jess: Okay now, I know that you get to Montpellier airport at eight in the evening.

Dan: Ten past eight, that's right.
Jess: I've found out the train times from the SNCF website and it appears that the last one from Montpellier to Perpignan is at ten minutes to ten. You really need to catch that train or an earlier one, so the first step is to get from the airport to the railway station in the centre of Montpellier. I know you're on a tight budget, so you could get the bus instead of a taxi but to be honest I'd advise you against catching the bus. It can be quite unreliable and it will only take you as far as the main square, and then it's a bit of a walk to the railway station from there. For the sake of a few euros, it's worth taking a taxi right to the station.

Dan: Right. Okay, I'll do that.

Jess: You'll need to buy a ticket before you get on the train. I think it costs about 25 euros. The last train is due to get in at about 11.30. Because I won't be in Perpignan, I've booked you into a hotel not far from the station.

Dan: That's great! Thanks!

Jess: It's called Le Metropole. I haven't stayed there myself, but one of my friends recommended it to me.

Dan: Le Metropole. Right... That sounds good. Thanks.

Jess: Now, depending on the weather you could either take a taxi there or walk from the station. Actually, it's probably best to walk, as it's really not far. Don't worry about getting lost — everyone knows Le Metropole and will be able to give you directions, and there'll still be plenty of people around at that time of night.

Dan: Okay, that's fine.

Jess: I'll be quite late when you arrive, so when you've checked into the hotel, I suggest you get a meal there. The hotel restaurant is very good and they'll still be serving food at that time. And have whatever you like — I'm paying for your room and the meal.

Dan: No! You don't need to do that.

Jess: Yes, I want to. It's the least I can do. I'll sort out the bill when I pick you up on Thursday afternoon.

Dan: Well, I'll buy you a meal later in the holiday.

Jess: All right, then. I'll take you up on that.

Dan: Fine.

Jess: Relax on Thursday morning and walk around town. Perpignan's a lovely place. While you're strolling around, look out for Café Mathis. You might want to try their hot chocolate. It's the best in town. I should be with you at about two and I'll meet you in the foyer at Le Metropole.

Dan: Sounds wonderful. Thanks for organising that. I'm looking forward to seeing you.

Jess: Okay, Dan. And I'm really sorry again. Hope the journey goes well, and I'll see you on Thursday.

Dan: Great. See you then. Bye, Jess.

---

Recording 24b

Extract 1

Interviewer: Now, Mark Harris, your new book includes some opinions on immunisation that are likely to arouse a strong reaction.

Mark: I hope they will! There's an overwhelming picture presented to the public, and that is that immunisation is a safe, scientific procedure which safeguards our health. But this message that is put out by governments, the medical establishment and the media is not supported by fact. Historically, supporters of immunisation have made grandiose claims about its effectiveness, while scientists have distorted the objective evidence to the contrary for fear of going against the mainstream. Very few are prepared to speak out and highlight the findings that much immunisation is not safe in the short term and that the long-term effects of certain forms of immunisation may constitute a major health hazard.

Interviewer: So in your view we should stop immunising all children against disease.

Mark: No, no, not at all. The need for immunisation is closely linked to a child's level of well-being. For a child living in hygienic conditions and receiving proper nutrition, immunisation has a minimal effect on the body's ability to fight off disease. But of course, this doesn't apply to a malnourished child living in insanitary conditions, who will be less able to fight off disease. And also there are all shades of variation between these two extremes in both rich and poor countries.

Extract 2

I first got keen on snowboarding during a skiing holiday in Switzerland when I was about 15. The first couple of hours I spent most of my time on my back. My legs just kept buckling. But it didn't take me long to get fairly good at it, which is the experience most people have. It's no surprise that, apparently, around 80% of people going to ski slopes for the first time take up snowboarding now rather than skiing. I've got to admit, though, that snowboarding has an image problem among the general public. Snowboarders are very committed to their sport, but people have the impression that we spend most of our time sitting around chatting and having a laugh rather than being on the slopes.

There's a great deal of rivalry between skiers and snowboarders, and skiers are typically not very welcoming to snowboarders. I guess it's to do with who snowboards — it's still very much a young person's sport, whereas skiing is for all the family. So snowboarders are viewed as pretty wild and crazy people, who upset the rather sedate feel of the slopes that skiers have always been used to. But they're just going to have to accept it. Without the money that snowboarders bring in, a number of ski resorts will go out of business.

Extract 3

It's always difficult when I tell people that no one's handed their property in. I think most of them are secretly convinced I'm hanging onto lost property for myself or selling it off. I do nothing of the sort, of course! Usually they'll ask me if I'm really sure or say 'Can you have another look for me, please?' It doesn't seem to occur to them that anyone could run off with a coat or a laptop left unattended on a train.

People leave some things behind on trains that you really wouldn't believe. You get a load of clothes and umbrellas, of course, the kinds of things you'd expect. But also carpets, vases, lampshades, ironing boards ... It's not even as if they're things that are cheap and easy to replace.

We've even had animals, as well. We had a huge spider once in a shoebox. I really think that people 'accidentally' leave unusual things like this on the train because they don't know how else to get rid of them. You'd think people would be able to give them away or dispose of them in some other way rather than leaving them behind on trains, wouldn't you?

Extract 4

More and more audioguides are becoming available, which you simply download onto your MP3 player and listen to as you walk around a city. I tested four of these out in my favourite city — Florence.

The first was from City Sounds. I'm afraid I didn't like this. The delivery is terribly deliberate, and an occasional change of pace would have been welcome. The effect was closer to someone reading out a guidebook, in a rather flat style, rather than a friend showing you around.

Frustratingly, it frequently fails to guide you round the interiors of the buildings it takes you to, but wastes time talking about sights that aren't even on the walk. It's professionally produced, though, and considerably cheaper than the others.

The second, Walk and Talk, was much better, in my view. The polished speaker sounded like an enthusiastic old friend, and the information never felt like a lecture.

There's just the right level of detail on the art and architecture you're looking at, and a clever use of a second voice to break in and recount tales about various artists — very entertaining, although some of those stories sound rather far-fetched. The directions are clear, although the music used to accompany you as you walk wasn't to my taste. Perfect for anyone wanting to get to grips with the history and architecture of Florence.

The third guide is ...

Recording 25

Teacher: Thanks, Kate, for showing us Happening. I'm sure there'll be lots of questions about it from students. Sarah, yes, you first.

Sarah: Where did your idea of a newspaper for teenagers come from?

Kate: Well, I used to spend a lot of time reading newspapers when I was at school. But my friends didn't read them much, even though I knew they were concerned about what was going on in the world. So, I suppose the idea of setting up some kind of newspaper for young people came from that time.

Teacher: Hannah?

Hannah: Why did you do it for an online newspaper?

Kate: Well, I did a journalism course at university. I'd also had the opportunity to do a course on website design, and that influenced my decision. It just seemed natural to combine the two, so I designed a prototype of an online newspaper for teenagers. My main motivation was that I wanted to increase young people's awareness of current affairs, but I also realised that there might be a chance of making it a commercial success. I felt that there was a big demand for an online newspaper aimed specifically at teenagers.

Teacher: Sarah, your question.

Sarah: Didn't you need a lot of money to get it started?
Kate: Not really, no. I talked to a couple of university friends, and when the course finished we just went ahead. That's one of the great things about most online business - you don't need huge amounts of money at the outset. But we did need money to live on, of course. We had real difficulty in persuading banks to lend us anything at all. Every bank we approached was sceptical about whether the project would ever make money. But eventually, we managed to borrow some money from parents and we took the decision to work on it for six months. If we weren't making money after that, we'd give the idea up.

Teacher: Can I ask a question here? How do you actually make money when people don't have to pay to access the site?

Kate: All the money comes from advertising. Organisations pay us to put their adverts on the site. When we started we immediately contacted companies, but it was difficult to generate business at first. They were very wary of advertising with us, but as the number of hits we got started to increase -- that's the number of people accessing the site -- the number of companies wanting advertising space went up as well.

Teacher: Okay, thanks. Er ... Hannah, you've got another question?

Hannah: Do you think online newspapers will ever take the place of traditional newspapers?

Kate: I doubt it. Being able to access news online is right for some people, but not others. A lot of people want to be able to read a newspaper on the bus or train, or at home away from their computer. So, no, I think there'll always be a need for traditional newspapers.

Teacher: Any more ... Tom?

Tom: What's been the reaction of teenagers to Happening?

Kate: We average about 20,000 hits a day and the number's steadily growing. We've had an increase of about 50% in the last three months alone. When I talk to young people, they seem generally very enthusiastic about the site. And hundreds of comments get posted on our message board each day.

Tom: And do many people complain about Happening?

Kate: Yes, we get both complaints and praise. In the early days we used to get quite a lot of complaints about our news coverage because it didn't feature young people's perspectives enough. We've tried to take that on board. So, for example, as you know, a recent big news story has been the protests about the location of a new nuclear power station on the east coast. As part of this, we covered what school students had been doing to protest. We also occasionally get complaints about how well the website works. Young people demand very high standards nowadays.

Teacher: Hannah.

Hannah: Are any young people directly involved in producing Happening?

Kate: Yes, young people get the chance to contribute in various ways. For example, we have a reviews section, which is concerned with films, CDs, DVDs and books. All of the reviews are written by young people.

Teacher: And what future do you see for Happening?

Kate: That's a good question. First, I'd like to see it expanding. We've decided to include a section on celebrities, and also do more on science and technology. For that, though, we need more staff, and that means more money. But the recent increase in hits on the website means that we can charge more for advertising space. So we're quite optimistic about that. More generally, though, politicians seem to be growing interested in Happening as a place where young people express their views. If I'm right about this, then young people may be able to have an influence on government policies through Happening.

Teacher: Interesting. Gerry, you've got a question ...
Appendices

Appendix 1: State verbs

See Unit 1.

1 State verbs
- referring to emotions, attitudes and preferences:
  *agree, appreciate, attach, *desire, *doubt, expect, hate, hope, like, love, *prefer, regret
- referring to mental states: anticipate, assume, *believe, consider, expect, feel, find, imagine, *know, realise, think, understand
- referring to senses and perceptions: ache, hear, *notice, see, *smell, sound, *taste

(The verbs marked * are rarely used with continuous tenses, but may be if they refer to actions rather than states.)

2 Verbs with both 'state' and 'action' meanings:
  anticipate, appear, cost, expect, feel, fit, have, imagine, measure, see, think, weigh

3 Verbs that describe what we are doing as we speak:
  acknowledge, admit, concede, consent, deny, guarantee, predict, promise, suggest, swear

Appendix 2: Future in the past

See Unit 2.

The future seen from the past:
As it was such a lovely morning, Emma thought she would walk to work.
I had no idea what was going to happen next.
I couldn’t go to the meeting because I was leaving for Paris that day.
Greg rang to tell me when he would be arriving.
Seeing there was to be no more entertainment, the crowd began to disperse.
It was announced that two new nuclear power stations were to be built by the end of the decade.
I was about to start my lecture when the fire alarm went off.

Appendix 3: Subject noun–verb agreement

See Unit 5.

1 Nouns with a singular form that can be used with either a singular or plural verb (collective nouns):
  army, association, audience, club, college, committee, community, company, crowd, dictionary, enemy, family, government, group, jury, opposition, orchestra, population, press, public, school, university

In addition, the names of specific organisations:
  Apple, the Bank of England, the BBC, Greenpeace, IBM, Sony, the United Nations

2 Nouns that usually have a plural form (and take a plural verb):
  belongings, earnings, goods, necessities, particulars (= information), premises (= building), riches, savings, stairs, surroundings, thanks, jeans, pyjamas, shoes

The nouns police and people always take a plural verb, and the noun staff usually does.

Appendix 4: Countable and uncountable nouns

See Unit 5.

1 Nouns that are usually uncountable:
  advice, applause, assistance, camping, cash, chaos, clothing, conduct, employment, equipment, evidence, furniture, health, homework, information, leisure, luggage, machinery, money, music, parking, pollution, research, scenery, shopping, sightseeing, transport

2 Nouns used uncountably when talking about the whole substance or idea, but countably when talking about units or different kinds:
  beer, coffee, tea, fruit, shampoo, soap, space, washing powder, business, cake, bread, paint, name, news, conservation, (dis)agreement, difficulty, improvement, language, pain, pleasure, protest, sound, space, thought, war

The following nouns are only used countably in the singular:
  education, importance, knowledge, resistance

3 Nouns with different meaning when used countably and uncountably:
  accommodation, competition, glass, grammar, jam, lace, paper, property, room, sight, speech, time, tin, traffic, work

287
Appendix 5: Subject-verb agreement with determiners, quantifiers and number expressions

1. We use a singular verb with:
   • any, none of, the majority of, a lot of, plenty of, all (of), some (of) + an uncountable noun:
     None of the information is very helpful.
   • everyone, everybody, everything (and similar words beginning any-, some- and no-):
     Everyone agrees with me.
   • every or each + a singular noun:
     Every attempt to rescue them has failed.
   • each chapter consists of three sections:
     However, when each follows the noun or pronoun it refers to, the noun / pronoun and verb are plural:
     We each pay a small fee.
   • one of + a plural noun / pronoun:
     One of my brothers lives in Alaska.
   • there are three main characters in the book. One of them comes from Thailand.

2. We use a plural verb with a / the majority of, a number of, a lot of, plenty of, all (of), some (of) + a plural noun / pronoun:
   A majority of the people questioned think that the government is doing a good job. A lot of changes are planned for this part of the city.

3. We can use a singular or plural verb with any of, each of, either of, neither of, none of + a plural noun / pronoun:
   Do you think any of his colleagues support / supports his decision? Neither of my parents is / are particularly musical.
   (However, a singular verb is preferred in formal contexts.)

He plans to spend a year travelling around Australia doing temporary work, before coming back to Scotland to get a proper job. (= real)
Before the meeting proper, I'd like to get your views on the appointment of a new personnel manager. (= the main part of)
And also: concerned, involved, responsible

2. Adjectives which have both gradable (G) and non-gradable (NG) uses with different meanings:
   My music teacher was critical of my piano playing.
   (G = not pleased with it)
   Investing in sources of renewable energy is absolutely critical to the survival of our planet. (NG = very important.)
   It seemed an extremely odd thing to say in an interview.
   (G = strange)
   I noticed he was wearing odd socks. (NG = not matching)
   I like their music, even though it's not very original.
   (G = different)
   Our house is 100 years old and has still got some original features. (NG = from the beginning)
   And also: civil, clean, false, old, particular

3. Adjectives which have both gradable and non-gradable uses with only small differences in meaning between them:
   She didn't go to university – she's never been very academic. (G = good at learning things by studying)
   We were all impressed with his academic achievements. (NG = achievements in studying at college or university)
   The house has a very private garden at the back.
   (G = it can't be seen by many people)
   We had to hire a private plane to get to the island. (NG = used only by a particular group of people)

And also: adult, average, diplomatic, foreign, genuine, guilty, human, individual, innocent, mobile, professional, public, scientific, technical, true, wild

Appendix 6: Adjectives

1. Adjectives that can be used before or after a noun with a different meaning:
   The medicine was supposed to help me sleep, but it had the opposite effect. (= completely different)
   Who owns the house opposite? (= facing; on the other side of the road)

Appendix 7: Patterns after adjectives

1. + n-infinitive:
   I was keen to hear more about his trip.
   And also: (un)able, careful, easy, free, inclined, interested, (un)likely, (im)possible, prepared, quick, slow, welcome, (un)willing 2  + -ing
He was busy cooking when I called him.
I felt awful making her walk all the way.
And also: (usually after the verb feel) awful, bad, comfortable, fantastic, stupid, terrible

3  + in-infinitive or -ing
It was really good to see her again, or... good seeing her again.
And also: crazy, difficult, foolish, (un)happy, mad, nice, safe and (usually after verbs other than feel) awful, awkward, fantastic, stupid, terrible

4  + that-clause:
I was aware that I needed new ideas.
They were angry that I was late.
And also: afraid, alarmed, amazed, annoyed, astonished, certain, concerned, confident, disappointed, glad, (un)happy, pleased, positive, shocked, sorry, sure, thankful, urgent, worried

5  + in-infinitive or -that-clause:
I was greatly relieved that my subsequent book sold well.
or... relieved to find that my subsequent book sold well.
And also: the adjectives in 4, except aware, confident, sure

6  + -ing or that-clause:
I felt bad leaving the children. or... that I was leaving the children.
And also: (usually after the verb feel) awful, awkward, bad, good, guilty, terrible

Appendix 8: (In)transitive verbs, verb + two objects, verb + each other / one another
See Unit 9
Common transitive verbs, intransitive verbs and verbs with two objects:
1 Verbs usually transitive (verb + object):
arrive, avoid, copy, describe, do, enjoy, find, force, get, grab, hit, like, pull, report, see, shock, teach, tell, much, want, warn

2 Verbs usually intransitive (verb + no object):
appear, arise, come, cough, freeze, fall, go, happen, happen, hurried, master, occur, remain, sleep, sneeze, swim, wait

3 Verb + indirect object + direct object:
allow, ask, beat, buy, come, deny, enjoy, fetch, find, fine, forgive, give, guarantee, permit, refuse

4 Verb + direct object + for + indirect object:
(i) book, collect, fix, mend, repair
(ii) build, buy, catch, choose, cook, cut, fetch, find, get, make, order, peer, save (can also be used in verb + indirect object + direct object)

5 Verb + direct object + as + indirect object:
(i) admit, announce, confess, demonstrate, describe, explain, introduce, mention, point out, prove, report, say, suggest
(ii) award, give, hand, lend, offer, owe, pass, show, teach, throw (can also be used in verb + indirect object + direct object)

6 Verb + direct object + for / to + indirect object:
bring, brine, pay, play, post, read, send, sing, tube, write (can also be used in verb + indirect object + direct object)

7 Verb + object + adjective:
same, believe, consider, declare, find, hold, judge, pronounce, prove, report, think

8 Verb + reflexive pronoun / personal pronoun:
She took some deep breaths to compose herself and then walked onto the stage. (= to calm)
Mozart was only 13 when he composed it. (= produced)
He joined the navy at the age of 16, and distinguished himself in the Seven Years’ War. (= did so well that he was admired)
The pills were in different coloured bottles to distinguish them. (= show the difference between)
I don’t need to explain myself to you. (= give reasons for my behaviour)
The procedure was complicated, but she explained it very clearly. (= made it clear)

9 Verb + reflexive pronoun + preposition acclimatise... to, avail... of, brace... for, busy... with, console... with, concern... with, distance... from, establish... to, familiarise... with, impose... on, occupy... with, organise... into, pride... on, rear... away from

Verbs commonly used in the following patterns with each other and one another:
10 Verb + each other / one another:
arrive, avoid, blame, call, complement, face, fight, help, hit, hold, hug, know, (dis)like, love, meet, miss, resemble, respect, see, trust, understand

11 Verb + with + each other / one another:
(dis)agree, argue, coincide, compete, cooperate, get along / on, live, play, work
Appendix 9: Verb + to-infinitive / -ing / bare infinitive

1 Verb + to-infinitive:
agree, aim, ask, convince, decide, decline, demand, fail, guarantee, hesitate, hope, hurry, offer, plan, prepare, pretend, refuse, threaten, volunteer, wait, wish

2 Verb + -ing:
avoid, delay, deny, deserve, envisage, feel like, imagine, miss, recall, revisit, risk

3 Verb + bare infinitive:
modal verbs (e.g. will, could, may), dare, help, need

4 Verb + object + to-infinitive:
advice, allow, believe, cause, command, enable, encourage, entitle, force, invite, order, persuade, remind, show, teach, tell, urge, warn

5 Verb + object + -ing:
catch, feel, find, hear, notice, observe, photograph, prevent, show, watch

Appendix 10: Verbs with different meanings followed by to-infinitive or -ing

See Unit 10.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Verb</th>
<th>+ to-infinitive</th>
<th>+ -ing</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>forget / remember</td>
<td>I'd forgotten to bring my passport.</td>
<td>I don't remember putting my camera on the table.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>I remembered to apply for a visa.</td>
<td>(= to mean that the action comes before the remembering or forgetting)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>go on</td>
<td>We went on to drive towards Mt Rinjani.</td>
<td>I went on watching the sunset until it started to feel cold.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>(= to mean that something is done after something else is finished)</td>
<td>(= to continue)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>mean</td>
<td>I meant to take my camera with me.</td>
<td>It meant flying to Bali.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>(= to say that we intended to do something)</td>
<td>(= to say what a particular attitude or action involves or implies)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>regret</td>
<td>We regret to announce that flight XZ345 to Bali has been cancelled.</td>
<td>I regretted not speaking Bahasa Indonesia.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>(= to say that we are about to do something we are not happy about)</td>
<td>(= to say we are sorry that we did or did not do something)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>stop</td>
<td>We stopped there to admire the amazing sunset behind the mountains.</td>
<td>We stopped talking immediately.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>(= to say why we stop doing something)</td>
<td>(= to say what it is that we stop doing)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>try</td>
<td>I tried to get on a laser flight.</td>
<td>I tried using the camera in my mobile phone.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>(= to say that we attempt to do something)</td>
<td>(= to say we test something to see if it improves a situation)</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Appendix 11: Noun clauses

See Unit 16.

1 Verb + the fact that:
change, discuss, disguise, face, hide, highlights, ignore, overlook, refuse, welcome

2 Noun + of + wh- noun clause:
account, description, discussion, example, idea, issue, knowledge, problem, question, reminder, understanding

3 Verb + object + wh- noun clause:
advise, ask, assure, convince, inform, instruct, persuade, remind, show, teach, tell, warn.
(ask and show don't always have an object before a wh-clause)
It shows us how little we know about wildlife in the area. Can I ask you why the Marsh was left to the NWT?

4 Verb + how- noun clause:
ask, consider, decide, describe, discover, explain, know, remember, reveal, show, tell, understand, wonder
Appendices

Appendix 12: Common conjunctions and sentence connectors

>
See Unit 17.

1 Conjunctions

- time after, as, as long as, before, hardly, no sooner, once, since, when, while (more formally whilst), until (less formally till), whenever
- condition assuming (that), considering (that), even if, given that, if, provided that, providing, unless
- concession / contrast although / though, even though, no matter (what / who / which / how), while (more formally, whilst), whereas, whatever, whichever, wherever, whenever, whoever, however, yet
- exception except (that), only
- purpose in order to, in order that, so as (not) to, so (that), to
- reason as, because, for, in case, in that, insofar as, seeing that, since
- result so that, such that, in such a way that

2 Sentence connectors

- time after, afterward(s), before, earlier, later, meanwhile, in the meantime, previously, simultaneously, subsequently
- concession / contrast all the same, alternatively, anyway (less commonly anyhow; both used mainly in informal speech), by / in contrast, conversely, even so, however, in any case, instead, nevertheless, nonetheless, on the contrary, on the other hand, still, though
- result as a result, because of this, consequently / in consequence, hence, therefore, thus
- adverb above all, in addition, after all, also, as well, besides, further, furthermore, indeed, likewise, moreover, similarly, too, what is more
- adverb especially for example, for instance
- adverb similarly in other words, namely, that is, that is to say
- adverb another, first (ly), first of all, to start / begin with, last (ly), finally, next, then
- adverb all in all, in conclusion, to conclude, to sum up

A few words can be either a conjunction or a sentence connector. Compare:

- I usually go for a run after I've finished work.
  Let's try to finish the meeting by 12:00. After / Afterwards, we can go out and have some lunch. (after as a sentence connector is mainly used in spoken English.)
- I'll write the number down before I forget it.
  She's become much more confident since she went to university. Before, she was really shy.

- I don't often see Marguerite, though she only lives in the next road.
  For your mobile number, I don't know your email address, though.
- Take a warm coat, otherwise you'll get cold.
  I knew you were busy. Otherwise I'd have come earlier.

3 Except (for) is usually used as a preposition, but except (that) can be used as a conjunction meaning 'not including'. Compare: Everyone was wearing fancy dress except (for) Nickie.
  Hugo didn't say much in his letter except (that) he's going on holiday to Spain next month.

4 Hence can be used as a sentence connector, but more often is followed by a phrase giving the result of an action in the previous clause or sentence. Compare: The touch of the country is much more industrialized. Hence, income levels are higher.
  You're broken a small bone in your foot – hence the pain.

Appendix 13: Passive verb forms

>
See Unit 18.

1 The most common passive verb forms are:

Present simple All this land is owned by Mr Harris.
Past simple The cubes were made by Janet.
Present perfect The conference has been arranged by the university.
Past perfect The exam time had been changed by our teacher.
Present continuous I am always being asked for money by James.
Past continuous The lecture was being given by Dr Goodman.
Future simple You will be met at the airport by Miss Turner.
Future perfect The work will have been finished by the builders before the weekend.

2 State verbs not usually made passive: be, become, belong, exist, have (= own), lack, resemble, seem

3 State verbs that can be made passive: believe, intend, know, like, love, need, own, understand, want

4 Verb + in-itative + object (active) / verb + to be + past participle (passive): appear, begin, come, continue, seem, start, tend (with these verbs, active and passive have corresponding meanings: He began to annoy me corresponds to I began to be annoyed; agree, aim, arrange, attempt, hope, refuse, want (with these verbs, active and passive do not have corresponding meanings: I refused to help him does not correspond to He refused to be helped).
5 Verb + -ing + object (active) / verb + being + past participle (passive): avoid, deny, describe, dislike, enjoy, face, hate, (not) imagine, like, love, remember, report, restart, start
6 Verb + object + bare infinitive (active) / be + past participle + to-infinitive (passive): feel, hear, help, make, observe, see (help can also be followed by object + to-infinitive in the active; be can be followed by object + bare infinitive in the active, but is never passive.)
7 Verb + object + -ing (active) / be + past participle + -ing (passive): bring, catch, hear, find, hear, notice, observe, see, send, show
8 Verb + object + to-infinitive (active) / be + past participle + to-infinitive (passive): advise, allow, ask, believe, consider, expect, feel, instruct, invite, mean, order, require, sing, tell, understand
9 Verb + object + to-infinitive (active) / no passive: (can't) hear, hate, like, love, need, prefer, respect, wish
10 Verb + object + complement (active) / be + past participle + complement (passive): (verbs to do with giving someone a particular position) appoint, declare, make, nominate, vote
   (verbs to do with 'naming') call, name, title

Appendix 14: Reporting verbs

See Unit 19.

Reporting verbs followed by the pattern shown. Some verbs can be followed by more than one pattern.
1 Verb + that-clause (usually reporting statements; She agreed that the rule was unfair); add, agree, announce, answer, argue, comment, confirm, deny, emphasize, grumble, guarantee, insist, note, object, observe, point out, protest, protest, remark, refuse, reply, state, swear, think
2 Verb + object + that-clause (He reminded me that it's Hannah's birthday next week); assume, convince, inform, notify, persuade, promise, remind, tell
3 Verb + (object) + that-clause (with these verbs an object is usual, but not always necessary; They warned us that swimming there was dangerous); advise, promise, show, teach, warn
4 Verb + that-clause or verb + object + to-infinitive (the to-infinitive is often to be; They expected that the concert would be cancelled; or They expected the concert to be cancelled): acknowledge, announce, believe, claim, consider, declare, expect, feel, find, pressure, suppose, think, understand
5 Verb + that-clause or verb + to object + that-clause (They complained that my lectures were boring; or They complained to me that my lectures were boring); advise, announce, complain, confess, explain, indicate, mention, propose, recommend, report, reveal, say, suggest, whisper
6 Verb + that-clause or verb + with object + that-clause (She joked that she had lost their presents; or She joked with the children that she had lost their presents): agree, argue, check, commiserate, confirm, disagree, joke
7 Verb + to-infinitive (He offered to give us a lift to the airport); apply, offer, refuse, renew, volunteer
8 Verb + object + to-infinitive (She told me to phone her at any time); advise, allow, ask, call on, command, encourage, forbid, force, instruct, invite, order, persuade, recommend, remind, request, teach, tell, urge, warn
9 Verb + object + to-infinitive or verb + object + to-infinitive (If she asked to wait (~ I asked if I could wait) or I asked her to wait); ask, beg, expect
9 Verb + to-infinitive or verb + that-clause (He decided to go to Greece; or He decided that he would go to Greece); agree, claim, decide, demand, expect, guarantee, hope, promise, propose, request, swear, threaten, vow
10 Verb + object + to-infinitive or verb + object + that-clause (He advised me that it would be cheaper; or He advised me that it would be cheaper to travel by train); advise, order
11 Verb + -ing or verb + that-clause (She regretted hearing the course; She regretted that she had started the course); admit, advise, deny, mention, propose, recommend, regret, report, suggest
12 Verb + that-clause with should or the present subjunctive (They proposed that Sociology (should) be taught as an undergraduate subject at the university); advise, ask, beg, command, demand, direct, insist, instruct, intend, order, prefer, propose, recommend, request, require, stipulate, suggest, urge, warn

We can also use a that-clause with should or the present subjunctive after nouns related to these verbs, such as advice, command, demand, direction, insistence, instruction, proposal.

They put forward the proposal that Sociology (should) be taught as an undergraduate subject at the university.
Appendix 15: Substitution

1. Verbs commonly followed by so (substituting for a clause):
   - be afraid (→ expressing regret), appear / seem (after it), assume, believe, expect, guess, hope, imagine, presume, say, suppose, suspect, tell (with an indirect object), think
   - Verbs not followed by so (substituting for a clause): accept, admit, agree, be certain, doubt, hear, know, promise, suggest, be sure

2. Verbs, nouns and adjectives after which we can leave out to (Do you think Paul will come? He promised to):
   - Verbs: agree, ask, begin, forget, promise, refuse, sure, try
   - Nouns: chance, idea, opportunity, promise, suggestion
   - Adjectives: afraid, delighted, determined, frightened, willing

3. Verbs after which we can’t leave out to (Would you like to be a fire officer? I’d hate to):
   - advise, afford, be able, choose, deserve, expect, hate, hope, intend, love, mean, need, prefer
   - These verbs must have a complement; that is, a word or phrase that completes their meaning. I can’t afford a car (a car is the complement) but I can’t afford a house.

4. Common omissions and changes to verbs in order to avoid repeating words in a previous clause or sentence:
   - auxiliary + main verb = auxiliary
     - He says he has finished, but I don’t think he has finished.
   - auxiliary + auxiliary = main verb
     - I hadn’t been invited, but my sister had been invited.
   - auxiliary + main verb = auxiliary (+ auxiliary)
     - I could have been arrested or we could have been arrested.
   - (do) + main verb = do
     - David goes running every morning, and I do, too.
   - be (+ auxiliary / main verb) = be or modal + be
     - The cat’s asleep in the kitchen. B: It usually is.
   - Amn’t’s last again.
   - She said she might be (or informally she might)
     - Are Tom and Mair staying overnight?
   - Yes, I think they are (or informally they will).

Appendix 16: It and there

1. Verbs used in the following patterns with introductory it as subject:
   - it + verb + object + to-infinitive clause: do, help, hurt, pay
   - it + verb + object + to-infinitive clause: amaze, annoy, frighten, hurt, scare, shock, surprise, upset, worry
   - We can use it + take + object + to-infinitive clause when we say what is or was needed in a particular activity:
     - It took (them) a week to mend our roof.
   - it + verb + that-clause: appear, come about, emerge, follow, seem, transport, turn out
   - Alternatives with the that-clause in initial position are not possible:
     - It turned out that I was wrong. not That I was wrong turned out.
   - it + verb + object that-clause: dawn on, hit, strike (all meaning ‘occur to’); and also the verbs listed above for the pattern it + verb + object + to-infinitive clause.

2. Verbs used in the following reporting patterns with introductory it as subject:
   - it + passive verb + that-clause: agree, allege, announce, assume, believe, calculate, claim, consider, decide, demonstrate, discover, establish, estimate, expect, feel, find, hope, intend, know, mention, plan, propose, recommend, reveal, say, show, suggest, suppose, think, understand (but not: encourage, inform, persuade, praise, remind, tell, warn)
   - it + passive verb + wh-clause: discover, establish, explain, find, know, reveal, show, understand
   - These verbs can also be used in the pattern it + passive verb + that-clause.

3. Verbs used in the following patterns with introductory it as object:
   - verb + it + that / if or wh-clause: can’t bear, hate, like, love, love, can’t stand
   - verb + it + if or wh-clause: dislike, enjoy, prefer, understand
   - verb + (ii) + that-clause: accept, admit, deny, guarantee, mention
   - verb + it + adjective + that / if or when-clause: believe, consider, feel, find (discover from experience), make, think
   - verb + it + as + adjective + that / if or when-clause: accept, regard, see, take (→ interpret something in a particular way), view

293
Many other verbs that can be followed by a that, wh, if, or to-infinitive clause are not used with introductory it as object: argue, discover, emphasize, notice, predict, recall, remember.

4 Common expressions with it's or there's no:
it's no secret that, it's no surprise that, it's no use / good + -ing, it's no coincidence / accident that, it's no longer necessary to, it's no bad thing to, it's no doubt true that, it's no double case that, it's no exaggeration to say that, there's no doubt that, there's no chance / denying that, there's no choice / alternative but to, there's no chance / hope of + -ing, there's no need to, there's no point in + -ing, there's no question of + -ing, there's no reason to, there's no harm in + -ing

Appendix 17: Complex prepositions

> See Unit 24.

1 Two-word prepositions:
- ending for as far as, as near as
- ending from as distant from, with effect from
- ending of by means of, by virtue of, by way of, for lack of, for want of, in aid of, in case of, in charge of, in danger of, in favour of, in front of, in lieu of, in light of, in need of, in place of, in respect of, at risk of, in search of, in spite of, in terms of, in view of, on account of, on behalf of, on grounds of, on top of, as a result of, for the sake of, in the case of, in the event of, on the part of, with the exception of, on the strength of
- ending on as opposed to, by reference to, in addition to, in contrast to, in reference to, in regard to, in relation to, with regard to, with reference to, with respect to
- ending with: at variance with, in accordance with, in comparison with, in compliance with, in conformity with, in concert with, in line with, in touch with

Appendix 18: Verb + preposition - common patterns

> See Unit 24.

Some verbs can be used in more than one pattern.

1 Verb + object + prepositional phrase (I grabbed the boy by the hand):
- protect / insure ... against, dismiss / condemn ... as, (re) schedule / exchange ... for, isolate / protect ... from, implant / insert ... into, rob / deprive ... of, force / feed ... on, explain ... to, associate / confide / discuss ... with

With a few verbs we change preposition if we change the word order: Our nurse issued us with a reading list, or Our nurse issued a reading list to us.

Other verbs like this: present ... with / to, entrust ... with / to, supply ... with / to (as for), trust ... with / to, blame ... for / on

2 Verb + preposition + object + preposition + object (They collaborated with Russian scientists on the research):
- disagree / argue / quarrel with ... about / over, consist / depend / rely on ... for, complain / boast to ... about, refer to ... as, apologize / appeal / apply to ... for, react / respond to ... with, compete / contend with ... for 3 Verb + preposition + -ing (When he feared his driving test he reacted by kicking the car):

- inspire / worry about, end / start by, apologize / see for, benefit / refrain from, persist / succeed in, rush into, disappoint / dream of, concentrate / insist on, admit to, confess to, go ahead / help with 4 Verb + object + preposition + -ing (She accused me of copying her work):

- advise ... against, blame / prosecute / thank / praise ... for, discourage / prevent ... from, talk / trick ... too, suspect ... of, congratulate ... on

5 Verb + preposition + subject + -ing (My place at university depends on me getting high grades in my exams): or ... depends on my getting high grades: worry / think / know about, process / laugh at / show, arrive / come / follow from, result in, speak / (dis)approve of, depend / count / insist on, rely on, lead to, end / start / finish with Appendix 15: Phrasal verbs – position of objects

- See Unit 24.

1. Phrasal verbs that can be used transitively or intransitively with the same meaning: answer back, call back, clear away, cover up, help out, take over, tidy away, wash up

2. Phrasal verbs that can be used transitively or intransitively with a different meaning: break into, cut out, hold on, look out, look up, pick up, split up, turn in, wind up

3. Phrasal verbs whose object can go before or after the particle: bring about, check over, clean up, drink up, gather up, get down, leave out, make up, mess up, shoot down, sort out, throw away, try out, use up, wake up

4. Phrasal verbs whose object must go after the particle(s): account for, act on, approve of, bump into, call on, check into, flick through, look after, look around, provide for, result from, run into, stick at, take after, take against; do away with, get away with, grow out of, look out over, make up for, send away for

5. Phrasal verbs whose object must go before the particle (i.e. between the verb and the particle): hear out, order about, pull to, push to, shut up, stand up, tell apart

6. Three-word phrasal verbs with two objects, one after the verb and the other after the particle: help on/off with, set off against, talk out of, take out of / on, take up on

- fondness for, to be proud of, to be ashamed of, to be shamed about / as
- nouns which take a preposition where their related verb does not: to admire – adoration for, to answer – answer to, to attack – attack on, to ban – ban on, to damage – damage to, to decrease – decrease of / in / by, to delay – delay in, to demand – demand for, to discuss – discussion about, to fear – a fear of, to ignore – ignorance of, to improve – improvement in / on, to influence – influence on, to interview – interview with, to lack – lack of, to prove – prove of, to question – question about / of, to reduce – reduction in, to solve – solution to, to support – support for

Examples of nouns in the patterns shown:

- nouns + preposition + noun or noun + preposition + -ing: approval for, change from, focus on, interest in, opposition to, protection about / of, sign of

- nouns + preposition + noun: damage to, decrease in, demand for, factor behind, increase in

3. Examples of nouns in the patterns shown:

- nouns + of + -ing or noun + of + -ing in a similar meaning (usually after -ly): aim, idea, opportunity, opinion, plan

- nouns + of + -ing or noun + of + -ing with a different meaning: chance, sense, way

- nouns + of + -ing: cost, difficulty, effect, fear, likelihood, possibility, probability, problem, prospect, risk, sign

- noun + of + -ing: ability, attempt, concern, decision, desire, determination, failure, inability, permission, proposal, reason, refusal, reluctance, (un)willingness, with

Many of these nouns can be used with other prepositions + -ing (attempt at -ing, reason for -ing)

4. Adjective + preposition: expressing feelings and opinions: amazed at / by, ashamed of, bored with, confident of, content with, crazy about, critical of, enthusiastic about, famous for, full of, impressed by / with, indifferent to, interested in, interested in, jealous of, keen on, nervous about / of, proud of, satisfied with, scared of, shocked at / by, surprised at / by, tired of, upset about, weary of, worried about

5. Adjective + preposition: describing different meanings: afraid of / for, angry / annoyed / furious about / with, answerable for / to, anxious about / for, bad / good at / for, concerned about / with / for, disappointed with / at / about / in / on, frightened of / for, good about / to / with, glad for / of, pleased about / as / with, right about / for, sorry about / for, unfair of / on, wrong about / of

Appendix 20: Prepositions after nouns and adjectives

- See Unit 25.

1. Examples of nouns in the following groups:

- nouns usually followed by the same prepositions as their related verb or adjective (after to be):
  - accuse – accusation of, to (dis)agree – (dis)agreement with / about / on, to amaze – amazement at, to annoy – annoyance about / at / with, to be anxious – anxiety about, to apologise – apology for, to associate – association with, to be aware – awareness of, to believe – belief in, to be bored – boredom with, to complain – complaint about, to contribute – contribution to, to depart – departure from, to be grateful – gratitude for, to insist – insistence on, to insure – insurance against, to object – objection to, to be satisfied – satisfaction with, to succeed – success in, to worry – worry about

- nouns usually followed by different prepositions from their related adjective (after to be):
  - to be fond of

- to be proud of
- to be ashamed of
- to be shamed about / as
CD Tracklist

CD1

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Recording</th>
<th>CD track</th>
<th>Accents</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>1</td>
<td>2</td>
<td>Southern English</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2</td>
<td>3</td>
<td>Southwest English</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>3a</td>
<td>4</td>
<td>Borland residents speak with a slight southwest English accent.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>3b</td>
<td>5</td>
<td>Southern English</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>4</td>
<td>6</td>
<td>Liverpool</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>5</td>
<td>7</td>
<td>The interviewer has a Central English accent, while Nazim's accent is UK Asian.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>6a</td>
<td>8</td>
<td>Speaker 1 has a Central English accent.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>6b</td>
<td>9</td>
<td>Southern English</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>7</td>
<td>10</td>
<td>David has a Scottish accent.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>8</td>
<td>11</td>
<td>Southern English</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>9</td>
<td>12</td>
<td>Lynn has a Canadian accent.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>10</td>
<td>13</td>
<td>Simon has a Northern Irish accent.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>11</td>
<td>14</td>
<td>Southern English</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>12</td>
<td>15</td>
<td>Southern English</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>13</td>
<td>16</td>
<td>Liverpool</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>14a</td>
<td>17</td>
<td>Mark has a slight South African accent.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>14b</td>
<td>18</td>
<td>Southern English</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

CD2

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Recording</th>
<th>CD track</th>
<th>Accents</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>15</td>
<td>2</td>
<td>Both speakers have Irish accents.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>16</td>
<td>3</td>
<td>All speakers have Welsh accents.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>17</td>
<td>4</td>
<td>The first speaker has an Australian accent, while the second voice is from New Zealand.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>18</td>
<td>5</td>
<td>Northern English</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>19a</td>
<td>6</td>
<td>Southwest English</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>19b</td>
<td>7</td>
<td>Southern English</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>20a</td>
<td>8</td>
<td>Alison's accent is from Newcastle-upon-Tyne, while Ben speaks with a northern English accent.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>20b</td>
<td>9</td>
<td>Southern English</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>21</td>
<td>10</td>
<td>Northern English</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>22</td>
<td>11</td>
<td>US accent</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>23</td>
<td>12</td>
<td>Australian</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>24a</td>
<td>13</td>
<td>Scottish</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>24b</td>
<td>14</td>
<td>Southern English</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>25</td>
<td>15</td>
<td>Northern English</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Grammar for CAE and Proficiency

How can you be confident that you have covered all the grammar for the CAE and Proficiency exams? Is it possible to improve your listening skills at the same time? Cambridge Grammar for CAE and Proficiency provides complete coverage of the grammar needed for both exams – and gives you plenty of exam practice as well. It also gives you the chance to hear grammar being used in realistic situations thus making it easier to remember.

- Presents grammar in a listening context
- Contains clear and reliable grammar explanations with lots of examples
- Practises a range of exam tasks from both CAE and Proficiency exams
- Reviews quickly the grammar you should already know
- Includes a helpful grammar glossary

Cambridge Grammar for CAE and Proficiency is informed by the Cambridge International Corpus and the Cambridge Learner Corpus to ensure that grammar is presented in genuine contexts and the book covers the errors students really make.

We also recommend: