The Regata Storica started in 1489, when the beautiful Caterina Cornaro, wife of the King of Cyprus, renounced her Cypriot throne in favor of Venice. The people of Venice welcomed her with a parade of elaborately-decorated gondolas, in a rainbow of popping colors. Every year since, the spirit of 1489 is recaptured in those world-famous canals when the famous Regata is repeated.

Our Cornaro Necklace is the essence of Venice, with the revelry of the Regata channeled into one perfect piece of jewelry. The gorgeous colors recall the Regata itself, and the 59 beads of authentic Murano are the only thing as historic and uniquely Venice as those gondolas. Each necklace is handmade by the legendary Murano glassmakers, where the proud Venetian tradition has been passed down from generation to generation, dating back to before the city threw that first famous party for Caterina.

Thanks to the Regata, we’ve visited Venice often and made great contacts, which is how we found and negotiated the best possible price on the highest quality Murano available. Now’s your chance to share in the spirit of this legendary event without needing to break out your passport.

Satisfaction guaranteed or your money back. Enjoy the gorgeous colors of the Cornaro Murano Necklace for 30 days. If it doesn’t pass with flying colors, send it back for a full refund of the item price.

Limited Reserves. You could easily pay $300 or more for a Murano glass bead necklace, but at $49, this genuine handmade Murano won’t last. Don’t miss the boat! CALL 1-888-444-5949 TODAY!

In 1946, Marilyn Monroe was an unknown model named Norma Jeane Dougherty with dreams of Hollywood stardom when she posed for a series of portraits by photographer Richard C. Miller. Now the collection will be sold at California’s Santa Monica Auctions on Oct. 7. “I had no idea when I was taking these pictures that she would become famous and that the pictures would become valuable,” Miller later said. One of the images shows Marilyn in the wedding dress she’d worn when she got married to neighbor James Dougherty in 1942, just after her 16th birthday. “She had the charismatic quality that good models have,” says the photographer’s daughter, Margaret Dudley Miller. Her family had Marilyn over for a meal. “She sat at the dinner table telling everyone that she wanted to become a star,” adds Margaret. “Our parents thought, ‘Yeah right, sure — you and 20,000 other hopefuls.’ But sure enough, she made it happen.”
Two Hollywood Legends on Their First Film Pairing

"IT'S AMAZING" that we've never worked together before," Robert Redford tells Sissy Spacek, his leading lady in The Old Man & the Gun. “She was a joy.” The admiration is mutual. “He’s the consummate pro,” Sissy gushes to Closer. “He’s lightning in a bottle.” The only problem for the film’s writer-director, David Lowery, was to get Sissy to remember she was cast as a widow who falls for Forrest Tucker, a bank robber played by Robert. Says Sissy, “When we were doing our first scene together, David came over to me and said, “This is Forrest Tucker, not Robert Redford. Play a little hard to get!” Robert had such a good time on the film, he’s walking back his previous comments that it might be his final film as an actor. “That was a mistake,” he says. “If I’m going to retire, I’ll just slip away quietly.”

Gets Ready to Mark a Milestone

As he prepares to turn 80 in December, Jon Voight is sharing what he’s learned about the importance of family — both real and fictional. “I deeply appreciate his enormous talent,” Jon raved of Liev Schreiber, who plays his son on Ray Donovan, at the Tribeca TV Festival. “The only thing more satisfying than working with Liev would be working with my daughter.” After years of estrangement, Jon has made peace with his daughter, Angelina Jolie, and cherishes the time he spends with her six kids. “I’m a very loving grandpa,” he tells Closer. “I am entertained by the children. I love them, and I’d do anything for them, of course. And they know it.” He’s happy to pass along his wisdom: “Grandfathers give grandchildren something they can’t get anywhere else. Anyone who gets to be 80 has gone through a lot!”

LEAVING ON A HIGH NOTE: CELINE DION

Her heart will go on. Her Las Vegas gig? Not so much. On Sept. 24, singer Celine Dion, 50, announced via Facebook that her eight-year run at the Colosseum at Caesars Palace ends in June. “I definitely have mixed emotions about this final run,” she stated. “Every show we do [here]...right up until the final one, will feel very special.”

CALL IT A REEL DEAL

Call it a reel deal. On Sept. 26, the Library of Congress launched its online National Screening Room — on which otherwise unavailable films will be freely available to watch. Among the initial offering of 281 pics is the landmark 1903 Western The Great Train Robbery, LBJ’s “Daisy” TV ad and the 1945 short that opposed anti-Semitism The House I Live In, starring Frank Sinatra.

OK IS A-OK

OK is A-OK. On Sept. 24, the latest update of Scrabble was released — and players now have 300 new words to use, including “Bestie” and “Twerk.” “[But] 'OK' is something players have been waiting for — for a long time,” said Peter Sokolowski, editor-at-large for Merriam-Webster, which publishes The Official Scrabble Players Dictionary. “Basically two- and three-letter words are the lifeblood of the game.”

DAISY

May the force be with you. On Sept. 23, movie producer Gary Kurtz, who produced Star Wars as well as American Graffiti and The Dark Crystal, died at 78. On Sept. 20, Uno, the first beagle to win the Westminster Kennel Club dog show in 2008, passed away at 13. Finally, actor Frank Parker, who played Shawn Brady on Days of Our Lives for 25 years, passed back on Sept. 16. He was 79.

In 1999, when Mariska Hargitay’s agents first sent her the script for Law & Order: Special Victims Unit, “I remember them saying, ‘I don’t think you’re going to like it. It’s very dark,’” the actress recently revealed at Tribeca TV Festival’s Law & Order: SVU 20th Anniversary Celebration. But the role of sex-crimes detective Olivia Benson “went straight to my heart and soul,” says Mariska, who won both an Emmy and Golden Globe for her portrayal of the tough-but-sensitive cop. “To tell these stories has been nothing but a privilege and a gift.”

As it begins its 20th season on NBC, the show remains as compelling — and relevant — as ever. “You couldn’t make up what’s in the news today,” says series creator Dick Wolf. “And it’s a terrific group of actors.”

Now a producer on the show, Mariska says, “I feel so grateful that we brought something that has been traditionally swept under the carpet to the watercooler.” Here we uncover more revealing info from the files of SVU.

— Carol Dittbrenner
Despite the show’s dark subject matter, everyone keeps things light on the set. “People would be shocked by how much laughing there is between takes,” says Peter. “There’s a lot of joking around and making fun of each other.”

As for Mariska, “my favorite guest star right now is Dylan Walsh,” who’ll have a recurring role in the new season. “He’s so amazing,” Peter Scanavino (Detective Dominick Carisi) seconds that thought: “I love Dylan. He’s one of those guys who when you’re acting with him it seems so simple — you’re not picking up on how good it actually is.”

Mariska, 54, met her husband, Peter Hermann, 51, on the SVU set in 2001 (he has a recurring role as defense attorney Trevor Langan) — and she gets plenty of offscreen love from New York’s Finest, too. “My nephew was playing in the US Open juniors and Peter and I were running so late,” she recalls. “It was really bad traffic and all of a sudden this white [police] van comes pulling up. They said, ‘Get in, Olivia!’ and they took us right to the front door. I couldn’t believe it!”

And when it comes to behind-the-scenes high jinks, Peter is Philip’s go-to buddy. “We have the same sense of humor,” Philip tells Closer. “We can be really goofy.”

There are some episodes “where I laughed halfway through making it,” says Ice. “You gotta understand, we’re interviewing these little girls and they’re crying and then the director calls ‘cut’ and they get on their phone and start texting. So what the audience sees, with the music and everything, is scary as hell. But it’s different for us actors.”
Queen Elizabeth II
Inside Her Private World

A REVEALING DOCUMENTARY SHEDS NEW LIGHT ON THE REAL WOMAN WHO WEARS THE CROWN

By RON KELLY

The Queen and her one true love, Prince Philip, whom she’s been married to for seven decades.

Charlotte and George love being near their fun-loving “Gan-Gan,” Duchess Kate says.
At 92, Queen Elizabeth has recently gone public with a surprisingly fun passion: Scottish country dancing. She has “great rhythm,” her cousin Lady Elizabeth Anson insists. “I have to be seen to be believed,” the dancing queen quips, hinting there’s a much more intriguing woman under the crown than many would imagine.

Now, a new HBO documentary, Queen of the World, offers an up close and personal look at the royal, who was 25 in 1952 when she started her reign upon the untimely death of her dad, King George VI. As the longest-serving monarch in history, “She’s still working as hard as ever,” Nick Kent, executive producer of the documentary, tells Closer, “and retirement doesn’t seem to be in her vocabulary.” Still, Elizabeth’s multilayered personality comes to life for the first time thanks to unprecedented access to the palace and never-before-seen footage.

“One of the things that surprised me most is she’s got a fantastic sense of humor,” Kent says of Elizabeth, whose ascension to the throne in her 20s may have tempered her playful spirit. After her father’s shocking death from a blood clot at 56, Elizabeth — who was visiting Kenya with her husband, Prince Philip, when she heard... the news — was thrust into her role as queen, heading not only England but seven other nations in the British Commonwealth at the time.

Launching the Royal Yacht Britannia, a dream of her father’s, just 14 months after his death, was challenging, as captured in the documentary’s unearthed footage of the ceremony. “She had an aura of sadness and it was picked up in the press,” says Robin, Countess of Onslow. Adds the queen’s son Prince Charles, 69, “To commit to that challenge the way she did was truly remarkable. It appeared effortless, but it wasn’t, of course.”

Any struggles she felt were kept hidden. “Hers was a generation that lived through the Second World War,” Kent notes. “They experienced a degree of trauma and suffering we can’t even imagine. They learned to keep a stiff upper lip.” And grief, the queen says, “is the price we pay for love. When life seems hard, the courageous do not lie down and accept defeat; instead, they are all the more determined to struggle for a better future.

“If I wore beige, nobody would know who I am.”
—Queen Elizabeth on her penchant for wearing bright colors

That outlook has served Elizabeth well. No monarch has traveled more extensively and her crowning achievement, Kent says, is growing the Commonwealth from eight to 53 countries. “She inherited her crown, but the Commonwealth is something she really devoted her energies to building,” he notes. “I think that message is the reason why she wanted to be a part of this documentary.”

Overseeing all she does requires grit, which is something that’s contributed to her steely reputation. In Queen of the World, Prince Harry acknowledged this to a group of Buckingham Palace’s visiting youth scholars. “If you suddenly bump into her in the corridor, don’t panic,” he tells them, “but I know you will. It’s OK, though. We all do!”

HER ROYAL AIR
Elizabeth is well aware of that intimidation factor. “I think that’s why she goes to great lengths to put people at ease,” Kent says. “When people actually meet her, they say things like, ‘Oh, she’s just like my grammy!’”

She also has a cute nickname within the royal family: “One-Take Windsor,” Kent adds, “because she never has to do anything twice.” Well, almost anything. “There was a rare example where she had to record her Christmas message again, because there were bird noises in the background.” That blooper caused the nonagenarian monarch to burst into girlish giggles.

Helping to keep her young at heart is her teenage crush-turned-husband of 70 years, the now-retired Prince Philip, 97. “He has been my strength and stay all these years,” she gushes.
And even though it’s been rumored that she’s had an affair with her longtime friend and racing manager Lord Porchester, royal experts agree an indiscretion never happened. Philip is the father of her four children, Anne, 68, Charles, Andrew, 58, and Edward, 54, and when it comes to motherhood, the queen notes it’s “the only job which matters.”

Her tasks as the head of her family have been equally as challenging as her role as ruler. “Like all the best families,” she admits, “we have our share of eccentricities, of impetuous and wayward youngsters and disagreements.” Her scrutinized relationship with Princess Diana, for example, led her to reportedly write to Charles and his wife to suggest they divorce. And in recently discovered private letters Prince Philip wrote to Diana in 1992, he wrote, “We never dreamed [Charles] might feel like leaving you for [Camilla Parker Bowles],” hinting his wife was more sympathetic to Diana than many thought.

REWIRITING THE RULES

Although Kate Middleton and Meghan Markle are touted as royal trailblazers, Elizabeth has always presided over a very modern monarchy. “The queen is very media-savvy in quite surprising ways, and it goes back to her coronation, which was televised,” Kent explains. “It was her idea to do so, as it was her way of saying hers was a new age. And she did it against the advice of the establishment, including Prime Minister Winston Churchill.”

Her rebellious nature has endeared her to her grandsons and their wives. “The queen has unlikely friendships with people decades younger,” Kent notes. “There’s a real bond between William, Kate, Harry, Meghan and the queen. They’re all very close.”

She appointed Harry global youth ambassador in April, knowing that about 60 percent of the 2.4 billion people in the Commonwealth are under the age of 30. “She knows he will create opportunities for younger people. That’s going to be a big thing for him and Meghan in the future.”

This passing down of duties illustrates how the queen embraces the fact that she won’t be able to rule forever. But that doesn’t mean she’s ready to put her feet up. “One of the extraordinary things about Elizabeth is that she still goes out riding on her horses two or three times a week,” Kent reveals. “If you want to see the queen at her most relaxed, that’s probably it.”

This also gives her time to step away from her duties and to escape the pressures it puts on her for a few fleeting moments. “We all need to get the balance right between action and reflection,” she says. “With so many distractions, it is easy to forget to pause and take stock.”

When she does, Kent says, he suspects she’s quite pleased with her life and her service. “Enjoying your work is a big part of staying healthy, both psychologically and physically,” he says. “She believes in the value of what she does and I think that really shows.”

He and Frank Sinatra played Army privates in From Here to Eternity.

They were very devoted to each other,” says Robert of Monty and Liz (in ’51’s A Place in the Sun).

Monty’s Hall of Fame

“I’m just trying to be an actor, not a movie star.”
—Montgomery

He acted onstage for 10 years before making Red River with John Wayne.

He and Frank Sinatra played Army privates in From Here to Eternity.

eaving a party at his close friend and frequent co-star Elizabeth Taylor’s LA house in 1956, Montgomery Clift fell asleep at the wheel and crashed into a utility pole. The disfiguring injuries he suffered — including a broken jaw and nose — could’ve ended his acting career. Instead, “some of his post-accident films are his most impressive,” his nephew, Robert Clift, tells Closer. “He saw freedom in this shift, and he liked himself better.”

That’s only one of many revelations in Making Montgomery Clift, a new documentary Robert directed with wife Hillary Demmon. Monty, as he was known to friends, has long been portrayed as a closeted homosexual who dealt with the pain of his secret life by descending into alcoholism. In fact, “he had long, loving relationships with men and women,” says Robert. “Labels don’t fit so easily.”

THE MISFIT

Monty took an equally unconventional approach to his career, turning down a seven-year studio deal when he was in his 20s so he could pursue more challenging roles that didn’t trade on his brooding, pre-accident good looks. “That’s a big deal,” says Hillary. “It takes a really special person to make that choice when so many people told him not to.”

The risk paid off, as he earned Oscar nominations for his first film, the 1948 Western Red River, as well as 1951’s A Place in the Sun, one of three movies he made with Liz. He was also nominated for 1953’s From Here to Eternity as well as 1961’s Judgment at Nuremberg. In all his roles, he brought a vulnerability and intensity that hadn’t been seen before. “He put a new kind of man on-screen,” says Hillary. “He was doing it before Marlon Brando and James Dean got there.”

He lived a hard life offscreen. Alcoholism ran in his family, and he indulged in booze, pills and “a high cholesterol diet — his arteries were very blocked,” says Hillary. He died of a heart attack in 1966 at 45.

Though his career was relatively brief, Monty’s impact has lasted for decades. “This guy is remarkably modern,” says Hillary. “He has this presence, style and way of moving and speaking that has influenced so many contemporary actors.”

Most of all, Monty endures as an example of a man who followed his instincts, knowing there were pitfalls ahead. “I told them I wanted to choose my scripts and my directors myself,” he said. “‘But sweetheart,’ they said, ‘you’re going to make a lot of mistakes.’ And I told them, ‘You don’t understand; I want to be free to do so.’” — Bruce Fretts, with reporting by Amanda Champagne-Meadows

Monty and Liz were shooting Raintree County when he was involved in a serious auto accident.

He called Marilyn Monroe (in The Misfits) “an incredible person to act with.”

His final Oscar nod came for his supporting role as a witness in Judgment at Nuremberg.
Cheryl Hines is about to take on a brand-new role but she’s having just a bit of trouble getting into character. Her stepson, Bobby Kennedy III, and his wife, Amaryllis Fox, are due to have a baby girl in January, yet “I don’t know that I want to be called Grandma,” Cheryl, 53, recently admitted to Closer with a laugh. “It’s a really fun time, but I have to come up with a different name. Maybe CeCe. Luckily I still have a couple of months to figure it out!”

GREAT EXPECTATIONS
Cheryl, who is a spokesperson for the Painfully Awkward Conversations Campaign (which addresses painful sex and menopause issues) is fully ready, though, to embrace the joys the baby will bring her and husband Robert F. Kennedy Jr., 64. “I have a feeling we’re going to have long weekends of babysitting,” gushes Cheryl, whose daughter, Catherine, is 14. “And I’m looking forward to not having to be the parent and teach lessons like ‘Tell the truth.’ Instead, ‘Lie! Have fun!’ I can’t wait,” she quips.

The actress is equally as excited to direct the upcoming feature film Revenge Wedding and to dive back into playing Larry David’s ex-wife on Curb Your Enthusiasm. “We’re about to start shooting our 10th season, but really we’ve all been together for 17 years or something,” she says of her on-screen family, which makes her real-life husband ecstatic. “Robert watches Curb too much,” she reveals. “He binge-watches when I’m not around!”—Ron Kelly, with reporting by Jaclyn Roth

“I’m excited to be a part of this little baby’s life!”

WEEK OF OCT. 8 – 14

Libra
SEPT. 23 – OCT. 22
If you want the job done right, do it yourself! Your strong focus and unique skill-set allows you to accomplish much more than usual this week.

Scorpio
OCT. 23 – NOV. 21
Now’s the time to ditch extra baggage, Scorpio. Don’t be afraid to eliminate negativity from your life — even if it comes in the form of a friend.

Sagittarius
NOV. 22 – DEC. 21
Reconnect with people and hobbies that make you feel imaginative. Your creativity is still there, Sag; you just need a little bit of fresh inspiration.

Capricorn
DEC. 22 – JAN. 19
A surge of solar energy brings you new clarity. Try and view your life from a different angle and you just might make a personal discovery.

Aquarius
JAN. 20 – FEB. 18
If your plate’s full, don’t attempt to tackle two things at once. Resist the urge to rush and give each task your undivided attention instead.

Pisces
FEB. 19 – MARCH 20
It’s a great week for discovering new passions, so why not venture into the unknown? Allow adventure to be your guide and follow its lead.

Aries
MARCH 21 – APRIL 19
Your motivational spirit comes in handy at this time. Those around really benefit from words of encouragement, which you are great at giving.

Taurus
APRIL 20 – MAY 20
You may want to sort things out on your own, but don’t close your ears to advice. A loved one might have the perfect solution to a problem.

Gemini
MAY 21 – JUNE 21
Embrace your bubbly nature. Being charismatic and outgoing sets you apart from the crowd — and might even lead to some new friendships.

Cancer
JUNE 22 – JULY 22
The stress of an increasing workload can be alleviated by starting a daily schedule or routine. A bit of consistency helps you get more done.

Leo
JULY 23 – AUG. 22
A boost in your attention toward others will prompt them to fully reciprocate, so pay it forward.

Virgo
AUG. 23 – SEPT. 22
Focus on résumé building. It’s not about what you lack, it’s about applying the strengths you have.

Sigourney Weaver turns 69 Oct. 8!

Power is my mistress. I have worked too hard at her conquest to allow anyone to take her away from me.”

Secretaries’ Day!

It wasn’t just your average day on the set when real-life former secretaries of state Hillary Clinton, Colin Powell and Madeleine Albright guest-starred on the season premiere of Madam Secretary. “It was wild,” Erich Bergen, who plays one of Téa Leoni’s aides, tells Closer. “We were so thankful to have them there.” The trio play themselves, consulting with Téa’s fictional cabinet member amid a national crisis. Says Erich, “They did a great job on the fly, with very little directing. And they’re fans of the show, so that made it easier.”

TUNE IN! Madam Secretary returns Oct. 7 at 10 p.m. ET on CBS.

Maggie’s Creepy Teacher Feature

“Every once in a while, there’s a script you read where you’re like, ‘I have to do this movie,’” says Maggie Gyllenhaal of The Kindergarten Teacher, a disturbing drama about a preschool instructor who becomes dangerously obsessed with one of her students. “I finished it — the ending is particularly interesting — and I was like, ‘Yes, please. How do I sign up for it?’ I just knew immediately it was the next thing I was supposed to do.”

STREAM IT! The Kindergarten Teacher will be on Netflix Oct. 12.
Eliminate Belly Fat with Vinegar!
Find Out How…
by James Victor

If you want to lose weight and keep it off -- hate dieting and are tired of taking pills, buying costly diet foods or gimmick “fast loss” plans that don’t work -- you’ll love the easy Vinegar way to lose all the pounds you want to lose. And keep them off!

The natural Vinegar weight loss plan is a reality after years of research by noted vinegar authority Emily Thacker. Her just published book “Emily’s Vinegar Diet Book” will help you attain your ideal weight the healthiest and most enjoyable way ever.

You’ll never again have to count calories. Or go hungry. Or go to expensive diet salons. Or buy pills, drugs.

A STAR IS BORN

The title of this fourth version of the classic showbiz tale may prove prophetic: Lady Gaga is said to give a star-making performance as the unknown discovered by a grizzled country singer (Bradley Cooper, who also directed the film). “She was there to act, she wasn’t there to perform,” Sam Elliott, who plays her manager, tells Closer. “The wonderful thing is she gets to do both.” Despite her larger-than-life reputation, Gaga wasn’t a diva on the set. “She’s one of the biggest pop stars in the world, but she’s a real person,” says Sam. “A lovely, very smart person.” The admiration is mutual. “Sam is so incredible,” Gaga gushes to Closer. “He has a huge heart, and I loved working with him.” As for Bradley, “He’s the reason I wanted to make this film,” says Gaga. “From the moment he came to my home and we locked eyes, I felt an instant connection.” Concludes Bradley, “It was the most artistically fulfilling experience I’ve ever had.” [R]

VEENOM

This Spider-Man spinoff casts Tom Hardy as Eddie Brock, an investigative journalist who’s crossbred with an alien monster to become the titular super-antihero. Michelle Williams plays Eddie’s D.A. girlfriend, and Riz Ahmed (The Night Of) is cast as Venom’s nemesis. [PG-13]

OUT FRI. 10/5

THE HAPPY PRINCE

My Best Friend’s Wedding veteran Rupert Everett wrote, directed and stars as Oscar Wilde in this drama about the last days of the legendary 19th-century playwright’s life. The stellar cast also includes Colin Firth, Emily Watson and Tom Wilkinson. [R]

FOR ROCKER BRYAN ADAMS, PLAYING GIGS IN INDIA IS HEAVEN

We were the first artists to play a big show in India back in 1993, and I’ve played there a half of dozen times since then,” Bryan Adams tells Closer of one of his favorite places to tour with his band. “I love India!” Now the “Summer of ’69” rocker, 58, is kicking off new shows there in October where they’ll play in Bangalore, Delhi and his favorite: “I’m kind of partial to Mumbai because I’ve been there so many times,” he says.

Mumbai is the most populous city in India with over 12 million people, so naturally, there’s a lot to do, from museums to seeing the Gateway of India arch. “Nothing can prepare you for India,” says Bryan. “Everybody who goes has their own experience. So I would say go and experience it and then you’ll find something out about yourself.”

TUNA STICKY RICE BOWL
Serves 4

1 lb. sashimi-grade tuna, cut into ¼” cubes
1 shallot, minced
¼ cup soy sauce
2 tbsp. un-toasted sesame oil
2 tsp. grated fresh ginger
1 jalapeño, seeded and minced
1 avocado, sliced
½ cup mayonnaise
2 tsp. Sriracha
4 large Bibb lettuce leaves
4 cups cooked sushi rice
1 cup shelled edamame
3 radishes, sliced
1 Persian cucumber, sliced
2 medium carrots, thinly sliced
2 tbsp. chopped toasted macadamia nuts
1 tbsp. black sesame seeds

1. In a bowl, combine first 6 ingredients. Toss to combine. Cover; chill 1 to 2 hrs. Just before serving, fold in avocado and season.
2. In another bowl, whisk mayonnaise and Sriracha. Set aside.
3. Place a lettuce leaf at bottom of four bowls; mound 1 cup rice on top. Pile a quarter of tuna-avocado mixture on one side of bowl and arrange remaining ingredients on the other side.

HOW TO SURVIVE A STORM

HEALTH MATTERS: Pack a family first-aid kit, a week’s supply of any medications you’re taking, Mylar blankets, air-filter masks, hand sanitizer, energy bars (a three-day supply for evacuation, two-week for home) and canned goods with pull-up tabs.

DRINK UP: Always have bottled water on hand — one gallon per person, per day (three days for evacuation, two weeks for home). And if you’re on the move, a filtration system like LifeStraw and iodine water-purification tablets also do the trick.

STAY IN TOUCH: A cell phone with chargers and a power bank — or crank-powered radio will keep you in the loop. Also be sure to include an emergency whistle and copies of personal documents (medication lists, medical info, proof of address, deed/lease to home, passports, birth certificates) in your kit.

TOOL AROUND: Pack tweezers, scissors, duct tape, wind-resistant matches, work gloves, and other tools/supplies for securing your home. Keep cash, traveler’s checks or change on hand to buy more items.

BE BRIGHT: A flashlight or headlamp with extra batteries or solar chargers will keep you out of the dark. Spare glasses and local maps will put you in the right direction.

Q: Was John Travolta really supposed to star in the movie Days of Heaven?
A: What? Where? Director Terrence Malick did originally want Welcome Back, Kotter’s Barbarino for Richard Gere’s lead role, but the sitcom’s producer wouldn’t let John take any time off from the hit show.

Q: Has any actress ever won an Oscar as a Bond girl?
A: This may leave you shaken or stirred, but none were ever nominated. Barbara Carrera did once get a Golden Globe nod for Never Say Never Again (which premiered on Oct. 7, 1983), however.

From Oct. 7, 1998, to May 21, 2006, the witchy Halliwell sisters showed that sisterhood had a magic all its own.

BEST DAY of my life

BILLY CRUDUP

“Getting my part in the play Arcadia”

NEXT STAGE

The play’s the thing! At the BGC 9/11 Charity Day, actor Billy Crudup took time out from promoting The 52nd Street Project, which helps the underprivileged around Broadway, to tell Closer that landing Arcadia in 1995 was the best. “I was about six months out of acting school and had an audition for the Tom Stoppard play they were doing at Lincoln Center. I didn’t get the first call back but I really liked the part so I kept working on it and then a couple weeks later they said, ‘We haven’t been able to find anyone for the part, do you want to come back in?’ And I went back in and I got a call the next day that I got the part and that changed my life.”

Alyssa Milano

Just as youngest sister Phoebe had the power of premonition, Alyssa, 45, saw a lot more opportunities in her future as well. She co-starred on My Name is Earl, Mistresses and Insatiable, hosted Project Runway: All Stars and started a line of sports-themed apparel for women.

Shannen Doherty

After playing telekinetic, eldest sister Prue, Shannen, 47, had it in mind to reprise her role as Brenda Walsh on 90210 and try her hand at reality shows, like Breaking Up, Scare Tactics and Dancing With the Stars. But she’s moved people the most with her recent battle against breast cancer.

Holly Marie Combs

Middle sister Piper always needed to work on controlling her ability to freeze time. And Holly Marie, 44, didn’t stop practicing her craft either as she went right into starring as Ella Montgomery on TV’s Pretty Little Liars. She also spent a short while with Shannen on the travel show Off the Map.

Rose McGowan

While half-sister Paige developed the capacity for healing, Rose, 45, has fully devoted herself to helping others in the #MeToo Movement. Before that, she also starred in movies such as Planet Terror and Conan the Barbarian and appeared on TV shows including Chosen and Nip/Tuck.
• Brando? Pacino? I had a big part, too, in Francis Ford Coppola’s Godfather trilogy. Most think it’s bull that I’ve won just one Oscar for Best Actor in a Leading Role. Recently, I played swindler Bernie Madoff...but Michelle Pfeiffer played my wife, not the lady below.
A. Robert De Niro □ B. Richard Dreyfuss □
C. Robert Duvall □

• I didn’t get butterflies acting onstage in 1970, but it won me a Tony — and Goldie Hawn went on to play the role in a ’72 movie. Meet the parent of the Oscar winner for Best Actress back in ’98. Only time will tell if I’ll be back gracing a hit sitcom as someone’s mother.
A. Glenn Close □ B. Blythe Danner □
C. Diane Ladd □

My name isn’t pretty-pretty; it’s Barbarella! On Oct. 11, 1968, Jane Fonda lands the label “sex kitten” for her amorous adventures as the titular sci-fi space traveler. Now have yourself a blast trying to answer all of these questions.

1. Barbarella is on a quest for the deadly “Positronic Ray.” What’s the name of the city where she finds it?
A. Lythion
B. Matmos
C. Sogo

2. Along the way, Barbarella is rescued by a trio of heroes. Which one was the blind angel who lost the will to fly?
A. Mark Hand
B. Dildano
C. Pygar

3. The film is based on the comics of Jean-Claude Forest. On which actress is his character reportedly based?
A. Brigitte Bardot
B. Sophia Loren
C. Raquel Welch

4. What ’80s band got inspiration for their name from Barbarella’s nefarious nemesis played by Milo O’Shea?
A. Def Leppard
B. Depeche Mode
C. Duran Duran

5. In 2004, composer Dave Stewart wrote a musical based on Barbarella. Of what ’80s band was he a part?
A. Culture Club
B. Eurythmics
C. Tears for Fears

“Carter would be a nice guardian of Chris Pratt’s franchises!”

When Lindsey Wilkerson, 37, and Joel Alsop, 38, met at age 12 and 13 as cancer patients at St. Jude Children’s Research Hospital, they had no way of knowing they’d marry there 25 years later! "I remember having a huge crush on him," said Lindsey. "I was extremely shy [and] afraid to talk to her," Joel added. They hadn’t seen each other since high school, until they were reunited in 2003, when Lindsey was hired for event and patient-liaison work at St. Jude’s, where Joel worked as an info-tech coordinator. "For the better part of 12 years, we became the best of friends," Joel shared. And on Sept. 1, the pair exchanged vows at the very same Memphis hospital that, Lindsey said, "saved both our lives."

After Mark Cowing’s blind border collie, Fly, swam offshore in Hampshire, England, he went in after his 12-year-old pup and was astounded when both of them were rescued. Fly “disappeared out of sight [on Aug. 28], so I presumed he drowned,” said Mark, 55, who nearly died as well. “I tried to wave for help, but I thought I was a goner.” Fortunately a 71-year-old man in a kayak brought Mark to shore, and a nearby helicopter crew spotted Fly and sent a lifeboat to his rescue. “I was in tears when I saw him,” Mark shared. “He’s my boy.”

Bob Williams, 94, has handed out Hershey’s milk chocolate bars in Long Grove, Iowa, for more than a decade! Every week, the retired high school teacher would go to his Dollar General store on discount days and buy king-size bars, giving two to the cashiers, one to the person behind him in line and more to random people around his town of 800. “It’s guaranteed to light up most anyone’s life,” Bob explained. He became a local legend, giving away around 6,000 bars and easily earning his nickname: The Candy Man! And after Hershey heard his story, they featured him in an ad and agreed to stock his fridge with as many bars as he needs to complete his sweet mission.
Piper Laurie is having one of the hottest years in her nearly seven-decade career. She stars with Matthew McConaughey and Bruce Dern in the big-screen biopic White Boy Rick, and the indie drama Snapshots earned her top honors at film fests. But success is nothing new to the 86-year-old star. Since her 1950 film debut opposite Ronald Reagan in Louisa, she’s earned three Oscar nominations: for The Hustler, Children of a Lesser God and, most memorably, as a maniacal mom with a tormented teen in Carrie. But those who remember her best from that role may be surprised to learn that she overcame an equally rough childhood, including an anxiety disorder that left her unable to communicate as a child. “I’ve had a tough life sometimes, and a very rewarding one,” Piper shares with Closer. Now she opens up about her rendezvous with Reagan, her relationships with daughter Anna and her co-stars, and why she’s “not frightened often by anything. Either I’ve been through it before, or I just know I will survive!”

There aren’t many things written for older people, so I’ve been very, very lucky. White Boy Rick was delightful. Bruce Dern and I play the grandparents of the title character and I play the mother of Matthew McConaughey, who is charming. [Drug dealing] is a heavy subject but I had a lot of fun. Immediately after I was offered a much more substantial role in Snapshots. It was made for 2 cents, but I won four leading actress awards! My mother and father would scold me for bragging, but I’m proud of it.

And you got a 2017 lifetime achievement award?
Yes, I did, which is scary [laughs]. It certainly makes you aware of time, and it’s nice to be appreciated while you’re still alive.

You’ve worked with so many icons. Could you tell me a bit about your co-star in 1961’s The Hustler, Paul Newman?
He’s the best, a real mensch. I still think about him every day because I use his salad dressing. He’s always on my shopping list!

How about Rock Hudson [in 1952’s Has Anybody Seen My Gal]?
We were pals and laughed a lot. He, another actor and a friend took me to my first circus when I was 18! We did our screen test together at Universal and we were both so young.

And you won an Emmy working with James Garner in the 1986 TV movie Promise. What was he like?
You’re really picking out these lovely guys! He was terrific, and later on I asked him to do Who’s Afraid of Virginia Woolf? with me, but he hadn’t been onstage in many years and it just scared him too much.

— Piper

This isn’t Piper’s first comeback: She didn’t make a feature film between 1961’s The Hustler and 1976’s Carrie (with Sissy Spacek, below) because no parts challenged her.
You seemed less enamored of Sissy Spacek on-screen in Carrie!
We didn’t have any off-camera interaction until it was over. My daughter, who was 5, visited the set on the last day, and Sissy was enchanted. I’d like to think I inspired her to have her children. Then we got to work together again on [1995’s] The Grass Harp. Instead of playing her mother, I was her sister…and I was the nice one and she was the mean one. That was great fun!

But in the end, did it all work out?
Well, if you mean he died and I’m still alive, then yes! [Laughs]

Were you happy with the way your career in Hollywood progressed?
Yes, yes. I’m also happy that I’ve had a lot of down time, because that’s precious to me. I don’t know how actors survive working one film after the other. I did when I was very young, but I was doing junk, so maybe that’s why it was so depressing!

What was it like to write your memoir?
My housekeeper thought I was going crazy, because I was at the computer laughing all the time! Like being made up as a Japanese man when I was doing Twin Peaks, and being forbidden to tell anybody what I was doing, even my family.

Not many people make their film debut with a future president, but you did with Ronald Reagan in Louisa. How was he?
A lovely man. I wish I hadn’t written quite so much about our encounter in [my 2011 memoir] Learning to Live Out Loud.

Do you mean you regret writing about losing your virginity to him at age 18?
I could have told the story without such explicit detail. I was invited to the White House for a party when he was leaving office and I declined because it didn’t feel right.

Was he a good kisser, at least?
Oh, yes!

How about Tony Curtis?
He was a good kisser, too. I met him when I was 16 in acting class. We were pals, but when I was signed at the same studio he was at, he seemed a little shocked and not very welcoming. We were in four movies and never talked to each other except for the dialogue, and he used to write about how awful I was. It was craziness.

STAR POWER
Has being a star since 1950 fulfilled Piper? “Not much,” she admits, but “when I meet fans that are sincere, I like that I have touched people.”

GOOD CHEMISTRY
In her first Oscar-nominated role as an alcoholic in The Hustler, co-star Paul Newman “worked very hard. I don’t think acting came easily to Paul, but he made it look easy. He was also extremely sensitive but tried to cover it up.”

ONE FOR THE GIPPER
After Rosetta Jacobs was renamed Piper Laurie (“I think it was picked off a list,” she’s said), she was cast in 1950’s Louisa at age 18. “Ronnie Reagan [then 39] took an interest in me… I was flattered.”

SIGNS OF LOVE
For her third Oscar-nominated role in 1986’s Children of a Lesser God, she played the mother of a deaf woman (Marlee Matlin). Piper had “to learn sign language for the part, and I worked very hard on it,” she revealed.
beauty in the world and never accepting defeat! It is truly a miracle.

You were married to Pulitzer Prize–winning writer Joe Morgenstern from 1962–’82. Why didn’t you marry again? I don’t think I was meant to be married. I have a very full life. I had a nice marriage to a brilliant man, and we’re still very good friends. I have a wonderful daughter and a great relationship with her.

Do you get to see Anna much? Not as much as I would like. She’s in Oregon and has a fella she’s been living with there, a wonderful guy, but we do correspond a lot.

Any life lessons you can share? I had an important learning experience [in the USO] during the Korean War. I’m still in touch with relatives of some of the boys I was with. I experienced death, courage and became acutely aware of how beautiful and valuable life is. — Reporting by Ilyssa Panitz

ED HARRIS & AMY MADIGAN

Work Well Together On- and Offscreen

Sally Field likes former co-stars Ed Harris, 67, and Amy Madigan, 68—a lot! Still, Sally recently joked that it was “disgusting!” when the duo made moon-eyes at each other during their 1984 movie, Places in the Heart. Ed blushed at Sally’s quip about his and Amy’s on-set romance, but he assured Closer at the Television Academy Emmy Nominee Reception in Beverly Hills on Sept. 15 that “Amy and I had met [years] before that movie. But we did get married while working on it by a justice of the peace in Waxahachie, Texas,” where it filmed. Nearly 35 years later (their anniversary is Nov. 21) Ed and Amy are still going strong. “You just have to keep communicating,” Ed says of their longevity. “Get on with it. Do the work. Otherwise, it gets to be where you start drifting apart.”

Glenn Close

HOW I SURVIVED a Cult

THE AWARD-WINNING ACTRESS OPENS UP ABOUT HER EARLY YEARS IN A RELIGIOUS FRINGE GROUP

She’s become a household name by playing a wide variety of roles, from Fatal Attraction’s psycho homewrecker to a long-subservient spouse in her new film, The Wife. And Glenn Close’s achievements are even more impressive considering she grew up as part of a cult in which, she says, “everybody was supposed to say the same things and act the same way.”

When Glenn was 7, her parents — pioneering surgeon William Close and former socialite Bettine Moore — forced their family to join the Moral Re-Armament (MRA), a right-wing religious group that was “devastating to a child,” says Glenn. “It meant that at a time when you’re trying to figure out who you are, you’re being told instead who you’re supposed to be.”

DANGEROUS LIAISON

Glenn found an escape when she started to study acting at Virginia’s College of William & Mary. “By the time I got out [of the MRA], I didn’t trust any of my instincts because I thought they’d all been dictated to me instead of being my own,” she says. “When I walked into the theater school, ironically it was the act of becoming someone else that helped me find my own voice.”

Her mom and dad have both passed away, and Glenn has managed to forgive them for the damage they caused her as a child. “I’ve made my career figuring out the whys of behavior, and I did the same thing with my parents,” she says. “They had their reasons for doing what they did, and I understand them.”

At 71, Glenn has endured four divorces but is now happily single — and closer than ever to her daughter, Annie Starke, 30, who plays the younger version of her character in The Wife. “I’ve never felt more alive or more eager for what’s coming next,” Glenn says. “A lot of it has to do with figuring out who you are and knowing it’s OK to be that person. I guess you could say I’m a very late bloomer.”

— Bruce Fretts

Glenn says her parents “didn’t know the devastation it would cause their children.”

“Many things led me to leave. I had no toolbox to leave, but I did it.”

FORGED FROM THE DEPTHS OF A FIERY VOLCANO

2.5 CARAT GENUINE HELENITE

PLATED IN STERLING SILVER WITH 18K GOLD-PLATED ACCENTS

Forged from the Earth comes the gleaming magnificence of Helenite! Often called “the soul of the earth,” this exquisite man-made gemstone was first discovered after the eruption of Mount St. Helens, when salvage workers noticed the heat from their torches was turning the color of the black volcanic rock ash into a deep, rich green. This accidental discovery has given the world a stunning and unique volcanic treasure. The exclusive “Force of Nature” Men’s Helenite Ring is a celebrated collaboration between man and earth—and it's only available from The Bradford Exchange.

This ring is custom hand-crafted and plated in sterling silver with an 18K gold-plated band and detailing. At the center is an emerald-cut genuine Helenite stone of over 2.5 carats. The strong lines of the band combined with the impressive Helenite makes a dramatic and bold impact in a design that emanates the power and strength that comes from nature.

Don’t tell Barbra Streisand to slow down, to just to sit and putter. “I can’t retire. How could I? I’m an entertainer, and the world needs an escape from the pressure,” the diva, 76, says. “Even if I thought about it, there is always another phone call asking for another concert or recording.” Now inspired by her friend Cher’s new hit record, Barbra is ready to deliver.

“I’m back in the studio,” the singer recently announced, teasing a new project she says will be coming soon. “She loves being busy,” an insider tells Closer of Barbra’s first original album since 2016. “She thought she was OK not recording for a while and taking some time off, but she wasn’t. She was getting bored and couldn’t stand it.”

HITTING A NEW HIGH NOTE

What will be even more music to her fans’ ears is the fact that Barbra reports she’s at the top of her game. “I’m singing much better than I did on any recent [TV] special,” she insists. “She has a voice coach that helps her,” adds the insider of how Barbra is careful to take great care of her instrument, especially as she ages.

Count on a love song (or two) inspired by husband James Brolin, 78, to make the new CD. “James still worships the ground she walks on,” the insider says, “and he pushes her to artistic places she hasn’t explored yet. He wants her to be fearless.” With a new film project in the works, too — “I did just sign a contract to direct another movie,” Barbra recently revealed — the consummate entertainer is achieving her goal to keep busy, but there’s still one thing Barbra cherishes even more than her career. “Look for her to do some concerts to support the new music, but not a full tour,” the insider says, “because she really hates to leave James at home!”

"Wings sparkle with Genuine Crystal and Carved Facets"

"A Messenger from Heaven"

"My Spirit will live on Forever There within your Heart."
One day in 1970, Peter Bogdanovich got a call from Orson Welles. “What are you doing on Thursday?” the legendary director asked. The neophyte explained he was flying to Texas to shoot what would become his breakthrough, The Last Picture Show, but Orson insisted he also act in a film called The Other Side of the Wind. “He said, ‘Your flight’s at three? Meet me at the airport at noon,’” Peter tells Closer.

Seven years later, Orson and Peter were still shooting Wind. During the film’s sporadic production, Peter switched roles, from a journalist who interviews an iconic director (John Huston) to one of his protégés — a part originally played by impressionist Rich Little. “Orson wasn’t happy with him,” Peter explains. “He said, ‘Rich can’t act!’”

More than four decades after Orson and Peter stopped shooting Wind, it’s been finished by producer Frank Marshall (Jurassic World) and will be available on Netflix Nov. 2, along with They’ll Love Me When I’m Dead, a documentary about its chaotic backstory. After winning raves on the film-festival circuit, the movie could earn Orson an extremely posthumous Best Director nomination at next year’s Oscars. His sole previous Academy Award nods came for writing, directing and starring in his 1941 debut, Citizen Kane, considered by many to be the greatest film ever made.

BEFTER LATE THAN NEVER

The Other Side of the Wind was only one of several projects Orson started and never completed before his death in 1985, and it had deep personal meaning to him. John’s character, a cinematic trailblazer fighting to stay relevant in the “New Hollywood” of the 1970s, bears more than a passing resemblance to Orson. “We were having lunch one day in the early ’70s, and he turned to me and said, ‘If anything ever happens to me, I want you to finish the picture,’” Peter remembers. “I promised him I would.”

Now that this vow has been honored, “I think Orson would be very happy,” says Peter. And that’s what we’d call a true Hollywood ending. — Bruce Fretts

The airy and light-filled living space has a tastefully modern feel.

The dining room is lit by a modern chandelier of pale green and blue glass.
Moving in/out: Out
Location: New York City
Price: $24.6 million
Bedrooms/bathrooms: 4/4.5
Square feet: 3,944
Highlights: The expansive sun-splashed living-dining area stretches 33 feet and has floor-to-ceiling windows; a freestanding fireplace divides rooms; the long terrace provides for views of the Southern cityscape and across the Hudson River.

Meryl bought the Tribeca-area apartment in 2006.

Relax on the terrace!

The terrace wraps around three sides of the four-bed apartment.

The three guest bedrooms are all ensuite with lots of closets.

The kitchen’s neutral cabinets set off the butcher block island.
They Call Me Dr. Poitier!

Sidney Poitier was the first African-American to win a Best Actor Oscar, and in 1995 he received an honorary Doctor of Fine Arts degree from NYU, where his namesake daughter was in the graduating class. “Sydney earned her degree,” he said. “I hope to be worthy of mine.”
PLAID IS BACK!

The classic pattern gets a modern refresh with fall hues and chic silhouettes.

CARE TIP

Keep plaid from fading by avoiding hot water and drying on the lowest setting.

Add sophistication to a casual jeans look.
Style Guide

- Give the traditional button-down a youthful update by pairing with cropped jeans and wedges — à la Reese, at right — or layer under a blazer and add sleek pumps.
- Balance a head-to-toe plaid look by defining your waistline and adding bold accessories.
- Use plaid as an accent: adding a checkered-print scarf or shoes is an easy way to jazz-up an otherwise neutral look.

JONATHAN ADAMS His cockapoo pup, Barkley, is a snuggle bug! Barkley is the most loving dog in the world,” actor Jonathan Adams raves to Closer of his precious cockapoo, Bentley. “He’s never met a person he hasn’t liked!” The Last Man Standing star took his loyal pooch home as a gift for his two daughters 10 years ago. “I went to a breeder and out of all the puppies I saw, he was the most loving. It was like he was trying to give everyone a big hug,” Jonathan recalls. Since then, little Barkley (also known by his full name, Barkley Tinkleman III) has been an important part of the family. “He’s such a wonderful companion,” Jonathan says. “He’s so sweet and full of surprises!”
How To: Reduce Crepe Skin

Many noteworthy displays were featured in 2018.

Cosmetic surgeons, John Layke and Payman Danielpour (of the Beverly Hills Plastic Surgery Group), have made a revolutionary at-home technique to help fight the appearance of crepey skin.

The doctors have shown, in user groups, this new technique was found to improve the appearance of skin around the arms, neck, chest, legs, and other areas.

According to their research, loose skin adds significantly more years to a person’s perceived age than wrinkles, fine lines, or pigment changes—which is why they trained their focus on this particular situation.

And when the doctors demonstrated just how quickly and effectively it worked it became clear that their discovery is nothing short of groundbreaking.

Many users have achieved outstanding improvement in their appearance using a simple process, which can be self-administered.

But the latest development in this story came when the video version of the presentation was made available to the public on-line.

As of this writing, the video has over four million views and is quickly becoming a social media phenomenon.

“I’ve tried to do different things and I think that’s kind of kept me alive and vital.”
— Scott

BEING THE son of a lawyer, Scott Stewart Bakula admitted, “There was a time in my life when I thought when I grew up I’d be a trial lawyer myself.” But singing in a show in the seventh grade reversed that decision. “[Acting] gave me the opportunity to express myself in ways I wasn’t comfortable expressing myself, as a kid growing up in St. Louis.” Of course, with success on shows such as Quantum Leap and NCIS: New Orleans, it’s given him plenty of opportunity to express himself in Hollywood. Yet, that doesn’t mean Scott, who turns 64 on Oct. 9, wants the notoriety for it. “The world today is full of people who want to be famous, people who just want to take selfies and have followers.... That’s fine and I get that, but that’s never interested me.”
1991 PASS ALONG “I’m pretty sure I tore my rotator cuff in the very first scene,” he admitted about Necessary Roughness. “I realized that every time I was throwing the football, I was grimacing. And it’s good that I [did], because I had to act more and pretend like I wasn’t in pain!”

1995 LORD KNOWS Scott “adored” working with horror writer Clive Barker on Lord of Illusions and wasn’t scared to play his fan-favorite detective Harry D’Amour since, he says, “It wasn’t like doing The Bridges of Madison County where everyone was worried about how that was going to be compared to the book.”

1999 GAY ABANDON Over the years he’s played gay characters, including in American Beauty. “I am a musical theater guy, so it’s not like it’s anything unusual to me. The reason I love the theater world so much is that it embraces humanity! It’s a nonissue for me.”

1999 WITH PRIDE “I feel very fortunate to have a part like this to even play,” he said of his turn as Special Agent Pride on the CBS series NCIS: New Orleans. “I’m grateful there is a network that is giving opportunities to older actors, who appreciate older actors.”

2001 BOLD MOVE He was reluctant to join Star Trek: Enterprise, but “when I heard it was 100 years before Kirk and Spock, I was just like, “OK, I’m in.” I felt like there was no following them — but being first? I was okay with that.”

2009 FOR CERTAIN While the dramedy Men of a Certain Age lasted only two seasons, it “allowed people to see me in a different light. Maybe that opened up minds a little bit. We as actors always kind of joke, ‘I guess the two years before that I was a s--- actor — then all of a sudden I got interesting!’”

2014 FIELD DAYS “It takes energy and focus,” said Scott about his marriage to actress Chelsea Field. Since they wed in ’09, she’s been “amazingly present and has taught me a lot about relationships and spirituality. I feel incredibly lucky.”
