What is an idiom?

An idiom is a group of words that has a completely different meaning from the meaning of each word on its own. So, for example, although you might know the words storm and teacup it would be almost impossible to guess the meaning of the idiom a storm in a teacup, which is a situation where people get very upset and angry over something that is unimportant, e.g. Don’t worry about this silly row with the boss – it’s just a storm in a teacup. Similarly, knowing the verb to go and the noun song won’t really help you to understand the meaning of the idiom to go for a song which is when something is sold very cheaply, e.g. As no one else at the auction seemed interested in the painting, it went for a song. Idioms really have to be learnt as complete phrases, each with its own unique (often unexpected) meaning.

Test Your Idioms contains sixty tests covering over 900 of the most common and useful idioms in English. The book is divided into six sections:

- Idioms using adjectives
- Idioms using nouns
- Idioms using verbs
- Idioms using prepositions
- ‘Special category’ idioms
- ‘Special topics’ idioms.

To make the book more challenging and more fun, there is a wide variety of tests, ranging from matching idioms and definitions, multiple-choice exercises, crosswords, gap-filling exercises and true–false exercises where you have to decide whether an idiom is used correctly or not. In addition, useful notes are given after most tests, including hints on learning words, suggestions for other idioms that can be used, and notes on the origins of certain idioms. To further ‘fix’ the meaning of the idiom, wide use is made of drawings and cartoons. The last test in each section is intended as a revision exercise for that section.
A key is included at the back of the book which not only gives the correct answers but also, when not included in the actual test, gives a detailed explanation of each idiom.

It is hoped that students using this book will find the learning of idioms both stimulating and enjoyable.

Section 1: Idioms using adjectives

This section looks at the use of adjectives as idioms.

Some idioms are single words using parts of the body, e.g. brainy (intelligent), nosy (inquisitive) and cheeky (rude).

Other idioms use compound adjectives, e.g. light-fingered (likely to steal), absent-minded (forgetful) and tight-fisted (mean).

You can also have adjectival phrases, e.g. full of beans (very lively), long in the tooth (old) and wet behind the ears (young and inexperienced).

This section also examines common adjective–noun collocations, e.g. a quick temper (easily angered), a narrow escape (only just avoid danger) and more idiomatic adjective–noun combinations, e.g. a big shot (a very important person), a dead heat (a draw in a race) and a fat chance (no chance at all).

There is also a test on adjective–adjective combinations, e.g. spick and span (neat and tidy) and the section ends with idioms using specific adjectives – good, bad, big, dead, hard, high, hot, long, short and thin.

Some examples are:

put in a good word for someone (say something good about someone, especially when they are looking for a job) flog a dead horse (waste your time doing something) get into hot water (get into trouble)

"Stop being so self-conscious love. Lots of men are are bit thin on top."

It is possible to tell the age of a horse by looking at its teeth. Also, the older the horse gets, the more its gums will recede and the longer its teeth will appear to be (long in the tooth).
3 Describing moods, states and feelings

Fill in the missing idioms in the sentences below. To help you there is an explanation of the missing idioms after each sentence. Choose from the following:

bedridden  broke  broken-hearted  dead beat down-in-the-dumps  hard of hearing  ill at ease  keyed up laid up  off-colour  on the dole  peckish scared stiff  tongue-tied

1. She was really down in the dumps when she didn’t get that job at the BBC. She’d really set her heart on it. (depressed, unhappy)
2. He was very shy and always felt _____________ when meeting new people. (awkward and uneasy)
3. My uncle has been _____________ for nearly a year. To be honest, I don’t think he’ll ever work again. (unemployed, out of work)
4. My aunt has been _____________ for years. (too weak to leave her bed)
5. Although he was a great actor, he sometimes got very _____________ when speaking to his fans. (found it hard to speak easily)
6. You haven’t got anything to eat, have you, Sue? I’m feeling a bit _____________! (hungry)
7. Speak up! I’m a bit _____________! (deaf)
8. I’m _____________ at the moment, Kevin. You couldn’t lend me £20 until the weekend, could you? (without money)
9. Are you all right, James? You look a bit ___________. (unwell, ill)

10. My sister was ____________ when her boyfriend finished with her. (very sad)

11. He was ____________ for a month after his car accident. (in bed)

12. After spending the whole day walking around the shops in London, we were ____________. (exhausted)

13. I always get a bit ____________ before making a speech in public. (worried and nervous)

14. I'm ____________ of flying – especially taking-off and landing. (terrified, really frightened)

Although both down in the dumps and broken-hearted mean the person is very sad and depressed, broken-hearted usually means you are very sad because someone you love has died or left you.

Both bedridden and laid up mean you are in bed through illness, etc. but bedridden is more permanent and is often associated with someone being chronically ill or very old.
A Complete the definitions below with a suitable idiom. Choose from the following:

dog-eared  eye-catching  few and far between fishy  frosty  hair-raising  long-winded second-hand  whole-hearted

1. If your visits to the cinema are very few and far between, this means you don’t go there very often – your visits are very infrequent.

2. If something is a bit ____________________, then there is something not quite right about it. (You suspect that something is wrong.)

3. If something is ____________________, it is very frightening.

4. If you give someone your ____________________ support, this means you support them totally.

5. A ____________________ welcome is a very unfriendly one.

6. If a speech is ____________________, it is usually boring and goes on for too long.

7. If you buy something ____________________(e.g. a car), this means that it is not new. (Someone has owned it before.)

8. If a book is ____________________, the corners of the pages have been folded down, usually because it has been read a lot.

9. An ____________________ design is one that grabs your attention because it is attractive, unusual, etc.
Now complete the following sentences using five of the idioms already listed.

1. His lecture was very ___________________ and at least half the students walked out before the end of it.

2. The prime minister got a very ___________________ welcome when he visited a hospital in Liverpool two days after announcing health spending cuts.

3. You can tell lots of people have read this Harry Potter book. It's really ___________________.

4. Since my parents moved to Wales, my visits to them have been very ___________________.

5. There's something very ___________________ about this free offer. It's just too good to be true!

It certainly was a hair-raising experience!

When you are frightened, your hair sometimes stands on end, thus (hair-raising).
When you fold the corner of a page in a book, it resembles a dog's ear, (dog-eared).
Frost is very cold, so a frosty welcome would be a cold one.
5 Adjective + noun combinations 1

The expression Hobson's choice refers to Tobias Hobson who lived in Cambridge during the sixteenth century. He owned a stable and used to hire out horses. However, he only allowed his customers to choose the horse nearest the stable door – the one that had run the least recently. So, in effect, the customers couldn't choose their horse at all.

Section 2: Idioms using nouns

This section looks at the use of nouns as idioms.

It starts with common nouns to describe people – either single nouns or compound nouns. These can be positive, e.g. a whizz kid (someone with lots of modern ideas, energy and enthusiasm and who achieves a lot while still young) or negative, e.g. a busybody (someone who always wants to know about other people’s private lives).

There are idioms based on phrasal verbs, e.g. a break-in (burglary) and a tailback (long line of traffic), as well as fairly abstract single noun idioms, e.g. an eyesore (something ugly to look at) and a snag (a hidden problem or difficulty).

Compound nouns are also examined, e.g. a busman’s holiday (a holiday spent doing the same work as you would do in your job) and a stag party (an all-male party for someone getting married).

There are also idioms based on noun phrases, e.g. a bolt from the blue (a sudden and unexpected event) and a flash in the pan (something that is suddenly popular but only lasts for a short while).

This section ends by looking at pairs of nouns, e.g. flesh and blood (members of your own family) plus specific nouns used in idiomatic phrases – end, mind, point, line, word, way and time.

Some examples are:

be at a loose end (not have anything to do)

drop someone a line (write a letter to someone) slip one’s mind (forget)

‘I hear there’s a 200-metre tailback!’

Section 3: Idioms using verbs

This section concentrates on the use of verbs as idioms.

Certain verbs are nearly always followed by certain nouns. This section starts by looking at some common verb–noun collocations where the same verb is used for several nouns, e.g. break (your leg, the ice), catch (a cold, fire) and lose (your temper, face).

More idiomatic verb–noun combinations are presented next, e.g. get the sack (lose your job), hit the sack (go to bed) and spill the beans (reveal secret information).

The rest of the section concentrates on the most common verbs used in idioms, i.e. give, take, break, have, make, bring, come, go, get, keep, pull, put and turn.

Some examples are:

give someone the cold shoulder (ignore someone)

take someone for a ride (deceive someone in order to get money from them)

have a lump in one’s throat (feel very emotional and close to tears)

make a mountain out of a molehill (exaggerate a situation)

keep a straight face (stop oneself from laughing)

pull someone’s leg (tease someone)

Something’s put the wind up him!

Verb + noun combinations 1

Two out of the three nouns (in brackets) can go with each verb to form idioms. Underline the noun which does not form an idiom.

1. break (the news, the ice, the time)
2. call (the shots, someone’s bluff, the handle)
3. do (a speech, wonders, the trick)
4. get (the message, the bacon, the sack)
5. go (public, places, one’s goat)
6. have (words, pieces, kittens)
7. hit (the boat, the sack, the jackpot)
8. jump (the gun, the traffic, the queue)
9. make (a move, a bomb, steam)
10. play (the roof, second fiddle, the fool)
11. pull (strings, the beans, one’s weight)
12. run (riot, the gauntlet, reason)
13. see (the ropes, the light, the sights)
14. take (the plunge, the biscuit, the bucket)
15. throw (a party, the fence, a fit)

Short verb + noun combinations are very common in idiomatic English. It is best to learn each one as a phrase, rather than trying to remember the verb and noun separately. Jump the gun is a reference to a runner starting a race before the gun goes off.

Section 4: Idioms using prepositions

This section looks at idioms that begin with or contain a preposition.

Certain prepositions occur more frequently in idioms than others, namely at, by, for, in, on, off and out of.

Most of the examples given here are preposition–noun/noun phrase combinations. It is perhaps worth pointing out the difference between the literal meaning of a preposition–noun phrase and the idiomatic meaning. A typical example is the following:

When the lights went out we were in the dark.

I knew nothing about the plan. I was completely in the dark.

The first example is literal and means 'being without light'. The second example is idiomatic and means 'I was kept ignorant. I was not told anything'.

Here are other examples of idioms found in this section:

by a hair's breadth (very narrowly, e.g. She missed having an accident by a hair's breadth.)

in deep water (be in trouble) off the record (not official, e.g. You can't print what I say – it's off the record.)

on the dot (be precise, on time)

out of sorts (slightly ill)

Feeling out of sorts

Section 5: ‘Special category’ idioms

This section looks at special categories of idioms, that is idioms which are linked either by subject area or structure.

It starts by examining idioms connected with parts of the body. These are perhaps the most common and numerous of all idioms. Indeed, there seems to be an idiom for almost every part of the body, from the brain to the tongue! Examples are: get off on the wrong foot (make a bad start) and cost an arm and a leg (be very expensive).

Next are idioms to do with colour, e.g. be black and blue (be covered with bruises), paint the town red (have a good time) and idioms to do with animals, e.g. have butterflies in one’s stomach (be very nervous) and as the crow flies (to travel in a straight, direct line from one place to the other).

Similes are another common feature of idiomatic English where one thing is compared with another using either ‘as ... as’ or ‘like’. These comparisons are often very difficult to guess (e.g. as keen as mustard; as dead as a doornail) and have to be learnt by heart. Idioms with ‘like’ are slightly more difficult to understand, e.g. like a bear with a sore head (be in a bad mood).

This section ends with a test on proverbs. Although not so common nowadays as they used to be, they are still used widely and worth knowing. Proverbs usually contain a wise message or moral, e.g. Beggars can’t be choosers (if you are in need, you can’t have what you want – you have to accept what is given to you).

‘Jack’s always had green fingers, you know!’
41 Parts of the body idioms 1

Legend has it that a rare white elephant in ancient Thailand automatically became the king's property. It was considered sacred and never put to work. The king didn't always keep such elephants, however. If someone displeased him, he would give them a white elephant as a gift, knowing that the animal would be so expensive to keep that it would eventually ruin its owner. To catch someone red-handed probably refers to the discovery of a murderer so soon after committing the crime that blood is still on his or her hands.

Section 5: ‘Special category’ from 10
Section 5: ‘Special category’ idioms
Section 6: ‘Special topics’ idioms

This is the last section in the book and it concentrates on topic-based idioms, such as idioms to do with health and illness, money, emotions, food, countries and places, crime, movement and travel.

Here are some examples:

be fighting fit (be very healthy)

feel under the weather (feel slightly ill)

be rolling in it (be very rich; have lots of money)

be hopping mad (be very angry)

go as red as a beetroot (to blush)

go Dutch (share the costs, especially at a restaurant)

cook the books (falsify the bookkeeping in order to steal money)

off the beaten track (somewhere that is not very easy to reach)

The book ends with one test using idioms as responses, i.e. idioms you use when reacting to something someone has said, e.g. You’re kidding!

Finally, the last test is a light-hearted look at idioms used in jokes and cartoons.

‘She must be rolling in it.’

1 Beggars can’t be choosers. (If you are in need, you can’t have what you want – you have to accept what is given to you.)
2 Better late than never. (It is preferable that something should happen late than not at all.)
3 Still waters run deep. (Reserved, quiet people often have deep feelings.)
4 Let sleeping dogs lie. (To not talk about things which have caused problems in the past; to leave a situation as it is rather than change it, in case by doing so you cause problems.)
5 Look before you leap. (You say this to advise someone to think about possible problems before doing something.)
6 First come, first served. (The people who ask for something first will be the ones who get it when there is not enough to go around.)
7 Nothing ventured, nothing gained. (You can’t achieve anything without taking risks.)
8 No smoke without fire. (There is nearly always a basis for a rumour, no matter how untrue it appears.)
B

1 Actions speak louder than words.
   (What people do is more important and effective than what they say; people judge you on what you do rather than on what you say.)

2 Don't count your chickens before they're hatched. (You should wait until a good thing you are expecting has actually happened before making plans about it.)

3 Strike while the iron is hot. (Do something immediately, while you have a very good chance of success.)

4 Once bitten, twice shy. (If something you have done has turned out badly, then you are unlikely to try it again.)

5 Make hay while the sun shines.
   (Make use of an opportunity while it is available. Similar to strike while the iron is hot.)

6 One good turn deserves another.
   (If someone does something nice for you, then in return you should do something nice for them.)

7 A miss is as good as a mile.
   (Failing to do something when you almost succeeded is really no better than failing badly.)

8 Too many cooks spoil the broth.
   (If too many people try to work on the same piece of work then the chances are they will spoil it or do a very bad job; too many people trying to do the same job will get in each other's way.)

9 A bird in the hand is worth two in the bush. (It is not worth giving up something you already have for only the possibility of getting something better.)

10 Where there's a will there's a way.
   (If you want something badly enough, you will find a way of getting or achieving it.)
