Danny Lee and Ben Green worked in a bank. They were good friends.

On Friday Danny said, ‘I’m not very happy. On Wednesday I broke a cup. On Thursday I lost my watch. I liked it very much. I’m so unlucky. Am I going to find my watch?’

‘Go and see Mrs Mott,’ said Ben. ‘She’s a fortune-teller. She knows everything.’
On Saturday at three o’clock, Danny visited Mrs Mott. She looked into a big glass ball.

‘Aha!’ she said. ‘You’re going to find some money in the park this afternoon.’

‘Am I going to find my watch?’ asked Danny.

‘Yes, but it’s in a dark, dark place ... ‘ said Mrs Mott. ‘And I can see an old friend. You’re going to meet this old friend again.’
Danny went to the park. He found a red purse beside the fountain. There was a lot of money in the purse.

‘Mrs Mott was right!’ said Danny. He looked inside the purse for a name and an address. He found two cinema tickets. There was no name or address.

‘I’m going to take this purse to the police station,’ he thought.
1. Look at the pictures and write the sentences. Start each sentence with You are going to ... Here are the words you are going to need.

- in a cupboard
- in a bag
- under Danny’s bed
Danny walked into the police station. ‘I’ve found a purse,’ he said.
The policeman wrote everything in a large book. He wrote down Danny’s name and address, and the address and telephone number of the bank.

‘I found some money,’ thought Danny, ‘but I didn’t meet an old friend. Am I going to find my watch?’
Lucy Scott lived near the park. Saturday was her birthday. She was 18. Her aunt gave her two cinema tickets. Lucy put them in her purse. Then she went to the park with her dog, Sam. Sam saw a cat and chased it. Lucy chased Sam and she dropped her purse beside the fountain.
On Saturday at two o’clock Lucy went to see Mrs Mott. ‘I’m very unhappy!’ said Lucy. ‘I’ve lost my purse!’ She told Mrs Mott her story. ‘Am I going to find my money and my cinema tickets, Mrs Mott?’

Mrs Mott looked at Lucy’s left hand. ‘Yes, you are!’ she said. ‘And you’re going to meet an old friend, too.’

______ lost my purse.
On Monday Danny had lunch with Ben.

‘I went to see Mrs Mott,’ said Danny. ‘She said: You’re going to find some money, and you’re going to meet an old friend. She was right! I found a red purse. I gave it to a policeman. But I didn’t meet an old friend!’

A young girl listened to Danny. ‘I’m going to get that money,’ she thought.
The girl went to the police station. ‘I’ve lost a red purse,’ she said to a policeman.

‘What was in the purse?’ asked the policeman.

But the girl did not know.

Then Lucy came in. ‘I’ve lost a red purse,’ she said. ‘There were two cinema tickets and some money in it.’ The policeman gave Lucy her purse. He gave her Danny’s address at the bank, too.
On Monday afternoon Lucy went to the bank.

‘Danny?’ Lucy said. ‘Danny Lee! We went to school together!’

‘Lucy!’ Danny said. ‘You’re Lucy Scott.’

‘Danny, you found my purse. The policeman gave me your name and address,’ said Lucy. ‘It’s good to see you again. When do you stop work?’

‘Five o’clock,’ said Danny. ‘What time is it now? I’ve lost my watch.’

‘It’s five to five. Let’s have tea,’ said Lucy.

Lucy said, ‘I went to see a fortune-teller and the fortune-teller said: ‘You are going to find your purse and meet an old friend.’

‘What’s her name?’ asked Danny.

‘Mrs Mott,’ said Lucy.

‘I went to see Mrs Mott, too,’ said Danny. ‘She said: You are going to find some money and you are going to meet an old friend.’

Lucy and Danny both laughed. ‘Let’s go to the cinema on Saturday,’ said Lucy. ‘You found the tickets!’
On Saturday evening, Danny had a shower and washed his hair.

‘I’m going to see Lucy,’ he thought. He put on his clothes. Then he started to comb his hair. He dropped his comb. He knelt down to get it, and saw his watch under the bed! ‘Mrs Mott said: Your watch is in a dark, dark place. She was right!’ said Danny. ‘Thank you, Mrs Mott!’ Then he put on his watch and went to meet Lucy.
Many fortune-tellers look at the lines on people’s hands. The lines on each person’s hand are different!

Fortune-tellers look at the shape of your fingers, too. Are they long or short? Are they thick or thin? And is your hand hard or soft, warm or cold? Fortune-tellers look at your hand and know about you.
Here is a picture of a hand. Look at the lines. Look at your hand. Can you find your heart line, head line and life line?

These three lines tell you different things about you, your family and your friends. Are you a happy person or are you sad? Are you clever or not? Are you going to have a long life or not? Do you love your family and your friends?
Some fortune-tellers have a glass ball. This fortune-teller has one. She looks into the glass ball. What does she see?

Sometimes the ball is dark and she cannot see anything. Sometimes she sees pictures in the ball. She sees happy pictures and sad pictures, too. She does not usually tell people about the sad things because she wants people to be happy.
