The Reading and Writing Processes

Do these situations sound familiar? While reading, you suddenly realize you have read the same sentences several times without gaining any meaning from them. While writing, you stare at the single sentence you have written, unable to think of anything else to write. When you find yourself stuck, step back and look at the processes of reading and writing.

Reading

The reading you do in school requires you to think critically about information and ideas. In order to get the most from a text, prepare your mind for the task before you read, use effective strategies while you read, and take time to process the information after you read.

■ Before Reading  Get your mind in gear by considering your purpose for reading a particular piece of writing and by thinking about what you already know about the topic. Preview the text by skimming a bit and considering headings, graphics, and other features. Use this information to predict what the text will discuss and how challenging it will be to read.

■ While Reading  As you read, figure out the writer’s main idea about the topic. Notice how the text is organized (by cause and effect or in order of importance, for example) to help you find support for that point. Connect the ideas to your own experiences when you can. If you get confused, slow down, re-read, or jot ideas in a graphic organizer.

■ After Reading  Confirm and extend your understanding of the text. Draw conclusions about the writer’s point of view, and evaluate how well the writer communicated the message. Use ideas in the text to create a piece of art, to read more on a related topic, or to solve a problem.

Writing

A perfect text seldom springs fully formed from your mind; instead, you must plan your text before you write and work to improve it after drafting.
Before Writing  First, choose a topic and a form of writing, such as a poem or an editorial. Decide who your readers will be and what you want the text to accomplish. Develop ideas based on your knowledge and on research. Organize the ideas, and jot down your main point.

While Writing  Grab attention and provide background information in an introduction. Elaborate your ideas to support your point, and organize them clearly. Then, wrap things up with a conclusion.

After Writing  To improve a draft, evaluate how clearly you expressed your ideas. Ask a peer to suggest areas that need work. Then, revise. Proofread to correct mistakes. Share your finished work with others, and reflect on what you learned.

You may have noticed that the reading and writing processes involve similar strategies. The chart below summarizes these similarities.

The Reading and Writing Processes

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Reading</th>
<th>Writing</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Determine your purpose for reading.</td>
<td>Identify your writing purpose and your audience.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Consider what you already know about the topic.</td>
<td>Draw upon what you know about the topic, and do research to find out more.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Preview the text to make predictions about what it will include.</td>
<td>Make notes or an outline to plan what the text will include.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Figure out the writer’s main ideas.</td>
<td>Express your main ideas clearly.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Look for support for the main ideas.</td>
<td>Support them with details, facts, examples, or anecdotes.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Notice how the ideas in the text are organized.</td>
<td>Follow prewriting notes or an outline to organize your text so readers can easily follow your ideas.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Evaluate the text to decide how accurate it is and its overall quality.</td>
<td>Evaluate and revise your text. Use peer editors’ comments to help improve your work.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Relate what you have read to the world around you by creating something, reading further, or applying ideas.</td>
<td>Relate your writing to the world around you by publishing it.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Reflect on what you have read.</td>
<td>Reflect on what you have written.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

The Reading and Writing Workshops in this book provide valuable practice for strategies that will help you effectively use these related processes.
Thinking About Reading and Writing

You have probably been in situations like this: You read a scary detective story straight through without stopping, or you write to a friend about a terrific movie you just saw. These kinds of reading and writing are easy and fun to do. Why is it that in other situations, especially in school, reading and writing can seem difficult?

Practice the Process

If you are an athlete (or a painter, computer whiz, singer, or guitarist), you already know that you have to keep working to improve your skills. Similarly, even if you are already a pretty good reader and writer, you need to keep getting better, because as you get older, the reading and writing you are expected to do become more and more complex.

The good news is, you can do many things to improve your reading and writing skills. Both reading and writing are processes made up of a series of steps. For each step, you can learn activities and thinking strategies that will help you understand what you read and improve the quality of what you write. Good readers and writers use some of the same basic strategies before, during, and after reading or writing.

YOUR TURN

Looking at the Reading and Writing Processes

- Bring to class an essay you wrote within the last year. Try to list each separate step you had to do to get from the first idea in your head to your finished piece of writing.

- Now, exchange essays with a partner. After reading, talk about each other’s essays. Did you get the message the writer intended to send? Brainstorm all of the separate things you had to do in order to get from looking at the words on the page to understanding the writer’s message.

TIP

Sometimes it is helpful to write down your thoughts and feelings about what you are reading and writing. Get in the habit of carrying a learning log with you. A learning log can be a simple, spiral-bound notebook. You use a learning log to summarize what you have read, to make prewriting notes, or to work out problems you are having with something you are reading or writing.
Reading as a Process

When you were young you figured out that letters stood for sounds and that clumps of letters made words. Then, you learned that the words formed sentences that communicate a message. To understand those messages, you need to use the thinking strategies listed in the chart below before, while, and after you read.

What You Do During the Reading Process

Before You Read:
- Prereading
  - Preview the text and make predictions about what it contains.
  - Build background knowledge for what you will read by thinking about what you already know about the topic.
  - Set your purpose for reading by asking questions.
  - Focus your mind on what you are about to do.

While You Read:
- Reading
  - Make connections between what you are reading and what you already know.
  - Adjust your reading rate.
  - Look for patterns of organization.
  - Revise your predictions about the text.
  - Ask yourself questions about the text, and use fix-it strategies when you become confused.

After You Read:
- Exploring and Extending Your Reading
  - Decide whether you achieved your purpose for reading.
  - Confirm your understanding of the text’s meaning.
  - Draw conclusions and form generalizations.
  - Extend and use the ideas you encountered while reading.
Getting Ready

If you were a relief pitcher called into a game with the bases loaded and a tie score, would you skip your chance to practice a few pitches from the mound? Reading without getting ready is like trying to step in and save a ballgame without warming up. This getting-ready stage is called prereading. Use these prereading warm-ups:

- Preview the text. To get an idea of what is coming, skim (read quickly) the first few paragraphs. Consider how difficult the vocabulary is and what the writer’s style is like. Scan (look specifically) for headings, subheadings, and boldface or italicized terms. See what the graphics (charts, maps, and time lines) and illustrations show.

- Make predictions. Based on your preview, what do you think the text will be about? What are the main ideas, and where will you find them? Take a guess. Also, try to determine the audience that the author has in mind. Thinking about these things will help you figure out whether you should start reading quickly or slowly.

- Build background. Suppose you are looking through a magazine. A photo of a kangaroo makes you recall a number of things: a movie you saw about Australia, the kangaroos you saw in a zoo, the words marsupial and joey. Before you begin any kind of reading, get in touch with your prior knowledge. Ask yourself, “What background knowledge do I already have about this topic, based on my experiences and other things I have read?”

- Set your purpose. When you read a short story just for fun, you probably read quickly to find out what happens next. When you read for a school assignment, though, you read much more slowly, looking for important information. Any time you read, think about your predictions, and ask yourself what you think you will find in the text. Before you read, ask yourself whether you are reading for fun or information. Reading with a purpose will help you focus on and remember what is important in a text.

- Focus your mind. If your mind starts wandering to last night’s sitcoms, try to drum up some interest in what you are reading. Look for the buried treasure by asking, “What important things will I discover as I read? How can I use what I find?”
While Reading

Making Sense

When you read a magazine article about animal camouflage, a Greek myth, and a math textbook, the reading experiences are very different. Whatever you read, though, your goal is the same: to understand and interpret what the writer is saying. The strategies below will help you.

- Make connections. If you read that a walrus uses its whiskers as a rake to comb for food, connect that to the documentary you saw about how bears search for food. Find a hook in your mind on which to hang each new piece of information you read.

- Adjust your reading rate. When you read for enjoyment, you may read quickly; however, when you read for information, you should slow down. You may race through texts with simple sentences and familiar words, but read more slowly texts with complicated sentences and unfamiliar words. The more you already know about the subject of a text, the faster you may be able to read it.

- Look for patterns of organization. Once you notice that an article about soccer leagues has an advantages/disadvantages organization, you will be on the lookout for pros and cons. When you understand how a writer organizes ideas, you will be able to tell the more important ideas from the less important ones.

- Adjust your predictions. Be aware of whether the text is matching your original predictions about topic and organization. Say you predicted a piece of writing was going to compare the fairy tale Cinderella with a Chinese fairy tale. After reading the first few paragraphs, though, you do not see any further mention of Cinderella. At this point, you might scan ahead to see if the word Cinderella comes up again. If not, you might predict that the article is really only about the Chinese fairy tale, and that each paragraph is going to deal with a different aspect of that fairy tale. Avoid getting stuck in a rut; revising your predictions as you read will help you find the most important ideas in a piece of writing.

- Ask yourself questions as you read. Keep up a dialogue with the writer. Ask questions, make comments, and note whatever puzzles you. If you become lost, try fix-it strategies such as those on the next page.
The room is pitch dark. The floor is littered with toys. Furniture is scattered throughout. The challenge: Find your way across the room to the door. You have no flashlight and you can’t see a thing. How will you do it? Probably by shuffling slowly, hands stretched out in front of you. Hopefully, you won’t stub your toe on the sofa or trip over a toy.

It’s too bad you don’t have whiskers. Whiskers allow cats and other animals to move through darkness, avoiding every obstacle as if they could see. That’s because whiskers—special hairs—are very sensitive to touch.

Thicker than normal hairs, whiskers are rooted deeper in the skin. The base of each whisker rests in a tiny sac of fluid underneath the skin. Each whisker rotates at the skin’s surface, like a straw in a soda bottle. When something brushes the tip of the whisker, a sensation zips down the hair shaft to the nerves in the fluid sac. The sensation transmits valuable information such as which way the wind is blowing or what food or obstacle lies ahead.

Scientists conducted an experiment to see if cats could find their way relying on their whiskers. They blindfolded domestic cats and released them into a large cage full of toys and other cats. The blindfolded cats walked around as normally as the cats that could see. They knew where the “invisible” objects were because their whiskers sensed the air currents moving around the objects.

“It’s Touch and Go with Whiskers,” National Geographic World
Exploring and Extending

You have just finished reading a magazine article about the discovery of a new solar system. “What a cool story!” you think. You are eager to talk with someone, to exchange ideas about the article.

The reading process does not end when you read the final sentence. That is the time to explore the ideas you encountered and extend them further. Here are some postreading strategies you can use.

- Decide whether you have achieved your purpose for reading. Consider which of your questions were answered. Compare what you expected to get out of the text with what you actually got.

- Confirm your understanding of the text. Sometimes you do not know just what you got out of a text until you capture your thoughts on paper. Try summarizing what you read in a learning log, or confirm your understanding by sharing your ideas with other readers.

- Draw conclusions and form generalizations. Sometimes the most important ideas in a text are not directly stated. Merge the facts and details from the text with your own experience to form new ideas, or conclusions. Then, form generalizations by broadening the meaning of the text to apply to many people or situations.

- Extend and use the ideas in your reading. Try these activities.
  1. Be creative. Use the text as a springboard—and take off. Write a character’s journal entry, draw a map, or set a poem to music.
  2. Read on. One idea often leads to another. Use any questions that come up as you read as your purpose to read other resources.
  3. Connect your reading to the real world. A text may help you solve a problem or give you a new view of an issue or event. Consider how the ideas in a text apply to real life, and put them to work.

When you examine the reading process, consider the role that writers play in helping readers to make sense of the text. In the next few pages, you will look closely at the writing process.
“Genius,” wrote Thomas Edison, “is 1 percent inspiration and 99 percent perspiration.” He was talking about inventing, but the same goes for writing. Writing is a process made up of many steps, and it takes effort. The chart below summarizes the stages that usually take place during the writing process.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>What You Do During the Writing Process</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Prewriting</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>• Choose a form and a manageable topic.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>• Identify your purpose and audience.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>• Draft a sentence that expresses your main idea.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>• Gather information about the topic.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>• Begin to organize the information.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Writing a Draft</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>• Draft an introduction that gets your reader’s attention and states your main idea.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>• Provide background information.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>• State your supporting points and elaborate on them.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>• Follow a plan or order.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>• Wrap things up with a conclusion.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Revising</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>• Evaluate your draft.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>• Edit to improve content, organization, and style.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Publishing</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>• Proofread the draft to find and correct spelling, punctuation, and grammar mistakes.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>• Share your finished writing with readers.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>• Reflect on your writing experience.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

WHAT’S AHEAD?

In this section, you will learn how effective writers

- prewrite
- write
- revise
- publish

The writing process is flexible: You can always go back to an earlier stage or even (if a topic does not work out) start all over again. Suppose you are revising a report on the history of skateboards. You decide paragraph three is too skimpy. It needs some elaboration to drive home the paragraph’s main idea. You go to the library, research more information, add it to paragraph three, and then return to revising and editing your draft.
Most of the 99 percent perspiration that Edison talked about takes place before you begin writing. The following prewriting steps will help prepare you to write your first draft.

- Choose a form. Writing comes in all different shapes and sizes. Your choices of forms include essays, reports, poems, letters, editorials, memoirs, stories, pamphlets, or instructions.

- Choose and narrow your topic carefully. Try freewriting, clustering, and brainstorming to come up with topic ideas that interest you. Then, think about the amount of space you have to present your information. For example, a topic like “cars” is too large. However, a manageable topic might be “the latest developments in the design of electric cars.”

- Identify your purpose and audience. Why are you writing? Who will read your work? The answers to these questions will focus your ideas. For example, if you were creating a short story to share with your classmates, you would write differently than if you were writing a persuasive letter to a city council member.

- Decide what point you want to make. Even if you change your mind later, draft one sentence (your main idea statement, or thesis) that sums up your main point. It will help keep you on track. If you are writing to entertain readers or to express yourself, you probably will not include a main idea statement. Even so, you should figure out the meaning of the specific story you want to tell or what you want readers to understand about you.

- Gather lots of information. Maybe you will look for information in books and magazines. You might do a Web search or interview someone who knows about your subject. Take notes. If you are writing about a personal experience, jot down every detail you can remember.

- Think about organizing. It is time to arrange the information you have discovered. Keep your audience in mind as you try to find a logical progression, or helpful order, for your ideas. You may consider writing a formal or informal outline or using a chart or conceptual map to organize your information.
Making a Start

Like most good writers, you probably keep your best pieces of writing—and maybe your worst—in a collection or portfolio. Take some time now to review this portfolio and set some goals. Try to make this new piece at least as good as your best work. Focus on improving weaknesses you see in your past writing. Here are things you need to do as you write your first draft.

- Grab your readers’ attention. Your introduction should make your readers want to read your work. In an essay, you might start with a surprising statement, a question, a brief story, or another way of hooking your audience’s interest.

- Give them some background. What do your readers need to know about your topic in order to understand what you are going to tell them? Help them by defining important terms, identifying people and places, or giving a little history.

- Get to the point. State your main idea as clearly as you can. Your readers should not be wondering what you mean. In a multiparagraph work, each paragraph after the introduction should also include a main point.

- Elaborate. You know a lot about your topic, and you have worked hard to find facts, specific details, and quotations to back up your ideas. Do not just give your opinion: “Students should have to take showers after gym class.” Elaborate by citing statistics, by explaining the rules in other schools, or by quoting experts.

- Organize. Organizing involves arranging ideas and information in an overall pattern, or order. If you are writing a story, for example, you probably will try to create a clear chronological order (first this happened, then this . . .). You will learn in this book about other orders for organizing ideas. Use them in your writing.

- Wrap things up. It is important to give readers a satisfying ending. You might write a sentence or two that restates your basic point in a new way or gives a clear sense of the impression you have been trying to create. You might add a final thought or comment on your topic.

Reference Note

For more information and practice on elaboration, see page 304.

You can use a variety of resources and reference materials as you write your first draft. For example, you might use a thesaurus to find the exact word you need to express yourself. Refer to “The Library/Media Center” beginning on page 735 in the Quick Reference Handbook for help in selecting other resources.
Going Back Over Your Draft

Good writers are good editors. An editor works on a draft until it is as good as he or she can make it. Editing involves evaluating (deciding what needs fixing), revising (making changes), and proofreading (correcting grammar, punctuation, and spelling errors). Since it is impossible to focus on all three of these processes at once, most writers focus on evaluating and revising first.

■ Evaluate your draft. Re-read your draft carefully at least twice. First, focus on content and organization; then, focus on sentence style and word choice. Peer editors may make suggestions and point out weak or confusing parts of your draft.

■ Revise the content and organization. Use these five strategies.

1. Add. If your writing seems skimpy, add a paragraph that looks at your composition’s main idea from another angle. Consider adding transitions, such as therefore, for instance, and finally, to help readers follow your thoughts.

2. Delete. Cut words, sentences, and even whole paragraphs that stray from your composition’s main idea. Eliminate unnecessary repetition and wordiness and get to the point.

3. Replace. Look for weak spots. Replace any weak support with something stronger.

4. Rearrange. Try out different arrangements for words in sentences or paragraphs in compositions. You can easily rearrange using a word-processing program—or you can cut portions of your paper and then paste them onto new paper. Keep your readers in mind as you search for the clearest, most logical order.

5. Elaborate. Be sure that the main idea of every paragraph is supported by specific details, facts, examples, illustrations, sensory images, figurative language, quotations, or anecdotes.

■ Revise the style. Consider these strategies.

1. Eliminate slang, clichés, and tired verbs.

2. Avoid using the passive voice.

3. Vary sentence length and sentence beginnings.

4. Combine sentences to add variety or complexity.
Going Public

Congratulations! You have created a piece of writing that no one else has ever written or read before. Now there is only one bit of tidying up to do before you go public with your work.

- Proofread your final draft. The last step in the editing process is making your paper error-free. Proofreading demands a close and careful reading. Hunt down every mistake in spelling, capitalization, punctuation, grammar, and usage—and fix them all. Sometimes you are so familiar with what you meant to say that your eye skips over mistakes, so ask one or more partners to proofread, too.

Here is a chart of the guidelines you can use to edit your final draft before you make a final copy. Use the proofreading symbols found on page 809 of the Quick Reference Handbook to mark your edits.

Guidelines for Proofreading

| | |
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th></th>
<th></th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>1</td>
<td>Is every sentence a complete sentence, not a fragment or run-on? (See page 268.)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2</td>
<td>Does every sentence begin with a capital letter? Does every sentence end with the correct punctuation mark? Are punctuation marks used correctly within sentences? (See page 574 and Chapters 23 and 24.)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>3</td>
<td>Do plural subjects have plural verbs? Do singular subjects have singular verbs? (See page 458.)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>4</td>
<td>Are verb forms and verb tenses used correctly? (See pages 485 and 496.)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>5</td>
<td>Are adjective and adverb forms used correctly in comparisons? (See page 532.)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>6</td>
<td>Are the forms of personal pronouns used correctly? (See page 511.)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>7</td>
<td>Does every pronoun agree with its antecedent (the word it refers to) in number and gender? Are pronoun references clear? (See page 475.)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>8</td>
<td>Is every word spelled correctly? (See page 655.)</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

TIP You can find a variety of resources and reference materials that will help you eliminate errors. A word processor’s spell-checker or dictionary will help you correct spelling errors. Part 3 of this book will help you eliminate grammar mistakes.
Publish what you have written. Most writers want someone else to learn what they have learned and to experience what they have experienced. You began writing with an audience and purpose in mind; now consider ways to share your writing with that audience. You might submit your writing to a school newspaper or magazine. You might read it aloud, enter it in a contest, or post it on the Web. Brainstorm other publishing ideas with your classmates, and get your writing out there.

Reflect on your experience. Ask yourself some questions about what you learned from your writing experience: What will I do differently next time? What are the strengths and weaknesses of this piece? What was easy for me to do, and what was difficult? Write your responses in a learning log or place them in your portfolio with your latest piece of writing.

In this chapter, you have examined the reading and writing processes. The chart below compares these two processes step by step.

---

The Reading-Writing Connection

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Reading Process</th>
<th>Writing Process</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Before</td>
<td>Writing Process</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>- Think about what you already know about the topic.</td>
<td>- Think about what you already know about the topic. Do some research to find out more.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>- Set a purpose for reading.</td>
<td>- Identify your purpose and audience.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>- Scan the text to make predictions about what the text will include.</td>
<td>- Make notes or an outline to plan what the text will include.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>During</td>
<td>Writing Process</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>- Take notes on important ideas and details.</td>
<td>- Follow your prewriting notes or outline.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>- Notice how the writer has organized the text. Look for clue words that help you find the writer’s main idea and supporting details.</td>
<td>- Organize your writing and use transitions as clue words so that readers can easily follow your main idea and supporting details.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>After</td>
<td>Writing Process</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>- Evaluate how well you met your purpose for reading.</td>
<td>- Evaluate and revise the text to make sure you achieve your purpose for writing.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>- Connect what you have read with the real world and to your own experiences.</td>
<td>- Connect your writing with the real world by publishing your ideas.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>- Reflect on what you have read. You might ask questions about what you have learned.</td>
<td>- Reflect on what you have written. You might ask questions about what you have learned about yourself as a writer.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Choices

Choose one of the following activities to complete.

► WRITING
1. Exploring New Forms As a class, brainstorm as long a list as possible of the different forms of writing. (Here is a head start for your list: poem, letter, TV script, and directions.) Think of all the other kinds of writing that people do in the working world. Then, create a classroom poster as a reminder of the many forms from which a writer can choose. Now, write in a form you have never used before.

► SPEAKING AND LISTENING
2. Thinking About Listening In this chapter you have examined reading and writing as processes. Is listening a process, too? In a small group, plan to listen to the same speech, radio talk show, lecture, or news report. Take notes on what you do before you listen, while you listen, and after you listen. Then compare notes with the other members of the group and decide whether listening, too, is a process. Report your findings to your class in an oral presentation.

► READING
3. Dialogue with a Writer Get together with two or three other students. Choose a text none of you have read before—a letter to the editor, an article, or a book review. Read it independently, and in a reading log try to work out problems you have in understanding the text. (As an example, look back at the reader’s notes on page 7.) Then, compare your notes with the notes of the other members of your group.

► CAREERS
4. Team Spirit TV writers and other professional writers often work in teams. In collaborative writing, a pair or a small group of writers get together to decide on a topic or to develop a story idea. Then, they decide what roles each will play in doing research, writing drafts, and editing the drafts. With your teacher’s permission, try working with a team of classmates to produce a piece of collaborative writing.
Have you ever seen huge explosions of fireworks at a festival? Have you watched a famous Hollywood director shutting down the streets of your hometown to make a new film? Even if you have not seen events like these, someone somewhere has, and has probably written about them in an eyewitness account. An eyewitness account is a narrative, or story, that tells about something interesting, unusual, or exciting that the writer has seen. It gives facts and details about an event so that the reader can picture it clearly.

Reading an eyewitness account can put you at the scene of the action. You can also write your own eyewitness account that will pull a reader into your world. Writing an eyewitness account is one of the best ways you and other writers can share what you have seen with the rest of the world.

Discovering an Eyewitness Account

Think of an exciting or unusual event you have seen lately, and then briefly discuss it with a partner. Answer these questions.

- What was the event?
- Why does this event stand out in your mind?
- What details of the event can you recall most easily? Why do you think you can recall these details?
You are hiking along a path when you hear a distinctive sound, like bacon sizzling in a pan. It could be a camper cooking breakfast, but more likely it is a rattlesnake. You look down and see the long, legless creature, whose body—marked with a blotched diamond pattern—coils tightly around itself. Bright yellow eyes with vertical slits gaze out at you, and the snake shakes its rattle as if to say, “Watch out! I don’t want to have to use my fangs!”

Snakes may scare you or fascinate you. People’s views of snakes may differ, but these creatures always seem to create a strong reaction. The author of the following eyewitness account saw an extraordinary event involving snakes. As you read the selection, try to picture the event she is describing.

Preparing to Read

Descriptive Language Author Jennifer Owings Dewey wants to do more than give a list of the events she witnessed. She wants to create in your mind a clear picture of those events. As you read, look for ways the author uses language to create a picture for you.

Implied Main Idea The main idea in a reading reveals the point that the writer is trying to make. The author of “Hopi Snake Ceremonies” never clearly states the main idea of her eyewitness account. Instead, the main idea is implied. The author gives the reader clues to figure out the main idea by supporting and building on the idea throughout the account. Watch for clues as you read to decide what you think the main idea is.
Read the following article. In a notebook, jot down answers to the numbered active-reading questions in the shaded boxes. The underlined words will be used in the Vocabulary Mini-Lesson on page 25.

from Rattlesnake Dance

HOPISNAKE CEREMONIES

BY JENNIFER OWINGS DEWEY

1. Death is not the automatic result of a snakebite. I learned this when I was nine. But the mystery of snakebite and venom, and the human response to these, deepened for me when I was ten and my father took me to the Hopi snake ceremonies in Arizona.

2. For more than two weeks in August the Hopi Indians held secret rituals that concluded with the snake dance. On those days non-Indians were allowed to watch the dance, although they probably understood little of what they saw. My father did his best to explain what he knew.

3. The Hopi live in a bone-dry region of the desert Southwest. They depend on rain to water their crops. The Hopi believe snakes have unique powers, that they are messengers between humans and spirits—especially the spirits that bring the rain.

4. For the Hopi, the snake ceremony is a time to make a plea to the spirits for the water the Indians badly need to survive.

5. The dancers, all men, filed into the dance plaza of the town. They had shoulder-length hair as sleek and black as raven wings. Bunches of eagle feathers were tied into the thick strands.

6. The men were painted black and white, with zigzag lines to represent lightning. They wore knee-length kilts and woven belts. Each of the dancers had a tortoise-shell rattle tied to his right leg below the thigh.

7. The men moved in a shuffling circle, their buckskin moccasins kicking up puffs of white dust. Their movements were accompanied by a chant, a low, humming sound that rose and fell like the wind. With this came the rattling of the tortoise shells, not unlike the noise a rattlesnake makes when it shakes the hinged buttons at the end of its tail.
After several turns around the dance area, a few of the dancers reached into a hole in the ground, a pit that had a shelter of cottonwood boughs over it. They came up with serpents in their hands. They gave these to other dancers, who put them in their mouths and carried them that way, moving in rhythm with the chant.

Many of the snakes were coachwhips, bull snakes, and other harmless reptiles. Some were full-grown rattlesnakes, their rattles buzzing furiously.

For a long time I kept my eyes on one dancer, a short, stocky man with hair that flew up when he moved. As he made his circle he faced me for as long as a minute. He came close, and I could plainly see the sun shining on the scales of the snakes he carried. On one turn he had a rattlesnake in his mouth.

I stared in horror as the snake arched itself around and attached its jaw to the dancer’s cheek. The man went on dancing.

When it came time to change snakes, the man following with the prayer stick unhooked the rattlesnake’s mouth from the dancer’s face. Two spots of blood remained.

“Did you see?” I asked my father in a whisper. “Did you see what that snake did?”

“Quiet,” my father said. “No talking now.”

Later, when the dance was over, the two of us sat in the cab of the truck watching fat drops of rain spatter the windshield.

“Did you see what that rattlesnake did? How it bit the dancer on the cheek?”

“Yes,” my father said. “I saw it. It’s a mystery, how they do it. . . . Perhaps the dancers have a special way with snakes. The Hopi are protective of their rituals. There are questions we can’t answer, because we’re not Hopi.”

We drove across the desert obscured by sheets of rain. My mind returned to what I’d seen that afternoon.

Figures of Hopi dancers, snakes of all kinds dangling from their mouths, passed through my imagination like the rain sweeping across the land. I believed the Hopi kept mysterious secrets in their hearts, knowledge of how to cajole a rattlesnake into withholding its venom.
First Thoughts on Your Reading

1. In which passages were you able to picture events most clearly?
2. Why do you think the author chose to write an account about this particular event?

---

Descriptive Language

Do You See What I See?  Do you see anything when you read the following list of events? “We camped. . . . We saw some people dance with snakes. . . . It rained. . . . We were interested.” You probably do not see much because this list lacks descriptive language. The writer of an eyewitness account uses descriptive language to help the reader experience an event. Three types of description that a writer relies on are sensory language, figures of speech, and precise words.

The following chart defines these three types of description and provides examples of how they can be used to help a reader “see” an event.

---

Types of Descriptive Language

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Types of Description</th>
<th>Definition</th>
<th>Example</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Sensory Language</td>
<td>words and descriptions that appeal to one or more of the five senses—sight, hearing, touch, taste, smell</td>
<td>The fire crackled and the smell of pine filled the air as I watched the sparks leave trails of light.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
| Figures of Speech  | words or phrases that describe one thing by comparing it to something else—similes and metaphors are two common figures of speech | Simile: The snow fell like a whisper. [a comparison that uses the word like or the word as]
Metaphor: When he is embarrassed his face is a ripe tomato. [a direct comparison that says one thing is another thing] |
| Precise Words      | specific words that make a description as clear and sharp as possible     | Inexact words: He walked across the court to receive the trophy.
Precise words: The 6’4” basketball player strutted across the court to receive the MVP trophy. |
Implied Main Idea

What Does It All Mean? Suppose you want to tell someone that you are afraid of snakes. You could state your main idea, “I am afraid of snakes.” You could also imply it by explaining your reaction to seeing a snake: “When I saw the snake, I froze; my heart was pounding and echoing in my ears. My hands were damp and clammy, and sweat was running down my back. My friends were carefully walking around the snake, but I still could not move.” To figure out an implied main idea, you need to read the entire passage and then put the clues together.

When a writer implies a main idea, he or she gives clues throughout the reading to help you find the main idea.

In the following paragraph, the main idea is implied. Can you identify it? If you have trouble, use the steps on the next page.

When I visited northern Arizona I went to the Hopi Indian Reservation. I visited a very old village; many of the houses had been built more than four hundred years ago. The houses sat around a central plaza, which served as a meeting place as well as the site of ceremonies and celebrations. One of the houses that I saw was falling apart, but the villagers were working to rebuild it. Newer houses were made of stone carved so the pieces fit together, a traditional Hopi construction technique. Solar panels located on the roofs of the houses provided their power. Solar power allowed the people to have modernized homes, but it did not disrupt the villagers’ traditional way of life.
Mapping It Out The steps for figuring out the implied main idea of a paragraph can also help you find the implied main idea of a longer reading selection. Follow these steps.

1. Divide the reading selection into multi-paragraph sections.
2. Look at the details in each section and ask yourself, “What is the general idea of this section?”
3. Use the ideas from each section to figure out the implied main idea of the whole reading selection.
4. Compare your main idea with the details to confirm your answer.

When you are hunting for the implied main idea of a passage, you need a place to keep track of information. A graphic organizer can help you keep the information in order and see how it all fits together. Suppose the paragraph about the Hopi village on page 22 were part of a longer selection. The following graphic organizer... shows how ideas throughout the longer selection would add up to the implied main idea.

Implied Main Idea for a Multi-paragraph Selection

1st Section: The Hopi still perform ceremonies their people have had for hundreds of years.

2nd Section: Hopi villagers live in traditional homes equipped with modern conveniences.

3rd Section: The Hopi use both traditional and modern farming techniques.

Many Hopi are trying to maintain a traditional way of life in the modern world.

Mapping the Implied Main Idea

With three other students, find the implied main idea of “Hopi Snake Ceremonies” by completing the following steps. It may help to create a map like the one above.

- Assign each group member one of the following parts of the selection: Paragraphs 1–4, 5–9, 10–14, 15–19. Some of the paragraphs in the reading have main ideas, and some do not. Each group member should use the steps in Mapping It Out on page 23 to come up with a main idea statement for his or her section.

- As a group, look at all of your main idea statements. What do they say about the Hopi snake ceremony? Sum up these main ideas into one overall statement that tells the main idea of the whole reading. This is the reading’s implied main idea.

- Confirm the overall main idea your group has identified by checking it against details from the reading.
Parts of Speech and Context Clues

As you read eyewitness accounts, you may find words you do not know. To figure out a word’s meaning, you can think about what is happening in the story and look at other words around it—its context. Context clues can come from all the sentences around a word, not just the sentence in which the word appears.

You can also use a word’s part of speech to understand the word’s meaning. The part of speech tells you the word’s job in a sentence.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>If the word . . .</th>
<th>you know it is . . .</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>names a person, place, thing, or idea</td>
<td>a noun</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>shows an action or state of being</td>
<td>a verb</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>describes something</td>
<td>an adjective</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

The steps below can help you figure out a word’s meaning.

Using Parts of Speech and Context Clues

The following example uses the word plea from “Hopi Snake Ceremonies.”

Context: “For the Hopi, the snake ceremony is a time to make a plea to the spirits for the water the Indians badly need to survive.”

1. STEP 1 Identify the word’s part of speech. The sentence says, “to make a plea.” You make things, so a plea is probably a noun.

2. STEP 2 Get clues about the word’s meaning from its context. The plea is made “to the spirits.” The Hopi are making a plea because they need rain.

3. STEP 3 Use what you may already know to figure out the word’s meaning. Check your definition by plugging it into the original sentence. The Hopi are having a ceremony to ask the spirits for rain. A plea must be a very serious request.

Practice

Use the parts of speech and context clues to find the meanings of these words. They are underlined in “Hopi Snake Ceremonies.”

1. rituals (page 19)
2. coachwhips (page 20)
3. stocky (page 20)
4. obscured (page 20)
5. cajole (page 20)
When taking a reading test, you will often be asked to identify a reading selection’s main idea. Read the following passage and the test item after it. How would you respond to this item on a reading test?

I have had close encounters with snakes. Most snakes are shy and do not want to be around people; however, sometimes they come around houses looking for water. Snakes hide in rock piles, broken logs, or areas with tall grass. When I am walking in an area I think may have snakes, I take a long stick with me. I go slowly and hit the ground with the stick to make noise, so the snakes know I am coming. Then the snakes can get out of the way or warn me that they are there. I have seen many snakes. Many of them are poisonous, but I’ve never been bitten.

The main idea of this paragraph is that

A. snakes come to houses to find food and water
B. if you shake a stick at a snake, it will not bite you
C. if you take precautions, you do not need to fear snakes
D. people should be terrified of snakes

The topic is snakes. I think the writer is saying that snakes are not always dangerous.

A. This answer is mentioned in the passage, but it is only a detail.
B. The passage doesn’t say this, so it can’t be the answer.
C. I think this is the best answer. The writer talked about precautions to take when you think snakes may be around.
D. The writer did not seem to be afraid of snakes at all. This is not the answer.
Writing an Eyewitness Account

An account of the Titanic disaster in the words of a survivor…The story of a calf being born, told by the 4-H member who witnessed it…These firsthand observations are called eyewitness accounts. Through an eyewitness account, a writer can share an experience with someone who has never seen the event. A writer’s vivid retelling of an experience can create something like a movie in the reader’s mind, allowing him or her to imagine every detail and action.

It is your turn to create a mental movie for your reader. In this workshop you will write a letter giving an eyewitness account of a memorable event. You will use detail and sensory language to show your reader an event.

Choose an Experience

Seeing the World Have you ever had an experience like this? You are walking through the park when you come across a dog show. You are thrilled to be seeing dogs of every breed. Mainly though, you wish someone were there to witness the event with you. If you have ever witnessed something that you wanted to share with a friend or family member, write about that experience now. Choose an event that you think is interesting. Your goal will be to communicate your interest and enthusiasm to your reader.
An eyewitness account takes the form of a narrative, or story. Therefore, choose an event you saw from beginning to end and can recall clearly. Your reader should be able to see the account as you did, so be sure you can remember plenty of details.

KEY CONCEPT

When choosing experiences, focus on events that you observed rather than participated in. For example, you would write about the soccer game you saw instead of the basketball game you played in.

TIP

Use the Thinking It Through steps above to brainstorm and evaluate events you have seen and to choose an experience for your eyewitness account.

STEP 1 Brainstorm a list of events you have witnessed. You might consider:
- sports events such as a soccer game or track meet
- school events such as a science fair or art exhibit opening
- natural events such as a flood or sunset
- neighborhood events such as a parade or street festival

STEP 2 Decide which events:
- you find most interesting
- you remember most clearly
- you saw from beginning to end
- you observed without participating in

STEP 3 Choose the event you most want to write about.

The writer whose example appears below chose the snowboarding exhibition because she had the most fun watching it and remembered the most details from that event.

- state championship track meet
- Cinco de Mayo parade
- my brother’s soap-box car race
- snowboarding exhibition

YOUR TURN 4

Use the Thinking It Through steps above to brainstorm and evaluate events you have seen and to choose an experience for your eyewitness account.
Think About Purpose and Audience

Share Your Vision Your purpose, or reason for writing, is to share a memorable experience. You would not need to write a letter describing a snowboarding exhibition to a friend who saw it with you. Instead, you would want to tell a friend who was not there about the thrill of watching people glide on the snow and flip through the air.

Identifying Your Audience

To identify the audience for your eyewitness-account letter, think about a person who would be interested in the event but who did not get to see it.

Gather Events and Details

What Happened? You are thinking about the snowboarding exhibition and all you can remember is the woman who amazed you by flipping through the air. Your mind may jump to the most exciting moments or to your favorite part of the experience. However, there is more to an eyewitness account than the big moments. You are telling a story, so think about and list the small events that made up the experience from beginning to end.

Who, What, Where, How A good eyewitness account will give plenty of specific information to create a complete picture of the event for the reader. You can flesh out details from the events by asking yourself these four questions.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Who?</th>
<th>questions about people, such as Who took part in this event? Who caught my attention?</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>What?</td>
<td>questions that get at sensory details, such as What did I hear (including dialogue), see, smell, feel, or taste?</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Where?</td>
<td>questions about places, such as Where did this event take place?</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>How?</td>
<td>questions about feelings, such as How did I feel watching this event?</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
As you list details, you may include terms or information that your reader may not know. Support your descriptions and details with definitions or background information.

Order Up Once you list the events and details involved in your experience, you’ll need to put them in order. The best order for an eyewitness account is chronological (or time) order. Tell the events in the order they happened—first, second, third, and so on. Chronological order helps the reader follow the story.

To make the chart below, the writer first listed the events that made up the experience. Then, for each event, she listed details that answered the Who, What, Where, and How questions.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Snowboarding Exhibition</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Events</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
| 1. arrived and waited for the competition to begin | who: crowd of people what: cold; people stamping feet to keep warm; crunchy snow where: around the exhibition area; overlooking the half-pipe how: surprised at how many people were there definition: a half-pipe is a U-shaped snow structure, about 10 feet high and 360 feet long; it is like a pipe cut in half |
| 2. half-pipe jam session | what: cheers of the crowd and crunch of the snow how: amazed by the skill of the athletes |
| 3. big air session | what: a woman doing an inverted 720; riders framed by the sky when they were in the air how: impressed by the tricks; want to take more lessons
background info: riders fly off a jump and do tricks in the air |
| 4. drove home | how: asked Dad to let me take more snowboarding lessons |

Gathering and Organizing Ideas

- Create a chart like the one above for your event. In the first column, write the events of your experience in chronological order.
- In the second column, include details for each event. Use the questions on page 29 to find details.
Showing Instead of Telling

The stomach flu keeps you away from the state championship basketball game. Later, when you ask a friend about the game, he says, “It was fun. We won.” “That’s it?” you think. “I want to hear more!”

What you want is a dazzling description. You want to hear the stomping of the crowd’s feet, smell the sweat of the packed gym, and sense the thrill of cheering your team on to victory. You want your friend to show you the victory, not tell you, “We won.”

Showing rather than telling allows your style, the way you express ideas, to come through. Showing lets the reader see through your eyes and hear your voice, which indicates your attitude toward the event.

There are several ways to show an event rather than tell it. Show by adding
- dialogue—actual words of the people involved in the events
- precise words—strong verbs, vivid adjectives, precise nouns

You can also show details through figures of speech, expressions that describe one thing in terms of another. Two figures of speech you can use are similes and metaphors.

A simile uses like or as to compare two unlike things. The runner looked as graceful as a cheetah.

A metaphor says directly that one thing is another thing. Her eyes were a well of disappointment.

Here is an example of the difference showing can make.

Telling: Betsy is a clumsy girl.

Showing: Betsy usually trips through a doorway, her arms flailing toward any object that might keep her from falling. “My mom keeps telling me to wear more sensible shoes,” she says to cover up the near fall. She then teeters along, looking like a flamingo with a twisted ankle.

This example shows by using strong verbs (trips, flailing, teeter), a simile (looking like a flamingo), and dialogue.

Practice

Turn the following telling statements into descriptive showing passages.

1. I look forward to lunch every day.
2. Anna-Marie was fascinated as she watched the play.
3. Jordan was angry that his parents had taken him to the symphony.
4. My dog misses me when I am at school all day.
5. Paco looks happy today.
Writing

Eyewitness Account

Framework

Introduction
- Salutation
- Attention-grabbing opener
- Statement of the event

Body
- First event and details
- Second event and details
- and so on

Conclusion
- Your feelings or questions about what you observed
- Importance of the event
- Closing for the letter

Directions and Explanations

- Open with a greeting, or salutation. (For more on letter form, see page 798 of the Quick Reference Handbook.)
- Use a question, a story, or a personal note to get your reader's attention. Try two different attention grabbers. Then, ask a peer which is better.
- Put each event of your experience in a paragraph. Combine two or more short events into one paragraph.
- Elaborate on each detail from your prewriting chart by using descriptive language that shows, rather than tells, what the experience was like. Provide additional background information, including definitions, for anything that might be unfamiliar to your audience.
- Leave your reader with an understanding of the importance of the event. You might summarize why you liked the event and wanted to share it. Remember the reason you decided to write this letter. Then, close with a personal note to your reader.

Writing Your Eyewitness Account

Now it is your turn to write a letter about an eyewitness account. As you write, refer to the framework above and the Writer's Model on the next page.
Dear Jake,

Have you ever seen a snowboarding exhibition? I have been wanting to see one ever since I took a lesson a month ago. This past Saturday, my dad and I went to see a competition. I had a great time, and I got to see some of my favorite professional riders.

When we arrived, we were surprised by how many people were there. We worked our way through a crowd around the exhibition area and waited for the first session to begin. People were stamping their feet to keep warm in the twenty-degree weather. The gray snow crunching under our feet sounded like pieces of plastic foam rubbing together. My skin felt tight and prickly, and I could see my breath in puffs of fog on the chilly air. As we waited, we talked about how good the half-pipe looked. A half-pipe is snow packed into a U-shape, about 10 feet high and 360 feet long. It is like a big pipe that has been cut in half. Riders drop in from the top at one side and glide down and then up the other side and perform tricks in the air above the pipe. The tricks involve twisting and flipping in the air, usually while grabbing the board with at least one hand.

As the half-pipe jam session began, I could sense a rush of excitement from the crowd. The whooshing and crunching sounds of the boards in the snow were soon muted by the whooping cheers of the crowd. We were all amazed by how graceful the athletes looked. Once in a while, a rider would fall. One rider missed the edge of the pipe and fell to the other side of the wall. “Ouch!” Dad said, “Did you see that fall? You know that hurt.”

The second part of the competition was a “big air” session. In this event, riders go off a jump to perform tricks in the air. Sometimes the riders would hang in the air with one arm extended. It looked like they were holding on to a handle in the sky. The last woman in the exhibition performed an inverted 720, which means she rotated twice in the air while flipping!

I was so excited that I talked the whole ride home, trying to convince my dad to let me take more snowboarding lessons. He must have been impressed, too, because he is going to let me. Next winter when you visit, I will show you what I have learned.

All my best,

Samantha
It was 6:30 in the morning, and I was in dreamland. Suddenly, my dad threw open my bedroom door with a loud bang and started tickling me until I got all tangled up in my covers and fell out of bed.

“Gosh Dad, how can you be so energetic at 6:30 on a Monday morning?” I asked with a bit of an attitude.

“Look outside and that will answer your question,” he said. It was amazing! There were snowflakes of every imaginable size. Some were as big as two inches, and some were as small as an eraser on a pencil. I could hear the wind howling past my window, as the snowflakes flew in every direction.

Dad drove slowly to the school because he couldn’t see. On the way we saw fallen trees and damaged houses. About a block away from school we saw a tree that had fallen on a car. The whole back of the car was smashed. As we turned the corner to school, I noticed that the whole east side of the school was covered with snow and ice.

I put my book on my desk and sat down. I kept the lights off because I liked to listen to the silence of an empty school.

For some odd reason, I was counting the lines on the chalkboard when all of a sudden I heard a buzzing sound and a green glowing light filled the room. I whirled around and to my astonishment, I saw a power box outside, exploding. After about four seconds, the explosion stopped as abruptly as it had started. I walked to Mrs. Hall’s room where it was also dark. She was sitting at her desk.

“Pretty cool huh,” I said.

“Very cool,” she said.
Revising

Evaluate and Revise Content, Organization, and Style

Checking It Twice  When revising your first draft or evaluating a peer’s, read through it at least twice. In the first reading, look at the content and organization of the letter, using the guidelines below. In the second reading, examine the letter at the sentence level, using the Focus on Word Choice on page 38.

First Reading: Content and Organization  Use the chart below to evaluate and revise your eyewitness account so it is clear and interesting.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Evaluation Questions</th>
<th>Tips</th>
<th>Revision Techniques</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>1 Does the introduction include an attention-grabber?</td>
<td>Underline the personal note, question, or story that grabs the reader’s attention.</td>
<td>Add an interesting question or brief story, if necessary.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2 Does the account provide background information to help the reader understand unfamiliar terms and ideas?</td>
<td>Put stars next to terms that might be unfamiliar to readers. Circle information that helps the reader understand the terms.</td>
<td>Add information or replace unclear information with more helpful details.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>3 Are the events retold in chronological order?</td>
<td>Number each event in the letter. Check that the numbers match the order in which the events happened.</td>
<td>Rearrange events in the order they happened, if necessary.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>4 Are there enough details to make the experience real for the reader?</td>
<td>With a colored marker, highlight details and vivid descriptions.</td>
<td>Elaborate on the experience by adding descriptive language to help the reader “see” it.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>5 Does the letter’s conclusion show why the experience was important?</td>
<td>Put a check mark next to statements that explain why the event was important.</td>
<td>Add thoughts or feelings that will show the importance of the event.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Second Reading: Style  You have already evaluated and revised what you say in your letter. Now look at how you say it. Look closely at each of your sentences to polish your writing. For this assignment, focus on using precise nouns and adjectives to create clear and descriptive writing. Use the following guidelines and the Focus on Word Choice on the next page to see if you need more exact words in your writing.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Evaluation Question</th>
<th>Tip</th>
<th>Revision Technique</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Does the account use precise nouns or adjectives that clearly describe the event?</td>
<td>Draw a wavy line under precise nouns and adjectives.</td>
<td>If you see few wavy lines, look through your letter for dull nouns or adjectives. Replace them with descriptive ones.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Reference Note
For more on precise words, see page 31.
Precise Nouns and Adjectives

“How was that thing you went to?”
“It was nice.”

That brief dialogue did not tell you much, did it? Nouns like “thing” and adjectives like “nice” are vague. Vague words—words that are not clear or precise—cannot give the reader of an eyewitness account enough information to understand what happened. Precise words quickly tell a reader exactly what a writer means.

- Precise nouns illustrate particular persons, places, or things. A noise can become a clank, squeak, clatter, shriek, or rattle.

- Precise adjectives describe nouns specifically. A fun amusement-park ride can be transformed into a thrilling, exhilarating, pulse-pounding ride.

Do not settle for vague, dull words in your eyewitness accounts. Make an impression with precise words.

TIP

If you cannot think of the precise noun or adjective for what you are describing, use a thesaurus. Look up the word you want to change and you will find many synonyms—different ways of expressing a similar idea.

ONE WRITER’S REVISIONS

The loud sounds of the boards in the snow were soon muted by the loud sounds of the people.

Responding to the Revision Process

How did adding precise words improve the sentence above?

YOUR TURN

Evaluating and Revising Your Eyewitness Account

- First, evaluate and revise the content and organization of your letter following the guidelines on page 36.
- Next, use the Focus on Word Choice above to help you use more precise nouns and adjectives.
- Finally, have a peer evaluate your paper. Think carefully about your peer’s comments as you revise.
Proofread Your Eyewitness Account

Second Opinions  Errors in your final letter will distract your reader. If you ask another person to proofread the letter after you have gone through it, you will be more likely to find all the mistakes.

Punctuating Dialogue

You may include dialogue, exact words spoken by people, in your account. Punctuate dialogue correctly so your reader can tell the dialogue from the rest of the text. Use quotation marks to enclose a person’s exact words.

Incorrect  Ouch Dad said did you see that fall?
Correct  “Ouch!” Dad said. “Did you see that fall?”

A direct quotation begins with a capital letter. Commas, a question mark, or an exclamation point can separate the dialogue from the rest of the sentence.

Examples:
The weather person said, “There is a seventy-percent chance of snow today.”
“Should I wear boots?” Grace asked.

When the expression identifying the speaker interrupts a quotation, commas set off the expression. The second part of the quotation then begins with a small letter.

Example:
“I like to ski,” Ian said, “but I don’t like to wait in the lines.”

A period or comma always goes inside the closing quotation marks.

Examples:
“The snowboarding exhibition begins at 9:00 A.M.,” said the ticket taker.
Dad remarked, “We have time to get some hot apple cider.”

PRACTICE

Punctuate the dialogue in each of the following sentences.

1. It’s too bad that snowboarding can be expensive said Henry.
2. When you think about it Isabel sighed everything can be expensive.
3. Do you think individual lessons are less expensive Naomi wondered.
4. Let’s take lessons during the winter break Roshanda suggested.
5. I really like the clothes snowboarders wear Cesar added especially the hats.

For more information and practice on punctuating dialogue, see pages 630–635.
Publish Your Eyewitness Account

Show the World  It is finally time to send your letter. You can now put it in an envelope and mail it, or you can e-mail it in a flash. However, with a few changes you can also use your letter in other ways. Take off the salutation and cut out any direct references to your audience, and you simply have an eyewitness account. What are some things you can do with an eyewitness account?

- Submit your eyewitness account to your local or school newspaper as an article describing the event.
- Submit it to your school’s yearbook as a historical record of events in your area, or include it in a class chronicle of the year’s events.
- Narrative and descriptive writing are often read aloud. You might read your eyewitness account to classmates.

Reflect on Your Eyewitness Account

Building Your Portfolio  Take time to reflect on your finished letter. Reflecting will help you strengthen your narrative and descriptive writing skills. Think about how you can use this kind of writing for other projects.

- What was the best description in your paper? Why do you think it was effective?
- How did you use sensory language, precise words, dialogue, and figures of speech in your writing? How could you use these types of descriptive language in other forms of writing?
- In what other forms of writing could you use narration? In what kinds of writing assignments would chronological organization be helpful?

Proofreading, Publishing, and Reflecting on Your Eyewitness Account

- Correct any grammar, usage, and mechanics errors. Be especially careful to punctuate dialogue correctly.
- Publish your eyewitness account.
- Answer the Reflect on Your Eyewitness Account questions above. Write your responses in a learning log, or include them in your portfolio.
Writing a Descriptive Essay

Eyewitness accounts and descriptive essays are both based on observation. A descriptive essay focuses on an object, such as a statue or car; on a place, such as a room or park; or on a person.

Two important skills to master in preparing to write a descriptive essay are making observations and using spatial organization.

What You See Is What They’ll Get

Close, accurate observation is essential to writing a descriptive essay. After all, how can you describe something unless you know exactly what it looks like? Once you choose the subject of your essay, you should spend at least twenty minutes observing it.

When you write the essay, you’ll want to use descriptive language: sensory details, figures of speech, and exact words. You will show your object rather than tell about it. Asking questions about your subject can help you develop and record specific details for your essay.

- What colors do you see?
- What size is the object, person, or place in relation to the surroundings?
- What shape or shapes do you see?
- What specific adjectives describe the object, person, or place?
- Can you create a simile or metaphor by comparing the object, person, or place to something else?

As you observe, focus on the special characteristics that draw your attention to the object, person, or place.

Filling Up Space

An effective way to organize a descriptive essay is by describing items according to their location. Using this spatial organization technique, you will start your description at a certain point and then move in a logical way around your subject. For example, if you were describing a dog, you might start with the dog’s face and then move along his body to his tail. Organize the description in your essay so that it moves:

- from top to bottom or bottom to top
- from near to far or far to near
- from left to right or right to left
- from inside to out or outside to in

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Words Showing Spatial Organization</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>next to</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>down</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>close</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Picture This

As you read the description on the next page, notice how author Jamaica Kincaid uses specific details and spatial organization when describing a child’s bedroom.
Lying there in the half-dark of my room, I could see my shelf, with my books—some of them prizes I had won in school, some of them gifts from my mother—and with photographs of people I was supposed to love forever no matter what, and with my old thermos, which was given to me for my eighth birthday, and some shells I had gathered at different times I spent at the sea. In one corner stood my washstand and its beautiful basin of white enamel with blooming red hibiscus painted at the bottom and an urn that matched. In another corner were my old school shoes and my Sunday shoes. In still another corner, a bureau held my old clothes. I knew everything in the room, inside out and outside in. I had lived in this room for thirteen of my seventeen years. I could see in my mind’s eye even the day my father was adding it onto the rest of the house. Everywhere I looked stood something that had meant a lot to me, that had given me pleasure at some point, or could remind me of a time that was a happy time. But as I was lying there my heart could have burst open with joy at the thought of never having to see any of it again.

Jamaica Kincaid, Annie John

Now You Try  Think of the object, person, or place you want to describe. Choose a subject with plenty of details.

After you have written a first draft, revise your essay by following the suggestions in the next column.

- Add details about the subject’s shape, size, or color.
- Include information about its overall appearance or atmosphere.
- Rearrange information to make the spatial organization clearer.

Writing a Descriptive Essay

Before you write your descriptive essay, observe your subject for at least twenty minutes and record details. Then, use spatial organization to organize your observations and write your essay. Finally, revise your essay to make it clearer and more descriptive.
A Descriptive Poem

An eyewitness account captures an event. A haiku captures a moment. A haiku is a special form of poetry that vividly describes a moment in nature.

Short and Sweet Japanese poets began writing haiku hundreds of years ago to capture a quick, clear image from nature.

The elements of haiku are simple. The poem has only three lines with a total of seventeen syllables. A syllable is part of a word that can be pronounced by itself. For example, the word thunder has two syllables, thun– and –der. In a haiku, the first and last lines contain five syllables each. The middle line has seven syllables. Notice the syllables in the following haiku.

The lightning flash-es! (5)
And slash-ing through the dark-ness (7)
A night-her-on’s screech. (5)

Matsuo Bashō, translated by Earl Minor

It’s Natural The traditional topic for a haiku is a moment in nature. Possible topics include a scene, such as a park or nature trail; an event, such as a tornado or a sunrise; an action, such as a bird flying; a feeling, such as an ocean breeze.

Choose a moment that you can describe vividly. Then, brainstorm details about the moment. You can use the senses of smell, hearing, taste, or touch, as well as sight.

Not all details are equal, though. A detail such as a pretty beach doesn’t paint a specific picture for readers. However, the words pebbled sand, scattered footprints, and abandoned sand castles do. Notice the precise details in the example haiku. See page 38 for help in using precise words.

Get Choosy To write your haiku, choose your best details and arrange them into three lines. Then, rearrange and replace words until you have re-created the moment and the feeling you want.

Once you have written a first draft of your haiku, revise it to make sure it

- clearly describes a moment in nature
- uses precise words
- captures a feeling
- contains five syllables in the first and last lines and seven in the middle line

Your Turn

Writing a Haiku

Follow the steps above to write and revise a haiku. Share your haiku by reading it aloud or illustrating it and putting it on display.
Exercising News

"I saw it on the news, so it must be important.” People gather information in many ways, but watching TV news and reading the newspaper are two of the most common ways of gaining information about the world. TV news and newspapers share the goal of presenting true and balanced information, but they differ in their choices of topics and in their presentations.

Look at the News

Writing an eyewitness account is similar to reporting the news. What is the news? It is information about current events. However, it is not an exact copy of those events. Just as your eyewitness account was your interpretation of the event, the news is only a representation of an actual event, created by the people who report it. It is a representation because we do not experience the actual event; we get information about the event through the words and images that someone else has pieced together.

Get Your News Here

One purpose of producers and editors is to provide the community with a news service. To stay in business, however, commercial news producers need to attract an audience for advertisers, who help the service stay in business. With these purposes in mind, producers and editors consider the following values when they choose what to call news.

- Timeliness Is the event something people are interested in now? Hard news stories usually tell about what has just happened or what is about to happen.

- Impact Does the event affect the audience? People pay attention to issues that have a direct effect on their lives or issues that they believe will affect them soon, such as their country’s security or world conflicts. Investigative reports, which expose something most people do not know and are reported with great detail, are often chosen for impact. Another type of story chosen for impact is a news analysis, a detailed look at a major issue in which a reporter will draw a conclusion and give opinions.

- Human Interest  Most people like to hear stories about their basic needs, such as food, shelter, and affection. They also like stories about ordinary people experiencing unusual circumstances. Feature stories, which profile everyday events, concerns, and interests of the audience, are almost always human interest stories. Hard news stories can also show elements of human interest.

- Celebrity Angle  People like to know about celebrities. A story is often more interesting to an audience if it features a movie star or other celebrity. Features and investigative reports are often about famous people.

Looking at the News

In a small group, look through newspapers to find news stories that show each one of the news values listed above and on page 44. Then, explain how each story shows that value.

TV News Versus Newspaper News

A news story will usually include the who, what, where, when, why, and how of an event. How this information is delivered will depend on the form of the news.

Turn It On or Read All About It?  Newspapers and TV news differ in the number of details and visuals used. The audience’s emotional reactions may also differ based on the form of the news.

Details  A newspaper article typically provides more in-depth details than a TV news story does. Descriptions, quotations, background information, and narration support the basic information in a newspaper article. The typical TV news story, on the other hand, provides only a quick summary of an event with limited details.
Visuals  Images are important in TV news; they tell half the story. Words—spoken or printed on the screen—form the other half. Because newspapers focus on written details, newspaper editors limit the use of photos. In both TV news and newspapers, the visuals that accompany a story influence our perception of the story.

The way news is presented affects your reaction to it. A news report can create an emotional reaction such as outrage, happiness, a desire to help, or an urge to change habits. Because the impact of visual images can be intense, TV news tends to create a stronger emotional response than print news.

Here are some ways in which television and newspaper reports might present the same story about a fire differently.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Newspaper story</th>
<th>TV news story</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>What kinds of details are in the story?</td>
<td>What are the visuals in the story?</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>detailed description of the damage done by the fire</td>
<td>■ talk of the damage done by the fire</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>quotations from fire department officials and the people who were in the building</td>
<td>■ clips from interviews with people at the scene of the fire</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>a narration of how the fire started and how it was put out</td>
<td>■ video footage of the fire burning and interviews at the scene</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Comparing a TV and Print News Story

Collect newspapers for two or three days, and watch the evening news for the same days. Then, find a news story that was covered in both the TV news and the newspaper. Compare the TV and newspaper stories, making a chart like the one above. Then, present your findings orally to the class, answering these questions:

- Which story gave you the better understanding of the issue or event?
- Which story had the greater emotional effect? Why?
- In each case, what do you think was the producer’s or editor’s purpose in running the story?
CROSSING THE CURRICULUM: ART
1. Create a World  Closely observe an object, such as a machine, a leaf, or a coin, and make a drawing of it. You might draw the object you observed for your descriptive essay, an element from your haiku, or another object. Be sure to include as many of the details of your subject as you can.

CONNECTING CULTURES
2. Once upon a Time  Folk tales, fairy tales, and other narratives from the oral tradition show up in all cultures, often as different versions of the same story. The story “Cinderella,” for example, is “Aschenputtel” in Germany and “Yeh-Shen” in China. Think of a folk tale or fairy tale that you enjoy, and research similar stories in other cultures. In a presentation, share the stories with your classmates and describe the differences.

CAREER: JOURNALISM
3. On the Beat  Think like a reporter for a week. Carry a notebook with you and go out looking for an interesting or unusual story that you could write for your school newspaper. Get together with a few other students, compare observations, and write a collaborative news story.

WRITING
4. Do You See Eye to Eye?  With a partner, choose an event or object to observe. Observe it at the same time, but do not talk to each other. Write separate descriptions of the event or object. Compare your two essays to see if your partner’s observation is different from your own. Talk about your differences.

DRAMA
5. The Way I See It  Writing is not the only way to present an eyewitness account. Communicate what you witnessed in a dramatic interpretation. Assemble a cast to act out the events from the experience you wrote about in the Writing Workshop, or star in a monologue presenting your descriptive essay aloud.
The blue light blinks at you: “12:00, 12:00, 12:00.” With VCR manual in hand, you try to follow the instructions for setting the clock. You punch buttons until, finally, you have completed every step in the directions. You have conquered the VCR! No, wait! It is still blinking “12:00, 12:00, 12:00.” In frustration, you howl, “My little sister could write better instructions!”

Instructions are all around us. They come with the electronic gadgets, frozen dinners, and games we buy. When you tell a friend how to bait a fishhook or how to get to your house, you are giving instructions. Reading and listening to instructions helps you learn new skills. Writing your own instructions lets you share what you know.

Looking at Instructions

Find several examples of instructions that tell how to do something or how to make something. Look in manuals, books, or magazines. Then, working with a partner, discuss the following questions.

- Do the instructions tell how to do or how to make something?
- Which instructions are the clearest and easiest to follow? Why?
- In general, do you think it is easier to tell how to do something or how to make something? Why do you think so?
You hear the sound faintly at first, but gradually it becomes louder. It sounds like a voice, but it is coming from . . . the chimney? People have been amazed and confused by ventriloquism for centuries. In the following reading selection, Ormond McGill explains how to “throw” your voice so that it sounds like it is coming from an attic or chimney. The selection is a chapter from a book on ventriloquism, the art of disguising the real source of a voice.

Preparing to Read

Identifying Author’s Purpose  Every time a writer sits down to write, he or she has a purpose in mind. Purpose is the reason for writing a particular article or paper. As you read the following chapter from Mr. McGill’s book on ventriloquism, think about his purpose for writing.

Order of a Process  In order to learn a process, you need to know what to do and when to do it. As you read the selection and learn how to “throw” your voice, notice the order of steps that the author uses. If you drew a map of the steps in the chapter, it might look something like this:

![Step 1 -> Step 2 -> Step 3 -> Step 4]

As you read, see if you can identify the separate steps in the process and figure out how they fit together.
You look up at the ceiling and call out to an imaginary person in the attic. The person answers you! To the amazement of the audience, you carry on a conversation with this mysterious person.

You can choose to direct your conversation toward someone up in the attic or toward someone down in the basement, if you like. The key to this performance is that you stand with your back to the audience. Your mouth movements can then be less restricted when you speak in the voice of the distant person.

Be sure to direct the audience’s attention to the attic by pointing to the ceiling and looking up at it. Call out loudly and distinctly in your natural voice. Ask some questions, as though you know there is a person up there. Remember that the success of the illusion depends on convincing the audience you believe in this imaginary presence.

Now, in exactly the same tone and pitch of voice, make the distant voice answer. But, this time, form the words at the back part of the roof of your mouth. Draw your lower jaw back and hold it there. Keep your mouth open. Inhale deeply before you speak. Then, as you speak, exhale in little jerks, using a bit of air for each word. This action will produce a sound that is subdued and muffled, just a little louder than a whisper.

You can make this distant voice appear to come gradually nearer, too. To do this, call loudly in your natural voice and say, “Come down here!” At the same time, gesture downward with your hand to increase the illusion.

Have the voice answer, “I’m coming” or “I’m getting closer now,” being sure to speak a little louder as

1. What activity is the author describing?

2. What is the main point of this paragraph?

3. Do you have any trouble following each step? Rewrite the steps in your own words.

4. What two actions happen at once in the second-to-last paragraph? How do you know?
the imaginary person approaches.

Here is an example of a conversation you might have with a person who is up inside a chimney:

You: (Look up the chimney.) Are you up there?
Voice: Yes, I'm up here sweeping the chimney.
You: What for? The chimney has already been cleaned.
Voice: I'm looking for birds' nests.
You: That's ridiculous! There aren't any birds' nests up there. . . . Now, come down out of there. . . .
Voice: All right. I'm coming . . . . I'm coming.

You can then continue your ventriloquial conversation with the voice as the person seemingly comes down the chimney. At every supposed step closer, alter the place from which the person's voice comes. Gradually open the cavity of your mouth and produce the sounds closer to your lips. You will create a larger space inside your mouth so that the voice will appear to come nearer and nearer by degrees.

By the time the person reaches the bottom of the chimney, your lips should be drawn into a circle, as though you were whistling. This movement enlarges the cavity of your mouth as much as possible.

Here is another conversation you could have with a person on the roof. Start by directing the attention of the audience upward.

You: Are you up there on the roof, Frank?
Voice: Hello down there! What did you say?
You: (shouting louder) I said, are you up there on the roof?
Voice: I sure am. I'm putting on some shingles.
You: Good. Are you almost finished?
Voice: I'm just putting on the last one now.
You: Fine. Please come on down then. I want to see you.
Voice: Okay. I'll come right down.
You: Which way are you coming, Frank? . . .

Keep the conversation going as long as you wish. Make the voice get closer and closer, and use gestures to show that Frank is descending. Finally, as the voice approaches the door, speak in the near ventriloquial voice that you learned in the previous section. Practice hard, and the illusion will be complete.
Identifying Author’s Purpose

Tell Me Why  No piece of writing happens by accident. Whenever you write a report, story, or essay, you have a purpose in mind. An author’s purpose for writing is the reason he or she writes a particular piece. Sometimes the author’s purpose is obvious. After all, the author of an owner’s manual for a CD player is not writing to express a love of electronics. That author’s purpose is to give information about how to use the CD player.

At other times, the author’s purpose will not be as clear. In every kind of writing, however, there are clues to help readers determine the author’s purpose (or purposes) for writing. The chart on the next page explains each of the four main purposes for writing and gives examples of clues that point to each purpose.

First Thoughts on Your Reading

1. What is the main idea or focus of this selection?
2. Based on the selection you have read, for whom do you think Mr. McGill wrote Voice Magic? Young people? Ventriloquists?
3. Do you think you can learn ventriloquism by using the steps in the selection? Why or why not?
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Purpose for Writing</th>
<th>Explanation</th>
<th>Clues</th>
</tr>
</thead>
</table>
| To inform           | Informative writing may teach \textit{how to} or it may teach \textit{what, how, or why}. The author’s purpose in “\textit{how-to}” writing is to teach readers how to do or make something. | “\textit{How-to}” Writing
- step-by-step instructions
- numbered steps, lists, or diagrams
- words such as \textit{first, next, and last} |
|                     | “\textit{What-how-or-why}” writing may explain what a paramecium is, how bees make honey, or why the Egyptians built pyramids. | “\textit{What-how-or-why Writing}”
- facts, statistics, examples, or definitions explaining what, how, or why
- illustrations, diagrams, maps, charts
- headings and subheadings |
| To express          | This type of writing expresses an emotion or belief, but does not try to change your beliefs. Poems and personal essays are written to express. |
- emotional words and expressions
- frequent use of the word \textit{I}
- words that show value, such as the adjectives \textit{worst, best, terrible, great} |
| To entertain        | Entertaining writing often tells a story, uses drama or humor, or features playful language. Stories, novels, poems, and plays are all written to entertain. |
- a story that has a beginning, middle, and end
- dialogue
- rhymes
- drama or humor |
| To influence        | Persuasive writing tries to convince the reader to share the writer’s opinion. |
- statements of opinion, backed up by facts, statistics, and examples
- words like \textit{should, must, and have to}
- words that show value, such as the adjectives \textit{worst, best, terrible, great} |

Try identifying the author’s purpose in the following paragraph. If you get stuck, use the Thinking It Through on the next page.

Over two thousand schools use peer-mediation programs. How does peer mediation work? Starting as early as the third grade, students can be trained to mediate, or help work out, other students’ conflicts. Student mediators help peers to understand the source of the conflict, to listen to each other, and to arrive at a “win-win” solution.
Order of a Process

Take It One Step at a Time Have you ever taught a young child to do something? If you have, you probably had to show the child how to proceed step by step—explaining the first step first, the second step second, and so on, to the end. When you explain something this way, you are following chronological order (or time order). Most “how-to” writing uses chronological order because it is the clearest way to explain a process.

As you read “how-to” explanations, certain clue words let you know that the steps are listed in chronological order. Some of these clue words appear below.

- as
- before
- finally
- next
- then
- at the same time
- during
- first
- second
- while

I see a statistic, “Over two thousand schools...” The purpose could be to inform or to influence.

The statistics don’t seem to back an opinion. They seem to explain peer mediation, because the author also says, “How does peer mediation work?” I think the writer is mainly trying to inform me about what and how.

YOUR TURN 2 Identifying an Author’s Purpose

Using the chart on page 54 and the Thinking It Through steps above, jot down your thoughts as you figure out the author’s purpose in “The Voice in the Attic.” Then, complete these sentences:

The author’s purpose is ____. I know this because ____.
Charting a Path One way to make sure you understand the order of instructions is to create a flowchart. A flowchart is a map that shows the steps in a process. Flowcharts use arrows to indicate the order of steps. Read the following paragraph and the flowchart below it. Notice how you can use a flowchart to show that two steps happen at the same time.

Veggie pizza is a tasty, nutritious snack. First, you need to make or buy pizza dough. Then, preheat the oven. While the oven heats, put toppings like tomato sauce, mushrooms, onions, and cheese on the dough. Pop it in the oven, and soon you’ll have a great snack to share with your friends.

---

Some instructions can be hard to follow. Occasionally, writers omit, or leave out, details or entire steps because they assume that readers already know them. In the example above, the writer did not tell you to take the pizza out of the oven. However, you would know that in order to eat the pizza, you need to remove it from the oven. Missing steps can be frustrating, but if you draw on your experience, you can often figure out what to do.

---

YOUR TURN

Mapping the Order of a Process

- Re-read “The Voice in the Attic” on pages 51–52. Then, make a flowchart like the one above. Use clue words like those on page 55 to help you figure out the order of the steps necessary to “throw” your voice. Fill in each step as it is listed in the reading selection.

- Would you have added any steps or details about steps? If so, what types of information would you have added? Write your additions below your flowchart.
Identifying Greek and Latin Word Roots

Instructions may define unfamiliar words. If they do not, you can figure out the meanings of some words by using common word roots. The word root is the main part of a word. Many English roots come from ancient Greek and Latin.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Greek Root</th>
<th>Meaning</th>
<th>Examples</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>–bio–</td>
<td>life</td>
<td>biology</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>–cycl–, –cyclo–</td>
<td>circle, wheel</td>
<td>bicycle</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>–graph–</td>
<td>writing</td>
<td>biography</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>–ton–, –tonos–</td>
<td>sound</td>
<td>monotone</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Latin Root</th>
<th>Meaning</th>
<th>Examples</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>–aud–, –audi–</td>
<td>hear</td>
<td>audible</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>–cav–, –cava–</td>
<td>hollow</td>
<td>cave</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>–lud–, –lus–</td>
<td>trick</td>
<td>elude</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>–strict–</td>
<td>draw tight</td>
<td>constrict</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Thinking It Through

The steps below show how word roots can help you define the word ventri-loquial from “The Voice in the Attic.”

STEP 1 Separate any roots from the rest of the word, and define them.

–Venti– means “stomach” or “belly,” and –loqui– means “speaking.”

STEP 2 Use the meanings of the roots to guess the word’s meaning. Then, see if your meaning makes sense in the word’s original context.

–Venti– plus –loqui– means “belly speaking.” The reading selection is about talking without moving your lips, which seems like speaking from the belly.

Practice

Based on their roots, define these words from “The Voice in the Attic.”

1. audience (page 51)
2. restricted (page 51)
3. illusion (page 51)
4. tone (page 51)
5. cavity (page 52)

Reference Note

For more on word roots, see page 754 in the Quick Reference Handbook.
Identifying Sequence of Events

When you take reading tests, you may find questions about the sequence, or order, of events in a reading selection. Read the following passage and the question after it. If this were a reading test, how would you go about answering this question?

When you use your imagination, you can create an exercise program for yourself that is fun and healthy. First, decide whether you want to work out for a particular sport or just for overall improved health. If you want to focus on one sport, talk to the coaches at your school to find out which kind of exercises are best for that sport. Then, think about how much time you would like to spend exercising each week. After you have determined when and how often to exercise, try to add a little variety. For example, if you usually work out in a gym, try taking your exercise routine outside. Adding variety to your workout will help you stick with it and be a happier, healthier person.

According to the reading passage, what should you do after you decide when and how often to exercise each week?

A. Choose a type of workout to do.
B. Add variety to your workout.
C. Talk to your coach.
D. Stick with your workout routine.

The question asks what step comes after another step. “After” tells me it is asking about chronological order.

I found “first,” “then,” and “after.”

“After you have determined when and how often to exercise, try to add a little variety.” There’s my answer.

Answers A and C both happen before you decide when and how often to exercise. D is the last step mentioned. B matches my response best. It must be correct.
Writing Instructions

“Show me how to shoot a free throw,” a little boy says to his older sister. To him, she is an expert. Like the boy’s big sister, you, too, are an expert on something, no matter who you are or where you live. You have unique skills and talents. Do not keep all of that knowledge to yourself—share it with the world!

One way to share what you know is by writing instructions that teach your reader how to do something. In this workshop you will explore your expert knowledge to write instructions for a process. As you develop your ideas, you may learn even more about that process than you knew when you started.

Choose a Topic

How to . . . What? You know how to do so many things. To write your instructions, however, you need to choose just one thing to explain. Instructions can either tell how to make something or how to do something. For example, a recipe for banana bread tells how to make something, while a Web site on dog training tells how to do something.

In this workshop, you will focus on writing instructions for an activity or process that you do, rather than for something you make. The topic you decide to write about should be something you know how to do well enough to explain. After all, you cannot tell someone else how to play the guitar if you have never played a note yourself.
Brainstorm about things you enjoy doing. If you need help coming up with ideas, think about these questions.
- If I could do any activity I wanted to right now, what would it be?
- Am I proud of any special skill, talent, or trick? If so, what?

Evaluate Your Topic

Testing the Water Before you begin writing, make sure you have picked the right topic. The chart that follows shows how one student evaluated three topics based on these questions.
- Is the topic something I do or something I make?
- Do I know how to do it? How well?
- Is the topic interesting or unusual?

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Topic</th>
<th>Something I do or make?</th>
<th>Can I do it? How well?</th>
<th>Is it interesting or unusual?</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Flying a kite</td>
<td>Do</td>
<td>Yes. I won third place in a kite contest.</td>
<td>Yes. It’s a lot of fun.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Making bread</td>
<td>Make</td>
<td>Kind of. I only made it once.</td>
<td>Yes. Fresh bread tastes great!</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Tying my shoes</td>
<td>Do</td>
<td>Yes, I’ve been doing it since I was four or five.</td>
<td>No. I tie my shoes all the time.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Because the assignment calls for something to do, not make, the student chose not to write about making bread. He settled on flying a kite as the more interesting topic of the two remaining.

YOUR TURN

Choosing and Evaluating a Topic

Make a list of possible topics for your instructions. Then, evaluate your topics by making a chart like the one above. Choose a topic that is something you know how to do well and find interesting.
Reflect on Your Audience and Purpose

Who and Why

Before you start writing, think about your audience and your purpose. First, ask yourself, “Who will be reading my instructions?” It may be your classmates, a teacher, or a younger brother or sister. In any case, you should write for readers who do not know how to do the activity you have picked but want to learn.

Next, think about your purpose. Your purpose answers the question, “Why am I writing?” You are writing for a very specific reason: to teach someone how to do something. To make your instructions effective, make them as clear and simple as possible. Notice how the student writing about kite flying analyzed his audience in the Thinking It Through below.

THINKING IT THROUGH

Writing for a Specific Audience

▸ STEP 1 Ask yourself:

- Who is my audience?

  students my age who have no experience with kites

- What is my purpose?

  to explain how to fly a kite

▸ STEP 2 Consider any special words or names that go with your topic. Decide how you might make these ideas clear to a beginner.

- There aren’t any special words or names I know of in kite flying.

- Someone might need to know where to get a kite, though.

▸ STEP 3 Identify any parts of this activity that are easier to show than tell. Decide how you can make these parts clearer to your audience.

- It’s easier to show than to tell how a kite takes off. I can write down the steps as I imagine getting a kite off the ground to make this action clear.

YOUR TURN

Thinking About Your Audience and Purpose

With your topic in mind, consider the audience for your “how-to” paper and the purpose for which you are writing it. To figure out how to match your instructions to your audience, use the Thinking It Through steps above.
Gather and Organize Information

Pretend You Are Talking to a Two-Year-Old  Even if your audience does not include young children, pretend for a moment that it does. Then, jot down every single thing a small child would need to know. Make two lists: one for the materials needed to complete your activity and the other for the steps. Later, as you put the steps in order, you can decide whether you have included more steps than your audience will need.

Order Put Directions In  Re-read the heading to the left. It does not make sense because it was written in the wrong order. Putting steps in the correct order helps your audience successfully follow your instructions. Most instructions are written in chronological (or time) order. They explain what comes first, what comes second, and so on.

You can organize your list of steps by numbering each step to show its place in the process. To decide the order of your steps, ask yourself the following questions.

- Is one step a better place to start than the others? What is the very first thing a beginner should do? Make this step the first step.
- Is there any step on which other steps depend? If so, this step must come before the ones that depend on it.

The following example shows one student’s list of steps and materials. First, the student wrote down all the steps. Then, he added numbers showing the correct order of the steps.

Topic: how to fly a kite

Materials: a kite and string

Steps:

1. Find out what direction the wind is blowing.
2. Hold the kite so the wind can pick it up.
3. When the wind catches the kite, let out string so the kite won’t crash.
4. As the kite gets higher, gradually let out more string.
5. Walk backwards to keep the string tight.
6. When you’re done, roll up string slowly and the kite will come down.
Did You Leave Something Out? Remember that your audience members are counting on you to teach them about this activity, so make your instructions as complete as possible. Remember to define words that your audience might not understand. Also, look back over your steps while you imagine doing the activity. Then, add any missed steps and adjust your numbering. Notice how the student writing about kite flying put his first three steps in order but then realized he needed to add a new step one.

Map It Out Another way to make sure you have included each step in the correct order is to create a flowchart. A flowchart is a map of an activity or process. Most flowcharts are linear; that is, they go from step to step in chronological order. Seeing each step in the order it happens helps you make sure your instructions are complete.

How to Fly a Kite

1. Find an open space.
   Steps:
   2  FIND OUT WHAT DIRECTION THE WIND IS BLOWING.
   3  HOLD THE KITE SO THE WIND CAN PICK IT UP.
   4  WHEN THE WIND CATCHES THE KITE, LET OUT STRING SO THE KITE WON'T CRASH.

Planning Your Instructions

Follow the examples on pages 62–63 as you complete these steps.

- Make a list of the materials your activity requires.
- Make a list of the steps in your activity. Put the steps in chronological order by writing numbers next to them.
- Check for steps you may have left out, and add them. Rerunumber your steps if necessary.
- Finally, create a flowchart of the activity.
Writing

Instructions for a Process

Framework

Introduction
- Interesting opening
- Statement of topic
- Reason for learning

Body
- Materials
- Step 1 explanation (with relevant details)
- Step 2 explanation (with relevant details) and so on

Conclusion
- Restatement of reason for learning
- Advice for doing process

Directions and Explanations

You may grab your reader’s attention with advice about when to use the process or do the activity. Include a statement of the topic so your audience knows what you are teaching them to do. Make your reader pay attention by giving a reason for learning this skill—perhaps it is fun, useful, or impressive.

Start by giving a list of materials needed. Make sure you support this list with explanations and examples. To organize the body of your paper, use these tips:
- Think back to when you learned the process or activity. Were there steps that confused you? Elaborate on those steps with relevant details.
- If any step requires a long explanation, put that step in its own paragraph.
- Use transition words such as first, next, and finally, and prepositional phrases such as at the same time. (For more on transitions, see page 302.)

Summarize the reason for learning the activity. Finally, give your reader some parting advice, such as a general tip on how to be successful or how to enjoy doing the activity.

YOUR TURN

Writing Your First Draft

Now it is your turn to draft instructions. As you write, refer to the framework above, the Writer’s Model on the next page, and the Critical Thinking Mini–Lesson on page 68.
Go Fly a Kite!

Get up off the couch! Outside it is a beautiful, windy day. It is far too nice to sit and watch reruns on television. Windy days are made for flying kites. Learning how to fly a kite is simple, and flying kites can be a fun form of exercise. Nothing beats seeing a kite sail high into the clouds.

Of course, the first thing you need is a kite and a ball of string. You can buy your kite and string at a toy or hobby shop. Most kites need to be assembled before you can fly them. Follow the instructions in the package to put your kite together. Then tie the loose end of the string to the hole in the middle of the kite and wait for a windy day.

When the perfect day arrives, one with wind that is not too strong, find an open space, such as a field, where you can fly your kite. It is important not to fly it near trees or power lines because the kite can get caught, and you might not get it back. Then you will be back to watching reruns on TV.

Before flying your kite, figure out which way the wind is blowing. You can do this by observing the way the trees are bending or by throwing a few blades of grass into the air. To begin flying your kite, stand with your back to the wind and hold the kite up so the wind can catch it. Let out about three feet of string or else your kite will just crash after the wind hits it. If the day is not very windy, you may need to get your kite started by running while holding the kite up with a little string let out.

Once the wind catches your kite, gradually let out more and more string so the kite can climb higher into the air. At the same time, walk backwards a few steps to keep the string tight. If the string has too much slack, the kite may start to dip or act as though it is going to crash.
that your kite is up in the air, you can decide how long to fly it and how high you want it to go.

Eventually, you will need to bring your kite down.
After all, you will probably need to do your homework sometime! To bring your kite back in, slowly wind up the string. Try not to pull your kite in too fast or it may crash.
If your kite does start to crash, slowly let out more string and wait for the wind to catch the kite. Then, start winding up the string again, more slowly and carefully this time.

Flying a kite is a great way to spend a breezy afternoon. If you follow these steps carefully, you will have something more fun to do than sitting inside and watch-ning reruns. You may even decide to form a kite club with some friends and trade or build kites. So on the next windy day, get up off of the couch. Go fly a kite!
How to Choose a Puppy

Everyone knows that puppies are cute. What some people don’t know is that a puppy requires planning and responsibility, even before you bring it home. By following the steps below, you can find the puppy that is right for you and make a home that is right for your puppy.

Before adopting a puppy, you must prepare for one. Make sure you have a crate or area set aside in your home for the puppy to stay in when you are not around. Have all the supplies you will need before you bring the puppy home. You should have a collar and leash, some toys, and puppy food. You may want to consider fencing in a part of your yard.

After you have decided to get a puppy, and you are prepared and have all necessary supplies, you need to decide where to get one. The best place to go adopt a puppy is an animal shelter. Animal shelters usually have a wide variety of puppies that people have abandoned.

When choosing a puppy, you should look for one with good qualities. The puppy should not be too timid or too aggressive. It should respond to noises and allow you to pet it. It should appear healthy and have all necessary vaccinations.

After picking out a puppy you like, take that puppy into a separate room. Sit down on the floor, and call it. The puppy should come, or at least look at you. If it does not come, walk over and pet the puppy, letting it smell your hand first. If it cringes or snarls, you may want to think twice about adopting it. Overly aggressive or submissive puppies require a lot of patience to train. . . .
The following sentences are instructions for shooting a basketball free throw. On a piece of paper, number from 1 to 5. Write R if the sentence following the number in brackets contains relevant details. Write I if the sentence contains irrelevant details.

You can shoot free throws much better if you learn the technique.

1. Before you shoot, help yourself relax by following a routine, such as bouncing the ball or taking a deep breath.
2. My brother likes to play basketball, but he's a lousy free-throw shooter.
3. Hold the ball out in front of you with your hands on the sides.
4. Basketball is one of the most popular sports in America today.
5. As you release the ball, push the ball off your hands with a flip of your wrist.
Evaluate and Revise Content, Organization, and Style

Doing a Double Take Whether you are evaluating and revising your own paper or evaluating a peer’s, read the paper twice. The first time, look at big issues, such as content and organization. The second time, ask whether each sentence is as clear as it can be.

First Reading: Content and Organization Use this chart to evaluate and revise your paper so your instructions are effective and easy to follow.

Instructions for a Process: Content and Organization Guidelines for Self-Evaluation and Peer Evaluation

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Evaluation Questions</th>
<th>Tips</th>
<th>Revision Techniques</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>1 Does the introduction clearly state what the activity or process is?</td>
<td>Put a star next to the statement that tells what activity or process will be explained.</td>
<td>If needed, add a sentence telling what the activity or process is.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2 Does the introduction give the reader a reason to learn the activity or process?</td>
<td>Underline the reason for learning the activity or process.</td>
<td>Add a reason why the reader should learn to do the activity or process.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>3 Do the steps show a logical progression of ideas?</td>
<td>Write a number in the margin next to each step and compare the numbers to the flow chart from prewriting.</td>
<td>Rearrange steps that are confusing or out of order, if necessary.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>4 Do any steps need additional explanation?</td>
<td>Use a highlighter to mark any explanation that follows a step.</td>
<td>Elaborate any step that needs more explanation.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>5 Are all details relevant to the instructions?</td>
<td>Look at the highlighted explanations. Write an R by relevant details and an I by irrelevant ones.</td>
<td>Delete all irrelevant details, and replace them with helpful, relevant details and examples.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>6 Does the conclusion restate the reason for learning this process and end with advice?</td>
<td>Put a check mark next to the sentence that restates the reason for learning the process. Draw a wavy line under the advice for using the process.</td>
<td>Add a restatement of the reason for learning the process. Add some advice for using the process successfully.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Before flying your kite, figure out which way the wind is blowing. You can do this by observing the way the trees are bending or by throwing a few blades of grass into the air. I like the grass method because when I throw the blades in the air, my dog jumps up and tries to catch them. It is very funny to watch. To begin flying your kite, stand with your back to the wind and hold the kite up so the wind can catch it. Let out about three feet of string or else your kite will just crash after the wind hits it. If the day is not very windy, you may need to get your kite started by running while holding the kite up with a little string let out.

Responding to the Revision Process

1. Why do you think the writer deleted two sentences?
2. Why do you think the writer added a sentence?

Second Reading: Style

Now you are ready to begin fine-tuning the individual sentences in your instructions. One way to improve your sentences is by using transitional phrases, phrases that connect ideas.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Evaluation Question</th>
<th>Tip</th>
<th>Revision Technique</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Are there any phrases that help the reader move from one step to another?</td>
<td>Circle each transitional phrase.</td>
<td>Add transitional phrases to paragraphs without any circled phrases.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Prepositional Phrases

Some transitional phrases are prepositional phrases. A prepositional phrase consists of a preposition followed by a noun or pronoun and any modifiers of the noun or pronoun. Prepositional phrases can help you show the order of steps involved in a process. Prepositional phrases help you improve the coherence, or connectedness, of your instructions by showing how all of your ideas relate to one another. Using a tightly knit style will help you achieve your purpose for writing instructions.

Below are a few examples of prepositional phrases. In each example, the preposition is in boldface.

- about 3:00
- at the same time
- during this step
- after lunch
- before finishing
- until dawn

ONE WRITER’S REVISIONS

Once the wind catches your kite, gradually let out more and more string so the kite can climb higher into the air. Walk backwards a few steps to keep the string tight.

Responding to the Revision Process

How did adding a prepositional phrase improve the instructions?

Evaluating and Revising Your Instructions

- First, evaluate and revise the content and organization of your essay using the guidelines on page 69.
- Next, use the Style Guidelines on page 70 and the Focus on Sentences above to help you add transitional phrases to your instructions.
- If a peer evaluated your paper, think carefully about each of your peer’s comments as you revise.
Proofread Your Instructions

Catching Your Mistakes  Errors in the final draft of your instructions will be distracting to your readers. Mistakes may even steer your readers in the wrong direction as they try to learn from your instructions. Have a peer help you find mistakes.

Commas with Introductory Prepositional Phrases

A prepositional phrase includes a preposition, a noun or pronoun, and any modifiers of the noun or pronoun. An introductory phrase is one that comes at the beginning of a sentence.

You need a comma after two or more introductory prepositional phrases.

Example:
At the ends of the basketball court, you should see the two backboards.

Use a comma after a single introductory prepositional phrase only if you need the comma to avoid confusing your reader.

Example:
After breakfast, sausage production begins.

Reference Note
For more information and practice on using commas with introductory prepositional phrases, see page 613.

Practice

Decide whether a comma should follow any of the introductory prepositional phrases in each sentence. Rewrite the sentence on your paper with the comma in the correct place, or write C on your paper for correct sentences. The introductory prepositional phrases have been underlined for you.

Example:
1. By the mid-twenties advertising was a mainstay of American society.
   1. C

1. After World War I soldiers returned home to a booming economy, and advertising became a billion-dollar business.

2. To many consumers in the twenties a product endorsement by a famous person was as good as a guarantee.

3. At this time even Eleanor Roosevelt promoted a breakfast food.

4. Across the nation during this decade new stores were built to fill the demand created by the advertisers.

5. In the mid-twenties one grocery chain had 14,000 stores.
Publish Your Instructions

Putting It All Together  Now your instructions are ready to be used. How can you get those instructions into the hands of people who need them?

- Make an illustrated book of your instructions to present to your school library. You might get together with several classmates and combine your instructions into one handy manual.
- Give your instructions to a class in a different grade. Arrange a demonstration of your activity or process for the class.

Reflect on Your Instructions

Building Your Portfolio  Finally, it is time to reflect on your instructions. Reflecting can help you improve on future assignments.

- Which details and explanations in your instructions are the most effective? Why do you think they are more effective than others?
- Think about how you planned the order of steps in your instructions. Did you use any techniques that you might use in another type of writing? What are these techniques?

Proofreading, Publishing, and Reflecting on Your Instructions

- Proofread to correct grammar, usage, and mechanics errors. In particular, look for comma errors.
- Publish your instructions so that they can be used.
- Answer the Reflect on Your Instructions questions above. Record your responses in a learning log, or include them in your portfolio.

Using illustrations  Illustrations can make your instructions clearer for your audience. You can draw diagrams, maps, or illustrations by hand and add them to your final draft.

If you prefer, you can take photographs of a friend following your instructions. Then, paste the photos onto your final paper. If available, use a scanner to put photos into a computer file, or use a digital camera. Using any of these techniques will help you create an impressive, illustrated final draft.

Reference Note  For more on illustration, see page 789 in the Quick Reference Handbook.
Explaining “How-to” for Tests

Sometimes a prompt on a writing test asks you to explain how to make something or the process involved in doing something. The essay that you write for this type of prompt is called a “how-to” paper. To the right is a “how-to” prompt from a writing test. How would you answer this prompt?

Making arts and crafts is a popular hobby. Think about something you like to make, such as a model airplane or tie-dyed T-shirts. Write a letter to a friend explaining how to make your favorite craft. Be sure to include examples and specific details to explain your steps.

STEP 1
- First, decide exactly what the prompt is asking you to do.
  I need to explain how to make a craft, such as a model airplane.
- Then, figure out who the audience for your paper is.
  The audience is a friend.
- Finally, decide on the form of your paper.
  The form is a letter.
  (For more on letters, see page 798 in the Quick Reference Handbook.)

STEP 2 Decide the topic of your “how-to” paper.

STEP 3 Brainstorm a list of the steps that readers will need to follow or understand. Then, put the steps in order by using a flowchart or some other graphic organizer.

STEP 4 Use your brainstorming notes to write your “how-to” paper. Write an introductory paragraph that tells readers what to expect from your paper. Then, write other paragraphs that thoroughly explain each step. Make each major step its own paragraph, and include a list of the materials needed.

STEP 5 Re-read your “how-to” paper, and add details and explanations if you need to make steps clearer.

TIP When writing a process explanation for a test, do not use illustrations to explain your steps. Also, write in essay format, without numbered lists. Your essay will be evaluated only on the way you express yourself in words, not numbers or illustrations.
Giving Directions

Oral Directions  Have you ever given someone directions to get somewhere and wound up explaining the steps over and over again to a confused listener? Giving directions orally is difficult because you usually do not have an opportunity to plan what you will say. Remembering a few steps can make you a better guide when someone asks for your help.

- Ask questions to make sure you understand where the person asking for directions wants to go.
- Visualize the route in your mind and explain it step by step.
- Mention well-known landmarks to help the lost person get oriented. A landmark does not have to be an important building or historical place. Often, the best landmarks are signs for businesses, colorful buildings, or places with odd names.

Written Directions  Of course, many times you need to give written directions. For example, if you throw a birthday party for your best friend, you might include directions in the invitation to help your friends find your house. When you give written directions, you should follow the same steps for oral directions, with the following additions.

- Write the instructions in numbered or bulleted steps or other manageable chunks instead of in paragraph form.
- Write legibly. You may choose to write cursive or manuscript, but be sure that your audience will be able to read the directions.
- Draw a map on the same page. The combination of written directions and a map will make it more likely that people will easily find your party.

YOUR TURN 10  Giving Directions

Think of a place close to your home or school, and explain to a classmate how to get there. Then, write down directions to the same place and show them to your classmate. Switch roles, and then discuss these questions with your partner.

- Which was easier: giving oral or written directions? Why?
- Which is more effective when you ask for directions: getting them orally or having them written down? Why?
Following Oral Instructions

"Attention, students! All students with last names beginning with A through M should report to Room 206 at 10:15 A.M. for school pictures. Students with names beginning N through Z report to Room 208 at 10:45 A.M. Afterwards, please turn in order forms in Room 315."

Do announcements like this make your head spin? You probably hear oral instructions every day. For example,

- in class when your teacher gives an assignment
- when your sister explains how to get to the museum
- when your uncle explains how to bait a hook and clean a fish

You can improve your ability to follow oral instructions by learning to listen.

Learning to Listen

The ability to follow oral instructions is a skill you need for life. Why is it sometimes hard to follow spoken instructions? Maybe you “tune out” for a minute, only to realize later that you have missed something important. Maybe the speaker uses terms that you do not understand.

Most people hear what is being said, but they may not really listen. Listening is an active process. It involves trying to interpret the main points, as well as verbal and nonverbal cues. Cues are hints or clues a speaker gives to help listeners follow speech. Verbal cues are spoken hints, while nonverbal cues are unspoken hints such as movements, facial expressions, and gestures. The chart on the next page shows some common verbal and nonverbal cues.
Tricks for Tuning In  In addition to using verbal and nonverbal cues, you should focus on the speaker to get the main points. You will miss important information if you are gazing out the window or doodling instead of taking notes. To keep yourself from “tuning out,” try to avoid such distractions.

Taking Notes

As you listen to oral instructions, you may need to take notes. Jotting down a few key phrases and steps can help you remember what was said. As you take notes, keep the following points in mind.

- Do not try to write down every word. Instead, focus on key words and phrases.
- Abbreviate frequently used words or phrases. Just remember to make a key so you do not forget what your abbreviations mean.
- Jot down questions or put question marks by steps that confuse you. Look back to your notes if the speaker asks for questions.

Asking Questions

As you listen, think about whether you are understanding what you hear. Ask questions to clarify anything you do not fully understand. You ask questions all the time, but you might not realize that there are “dos and don’ts” when it comes to asking questions. The chart on the next page lists some of the most important “dos and don’ts” to remember when you need to ask a question.
What to Do
- Wait until the speaker pauses before you ask a question.
- Ask specific questions that show you have been listening.
- Ask in a clear, loud voice.
- Read notes back to the speaker to make sure they are correct.

What Not to Do
- Do not blurt out a question while the speaker is still talking.
- Do not ask vague questions such as “What are you talking about?”
- Do not mumble the question.
- Do not assume you can figure out anything you did not understand.

---

YOUR TURN 11

Following Oral Instructions

For this activity, work in groups of three or four students. Each of you will need several sheets of paper and a pen or pencil.

1. Draw a simple picture. Do not let anyone else in your group see it.
2. Describe your picture. Each of the other group members should listen, take notes, ask questions, then draw the picture.
3. Share your picture with the group. Discuss the similarities and differences of the pictures each group member created.
4. Complete the steps above using a picture and oral instructions from each member of the group. Then, talk about what group members learned about giving and listening to instructions.

---

Reference Note

For more on speaking and listening in a group discussion, see page 763 in the Quick Reference Handbook.
Choose one of the following activities to complete.

► CROSSING THE CURRICULUM: ART
1. That Covers It Create a cover for a “how-to” video based on the paper you wrote. Remember that a cover should catch people’s attention and give them information about the video. Include pictures, eye-catching headlines and titles, and a brief summary of the contents of the program.

► CAREERS
2. What Goes on in Your Mind? Do you ever wonder how your favorite author develops ideas for his or her books? Get together with two or three classmates and write a letter asking an author about his or her creative process. Compare the response you receive with those received by your classmates.

► CROSSING THE CURRICULUM: HISTORY
3. How It Was Done Choose an activity, such as mummification or shipbuilding, and find out how it was performed in an ancient civilization. Research the step-by-step process used in the activity. Create a flowchart of the process, including important steps and explanations. Share what you have learned with a small group of classmates.

► CROSSING THE CURRICULUM: SCIENCE
4. What Makes It Tick? Are you the kind of person who likes to figure out what makes things work? Choose a simple mechanical device like a door-knob or a kitchen tool, and figure out what makes it work. Explain the process in a technical drawing, or write a short essay explaining how this device works.

► CREATIVE WRITING
5. How to Create a Snicker Poetry is a form of writing that is meant to entertain or express, often through humor. A process with missed steps, or a simply ridiculous process, can be funny. Tickle someone’s funny bone by writing a humorous “how-to” poem.
When you walk into a supermarket, you know that similar types of foods are grouped together. For example, if you need an orange, you know that you should go to the produce section. Sorting items into different categories is known as classification. The supermarket organizes the items in a way that makes sense so you can find them quickly and easily.

Classification is a good way to sort not just things but also ideas. For example, when you need to make a decision, you can sort out the pros and cons, or advantages and disadvantages, of a topic.

Understanding Classification

On your own paper, brainstorm the pros and cons, or advantages and disadvantages, of being a seventh-grader or of having an older/younger sibling. Here is an example.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Having a Little Brother</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Advantages</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Someone looks up to me.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Compare your responses with those of another student.
Would you like to attend an all-girls or all-boys school? The article on the next page investigates the advantages and disadvantages of all-girls schools. The writer’s goal is to present a balanced look at the topic of single-sex schools. Once you have read about the advantages and disadvantages of all-girls schools, you can make your own decision about the topic.

Preparing to Read

Advantage/Disadvantage Structure The author of the following article organizes her discussion of advantages and disadvantages, or pros and cons, in a certain way. As you read, watch for clues the author gives to let you know whether she is discussing an advantage or a disadvantage.

Making Inferences: Drawing Conclusions Sometimes, instead of fully explaining every point in an article, an author leaves some “blanks” for the reader to fill. In order to fill in these blanks, the reader must draw conclusions. Readers draw conclusions by combining the details found in an article with what they already know about the topic. As you read the following article, look for places where the author leads you to draw your own conclusions.
Do girls get a better education in all-girls schools? Would you want to go to a school where there were no students of the opposite sex?

by Alexandra Hanson-Harding

1. Thirteen-year-old Maryam Zohne used to be shy. “I always used to try to sneak out of giving presentations in school,” she says. In sixth grade, she never spoke up in class. Not any more.

Now in the eighth grade, she is the president of the student body at her school. What made the difference? For the past two years, Maryam has gone to an all-girls public school—the Young Women’s Leadership School of East Harlem, in New York City. “I feel more open,” says Maryam. “The girls here are like sisters.”

2. Nicole Flores, who goes to the same school, agrees. “You gain more confidence in this school,” she says. “We’ve learned how to speak in a strong, respectful way.”

In 1992, the American Association of University Women (AAUW) published a study called How Schools Fail Girls. It said that girls often do not get the same educational opportunities as boys. When boys and girls are in the same classroom, the report said, boys speak out more and teachers call on them more often to answer questions.

What can be done? One solution, say some experts, is to establish more single-sex public schools—such as the Young Women’s Leadership School. Today, however, there are only a handful of such public schools. By contrast, there are hundreds of private and parochial (church-related) schools just for girls or just for boys.

Changed Its Mind

Last month, the AAUW released a new study. It said that girls in single-sex schools tend to be more confident in traditionally male subjects such as math and science. The new study found, however, that girls in single-sex schools do not make higher test scores in those subjects.

As a result of this study, some people are changing their minds about the benefits of single-sex schools. As Janice Weinman of the AAUW says: “What the report says is that single-sex education is not the silver bullet [magical solution that solves a problem].”

Are single-sex schools a good idea—especially for girls? Or is there a better solution? Here are some of the arguments on both sides.

Yes! Single-Sex Schools Help

Many experts say that single-sex schools are a good thing, especially for girls. They point to studies that show that teachers tend to call on boys more and take the work of girls less seriously. “Too often, girls receive praise for how they look and how they behave rather than for what they accomplish and what ideas they have,” says Whitney Ransome, executive director of the National Coalition of Girls Schools.

All-girls schools can make girls more confident at crucial times of their lives, says Ransome—especially during the middle school and high school years.

Maryam Zohne agrees. “This school isn’t for all girls,” she says. “It’s for girls who want the confidence to move on in life. Some girls have the tools they need already.”

Whitney Ransome says that all-girls schools work because, “When there are all girls in the classroom, the culture changes. You’re not a second-class citizen because of your gender. . . . You’re surrounded by people who look like you, think like you, and empower you.”

No! Not the Solution

Chris Dunn, a lawyer for the New York Civil Liberties Union (NYCLU), is opposed to the idea of single-sex public schools. The NYCLU fought against the opening of the Young Women’s Leadership School. Dunn says that the idea of “separate but equal” schools is unconstitutional.
“If a person can’t go to a public school just because he’s a boy, that’s discrimination,” he told JS. When the government runs schools, it needs to provide an excellent educational environment for all students.”

Would the NYCLU still object if New York City opened a separate all-boys school with equal facilities? Yes, says Dunn. “If a school district has four hundred buses and they won’t let white students on ten of them, that’s still discrimination,” he says.

Some educators say that single-sex schools fix only part of the problem. “What the research shows is that boys and girls both thrive when the elements of good education are there—elements like smaller classes, focused academic curriculum, and gender-fair instruction,” says the AAUW’s Janice Weinman.

The problem of unequal treatment will not be solved by putting girls in all-girls classes, say these educators. The solution, they say, is to make the classroom a better place to learn for everyone. Since 95 percent of all girls in the U.S. are in mixed-sex classes, that is where the problem should be solved.

How? By emphasizing “equality, better coeducation, and an end to discrimination against girls in the classroom,” says Ann Connor of the National Organization for Women (NOW). “To be a leader, you have to interact with both sexes. You have to learn to be a leader of both men and women.”

What Kind of School for You?

Students at the Young Women’s Leadership School think that they are learning plenty about leadership. “I’ve learned to speak up for myself, voice my opinion, and not to be negative,” says Melique Birks, thirteen.

Contrary to what students in coed classes may think, Melique does not feel that she is missing out on the chance to meet people of the opposite sex. “You’re focused on your work during the day, and after school you can meet boys,” she says.

Nicole Flores agrees: “The school’s not responsible for your meeting boys—it’s responsible for teaching you to learn.”

5. Would the NYCLU object if New York City opened a separate all-boys school? Why or why not?

6. Based on this paragraph and on what you know, are boys and girls treated differently in the classroom? Explain your answer.
Advantage/Disadvantage Structure

What Are the Pros and Cons? The purpose of advantages/disadvantages writing is to present both the advantages and disadvantages of a topic so that a reader can get information to make a decision. To help the reader, the writer classifies, or groups, the advantages and disadvantages in a pattern that makes them easy for the reader to understand.

Many writers choose to discuss all of a topic’s advantages together in one block and all of its disadvantages together in another block. Just as the drawers in your dresser separate your socks from your shirts, this block structure helps the reader separate a topic’s advantages (pros) from its disadvantages (cons).

“Cluing” In How does the reader decide whether the writer is discussing an advantage or a disadvantage? One way is to look for clue words. Words such as benefit, pro, positive, and plus point to advantages, while words such as drawback, con, negative, and downside point to a topic’s disadvantages. Look at the following sentences and decide whether the writer is discussing an advantage or a disadvantage in each one. How do you know?

Another benefit of teaching at an all-boys school is that I have more opportunities to boost a young man’s self-confidence.

The downside to teaching boys only is that the boys miss out on the opportunity to hear girls’ views on certain subjects.

Mapping the Advantages and Disadvantages Writing the ideas from an article into a graphic organizer will help you understand the relationships between those ideas. The fishbone is a graphic organizer you can use to list advantages and disadvantages. Notice how the sample fishbone on page 87 clearly organizes the pros and cons of the topic “coed sports.”
Making Inferences: Drawing Conclusions

I Think . . . While reading about a topic’s advantages and disadvantages, you may have to fill in information that the writer has left out. You fill in those “blanks” in the text by making inferences. An inference is an educated guess about information in the text. A conclusion is a type of inference based on details in the text and on what you already know. A conclusion applies only to the text on which it is based.

What you read: Mara passed the ball to Howard, who scored the winning basket.

What you already know: I know that passing a ball and shooting a basket are things you do when playing basketball.

Conclusion: Mara and Howard are playing basketball on the same team.
What conclusion could you draw from these lines found in “For Girls Only?” If you have trouble, use the Thinking It Through steps following the passage to help you.

Many experts say that single-sex schools are a good thing, especially for girls. They point to studies that show that teachers tend to call on boys more and take the work of girls less seriously.

TIP Usually, the author of an expository advantages/disadvantages article like the one on pages 83–85 will not favor one side of an issue over the other. However, after hearing both the pros and the cons, most readers will like one option better than the other. For example, after reading “For Girls Only?” you may decide that the disadvantages to single-sex schools outweigh the advantages.

Making Inferences: Drawing Conclusions

STEP 1 Re-read the passage. Identify its topic and look closely at the details about the topic.

STEP 2 Think about what you already know. What are your experiences with the topic or the details?

STEP 3 Connect your experiences from Step 2 with the details in Step 1 to draw a conclusion about the topic.

Your Turn 3

Working in pairs, use the steps in the Thinking It Through above to answer the following questions about “For Girls Only?” For each question, explain what led you to your conclusion.

- Read paragraphs 15 and 16 on page 85. Which type of school would help a student become a better leader?
- Read paragraph 18 on page 85. Is Melique for or against focusing on schoolwork during the day?
MINILESSON

VOCABULARY

Denotation and Connotation

Advantages/disadvantages writing has one purpose—to inform the reader by giving the facts. Even when you are reading for facts, be aware that some words can influence your feelings. In addition to a denotation, or dictionary definition, many words have strong connotations. A word’s connotation includes the feelings and associations connected with that word. For example, you know the denotation of the word leader: someone who is in charge. The connotations of leader may include power, pride, strength, role model, determination, and wisdom.

THINKING IT THROUGH

Understanding Denotation and Connotation

Take a look at this example using the word equality from “For Girls Only?” to understand how a word’s connotations can affect a reader.

Context: “... make the classroom a better place to learn for everyone ... [by] emphasizing ‘equality, better coeducation, and an end to discrimination against girls in the classroom.’”

STEP 1 Write down the word’s denotation. Use your own definition, or check the word’s definition in a dictionary.

Equality means “fair treatment for everyone.”

STEP 2 Think about the word’s connotation. What feelings or ideas do you associate with this word?

The word equality makes me think of freedom and fairness. In the excerpt above, it tells me girls need to be treated fairly in the classroom so they can succeed.

STEP 3 Ask yourself, “What if the author had used a synonym? What are its connotations?”

Sameness is a synonym with more negative connotations. “Emphasizing same-ness” doesn’t sound very attractive.

PRACTICE

Use the Thinking It Through steps above to figure out the denotations and connotations of these words from “For Girls Only?” Each word has been underlined in the article.

1. respectful  (page 83)
2. second-class  (page 84)
3. empower  (page 84)
4. thrive  (page 85)
5. focused  (page 85)
MINI-LESSON TEST TAKING

Drawing Conclusions

When taking a reading test, you may be asked to draw conclusions about a selection. Read the following passage and the test item that follows it. How would you tackle this test question?

Last weekend Isabell’s service club helped rebuild a home destroyed by floods. Over two days, the group made noticeable progress in restoring the family’s home. In just a few days, six young men and women made a great difference to a family who had lost nearly everything. In addition, club members learned to work together as a team.

You can tell from the passage that the service club members

A. will help rebuild other homes in the future

B. found that teamwork can be rewarding

C. encouraged the family to participate in the rebuilding

D. helped repair other homes in the same town

TIP The answer to a conclusion question will not be in the passage word-for-word. You will have to use details in the passage and your own knowledge to figure out the correct answer.

MINI-LESSON MINI-LESSON TAKING

Drawing Conclusions in a Reading Test

STEP 1 See what information you can get from the question.

STEP 2 Use what you know and the details from the passage to examine each answer choice.

STEP 3 Choose the answer that is supported by details from the passage and that makes sense.

The question tells me that I need to make a decision about the service club. I should look for details in the passage.

Choice A is wrong; they may rebuild more homes, but the passage does not mention what they will do next. Choice B sounds reasonable; the passage said they learned to work together as a team and they made a difference, and I know that can feel good. Choice C is not right because there is no mention of the family working. Choice D is not supported. Other homes may have been destroyed by floods, but the passage doesn’t mention other homes.

Choice B makes sense and can be supported by details in the passage. Choice B must be the answer.
Writing an Advantages/Disadvantages Essay

When you decide which electives to take, what helps you settle on fine art instead of industrial technology, or Spanish instead of band? Chances are, you investigate the advantages and disadvantages of each class to see which one better suits your needs. When you group ideas into categories, such as “advantages” and “disadvantages,” you are classifying information.

Classifying information not only helps you make decisions, but also gives you the opportunity to help someone else make a decision. When you write about advantages and disadvantages, you provide readers with the facts they need to make well-informed decisions.

Think of Possible Topics

What Do You Know? Finding a topic for your advantages/disadvantages essay can be a snap if you stick with what you know. Think about topics that relate to your school, hobbies, or home life. Following are more suggestions for discovering a topic for your essay.

- Think of a time when you made a big decision. List the pros and cons that you thought about in order to make your decision.
Refer to resources, such as TV news programs, local newspapers, magazines, or the World Wide Web for current topics. Then, freewrite about the topics, answering these questions: What topics are familiar to me? Can I list these topics’ advantages and disadvantages?

As you search, remember that you are looking for topics with both advantages and disadvantages. To help keep your essay focused and informative, you should look for topics that are specific and narrow. For example, instead of discussing the advantages and disadvantages of owning pets, investigate the advantages and disadvantages of adopting a pet from the local animal shelter.

Evaluate Your Topics

Finding the Right One Which topic will work best for this essay? To find out, ask yourself these questions: Can I think of at least three advantages and three disadvantages for this topic? Are the advantages and disadvantages balanced?

A topic with advantages or disadvantages that are too obvious will not tell your reader anything new. On the other hand, a topic that has advantages but no disadvantages (or vice versa) will result in a lopsided essay. Instead of discussing the advantages of getting regular exercise, explore the pros and cons of exercising at an indoor gym.

Consider Your Purpose and Audience

Discovering the “Why” and the “Who” You know your purpose for writing this essay: to inform your audience about the advantages and disadvantages of an important topic. Since your purpose for writing is to provide information, you can assume your audience’s purpose for reading will be to get information, possibly to make a decision. It is up to you to give the audience the whole picture. That means you will have to be careful not to leave out an important advantage or disadvantage.

The next step is to think about your audience. Ask yourself who can use information about the advantages and disadvantages of your topic to make a decision: your classmates? younger students? your teacher? After you have identified your audience, answer the following questions to help you think about their needs.

- What will this audience need to know to get a balanced picture of the advantages and disadvantages of my topic?
- What does this audience already know about my topic?
A Matter of Style  Once you know your audience, consider your writing style. Different readers understand different levels of writing. For example, when writing for teachers, sentences can be longer and more complex, and your words can be more difficult. For an audience of third-graders, however, you would have to use shorter, simpler sentences and easier words.

Evaluating Possible Topics and Considering Your Audience

Jot down several topics that you might write about in your advantages/disadvantages essay. Then, evaluate each possible topic, and choose one that is interesting and has a balance of advantages and disadvantages. Next, identify your target audience. Make notes about the audience you have identified using the questions on page 92.

State Your Main Idea

The Game Plan  Tell your reader early on what your essay will discuss. A main idea statement gives your topic and your plan for discussing it. Your main idea statement may be a single sentence or a few sentences. Here is how one student developed his main idea statement.

Topic: extracurricular activities

Plan: to discuss the advantages and disadvantages

Main idea statement: Deciding whether or not to participate in an extracurricular activity can be a challenge. Before signing up to sing in the choir or play on the volleyball team, first consider the advantages and disadvantages of such a decision.

List the Advantages and Disadvantages

Getting the Picture  You chose a topic with at least three advantages and at least three disadvantages. Making a fishbone graphic organizer like the one on the next page will help you list those advantages and disadvantages and any others you can think of for your topic. Later you will evaluate these advantages and disadvantages to see which ones you will use in your essay.
Exposition:

Chapter 3

Topic: Extracurricular Activities

Advantages:
- Makes lasting friendships
- Helps students do better in school
- Looks good on school records

Disadvantages:
- Too much stress in a busy life
- May take time away from schoolwork
- Possibly can’t participate if you ride the bus

Your Turn 5

Listing Your Advantages and Disadvantages

Make a fishbone organizer like the one shown above. List at least three advantages and three disadvantages that relate to your topic.

Gather Support

Finding the Facts

To help your audience make a decision about your topic, you will need to provide support for each pro and con. Support can take the form of:

- Facts: statements that can be proved true
- Expert opinions: opinions of people with expert knowledge in a field
- Examples or anecdotes: instances or brief stories that illustrate a point

To find support for your advantages and disadvantages, you may brainstorm examples or anecdotes from your own life that show a specific advantage or disadvantage; research in your school or public library; look in magazines, newspapers, or school databases; and interview experts for their opinions or read about what they think.

Making the Right Choices

Your support will help you choose which advantages and disadvantages to keep and which to cut. Specifically, favor advantages and disadvantages with strong support and eliminate advantages and disadvantages not supported by facts, expert opinions, or examples.

KEY CONCEPT

Good support for your pros and cons requires elaboration. When you elaborate on a point, you extend it a little bit more, often by giving an example. See how elaboration helps the following point.

Advantage: Extracurricular activities help students get to know certain teachers better.

Support: I got to know Mrs. Ashton, the art teacher, better through the Art Club.

Elaborated Support: Mrs. Ashton helped me work on my entry for an art contest even though I was not in her class.
Mapping It Out  Study the conceptual map below and notice that the student recorded the support for each advantage and disadvantage. He also decided not to use one advantage and one disadvantage. See if you can figure out why.

Choosing the Advantages and Disadvantages

- Refer to the fishbone organizer you made in Your Turn 5 on page 94. List each advantage and disadvantage in a conceptual map like the one above. Add the support you found for each advantage and disadvantage. Note whether each piece of support is a fact, an expert opinion, an example, or an anecdote.
- Look over the information and cross out any advantage or disadvantage you could not support well.
Another disadvantage of owning a pet is that it is too much work. Who wants to clean up horrible messes all the time? I can think of better things to do with my day!

You may have noticed that the writer made a decision about the topic for you. That’s because the writer let his or her bias show. Bias is the writer’s attitude about a topic. All writers have a bias, and in persuasive writing the bias will be clear. In informative writing, though, writers try to conceal their biases by presenting a balanced picture of their topic.

To check for balance in your essay, look for a roughly equal number of advantages and disadvantages. Also, check your support. Balance may be lacking if you have included strong support for the disadvantages but only weak support for the advantages.

Also, read your writing aloud and listen to the voice, the way the writing sounds. Your writing voice can reveal your bias. For example, if you hear many sentences beginning with I think or I prefer, you are trying too hard to push the reader toward your opinion. Another element of voice is your choice of descriptive words. Loaded words are words charged with positive or negative meanings, such as worn-out, disastrous, super, or incredible. Eliminate opinion words and loaded words to keep your writing balanced.

What would you think if you were reading an advantages/disadvantages essay and you came across the following passage:

I think summertime is fabulous. Children and parents can use a long vacation to participate in educational activities. Every summer, my family and I learn a lot about our city’s history and culture.

Sometimes, over a summer, students forget what they learned during the last school year. When school starts, teachers have to refresh the students’ memories.

1. Find two ways in which the writer’s discussion of the advantages and disadvantages of summer vacation is unbalanced.
2. Jot down the words or phrases in the passage that show bias.
Plan Your Essay

Arranging Information When you write your essay, should you discuss the advantages or the disadvantages first? If a topic has obvious advantages or disadvantages, you may choose to discuss what the reader is familiar with first. Your reader will want to read the entire essay to find out what he or she does not know. The key point is to discuss all the advantages together and all the disadvantages together. These separate chunks of information make it easier for the reader to navigate your essay.

Order in the Court Get organized by jotting down the advantages and disadvantages in the order in which you would like them to appear in your essay. In the example below, notice how one writer organized the advantages and disadvantages of his topic.

Order of My Essay

I’ll discuss the advantages of extracurricular activities first because they are more familiar to my audience.

Advantages

1. helps students do better in school
   (a strong advantage with good impact—will grab the reader’s attention)
2. makes lasting friendships
   (put second—not as strong as first advantage)

Disadvantages

1. too much stress in a busy life
   (begin with an unexpected disadvantage—this is unexpected because the reader may not think this is stressful)
2. possibly can’t participate if you ride the bus
   (place second—has less impact on reader)

COMPUTER TIP

You may need to try several different orders for the advantages and disadvantages in your essay before you find the order that makes the most sense. To make your job easier, type your prewriting notes into a word-processing program. Then, use the program’s cut and paste commands to try out different orders for your advantages and disadvantages. When you finally decide on an order, you can use the prewriting notes document to help you write your first draft.

YOUR TURN

Organizing Your Essay

Answer the following questions. Use the information from the graphic organizer you created for Your Turn 6 on page 95.

- Will I discuss advantages or disadvantages first? Why?
- In what order will I discuss each advantage and disadvantage within the paragraphs? Why is this a good order?
Advantages/Disadvantages Essay

Framework

Introduction
- Attention-grabbing opening
- Main idea statement

Body
- First paragraph:
  Advantage (or disadvantage) #1
  Support for #1
- Second paragraph:
  Advantage (or disadvantage) #2
  Support for #2 and so on
- Third paragraph:
  Disadvantage (or advantage) #1
  Support for #1
  and so on

Conclusion
- Restatement of an advantage and a disadvantage

Directions and Explanations

Include an engaging quotation or piece of dialogue that makes the reader curious about your topic. In a main idea statement, state your topic and inform readers that you plan to discuss advantages and disadvantages. This statement may be one sentence or more.

For each paragraph, be sure to
- clearly state and explain the advantage or disadvantage
- support the advantage or disadvantage with a fact, an expert opinion, or an anecdote
- elaborate by extending your support with examples

Pick a strong advantage and a strong disadvantage from the body of your paper. Restate both in a way that allows your reader to draw his or her own conclusions about the topic. Do not include your opinion.

Drafting Your Advantages/Disadvantages Essay

It is your turn to draft an advantages/disadvantages essay. As you write, refer to the framework above and the Writer’s Model on page 99.
To Join or Not to Join?

“Hey, Juan, did you hear about the new multicultural club? Why don’t you come with us?”

“I don’t know—I have to finish my homework, practice the saxophone, and do my chores. It sounds like a great club, but I already have so much to do! I’ll have to get back to you about it.”

Many students are overwhelmed by all the things they have to do. Can students juggle their time between school, home, friends, and extracurricular activities such as sports or clubs? Deciding whether or not to participate in an extracurricular activity can be a challenge. Before signing up to sing in the choir or play on the volleyball team, first consider the advantages and disadvantages of such a decision.

Participating in extracurricular activities has many advantages. Students are successful when they participate in many activities. They do well in their classes and feel more connected to school. Research shows that students in extracurricular activities have better attendance and grades. Research also shows that these students have higher goals for their education after high school.

Extracurricular activities also help students make new friends and lasting relationships. I met my best friend when we were on the YMCA swim team. We were both in the eight-and-under age group, and we swam on the same relay team. Even though we became friends a long time ago, we are still close today.

While these activities have many advantages, students should consider the negative side as well. One drawback to participating in extracurricular activities is the stress it can add to a student’s life. Extracurricular activities can be too much for students who do not practice good time management. Students need to be good at budgeting their time between different activities, such as homework, instrument practice, and sports. Kathleen Glenn Doyle, a family therapist, says that a child needs a healthy balance between structured time (time spent in class or in extracurricular activities) and free time (time spent with friends or family or time to unwind).

Another downside to extracurricular activities involves transportation. What if you ride the bus to school, or a parent picks you up right after school? Some clubs or sports meet before or after school. This situation limits students’ extracurricular choices to those outside of school and closer to home. A few of my classmates joined the school’s multicultural club. They later discovered that it met after school. These students dropped out of the club after the first meeting because they had to catch their buses.

Only you can decide if extracurricular activities are right for you. Activities outside of school can help you be successful in many areas of your life. However, you need good time-management skills to avoid stress that comes with a busy life. Are you up for a challenge?
Advantages and Disadvantages of Being a Teenager

... One significant asset of being a teen is having fewer worries. “When I was a teenager, I didn’t have the family’s needs to take care of,” claims my uncle Bob Arndt. “I also didn’t have bills to pay.” Having fewer of these problems to worry about results in more overall free time, extra-curricular activities, and additional time to spend with friends. When I asked my mother and brother if they would like to ride bikes, my brother immediately agreed to join. My mother, on the other hand, shook her head no because she was “much too busy sorting out the bank books.” Besides having to worry about paying the bills, adults constantly have to worry about how much they spend. They are usually very resourceful shoppers, so as not to spend more money than they need to. Having fewer worries is a definite plus of being a teenager.

Although there are benefits of being a teenager, there are also drawbacks. One certain disadvantage is the fact that we get fewer privileges than the average adult. One of the significant privileges teens miss out on is voting. Not being able to vote is like being blocked from the political world. Because teens have not been introduced to politics sooner, many make mistakes when they can vote. Another privilege that the younger teens miss out on is driving. Since I am not able to drive, I constantly have to bother my parents. Just the other night I had to get to soccer practice. With my father at work and my mother at a party, I was in a tight spot. I had to wait until my father arrived home and was over a half hour late. Having fewer privileges is definitely a minus to being a teenager. . . .

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Evaluation Questions</th>
<th>Tips</th>
<th>Revision Techniques</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>1. Does the introduction include a main idea statement?</td>
<td>Circle the main idea statement.</td>
<td>If needed, add a sentence or two to state the topic and explain that the topic’s advantages and disadvantages will be discussed.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2. Are all the advantages together? Are all the disadvantages together?</td>
<td>Put a star next to each advantage and put a check mark next to each disadvantage.</td>
<td>Rearrange the advantages and disadvantages so that all the advantages are together and all the disadvantages are together.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>3. Is each advantage and disadvantage explained and supported?</td>
<td>Highlight the explanation and support for each advantage and disadvantage.</td>
<td>Elaborate on advantages and disadvantages with facts, anecdotes, or expert opinions.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>4. Does the conclusion include a restatement of both an advantage and a disadvantage?</td>
<td>Put brackets around the restated advantage and disadvantage in the conclusion.</td>
<td>Add a restatement of the strongest advantage and disadvantage from the essay, if needed.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>5. Does the essay present a balanced discussion of the topic?</td>
<td>Put exclamation points next to statements of opinion and biased words. Count the advantages and disadvantages.</td>
<td>Delete personal opinions and biased language. If necessary, add more advantages or disadvantages.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
SECOND READING: Style  Now, take a look at your sentence style. Your readers can become confused if you include long, drawn-out sentences, called stringy sentences. Improve your style by eliminating stringy sentences from your writing. Use the following guidelines, and study the Focus on Sentences on page 104.

ONE WRITER’S REVISIONS Study this revision of an early draft of the essay on pages 99–100.

Another really big downside to extracurricular activities involves transportation. What if you ride the bus to school, or a parent picks you up right after school? Some clubs or sports meet before or after school. This pitiful situation limits students’ extracurricular choices to those outside of school and closer to home. A few of my classmates joined the school’s multicultural club. They later discovered that it met after school. These students dropped out of the club after the first meeting because they had to catch their buses.

Responding to the Revision Process

1. Why do you think the writer cut out words in the first and fourth sentences?
2. Why do you think the writer added a sentence to the passage? How does it improve the passage?

Second Reading: Style  Now, take a look at your sentence style. Your readers can become confused if you include long, drawn-out sentences, called stringy sentences. Improve your style by eliminating stringy sentences from your writing. Use the following guidelines, and study the Focus on Sentences on page 104.

Style Guidelines

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Evaluation Question</th>
<th>Tip</th>
<th>Revision Technique</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Are there any sentences made up of several ideas connected with and, but, or, or so?</td>
<td>Draw a wavy line under each sentence that connects more than two ideas using and, but, or, or so.</td>
<td>If necessary, break the stringy sentences into separate sentences.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Stringy Sentences

The reader of an advantages/disadvantages essay should not have to pick apart sentences to get to the meat of the topic. Having many ideas in a sentence connected with and, but, or, or so results in a stringy sentence. Stringy sentences don’t give the reader a chance to pause before each new idea. One way to fix a stringy sentence is to break it up into separate sentences as in the example below.

Stringy: I have to finish cleaning my room so we’ll have to wait to go to a movie, but I will call you when I’m done.

Revised: I have to finish cleaning my room, so we’ll have to wait to go to a movie. I will call you when I’m done.

ONE WRITER’S REVISIONS

I met my best friend when we were on the YMCA swim team, and we were both in the eight-and-under age group, and we swam on the same relay team.

Responding to the Revision Process

How did breaking the stringy sentence above into two parts improve the flow of the writing?

YOUR TURN 9

Evaluating and Revising Your Advantages/Disadvantages Essay

- First, evaluate and revise the content and organization of your essay, using the guidelines on page 102.
- Next, use the Focus on Sentences above to see if you need to revise any stringy sentences in your essay.
- If a peer evaluated your essay, think carefully about each of your peer’s comments as you revise.
Proofread Your Essay

Striving for Perfection  Avoid including any errors in the final draft of your essay. Remember, your goal is to inform the reader. Edit your essay to eliminate grammar and spelling errors. Enlist the help of a peer to read your essay and check for mistakes.

Correcting Run-ons When Combining Sentences

An independent clause expresses a complete thought and can stand alone as a sentence. However, when you identify a pair of advantages or disadvantages, you may find that you want to combine sentences. Be careful, though. Combining two sentences without proper punctuation or a conjunction results in a run-on sentence.

Run-on: One benefit of bringing your own lunch to school is that you have more control over what you eat another benefit is that you may save money.

You can correct a run-on sentence by inserting a semicolon or a comma and a conjunction between the independent clauses.

One benefit of bringing your own lunch to school is that you have more control over what you eat; another benefit is that you may save money.

One benefit of bringing your own lunch to school is that you have more control over what you eat, and another benefit is that you may save money.

Decide whether each sentence below is a run-on sentence. If it is a run-on, revise it by inserting a semicolon or a comma and a conjunction in the correct place. If the sentence is not a run-on, write C on your paper.

Example:
1. The bell rings at noon the students fill the cafeteria.
   1. The bell rings at noon; the students fill the cafeteria.

1. I start to smell cafeteria food my stomach begins to growl.
   1. I start to smell cafeteria food my stomach begins to growl.

2. I packed a big and nutritious lunch.
   1. I packed a big and nutritious lunch.

3. We have only twenty minutes for lunch I eat very quickly.
   1. We have only twenty minutes for lunch I eat very quickly.

4. The cafeteria serves fresh fruit and sandwiches until they sell out.
   1. The cafeteria serves fresh fruit and sandwiches until they sell out.

5. Lunch is fun I enjoy spending the time with my friends.

For more information and practice on punctuating independent clauses, see page 618.
Publish Your Essay

Sounding the Trumpets  It is time to share your work with an audience. Try one of these ideas.

- Add your essay to a class collection of advantages/disadvantages pieces, and post the collection on a school bulletin board or Web page. Invite students and teachers to view your class’s essays.
- Make a quick-reference booklet for readers. Fold a piece of paper in half. On one side, print the advantages from your essay. On the other side, print the disadvantages.

Reflect on Your Essay

Building Your Portfolio  We all learn from our experiences. Reflecting on your advantages/disadvantages essay gives you a chance to think about what you wrote and how you wrote it.

- What was the strongest support in your essay? Why?
- How did you find the best topic ideas for your essay?
- Review your writing portfolio. What strengths and weaknesses do you notice? Set goals to use your writing strengths and improve upon your weaknesses in future assignments.

Proofreading, Publishing, and Reflecting on Your Essay

- Correct grammar, usage, and mechanics errors in your essay.
- Publish your essay so that others can learn more about your topic.
- Answer the Reflect on Your Essay questions above. Record your responses in your learning log, or include them in your portfolio.
Explaining Advantages and Disadvantages for Tests

An essay test may ask you to discuss the advantages and disadvantages of a specific topic. Some tests may ask you to discuss what is good and bad about a topic. “The good points and bad points” is another way of saying “the advantages and disadvantages.” How would you respond to the prompt to the right from a writing test?

Your school is considering adding girls’ field hockey to its athletic program. Write an essay for your principal that reports the good points and bad points of adding a new sport to the school’s current athletic program. Include solid support for each advantage and disadvantage you discuss.

STEP 1 Analyze the test prompt to identify the
- topic [the good and bad points of adding a new sport to the school athletic program]
- audience [the school principal]
- format [an essay]

STEP 2 To find out what you know about the topic, ask yourself the following questions.
- Have I seen or read anything positive or negative about the topic on TV or in magazines?
- What do I know about the pros and cons from firsthand experience?
- What are some of the good and bad things about the topic that I can figure out for myself? (Motivate yourself to find the pros and cons by thinking about money, time, and hidden values relating to the topic.)

In a fishbone organizer, jot down the good and bad points of the topic.

STEP 3 Use an outline or a conceptual map to organize your good and bad points. Support the points with examples or anecdotes from your own experiences or experiences of people you know.

STEP 4 Write your essay. Then, verify that you have supported each good point and bad point, and check your essay for correct grammar and spelling.
Comparing “TV Life” to “Real Life”

The classification skills you learned by writing an advantage/disadvantage essay can help you with many other types of writing and thinking. For example, comparing and contrasting also requires you to place information into two categories. In the following activity, instead of pointing out pros and cons, you will examine similarities and differences between life on television and life in the real world.

It Looks Like . . . What you watch on television is not real life. That may sound obvious, but it is an important point for you to remember as a knowledgeable, critical viewer of television. What you watch on television is created by people who choose what activities and events to show and how to show them.

For example, think of hospitals on television. TV hospitals are exciting places brimming with extremely young and attractive doctors and patients. These TV hospitals might not match your own experience of hospitals, where perhaps you found that you spent a lot of time waiting, that most of the patients were older, and that your doctors were no more attractive, on average, than anyone else. On the other hand, perhaps you have never been in a hospital. TV hospitals might have shaped your idea of what a hospital is like.

Get Real This is the question: Is TV life realistic? You may get many answers to this question. People have different points of view, or ways of seeing “real life,” so people also have different ideas about whether events on TV are realistic. After all, everyone has had different experiences and ways of doing things. Your experience with hospitals may be limited to your trip to the emergency room of a small community hospital. Perhaps you know someone who volunteers at a large city hospital (with many young interns) and sees more of what goes on behind the scenes. Your ideas are based on your experiences, just as your friend’s ideas are based on his or her experiences.

Call It As You See It To explore the differences between TV life and real life, you will compare how an activity such as doing homework or eating dinner looks on TV with how it happens in your own life.

In the example on the next page, one student compared a classroom discussion on TV to classroom discussions from his own experiences. The student watched a television program and made a Venn diagram based on what he saw. On the left side, he recorded how the activity looked on TV. On the right side, he recorded how the activity looks in his class. In the center, he listed similarities between the two. The student used the information in the diagram to make a decision about how realistic the TV activity was.
The class discussion on TV was not realistic. It was too smooth and orderly. While my class does have good discussions, sometimes we are not as focused as the show's class, and we do not always raise our hands.

Comparing an Activity on TV to an Activity in Your Life

Pick an everyday activity or event from a TV show and think about what it looks like. What point of view about that activity is reflected? Next, think about what that same activity looks like in your own life, from your point of view. (You should choose an activity you are comfortable sharing.) In a journal make a Venn diagram like the one above to compare the TV activity to your own experience. Then, answer the following questions in a journal entry.

- Was the activity portrayed on TV in a realistic way? Explain.
- Remember that someone chooses the way you see things on TV. Why do you think the show portrayed the activity as it did?
Comparing Informative TV or Video Presentations

When you compare and contrast, you place information into categories, much as you organized your advantages/disadvantages essay. Comparing and contrasting requires you to look at the similarities and differences between two subjects. To compare two informative television or video presentations, you might use the following points of comparison:

Video: What do you see? Do the producers include documentary (or actual) footage, animation (cartoons), or still photography? Does the program use actors in dramatizations (pre-scripted scenes)?

Audio: From whose point of view is the “talk” delivered? Is there an unseen narrator, or do people on-screen do the talking? How is music used?

Overall Effect: How do the audio and video add up? Does the program succeed in informing? Does it have any other purposes or goals besides informing?

Study the following comparison.

Bugs are everywhere, even on your TV screen. Two good television programs about bugs are “The Giant Bug Invasion!” (Kratt’s Creatures, 1995) and Insect (Eyewitness Video, 1994). Each program uses different techniques, resulting in different overall effects.

Insect features rapid cuts of stills, animation, and documentary footage. The producers used 3-D animation. These visuals force the viewer to look at the insect world in a fresh, new way. For the audio, narrator Martin Sheen stays off-screen and remains in the background, accompanied by soothing background music.

Like Insect, “The Giant Bug Invasion!” uses rapid editing to present documentary footage of bugs. The program entertains as it informs by mixing facts with funny scenes involving the hosts. Music plays a big role. Different styles of upbeat dance music accompany each image, creating an energetic mood.

Both programs are informative and highly entertaining.

YOUR TURN

View two informative TV or video presentations about the same subject, and make notes about the audio and video elements used in each. Then, write a comparison-contrast essay like the one above.
Making a Documentary Video

You are watching a TV show when one scene makes you do a doubletake. It shows a school hallway full of teenagers. At first it seems normal, but then you notice something: These students do not look like the students at your school. First, they seem older. They are also gorgeous and dressed in the trendiest clothes. In fact, these “students” do not look like students at all.

Is this portrayal of teenagers typical of what you see on TV and in movies or magazines? Are the teens you see in the media like you, your friends, or the people you see at school? How realistically do the media portray groups of people? You will answer this question by examining how TV classifies teenagers, just as you classified advantages and disadvantages in your essay.

Identifying Stereotypes

The way groups of people are portrayed by the media is often not realistic. More often, what we see on TV and in movies or magazines are stereotypes. Stereotypes are limited, fixed ideas about groups of people. For instance, the media often imply that all teens can be classified as one of a few “types.” Some of these types are

- the bully
- the popular kid
- the troublemaker
- the lonely, sensitive kid
- the “good kid”
- the jock
- the outcast
- the brain

What is the purpose of media stereotypes? Stereotypes are a kind of shortcut, a quick and easy way to introduce the characters in a TV show or movie. Viewers quickly recognize the jock, the brain, and the bully in a typical TV or movie classroom scene. When showing students in stereotypical roles, the media are saying, “You know people like these.” Real people, however, are well-rounded and much more complex than stereotypes. For example, a real teen can have a sense of humor, be intelligent, and rule the basketball court at the same time.

Many TV and movie characters fall somewhere between the stereotype and the complex people you know in real life. Think about rating TV and movie characters on a scale such as this one.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Stereotypical</th>
<th>Less Stereotypical</th>
<th>More Complex</th>
<th>Realistic</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>1</td>
<td>2</td>
<td>3</td>
<td>4</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>5</td>
<td>6</td>
<td>7</td>
<td>8</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>9</td>
<td>10</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

You may give a “one” to the “brain” character who wears glasses, always carries books, and does homework for all the other students. On the other hand, you may give a “seven” to the “bully” character who is occasionally kind. A “ten” would go to the character who seems real to you—like someone you might know.

Classifying TV Teens

Watch one or two TV shows with several teenage characters. If possible, record the shows on a VCR as you watch; you will use the recording in Your Turn 14. As you watch the shows, decide which characters are stereotypes and which are more complex—like real teenagers. Use a scale like the one above to rate the characters. Record your observations in a chart like the one below.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>TV Show: Jimmy's World</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Character</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Steve</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ling</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Making a Documentary

A documentary film or video explains or interprets some aspect of reality. It creatively presents and analyzes a topic through words and through images related to the topic. For example, a documentary may explore the life of the first astronaut, the Brazilian rain forests, or how teens are shown in the media.

In a group, you will create a documentary to discuss how teens are shown on television. Your group will select and analyze a short scene (two to three minutes) from one of the TV shows you and other group members watched for Your Turn 13. Your video will show a narrator standing next to a television set. As a recording of the scene plays (with its sound off), the narrator will present your group’s analysis of the scene.

Put It on Film Making a documentary video requires planning and preparation. The chart below shows the first steps for creating an informative documentary video.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Step</th>
<th>Helpful Hints</th>
</tr>
</thead>
</table>
| 1 Make decisions about the main idea your group wants to communicate to your audience. | Answer these questions:
  - Who will make up our audience?
  - What do we think about how teens are shown on TV?
  - How can we support our ideas? |
| 2 Select a scene from the TV show you taped. | Look for a scene with a variety of characters.
Look for a scene that will help you support your ideas. |
| 3 Storyboard the scene. | Draw a sketch of each shot in the scene. Under each sketch, write notes on the events, actions, and language in the shot. |
| 4 Analyze the scene. | What types of characters are present in the scene? Discuss what those characters reveal about how teens are shown in the media. |
| 5 Write a script. | Use your storyboard to match your words to the action. Remember to introduce the TV show you are discussing. |
| 6 Choose roles for group members. | Narrator: presents the group’s analysis and conclusions while discussing the selected scene
Cameraperson: shoots the video
Producer: directs the narrator and the cameraperson; signals the cameraperson when to start and stop shooting |
It is action time! Once your group has finished planning the video, you can begin producing the final product.

Depending on your school’s policy, you may need to use your school’s video equipment during class time, or you may be able to check it out to record your documentary. Either way, be sure you understand how to operate the equipment before you begin. Ask your teacher, librarian, or someone else experienced with using the equipment to show you how to use it. If no video equipment is available, skip step 3 in the chart below.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Step</th>
<th>Helpful Hints</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>1 Rehearse your documentary video.</td>
<td>Rehearsing gives you a chance to work out problems and polish a performance. Rehearse off-camera first. Have the narrator practice speaking at the proper volume for recording. The cameraperson should decide the correct distance for recording to get a clear image of both the narrator and the television program being analyzed. The producer should hold cue cards to help the narrator with the script and practice signaling the cameraperson when to start and stop shooting. Then, using the video camera, record one rehearsal.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2 Revise the documentary, if necessary.</td>
<td>As a group, evaluate your taped rehearsal. Decide whether you should revise your script to make your main idea easier to understand. Then, consider other elements of the video, such as the narrator’s voice and gestures and the quality of the recording. Note where improvements are needed.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>3 Record the video.</td>
<td>Most video cameras allow you to view what you have just recorded. Look for problems with the sound or camera work in your recording. Reshoot your documentary if you find problems.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Making a Documentary Video

Use the guidelines on pages 113–114 to create a documentary. Then present the documentary to your class, and discuss these questions with your audience:

- How well did the script fit the video images?
- Could the same information have been presented as effectively through a medium other than video? Why or why not?
Choose one of the following activities to complete.

CONSUMER EDUCATION

1. Do You Buy This? Think of a product that interests you, such as a game or stereo equipment. List the advantages and disadvantages of buying this particular product. Then, write a brief review of the product. Explain in detail why you would or would not buy the product. With other students, create database records of product reviews for the class to use.

CROSSING THE CURRICULUM: ART

2. Picture This Create a chart using pictures rather than words to represent the advantages and disadvantages of your essay topic. Use symbols such as + or – to label the columns on your chart. In each column, draw or paste pictures showing the good and bad points of your topic.

SPEECH

3. Hear Me Roar Present a speech about the topic of your advantages/disadvantages essay. This time, however, include a persuasive slant. Try to convince your audience that one option is better than the other. See page 758 for information on formal speaking.

CROSSING THE CURRICULUM: HISTORY

4. From the Past Making comparisons requires you to categorize information, just as considering advantages and disadvantages does. Compare two accounts, or perspectives, of a historic event. For example, you might read about the sinking of the Titanic from a survivor’s standpoint and from a rescuer’s standpoint. List the similarities between the two accounts, and then list the differences. In a paragraph, explain the similarities and the differences between the accounts.

CAREERS

5. The Results Are In Pick a workplace topic such as shorter work hours, longer lunch breaks, or a change of the dress code. Discuss its advantages and its disadvantages in an oral report. To research your topic, ask an adult how such a change might affect his or her workplace.
Imagine that you are standing in the library with a book in each hand. You read the back cover of each book. You look at the writing on the inside flaps. Then, you put one book back on the shelf and confidently tuck the other under your arm as you walk toward the check-out desk.

How did you decide which book to take and which to leave on the shelf? When you read the book jackets, you used a method called previewing. Previewing is an activity that helps you gather information about a book. After previewing a book, you can predict what the book is about and decide whether you want to read it. Writers and editors create book jackets to let readers preview books—in the hope that those readers will buy (or borrow) the book.

YOUR TURN

Previewing a Book

Go to the library and check out a book with a book jacket that has flaps. Only hard-backed books will have an entire book jacket. Bring the book to class and discuss it with a few classmates. Be sure to

- decide what the image on the cover says about the book
- read the back cover and inside flaps and see if they change what you thought about the book based on the cover image
- tell whether the book jacket makes you want to read the book
Reading a Novel’s Book Jacket

John “Crash” Coogan is the star athlete of his seventh-grade class and is a better athlete than most eighth-graders, too. He is the high-energy main character of the novel Crash, whose covers and inside flaps appear on the following pages. As you look at the cover and flaps of Crash, try to notice what information you can learn about a novel just by looking at its jacket.

Preparing to Read

Preview Information When you take stock of the details on a novel’s jacket, you are previewing. Previewing happens before you read or view something, and it helps you decide whether you are interested in the story. For this lesson, you will preview a novel—a long, fictional story. You will gather information from the book jacket of Crash to help you guess about the plot of the novel and decide whether you would like to read it.

Questioning and Predicting As you gather information from a book jacket, you can make some educated guesses about what might happen in the novel and what the characters might be like. You can also draw upon your own experience and knowledge of stories to ask questions such as, “What will happen to the main character?” To the left is a picture of what a book jacket looks like when laid flat.
Look at the covers and inside flaps of Crash. In your notebook, answer the numbered active-reading questions that appear in the margins. The underlined words appear in the Vocabulary Mini-Lesson on page 126.

1. What is unusual about the photo and drawing that appear together on the front cover?

2. What sort of expression does the baby have? What do you think the expression says about his character?
My real name is John. John Coogan. But everybody calls me Crash, even my parents.

It started way back when I got my first football helmet for Christmas. I don’t really remember this happening, but they say that when my uncle Herm’s family came over to see our presents, as they were coming through the door I got down into a four-point stance, growled, “Hut! Hut! Hut!” and charged ahead with my brand-new helmet. Seems I knocked my cousin Bridget clear back out the doorway and onto her butt into a foot of snow. They say she bawled bloody murder and refused to come into the house, so Uncle Herm finally had to drag his whole family away before they even had a chance to take their coats off.

Like I said, personally I don’t remember the whole thing, but looking back at what I do remember about myself, I’d have to say the story is probably true. As far as I can tell, I’ve always been crashing—into people, into things, you name it, with or without a helmet.

3. What aspect of Crash’s character makes him interesting to you? Is he like anyone you know?
What’s it like to be Crash Coogan? You might think you know him already—the big jock, star of the football team. Huge shoulders, smallish brain. Basically mows down everything in his path, including kids like Penn Webb, the dweeby, puny, button-wearing vegetable-eater who moved onto Crash’s block when they were little—and has been a prime target ever since.

But there’s more to Crash than the touchdown-scoring kid every seventh grader sees. And it’s not the predictable sob story that’s supposed to make you feel sorry for the poor bully. It’s the story of a kid with overworked parents, an ecology-minded smart-aleck little sister, a crush on an activist cheerleader, and a best buddy named Mike Deluca, who helps Crash pull off hilarious pranks at Webb’s expense.

Until one day Mike goes too far, maybe even for Crash, and the football hero has to choose which side he’s really on.

Jerry Spinelli won the Newbery Medal for Maniac Magee, the sixth of his more than fifteen acclaimed books for young readers, which include There’s a Girl in My Hammerlock and Who Put That Hair in My Toothbrush? Growing up, he played no less than five different sports—from football and track to basketball. He wanted to be a shortstop in the majors long before it occurred to him to be a writer.

Crash came out of his desire to include the beloved Penn Relays of his home state of Pennsylvania in a book. And, of course, to show the world a little bit of what jocks are made of.

http://www.randomhouse.com/

Jacket illustration © 1996 by Eleanor Hoyt
Jacket photo © 1996 by Stan Reis

Also available in Gibraltar Library Binding
Printed in the United States

4. What does this novel seem to be about?

5. What do you think will happen to make Crash “choose which side he’s really on”?

6. Is Jerry Spinelli an experienced writer? What makes you think so?
Preview Information

You Can Judge a Book by Its Cover! The first step to understanding a novel is gathering information from its front and back covers and inside flaps. The information you gather from a book jacket will help you decide whether you want to read the novel. Reading the book jacket to get an idea of the contents is a technique that works for any type of book—novels, photography books, sports books, or cookbooks. Use this chart to see what the parts of a book jacket can tell you about a novel.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Part of the Book Jacket</th>
<th>Information You Might Find</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Front Cover</td>
<td>■ Title</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>■ Author</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>■ An illustration or picture that tells something about the novel</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>■ Awards the novel has received</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Back Cover</td>
<td>■ Quotations from the novel</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>■ Summary of the novel</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>■ Reviews of the novel or reviews of other novels by the same author</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Front Flap</td>
<td>■ A summary of the novel</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>■ A reason for people to read the novel</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Back Flap</td>
<td>■ Information about the author</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

The text from parts of the jacket of another novel, Where the Red Fern Grows by Wilson Rawls, is shown on the next page. Read over the information, and look at the chart on page 124 to see how one reader recorded the information he found.
My eyes were wide, my throat dry, and my heart thumping. One judge stopped in front of Little Ann. My heart stopped, too. Reaching over, he patted her on the head.

Turning to me, he asked, “Is this your dog?” I couldn’t speak. I just nodded my head. He said, “She’s a beautiful hound.” He walked on down the line. My heart started beating again.

There were eight dogs left. Little Ann was still holding her own. Then there were four. I was ready to cry.

Growing up in the Ozark Mountains of northeastern Oklahoma, Billy Colman wants nothing more than to own the pair of coon-hound pups he saw advertised in a sportsman’s magazine. Although the sum is tremendous, Billy is determined, and after two years of hard work and saving, the two puppies become his.

Billy’s pups are his “shadow,” following his every move through the dark hills and icy river bottoms in search of the elusive raccoons. The three gain a fine reputation as an inseparable team when they win the coveted gold cup in the annual coon-hunt contest, capture the deceptive ghost coon, and, in the most difficult battle of all, put up a fierce struggle against a mountain lion.

But the victory over the mountain lion turns to tragedy, and Billy’s days of freedom and innocent boyhood rapidly end. Yet much remains for Billy: He not only has his wonderful memories, but he learns a beautiful old Indian legend which gives them sacred meaning.

As it has for generations, this modern classic is sure to warm the hearts of young and old alike.
Questioning and Predicting

What’s Happening?  Previewing a book leads a reader to ask questions. After looking at a book jacket, you probably find yourself asking several questions. For example, you may ask why a character acts a certain way, or you may wonder what will happen next.

What Happens Next?  Once a reader begins to ask questions, he or she also begins to make predictions. A prediction is an educated guess about what will happen in the future based on what you have read and what you know. When reading a book jacket, you base your predictions on the parts of the novel you have examined closely. You also draw from your own life experience and your knowledge of how stories generally work.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Part of the Book Jacket</th>
<th>Information I Found</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Front Cover</td>
<td>The book is Where the Red Fern Grows, written by Wilson Rawls. The front cover shows two dogs and a boy who is carrying a lantern.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Back Cover</td>
<td>The long quotation tells me that a character enters his dog in a contest. The judge praises the dog.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Front Flap</td>
<td>The front flap tells me about Billy Colman, a boy who saves his money and buys two puppies. Billy and the puppies win a gold cup in a hunting contest and go on many adventures. The flap mentions an Indian legend, which makes me curious to read the book.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

gathering Preview Information

In your notebook create a chart like the one above. Then, using the book jacket from Crash on pages 119–121, fill in the chart. (Note: You will need to add a row titled “Back Flap” to your chart.)
Questioning and Predicting

Here is how one student used the book jacket of Rawls’s novel to generate questions and make predictions.

STEP 1 Review the information you gathered while previewing the book jacket, and ask questions about what you want to know.

Why are the dogs and the boy out in the woods at night with a lantern? Will something bad happen to the dogs or to the boy?

STEP 2 Think about your own experiences that relate to your questions.

I know that people hunt in the woods and that some people, like my uncle, bring their dogs. Also, it seems like a lot of the stories I’ve read about dogs, like Old Yeller, end with something bad happening.

STEP 3 Make predictions that answer your questions by considering preview information and your own experiences.

I bet the boy and his dogs are hunting for the “ghost coon” or the mountain lion mentioned on the front flap. I also think the dogs will get hurt saving the boy’s life because the front flap says “the victory over the mountain lion turns to tragedy.”

STEP 4 Confirm or revise your predictions as you read the novel.

---

YOUR TURN 3 Questioning and Predicting

Using the Thinking It Through steps above, ask questions and make predictions about Crash. Use the information you gathered from the book jacket in Your Turn 2 and your own experience to help you.

---

TIP

You can ask questions and make predictions before you read a novel by previewing its jacket, but you can also do so as you are reading a novel. These questions and predictions can be about the characters’ personalities, the events in the story, or problems the characters may face.
Multiple-Meaning Words

Sometimes when you read, you find familiar words used in ways you do not understand. Such words are multiple-meaning words. For instance, the word bank often means a place that keeps money, but what does it mean in the following sentences?

We all sat on the bank of the river.
The basketball player made a bank shot.

When you see a multiple-meaning word, you have to decide which meaning is the right one.

TIP
The difference between word meanings can depend on a word’s part of speech. For example, many of the words we recognize as nouns may also be used as verbs. Elbow, staple, and ice are examples of nouns that have meanings as verbs, too. The following sentences show how the same word can be used as a verb and as a noun.

Note how the meaning changes.

She cut her hand. [the action of cutting, which is a verb]
It was a bad cut. [the result of the cutting, which is a noun]

THINKING IT THROUGH

Multiple-Meaning Words

The following steps can help you find the correct definition of multiple-meaning words. The example is a word from the book jacket of Crash.

Example: bawled

1. STEP 1 Consider all meanings of a word. Rule out definitions that are not the correct part of speech. You may need to use a dictionary.

   (1) v.: to shout out noisily; (2) v.: to weep loudly (3) n.: an outcry. The word is a verb in the sentence, so definition #3 is wrong.

2. STEP 2 Examine the context of the word or passage.

   “They say she bawled bloody murder . . .” She does not sound sad, so #2 must be wrong.

3. STEP 3 Substitute your definition into the sentence. You may have to adjust the wording of your definition.

   “They say she shouted noisily bloody murder . . .” It works!

PRACTICE

These words are underlined on the book jacket of Crash. Follow the steps above to define the words as they are used on the book jacket.

1. stance (page 120) 4. crush (page 121)
2. mows (page 121) 5. expense (page 121)
3. prime (page 121)
Making Predictions About Future Outcomes

On many reading tests, you will find questions that ask you to predict future actions or events. You will not find answers to the questions in the selection, but you will find hints. You can also draw on your own experience and knowledge to predict the future event. Read the following passage and answer the question after it.

Karen, a seventh-grader, was very nervous on the first day that she went to tutor a group of third-graders. She did not know how they would respond to her. With a queasy feeling in her stomach, she knocked on the door to Mrs. Warren’s classroom.

Mrs. Warren opened the door and led her inside. Karen could see that most of the third-graders were sitting quietly at their desks with their books open.

“Class, this is Karen,” Mrs. Warren announced. “She will be helping you with your math problems. Who would like Karen’s help?”

Several students quickly raised their hands. Karen was glad she had an hour to spend with them.

During the next hour, the children will
A. argue about who gets to go first
B. work with Karen only because their teacher expects it
C. be glad Karen is helping them with their math problems
D. convince Karen that she does not want to tutor them after all

“During the next hour, the children will . . .” becomes “During the next hour, what will the children do?”

In the passage, the children were working quietly. Many of them raised their hands so they could work with Karen. In my experience, a lot of children welcome help on math problems.

The children seem ready and willing to work with Karen, so answers B and D must be wrong. The children seem well behaved, so choice A is probably wrong, too. I choose answer C. It matches the information in the passage.
Do you remember the last time you liked a book so well that you told someone else about it? Creating a book jacket is a way to promote the book to hundreds of people at once. Professional publishers and designers create book jackets as marketing tools. Marketing is the process of promoting and selling a product.

In this workshop you will create a book jacket for a novel you have read. You will give readers important information about the novel and help them decide for themselves whether they want to read it.

WHAT’S AHEAD?
In this workshop you will create a book jacket. You will also learn how to
- choose a front cover image and a back cover quotation
- identify the elements of a novel
- plan and write a summary of a novel
- combine sentences
- use hyphens correctly

Prewriting

Select a Novel

Find Your Inspiration  For this workshop you need to choose a novel that you really like or that you think you will like. Your enthusiasm for the novel you choose should come through in your writing. The best way to make sure that happens is to write about a novel you enjoyed reading. You can also choose a new novel based on your interests.

To select a novel, complete these sentences.
My favorite kinds of novels are about _____.
The most exciting moment I remember from a novel is _____.
One student chose a novel this way:

The most exciting moment I remember from a novel is . . . the scene where Ponyboy gets his head held underwater by a member of the Socs. That was in a novel called The Outsiders. I would like to read that novel again. I think I’ll use it for my book jacket.

Think About Purpose and Audience

Be Reasonable  If you think about your reasons for creating this book jacket, you will realize that you really have three goals:

- to tell people what the novel is about
- to give your audience a reason to read the novel
- to attract the readers’ attention

Since you are writing a book jacket for a young-adult novel, young adults are your primary audience. To create an effective book jacket, you will need to include information that will appeal to readers your own age. Keep in mind, however, that parents and librarians also select novels for young adults to read. Include for this secondary audience information such as awards the novel has received.

My primary audience will be young adults. They would be interested in the rivalry and what happens between groups of teens who think they are tough. I will include information about that for them.

My secondary audience will be parents and librarians. They might worry about the rivalry, so I will mention on the jacket that the book is really about how violence is bad.

TIP  Since you have two audiences for your book jacket, you should avoid words and phrases that sound too formal as well as words and phrases that are considered to be slang. In other words, make sure the tone of your writing voice fits both your primary and secondary audiences.

YOUR TURN  Selecting a Novel and Thinking About Audience

To select a novel and target your audience, complete the following.

- Think of possible novels by completing one of the sentences at the bottom of page 128. Choose a novel you would be interested in reading or re-reading.
- Identify information you should include to get your primary and secondary audiences interested in the novel.

Go to the Chapter Menu for an interactive activity.
Select the Front Cover Image

A Picture Is Worth a Thousand Words

Which book are you more likely to pick up from the shelf: a plain book with the title written across it, or a book with a big picture on the cover? No contest, right? The picture on the front cover makes the book instantly interesting. Deciding on the picture for your book jacket may be difficult because there are so many images that come to mind. How do you pick just one?

Think about the story. Make a list of all the times the main character runs into trouble or does something unusual. Briefly describe the scene. For example, the student writing about The Outsiders chose the following scenes. Notice that he was careful to make sure the scene did not give away too much of the story. After completing the chart, the student ranked the scenes to determine which one would make the best cover for the novel.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Rank</th>
<th>Scene</th>
<th>Analysis</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>3</td>
<td>A member of the Socs dunks Ponyboy's head in a fountain and holds it there.</td>
<td>I think this would be a bad choice because you can't see the main character's face, and it gives away a big surprise in the story.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1</td>
<td>Ponyboy and Johnny run away to an abandoned church and wait for Dallas to come and help them.</td>
<td>I like this one because it shows that these “tough guys” are really just scared kids, and it does not give the story away.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2</td>
<td>Ponyboy saves several children in a burning church.</td>
<td>I like this picture, but it has lots of characters that aren’t important. Plus, the fire was less important than some of the other events.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Just Close Your Eyes

When you have decided on a scene to use for your cover, sit back for a minute with your eyes closed and get a clear picture of it. Then, start describing the scene on paper. Take a pen or pencil, and write down everything you can about the picture in your head. After deciding which scene to illustrate, the student whose example is shown above used the steps on the next page to decide which elements to include in his cover image.
Once you have a good idea of the elements you will include in your scene, you can draw a rough sketch of it. Decide where you will place the title of the novel and the name of the author. Also decide where you will list any awards the book has won. Because this is only an early sketch, stick figures are fine. You will create your final cover image later in the chapter.

Select the Back Cover Quotation

Listen to the Characters  A common element on the back cover of a novel is a quotation. Quotations help readers learn more about the story and the characters in the novel. To select a quotation for the back cover, you need to remember important things that the characters or narrator said. A sentence from the book that reveals something important about the novel’s conflict or about one of its main characters makes a good cover quotation. Use sticky notes to mark potential quotations as you read or re-read the novel. Looking back at the novel will help you decide on a good quotation. Notice how the writer of the example on the next page chose a quotation from The Outsiders.
There are two big moments in the book—when Ponyboy meets a Soc girl who is actually nice to him and when Ponyboy and Johnny are confronted by the girl’s boyfriend late at night. I don’t see a good quotation during the scene with the boyfriend. I’ll use this quote from the scene with the girl.

“I figured it was all right to be sitting there with them. Even if they did have their own troubles. I really couldn’t see what Socs would have to sweat about—good grades, good cars, good girls, madras and Mustangs and Corvairs—Man, I thought, if I had worries like that, I’d consider myself lucky. I know better now.”

When you pick a quotation, consider whether your audience will understand it. Some quotations make sense only as part of a longer passage. Be sure you choose a quotation that people will understand without knowing what happened before and after it.

Selecting a Cover Image and a Quotation

Use the following suggestions to select a front cover image and a quotation for the back cover.

- List possible scenes and determine which would work best.
- Use the Thinking It Through steps on page 131 to determine what to include in your cover image.
- Create a mental picture of the scene, and sketch it on paper.
- Choose a quotation from one of the most important moments in the book. Choose carefully, and do not give away the whole story.

Plan Your Summary

Make a Long Story (or Novel) Short The front flap of your book jacket will contain a summary. When you write a summary, you briefly state the main ideas of a piece of writing. Because a novel is a special type of writing, its summary is special, too. The summary for a novel must include details about characters, setting, plot, and theme. The Critical Thinking Mini-Lesson on the next page will explain these key elements of novels and other fictional pieces.
Even though novels can be about many different kinds of characters and subjects, all novels share four key elements: character, plot, setting, and theme. These key elements appear not only in novels but also in other types of stories, such as short stories and fairy tales. The following chart lists, defines, and gives an example from the fairy tale “Cinderella” for each element.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Element</th>
<th>Definition</th>
<th>Example</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Character</td>
<td>A person or animal that takes part in the action. This includes the main character, called the protagonist.</td>
<td>Cinderella, prince, stepmother, stepsisters, fairy godmother</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Setting</td>
<td>Setting is the time and place in which the events occur.</td>
<td>A kingdom long, long ago</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Plot</td>
<td>Plot is the series of events that make up a story. The plot events of a story indicate the conflict (the problem the main character faces), the climax (the highest point of action), and the resolution (the solution of the problem). Note: Leave the resolution out of your book jacket summary—you want your readers to enjoy reading the novel’s ending themselves.</td>
<td>Event 1: Jealous of her beauty and kindness, Cinderella’s cruel stepfamily leaves her at home to do housework on the eve of the ball (conflict). Event 2: However, Cinderella’s fairy godmother magically cleans the house and helps Cinderella get to the ball. Event 3: At the ball, the prince falls in love with Cinderella, but at midnight Cinderella disappears (climax). Event 4: The prince conducts a search and finds her. They marry (resolution).</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Theme</td>
<td>A theme is the author’s message about life that is revealed in the story.</td>
<td>Kind people will be rewarded.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Practice

Choose a novel you have read or a familiar fairy tale such as “The Three Little Pigs.” Then, identify the characters, setting, plot, and theme of the story.
Put It All Together  To write a summary of a novel, you must include information about all the important elements of the novel—characters, setting, plot, and theme. In addition to a summary, your book jacket’s front flap should begin with a piece of information to “hook” your reader, and end with a reason to read the novel. The questions in the following charts will help you identify the information your readers will want as they read your summary. Be sure to include all these elements. In the right column are the notes one reader took about the novel The Outsiders.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Hook</th>
<th>Ponyboy’s friends often get mugged.</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>What small bit of information would make the reader want to know more about the novel?</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

| Summary |  |
|---------|  |
| Characters | Who is the main character? What is he or she like? What is that character interested in or concerned about? |
| | Ponyboy is the main character. He’s a tough member of the greasers but a good guy overall. He’s worried about the conflict between the greasers and the Socs. |
| Setting | Where does the story take place? Is it set in the past, present, or future? |
| | The setting is a big town in the mid-1960s. |
| Plot | What major problem does the main character face? In general, how does he or she respond to that problem? (Be careful; do not give away too much of the plot.) |
| | Ponyboy gets in trouble when he talks to a Soc cheerleader, and her boyfriend wants to get back at him. |
| Theme | What idea about life do you think the author is trying to give you? What does he or she want readers to learn from this novel? |
| | Violence is senseless. |
Reasons for Reading

Why should people read this novel? What will they get out of it?

Readers will understand that the novel’s message about violence is as important to today’s readers as it was to readers in the 1960s.

Research the Author

“Let Me Introduce You to . . .” The back flap often includes a short biography or other information about the author of the novel. If you have read other novels by the same author, you can say a little bit about the topics about which he or she likes to write. The back flap often includes interesting information about the author. To find author information, visit a library or use the Internet.

Library In your school or local library, you will find many books that tell you about authors. One source is Contemporary Authors, a book that tells about authors’ lives, careers, and awards. Some books such as The Junior Book of Authors and Authors of Books for Young People are geared toward young-adult readers. Also, the library’s catalog will list other books, stories, and articles the author has written.

Internet The World Wide Web offers many Web sites about authors. Browse on a search engine using the author’s name or keyword combinations, including the words young adult, literature, authors, and biographies. You may even find an author’s personal Web page.

Researching the Author

Conduct a search for information about the author of your novel. Take notes on any important or interesting details that you can use in creating your book jacket.
The Outsiders was published when S. E. Hinton was just seventeen years old. The New York Herald Tribune named it one of the two best novels for teenagers in 1967. Since then Hinton has written many books for young adults. The list includes That Was Then, This Is Now, which is an American Library Association Notable Book, Rumble Fish, and Tex. She lives in Tulsa, Oklahoma, with her husband, David.

“I figured it was all right to be sitting there with them. Even if they did have their own troubles. I really couldn’t see what Socs would have to sweat about—good grades, good cars, good girls, madras and Mustangs and Corvairs—Man, I thought, if I had worries like that, I’d consider myself lucky. I know better now.”
Be sure to include the author and title of the book. You will create the cover in detail later. For now, use your rough sketch.

Begin this section with a quotation or phrase that will hook the reader. Your summary and reason for reading should not give away the novel’s ending.

Ponyboy cannot walk home from the movies without being mugged. He is one of the greasers and an enemy of the Socs, the rich kids from the other side of town. Most people think that the only thing the greasers and Socs have in common is their hatred of each other. When Ponyboy meets a Soc cheerleader, Cherry Valence, he begins to wonder whether greasers and Socs are really so different after all.

When Cherry’s boyfriend finds out about her innocent conversation with a greaser, he sets off a frightening chain of events that adds to Ponyboy’s anger at the Socs. It also leads Ponyboy to get over old grudges. He learns that people are pretty much the same and that things are rough all over.

The Outsiders is set in the mid-1960s, and it deals with the senselessness of violence. The novel is as important today as it was in 1967, when it was first published.
During the twelfth century, a young boy named Muna yearns to know his father, a proud samurai warrior. When his mother dies, Muna has only one clue to his father’s identity: a chrysanthemum tattoo on his father’s left shoulder.

Muna stows away on a ship and goes to the capital city of Japan, where he meets a swordsmith named Fukuji. Muna becomes a servant for the well-known swordsmith and has to fight temptations such as the temptation of stealing a sword from Fukuji. However, Muna never gives up his dream of claiming his father’s name and becoming a man.

The Sign of the Chrysanthemum tells about a boy with fantastic goals and courage. Muna dreams about finally belonging in the world, but he realizes there are more important things in life. This story will teach its readers to overcome their fears and become individuals.
Evaluate and Revise Content, Organization, and Style

It’s as Easy as One, Two . . . Read over your draft at least twice. In the first reading, follow the guidelines below to check content and organization. In the second reading, work on the style of your writing by following the instructions on page 140.

First Reading: Content and Organization  Use this chart to evaluate and revise your book jacket so the message is clear.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Evaluation Questions</th>
<th>Tips</th>
<th>Revision Techniques</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>1. Does the cover image grab the audience’s attention?</td>
<td>Use sticky notes to mark three things in the illustration that would interest readers.</td>
<td>Elaborate with details to make the illustration more interesting, or choose a more interesting scene for the cover.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2. Does the front flap hook the reader?</td>
<td>Circle a statement that should make readers want to read the entire novel.</td>
<td>If needed, add a hook to the beginning of the summary.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>3. Does the summary include details about character, setting, plot, and theme?</td>
<td>Underline these details in the summary and label the element each describes.</td>
<td>If necessary, add details about character, setting, plot, or theme to the summary.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>4. Does the summary provide a reason for reading that will encourage people to read the novel?</td>
<td>Place a star by the reason for reading, and consider whether you would read the novel based on the information provided.</td>
<td>As needed, elaborate with additional information that will help readers understand how the novel will relate to them and why they should read it.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>5. Does the back cover quotation make sense, and does it make audiences want to read the novel?</td>
<td>Ask a friend who has not read the novel to evaluate the quotation.</td>
<td>If necessary, replace the quotation with one that is easier to understand or more interesting.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>6. Does the biography include interesting facts and details about the author?</td>
<td>Review the biography and highlight each of the interesting facts or details.</td>
<td>Elaborate with more details about the writer’s books, career, or life, if needed.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
ONE WRITER'S REVISIONS  Examine this revision of an early draft of the book jacket on pages 136–137.

Exposition:

Ponyboy is one of the greasers and an enemy of the Socs, the rich kids from the other side of town. Most people think that the only thing the greasers and Socs have in common is their hatred of each other. When Ponyboy meets Cherry Valence, he begins to wonder whether greasers and Socs are really so different after all.

---

Responding to the Revision Process

1. Why do you think the writer added a sentence to the beginning of the passage?

2. Why do you think the writer elaborated on information in the third sentence?

---

Second Reading: Style  How you say something is just as important as what you say and when you say it. Look at each sentence in your book jacket. Do any of those sentences seem too short to you? Does the paragraph sound choppy? You can improve your writing by combining short, choppy sentences into longer ones. Use the following guidelines.

---

Style Guidelines

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Evaluation Question</th>
<th>Tip</th>
<th>Revision Technique</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Are there short, choppy sentences in the paper?</td>
<td>Read each sentence of the book jacket aloud. Put an X by each sentence that contains only five to eight words.</td>
<td>Combine some of the short, choppy sentences that are related. Put a comma and a conjunction between them or simply join them with a semicolon.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Combining Sentences

Since your purpose for creating a book jacket is to inform potential readers quickly and clearly, your book jacket has to read smoothly. One way to improve the flow of your writing is to vary your sentence length. Too many short, choppy sentences will make your jacket less readable.

Example:
The Pearl was written over fifty years ago. Its message is still true today.

Revised:
The Pearl was written over fifty years ago, but its message is still true today.

Short sentences that have the same subject can be combined to form a compound sentence. To create a compound sentence, place a comma after the first sentence and add a conjunction such as and, but, or or.

ONE WRITER’S REVISIONS

The Outsiders is set in the mid-1960s. It deals with the senselessness of violence.

Responding to the Revision Process

Why do you think the writer combined the two sentences above?

TIP

When you combine your sentences, be careful not to create a run-on sentence. A run-on sentence is actually two complete sentences punctuated as one sentence. In a run-on, the thoughts just run into each other.

Reference Note

For more information on combining sentences, see page 273.

YOUR TURN

Evaluating and Revising Your Book Jacket

- First, use the guidelines on page 139 to evaluate and revise the content and organization of your book jacket.
- Next, use the Focus on Sentences section above to help you decide whether you need to combine any choppy sentences.
- If a peer evaluated your jacket, think carefully about those comments and how they might help you improve your jacket.
Publishing

Proofread Your Book Jacket

The Home Stretch  Before you finalize your book jacket, proofread by reading your entire book jacket out loud slowly. Make edits, or corrections, as you find errors in spelling and grammar in the draft. If possible, repeat the same exercise with a classmate’s book jacket.

Grammar Link

Hyphenation

Have you ever noticed how narrow the inside flaps of a book jacket really are? To make good use of that cramped space, you may need to divide some words at the end of a line by using hyphens. It is important to learn how to use hyphens properly. Read each rule below, and notice how not following the rule makes a sentence hard to understand. For more on hyphenation, see page 646.

■ Never divide a word that has only one syllable.

Incorrect
Ponyboy cannot walk home from the movies without being mugged.

Correct
Ponyboy cannot walk home from the movies without being mugged.

■ Divide a word only between syllables.

Incorrect
When Ponyboy meets a Soc cheerleader, Cherry Valence . . .

Correct
When Ponyboy meets a Soc cheerleader, Cherry Valence, he . . .

■ Make sure you do not divide a word so that one letter stands alone.

Incorrect
Since then she has written many books for young adults . . . including an American Library Association Notable Book.

Correct
Since then she has written many books for young adults . . . including an American Library Association Notable Book.

Practice

Show how you would divide the following words if they did not fit on the end of a line.

1. different
2. movies
3. conversation
4. important
5. through
6. practice
7. following
8. innocent
9. consider
10. amend
Publish Your Book Jacket

Check It Out! To make your book jacket available to people who will benefit from it, try one of these ideas.

- Help put all the information from your classmates’ book jackets into a book-preview spreadsheet. A spreadsheet is a document that is arranged into rows and columns. See the tip to the right.
- With your classmates, talk to the school librarian about laminating your book jackets and displaying them in your library.

Designing Your Writing

Book Jacket Layout After you have finished writing and editing the text for your book jacket, you will need to create the final version. You can do this either by hand or on a computer. The diagram to the right shows you how to place your covers and flaps on paper so that it will fold into a book jacket. You will need two sheets of 8½- × 11-inch paper and tape.

Reflect on Your Book Jacket

Building Your Portfolio Reflect on your work by answering the following questions.

- How well did you achieve your purpose for creating a book jacket? Explain.
- What did you learn while writing your summary? How could you use those summary-writing techniques in other types of writing?

YOUR TURN 10 Proofreading, Publishing, and Reflecting on Your Book Jacket

- Correct grammar, usage, and mechanics errors.
- Publish your book jacket so that it will reach your target audience.
- Answer the questions from Reflect on Your Book Jacket above. Record your responses in a learning log, or include them in your portfolio.
Writing a Short Story

In a novel like the one you read for this chapter, readers spend a long time with the characters and follow a complex plot. The novel’s elements, which you used in the summary for your book jacket, are spread out over many chapters. A short story includes the same elements as a novel. In the case of a short story, however, the characters, plot, and setting of the story are given in only a few pages. In this workshop, you will write a short story using all of these fiction elements.

Read the first few paragraphs of the short story “The No-Guitar Blues” by Gary Soto. Notice how quickly he introduces the main character and sets the plot events in motion.

The No-Guitar Blues

by Gary Soto

The moment Fausto saw the group Los Lobos on American Bandstand, he knew exactly what he wanted to do with his life—play guitar. His eyes grew large with excitement as Los Lobos ground out a song while teenagers bounced off each other on the crowded dance floor.

He had watched American Bandstand for years and had heard Ray Camacho and the Teardrops at Romain Playground, but it had never occurred to him that he too might become a musician. That afternoon Fausto knew his mission in life: to play guitar in his own band; to sweat out songs and prance around the stage; to make money and dress weird.

Fausto turned off the television set and walked outside, wondering how he could get enough money to buy a guitar. . . .

The main character of this story is Fausto. The plot begins with him wondering how he will be able to buy a guitar. You have a hint at the setting for the beginning of the story—he is at home watching television.

A Flash of Inspiration

Before you write a short story of your own, you must come up with an idea for the story. Sometimes a story idea springs into your mind immediately, but other times you have to search for one. You might try

■ writing about a person you know who is interesting or unusual
■ telling about an experience you have had

One student decided that his friend’s desire to play hockey might make a good story. He decided to change parts of the story to create suspense, the uncertainty a reader feels about what will happen.

Critical Elements Once you have a story idea, consider each of the fiction elements and decide how they will take shape in your story. Creating a story map like the one below will help you. Do not forget that your plot events should indicate the conflict, climax, and resolution of your story. (For more on the elements of fiction, see page 133.)

---

Characters: John, his mom

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Plot event: Mother is looking for John and finds him at a skating rink watching a hockey team. (setting)</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Plot event: He explains that he really wants to be on the team. She won’t let him because she thinks it’s dangerous. (conflict)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Plot event: A game is about to start, and John convinces his mom to watch.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Plot event: She gets very excited cheering for the team. (climax)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Plot event: She decides hockey might be a good thing for John to do after all. (resolution)</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

---

Put It in Words Once your story map is complete, you are ready to begin writing a draft of the story. Remember to use dialogue to show character and to use concreter description to explain your setting. (For more on dialogue, see page 31. For more on description, see page 21.) The following is the beginning of the student’s story about his friend.

John lived for hockey. Every day after school, he would walk to the town’s only ice rink and watch the local youth teams practice. Often when the teams were packing up, he would borrow some skates and a stick and zoom around on the ice, perfecting his turns or slamming the puck into the net.

“Come on, John!” someone would almost always say. “Why don’t you join the team?”

“Naw,” he would answer. “My mom’s scared I’ll get hurt. She won’t sign the papers.”
Analyzing a Poem

When you made the cover of your book jacket, you created a picture that quickly gave readers an idea about the novel you chose. Poets also create pictures for their readers by using descriptive language.

Figuratively Speaking  A figure of speech is a descriptive word or expression that is not meant to be taken literally. Two figures of speech commonly used in poetry are simile and metaphor.

- A simile is a comparison between two unlike things, using a word such as like or as.

  The windblown children dashed across the field like scattered leaves.

- A metaphor is a comparison between two unlike things in which one thing is said to be another thing.

  Our feet became hot potatoes roasting in the sand.

Sense or Sensibility  While figures of speech describe by making comparisons, imagery uses vivid language to help the reader feel like a part of the poem. Imagery appeals to the senses—sight, touch, hearing, taste, and smell.

  The buzzing of bees in the garden broke the morning’s silence.

Read the poem “Construction” by Patricia Hubbell, paying attention to its descriptive language.

Construction
by Patricia Hubbell

The house frames hang like spider webs
Dangling in the sun,
While up and down the wooden strands
The spider workers run.
They balance on the two-by-fours,
They creep across the beams,
While down below, the heap of wood,
A spider-stockpile, gleams.
The spider-workers spin the web
And tack it tight with nails.
They ready it against the night.
When all work ends.

A Closer Look  When you analyze a poem, you should read it several times and take notes on what you find. The notes below were taken by a student who analyzed the descriptive language in “Construction.”

- simile—house frames compared to spider webs (line 1)
- imagery—“Dangling in the sun” (line 2)
- imagery—“They creep across the beams” (line 6)
- metaphor—workers compared to spiders spinning a web (line 9)
The Big Picture  Once you have identified a poem’s figures of speech and imagery, decide what message the descriptive language seems to support. You will use this message as the main idea of your paper.

Put It in Words  Before writing your essay, you will need to organize your ideas. Your poem analysis should include the parts listed in the following chart.

| Introduction      | ■ the author and title of the poem
|                   | ■ the types of descriptive language used
|                   | ■ the writer’s message

| Body              | ■ examples of descriptive language
|                   | ■ explanation of how the descriptive language points to the writer’s message

| Conclusion        | ■ restatement of the descriptive language used and the writer’s message

The student analyzing the poem “Construction” wrote the following essay. Notice that the student includes quotes from the poem when discussing examples of figurative language. According to the essay, what is the poet’s message?

In her poem “Construction,” Patricia Hubbell uses similes, metaphors, and imagery to show the similarities between workers building a house and spiders spinning a web. Hubbell uses a simile and a metaphor to make the comparisons between the efforts of the workers and spiders. In this poem, the “house frames hang like spider webs.” She also describes “spider-workers” who “spin the web.” The imagery supports these comparisons as well. The house frames are “dangling in the sun.” The description of the workers makes them sound like spiders when the poet writes, “They creep across the beams.” All these descriptions help the reader picture the workers and spiders at the same time.

The figures of speech and imagery point to the message that a construction site is very similar to a spider web. The workers and spiders work the same way and both build houses.

YOUR TURN 12  Analyzing a Poem

Find a poem you like that contains figures of speech and vivid imagery. Follow the guidelines in this lesson to write an essay analyzing the poem’s descriptive language.
Can you judge a book by its cover? People do all the time. Sometimes a person will read or buy a book simply because of the cover, so the cover can be very important. If you know how to analyze a book cover, you can gather much more information than the title and author’s name. A good book cover presents images, colors, and words in a way that reveals something about the book’s content.

To analyze and interpret a book’s cover, pay attention to three important elements: illustration, color, and font.

Illustration

Tools of the Trade An illustration is an image; a medium is the way an artist chooses to present that image. An artist has many media to choose from when presenting an illustration. For instance, an artist who wants to show a sailboat on an ocean could draw it with pencils, paint it with acrylic paint, use a computer-generated design, or take a photograph of a real sailboat. The artist could also use scraps of paper to create a collage of a sailboat.

Get It Covered No matter what medium an artist uses, the illustration on a book’s cover should tell readers something about the book. It can reveal something about the characters, setting, or action.

- Characters Are they male or female, young or old, rich or poor?
Setting  Is the story set in the past, present, or future? Is it set in the city, the country, the United States, or somewhere else?

Action  Is there a chase scene or an important discovery?

Color

Color is an important element of an illustration. Colors can be described as warm or cool. Warm colors, such as red or yellow, tend to create a feeling of excitement. On the other hand, cool colors, such as blue or green, often create feelings of calmness or moodiness. The feeling an artist creates through his or her use of color is part of the artist’s own style. Artists can also use color, however, to tell the reader something about the mood of the novel. An artist might also use a combination of warm and cool colors to emphasize important information. For example, in an illustration full of cool colors, the artist can use a warm color to draw the reader’s eye to an important aspect of the novel. For more on color, see page 728 in the Quick Reference Handbook.

Examine the covers in the right margin and decide whether the colors are warm or cool. What do you think the artist is trying to achieve by using these colors?

Font

Most computers allow you to change the font, or the size and design of the type. Fonts can look like newsprint or handwriting. The font can look heavy and dark or light and thin. In addition, most fonts are available in styles such as bold or italic, and come in any number of sizes. Like colors, different fonts can suggest different meanings. For more on font, see page 726 in the Quick Reference Handbook.

Look at the examples below. What makes each font match the subject?

Romance  Children  Fun!
Old-fashioned  Scary  Technology

Put It All Together

Using illustration, color, and font, the artist gives a general understanding of a book’s content. Read the example on the next page of how one student analyzed the cover of the book Hatchet.
Illustration

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Does the illustration clearly show the main character, setting, and action?</th>
<th>The illustration shows a boy—maybe the main character. The setting seems to be underwater, since there are fish and bubbles. The action is pretty clear—the boy must be trying to get to the surface.</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>What medium was used, and how does that medium help convey meaning?</td>
<td>The medium could be paint or computer. Bright painting or computer-generated art like this looks clean and crisp. It shows the setting, character, and action clearly.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Color

| Are the colors in this cover warm or cool? What emotions could they represent? | The purple and green (cool colors) make me think that the novel might be moody and emotional. Because the boy’s shirt is yellow, it really stands out against the green water. The ripped shirt might be important. Maybe the boy faces a dangerous or difficult situation. |

Font

| What meanings do the font styles reveal? | The word “hatchet” has pointed edges, just like a blade. The hatchet must be an important part of the story. I think the hatchet is going to help the boy. |

TIP

You might classify an illustrator’s style as literal or symbolic. A more literal style of illustration might show actual scenes from the book. A more symbolic style of illustration may hint at an important idea or emotion in the book, rather than show an actual scene.

How would you describe the style of each cover shown on page 149 and on this page?

YOUR TURN 13

Interpreting a Book Cover

Make a chart like the one above to interpret the cover of a book. If you have trouble, review the information on pages 148–149.
Design Your Cover

Now that you know how book covers provide information about a book, you should create your own. Look at the rough sketch of the cover you began earlier in the chapter. To complete your cover, use the same elements other artists use: illustrations, color, and font. Remember, the cover should convince people to read the novel. Make sure it gives readers interesting hints about the action, characters, or setting of the novel you have chosen.

A Rave Review  Do you think that the characters, setting, and action you have chosen to illustrate represent the novel well? Review your choices in the chart you created on page 150. Once you are sure about the content of your image, pick the medium that best helps you express something important about the novel.

The mood of the novel will help you decide on the colors to use. Determine the primary emotions portrayed in the novel, and use warm or cool colors to emphasize those emotions.

Finally, decide how the title should look on the page. Experiment with different fonts on a computer or flip through a magazine, tracing any fonts that fit the subject or mood of your novel.

Improve Your Drafts

Like writers, artists need to make drafts before they create a finished product. Few cover illustrators convey the true meaning of a book on their first try. Experiment with different images, media, colors, and fonts until you feel you have captured the point of the novel. Sketch several ideas, and choose one that you will fully develop as your final cover image.

Designing Your Book Cover

Follow the guidelines beginning on page 148 to finalize the book cover you began as part of your book jacket project. Remember to include the title of the book and the author’s name on the cover. After you complete a rough sketch of your cover design, ask a classmate to look at it and give you suggestions for improving it.
Performing a Dramatic Reading

You are in an auditorium. On stage, a young man begins to speak, but he does not sound like a young man. He stomps his foot, and in a little girl’s voice he demands a snack. Then, suddenly, his tone changes: “Honey, you can’t have a snack now. It’ll spoil your dinner.” You are watching a dramatic reading. A dramatic reading is a presentation of a reading selection in which the reader acts out the characters and action as he or she reads aloud.

In one way, a dramatic reading from a novel is just like a novel’s book jacket. They both give audiences a taste of a longer piece of literature. A dramatic reader brings the reading to life by using voices, facial expressions, and hand gestures. In this section you will have the opportunity to become a dramatic reader by dramatizing a scene from a novel.

Choose Your Selection

Choose Wisely Use these questions to help you pick a passage for your dramatic reading.

- Is it interesting? Avoid long, descriptive passages. They are not easy to dramatize, especially for a young-adult audience. Instead, choose a passage with interesting dialogue or action. Focus on scenes that are full of suspense, action, or emotion.
- Is it easy to understand? If you have trouble understanding your passage, your audience will, too. Make sure your reading will make sense to people who have not read the whole book.
- What is your time limit? Make sure you know what your time limit is, and stick to it. Test the length of your passage by reading it slowly.
Prepare for Reading

From the Page to the Stage  After you choose a selection, you need to adapt it for performance. Follow these three steps.

- Edit the Selection. Some parts of a novel do not sound right in performance. To keep your reading interesting, cut dialogue tags such as “he said” and “she said,” long descriptive passages, and references to characters and events that are not important to the passage you selected. All these things break the flow of your performance and distract your audience. To make editing easy, make a copy of your selection. Then, cross out the parts that will not sound right in a performance.

  “Honey, you can’t have a snack now. It’ll spoil your dinner,” Maggie’s mother said firmly.

  After you have crossed out unnecessary parts, you can add background information from other parts of the novel as needed. Sometimes this is necessary to make sure the audience understands what is happening in the passage.

- Analyze the Selection. What happens in your selection? How do the characters feel? Is the tone of the piece happy, sad, or suspenseful? Go through the passage and make notes on the overall scene and on each character. You can show what the characters are like in general, as well as how they act in your selection.

Maggie: She is stubborn and likes to get her own way. In this passage about the snack, she’s having a temper tantrum. She pouts. She takes her anger out on her brother.

Maggie’s mother: She is gentle, but firm. She has a soothing voice.

Little brother: He is afraid. He seems to get picked on by Maggie a lot.

Overall tone: The tension rises when Maggie confronts her brother.

- Plan Your Delivery. Have you ever noticed that when you are happy or excited, the pitch of your voice gets higher and your speaking rate gets faster? If you are serious or sad, the pitch of your voice becomes lower and your speaking rate gets slower. Using your notes, figure out what kind of voice will fit the moods of the narrator and each of the characters. Most important, keep a character’s voice consistent until the selection is over or until his or her feelings change. Also, use gestures. When people speak, they move. Most people emphasize their words with gestures. Some even have certain mannerisms, like raising their eyebrows or waving their hands. Your reading will look more realistic if you act out unique gestures for each character.

To figure out the best way to add voices and actions to your reading script, you can add notes to remind you how to perform your edited selection. Retype or rewrite your edited reading selection with the acting notes in parentheses.

Example:
(Maggie’s mom, medium-low voice, soft but firm)
“Honey, you can’t have a snack now. It’ll spoil your dinner.”
(Maggie, high voice, yelling. Face in a pout.)
“But I want a snack NOW!” (stomp)

Practice Delivery

Practice Makes Perfect  To make your reading the best it can be, you need to practice many times. Think of practicing as a series of steps, each one a little different from the one before it.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Step 1</th>
<th>Practice reading until you are comfortable and familiar with the characters and story.</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Step 2</td>
<td>Practice your delivery several times, each time adding another element, including</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>■ voice changes, pauses, and adjustments in how fast or slow you talk</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>■ gestures and facial expressions (practice with a mirror)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Step 3</td>
<td>Rehearse in front of a friend or relative, or tape your rehearsal with a video camera or a</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>tape recorder. Ask your listener for feedback, or play back the tape, noting parts you need</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>to improve. Watch especially for how fast you are reading, how you use gestures, and how</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>your facial expressions change.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Performing a Dramatic Reading

Prepare for a performance of your own dramatic reading by

- choosing a scene with few characters and clear action
- editing the scene to remove any unnecessary parts
- analyzing the scene to get a feel for the characters and their voices and gestures
- practicing the scene until you know it well
1. Lights, Camera, Action! Imagine you are a movie director and want to make a movie from a book. Just as your book jacket previewed a book, you will need a preview for the movie. Use the book you read earlier in the chapter for your movie preview. Use the same information as you did for your book-jacket summary—character, setting, plot, and theme. This time, however, make a three-minute presentation of your summary as if you were the narrator for the preview. You may want to include a few visuals showing scenes that you would include in your preview.

2. Acting Out Choose a poem and give a dramatic interpretation of it. Read it for an audience, using gestures, pauses, and voice changes to dramatize the poem. Ask your teacher or librarian for assistance in finding the perfect poem to read aloud.

3. Meet the Author Authors often visit bookstores to talk to readers and to autograph books. Call a bookstore nearby and ask when the next author of young-adult books will be having a book signing. Using the author research skills you learned in this chapter, learn more about the author. After researching, generate a list of questions you still have. Then, go to the book signing and ask your questions. When you get home, write a journal entry about your experience.

4. Experience Laboratory Life Choose an experiment by reading a science book for young adults or by asking your science teacher for ideas. Study how the experiment works. Then, write a hypothesis, or a prediction about what will happen when you conduct the experiment. Then, conduct the experiment with a teacher or other adult and record the results. Write a paragraph explaining why your hypothesis was or was not correct.
Who decided that people need to go to school? What does a manatee eat? How do computers work? Questions like these probably run through your mind all the time.

You may begin finding answers to the questions Who? What? When? Where? Why? and How? by doing research. Look around and you will find many sources of informative writing to help you answer your questions: textbooks, newspapers, and other media sources such as the Internet and documentaries. When you have a question about a particular topic, look for informative books or articles to help you find the answer.

Exploring Informative Articles

Find an informative article on a topic that interests you. After you read it, answer the following questions.

- Where did you find the article?
- Did the article give you all the information you wanted? Explain.
- Was the information in the article easy to understand? Explain.
- Where else might you look for information on this topic?
- How might you share what you have learned?
Have you ever wondered why people sneeze, or why some people seem to get sick all the time while others never do? Our bodies have several ways to defend themselves when germs and viruses are around. In the following textbook selection, you will read more about the human body’s defense system. As you read, notice how the author makes the information in this section easy to understand.

Preparation to Read

Textbook Features Imagine that you are writing a letter to your best friend (during lunch, of course), and you really want to get a certain point across. What do you do? You probably underline it, circle it, or draw a big arrow pointing to it. Without realizing it, you have used some of the same types of features that textbook authors use to communicate their points. Textbook features include bold or italic print, definitions and notes in the side and bottom margins, and special headings. As you read the following textbook selection, pay attention to the way the author uses text features to present information.

Summarizing Information Textbooks are loaded with information. Even when you read a short selection, you may feel like you are experiencing an information overload. Putting information in your own words by summarizing can help you get a handle on it. When you summarize information, you state only the most important ideas. Summarizing a reading selection is a great study strategy that can help you remember what you read.
Read the following textbook selection. In your notebook, jot down answers to the numbered active-reading questions in the shaded boxes. The underlined words will appear in the Vocabulary Mini-Lesson on page 166.

from SciencePlus

THE BODY’S DEFENSES

The boy in the photo to the right has spent his entire life inside a plastic bubble. He is not allowed to touch anyone, not even his mother or father, because he was born with no natural defense against infectious diseases. As a result, even a simple cold could endanger his life. Fortunately, most of us have a defense system that automatically fights off most of the bacteria and viruses that could harm us. This system consists of several lines of defense.

The First Line of Defense
Skin and Mucus
Under normal conditions, the skin stops microorganisms from entering the body. However, when the skin is broken, cut, or damaged, germs can enter. That is why it is very important to clean cuts and scrapes. But skin does not cover every surface of the body.

Mucus stops germs from attacking tissue not covered by the skin. For example, the inside of the nose is covered by tiny hairs and mucus. These hairs and mucus trap dust and germs from the air you breathe. Sometimes extra mucus is made by the body in response to the presence of foreign substances such as dust, pollen, or germs. . . . Blowing your nose and sneezing help remove trapped microorganisms.

1. Which sentence indicates the main idea of this selection?

2. What role does skin play in your body’s defense system?

3. What is your body doing when you sneeze?

Mucus A thick, sticky fluid covering many surfaces inside the body and its natural openings.
is important to cover your mouth and nose when you sneeze to prevent the spread of these microorganisms.

The Second Line of Defense

White Blood Cells

What happens if you cut your skin and germs enter the cut? Then your second line of defense, the white blood cells, becomes active.

White blood cells are one part of your blood. They are made inside some of your bones. Many of them are found in structures called lymph nodes and in the tonsils.

It is believed that damaged tissue, such as a cut, and invading germs both release chemicals. These chemicals attract white blood cells. At the same time, the area around the cut becomes warm and appears red, indicating that the cut has become infected.

White blood cells surround and destroy germs and damaged tissue. This action is similar to the way that an amoeba surrounds its food. The activity of white blood cells stops infection and cleans the area so that proper healing can take place.

The Third Line of Defense

The Immune System

. . . Some kinds of white blood cells make special chemicals called antibodies. Antibodies help in the destruction of microorganisms and other foreign substances. Your body is capable of producing antibodies for just about every kind of germ or foreign substance that exists on earth.

The production of antibodies is a relatively quick process. A few days after an invader has entered the body, a large number of antibodies can usually be found in the blood. This process of antibody production is a function of the immune system, the body’s third line of defense.

---

Antibodies Chemicals that are made by the body and that fight germs or other foreign substances.

Soon after a disease is successfully stopped, the level of the antibody that fought against it drops. For example, a person who has recovered from chickenpox will have only a small amount of chickenpox antibody left in his or her bloodstream. But a few of the white blood cells that made the chickenpox antibody remain in the bloodstream to fight the chickenpox virus if it returns. These white blood cells “remember” how to make the antibody for chickenpox. If the virus that causes chickenpox enters the body again, these cells will make a lot of new antibodies in a very short time. They will eliminate the virus before it can do any damage and before you become ill. That is why a person usually gets diseases like measles, mumps, whooping cough, scarlet fever, and chickenpox only once. This resistance to a disease is called acquired immunity. Acquired immunity to some diseases lasts a lifetime.

---

Immune system Body system that uses antibodies to seek out and destroy invading microorganisms.

Acquired immunity Resistance to reinfection by a disease after the body has recovered from the original infection.

---

6. What does this diagram show?

1. Viruses infect the body and attack cells.
2. White blood cells produce antibodies in response to infection.
3. Antibodies mark viruses, which can then be identified and destroyed by other white blood cells.

7. Why is “acquired immunity” in bold print?
Textbook Features

Information, Please  Imagine opening up your textbook and finding out that all bold words, headings, definitions, graphics, and other textbook features had been removed. Do you think it would be easier or harder to understand your textbook? Textbook features are designed to help you easily locate and understand important information. The following table lists and explains some common textbook features.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Types of Features</th>
<th>Examples</th>
<th>What They Do</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Features within the main reading (or chapter)</td>
<td>■ titles, subtitles, headings, and subheadings</td>
<td>■ break information into chunks to make it clearer</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>■ boldface and italic type</td>
<td>■ point to important ideas or add emphasis</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>■ charts, graphs, and diagrams</td>
<td>■ present information found in the text in a visual way</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Features in the margins</td>
<td>■ definitions</td>
<td>■ provide meanings of important words</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>■ questions</td>
<td>■ give readers clues to important information</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>■ reference notes</td>
<td>■ tell readers where to find more information about a topic</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Features after the main reading</td>
<td>■ end-of-selection questions</td>
<td>■ emphasize information from the main text</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Using Textbook Features  Recognizing textbook features is important. However, textbook features are meaningless unless you use them to help you learn. Learning to use textbook features before, during, and after you read will make informative writing easier to understand and remember.
Before You Read  If you spend a few minutes making predictions about the chapter before you read, you will find that the details of the chapter will easily fall into place as you read. For example, after reading the chapter title “The Body’s Defenses,” you could predict that the chapter is about how the body defends itself. Then, if you studied the first main heading (The First Line of Defense) and the subheading beneath this heading (Skin and Mucus), you could conclude that skin and mucus are part of the first line of defense.

As You Read  As you read a textbook, pay close attention to boldface and italic type. Boldface and italic type call attention to important vocabulary you will need to know to understand a certain concept. When you read a word in boldface or italics, look for the meaning or definition within the passage or in the margin.

Many textbooks also include questions or reference notes in the side or bottom margins. The questions help you check your understanding. If you cannot answer a question, you should re-read the passage or ask your teacher for help. The reference notes tell you where to find more information about an important idea.

After You Read  Answering end-of-chapter questions is a great way for you to check your understanding. If you are able to answer these questions correctly, you can be confident that you understand the main points of the chapter. After you have successfully answered end-of-chapter questions, you can use text features to make a study guide to help you remember what you have read. A study guide, like the partial example below, contains only the most important information from the selection, such as the main headings and important vocabulary.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Chapter Title: The Body’s Defenses</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Heading one: The First Line of Defense</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Subheading one: Skin and Mucus</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Relationship of heading to subheading: The first line of defense is the skin and mucus.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Boldface or italicized words with definitions: Mucus is a sticky substance that helps keep germs out of the body.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Explanation of graphic: no graphic in this section</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Summary of information in subheading one:</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

TIP Some textbooks provide questions at the beginning or end of a chapter. If so, you should take a moment to read them. These questions often stress the main points of the chapter. Of course, when you first read these questions, you might not know the answers. However, you will be surprised to find that some of the answers may “jump out” of the book as you read.

TIP If a book does not have end-of-chapter questions, you might want to make your own. You can do this by turning headings or subheadings into questions. For example, for the heading “The First Line of Defense,” you would ask “What is the body’s first line of defense?”
Summarizing Information

Say It Your Way  You have probably heard teachers and librarians say this a thousand times: “Put it in your own words!” When you summarize, you put only the most important information you have read or heard into your own words.

A good summary covers the main ideas of a selection, not every detail. For this reason, a summary is always much shorter than the original material. Think of a summary in terms of a sportscast: A summary includes only the highlights, such as the key plays and final results; it does not include a lengthy play-by-play account with every name and statistic.

How would you summarize the following passage? If you have trouble, use the Thinking It Through steps on the next page.

. . . Some diseases, such as various types of heart disease and arthritis, are caused by malfunctions of the immune system. Like other systems in the body, the immune system can malfunction or even break down altogether. Such a breakdown is called an immune disease or disorder. There are three basic types of immune disorders: allergies, autoimmune disorders, and immune deficiency disorders.

An allergy is a condition in which the immune system reacts to a normally harmless foreign substance, such as pollen or certain foods. In an allergic reaction, the immune system produces antibodies that attack the foreign substance, causing a variety of symptoms: runny nose, sneezing, red and watery eyes, swelling, rashes, and so on. In a few cases, severe allergic reactions can be fatal.

“The Body’s Defenses,” SciencePlus
In the first paragraph, all of the sentences are about the immune system.
The second paragraph is about allergies.
Diseases are sometimes caused by problems with the immune system. When the immune system stops working right, it's called an immune disorder. One type of immune disorder is an allergy. An allergy is a reaction to something that is normally harmless. Antibodies attack this substance, which causes an allergic reaction. Allergic reactions are usually minor, but they can be deadly.

Reference Note
For more on identifying implied main ideas, see page 745 in the Quick Reference Handbook.

Summarizing Information

STEP 1 Find the main idea of each paragraph. For each paragraph, ask yourself, “What do all of the sentences have in common?”

STEP 2 In your own words, write the most important supporting details necessary for understanding each main idea. In other words, explain what the author is saying about each main idea. Do not include most examples, anecdotes, or sensory language in your summary.

STEP 3 Check that you did not copy any sentences or long phrases from the original text. If you did, replace them with original words and phrases that have the same meaning as those you copied.

YOUR TURN

Summarizing Information

- Re-read “The Body's Defenses” on pages 159–161. Then, working with a small group, orally summarize the section titled “The First Line of Defense.” Be sure to state the main idea and only the most important supporting details.

- On your own, write summaries for the two remaining sections of “The Body's Defenses,” and add these summaries to the study guide that you began earlier. Remember to write your summaries using your own words.
Finding and Reporting Information

STEP 2

When reading a textbook, you may come across unfamiliar words that are not defined for you. Learning to take these words apart can help you determine their meanings.

The main part of a word, the root, contains the word’s core meaning. When a prefix or a suffix such as those shown in the charts below is added to a root, the meaning of the word changes.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Prefix</th>
<th>Meaning</th>
<th>Example</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>anti–</td>
<td>against</td>
<td>antibiotic</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>pre–</td>
<td>before</td>
<td>preview</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>re–</td>
<td>back, again</td>
<td>replay</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Suffix</th>
<th>Meaning</th>
<th>Example</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>–ion</td>
<td>action, result</td>
<td>selection</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>–ous</td>
<td>characterized by</td>
<td>joyous</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>–er</td>
<td>doer, action</td>
<td>catcher</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Using Prefixes and Suffixes

Here is how to use a word’s parts to understand its meaning.

STEP 1 Separate word parts until you get to a word you know.

STEP 2 Find the meaning of each part.

STEP 3 Combine the meanings to define the unfamiliar word.

STEP 4 Adjust your definition to fit the context of the sentence.

resistance = resist + –ance

Resist means “to oppose.”

The suffix –ance means “the condition of.”

Resistance means “the condition of opposing something.”

Sentence: “This resistance to a disease is called acquired immunity.” Resistance is “the condition of being able to oppose diseases.”

PRACTICE

Use the charts and steps above to define these words, which are underlined in “The Body’s Defenses.”

1. infectious (page 159)
2. prevent (–vent: to come) (page 160)
3. production (page 160)
4. invader (page 160)
5. recovered (page 161)
MINI-LESSON

TEST TAKING

Answering Questions That Include Graphs

Like textbooks, many reading tests include graphs. However, a graph on a reading test usually does not have a paragraph that explains it. Instead, the reading test will probably ask you to answer a series of questions about the graph. Study the graph below and the question that follows it.

Reasons Teens Give for Not Volunteering

How would you answer the question?

A local charity is starting a campaign to get more teens to volunteer for its program, which builds housing for families in need. According to the graph at left, which of the following approaches might be most successful in attracting teenage volunteers?

A. Have “Teen Volunteer Days” during the summer.
B. Hold training classes for volunteers.
C. Distribute informational videos to get teens interested.
D. Start a “Be Brave—Don’t Cave” program to combat negative peer pressure.

No Time During School Year
Peer Pressure
Lack of Interest

STEP 1 Read the question to determine what it is asking.

STEP 2 Read the title of the graph.

STEP 3 Find and interpret each of the intersections of the graph. An intersection in a bar graph is the point at which the top end of a bar rising from the floor of the graph meets with a number from the left side.

STEP 4 Use the question and the graph to find the correct answer.

It is asking how the charity can get more teens to volunteer.

It is about why teens don’t volunteer.

25 teens decline to volunteer because they don’t have enough time during the school year; about 21 because of peer pressure; and around 17 because of a lack of interest.

Most (25) don’t volunteer because they have no time. Because they might have more time in the summer, answer “A” is the best choice.
Writing a Report of Information

If you have ever sought answers to the questions Who? What? When? Where? Why? or How? you have done research. After all, seeking answers to questions is the whole point of doing research. In this workshop you will write a report of information. The subject of your report is up to you, but it should be something that sparks your curiosity. Finding information and writing a report about it is your chance to answer your own questions about your subject as well as the questions of your readers.

Choose and Focus a Subject

I Wonder . . . What will you write about in your report of information? If you have ever said, “I wonder,” about something, that something might be a good subject for research. After all, the best subject for a research report is one that really interests you.

You may already know what you want to research. However, if you still need a subject, try one of these ideas and see if you become inspired.

■ Thumb through an informative magazine to get ideas. Scientific discoveries and historical events make good research subjects.
■ Think about your favorite class. Then, list the subjects from this class that you like. Choose one of these subjects to explore.

At the top of the next page is one student’s list of possible subjects.
Favorite class: science, math, history, English

I like when we talk about animals, volcanoes, and inventions.

Animals that interest me: elephants, wolves, tigers, eagles

Get Focused  From avalanches to zebras, you can choose almost anything for a subject. However, unless you plan on pitching a tent and living in the library for the next year or two, you should limit your subject. You can do this by focusing on something specific about your subject. For example, instead of writing everything about zebras, you could limit your report to how zebras raise their young.

Begin focusing your subject by making a conceptual map. Draw an oval in the center of a piece of paper and write your subject within it. As you think of specific topics, write them in connecting ovals.

Subject: Eagles
- bald eagles as endangered animals
- nesting habits
- how they raise their young
- types of eagles
- physical features
- how they hunt

TIP  Once you start researching, you may not be able to find enough information on your specific topic. If so, you might have focused your subject too narrowly. On the other hand, if you find too much information about your specific topic, it may still be too broad. Talk to your teacher about getting the best focus.

YOUR TURN 4  Choosing and Focusing a Subject
Choose a subject and focus it by making a map like the one above. Then, choose the specific topic that is most interesting to you.

Think About Audience and Purpose
What’s My Motivation?  Every time you write, you should remind yourself why you are writing. The purpose of a report of information is to find information and share it with other people. Who are those people? Your audience will probably include your teacher and classmates, but anyone who is interested in your topic could be your audience. Ask yourself the following questions about the audience you identify.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Question</th>
<th>Explanation</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>What do my readers already know about my topic?</td>
<td>If you repeat information that your readers already know, they might become bored with your report.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>What do my readers need to know about my topic?</td>
<td>Give your readers enough information to understand your topic by thoroughly explaining important ideas.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>What can they do with the information?</td>
<td>Explain why the information is important for readers to know.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Ask Questions

What Do You Know? To think about the information you need for your report, start with what you already know about your topic. Use a graphic organizer, or make a list like the one below.

- There are fewer bald eagles now than there used to be.
- I know that there are laws to protect other animals.
- I think bald eagles used to be hunted.

What Do You Need to Know? After brainstorming what you already know about your topic, make a list of the questions you still have. These questions will guide your research later. Also, write down questions your audience might have. Start with the 5W-How? questions: Who? What? Where? When? Why? and How?

Who is trying to help endangered eagles?
What are they doing to help endangered eagles?
Where are bald eagles most endangered?
When did bald eagles first become endangered?
Why are they endangered?
How many bald eagles are living today?
Thinking About Audience and Purpose and Asking Questions

- Think about your purpose and audience. Answer the questions in the chart on page 170 to identify your audience’s needs.
- List the information you already know about your topic. Then, write a list of questions that you still have or that your audience might have. Title this list “Research Questions.”

Find Sources

Get the Facts! Start finding answers to your questions by researching sources. A source gives you information about your topic. Where can you find sources?

The Library The library is a great resource for print sources such as encyclopedias, books, magazines, and newspapers. Many libraries also contain nonprint sources such as videotapes, audiotapes, slides, microfiche, CD-ROMs, and Internet access.

Television Some TV channels broadcast informative documentaries and biographies as well as programs about science and nature. To find programs about your topic, check a television guide.

The Web The World Wide Web is a resource for information on almost any subject. If you use a Web site, be sure it is a reliable source of information. A reliable Web site should include information on the author’s professional background, the date the site was last updated, and a list of the sources the author used.

Experts You may find experts on your topic at a local museum, university, hospital, or government office. If you arrange an interview with an expert, be sure you prepare for it by bringing a list of questions and paper on which to write down all of the answers.

Make a Source List

Hey, Where Did You Get That? After you find sources for your report, you need to make a source list. A source list is a sheet of paper on which you write all of the sources you use for your report. There are several different styles for listing sources. The chart on the next page shows the style the Modern Language Association recommends.
MLA Guide for Listing Sources

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Source Type</th>
<th>Format</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Book</td>
<td>Author/editor. Title. City: Publisher, year.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Electronic Sources</td>
<td>Online: Author (if known). “Document Title.” Web Site or Database Title. Date of electronic publication. Name of Sponsoring Institution. Date information was accessed &lt;url&gt;.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>CD-ROM: Author (if known). “Title of Article.” Title of Database. Title of Medium (CD-ROM). City of Electronic Publication: Electronic Publisher, Date of electronic publication.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Encyclopedia Article</td>
<td>Author (if known). “Title of Article.” Name of Encyclopedia. Edition (if known) and year.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Interview</td>
<td>Speaker. The words Personal interview, Telephone interview, or Guest speaker. Date.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Magazine or Newspaper Article</td>
<td>Author. “Title of Article.” Publication Name Date: page number(s).</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Movie or Video Recording</td>
<td>Title. Name of Director or Producer. The words Videocassette, Videodisc, or Movie. Name of Distributor, year released.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Television or Radio Program</td>
<td>Title of Program. Name of Host (if any). Network. Station Call Letters, City. Date of broadcast.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Finding Sources and Making a Source List

Find at least three different types of sources for your report of information. Then, make a source list, and number each source on your list. You will need these numbers when you take notes.
Evaluating Sources

Newspapers, magazines, books, the Internet, and television shower us with information every day. Unfortunately, not all of the information available is reliable. Use the following guidelines to evaluate the reliability of the sources you find.

- Identify the writer or creator of the source. Look for an “About the Author” page that lists the writer’s qualifications. In general, the more experience and education a writer has on the subject, the more reliable he or she will be. Also, sources that are endorsed by reputable nonprofit or educational organizations are generally reliable.

  Preferred source: a book on endangered animals written by an environmental scientist and endorsed by the World Wildlife Federation
  Less reliable source: a Web page created by a nine-year-old as a class project on endangered tigers

- Locate the date the information was published. Although older sources can be helpful for historical topics, up-to-date information is usually best for a report, especially one on a scientific topic.

  Preferred source: a recent magazine article on the state of endangered animals in Guatemala
  Less reliable source: a book about Central American animals published in 1934 by an explorer and hunter

- Identify the purpose of the source. Some books and articles are written to inform and do not include many of the author’s opinions or feelings. If the author of your source includes too many opinions and too few facts, don’t use it as a main source.

  Preferred source: a newspaper article citing statistics on endangered animals
  Less reliable source: a fund-raising brochure describing the plight of a certain species

Practice

Below are several descriptions of sources for a research paper on the moon. Identify each description as either a preferred source or a less reliable source. Be prepared to defend your answer.

1. a book published in 1910 on the geography of the moon
2. a Web page on moon rocks published by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA)
3. a 1999 edition encyclopedia article on geographical formations on the moon
4. a book of poetry about the moon
5. a report on the moon published on the Web by a high school student
Take Notes

Unforgettable  The Great Lakes have an area of 94,600 square miles. Light travels at 186,000 miles per second. Jasmine is a plant in the olive family. So many facts and ideas can be hard to remember. To remember the facts and information you gather while researching, you should write them down.

Use note cards, small sheets of paper, or computer files to record your notes. Here are some suggestions for taking notes.

- Write a short label on the top line of each card, sheet of paper, or computer file to identify the subject of the note.
- Make sure that each note contains only one main idea.
- Summarize information, using your own words. If you do write an author’s exact words, use quotation marks. Using an author’s words or ideas without giving credit is called plagiarism. Plagiarism is a form of cheating and can result in disciplinary action.
- Write the source number you are using in the top right corner of your card, file, or piece of paper. For example, if you are using source five from your source list, write “5” in the top right corner.
- Write the number of the page where you found the information at the bottom of your card, file, or piece of paper.

Example:
In an interview Babbitt said, “The eagle is doing splendidly. It’s making a wonderful comeback everywhere.”

TIP Sometimes a quotation from a writer or speaker lends interest and believability to your report. If you use a quotation, give the person credit by using the person’s name or the title of the book in which the quotation appears.

Example:
The territory of Alaska paid a bounty for every eagle that was shot (Grambo 78).

The Writer’s Model on pages 179–181 includes parenthetical citations.

Your Turn Taking Notes

Read your sources to find answers to your research questions. Take notes when you find useful information. Refer to the suggestions for taking notes above, if necessary.
Plan Your Report

Get It Together  Making an early plan and an outline can help you make sure none of the information you gathered falls through the cracks.

Early Plan  First, group the notes that deal with similar information into separate sets. Then, give each group of notes a heading—a word or phrase that describes the information in that set. The headings for your groups are the main ideas of your report. Here is a list of headings for a student’s report on bald eagles. Notice that each of her headings represents a single idea. In what order would you discuss the following headings?

- General facts about endangered eagles
- Reasons eagles were endangered
- Eagles’ recovery
- Ways eagles were helped

Making an Early Plan  Sort your notes into sets and give each set a heading. Then, decide the order in which you will discuss each heading in your report.

Mapping It Out  Before you begin writing your report, you should make an outline using the headings you created for your early plan. An outline shows how the ideas in a composition are related to each other. Study the following excerpt from a student’s outline. Notice that she listed related details beneath her heading.

II. Reasons eagles were endangered
   A. Belief that eagles were destroying crops and livestock
   B. Bounties that encouraged hunting
   C. Loss of trees
   D. New homes and businesses

The main heading in the example above is “Reasons eagles were endangered.” The specific causes for their low numbers are underneath the heading. These are called subheadings.

TIP  You can also use a graphic organizer, such as a conceptual map or a timeline, to organize your notes into groups or categories. For more information on these and other graphic organizers you can use for prewriting, see page 806 in the Quick Reference Handbook.

TIP  When making your outline, you may notice that some of your subheadings can be grouped together. If this happens, think of a word or phrase that describes these subheadings. This word or phrase will become your new subheading. Compare Roman numeral two in the example to the left with the Roman numeral two in the outline on the next page.
To make your own outline, use the following steps. If you have trouble, study the outline that follows.

- Write your main headings on a sheet of paper in the order you want to discuss them. Label each heading with a Roman numeral.
- Under each main heading, write subheadings. Label each subheading with a capital letter. Number each detail that explains a subheading.

---

Bald Eagles as Endangered Animals

I. General facts about endangered eagles
   A. Drop in numbers in the 1940s and '50s
   B. Enormous decline in 1960s

II. Reasons eagles were endangered
   A. Hunters
      1. Belief that eagles were destroying crops and livestock
      2. Bounties that encouraged hunting
   B. Demand for lumber and land
      1. Lumber mills
      2. New homes and businesses
   C. Pesticides
      1. Effect on eagles’ food
      2. Effect on offspring

III. Ways eagles were helped
   A. Laws
      1. 1940—the Bald Eagle Protection Act
      2. 1972—banning of DDT
      3. 1973—the Endangered Species Protection Act
   B. Captive breeding programs
      1. Description of program
      2. Effect on eagle population

IV. Eagles’ recovery
   A. Statistics about recovery
   B. Eagles’ removal from the endangered species list

---

TIP If your outline does not have at least three Roman numeral headings with two subheadings each, you probably need to evaluate your research. Take another look at your notes. You may be able to seek fuller answers to your research questions or frame new questions. In either case, hit the books (or the Web) to find more information.

TIP Since the Roman numerals from your outline will be the main sections of your report, you might want to include these headings in your final draft. Providing a clear heading before each major part of your report can help the reader understand the organization of your report.
Outlining Your Report

Create an outline for your report based on your notes and on the headings you created in Your Turn 8. Use the example outline and the instructions on pages 175–176 to help you make your own outline.

Write Your Main Idea Statement

What’s the Big Idea? Now that you have done your research and taken notes, you are ready to write a main idea statement about your specific topic. The main idea statement, also known as a thesis statement, appears in the introductory paragraph of your report and tells what you will say about your topic. A good main idea statement serves as an umbrella for the main headings from your outline.

Focused Topic: Eagles as Endangered Animals

Headings from outline:
I. General facts about endangered eagles
II. Reasons eagles were endangered
III. Ways eagles were helped
IV. Eagles’ recovery

Main idea statement: Although bald eagles were in danger of becoming extinct in the 1950s, the efforts of many groups over the last ten years have helped them make an amazing comeback.

Anyone who reads your report should understand what it is about after reading the main idea statement. In the example above, the reader could guess that the report would cover eagles as endangered animals, the reasons eagles were once endangered, and how people helped them to recover.

Writing Your Main Idea Statement

Use the example above to help you write your main idea statement. Remember that this statement should serve as an umbrella for the Roman numeral headings of your outline.
To catch the reader’s interest, start with an attention-grabber, or hook, such as an interesting fact, quotation, or question. Then, state the main idea, or thesis, of your paper.

Use the information from your outline and notes to write the body of your report. In general, each paragraph should address one heading or subheading from your outline. However, you may need to use more than one paragraph to explain a particular heading or subheading.

Make sure that the main point in each paragraph has logical support, including all of the relevant details (facts, examples, and statistics) you found during research. Elaborate on each detail by asking yourself, “Why is this detail important?” or “What does this detail mean?”

In your conclusion, sum up the ideas in your report. Restate your main idea and bring your report to a close. You can bring your report to a close by drawing a conclusion about your research or by referring to something specific in your introduction.

End with a list of the works you used. In this list, show your sources in alphabetical order by the author’s last name. If there is no author for a source, alphabetize by the first word in the title of the source. If you did not use nonprint sources, such as videos or sound recordings, your teacher may ask you to title your list of sources “Bibliography,” rather than “Works Cited.”
Flying High—Again

You see its picture every time you look at a quarter. You even see it when the letter carrier delivers your mail. The bald eagle has symbolized the United States since 1782. Not long ago, though, the bald eagle seemed headed for extinction. Although bald eagles were in danger of becoming extinct in the 1950s, the efforts of many groups over the last ten years have helped them make an amazing comeback (Bald).

In the 1950s, nature watchers noticed there were fewer bald eagles in the skies. Charles Broley, a volunteer eagle watcher, was one of the first to notice the decline of eagles in Florida. Broley counted one hundred fifty eaglets, or baby eagles, in 1939. In 1952, he counted only fifteen in the same area. Broley thought something was keeping adult birds from raising babies (Grambo 82).

Broley was right. The National Foundation to Protect America’s Eagles estimated that 10,000 nesting pairs of eagles lived in the continental United States in the 1950s. In the 1960s, the number of eagles fell to fewer than 500 pairs. Eagles moved closer to extinction every day (Bald).

Many things caused the decline of the bald eagle. One of the most obvious was hunting. Farmers once thought of eagles as pests. They believed that bald eagles harmed livestock and crops (Tucker 58). To decrease its number of eagles, the territory of Alaska paid a bounty for every eagle that was shot. It is estimated that more than 100,000 bald eagles were shot while this policy was in effect (Grambo 76–78).

The demand for lumber and land also hurt eagles. When America was first being settled, it had over a billion acres of forest land where eagles and other animals could make their homes. However, as lumber mills cut more and more trees, eagles lost their forest homes. Eagles also suffered as people built houses, roads, and businesses in their nesting areas. As early as 1930, much of America’s forest land was becoming unsuitable for many animals (Tucker 62–69).

The major cause of the eagles’ endangerment was the use of pesticides such as DDT. Farmers used pesticides to kill unwanted insects and plants. Sadly, other animals and plants also absorbed the poisons. When bald eagles ate the poisoned animals, they became poisoned too. Eagles that consumed DDT laid thin-shelled eggs that broke easily when the mother sat on them (Dudley 54–55).

Fortunately, lawmakers realized that eagles could become extinct. In 1940, Congress passed a law to protect bald eagles: the Bald Eagle Protection Act. Under this act, people who killed eagles could be punished by a fine and time in jail (Tucker 69). The bald eagle was also helped by the Endangered Species Act of 1973. Under this act, the government protected millions of acres where bald eagles could live without being threatened by hunting or construction. The passage of these laws, along with the ban of the pesticide DDT in 1972, provided much-needed protection for the bald eagle (Tucker 75; Bald).

Scientists also helped bald eagles. To help increase the number of mature eagles, scientists developed a captive breeding program. In this program, injured eagles that could not survive in the wild laid eggs in a laboratory. After hatching, the eaglets were returned to the wild. Captive breeding successfully increased the number of bald eagles (Tucker 85).

With the help of many people all over the United States, eagles are slowly recovering. From a low point of fewer than 500 nesting pairs in the 1960s, the numbers have grown to an estimated 4,500 nesting pairs in the continental United States. If you count eaglets and young adults, there are about 55,000 bald eagles in the United States today (Bald). In 1998, Secretary of the Interior Bruce Babbitt took steps to remove the bald eagle from the endangered species list. In an interview, Babbitt said, “The eagle is doing splendidly. It’s making a wonderful comeback everywhere” (qtd. in Gerstenzang).

The bald eagle is not completely out of danger yet, but its future looks better every day. If eagles keep making a comeback, our national symbol should be around for a long time to come.

Works Cited

Writing Your Report of Information

Write the first draft of your report of information. Be sure to
- put information you gathered from sources into your own words
- write each paragraph using a separate heading or subheading from your outline
- support each paragraph with details, such as facts and statistics
- refer to the Writer’s Model on pages 179–181 and framework on page 178

Reports of information and their Works Cited lists are normally double-spaced. Because of limited space on these pages, A Writer’s Model and A Student’s Model are single-spaced. The Elements of Language Internet site provides a model of a report of information in the double-spaced format. To see this interactive model, go to go.hrw.com and enter the keyword EOLang 7-5.
Caves

In Mark Twain’s book The Adventures of Tom Sawyer, Tom and Becky spend three dreadful days in a winding, confusing cave. No matter how they try, they cannot find a way out until the last minute. Today spelunking, the American word for exploring caves, is a popular pastime around the world. Experienced guides lead adventure-seeking groups of people through these mystifying underground worlds, pointing out anything of interest and leading them to magnificent caverns. Before you dive headfirst into these wonderlands, you might want to know a little bit about them.

Caves are usually formed out of limestone by surface water leaking through cracks in the rock. Above the surface the water gathers carbon dioxide from the air, making a weak acid that eats away at the rock. Over the centuries the water hollows out the rock, leaving behind a cave. The largest cave chamber in the world is the Sarawak Chamber in the Gunung Mulu National Park in Malaysia. It is 2,300 feet long, has an average width of about 985 feet, and at no point is it less than 230 feet high. Some caves are one chamber. Other caves consist of a series of chambers that are all connected in some way, known as a cave system. The longest known cave system is the Mammoth-Flint Ridge cave system in Kentucky.

When people think of caves, they think of caverns filled with pillars protruding from the floor and ceiling. The pillars protruding from the ceiling are stalactites. Stalactites form when water droplets containing limestone sediments drip from the ceiling. . . .
Evaluate and Revise Content, Organization, and Style

“Making a list and checking it twice . . .” Whether you are evaluating a peer’s paper or revising your own report, it is a good idea to read the paper twice. The first time, think about both the content, or information, and the organization of the draft. Use the guidelines below to help you. During your second reading, focus on each sentence using the Focus on Sentences on page 185.

First Reading: Content and Organization Use this chart to evaluate a peer’s report or to evaluate and revise your own paper.

---

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Evaluation Questions</th>
<th>Tips</th>
<th>Revision Techniques</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Does the main idea statement cover all of the report’s important ideas?</td>
<td>Match each part of the main idea statement with a paragraph or section of the report.</td>
<td>Revise the main idea statement so that it covers the important ideas of the report.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Is the main point in each paragraph clear? Does all the information in the paragraph support that main point?</td>
<td>Write each paragraph’s main point in the paper’s margin. Write N next to information that does not support the main point.</td>
<td>If needed, add a sentence that states the main point. Delete or rearrange information that does not support the main point.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Is the information in each paragraph properly summarized or quoted?</td>
<td>Circle sentences that sound as if someone else wrote them. Underline information in quotation marks.</td>
<td>Revise by summarizing information or adding quotation marks.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Does the conclusion restate the report’s main idea?</td>
<td>Put a check next to the restatement of the main idea.</td>
<td>Add a restatement of the report’s main idea if needed.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Does a list of sources in the correct form end the report?</td>
<td>Check the format and punctuation by referring to the guide on page 172.</td>
<td>Add correct format and punctuation as needed.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Does the list of sources contain at least three different types of sources?</td>
<td>Count the number of different types of sources on the list.</td>
<td>Add information from another reliable source to the report if needed.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

---

TIP Use reference materials to help you revise and edit your final draft. Dictionaries, composition textbooks, and reference handbooks (like Part 4 of this book) can help you improve your writing.
To decrease its number of eagles, the territory of Alaska paid a bounty for every eagle that was shot. It is estimated that more than 100,000 bald eagles were shot while this policy was in effect. Eagles also suffered as people built houses, roads, and businesses in their nesting areas.

When America was first being settled, it had over a billion acres of forest land where eagles and other animals could make their homes. However, as lumber mills cut more and more trees, eagles lost their forest homes. As early as 1930, much of America’s forest land was becoming unsuitable for many animals.

Responding to the Revision Process

1. Why do you think the writer moved a sentence from the first paragraph to the second paragraph?
2. Why do you think the writer added to the second paragraph?

Second Reading: Style

One thing you can do to make sure your report flows smoothly is to vary how your sentences begin. Adding variety to your sentence beginnings can also help ensure that the reader will remain interested in what you are saying.
Varying Sentence Beginnings

To add variety to your writing, look for places where you can move a phrase from the end of the sentence to the beginning. When you move a phrase to the beginning of a sentence, you may need to add a comma after the phrase. The following chart gives some examples.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Original Sentence</th>
<th>Revision Strategy</th>
<th>Revised Sentence</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>People depended on candlelight before the invention of the light bulb.</td>
<td>Move the prepositional phrase to the beginning.</td>
<td>Before the invention of the light bulb, people depended on candlelight.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>You need skill to repair a watch.</td>
<td>Move the infinitive phrase to the beginning.</td>
<td>To repair a watch, you need skill.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Reference Note
For more information and practice on prepositional phrases and infinitive phrases, see pages 402 and 415.

ONE WRITER’S REVISIONS

Scientists also helped bald eagles. Scientists developed a captive breeding program to help increase the number of mature eagles.

Responding to the Revision Process
How did the revision above affect the flow of the sentence?

YOUR TURN 12 Evaluating and Revising Your Report of Information

Use the guidelines on page 183 to revise the content and organization of your report. Next, add variety by using the Focus on Sentences above. Finally, consider feedback from your peers as you revise your report.
Proofread Your Report

Get It Right  Before you write your final draft, proofread your paper for mistakes in spelling, usage, or punctuation. Having a peer edit your report will help you find and correct errors that might distract your readers.

Grammar Link

Formatting Sources

One of the most difficult parts of research is correctly formatting your sources on the Works Cited list. Not only do you have to indent your sources a certain way, but you also have to mark titles correctly and use correct punctuation.

- Periods: Place a period after the author’s name and after the title of the book or article. The end of the entry is also punctuated with a period.
- Titles: Titles of books, magazines, newspapers, encyclopedias, television or radio programs, or Web pages are underlined if handwritten and usually italicized if typed on a word processor. Titles of magazine, newspaper, or encyclopedia articles are placed in quotation marks.
- Indentations: Always indent the second and all following lines of a citation five spaces.

Here is the correct format for citing a book.

Practice

Each of the following citations has two or more problems. Refer to the guide on page 172, and rewrite each citation with the correct punctuation and format.

1. (Book)

2. (Magazine article)

3. (Online source)
Text features  If you have access to a word-processing program, you can use text features to help you create interesting, eye-catching reports.

Fonts: Use a text font, such as Times or Palatino, for formal papers. Decorative fonts, such as Mistral, are often difficult to read.

Size: For your report, make sure your print size is set at twelve points. Experiment with larger sizes for headings, if your teacher allows.

Numbering or Bulleting Features: Most word-processing programs can automatically number lists. If you have a list that does not require numbers, consider using a decorative “bullet,” such as a point (∗) or check mark (√) to separate items in the list.

Publish Your Report

Spread the News  Now is the time to teach others what you have learned. Here are some publishing ideas.

- Publish your report on a personal or school Web page.
- Turn your report into an illustrated book for children.
- Send your report to a teacher with an interest in your topic.

Reflect on Your Report

Building Your Portfolio  Think back on the process of researching and writing your report. Reflect on what you wrote and how you wrote it by answering the questions below.

- What information did you not include in your paper? Why? What information was the most difficult to find?
- What research techniques did you use? Would you use them again?

Your Turn 18 Proofreading, Publishing, and Reflecting

- Correct grammar, usage, and mechanics errors.
- Publish your report for your target audience.
- Answer the Reflect on Your Report questions above. Record your responses in a learning log, or include them in your portfolio.
MINI-LESSON
TEST TAKING

Writing to Explain

Some writing test prompts ask you to inform your readers by explaining your thoughts on a topic. The informative essay that you write for such a prompt is sometimes called a clarification essay. The best thing about writing this kind of essay is that you get to explain what a topic means to you. Read the following prompt and think about how you would answer it.

Think about your favorite food. Then, write an essay that explains why that food is your favorite. Be sure to explain each of your reasons fully.

---

Writing an Informative Essay to Explain

STEP 1 Read the prompt and decide what it is asking you to do.

The prompt asks me to think about my favorite food and write an essay that explains why it is my favorite.

My favorite food is Chinese food.

STEP 2 Identify your answer to the prompt.

Reason 1: Chinese food is sometimes spicy.
Reason 2: It is so different from what I usually eat.
Reason 3: You also get good soup.

STEP 3 Brainstorm a list of reasons that tell why you chose your answer.

Support for Reason 1: I could explain why I like spicy food. I could also give an example of a spicy Chinese dish, like garlic chicken with peppers, and I could describe the taste of it.
Support for reason 2: I could explain that Chinese food contains ingredients that I normally don’t eat, such as bamboo shoots.
Support for reason 3: I could list different kinds of soup. Then, I could describe my favorite soup, which contains tofu and seafood.

STEP 4 Think about the support you will give for each of your reasons. Ask What do I mean? How do I know? You can use examples, descriptions, and facts.

STEP 5 Write your essay, making sure that you thoroughly explain your answer to the prompt. After you complete your essay, read it at least once to check for errors.
Writing a Personal Narrative

Everybody has a story to tell. In fact, you probably have a good story to tell about writing your research report. You might think at first that you have nothing else to say about your topic. After all, you did just write a report about it. However, for this assignment, you will not focus on the facts you learned about your research subject. Instead, you will write a personal narrative about the experiences you had while writing the report. A personal narrative is a true story with a beginning, middle, and end, told from your point of view. The writer’s purpose in a personal narrative is to express his or her thoughts and feelings and to reflect on ideas.

Less Is More? When you write a narrative about writing your research report, you might be tempted to include everything. However, by focusing on a single event, you can make your narrative more interesting. To help you focus the topic of your narrative, think about an event associated with a specific person or place. You can also think about a particular problem you solved.

- Person: Who helped you with your report? A librarian? A friend? How did he or she help? Did you interview an interesting expert? Can you tell about an interaction with this person?
- Place: Where did you go to get information for your report? Did you have a funny or interesting experience at the library? Did you go somewhere unique, such as a museum? Did you get information by sending e-mail?
- Problem: Did you experience a problem while you were writing or researching your report of information? How did you solve this problem?

Express Yourself After you have focused the subject of your personal narrative, think about the thoughts and feelings you experienced while writing your research report. Were you glad? relieved? frustrated? confused? excited? One way to relate your thoughts and feelings to the reader is to state them directly. For example, the student whose example is given below directly states that he experienced panic and a sense of defeat on finding the library closed.

I tried to go to the library to get the sources I needed. However, when I got there, it was closed. Needless to say, I began to panic. I felt defeated because I thought that I would never get my research report done.

A more interesting way to express your thoughts and feelings is to do so indirectly through action and dialogue. In the following example, the same student uses action and dialogue to reveal his thoughts and feelings.
On reaching the entrance, I realized that the library was already closed. I desperately shook the immovable doors. The only thing separating me from the sources I needed was a thin sheet of glass! “How can I do research without books?” I murmured as I walked from the building with my head down.

The following excerpt from another student’s personal narrative focuses on one important event: choosing a research subject. Does the student express feelings about this topic directly, indirectly, or both?

The Research Subject That Swooped Down from the Sky

... I went to school the next morning with a sense of dread at showing up for English without the assignment. As a last effort, I tried to come up with a subject during free time that morning while the rest of my science class watched a video on birds. Then, just as I was about to give up and choose something like “the history of yarn,” it happened. I looked up at the television screen just in time to see a majestic bald eagle swoop down and grab a fish out of the water with its talons. What an awesome sight! The eagle made catching a fish look so easy. Suddenly, all sorts of questions began to pop into my head. “How can they swoop down like that and grab fish out of the lake?” “Do eagles eat anything else besides fish?” “How big do eagles get?” “Why don’t we see more bald eagles?” I was so excited that I accidentally exclaimed “Woo-hoo!” during the video. I had to stay after class because of the disturbance, but I finally had a good subject for my report.

I was happy to go to English class that day with my homework in hand. I was even happier to discover that I had chosen a subject that I really wanted to research. Over the next few weeks, I worked hard on the report. I went to the library several times and even spent a couple of hours after school talking to my science teacher, Mr. Newton. He let me borrow a book about birds of prey. He also helped me understand an article I found on the Internet about eagles. Researching was hard, but I am glad I did it.

Writing a Personal Narrative

Write a personal narrative about your research report. Be sure to focus on key events or problems as the topic of your narrative. Also, make sure to express your thoughts and feelings on your topic directly, indirectly, or both.
A hush falls over the crowd as you approach the podium. You can feel the tension in the audience as everyone waits for you to begin. Delivering a speech can be a nerve-racking experience. However, if you prepare well, delivering a speech can also be fun. After all, when you deliver a speech, you are the center of attention. The audience is in your control.

Adapting a Report for a Speech

What makes a good speech? As you get ready to make a speech based on the topic you chose in the Writing Workshop, focus on these elements:

- Think about the purpose and occasion. Are you giving an informal speech to your class, or is your speech part of a formal evaluation? Think about how these factors affect your word choice and delivery.
- Limit your speech to your report’s major ideas and the evidence you need to clarify and support those ideas. When giving evidence, make sure you tell your audience where you found that information.
- Adjust your word choice so that your audience can easily understand your ideas and learn from your speech.
- Use a simple outline to deliver your speech, rather than simply reading your report. Speaking from a simple outline will make your speech sound more conversational and natural.
- Avoid speaking too fast or too slow or too loud or too soft. In other words, use an effective rate and volume for your audience.

TIP

Use elaborations to explain your main ideas. Elaborating, or explaining your points in more detail, will make your speech easier to understand.

Reference Note

For more information and practice on elaboration, see page 304.
Use the pitch, or the highs and lows, of your voice to create an enthusiastic tone. If the tone of your voice suggests that you do not care about your speech, your audience is likely to feel the same.

Using Visuals in an Informative Speech

Avoid getting caught up in “chartmania,” the mysterious disease that affects speakers who use too many visuals. Having one or two well-chosen visuals is better than having too many. Whatever the number of visuals you decide to use, each one should have the same purpose: to complement and extend the meaning of an important point.

Posters, Pictures, Charts, and Graphs If you decide that using a poster, picture, chart, or graph is essential to your presentation, follow these tips.

- Make sure all words and pictures are large enough to be seen clearly from the back of the room.
- Be sure to describe in words what the visual means.
- When explaining a visual, face the audience.

Overhead Projectors or Presentation Software One of the best ways to use visuals that everyone can see is to use a projector. By creating transparencies of your visuals, you can make them large or small by moving the projector away from or closer to the screen. Some projectors even project images from a word-processing program or presentation software. If you choose to use a projector, consider these tips.

- Use dark colors for your text and pictures.
- Make your graphic simple. A cluttered design is confusing.
- Have a backup plan in case the projector breaks or is unavailable.

Video- or Audiotaped Segments Sometimes the best way to demonstrate your point is by using a video- or audiotaped segment. Here are some tips for using a video or audio clip.

- The clip should be fairly short; it should support your presentation, not replace it.
- Have your tape cued up before you speak so that the audience does not have to wait for you to rewind or fast forward it.
- Test your equipment before your audience arrives.

---

Reference Note

For more on giving a formal speech, see page 758 in the Quick Reference Handbook.
Listening to an Informative Speech

An informative speech often contains so much information that you might have trouble absorbing it all. To make the most of the informative speeches you hear, follow these steps.

Before the Speech

- Determine your purpose. Identify what you want to learn from listening to this speech.
- Make predictions. Identify two or three points you expect the speaker to cover.
- Get ready. Have pen or pencil and paper ready for taking notes.

During the Speech

- Devote your full attention to the speaker. Looking around the room or doing another assignment is discourteous and will prevent you from learning all you can.
- Listen for cues that signal main points, such as the speaker’s slightly changing the volume or tone of his or her voice. Cues can also include these words and phrases: first, second, and finally; there are many reasons or causes; the most important thing is; and in conclusion. Hearing these cues is the key to understanding, interpreting, and organizing the information you hear in the speech.
- Summarize the main points of the speech. As you listen, take notes by summarizing the speaker’s main points and supporting details.

After the Speech

- Monitor, or note, your understanding of this speaker’s message by asking yourself if the speaker covered all of the points you expected. If not, what did he or she leave out? Ask the speaker to clarify.

Giving and Listening to an Informative Speech

Now it is your turn to make an informative speech with visuals.

- First, adapt your report, using the suggestions on pages 191–192.
- Next, choose a visual that will help your audience understand your topic and practice with it. Use the guidelines on page 192.
- Finally, practice your listening skills when your classmates present their speeches.
Finding and Reporting Information
Chapter 5
Interpreting Graphics and Web Sites

How are compact discs made? Who was the first female astronaut? The answers to these and many other questions await you in books, on the Internet, and even on TV. However, just knowing where to find information is only half of the battle. You must also understand how to interpret the graphics and other features, such as hyperlinks, that writers use to communicate information.

Interpreting Information from Graphics

I See! You see them in books, on television, and on the Internet. Graphics, like words, communicate information. When words alone are not enough, writers often use tables, maps, and other graphics to help you visualize difficult concepts and ideas. Most graphics contain one or more of the elements in the table below.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Element</th>
<th>Use</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Title</td>
<td>gives the subject or main idea of the graphic</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Body</td>
<td>presents the main information in the form of a chart, map, graph, time line, or other graphic</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Legend</td>
<td>includes special symbols, codes, and other features needed to understand the graphic</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Source</td>
<td>lists where the information is from</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Maps  Maps give geographical information, such as the streets and landmarks in a city, state, or country. However, some maps contain other useful information. To read a map, such as the one to the right, first study the title. Then, study the legend for special symbols and definitions or color codes. By studying the title and the symbols of this map, you learn that one of the colonial products in the 1700s was fish. By looking for the symbol of the fish on the map, you can determine that fish was an important product from the Boston and Portsmouth areas in the 1700s.

Tables  Tables organize written information into categories, or groups. Textbooks often contain tables that organize and summarize important ideas. Whenever you see a table, such as the one on the previous page, first look for the capitalized or boldface words that identify the categories. The two categories in this table are “Element” and “Use.” By reading from left to right, you can easily identify each element and its use.

Line Graphs  Line graphs usually show how something changes over time. For example, the line graph to the right shows how the reindeer population of Saint Paul Island changed over a period of forty years. The first step in reading this graph is to find the intersections. An intersection is the point at which a number from the bottom of the graph intersects, or meets with, a number from the left side of the graph. By finding the first intersection in the line graph to the right, you learn that the reindeer population in 1940 was about two thousand. Once you find and interpret all of the intersections of a line graph, you can usually draw a conclusion from the data. What trend occurred between 1925 and 1940?
Time Lines  Time lines illustrate when important events occur in time. Time lines usually have a beginning date and an ending date. You know when things occur by their placement on the time line, which is read from left to right. The following time line shows some important events that occurred between 900 and 1500.

The Age of Discovery

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Year</th>
<th>Event</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>982</td>
<td>Eric the Red founds settlement on Greenland</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1000</td>
<td>Vikings reach America</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1095</td>
<td>Crusades begin</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1271</td>
<td>Polo travels to China</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1488</td>
<td>Dias sails around southern tip of Africa</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1492</td>
<td>Columbus sails to America</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Major Rivers of the World

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>River and Location</th>
<th>Length (mi)</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Nile (Africa)</td>
<td>4,145</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Amazon (S. America)</td>
<td>4,000</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mississippi-Missouri (N. America)</td>
<td>3,740</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Yangtze (Asia)</td>
<td>3,720</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Yenisey-Angara (Asia)</td>
<td>3,650</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Amur-Argun (Asia)</td>
<td>3,590</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ob-Irtysh (Asia)</td>
<td>3,360</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Plata-Paraná (S. America)</td>
<td>3,030</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Huang (Asia)</td>
<td>2,903</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Congo (Africa)</td>
<td>2,900</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Unemployment, 1925–35

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Year</th>
<th>Unemployed (in millions)</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>1925</td>
<td>13</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1927</td>
<td>12</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1929</td>
<td>11</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1931</td>
<td>10</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1933</td>
<td>9</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1935</td>
<td>8</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

1. What are the categories in the table to the left?
2. Which continent has the greatest number of major rivers?
3. Around what year was unemployment at its lowest point?
4. What trend do you see taking place between 1926 and 1932?
Interpreting Web Sites

Where Is It?  How would you go about finding information on plant reproduction in your biology book? One way would be to turn each page, one-by-one, until you found it. Of course, the more efficient way would be to look in the index, which is a listing of the major topics in a work. An index—whether for a book or for a Web site—can help you find answers to your questions more efficiently.

A Web site’s index can usually be found on the site’s home page and is usually a list of hyperlinks. A hyperlink might look like a button, or it may be an underlined word, phrase, or sentence. In the home page below, the underlined words and phrases are all hyperlinks.

“NASA is deeply committed to spreading the unique knowledge that flows from its aeronautics and space research. . . .”

Welcome to NASA Web

Navigating NASA’s Strategic Enterprises:
Human Exploration and Development of Space
Space Science

More About NASA:
Doing Business with NASA
Educational Resources
Freedom of Information Act
History
News and Information
Project Home Page Research Opportunities

NASA’s Future:
Online Multimedia Presentation
Peek into NASA’s future through a new, online multimedia presentation. Check out a future Mars airplane concept or float around the International Space Station. Fly alongside a new hypersonic vehicle or survey the Earth from space. NASA’s future is yours. (Full Story)

today @ nasa.gov

Interested in the latest information NASA has to offer? Then take a look at today@nasa.gov. This on-line newsletter, updated daily, contains the latest news about NASA science and technology.

Author: Brian Dunbar  Curator: Sudha V. Chudamani

Comments and Questions
Clicking on a hyperlink in the index will take you to another page that contains more information on that subject; it can also take you to a page that contains another, more specific index.

Making good predictions about the hyperlinks in an index can help you narrow the number of links to explore. After all, when you have a question, you want to get the answer as soon as possible. To make predictions about where the hyperlinks in an index will take you, follow these steps.

- Read each hyperlink in the index.
- Ask yourself if the information you want could logically fit in the category of the hyperlink.
- If your answer is “yes,” explore the link until you find your answer. If you run into a dead end, go back to the home page and try another link.

For example, a student who wanted biographical information about former astronaut Alan Shepard visited the NASA home page that appears on the previous page. He studied the home page index and decided to explore two hyperlinks, “Human Exploration and Development of Space” and “History.” Both of these links seem as if they might contain information about Alan Shepard. However, after clicking on the “Human Exploration and Development” link, the student found that it only led to a page that explained NASA’s purpose. He then returned to the home page and clicked on the “History” link, which eventually led him to a page with a link to astronaut biographies.

Interpreting Information from a Web Site

Use the NASA home page on page 197 to complete the following.

1. If you were trying to find information on how NASA began, which hyperlink(s) would you follow? Why?

2. If you wanted to find general information about space, which two links might you follow? Why?
CHAPTER

5 Choices

Choose one of the following activities to complete.

▶ CAREERS
1. Get a Job!  Pick a career you would like to have ten years from now. Then, write a letter to someone who has this career to discover how much education you will need and what the daily activities are. After getting a response, pretend that ten years have passed and that you have just finished your first day on the job. Write a journal entry describing your work activities and the way you feel about landing your dream job.

▶ DRAMA
4. Let’s Put on a Show  Many children’s programs use puppet shows to break down difficult concepts into easy-to-understand “edutainment.” Adapt the information you learned in your research project into a puppet show for young children. Then, create your own puppets and arrange for a show at a local elementary school or day-care center.

▶ CROSSING THE CURRICULUM: SOCIAL STUDIES
2. Where Did I Come From?  Do some family research to find out more about your relatives. Create a family tree to share with your class that includes information you find about your relatives. Then, write a memoir about a special event you experienced with one or more of the relatives on your tree.

▶ CROSSING THE CURRICULUM: MATH
3. Learning to Count  Find out about different methods of counting that have existed, or research the “invention” of mathematical symbols and ideas such as zero, percentages, and signs. Then, report your findings in an oral report for your math class.

▶ CONNECTING CULTURES
5. You Say Potato Pancake, I Say Latke  All over the world, people love to celebrate, but we all celebrate in different ways. Read about how people in other cultures celebrate birthdays and holidays. Make a report that compares and contrasts the celebrations of other cultures with your own culture’s celebrations.
“Wait until you grow up.” “You can do that when you’re an adult.” Do these comments sound familiar? Sometimes it must seem as if you have little or no say in the issues that affect your life. This can be frustrating, especially when you have a strong opinion. Fortunately, there is a way you can express your opinion effectively: through persuasion.

Persuasion is a type of communication that offers an opinion and supports it with reasons and evidence. Some persuasive communication even asks readers or listeners to take a specific action. You have probably come across persuasion in newspapers and magazines, or on TV or the radio. You can use persuasion to try to make a change in your world—begin by writing your own persuasive piece.

---

Discovering Persuasion

In your local newspaper or in a magazine, find an example of persuasive writing. Share the article you find with a few classmates, and discuss these questions:

- Why do you think the article is an example of persuasion?
- What reasons or examples does the author use to try to persuade you to share his or her opinion?
- Which article in your group is most persuasive? Why?
hey cause young people to huddle over their game pads for hours. They mean big business for software developers. They ping, zap, and explode in arcades across the country. What are they? You guessed it: video games—the topic of the persuasive article on the next page. If you have an opinion about video games, you probably find reasons to back it up. Do you try to convince people to share your opinion? Or do you talk with those who already share it? As you read the article, remember the author’s purpose: to persuade you to accept his point of view. Will he succeed? Read on and find out.

Preparing to Read

Point of View A point of view is a person’s opinion on an issue. The author of the following article, Lloyd Garver, has a very definite point of view on video games. He may not announce it in the first paragraph, but he does provide certain clues that will help you figure it out.

Logical Support Mr. Garver does not just expect people to accept his point of view without question. He supports his opinion. As you read, think about how well he supports it. If he wants to persuade a thoughtful reader—like you—he will use logical appeals. That means he will support his point of view with reasons and evidence. Logical appeals can include stories, facts, and expert opinions—support you can weigh carefully and confirm.
A Veto on Video Games

BY LLOYD GARVER

My wife and I are the kind of mean parents whom kids grumble about on the playground. We’re among that ever-shrinking group of parents known as video game holdouts. We refuse to buy a video game set. Around Christmastime, my son made a wish list, and I noticed that Nintendo was No. 1. I said, “You know you’re not going to get Nintendo.” He said, “I know I’m not going to get it from you. But I might get it from him.” Alas, Santa, too, let him down.

I don’t think that playing a video game now and then is really harmful to children. But the children I know are so obsessed with these games that they have prompted at least one second-grade teacher (my son’s) to ban the word Nintendo from the classroom. When I asked my seven-year-old if the teacher wouldn’t let the kids talk about the games because that’s all they were talking about, he said, “No. That’s all we were thinking about.”

Our society is already so computerized and dehumanized that kids don’t need one more reason to avoid playing outside or going for a walk or talking with a friend. I’d still feel this way even if there were nothing wrong with games whose objectives are to kill and destroy.

I know, I know. There are games other than those like Rampage, Robocop, Motor Cross Maniacs, Bionic Commando, Dr. Doom’s Revenge, Guerrilla War, and Super Street Fighter. But aren’t the violent games the ones the kids love to play for hours? And hours. And hours. My son told me he likes the “killing games” the best, hasn’t had much experience with

1. What is the author for or against? What specific words tell you?

2. Why does the author tell us this story about his son’s teacher?

3. Why do you think the author quotes his young son?
“sports games,” and likes “learning games” the least because they are “too easy.” (Manufacturers take note.) My five-year-old daughter told me she enjoyed playing Duck Hunt at a friend’s house. The beauty of this game is that even very young players can have the fun of vicariously shooting animals. And then there’s the game with my favorite title—an obvious attempt to combine a graceful sport with exciting action—Skate or Die.

Promote habituation: The January issue of the Journal of the American Academy of Child and Adolescent Psychiatry featured an article entitled “Pathological Preoccupation with Video Games.” The author believes that some game manufacturers try to develop programs that “deliberately promote habituation,” and the goal of some of the people who make up these games is “to induce an altered level of concentration and focus of attention in the gamester.”

If you have children, or know any, doesn’t this “altered level of concentration and focus” sound familiar? If not, try talking to a child while he is staring at that screen, pushing buttons. He won’t hear you unless the words you happen to be saying are, “I just bought a new game for you.”

In case you couldn’t tell, I’m worried that electronic games are dominating children’s lives. There are games that simulate sports like baseball and basketball, and that’s all some kids know about the sports. Someday soon, a young couple will take their children to their first baseball game and hear the kids exclaim, “This is great. It’s almost like the real baseball we play on our home screen.” When I took my son to a recent Lakers basketball game, the thing that seemed to excite him most was a video game in the lobby. You see, if a kid didn’t want to be bored watching some of the greatest athletes in the world play, he could just put a quarter in the machine and watch lifeless electronic images instead.

My son’s teacher was right. Kids do play and talk about these games too much. They even have books and magazines that kids can study and classes so they can get better at the games. And that’s what’s got me worried. I’m just concerned that this activity is so absorbing, kids are going to grow up thinking that the first people to fly that airplane at Kitty Hawk were the Super Mario Brothers.

I don’t like to discourage children from doing something they’re good at; in this case, I must.

---

1. Promote habituation: cause addiction.
2. “Pathological Preoccupation with . . .”: total focus of attention on, to the point of obsession.
Point of View

What Does the Author Really Think? One step in understanding persuasive writing is figuring out the author’s point of view on the issue. Sometimes persuasive writers announce their point of view in an opinion statement. An opinion statement is made up of an issue plus the writer’s point of view on the issue.

Example: Issue: video games on library computers
+ Point of view: they should be included

Opinion statement: Video games should be included on the library’s computers.

Unfortunately, writers don’t always include an opinion statement—especially if they think you will disagree with it. You can figure out the writer’s point of view on an issue, though, from clues in the article.

Try figuring out the point of view in the paragraph below. The issue is video games as learning tools. The steps on the next page will help you if you get stuck.

From the Game Room to the Operating Room

There is a lot of talk about violence in some video games. Few people, however, stop to think about the positive benefits of the games. The workers of the future will need to know how to operate computers, concentrate on complicated tasks, and do several tasks at once. Does this sound familiar? I, for one, have marveled at the concentration of a child playing a video game. Last night, watching a documentary about microsurgery, I could not help noticing how much the surgeon’s skilled movements resembled those of a child playing a video game. . . .
Logical Support

A Show of Support  We all need a little support now and then, and so does a point of view. As a critical reader, you should always look at how well a writer supports his or her point of view in a persuasive article.

Remember, good writers always support their points of view logically, using reasons and evidence. Using this kind of support is called making a logical appeal. Logical appeals require readers to use their heads (that is, their logic) to decide whether they agree or disagree with the author.

Reasons  A reason explains why the writer takes a certain point of view. In a persuasive article, the main point of each body paragraph is likely to be a reason. In “A Veto on Video Games” the first body paragraph begins this way:

Identifying Point of View

STEP 1  Scan the title and the first few sentences. Look for positive and negative words and comments related to the issue.

Positive: positive benefits, marveled, skilled
Negative: violence

STEP 2  Look for patterns. Are the words and comments you identified mostly positive or mostly negative?

Most of the words are positive.
Also, the author compares a video game player to a surgeon—that has to be good.

STEP 3  Based on what you have found, make a decision about the author’s point of view.

The author thinks video games are good learning tools.

YOUR TURN 2

Identifying the Author’s Point of View

Using the three steps shown above, figure out the author’s point of view in “A Veto on Video Games.” Then complete this sentence:

The author’s point of view is _____.

Think it Through

Identifying the Author’s Point of View

STEP 1  Scan the title and the first few sentences. Look for positive and negative words and comments related to the issue.

Positive: positive benefits, marveled, skilled
Negative: violence

STEP 2  Look for patterns. Are the words and comments you identified mostly positive or mostly negative?

Most of the words are positive.
Also, the author compares a video game player to a surgeon—that has to be good.

STEP 3  Based on what you have found, make a decision about the author’s point of view.

The author thinks video games are good learning tools.

Identifying the Author’s Point of View

Using the three steps shown above, figure out the author’s point of view in “A Veto on Video Games.” Then complete this sentence:

The author’s point of view is _____.

Logical Support

A Show of Support  We all need a little support now and then, and so does a point of view. As a critical reader, you should always look at how well a writer supports his or her point of view in a persuasive article.

Remember, good writers always support their points of view logically, using reasons and evidence. Using this kind of support is called making a logical appeal. Logical appeals require readers to use their heads (that is, their logic) to decide whether they agree or disagree with the author.

Reasons  A reason explains why the writer takes a certain point of view. In a persuasive article, the main point of each body paragraph is likely to be a reason. In “A Veto on Video Games” the first body paragraph begins this way:
The author begins by saying that video games played “now and then” are not harmful. Is that his main point in this paragraph, though? He goes on to say that children are obsessed with the games. That is the author's reason for having the point of view on video games that he does—and the main point of the paragraph.

Evidence Since reasons alone are not always convincing, persuasive writers support them with evidence. There are several different kinds of evidence a writer can use. (One example from the following chart comes from “A Veto on Video Games.” Can you identify it?)

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Types of Evidence</th>
<th>Definition</th>
<th>Example</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Fact</td>
<td>a statement that can be proven true</td>
<td>“While playing a video game, a person’s heart rate, blood pressure, and oxygen intake all increase.”</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Anecdote</td>
<td>a brief story that illustrates a point</td>
<td>“When I asked my seven-year-old if the teacher wouldn’t let the kids talk about the [video] games because that’s all they were talking about, he said, ‘No. That’s all we were thinking about.'”</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Expert Opinion</td>
<td>the opinion of someone with expert knowledge</td>
<td>“Psychologists say that playing video games helps children learn skills that will prepare them for the work force.”</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

TIP Persuasive writers often try to capture their readers’ hearts as well as their heads. They choose support that has emotional appeal as well as logical appeal.

Example:
Today’s video game players could be tomorrow’s lifesavers. Many young surgeons who grew up playing video games show incredible skill in microsurgery.

Why would the example above appeal to readers’ emotions?
Mapping the Logical Appeal  Sorting out the reasons and evidence as you read a persuasive essay is hard work. You can keep track of a writer’s support in a conceptual map like the one below. Think of the map as a mental filing cabinet: each space represents a folder in which you can file information. Mapping the information will help you in two ways: It will (1) help you think critically about the author’s point of view and (2) help you learn how to organize a persuasive essay of your own.

---

YOUR TURN

- Re-read the selection “A Veto on Video Games” on pages 203–204. Then, fill in a map like the one above with the issue, the author’s point of view, and the reasons and evidence from the article. Identify each piece of evidence you find as a fact, an anecdote, or an expert opinion. (Hint: Look for reasons near the beginning of each body paragraph. Look for supporting evidence in those same paragraphs.)

- Now that you have had a chance to think carefully about the author’s views on video games, do you agree with him? Why or why not? Explain your answer in a sentence or two.
Wordbusting Strategy (CSSD)

Words have power—power to persuade. It is important, then, to understand the words you read. Wordbusting is a strategy for figuring out the meanings of unfamiliar words. The strategy has four parts, but you only need to use as many as it takes to understand a word. The letters CSSD can help you remember the parts of the strategy.

- Context You may get clues to an unfamiliar word’s meaning from its context—

- Structure Look at the word to see if you recognize any roots, prefixes, or suffixes.

- Sound Say the word aloud; you may hear a root or another word part you recognize and can define.

- Dictionary If necessary, look up the word.

Using the Wordbusting Strategy

Here is an example of Wordbusting, using a word from “A Veto on Video Games.”

Word: simulate

My Best Guess: The author says “that’s all some kids know about the sports.” I think those words have something to do with the meaning, but I’m not sure.

STEP 1 Context: “There are games that simulate sports like baseball and basketball, and that’s all some kids know about the sports.”

STEP 2 Structure: sim + u + late

STEP 3 Sound: sim' yō ē lāt'

Practice

Figure out the meanings of the words on the right. The words are underlined in “A Veto on Video Games,” so you can see each word’s context. Write the steps of CSSD that you actually use to define each word, using the example above as a model.

1. dehumanized (page 203)
2. objectives (page 203)
3. vicariously (page 204)
4. induce (page 204)
5. absorbing (page 204)
When you read a selection on a reading test, you may be asked to identify the author’s point of view. You may also be asked to identify the author’s purpose: to inform, to entertain, or to persuade the reader. Suppose the following passage and test item were on a reading test. How would you approach them?

Educational software, or kidware, grabs a child’s attention through color, sound, and motion. In this way, kidware is like many video games. Many video games, however, are violent. Kidware, on the other hand, involves children in acts of learning, not in acts of destruction.

The author probably wrote this passage to

A. inform readers about a new video game on the market
B. tell a funny story about kidware and video games
C. explain how to use both kidware and video games
D. convince readers that kidware is better than video games

TIP Most writing in which the author has a strong point of view is persuasive. If you find a strong point of view in a test passage, the author’s purpose is probably to persuade.

---

"The author probably wrote this passage to" means the same as “Why did the author write this passage?” (“What was the author’s purpose?”)

The author uses negative words to describe video games. However, he or she says you can learn from kidware. I think the author wants to show that kidware is good.

Answer A is wrong because the author does not mention a particular video game. The author is not telling a story, so Answer B is not right. Answer C is wrong because the author is not giving an explanation. Answer D sounds most like my answer. This is the right choice.
“That is not fair!” “We shouldn’t let that happen!” Have you ever said those words? When you feel strongly about an issue, you want to do something about it. One way you might change a situation is to write about it. You can write something that might persuade other people to share your opinion. You may even convince people to help you bring about the change you want.

Here is your chance to make the world a better place. In this workshop you will write a persuasive essay on an issue about which you feel strongly. Using reasons and evidence, you will try to convince your readers to share your opinion.

Choose an Issue

Picking Your Battles Persuasive writing is about convincing your readers to share your point of view on an issue. So, the first step in writing a persuasive essay is to choose an issue. An issue is a subject, situation, or idea about which people disagree, such as the best way to raise money for the band trip, or whether television is harmful to children.

Your issue should be important to you. It should also be important enough for other people to have strong feelings and opinions about it. Avoid matters of personal preference, such as clothing styles or food. Focus on issues that have a real impact on people’s lives, such as school rules or current social issues.
Choosing an Issue

Here is how to choose an issue for your persuasive essay.

STEP 1 Brainstorm several issues about which you feel strongly. To come up with an issue, you may quickwrite using the starter sentences below. You won’t use these sentences in your essay, but you may use the ideas they help you generate.

If I were president, the first thing I’d change is _____.

One thing that really bothers me about _____. is _____.

STEP 2 Decide which issues are most important to you and create strong feelings and opinions in others.

STEP 3 Check off the single issue you want to address.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Issues</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>✔ having to pay for athletes’ autographs</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>chores—should parents pay kids?</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>bad-tasting school lunches</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

State Your Opinion

Taking a Stand Every issue has at least two sides—for it and against it. What is your point of view? As a writer, you need to take a stand and tell your reader which side of the issue you support. In other words, state your point of view clearly in an opinion statement.

An opinion statement is made up of an issue plus a writer’s point of view on the issue.

TIP An opinion statement serves the same purpose as a main idea statement, or thesis. It tells your readers the topic of your essay and what you are going to say about the topic.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Issue: having to pay for athletes’ autographs</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>+ Point of view: fans shouldn’t have to</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Opinion statement: Fans shouldn’t have to pay for athletes’ autographs.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Consider Your Audience

Who Cares? You probably would not write a persuasive essay about the school cafeteria to your college-age brother. Since problems with the school cafeteria don’t affect his life, he probably would not be very interested in them. Persuasive writing works best when it is directed at the right group, or audience. You can identify the audience for your persuasive essay in two steps.

1. Figure out what groups of people are interested in your issue.
2. Choose one group to focus on, and analyze that group.

Finding Your Audience To identify the right audience for your essay, think about the issue you have chosen. Remember that any issue is likely to affect more than one group of people. Ask yourself these questions.

■ Who is interested in this issue?
After identifying at least two of the groups who might care about your issue, ask,

■ For which group do I want to write?
The student writing about athletes charging for autographs identified baseball card collectors and professional baseball players as groups interested in that issue. She then decided to write to baseball card collectors. As a collector herself, she feels she understands them and knows what is important to them.

YOUR TURN 5 Identifying Your General Audience

To identify your general audience,

■ think of at least two groups interested in your issue
■ choose a group to address

Your voice shows your attitude about the issue in your persuasive essay. Not all attitudes are right for all audiences, so take your audience into account when you choose a writing voice.

For example, it might be okay to use humor and a lighthearted tone in a school newspaper piece about outdated science lab equipment. However, if you wrote to your principal or the school board on the same issue, your tone would have to be more serious and formal.
 Putting Your Audience in Focus **

Now you can zero in on the group you picked. Focus on the members of that group who might be undecided or might disagree with you, because they are the ones you have to convince. (You don’t need to convince people who already share your opinion.) To get them on your side, you will have to understand their concerns.

 KEY CONCEPT **

 The group I’m addressing: baseball card collectors

 Why might people in this group disagree with me?  They might think that signed cards aren’t that expensive. Some collectors my age get a bigger allowance than I do, so the price of the cards won’t matter.

 How old are people in this group?  They are all ages, but I know more about the ones my age.

 What else do I know about this group?  They all have their favorite players, but most of them love Hank Aaron.

 Specific audience: baseball card collectors my age who admire Hank Aaron and think it’s okay for athletes to charge money for autographs

---

 YOUR TURN 6 **

 Identifying Your Specific Audience **

Zero in on your audience by answering the questions that appear in the example above. Then, identify your specific audience by completing this sentence:

My specific audience is ____.

---

 Gather Support **

 Putting Your Money Where Your Mouth Is  It is not enough to state your opinion on an issue. You also have to convince your reader that your opinion is logical, or that it makes sense. To do this, you must provide support, reasons, and evidence that back up your opinion. Reasons tell why you believe as you do. Evidence—in the form of anecdotes, facts, or expert opinions—backs up each reason.
Opinion Statement: The school lunchroom should offer vegetarian meals.

Reason: Many students at King Middle School are vegetarians.

Reason with Evidence: Many students at King Middle School are vegetarians. A poll shows that 30% of the students here do not eat meat. (fact)

To find support for your opinion, try the following sources:

- Interview experts, friends, or other people who are interested in the issue. For example, if you are writing about the school lunchroom, you might interview students, teachers, cafeteria workers, or the cafeteria manager.

- Research the issue. For example, find magazine articles, Web pages, or electronic newsgroup postings about other young people who are vegetarians. Taking a poll—to see how many students at a school are vegetarian, for instance—is another way to do research.

Designing Your Writing

Using Numbers Statistical evidence—numbers—can be very persuasive. You can create visuals to show graphically the statistical evidence in your essay. A pie chart is a good choice when you want to show how a whole breaks down into percentages or parts. For example, the writer who created the pie chart below wanted to show the percentages of all students at King Middle School who do and do not eat meat.

Eating Habits of Students at King Middle School

- 65% NON-VEGETARIAN
- 30% VEGETARIAN
- 5% OTHER

TIP

Reasons that appeal to a reader’s logic, or intelligence, are called logical appeals. Logical appeals show why it makes sense to accept the writer’s point of view.

Reference Note

For more on reasons, see page 206. For more on evidence, see page 207.

COMPUTER TIP

Many software programs allow you to create visuals such as pie charts on your computer. If you have access to a color printer, you can make each section of your pie chart a different color. This will help your reader see the different amounts represented by each part of the chart.
In the support chart below, a student lists several reasons why professional athletes should not charge fans for autographs. In the second column, she gives evidence to support each reason. In the third column, the writer evaluates her evidence, and in the fourth column, she rates the strength of each item (“Good,” “Best,” “Okay”), based on her audience’s concerns. Knowing which evidence is strongest will help you organize your support before you write.

Support Chart

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Reasons</th>
<th>Supporting Evidence</th>
<th>How Strong?</th>
<th>Rating</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Players should be grateful for their fans’ interest.</td>
<td>Expert Opinion: Hank Aaron’s biographer says he was flattered to have kids look up to him.</td>
<td>Pretty strong. My audience still thinks of Hank Aaron as the greatest.</td>
<td>Good</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The fans help the players get huge salaries.</td>
<td>Fact: The most popular major league baseball players earn millions of dollars a year in salaries.</td>
<td>Very strong. This example will make readers think, “Players already make so much money. They shouldn’t take any more from us.”</td>
<td>Best</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Kids don’t have enough money to spend on things like autographs.</td>
<td>Anecdote: A friend of mine spent his entire month’s allowance on one card.</td>
<td>Not as strong as the other support—it depends on who’s paying for the card.</td>
<td>Okay</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Gathering Support

- Create a support chart like the one above, listing reasons and evidence to support your opinion statement. With your audience’s concerns in mind, use the fourth column to rate the overall strength of each piece of evidence.
- Replace any evidence you decide is too weak to convince your audience. You should have at least two reasons, each supported by evidence.
CRITICAL THINKING

Telling the Difference Between Facts and Opinions

Picture this: A student you have never met tells you that you should buy a can of popcorn for a cheerleading fund-raiser.

“Why should I?” you ask.

“Because the cheerleaders need new uniforms,” she says.

“What makes you say that?” you ask.

“Well, their old uniforms look really sad!” the student replies.

Are you persuaded? Probably not. The student stated her opinion and gave you a reason. What she did not do was support her reason with convincing evidence. Where she could have given you facts, she only gave you another opinion (“... their old uniforms look really sad!”). In most cases, opinions do not make persuasive evidence.

Persuasive evidence should be based on fact, not on an opinion. An opinion expresses a personal belief. It can’t be proved true or false. It may be reasonable, but it is not a fact.

Opinion: The uniforms we want to buy are more attractive than those we have currently.

Words that evaluate—greatest, best, worst, and of course, sad—often signal an opinion.

Opinion: Cotton is the best fabric for athletic wear.

When a writer begins I believe, I feel, I think, an opinion usually follows. Opinions may also contain words like should and ought to.

Opinion: I think the cheerleaders should wear the school colors.

A fact, on the other hand, can be proved true. You can look it up, ask witnesses, or measure it yourself.

Fact: The cheerleaders’ current uniforms are blue and white.

Fact: Blue and red are our school colors.

Fact: In the majority of the middle schools in our district, the cheerleaders wear their school colors.

TIP The only opinions you should use as evidence are expert opinions. An expert opinion comes from someone with expert knowledge in his or her field.

PRACTICE

Identify each of the following statements as either a fact or an opinion. Explain your answers in a sentence.

1. Every student should have a locker.
2. Taft Middle School has 500 students and 450 lockers.
3. The U.S. women’s ice hockey team won gold in the 1998 Olympics.
4. Michael Jordan is the greatest basketball player of all time.
5. Figure skating requires more talent than gymnastics does.
Framework

Introduction
- Attention-grabbing opening
- Opinion statement

Body
- Reason #1 (evidence supporting reason #1)
- Reason #2 (evidence supporting reason #2) and so on

Conclusion
- Restatement of opinion
- Summary of reasons and/or call to action

Directions and Explanations

Grab your reader’s attention with an interesting beginning. Also include a clear opinion statement so your audience knows what you are supporting. (For more on writing interesting beginnings, see page 795 in the Quick Reference Handbook.)

Choose the most convincing reasons and evidence from your support chart. Here is one effective way to organize your reasons:
- Start with your second strongest reason to attract your reader to your side.
- Leave your audience with a strong impression by using your strongest reason last.
- Sandwich any other reasons in the middle.

This organization makes the most of your strongest support and downplays your weaker support.

Leave your audience convinced that you are right. Restate your opinion in a new way. Then, summarize your reasons in a single sentence or call on your audience to take some kind of action. (You can do either or both.)

Writing Your Persuasive Essay

Now it is your turn to write a persuasive essay. As you write,
- keep your audience in mind
- use the strongest reasons and evidence from your chart
- refer to the framework above and the Writer’s Model on page 219
What Is a Fan’s Loyalty Worth?

Last week at a baseball card show, I asked a well-known baseball player for his autograph. Imagine my surprise when his agent said I would have to pay fifteen dollars before the player would sign his name! Fans should not have to pay to get a baseball player’s autograph.

Baseball players should be satisfied that their fans love them. Hank Aaron’s biographer states that Aaron was flattered just to have kids look up to him. He would not have dreamed of asking people to pay for his autograph. Today’s players should follow Hank Aaron’s example.

Kids, who might grow up to be lifelong fans of a player, cannot afford to pay fifteen dollars for an autograph. A friend of mine spent his entire month’s allowance on a single autographed card. His experience is not unusual. The average allowance of the twenty-five Eagle Middle School students I surveyed is five dollars a week. For these students, buying one card would leave little money for any other recreation for the month.

Athletes should not charge fans for autographs. After all, the fans help many athletes receive huge salaries in the first place. Popular players—the ones fans ask for autographs most—already make millions. In 2000, according to USA Today’s Internet site, these were the salaries of some popular players: Mike Piazza, $12,000,000; Pedro Martinez, $11,500,000; and Sammy Sosa, $11,000,000. Top players make more in a year than most of us will make in a lifetime.

Instead of taking our money, athletes should repay our loyalty by freely signing their beloved names to our tattered cards. Do not pay for autographs. Show players that an autograph should be a way of saying “thank you” to a loyal fan, and thank yous should not cost money.
Hungry Students Can’t Study

“Grrrr! Oh, I’m hungry! When is lunch?” If you have ever walked down the junior high halls, this is something you will definitely hear. All kids should be able to have a snack time, or at least be allowed to keep food in their lockers.

When I asked why we couldn’t have a snack time, one teacher I asked just said, “Why? You’re not little kids anymore.” That is just the point; we need food because we are growing now more than we ever will in our lives. Being hungry can have a big effect on the performance of a student. We just can’t work or concentrate when all we can hear is the rumbling of our stomachs. We count down the seconds till lunch.

Getting a snack time really wouldn’t change things all that much. All we need is five minutes. Trust me, if we can cram blueberry muffins down our throats in a two-minute hall period, we can definitely do it in five. All we have to do is take off a minute from each class and we will have more than enough time to eat.

No one can work on an empty stomach and be focused at the same time. Teachers certainly have figured that out. That is why they have a vending machine in the teachers’ room, and why you will find a box of crackers in almost every teacher’s desk.

It is not that we just want a snack time; it is that we need a snack time to keep us focused in class. The way I feel is that kids aren’t looked upon as regular people the way we should be. We need a snack during the day just as much as everyone else. As I say, “Let us eat cake!”
TEST TAKING

Writing a Position Paper

A position paper is similar to a persuasive essay. Both require you to state your opinion and convince readers to take action. In a position paper, though, you discuss the benefits of both sides of an issue before you state your position and request that your readers take action. If the prompt to the right appeared on a writing test, how would you approach it?

Your school is overcrowded. The school board is debating whether it is better to enlarge your school or build a new one that half the students would attend. Write a letter to your school board president discussing both sides of the issue. Then, state your position and give convincing support for it.

THINKING IT THROUGH

Writing a Position Paper

► STEP 1 Read the prompt and identify the issue, the two options, the purpose, and the audience.

- Issue: crowded school; Option #1: enlarge our school; Option #2: build a new school; Purpose: to persuade; Audience: school board president

► STEP 2 To generate a list of the benefits of each option, use the memory strategy THEMES: time, health, education, money, environment, and safety.

- Option 1: friends will continue to go to the same school, our community will not be divided, the school will look better since some parts will be new
- Option 2: will still know everyone since the school will not be that big, traffic will be better since students will attend two different schools

► STEP 3 Decide which option you support. Then, using THEMES again, list the drawbacks of the option you do not support.

- I do not want a new school. These are the drawbacks: Friendships may be broken. A new school would cost a lot. Competition between the “old school” and the “new school” may cause problems.

► STEP 4 Write your essay, elaborating on each benefit and drawback.

- Introduction: Identify the issue and the two choices.
- Body Paragraph #1: Discuss benefits of the first option.
- Body Paragraph #2: Discuss benefits of the second option.
- Body Paragraph #3: State position; give drawbacks of other option.
- Conclusion: Restate position; ask audience to act.
Revising

Evaluate and Revise Content, Organization, and Style

Giving Your Essay the Twice Over  As you evaluate a peer’s paper or evaluate and revise your own draft, you should do at least two readings. In the first reading, consider the content and organization of your draft, using the guidelines below. In your second reading, get down to the sentence level, using the Focus on Word Choice on page 224.

First Reading: Content and Organization  Use this chart to evaluate and revise your paper so your message is persuasive.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Evaluation Questions</th>
<th>Tips</th>
<th>Revision Techniques</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>1 Does the introduction grab the audience’s attention?</td>
<td>Put stars next to questions, anecdotes, or statements that would interest the audience.</td>
<td>If needed, add an attention-grabber to the beginning of the introduction.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2 Does the introduction have a clear opinion statement?</td>
<td>Underline the opinion statement. Ask a friend to read it and to identify the point of view.</td>
<td>Add an opinion statement, or, if necessary, replace the opinion statement with a clearer one.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>3 Does the essay include at least two reasons that logically support the opinion statement?</td>
<td>With a colored marker, highlight the reasons that support the opinion statement.</td>
<td>Add reasons that support the opinion statement as needed.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>4 Does at least one piece of evidence support each reason?</td>
<td>Circle evidence that supports each reason in the essay. Draw a line from the evidence to the reason it supports.</td>
<td>If necessary, add evidence to support each of the reasons. Elaborate evidence by adding details or explaining its meaning.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>5 Does the conclusion include a restatement of the opinion?</td>
<td>Put a check mark next to the restatement.</td>
<td>Add a restatement of the opinion if it is missing.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>6 Does the conclusion include a summary of reasons or a call to action?</td>
<td>Draw a wavy line under the summary of reasons or call to action.</td>
<td>Add a summary of reasons, a call to action, or both.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
ONE WRITER’S REVISIONS This revision is an early draft of the essay on page 219.

Baseball players should be satisfied that their fans love them.

Hank Aaron’s biographer states that Aaron was flattered just to have kids look up to him. He would not have dreamed of asking people to pay for his autograph.

Today’s players should follow Hank Aaron’s example.

Kids, who might grow up to be lifelong fans of a player, cannot afford to pay fifteen dollars for an autograph. A friend of mine spent his entire month’s allowance on a single autographed card. His experience is not unusual. The average allowance of Eagle Middle School students is pretty low. For these students, buying one card would leave little money for any other recreation for the month.

Responding to the Revision Process

1. Why did the writer add a sentence to the first paragraph?
2. How did elaborating the evidence improve the writing?

Second Reading: Style Now you will look at how you say what you say, and that means looking closely at each of your sentences. One way to improve sentence style is to eliminate clichés, or overused expressions. Use the following guidelines.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Evaluation Question</th>
<th>Tip</th>
<th>Revision Technique</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Have I used any expressions I have heard many times?</td>
<td>Put an X through every word or phrase you think is a cliché.</td>
<td>Delete each cliché and replace it with your own original words.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

PEER REVIEW

As you evaluate a peer’s persuasive essay, ask yourself these questions:

- What is the most convincing part of this essay? Why?
- What is the least convincing part? Why?
Clichés

When you are writing persuasively, it is easy to reach for a familiar expression—called a cliché—to help you make your point. Clichés, though, are expressions that have been used so many times they have lost their meaning and freshness. If you use clichés in a persuasive paper, you run the risk of weakening the effect of your ideas on your audience.

Examples: cool as a cucumber tough as nails to run like the wind on top of your game

You probably know many more overused expressions. Replacing clichés with your own original, forceful words will help you get your opinion across in a more convincing way. Remember: that is the purpose of persuasive writing.

ONE WRITER’S REVISIONS

Instead of taking our money, athletes should repay beloved names to our tattered cards. our loyalty by freely signing their John Hancocks.

Responding to the Revision Process

How did replacing “John Hancocks” with another phrase improve the sentence above?

Evaluating and Revising Your Essay

- First, evaluate and revise the content and organization of your essay, using the guidelines on page 222.
- Next, use the Focus on Word Choice above to see if you need to eliminate any clichés from your paper.
- If a peer evaluated your paper, think carefully about each of your peer’s comments as you revise.
Proofread Your Essay

A Finishing Touch  Errors in your final essay will distract your reader from the persuasive point you are trying to make. If you have another person proofread your essay, you'll be much less likely to miss mistakes.

Using Comparatives

When you write a persuasive paper, you sometimes want to compare one thing with another. For example, you may want to convince your readers that your candidate for class president is more experienced than other candidates.

Most one-syllable words and many two-syllable modifiers form the comparative by adding -er.

closer  cheaper  likelier

Some two-syllable modifiers (and all modifiers with more than two syllables) form the comparative by using more.

more polite  more recklessly

Do not use the word more if the modifier is already in the comparative form.

Incorrect  Powermax batteries last more longer than batteries from other companies. [The word longer doesn't need more added to it, because longer already means “more long.”]

Correct  Powermax batteries last longer than batteries from other companies.

Some words, such as good and bad, have special comparative forms.

good ➔ better  bad ➔ worse

For each of the following sentences, identify the incorrect modifier. Then, give the correct form of the modifier.

Example:
1. Video games are more cheaper than ever.
   1. cheaper

1. Some video games are more harder than others.

2. Is a video game more bad than a TV crime drama?

3. Playing real basketball is more slower than playing the video game version.

4. The more I play this video game, the more better I get.

5. The more I play real sports, the more good I get.

For more information and practice on comparatives, see page 532.
Publish Your Essay

Get the Word Out  Now is the time for your essay to do what it was written to do—persuade people. Think about the audience you identified before you wrote your first draft. What are some ways to get your persuasive essay in front of that audience?

- Send your essay to the opinion page editor of a magazine, your local or school newspaper, or another publication.
- Think about other ways to go public with your work. You might convert your essay to a speech and present it to your audience directly. (For more on formal speaking, see page 758.)

Reflect on Your Essay

Building Your Portfolio  Take time to reflect on your essay. Think about what you wrote and how you wrote. Reflecting will help you improve your next persuasive essay.

- What was the strongest piece of support in your essay? Why was it the strongest?
- What was your purpose for writing your essay? Do you think you achieved your purpose? Why or why not?

YOUR TURN 10  Proofreading, Publishing, and Reflecting on Your Essay

- Correct grammar, usage, and mechanics errors.
- Publish your essay to your target audience.
- Record your responses to the Reflect on Your Essay questions above in a learning log, or include them in your portfolio.
Evaluating a Persuasive Speech

When you listen to a friend give advice or watch a TV ad, you are listening to persuasive messages. When you evaluate a persuasive speech, consider these basic elements:

- Content  A persuasive speech will contain an opinion and support for that opinion. In addition, a speaker may try to convince listeners by using persuasive techniques, such as the bandwagon approach. (For more on persuasive techniques, see page 246.) A careful listener needs to be able to identify a speaker’s opinion and must not confuse it with fact. (For more on fact and opinion, see page 217.) Listen actively by asking questions. You may bring up points with which you agree, or challenge those with which you disagree. Responding to the speaker in this way will help you understand the speaker’s message.

- Delivery  The speaker’s delivery contributes to the persuasiveness of the speech. To evaluate delivery, consider whether the speaker’s voice has good volume, rate, and clarity. Also, notice gestures and eye contact.

- Believability  Both content and delivery contribute to a speaker’s believability. You should also analyze the speaker’s purpose and perspective, or bias—the beliefs that affect his or her thinking.

To evaluate a persuasive speech, you need to develop criteria, or standards for judging. Follow the steps below.

1. Look at the main elements of a persuasive speech—content, delivery, believability. Ask yourself how the speaker could persuade using each element. Ask, for example, “What makes a persuasive voice?” You might decide that a loud, clear speech would persuade more effectively than soft, mumbled speech.

2. Make a chart that lists your criteria in one column and space for notes in the other. Get down as much information as possible as you listen to the speech. You will use these notes when you make your final evaluation of the speech. For more on taking notes while you listen, see page 775.

YOUR TURN

Develop criteria for the content, delivery, and believability of a speech. Then, listen to a persuasive speech and take notes about how well the speaker meets your criteria. In a short presentation, evaluate the speech. Explain why you were or were not persuaded based on your criteria.
Analyzing an Editorial Cartoon

“Where are the funnies?” This question is heard the moment the newspaper arrives in homes. Reading the “funnies” or the comics page of your newspaper may be your favorite way to start the day. Have you ever noticed that the comics page is not the only place in the newspaper where you can find cartoons? On the editorial page of most newspapers you will find a special type of cartoon, known as an editorial or political cartoon.

What Is an Editorial Cartoon?

Editorial cartoons are different from the cartoons you find in a comic book. These cartoons are designed to persuade their readers. They reflect the cartoonist’s opinion on an issue or current event.

To make their points, editorial cartoonists use several techniques in their words and images. To understand the cartoonist’s point, you need to understand these tools of the trade.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Symbolism</th>
<th>using a concrete picture or idea to stand for a more abstract one</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Exaggeration/Caricature</td>
<td>overstating a problem or issue to draw attention to it, or exaggerating someone’s physical features to make sure viewers will recognize that person</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Analogy</td>
<td>a comparison of two things (in editorial cartoons, directly or indirectly comparing a situation or event with a historical or fictional event)</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Symbolism

The cartoon at the right uses symbolism to make its point. Uncle Sam, the symbol of the United States, is in a stalled car that symbolizes the troubled economy. The elephant (the symbol of the Republican political party) and the donkey (the symbol of the Democratic political party) are both claiming that they can fix Uncle Sam’s car. However, we see that they are about to pull the car apart. The cartoonist uses symbols to persuade readers that the two political parties have conflicting goals that could hurt the country.

Exaggeration/Caricature

The cartoon at the bottom of this page uses exaggeration to make its point. The cartoonist is exaggerating the trend in professional basketball for high school players to go straight into professional sports instead of going to college first. What statement do you think the cartoonist is trying to make about this trend?

Frequently, cartoons also exaggerate the physical characteristics of famous people. This kind of exaggeration is called caricature. Caricatures add humor and help readers to recognize the cartoon’s subject. On the right is a caricature of President George Washington. Presidents and political leaders are often the subjects of caricature.
Analogy

By using an analogy, a cartoonist can say a lot with very few words. The cartoon above makes an analogy, or a comparison, between the effort to balance the budget and the Titanic, the “unsinkable” ship that sank on its first voyage after it hit an iceberg. What is the cartoonist’s opinion about the effect tax cuts will have on the balanced budget? (Notice that the iceberg is labeled “tax cuts.”) Does the cartoonist want to persuade his readers that tax cuts are a good thing or a bad thing?

Looking at an Editorial Cartoon

Find an editorial cartoon that you would like to analyze. You might look in a newspaper or newsmagazine from home or the school library. Then, ask yourself the following questions about your cartoon.

- What is the issue or topic the cartoon addresses?
- What symbols, if any, are used in the cartoon? What do they represent?
- What exaggeration or caricature, if any, is used in the cartoon?
- What effect does the exaggeration or caricature have?
- What analogies, if any, are used in the cartoon? How do the analogies help tell the story?
- What do you think is the cartoonist’s opinion on the issue or current event?

Write down your answers and be prepared to share them with a few classmates. Try to find similarities and differences in the topics, attitudes, and techniques of the cartoonists each of you chose.
CHAPTER

6

Choices

Choose one of the following activities to complete.

► SPEECH
1. Lay It on the Line  Write a persuasive speech on an issue that is important to you. You might explore an interesting new issue, one that is a hot topic at your school or in your town. You might also turn the essay you wrote for the Writing Workshop into a speech. If you do, be aware that your speech’s audience may not be the same as your essay’s audience—you may have to adapt some or all of your reasons and evidence.

► CAREERS
2. Tools of the Trade  Law, politics, advertising: These are just a few career fields that use persuasion. Research one of these fields or a different field. Then, write a paragraph describing a specific example of how a person in that field uses persuasion.

► ART
3. See You in the Funny Papers  Create a cartoon reflecting the issue you wrote about in your essay. You may want to use it as an illustration to accompany your essay, but your cartoon’s message should also be able to stand alone.

► CROSSING THE CURRICULUM: SOCIAL STUDIES
4. Time Traveling  Write a persuasive letter from the point of view of someone living in the time and place you are studying in social studies. For example, if you were studying the pyramids of ancient Egypt, you could write a letter to the Pharaoh trying to convince him that your workers need more food and better living conditions.

► WRITING
5. What Is Your Problem?  Think of a problem in your school or community—perhaps an overcrowded school or a lack of bike trails. Then, come up with a solution to the problem. You may need to brainstorm and write about several solutions before you decide which is best. Then, write a problem-solution composition in the form of an editorial.
A giant face looms on a billboard, smiling and suggesting that a particular brand of bread will make you happy, too. The scent of a flowery perfume drifts up as you open a magazine. Colorful signs on taxis and buses tell you to eat at certain restaurants.

Print advertisements are everywhere. These ads combine words, images, and sometimes even smells to convince people to buy or support a product or service. Print ads persuade people by appealing to their wants and needs. They often interest readers by using clever slogans and attractive images.

Exploring Advertising

Think about memorable print advertisements you have seen. Make a list of three or four advertisements you have seen on a billboard or in a newspaper or magazine, and answer these questions about them.

- Where did you see the advertisement?
- What product or service was being advertised?
- What in the advertisement caught your attention?
- Did the ad make you interested in buying the product or service? If so, how did it persuade you?

Then, share your list in a small group and decide what made each advertisement so memorable.
Reading a Print Advertisement

Companies that share a common goal, such as fighting a dangerous illness, sometimes band together to create a joint advertising campaign. These companies have more than one goal for their advertising. They want to get the public’s support for their efforts, and they want to enhance their images in the public’s eye. Advertising is one way that organizations can work toward these goals. Ads like the one on the next page are designed to persuade the public that there is more to business than simply selling products or services.

Preparing to Read

Making Inferences: Forming Generalizations

A generalization is a statement that applies to many different individuals or situations. When you form a generalization, you combine what you know with specific information you read to make a judgment about the world in general. The following advertisement contains information from which you can make several generalizations. As you read, think about what generalizations the advertisers are leading you to make.

Persuasive Techniques

Advertisers aim to persuade an audience to buy a product, support a cause, or view an organization in a certain way. They do this through persuasive techniques. Persuasive techniques are ways of adding to the appeal of information presented to support a persuasive argument. An advertiser may try to choose the one persuasive technique that best fits the audience for an ad. The advertisement on the following page uses persuasive techniques to convince readers to support pharmaceutical companies’ efforts to fight leukemia, a type of cancer that often strikes children.
“Your child has leukemia.” The most devastating news a parent could hear. It used to mean there was little chance of survival. Now, 80 percent of kids diagnosed with leukemia not only survive—but lead normal lives. How? New breakthrough medicines, discovered and developed by pharmaceutical company researchers, have given many leukemia patients and their parents a second chance. The new medicines our researchers are discovering are giving families hope—and patients a chance to be kids again.

America’s Pharmaceutical Companies

Leading the way in the search for cures

1. How does the picture contrast with the word leukemia?
2. Why do you think the advertiser used a dog in this ad?
3. What does the ad mean by “become a kid again”?
4. To what emotion does the first sentence below the picture appeal?
5. Why do you think the text below the picture repeats “be kids again” at the end?
6. Who are the advertisers trying to persuade? Why do you think so?
Making Inferences:
Forming Generalizations

Generally Speaking
As you read new information, you constantly make inferences. An inference is an educated guess based on what you read plus what you already know about the subject. One specific type of inference is a generalization. Generalizations are statements that apply to many individuals or situations.

Example:

What you read: The Guadalupe River flooded several houses near its banks during recent heavy rains.

+ What you know: The Mississippi River also flooded houses near its banks during heavy rains a few years ago.

Generalization: Rivers often flood houses near their banks during heavy rains.

Advertisers expect the reader to make generalizations about the kinds of people who use their products and about what those products will do. Frequently, the generalizations that a reader makes from an ad are faulty. Faulty generalizations are either not true or do not apply in all cases. Questions like these can help you evaluate a generalization.

- What would really happen if you did or did not use this product or service?
- Do the people in the ad represent everyone who uses this product or service, or do they represent just some people?
- Do the claims in the ad make sense?

Study the advertisement on the following page. What generalization does the ad lead you to make about the product and the people who buy it? Is that generalization a sound one, or is it faulty? If you need help answering these questions, use the Thinking It Through steps that follow the ad.
Looking at the text and image in the advertisement, what does the ad say about the product or company? What does the ad suggest?

Consider what you already know about the topic. Make a generalization that extends to individuals or situations outside the ad. Evaluate the generalization you have made to see if it is faulty or not. You may use the questions on page 236.

The ad says that the drink gives you the nutrients you need to be a winner. It suggests that the drink made the people in the picture more energetic.

The football team drinks a special sports drink during games.

Generalization: People who drink sports drinks will have more energy and be better athletes.

I think this is a faulty generalization. You could drink all the sports drinks in the world and still not be a better athlete.
The X-treme Sports Drink ad led the reader to form the faulty generalization that sports drinks will improve the performance and energy levels of people who drink them. Even though the generalization is not true, the ad may still accomplish its purpose: to persuade the reader to buy the product. As a reader, you should evaluate the generalizations you make from advertisements so that you do not buy a product or service based on a faulty generalization.

YOUR TURN 2
Forming and Evaluating Generalizations from Advertisements
Look again at the advertisement on page 235. Use the Thinking It Through steps on page 237 to form and evaluate a generalization about
- the pharmaceutical companies that sponsored the ad
- the children who use those companies’ treatments for leukemia
Then, find a print ad in a magazine. Form and evaluate a generalization about the company or product advertised.

Persuasive Techniques

Jump on the Bandwagon
Advertisers aim to get their audiences to believe in something or to take some action. The way ads accomplish this is by using specific persuasive techniques. Some people call these techniques propaganda techniques. Propaganda is a systematic approach to influencing many people at once. Propaganda is not only used in advertising, however. You may find propaganda in speeches, editorials, or any other form of persuasive communication.

Many people have negative feelings about propaganda. History is full of examples of how individuals, governments, or companies have used propaganda to deceive others. For example, advertisers might use propaganda to get the public to support an unworthy cause or to buy a product out of fear.

Still, propaganda is also used for good purposes. For example, a public service announcement could convince people to exercise more often. In that case, propaganda is being used to help people lead healthier lives.

The chart on the next page shows common persuasive techniques. You can find these techniques in all types of persuasive messages.
When you read an advertisement, think about how the advertiser is trying to persuade you. Ask yourself these questions.

- What is the ad trying to persuade me to do, think, or feel?
- What persuasive words and images appear in the ad?
- Which technique would use those types of words and images?

Finally, ask yourself whether the ad gives any logical or concrete support that can persuade you. An ad that relies solely on the persuasive techniques above may not persuade a critical reader at all. For example, the X-treme Sports Drink ad says the drink gives you the nutrients you need to be a winner, but it doesn’t name any specific nutrients. Should you really be persuaded by such an ad?

Common Persuasive Techniques

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Technique</th>
<th>Description</th>
<th>Example</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Bandwagon</td>
<td>You are urged to do or believe something because everyone else does.</td>
<td>“Be where the action is. Shop at Hang-out Mall.”</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Testimonial</td>
<td>Famous people endorse a product or idea.</td>
<td>“I’m professional football player Marcus Browning, and I use Wash Out window cleaner.”</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Emotional Appeal</td>
<td>Words or images that appeal to the audience’s emotions are used. The appeal may be to positive emotions, such as desire for success, or to negative ones, such as fear.</td>
<td>“What would you do if all your possessions were lost in a fire? Get the Save-All fireproof safe and protect your valuables.”</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Plain Folks</td>
<td>Ordinary people sell a message. You are to believe that because these people are like you, they can be trusted.</td>
<td>“As a construction worker, I often get headaches on the job. That’s why I use PainAway aspirin.”</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Snob Appeal</td>
<td>This technique suggests that you can be like the expensively dressed, perfectly shaped people who use this product.</td>
<td>“I accept only the best, and that’s why I buy Aloft perfume.”</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

TIP

Ads may use more than one persuasive technique at a time. The ad for X-treme Sports Drink on page 237 uses a bandwagon approach by showing a group of active teenagers who supposedly drink X-treme. The ad also uses an emotional appeal—“X-treme gives you what you need to be a winner”—which makes readers feel good about the product.

YOUR TURN

Identifying Persuasive Techniques

Re-read the pharmaceutical company advertisement on page 235. Ask yourself the questions above to identify how the advertiser is trying to convince you. Write your responses on a piece of paper, and provide examples from the ad to support your answers.
A print ad may contain words that you do not understand. You can use many types of reference sources to find the meanings of unfamiliar words in print ads and other written works.

- Dictionary: Dictionaries tell how to pronounce a word, explain the word’s usage, define all of the word’s meanings, provide synonyms, and give information about a word’s history.

- Thesaurus: A thesaurus lists synonyms, or words that have the same meaning, and antonyms, words with the opposite meaning of a word.

Choosing the Right Definition

Here is an example using the word breakthrough from the reading selection on page 235.

STEP 1 Look up the unfamiliar word in the dictionary. Read the entire definition.

Breakthrough: 1. the act of breaking through resistance 2. an important discovery

“New breaking through resistance medicines. . . .” That doesn’t sound right. “New important discovery medicines. . . .” That sounds better. The second definition is correct here.

STEP 2 Use each of the meanings in the context of the reading selection. Decide which meaning makes the most sense.

Use a dictionary to look up these words from the reading selection on page 235. Write the correct definition of each word as it is used in the ad, and write a sentence using each word. The words are underlined in the ad.

1. devastating
2. diagnosed
3. pharmaceutical
4. cures
Identifying Causes and Effects

Advertisements are built on cause-and-effect relationships. Readers are supposed to believe that a certain cause, such as buying a specific brand of toothpaste, will lead to a certain effect, such as having many friends.

When you read a selection on a reading test, you may be asked to identify a cause-and-effect relationship within the passage. Read the following text and question. How would you answer the question?

Cancer can attack many parts of the human body. Cancer of the white blood cells is known as leukemia. Human blood contains both red and white blood cells. Normally, the body produces white blood cells only to replace those that die off. In patients with leukemia, however, the body produces abnormal white blood cells at an increased rate. Leukemia negatively affects the function of organs such as the liver, spleen, and brain. Eventually, leukemia can cause serious infections and even death.

What effect does leukemia have on the body?
A. increases the number of red blood cells
B. harms the liver, spleen, and brain
C. causes sore throats and fever
D. decreases the number of white blood cells

The question is asking about the effect of leukemia.

The passage says that leukemia “negatively affects the function of organs” and can “cause serious infections and even death.”

Answer B matches one part of my diagram. The other answer choices aren’t mentioned in the passage. I’ll choose answer B.
Creating a Print Advertisement

After a hard day at school, you head home, hit the couch, and flip open your favorite magazine. Turning the pages, you see an advertisement that shows your favorite actor eating a sandwich. Suddenly you realize how hungry you are. You amble off to the kitchen for something, but as you peer into the refrigerator, you wish you had that big sandwich instead.

There is no doubt about it. Advertisements are persuasive. Print ads in magazines and newspapers influence what readers buy, how they vote, and even what social causes they support. Now is your chance to create an advertisement that will persuade a specific audience to buy a product or service of your own creation.

Prewriting

Pick a Product or Service

Something You Can’t Live Without

Brainstorm a product or service for your print advertisement. Try one of these methods to help you choose.

- Think of an improvement for an existing product or service, such as a computer program, a pair of shoes, or a pencil. How could you improve the way it works or looks? Create a new product based on your ideas for improving an existing one.

- Come up with a totally new product or service. Think about chores you do by hand that could be done with a machine. Invent a new snack. Offer a service for a task others might not like to do.
Once you have a product or service in mind, you can think of a name for it. You can think of a catchy, memorable name, or you can use a descriptive name that explains a key feature of the product or service. Either way, be careful not to choose a name that already exists.

Find a Target Market

Who Will Buy It? In any ad, the advertiser focuses on a specific group of people called the target market. A target market is made up of the people who might use or buy a certain product or service. For example, the target market for a new dog food would only include people who own a dog. The advertiser’s job is to convince those people who might need the product that they do need it. To determine your target market, ask yourself these questions.

- Who might use the product or service?
- Who might actually buy the product or service?

The people who might use the product or service and the people who might actually buy it are not always the same. For example, small children ride tricycles, but adults buy them. In that case, decide which group to focus on in your ad. Here is how one student identified the target market for his product, an improved organizer for school lockers.

Product: Magnetic Attraction Locker Organizer

Who will use the product? My locker organizers are for middle school and high school students.

Who will buy it? Parents will most likely buy the organizers, but probably only when the students pick them out.

Who is the focus? Students should be the focus. Even if they don’t buy the organizers, they do tell their parents what they need.

Your Turn

4. Choosing a Product and Finding a Target Market

- Identify a product or service for your advertisement.
- Name your new product or service by thinking of a catchy name or a descriptive name that highlights a key feature.
- Answer the questions above to determine your target market.
Analyzing Target Markets in Advertisements

Imagine picking up your favorite music magazine and seeing an advertisement for baby food. You would probably think “Wow! That ad is sure out of place!” The target market for baby food is probably not the same as the audience for the music magazine.

Every advertisement has a target market. If you can determine who the target market is, you can begin to analyze that ad. The more you analyze advertising, the smarter you will be as a consumer. To determine the target market of an advertisement, ask questions about these four parts of the ad.

If these questions have different answers, you will need to look closely at people, images, and text in the ad to figure out whom it really targets.

The following ad seems to target more than one group. Use the questions in the chart on the left side of the page to determine the real target market of the Dino Pockets ad.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Product or service</th>
<th>Who would use this product or service? Who would buy it?</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>People</td>
<td>What people are shown using the product or service? How old are they? Are they male or female?</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Other images</td>
<td>Aside from the people using the product, what other pictures are in the ad? Who would be interested in these types of pictures?</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Text</td>
<td>Does the ad address certain people? Does it use language that would appeal to a particular group?</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Dino Pockets take only 30 seconds to make in your microwave. These hot, flaky, dinosaur-shaped pocket sandwiches are filled with vitamins and minerals for the most important snackers in your house — your children.
Now, compare your answers to the questions on product, people, other images, and text to the answers below. Did you identify the correct target market?

- Product Pocket sandwiches shaped like dinosaurs are designed to be eaten by children. However, the people who will buy these sandwiches at the grocery store are parents.

- People The people pictured in the ad are a father and his two children. They represent two different age groups. The father represents the parents who buy the sandwiches. The two children represent the people who eat the sandwiches.

- Other images Besides the people, the ad shows a sunny kitchen and a neat table. This setting would appeal to parents who want a safe, orderly home for their children.

- Text The large text “Packs a Dinosaur Punch” probably appeals more to children. However, the smaller text addresses parents directly by saying “your house—your children.”

The target market of this ad is not obvious at first. Looking only at the product and people, you might conclude the market is either parents or children. The other images and the text, though, suggest that the primary, or main, target market is parents. It is possible that the slogan “Packs a Dinosaur Punch” is an attempt to get children’s attention. However, that slogan would also capture the attention of the parents whose children are interested in anything to do with dinosaurs. An ad like this might appear in a magazine geared towards parents and families.

PRACTICE

Use the questions on page 244 to help you identify the target market of each advertisement part shown below.

1. ![Image of people and food]

2. ![Image of sneakers with text: "CRASH! BAM! Be cool with our new high-top sneaker that makes crashing noises with every step."]

3. ![Image of oatmeal packet]
Analyze Your Target Market

Give ‘Em What They Want To convince your target market to spend hard-earned pay (or allowance) on your product or service, you have to give them a good reason.

To analyze your target market and what your product or service can do for them, you will brainstorm a list of this group’s needs and wants, as in the example below.

Product: locker organizer
Target market: students who use lockers
Needs:
- to be more organized
- to have more room in their lockers
- to find things fast and have more time between classes
Wants:
- to have other students admire their lockers

I think the most important need or want that my locker organizer can help fulfill is the need to be organized.

Analyzing the Target Market

Analyze your target market by brainstorming a list of their needs and wants. Pick the most important need to focus on in your advertisement and circle it. You will use the most important need to choose your persuasive technique in the next section.

Choose a Persuasive Technique

Make Your Pitch Advertisers use persuasive techniques to influence their audience. Persuasive techniques can help convince people to buy the product or service. Although some advertisements use more than one technique, they usually choose a single technique as the main focus. As you choose the main persuasive technique for your print advertisement, pick one that will appeal to your target market’s wants and needs. The chart on the next page summarizes the most common persuasive techniques: bandwagon, testimonial, emotional appeal, plain folks, and snob appeal.
Common Persuasive Techniques

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Technique</th>
<th>Example</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Bandwagon—says that everyone else is buying the product or service</td>
<td>“More people buy our basketball shoes than buy any other brand.”</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Testimonial—uses famous people to support the product or service</td>
<td>“Even basketball superstar Bob Tallman wears our shoes.”</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Emotional Appeal—promotes fear, hope, or other emotions</td>
<td>“Are you getting left behind on the courts? Our shoes can help.”</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Plain Folks—shows people like you</td>
<td>“My basketball shoes helped me make the basketball team at my school.”</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Snob Appeal—suggests you will be fashionable or trendy</td>
<td>“Our shoes are for the athletes who want only the best.”</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Thinking It Through

Choosing a Persuasive Technique

Here is how to choose a persuasive technique for your print ad.

STEP 1 Pick a persuasive technique to address the main need of your target market.

Students’ main need is to be organized. I’ll use an emotional appeal. The use of an emotional situation, such as the frustration of having a messy locker, might make students think they need my product.

STEP 2 Test the persuasive technique by filling in these blanks: “Will (technique) make the target market believe they will (need)?”

Will an emotional appeal make the target market believe they will be more organized? Yes. Showing a frustrated student with a messy locker will show students that they need to buy my product to get organized.

Your Turn

Choosing a Persuasive Technique

Use the chart and Thinking It Through steps above to choose a persuasive technique to use in your advertisement.
Think About a Slogan

Stuck on You What do you think of when you hear, “Got milk?” You may think of famous faces sporting milk mustaches. This is just one example of the power of slogans.

A slogan is a short, catchy phrase or motto that attracts attention. Slogans help advertising stick in the minds of the target market. Think about your product or service. How can you tell something about it while using the persuasive technique you have chosen? Here is how one student thought of his slogan.

Since I am using an emotional appeal, I want to point out what a difference my locker organizer will make in students’ lives when they have more time between classes to talk to friends. My slogan will be: “What a difference three shelves make!”

Choose an Image

Get the Picture The most persuasive elements of a print advertisement are often the images that accompany the words, so to illustrate your ad, select a visual that stands out from the crowd. You may draw your own art, create pictures on a computer, take a photograph, cut out magazine photos, or trace other illustrations and adjust them for your advertisement.

As you choose a subject for your image, remember to make it match the persuasive technique you chose. If you picked a plain folks approach, you should not choose a person wearing expensive clothes as your subject. Also, choose your colors carefully. In general, bright, warm colors stir strong emotions, and light, cool colors create calm feelings. Tie your use of color to the type of emotion you want to create in your reader.
Choosing an Image

Choose an image for your print ad that fits the persuasive technique you have chosen. Sketch a draft of the image after you
- choose a subject and decide what the subject will be doing
- decide what else will be included in the image with the subject
- choose colors to convey strong or soothing emotions

Plan the Text

The Ad Game You have already planned parts of your ad, but you still need to write the main text. The chart below explains the three main parts of an ad’s text and shows a student’s example.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Description</th>
<th>The Magnetic Attraction Locker Organizer features</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Describe the product or service completely. Give basic information, such as sizes, colors, business hours, or key features. Also explain what makes your product special.</td>
<td>three sturdy metal shelves</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>adjustable widths to fit any locker</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>magnets for hanging pictures and notes</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Reasons to Buy</th>
<th>Mention any reasons to buy your product or service that you have not already included in your slogan or description.</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Why spend the entire break between classes looking for homework in a messy locker? Get Magnetic Attraction and get organized!</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Action</th>
<th>Finally, your print advertisement needs to tell your target market what they should do. Where can they buy the product or service? What is their next step?</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>The Magnetic Attraction Locker Organizer is available wherever school supplies are sold. Get our organizer before your locker becomes a disaster.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Play Fair In the Reading Workshop, you learned how to avoid being persuaded by persuasive techniques alone. Assume that your target market knows enough to demand logical support and concrete evidence. Give important facts about your product or service in your product description. Be sure the reasons you give are logical.

TIP Use a voice that fits your purpose, which is to persuade. One way to win over your audience is to use vivid language, including precise adjectives and verbs. Instead of saying a pen “writes smoothly,” say it “glides like silk across the page.”

Planning the Text

Plan the text of your ad by using the chart and example above. Be sure to include a description of your product or service, reasons to buy it, and information that tells readers what action they should take.
Slogans should be short, catchy, and to the point. Since you want people to remember your slogan, write it in large print at the top of your ad.

The most noticeable part of your ad should be an attractive image geared toward your target market. Use an interesting subject that supports your persuasive technique, and choose colors thoughtfully.

- Start out with a statement that ties the product or service to the persuasive technique you use.
- Include the name of your product or service at the beginning.
- Describe the product or service vividly. Use words with punch and impact.
- Give logical reasons to buy the product or service.
- Provide important facts about your product or service.
- Tell the customer where to buy the product or service.

Drafting Your Print Advertisement

Now it is your turn to write a first draft of your print advertisement. As you draft,

- keep your persuasive technique in mind
- use vivid, precise language and important facts in the description
- refer to the framework above and the Writer’s Model on page 251
Do you want more time to talk to friends between classes? The Magnetic Attraction Locker Organizer can help.

The Magnetic Attraction Locker Organizer features
- three sturdy metal shelves
- adjustable widths to fit any locker
- magnets for hanging pictures and notes

Why spend the entire break between classes looking for homework in a messy locker? Get Magnetic Attraction and get organized!

The Magnetic Attraction Locker Organizer is available wherever school supplies are sold. Get our organizer before your locker becomes a disaster.
Chris Cheung, a student at Davidson Middle School in Crestview, Florida, created the following print ad. His ad achieves most of the goals of the framework plus something else: It makes a funny comment about advertising and logos. What is that comment?

Have you ever felt left out because of the brand of shoes you wear?

Well, no more! With Logo-Matic shoes, capable of changing between 20+ logos and available in any size, you'll never feel left out again!

Logo-Matic

Available in any shoe store!

Always in style!
Evaluate and Revise Content, Organization, and Style

Once Is Not Enough When you evaluate a classmate’s advertisement or revise your own, you should always read the entire advertisement at least twice. The first reading gives you an opportunity to evaluate the content and organization of the advertisement. Use the guidelines below to help you during your first reading. In your second reading, use the Focus on Word Choice on page 255 to improve your style.

First Reading: Content and Organization Use this chart to evaluate and revise your advertisement so that it is more persuasive. If you need help answering the questions, use the tips in the center column. Then, use the revision techniques in the right-hand column to make necessary changes.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Evaluation Questions</th>
<th>Tips</th>
<th>Revision Techniques</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Would the image catch a reader’s attention?</td>
<td>Note two things about the image that would make a reader look at it, such as color or subject.</td>
<td>Delete the image and replace it with one that is more visually interesting, unusual, or colorful, if needed.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Is the slogan catchy and memorable?</td>
<td>Underline words that have rhyme, alliteration, or some other catchy element.</td>
<td>If necessary, add words that are memorable, or that use rhyme or alliteration.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Does the ad have a clearly defined target market?</td>
<td>Write down two specific things that point to the ad’s target market.</td>
<td>If needed, add to the image, slogan, or text to identify clearly the target market.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Does the ad provide a clear description of the product or service?</td>
<td>Put a number next to each fact about the product or service.</td>
<td>Elaborate by adding facts about the product or service, if needed.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Does the ad clearly tell readers what action to take to buy the product or service?</td>
<td>Place a check mark by the information that tells the readers what action to take.</td>
<td>Add an action or clarify what the reader should do.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
ONE WRITER’S REVISIONS This revision is from an early draft of the print advertisement on page 251.

Do you want more time to talk to friends? The Magnetic Attraction Locker Organizer can help.

The Magnetic Attraction Locker Organizer features

- three sturdy metal shelves
- adjustable widths to fit any locker
- magnets for hanging pictures and notes

Why spend the entire break between classes looking for homework in a messy locker? Get Magnetic Attraction and get organized!

The Magnetic Attraction Locker Organizer is available wherever school supplies are sold. Get our organizer before your locker becomes a disaster.

Responding to the Revision Process

1. Why did the writer add words to the first sentence?
2. Why did the writer elaborate on the description?
3. Why do you think the writer added the last two sentences?

Second Reading: Style During your first reading, you revised what you said and the order in which you said it. The second reading focuses on your style, or the way you say things in your advertisement. One method of improving your style is to make sure you use words that have a strong emotional impact on your readers.

Style Guidelines

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Evaluation Question</th>
<th>Tip</th>
<th>Revision Technique</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Does the body of the ad use emotional language?</td>
<td>Circle words that create an emotional response.</td>
<td>If the ad contains few emotional words, delete some ordinary words and replace them with more emotional ones.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Using Emotional Language

When you write an advertisement, you should make your product or service descriptions create an emotional response in your target audience. Consider the following two descriptions.

The Abracadab Circus will be fun!
The Abracadab Circus will make you giggle and gasp!

The second sentence, which would probably appeal to a young audience, is more emotional than the first one. You feel more interested in the circus because the description suggests an emotional response. You want to go to the circus and see what will make you giggle and gasp.

You can find more emotional words by looking in a thesaurus or by brainstorming a whole new way of describing your subject. You should think carefully about your ad’s descriptions and determine what type of emotional response you want your reader to have.

---

ONE WRITER’S REVISIONS

Get our organizer before your locker becomes cluttered.

---

Responding to the Revision Process

Why do you think the writer changed a word? Do you think the change improves the advertisement? Why or why not?

---

YOUR TURN

Evaluating and Revising Your Ad

- First, evaluate and revise the content and organization of your advertisement by using the guidelines on page 253.
- Next, use the Focus on Word Choice above to add emotional impact to your words.
- If a peer evaluated your print ad, carefully consider each of your peer’s comments as you revise.
Proofread Your Ad

Getting It Right  Before you create the final draft of your ad, have someone else edit, or proofread, it for you. Mistakes in your advertisement might make your target market wonder whether your product is also flawed.

Punctuating Possessives

Advertisements often talk about the features of certain products. For example, an ad for a vacuum cleaner might list its attachments. To explain these features, you will use the possessive form of a noun.

To form the possessive of a singular noun, add an apostrophe and an s.

Examples:
- the computer’s software
- the vacuum cleaner’s brushes

If the noun ends in s, it will still take both the apostrophe and the s. If the extra s would make the noun awkward to say, you may use only the apostrophe.

Examples:
- Jonas’s house [Jonas’s is not awkward to say.]
- the Netherlands’ exports [Netherlands’s is awkward to say.]

To form the possessive of a plural noun, add only an apostrophe if the noun ends in an s.

Examples:
- the brushes’ bristles
- four days’ work

If the plural noun does not end in an s, add an apostrophe and an s.

Examples:
- the teeth’s enamel
- children’s games

Make sure nouns are possessive, not simply plural, before adding apostrophes.

Incorrect  The girl’s left their bicycles.
Correct  The girls left their bicycles.

Practice

For each sentence, identify the word that needs an apostrophe. Then, write the word correctly.

Example:
1. The beanbags stuffing is nontoxic.
1. beanbag’s

1. Remove the air conditioners filter.
2. The two quilts stitching is excellent.
3. The womens team won both races.
4. Mrs. Rogers garden is blooming.
5. Everyone believed the four girls story.

For more information and practice on punctuating possessives, see page 638.
Adding a Background

In this ad for the American Red Cross, the words are printed in white over the illustration. This “reverse” type over a background of the girl’s face draws the reader’s attention right away.

Look at your print advertisement. Can you use a background behind your text? If you use a computer, you can format the background as a color or as a simple pattern. If your background is dark, use reverse type to keep your words readable. Look for these options under the format menu, or use drawing tools if they are available. If you are drawing your ad by hand, use colored pencils to color in a light background.
Publish Your Ad

Showing Your Stuff  Now it is time to see whether your advertisement works. Will your target audience really be influenced by your ad? Try one of these methods to share your powers of persuasion.

- Create a class magazine with all of your print advertisements. You might even group advertisements together by the type of product or service.
- Show your ad to a member of the ad’s target market. Would this person be persuaded to buy your product or service? Ask for comments about the techniques you used.
- Show your print ad to friends and family. What do they like about the product or service you advertised? What do they think are the most effective parts of your advertisement?

Reflect on Your Ad

Building Your Portfolio  Take some time now to reflect on your advertisement. Think about what you wrote and how you wrote it. As you reflect on your print advertisement, consider what skills you can improve for future assignments.

- What was the most difficult task you faced in creating an advertisement? Why do you think so?
- How did analyzing your target market help you create your advertisement? Do you think learning about your readers could help you on other writing assignments?
- Examine all the written works in your portfolio to set goals for yourself as a writer. What are three things you could do to improve your writing?

YOUR TURN

Proofreading, Publishing, and Reflecting on Your Ad

- Correct grammar, usage, and mechanics errors in your ad.
- Publish your ad by following one of the suggestions above.
- Answer the questions from Reflect on Your Ad above. Record your responses in a learning log, or include them in your portfolio.
Creating Your Own Commercial

Now that you have created a print advertisement, bring it to life in a commercial. In this section you will adapt your print ad to create a television commercial.

Making a Plan Follow these steps to convert a print ad into a commercial.

Fill in the Details Many effective commercials are like little stories—stories in which a problem is solved by buying a product. Brainstorm a story for your own ad by answering the following questions.

- Characters: Who will be in your commercial? How will they appeal to your target audience?
- Setting: Where and when will your commercial take place?
- Action: What will your characters do? How will that action tie in with your persuasive technique? How will the action appeal to your target audience?

Draw a Storyboard A storyboard is like a graphic organizer for your commercial. It includes the dialogue, narration, and images showing the major actions that will take place in your commercial. Your storyboard will help you plan all of the props and other supplies you will need.

To make a storyboard, sketch the basic action of each scene in your commercial. Below each sketch, write the dialogue for your characters. Look at the following example.

GIRL 1: I never get a chance to talk to anybody between classes! And now I can’t find my math homework!

GIRL 2: Your locker is out of control. Haven’t you heard of the Magnetic Attraction Locker Organizer?

GIRL 1: The what?

GIRL 2: Look at MY locker.

GIRL 1: Wow! How did you manage that?

GIRL 2: Easy. I just installed the adjustable Magnetic Attraction Locker Organizer. It comes with three shelves and these cool little magnets to hang pictures with. Now I have all the time I need between classes.

GIRL 1: What a difference three shelves make!
Prepare Your Commercial  Before you can rehearse your commercial, you must pick out the scenery, the actors, and the props the actors will use. Once these are in place, rehearse your commercial all the way through several times. Doing a complete run-through will help you see problems in the script and adjust your commercial to run more smoothly.

Lights, Camera, Action  If you have access to a video camera, you can tape your commercial for all to see. By using a process called “in-camera editing,” you can create a commercial by taping each shot in the correct order so that special editing equipment is not necessary.

First, use your storyboard to plan each shot. Then, tape your shots in the order they happen according to your storyboard. If you make a mistake, stop, rewind, and try it again. Once you finish a shot exactly the way you want it, stop or pause the camera and set up the next shot. Repeat the process until your commercial is complete.

The suggestions in the next column can also help as you videotape your TV commercial.

- Watch the lighting of your scenes. The light should be bright enough for the action to show up well on camera. It should not come from behind the actors.
- Eliminate background clutter from your scenes. Extra furniture, backdrops, or people will only distract your viewers.
- Use a tripod if possible so the camera will not shake during recording. If you do not have access to a tripod, make sure the cameraperson practices holding the camera still.
- Remind your actors to face partway toward the camera. If your actors face each other, your audience will not be able to hear their voices or see their facial expressions as well.
- Your actors should speak clearly and slowly. Many people speak quickly when they get nervous, so have the actors talk more slowly than they normally would.

If you do not have access to a video camera, perform your commercial live. Once you get up in front of your audience, all of your hard work will pay off as you convince the whole class that your product is better than anything they could buy in a store.

YOUR TURN 13  Creating a TV Commercial

Use the suggestions on pages 259–260 to turn your print advertisement into a TV commercial. Remember to

- create a storyboard
- choose characters and props
- videotape your commercial or perform it live
Analyzing Visual Effects in Ads

Has a television commercial ever made you say, “Wow, did you see that?” Perhaps a three-dimensional object seemed to hurtle out of the screen. A dog might have dunked a basketball like a pro. Advertisers will do anything they can to keep potential customers from turning the page or changing the channel when an advertisement appears. One of their most powerful weapons is the visual effect. Visual effects are ways of changing an image to add to its message or create a certain impression in a viewer’s mind.

The Purpose of Visual Effects

Not only are visual effects fun and interesting, but they also keep viewers looking at an advertisement. The longer a viewer looks at an ad, the more likely the product or service being advertised will stick in the viewer’s mind. Visual effects naturally hold our attention because they combine reality with the fantastic. Which image would be more likely to grab your attention: a giant bug invading a house or a real bug walking across a kitchen floor?

Visual effects also help shape a viewer’s feelings about the product or service in the ad. For example, if an ad shows the giant bug retreating and finally dying after being sprayed with bug spray, the viewer might feel confident that the product can get rid of any insect. After all, the bug spray successfully killed the giant bug.

Types of Visual Effects

Print advertisements and television commercials each use unique visual effects. These effects make an ad more interesting so it can attract the most readers or viewers possible.
A print ad can include a collage of images and text—words and pictures that, when combined, create an overall effect on the readers. Unless a print ad runs for several pages, it usually focuses on one image which creates an unfinished story. Important information about what happened before the product was used or what happened afterward is missing. The readers become involved because they must fill in the blanks to finish the story.

Television commercials contain movement. They can fade in and out or dissolve from one scene to another. Instead of one primary image to develop, a television commercial has many. Action sequences can tell a story.

While some effects are limited to either television or print advertisements, most of the visual effects advertisers use are available to both. Visual effects can be divided into two categories: photographic (made with a camera) or digital (made with a computer).

Common Visual Effects

Photographic Effects

| Camera Angle (point of view) | - Tilting the camera up makes the subject seem large and dominating.
| Lighting | - Dark, shadowy lighting can add mystery or gloom.
| Lighting | - Bright lighting can create a shiny, happy appearance.
| Lighting | - Soft lighting suggests pleasant feelings.
| Filters | - Filters alter the image as it gets to the camera, making it fuzzy, sharp, dull, or sparkling.

Digital Effects

| Digital Editing | - Images can be converted to digital computer versions and then altered.
| Digital Reality | - Images such as babies that dance and animals that talk can be made completely by computer animation.

Both

| Miniaturization | - Small models of props or settings can be used to make a subject a giant in comparison.
| Superimposing | - Two images can be cut or digitally placed on top of each other, making people look as if they are in a jungle or in the air, for example.

TIP Visual effects also hold viewers’ attention in film, television shows, newspapers, magazines, and news programs.
Analyze Visual Effects in Advertisements

As a viewer of print ads and commercials, you should know that visual effects are used to capture your attention and to convince you to think a certain way. Just flip through any magazine or watch a TV commercial, and see how advertisers use visual effects. When you create your own advertisements, you should know that visual effects are a valuable tool to help you persuade a target market. Whether you are a viewer or a creator of advertisements, you can become more aware of visual effects by analyzing the different ways they are used.

The following print ad and the television commercial storyboard on the next page use the same visual effect. As you read these ads, identify the visual effect and determine how the effect is used differently in the two different media.
The visual effect used in both of these ads is camera angle. Notice that in the print ad and in the first TV storyboard, the boy looks large and imposing because the camera looks up into his face, making him seem huge. However, the print ad could only hint that the lotion would bring the boy back down to size, but the television ad was able to tell the whole story. In the storyboard, you can see the boy getting the lotion and then returning to a more normal size through the use of a different camera angle.

TIP Some commercials deliberately omit information so that you become involved filling in the rest of the story. Can you think of a commercial for which you have to fill in the missing action?

YOUR TURN 14 Analyzing Print and Television Ads

Find a print ad and a television commercial that both use at least one of the following visual effects. You may choose an ad and a commercial that use the same visual effects or different effects. The effects are explained in the chart on page 262.

- camera angle
- digital editing
- (point of view)
- digital reality
- lighting
- miniaturization
- filters
- superimposing

Record the commercial, if possible, or draw a storyboard for it. Cut out the print advertisement if you have permission. Then, identify the visual effect used in each advertisement and explain what message or impression the effect communicates. Finally, compare the overall effectiveness of both ads.
7 Choices

Choose one of the following activities to complete.

COMMUNITY SERVICE
1. For a Good Cause  A little publicity can help good causes. Choose a cause that is important to you, such as a tutoring or recycling program. Create a poster, or record a TV or radio ad to advertise this cause to your classmates. Include information telling how your friends and teachers can get involved with this issue to make a difference.

CROSSING THE CURRICULUM: MATH
2. Charting the Course  With two classmates, collect twelve print ads. Then, identify the main persuasive technique used in each ad. (See chart on page 239.) Make a record for each ad on a sheet of paper or in a database that has separate fields for a description of the ad and the technique. Then, make a pie chart that shows what percentage of the ads used each persuasive technique. Which techniques are the most common? Present your results to your class.

CROSSING THE CURRICULUM: SOCIAL STUDIES
3. History Hall of Fame  Use your new knowledge of advertising to create an entire advertising campaign for a historical figure you admire. Design a campaign of three or four print and TV ads nominating him or her for the History Hall of Fame. If you have access to a video camera, you can even record a television commercial to share with the rest of your class.

CAREERS
4. The Ad Game  The fields of advertising, marketing, and public relations are rapidly growing. Find out more about these careers by contacting companies such as advertising and public relations firms. Develop a list of questions and schedule a phone interview to get information about these career fields. Use your interview notes to write a report of your findings.
Writing Complete Sentences

One of the best ways to make your writing clear is to use complete sentences. A complete sentence

- has a subject
- has a verb
- expresses a complete thought

EXAMPLES

Trees help absorb excess carbon dioxide in the atmosphere.

Some species are in danger of dying out.

Get involved!

Each of the example word groups above expresses a complete thought. Each has a verb. The last example may not appear to have a subject in it, but it actually has the understood subject you: (You) Get involved!

Two common errors get in the way of writing complete sentences: sentence fragments and run-on sentences. Once you learn how to recognize fragments and run-ons in your writing, you can revise them to form clear, complete sentences.
Sentence Fragments

A sentence fragment is a word group that has been capitalized and punctuated as if it were a complete sentence. Because it is incomplete, a sentence fragment can confuse your reader.

FRAGMENT Was the first African American man to win the Wimbledon tennis championship. [The subject is missing. Who was the first African American man to win Wimbledon?]

SENTENCE Arthur Ashe was the first African American man to win the Wimbledon tennis championship.

FRAGMENT Ashe the Wimbledon singles title in 1975. [The verb is missing. What is the connection between Ashe and the singles title?]

SENTENCE Ashe won the Wimbledon singles title in 1975.

FRAGMENT While he was a student at the University of California. [This group of words has a subject and a verb, but it does not express a complete thought. What happened while Ashe was a student?]

SENTENCE Ashe also won several championships in college tennis while he was a student at the University of California.

As you can see from the first two examples, you can correct some sentence fragments by adding a subject or verb. Other times a sentence fragment just needs to be attached to the sentence next to it.

NOTE Be careful not to create a fragment by putting in a period and a capital letter too soon.

FRAGMENT The crowd cheered wildly. When Leon scored the winning touchdown. [The second word group is a fragment and belongs with the sentence before it.]

SENTENCE The crowd cheered wildly when Leon scored the winning touchdown.

Exercise 1 Identifying Sentence Fragments

Decide whether the following groups of words are sentence fragments or complete sentences. If the word group is a...
Writing Effective Sentences
Chapter 8

Writing Effective Sentences

1. A flying squirrel a squirrel that can gracefully glide through the air.
2. Some Asian flying squirrels three feet long.
3. Skillfully leaps from one tree to another.
4. The squirrel glides downward, then straight, and finally upward.
5. Some flying squirrels more than fifty feet.
6. If they use a higher starting point.
7. Flying squirrels live in the forests of Asia, Europe, and North America.
8. To eat berries, birds’ eggs, insects, and nuts.
10. Notice how this squirrel stretches out its legs to help it glide.

Exercise 2 Finding and Revising Fragments

Some of the following groups of words are sentence fragments. Revise each fragment by (1) adding a subject, (2) adding a verb, or (3) attaching the fragment to a complete sentence. You may need to change the punctuation and capitalization, too. If an item is already a complete sentence, write S.

EXAMPLE

1. As soon as we finished eating breakfast.

1. We left for our camping trip as soon as we finished eating breakfast.

1. As the whole family loaded into the car.
2. We traveled for hours.
3. When we arrived at the campground.
4. My sister and I down to the river.
5. Took our fishing gear with us.
6. We cast our lines the way our aunt had taught us.
7. Because we didn’t have the best bait.
8. We headed back to the campsite at sunset.
9. Dad cooking bean soup over the fire.
10. While Mom and my sister pitched the tent.
Run-on Sentences

A run-on sentence is actually two complete sentences punctuated like one sentence. In a run-on, two separate thoughts run into each other. The reader cannot tell where one idea ends and another one begins.

RUN-ON Researchers have created a “virtual frog” it will allow students to see the inside of a frog on the computer.
CORRECT Researchers have created a “virtual frog.” It will allow students to see the inside of a frog on the computer.

RUN-ON The software allows students to peel back the frog’s muscles, another option makes the skin invisible.
CORRECT The software allows students to peel back the frog’s muscles. Another option makes the skin invisible.

NOTE A comma does mark a brief pause in a sentence, but it does not show the end of a sentence. If you use just a comma between two sentences, you create a run-on sentence.

RUN-ON Scientists have discovered ice on the moon, the discovery is great news for people who study space exploration.
CORRECT Scientists have discovered ice on the moon. The discovery is great news for people who study space exploration.

Revising Run-on Sentences

Here are two ways you can revise run-on sentences.

1. You can make two sentences.

RUN-ON Asteroids are tiny planets they are sometimes called planetoids.
CORRECT Asteroids are tiny planets. They are sometimes called planetoids.

2. You can use a comma and a coordinating conjunction such as and, but, or or.

RUN-ON Some asteroids shine with a steady light, others keep changing in brightness.
CORRECT Some asteroids shine with a steady light, but others keep changing in brightness.

Reference Note

For more information and practice on coordinating conjunctions, see page 374.
Exercise 3  Identifying and Revising Run-on Sentences

Decide which of the following groups of words are run-on sentences. Then, revise each run-on by (1) making it into two separate sentences or (2) using a comma and and, but, or or. If the group of words is already correct, write C.

1. Saturn is a huge planet it is more than nine times larger than Earth.
2. Saturn is covered by clouds, it is circled by bands of color.
3. Some of the clouds are yellow, others are off-white.
4. Saturn has about twenty moons Titan is the largest.
5. Many of Saturn’s moons have large craters the crater on Mimas covers one third of its diameter.
6. Saturn’s most striking feature is a group of rings that circles the planet.
7. The rings of Saturn are less than two miles thick, they spread out from the planet for a great distance.
8. The rings are made up of billions of tiny particles.
9. Some of the rings are dark, but others are brighter.
10. You can use a telescope to view Saturn, you can visit a planetarium.

Review A  Correcting Sentence Fragments and Run-on Sentences

The following paragraph is confusing because it contains some sentence fragments and run-on sentences. First, identify the sentence fragments and run-on sentences. Then, revise each sentence fragment and run-on sentence to make the paragraph clearer.

Many deserts have no plant life, some desert regions have a variety of plants. Many plants can survive. Where the climate is hot and dry. Cacti, Joshua trees, palm trees, and wildflowers grow in deserts those plants do not grow close together. They are spread out, each plant gets water and minerals from a large area.
Combining Sentences

Although short sentences can sometimes express your ideas well, using only short sentences will make your writing sound choppy and dull. For example, read the following paragraph, which has only short sentences.

Thomas Edison invented the phonograph. He also experimented with mechanical toys. Many people do not know this. Edison created a talking doll. He created the talking doll in 1894. The doll would recite a nursery rhyme or poem. It said the words when a crank in its back was turned. The talking doll was very popular. Edison opened a factory. The factory made five hundred of the dolls every day.

Now read the revised paragraph. Notice how the writer has combined some of the short sentences to make longer, smoother sentences.

Thomas Edison invented the phonograph. He also experimented with mechanical toys. Many people do not know that he created a talking doll in 1894. When a crank in its back was turned, the doll would recite a nursery rhyme or poem. The talking doll was very popular, and Edison opened a factory that made five hundred of the dolls every day.

Sentence combining also helps to reduce the number of repeated words and ideas. The revised paragraph is clearer, shorter, and more interesting to read. The following pages contain strategies for combining sentences. Once you learn these strategies, you can apply them to your own writing.
Combining Sentences by Inserting Words

One way to combine short sentences is to take a key word from one sentence and insert it into another sentence. Sometimes you will need to change the form of the key word before you can insert it. You can change the forms of some words by adding an ending such as –ed, –ing, –ful, or –ly. In its new form, the key word can describe or explain another word in the sentence.

EXAMPLE

ORIGINAL Easter lily plants have leaves. The leaves have points.

COMBINED Easter lily plants have pointed leaves.

Exercise 4 Combining Sentences by Inserting Words

Each of the following items contains two sentences. To combine the two sentences, take the italicized key word from the second sentence and insert it into the first sentence. The directions in parentheses will tell you how to change the form of the key word if you need to do so.

EXAMPLE

1. Peanuts are the tiny fruit of the peanut plant. They have a good taste. (Change taste to tasty.)

   1. Peanuts are the tiny, tasty fruit of the peanut plant.

1. This picture shows peanuts underground. They grow underground.
   (Add –ing.)

2. Peanuts are a crop of many warm regions. They are a major crop.

3. Peanuts are a food for snacking. Peanuts are good for your health. (Add –ful.)

4. The oil from peanuts is used in many dressings. The dressings are for salad.

5. Grades of peanut oil are used to make soap and shampoo. The low grades are used for these products.

6. Many countries grow peanuts solely for their oil. This oil is versatile.

7. The peanut-producing countries include China, India, and the United States. These countries lead the world in peanut production. (Add –ing.)

8. Some soils will stain the peanut shells. Dark soils are responsible for the stains.
9. After peanuts are harvested, the plants are used for feed. The feed is for livestock.

10. Peanuts are a good source of vitamins. Peanuts contain B vitamins.

Combining Sentences by Inserting Phrases

A phrase is a group of words that acts as a single part of speech and that does not have both a subject and a verb. You can combine sentences by taking a phrase from one sentence and inserting it into another sentence.

ORIGINAL
Arachne is a famous figure. She is a figure in Greek mythology.

COMBINED
Arachne is a famous figure in Greek mythology.

NOTE Some phrases need to be set off by commas. Before you insert a phrase into a sentence, ask yourself whether the phrase renames or identifies a noun or pronoun. If it does, it is an appositive phrase, and you may need to set it off with a comma (or two commas if the phrase is in the middle of the sentence).

ORIGINAL
Arachne challenged Athena to a weaving contest. Athena was the goddess of wisdom.

COMBINED
Arachne challenged Athena, the goddess of wisdom, to a weaving contest. [The phrase in boldface type renames the noun Athena.]

Another way to combine sentences is to change the verb and create a new phrase. Just add –ing or –ed to the verb, or put the word to in front of it. You can then use the new phrase to describe a noun, verb, or pronoun in a related sentence.

ORIGINAL
The name Inuit refers to several groups of people. These people live in and near the Arctic.

COMBINED
The name Inuit refers to several groups of people living in and near the Arctic.

Reference Note
For more information and practice on using commas to set off appositive phrases, see page 609.
ORIGINAL Early Inuit followed a special way of life. They did this so they could survive in a harsh environment.

COMBINED To survive in a harsh environment, early Inuit followed a special way of life.

NOTE When you combine sentences by adding a word or phrase from one sentence to another sentence, the resulting sentence may contain a compound phrase. Be sure to keep the compound elements parallel, or matching in form. Otherwise, instead of making your writing smoother, combining may actually make it more awkward.

ORIGINAL Ana likes to hike. Ana also likes cycling.

NOT PARALLEL Ana likes to hike and cycling. [To hike is an infinitive; cycling is a gerund.]

PARALLEL Ana likes hiking and cycling. [Hiking and cycling are both gerunds.]

Exercise 5 Combining Sentences by Inserting Phrases

Each of the following items contains two sentences. Combine the sentences by taking the italicized word group from the second sentence and inserting it into the first sentence. The hints in parentheses tell you how to change the forms of words if you need to do so. Remember to insert commas where they are needed.

EXAMPLE 1. The Inuit followed their traditional way of life. They followed this way of life for thousands of years.

1. The Inuit followed their traditional way of life for thousands of years.

1. The Inuit built winter shelters in a few hours. They stacked blocks of snow. (Change stacked to stacking.)

2. They used harpoons. This is how they hunted seals. (Change hunted to to hunt.)

3. The Inuit also hunted and ate caribou. Caribou are a type of deer.

4. Whalers and fur traders came to the region and affected the Inuit way of life. They arrived in the 1800s.
5. The Inuit often moved several times a year. They moved so that they could find food. (Change find to to find.)
6. During the summer, traditional Inuit lived in tents. The tents were made from animal skin.
7. In the 1800s, many Inuit began to trap animals. They trapped animals for European fur traders.
8. Some Inuit worked on whaling ships. They needed to find other ways to provide for their families. (Change need to needing.)
9. The Inuit have survived for thousands of years. They have survived in the harsh Arctic climate.
10. Most Inuit today follow a modern way of life. They are like the Canadian Inuit seen in the photo on the opposite page.

Combining Sentences Using And, But, or Or

You can also use the coordinating conjunctions and, but, and or to combine sentences. With these connecting words, you can make a compound subject, a compound verb, or a compound sentence.

Compound Subjects and Verbs

Sometimes two sentences have the same verb with different subjects. You can combine the sentences by linking the two subjects with and or or to make a compound subject.

ORIGINAL Dolphins look a little like fish. Porpoises look a little like fish.

COMBINED Dolphins and porpoises look a little like fish.

Two sentences can also have the same subject with different verbs. You can use and, but, or or to connect the two verbs. The result is a compound verb.

ORIGINAL Dolphins live in water like fish. They breathe like other mammals.

COMBINED Dolphins live in water like fish but breathe like other mammals.

TIPS & TRICKS

When you use the coordinating conjunction and to link two subjects, your new compound subject will be a plural subject. Remember to make the verb agree with the subject in number.

ORIGINAL Zach likes watching the sea mammals. Briana likes watching the sea mammals.

COMBINED Zach and Briana like watching the sea mammals. [The plural verb like is needed with the plural subject Zach and Briana.]

For more information and practice on agreement of subjects and verbs, see page 458.
Combining Sentences by Creating Compound Subjects and Verbs

Combine each of the following pairs of short, choppy sentences by using and, but, or or. If the two sentences have the same verb, make a compound subject. If they have the same subject, make a compound verb. Remember to keep the ideas in parallel forms.

EXAMPLE

1. Dolphins belong to a group of mammals called cetaceans. Porpoises belong to a group of mammals called cetaceans.
   1. Dolphins and porpoises belong to a group of mammals called cetaceans.

1. Dolphins are warm-blooded. Porpoises are warm-blooded.
3. Porpoises are similar to dolphins. Porpoises generally live in cooler water.
4. Dolphins have beak-like snouts. Dolphins use sonar to locate objects under water.
6. Dolphins swim by moving their tails up and down. Porpoises swim by moving their tails up and down.
7. Porpoises can swim fast. Dolphins can swim fast.
8. A porpoise could outswim most sharks. A tuna could outswim most sharks.
9. Bottle-nosed dolphins can measure up to fifteen feet in length. Bottle-nosed dolphins can weigh over four hundred pounds.

Compound Sentences

Sometimes you will want to combine two sentences that express equally important ideas. You can connect two closely related, equally important sentences by using a comma plus the coordinating conjunction and, but, or or. Doing so creates a compound sentence.

ORIGINAL  My brother entered the Annual Chili Cook-off. His chili won a prize.
COMBINED  My brother entered the Annual Chili Cook-off, and his chili won a prize.
I did not help him cook the chili. I helped him clean up the kitchen.

I did not help him cook the chili, but I helped him clean up the kitchen.

A compound sentence tells the reader that the two ideas are closely related. If you combine two short sentences that are not closely related, you may confuse your reader.

Fernando mowed the grass, and I brought a broom.

Fernando mowed the grass, and I swept the sidewalk.

Combining Sentences by Forming a Compound Sentence

Each of the following pairs of sentences is closely related. Make each pair into a compound sentence by adding a comma and a coordinating conjunction such as and or but.

Example 1. The Pueblos have lived in the same location for a long time. They have strong ties to their homeland.

1. The Pueblos have lived in the same location for a long time, and they have strong ties to their homeland.

1. Some Pueblos built villages in the valleys. Others settled in desert and mountain areas.
2. Desert surrounded many of the valleys. The people grew crops with the help of irrigation systems.
4. Their adobe homes had several stories. The people used ladders to reach the upper levels.
5. Today, each Pueblo village has its own government. The Pueblo people still share many customs.

Combining Sentences Using Subordinate Clauses

A clause is a group of words that contains a subject and a verb. Independent clauses can stand alone as a sentence. Subordinate (or dependent) clauses cannot stand alone because they do not express a complete thought.

Copyright © by Holt, Rinehart and Winston. All rights reserved.

Chapter Menu
INDEPENDENT Gertrude Ederle swam the English Channel. [This clause can stand alone.]

SUBORDINATE when she was nineteen years old [This clause cannot stand alone.]

If two sentences are related, you can combine them by using a subordinate clause. The resulting sentence is called a complex sentence. The subordinate clause in a complex sentence will give information about a word or idea in the independent clause.

TWO SIMPLE Theresa traveled to Rome. She saw the Sistine Chapel.

ONE COMPLEX Theresa traveled to Rome, where she saw the Sistine Chapel.

Making Clauses That Begin with Who, Which, or That

You can make a short sentence into a subordinate clause by inserting who, which, or that in place of the subject.

ORIGINAL The Everglades is an area of swamps. It covers the southern part of Florida.

COMBINED The Everglades is an area of swamps that covers the southern part of Florida.

Making Clauses with Words of Time or Place

Another way to turn a sentence into a subordinate clause is to add a word that tells time or place. Words that begin this type of clause include after, before, where, wherever, when, whenever, and while. You may need to delete some words to insert the clause into another sentence.

ORIGINAL No humans lived in the Everglades until 1842. In 1842, Seminoles fled to the area.

COMBINED No humans lived in the Everglades until 1842, when Seminoles fled to the area.

NOTE If you put your time or place clause at the beginning of the sentence, use a comma after the clause.

ORIGINAL People began draining the swamps to make farmland. The Everglades was in danger.

COMBINED When people began draining the swamps to make farmland, the Everglades was in danger.
Exercise 8  Combining Sentences by Using Subordinate Clauses

Combine each sentence pair by making the second sentence into a subordinate clause and attaching it to the first sentence. You may need to cut a word or two from the second sentence.

1. The pearl is a gem. It is made by certain kinds of oysters and clams. (Use that.)
2. Beautiful pearls are found in tropical seas. The best pearl oysters live there. (Use where.)
3. A valuable pearl has a shine. The shine comes from below its surface. (Use that.)
4. A pearl becomes round. It is formed in the soft part of the oyster. (Use after.)
5. Pearls should be wiped clean with a soft cloth. They are worn as jewelry. (Use after.)

Review B  Revising a Paragraph by Combining Sentences

The following paragraph sounds choppy because it has too many short sentences. Use the methods you have learned in this section to combine sentences in the paragraph.

Dr. James Naismith invented the game of basketball over one hundred years ago. He probably never guessed the sport would become so popular. He just wanted a new game that could be played indoors. The original basketball teams started in 1891. They had nine players instead of five. The first basket was a peach basket. A player had to climb up and retrieve the ball after each score. Some parts of the game have stayed the same. Players still cannot hold the ball while they run. They must dribble. Thousands of teams across the world now play Dr. Naismith’s game.
Improving Sentence Style

In addition to combining some sentences, you can also make your writing more effective by revising stringy and wordy sentences to make them shorter and clearer. Your reader will stay involved if you mix long and short sentences and include simple, compound, and complex sentences in your writing.

Revising Stringy Sentences

A stringy sentence is made up of several complete thoughts strung together with words like and or but. Stringy sentences just ramble on and on. They don’t give the reader a chance to pause before each new idea.

To fix a stringy sentence, you can

- break the sentence into two or more sentences
- turn some of the complete thoughts into phrases or subordinate clauses

STRINGY  Martina climbed the stairs of the haunted house, and she knocked on the door several times, but no one answered, and she braced herself, and then she opened the door.

REVISED  Martina climbed the stairs of the haunted house. She knocked on the door several times, but no one answered. Bracing herself, she opened the door.

When you revise a stringy sentence, you may decide to keep and or but between two closely related independent clauses. If you do this, be sure to use a comma before the and or but.

EXAMPLE  She knocked on the door several times, but no one answered.

Exercise 9  Revising Stringy Sentences

Some of the following sentences are stringy and need to be improved. First, identify the stringy sentences. Then, revise them by (1) breaking each sentence into two or more sentences or (2) turning some of the complete thoughts into phrases or subordinate clauses. If the sentence is effective and does not need to be improved, write C for correct.
1. Mercedes O. Cubría was born in Cuba, but her mother died, and she moved to the United States, and she moved with her two sisters.
2. She worked as a nurse, and then she joined the Women’s Army Corps, and she soon became an officer in the army.
3. Cubría was the first Cuban-born woman to become an officer in the U.S. Army.
4. Her job during World War II was to translate important government papers into a secret code.
5. The war ended, and she was promoted to captain, and later her official rank rose to major.
6. Then there was the Korean War, and she worked as an intelligence officer, and she studied information about the enemy.
7. Cubría retired from the army in 1953 but was called to duty again in 1962.
8. After the Castro revolution, thousands of Cubans fled to the United States, and Cubría interviewed many of these refugees, and she also prepared reports on Cuba.
9. In her spare time, she helped people from Cuba find jobs and housing.
10. She retired again in 1973, and she settled in Miami, Florida, and she was surrounded by friends and family there.

Revising Wordy Sentences

Sometimes you use more words in a sentence than you really need. Extra words do not make writing sound better and, in fact, they can even interfere with your message. Revise wordy sentences in these three ways.

1. Replace a phrase with one word.

WORDY In a state of exhaustion, Tony slumped across the bus seat and fell asleep.

REVISED Exhausted, Tony slumped across the bus seat and fell asleep.

WORDY As a result of what happened when the tire went flat, we were late.

REVISED Because the tire went flat, we were late.
2. Take out who is or which is.

WORDY  Yesterday I went for a long hike with Sonya, who is my best friend.

REVISED  Yesterday I went for a long hike with Sonya, my best friend.

WORDY  Afterward, we drank some apple juice, which is a good thirst quencher.

REVISED  Afterward, we drank some apple juice, a good thirst quencher.

3. Take out a whole group of unnecessary words.

WORDY  I spent a lot of time writing this report because I really want people to learn about manatees so they can know all about them.

REVISED  I spent a lot of time writing this report because I want people to learn about manatees.

Exercise 10  Revising Wordy Sentences

Some of the following sentences are wordy and need improvement. Decide which of the sentences are wordy; then, revise them. You can (1) replace a phrase with one word, (2) take out who is or which is, or (3) take out a whole group of unnecessary words. If a sentence is effective as it is, write C for correct.

1. Our science class has been learning about the starfish, which is a strange and beautiful animal.
2. What I want to say is that starfish are fascinating creatures.
3. A starfish has little feet tipped with suction cups that have suction power.
4. At the end of each arm is a sensitive eyespot.
5. In spite of the fact that the eyespot cannot really see things, it can tell light from dark.
6. The starfish’s mouth is in the middle of its body.
7. When it uses its arms, it can pull at the shells of clams.
8. At the point at which the clam’s shell opens, the starfish can feed on the clam.
9. Starfish come in a variety of colors, shapes, and sizes, and some are bigger than others.
10. This photograph shows a blue sea star holding onto a soft coral by holding it with its suction cups.
Varying Sentence Structure

An important way to keep your readers’ attention is to mix sentences of different lengths and structures. Think like a movie director. If you were making a movie, you would include long, complex scenes; but you would mix those scenes with shorter, simpler scenes to keep your audience’s attention. A movie made up entirely of long scenes or short scenes would be difficult for your audience to follow. Apply the same ideas to your writing.

For example, the writer of the following paragraph uses only short sentences.

Jim Knaub lost the use of his legs in a motorcycle accident. He decided he would not let that slow him down. He started racing wheelchairs. All the other racers were using standard wheelchairs. Those wheelchairs were not fast enough for Jim. He began to design his own. Soon, his lightweight, ultrafast wheelchair was winning races. He became a well-known wheelchair-racing champion. Jim now designs wheelchairs for others to use.

Now read the revised paragraph. Notice how the writer has varied the sentence structure to include different sentence lengths and a mixture of simple, compound, and complex sentences.

When Jim Knaub lost the use of his legs in a motorcycle accident, he decided he would not let that slow him down. He started racing wheelchairs. All the other racers were using standard wheelchairs, but those wheelchairs were not fast enough for Jim. He began to design his own. Soon, his lightweight, ultrafast wheelchair was winning races. He became a well-known wheelchair-racing champion and began to design wheelchairs for others to use.
Varying sentence length keeps the reader interested in the story. By changing the sentence structure, the writer avoids starting each sentence the same way, which would make the paragraph boring and repetitive.

Exercise 11 Adding Variety to Sentences

The following paragraph is uninteresting because it includes only compound sentences. Rewrite the paragraph to include a variety of sentence structures. Mix short, simple sentences; compound sentences; and longer sentences with subordinate clauses in your version. Remember, you are the director of this piece of writing. Use variety to keep your audience involved.

My friends and I have been talking, and we have made a decision. We should have a day off, and we could go on a class picnic. We could do it right before winter break, or we could go near the end of the school year. We could each bring a sack lunch, or we could each bring something to share with the rest of the class. The park near the school has picnic tables, and it has playing fields and a pool. We don’t all know how to swim, so the students who can’t swim can play soccer or baseball instead. It might seem bad to take a free day, but we work hard the rest of the year. We would enjoy the picnic, and we would have a fun day. We would return to school, and we would have smiles on our faces.

Review C Revising a Paragraph by Improving Sentence Style

The paragraph on the following page is hard to read because it contains stringy and wordy sentences. Identify the stringy and wordy sentences, and use the methods you have learned to revise them. Try to mix simple, compound, and complex sentences in your improved version.
The movie Anastasia is based on a real story about a real girl from history. Her name was Anastasia Romanov and she was born in 1901 and lived in Russia. The movie is about some historical events in Russia’s history, and many things in the movie are not true. For example, the movie says that Anastasia was eight years old when the revolutionaries came to overthrow and defeat her father, who was the czar, but the real Anastasia was a teenager in real life. The movie shows Anastasia and her grandmother, who was the Grand Duchess Marie, escaping together, but in reality her grandmother was already safely in Denmark when the family was seized and captured. Unlike the character in the movie, the real Anastasia did not get away, her remains were found with her family’s remains when they were found in 1991. Although Anastasia is an interesting movie, people who see it should also know the real story that happened.
What Is a Paragraph?

A paragraph is a section of text focused on a main idea. Usually a paragraph is part of a longer piece of writing. In an essay about summer camp, for example, one paragraph might focus just on the meals. Other paragraphs in the essay would each focus on another aspect of camp, such as the outdoor activities, adding up to create an overall picture of the experience.

Why Use Paragraphs?

As writers and readers, we often seem to take paragraphs for granted. Imagine, though, a piece of writing with no paragraphs. As a reader, you would face huge blocks of uninterrupted text, giving your eyes no chance for a break until the end. As a writer, you might think it would be nice not to worry about where to start a new paragraph or when to indent; however, paragraphs help you get your message across to readers. They show readers that you are moving from one idea (or setting, or speaker) to another. Showing where paragraphs begin and end is like holding the reader’s hand and walking him or her through your piece. Paragraphs make it easier for readers to get where you want to take them.
What Are the Parts of a Paragraph?

Most paragraphs that focus on a main idea have a topic sentence and supporting sentences. Many also include a clincher sentence.

The Main Idea

Whether they stand alone or are part of a longer piece of writing, paragraphs usually have a main idea. The main idea is the overall point of the paragraph. In the following paragraph about how Hopis use kachina dolls, you will find the main idea in the first sentence.

Because Hopis have no written language, kachina dolls are used to pass tribal lore and religion down through generations. Given to the young during special dances, kachina dolls are then hung in the home as constant reminders of Hopi ancestry and heritage. Though too young to understand their meaning, infants are given kachina paddle dolls as toys, so that from birth they are familiar with Hopi custom.

Lonnie Dyer, “Kachinas: Sacred Drama of the Hopis,” Young World

The Topic Sentence

Location of the Topic Sentence

The main idea of a paragraph is often stated in a topic sentence. You may find it at the beginning of the paragraph, in the middle, or even at the end. In the paragraph above, the topic sentence is the first sentence: Because Hopis have no written language, kachina dolls are used to pass tribal lore and religion down through generations.

In the following paragraph, the topic sentence is last. This sentence makes clear that the villagers are preparing for a battle. The other sentences lead up to that point.
Importance of a Topic Sentence

Although not all paragraphs have topic sentences, it is helpful to use them when you are writing. Topic sentences may help you focus on your main idea. They also help the reader find the main idea and know what to expect from the paragraph. However, paragraphs that relate a series of events or that tell a story often lack a topic sentence. When a paragraph has no topic sentence, the reader must figure out the main idea by determining what all of the sentences have in common. Read the following paragraph. Although it has no topic sentence, all the sentences are about one main idea—the unexpected reactions of a poor woman toward her wealthy friend.

“OH, LOTTIE, IT'S GOOD TO SEE YOU,” BESS SAID, BUT SAYING NOTHING ABOUT LOTTIE’S SPLENDID APPEARANCE. UPSTAIRS BESS, PUTTING DOWN HER SHABBY SUITCASE, SAID, “I'LL SLEEP LIKE A ROCK TONIGHT,” WITHOUT A WORD OF PRAISE FOR HER LOVELY ROOM. AT THE LAVISH TABLE, TOP-HEAVY WITH TURKEY, BESS SAID, “I’LL TAKE LIGHT AND DARK BOTH,” WITH NO MARVELING AT THE SIZE OF THE BIRD, OR THAT THERE WAS TURKEY FOR TWO ELDERLY WOMEN, ONE OF THEM TOO POOR TO BUY HER OWN BREAD.

Dorothy West, The Richer, the Poorer
NOTE When a writer includes no topic sentence, readers must determine the main idea of a paragraph from its supporting details. In paragraphs like the one from The Richer, the Poorer, the main idea is implied, rather than directly stated.

Exercise 1 Identifying Main Ideas and Topic Sentences

Finding a main idea is like detective work: Both require a keen eye for detail. Look for the main idea in each of the following paragraphs by looking for a topic sentence and by studying the paragraph’s details. Remember that the main idea is the overall point of the paragraph. If the selection has a topic sentence, write it down. If the paragraph has no topic sentence, write the main idea of the paragraph in your own words, using details from the paragraph.

1. He turned and looked back at the stand of raspberries. The bear was gone; the birds were singing; he saw nothing that could hurt him. There was no danger here that he could sense, could feel. In the city, at night, there was sometimes danger. You could not be in the park at night, after dark, because of the danger. But here, the bear had looked at him and had moved on and—this filled his thoughts—the berries were so good.

   Gary Paulsen, Hatchet

2. Like lots of other kids her age, eight-year-old Auralea Moore plays baseball, swims, and skis. She also has a favorite plaything: a 19-inch doll named Susan, who was handcrafted to look like her. Auralea was born with spina bifida, a birth defect that has left her paralyzed from the waist down. Her look-alike doll, equipped with a pair of blue and silver “designer” braces, helps her remember that although she may be handicapped, she is definitely not out of the action.

   “A Doll Made to Order,” Newsweek
3. Personally, I thought Maxwell was just about the homeliest dog I’d ever seen in my entire life. He looked like a little old man draped in a piece of brown velvet that was too long, with the leftover cloth hanging in thick folds under his chin. Not only that, his long droopy ears dragged on the ground; he had sad wet eyes and huge thick paws with splayed toes. I mean, who could love a dog like that, except my brother Joji, aged nine, who is a bit on the homely side himself.

Yoshiko Uchida, A Jar of Dreams

Exercise 2 Writing a Topic Sentence

For each of the following paragraphs, write a topic sentence that communicates the main idea.

1. A bottle of nail polish can cost as little as a dollar and last for months, depending on how much you use. You can find it in every color in nature and any unnatural color you can imagine. Best of all, if you get tired of a color, you can easily change it.

2. This movie is packed with action. I have never seen so many chases and explosions before. It also has an important lesson about friendship. The two main characters always look out for each other. Maybe the best thing about it is the music. The soundtrack will certainly be a bestseller.

3. First, you need some supplies. These include a roller or brush, a ladder tall enough to reach the roof, and enough paint to cover the whole house. You should have already scraped off the old paint. Start at the top of a section and work your way down to avoid dripping wet paint on a finished part.
Supporting Sentences

Supporting sentences are the details that expand on, explain, or prove a paragraph’s main idea. These details can include sensory details, facts, or examples.

- Sensory details are what we experience through our five senses—sight, hearing, touch, taste, and smell.
- Facts give information that can be proved true by direct observation or by checking a reliable reference source. For instance, it is a fact that great herds of buffalo once roamed the western plains. You can prove this fact by checking an encyclopedia or history book.
- Examples give typical instances of an idea. An example of a creature with protective coloration is a chameleon, a lizard whose coloring changes with its surroundings.

The following chart shows the kinds of details you can use to support the main idea of a paragraph.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Kinds of Details</th>
<th>Supporting Sentences</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Sensory Details</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sight</td>
<td>The bright sun glared off the front windshield of the car.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Hearing</td>
<td>Thunder boomed down the canyon, echoing off the walls.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Touch</td>
<td>My hands felt frozen to the cold, steel handlebars.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Taste</td>
<td>Thirstily, she gulped down the sweet orange juice.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Smell</td>
<td>The sharp, unpleasant odor of asphalt met his nose.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Facts</td>
<td>In 1998, Mark McGwire slammed seventy home runs in one season to break the record of sixty-one held by Roger Maris.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Examples</td>
<td>Fierce windstorms occur worldwide. For example, tornadoes have wind speeds over 200 miles per hour.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Reference Note

Supporting details help you elaborate on your ideas. For more information and practice on elaboration, see page 304.
Exercise 3  Collecting Supporting Details

When you write paragraphs, you have to collect details that support your main idea. You can practice with the following topic sentences. List at least two details to support each topic sentence.

EXAMPLE 1. The appliance that toasts our bread has changed over the years.
   1. Details: It originated in the early 1900s. It consisted of bare wires with no thermostat. The first pop-up toaster appeared in 1926.

1. The time I spend with my friends on Saturday nights is my favorite time of the week.
2. My dream is to spend two days in a shopping mall.
3. One person’s actions can make a difference in the lives of others.
4. When I feel hungry, I can just imagine my favorite meal.

The Clincher Sentence

Once you have written a topic sentence and developed well-organized details that support your main idea, the only thing left to do is to wrap it all up. Some writers do this by using a clincher sentence, also known as a concluding sentence. Notice how the last sentence of the following paragraph pulls together the preceding information by echoing the topic sentence.

Helping the homeless helps the community. When homeless people are given housing assistance and job training, they can become our neighbors, co-workers, and friends. Not only do they find work and learn to support themselves, but they also pay taxes and share their skills with others. Every person we help out of homelessness is one more person who can enrich our neighborhood and community.

Although many paragraphs have no clincher sentence, you may want to use one to cement your main idea in readers’ minds.
Exercise 4 Developing a Clincher Sentence

For each of the following short paragraphs, write a sentence that can serve as its clincher, wrapping up the information presented in the paragraph, but not repeating it.

EXAMPLE

1. Even though ferns grow everywhere in the forest, I can’t seem to keep them alive at home. My shriveled brown ferns have the benefits of frequent waterings, plant food, and careful lighting. Nothing seems to help.

1. Clincher: I guess nature knows how to take care of ferns better than people do.

1. Eating food in the library is a bad idea. Crumbs get on the floor and between pages when you eat, even if you are careful. These tiny bits of food may be impossible for you to see, but insects know they are there and will raid the books to find them. These insects will eventually harm the pages.

2. Computers have made getting information faster and easier. Almost all schools use them now, and they are very helpful in doing homework or typing papers. Before computers were available, most students had to do research by going to libraries, which might not be open. Now students can use computers any time of day in their own homes or at a friend’s house.

What Makes a Good Paragraph?

Unity

A paragraph has unity when all the sentences support, or tell something about, one main idea. A paragraph that does not have unity may confuse your readers. For example, in a paragraph about Bonnie St. John Deane, you might tell how she became a skiing champion despite losing a leg. However, if you mentioned a friend who is also a skier, you would destroy the unity. The information about the friend is not related to your main idea.

Notice how all the sentences in the following paragraph tell something more about the paragraph’s main idea.

Technology has changed the ways of the ranch. While cowboys continue to drive cattle to the corral on horseback, a pickup truck—air-conditioned, of course—also helps. And though they don’t plug branding irons into electrical outlets, propane tanks make lighting fires and heating branding irons easier. Computers log inventory and keep track of wildlife. Hal Hawkins, King Ranch’s animal physiologist, monitors herd research and development with a laptop computer.

Johnny D. Boggs, “Home on the Range,”
Boys’ Life

Exercise 5 Identifying Sentences That Destroy Unity

Each of the following paragraphs has one sentence that destroys the unity. Try your skill at finding the unrelated sentences.

1. It felt like an oven to Tamara as she walked up the street toward the park. It was a hot day for baseball practice. She wondered if the Cardinals game would be on television that evening. Tamara told herself she couldn’t let the heat slow her down, though. Today the coach would be deciding who would start in the season’s first game. Tamara wanted to be playing third base.

2. Canoes are made for many purposes. White-water canoes are made for use in fast, rock-filled streams. They can turn quickly to avoid obstacles. Other canoes are made for lakes and quiet rivers. Unable to turn quickly, they are poor choices for use on a river with lots of rapids. On the other hand, they are easy to paddle in a straight line. White-water canoes can be very expensive. Before choosing a canoe, think about what kind of water you will ride.

Coherence

What goes into a paragraph is only part of the picture. Supporting details need to be clearly connected and arranged. A paragraph has coherence when readers can tell how and why ideas are connected. To create coherence you can do two things. First, you can arrange your details in an order that makes sense to the reader. Then, you can link those ideas together with transitional words or phrases (like first and then in this paragraph).

Order of Details

To help your readers follow your ideas, use one of the following patterns to organize your ideas.

- Chronological order presents details in the order in which they happen.
- Spatial order presents details according to their location.
- Logical order groups related ideas together.

Chronological Order What happens when a character lost in the Arctic wilderness cannot build a fire? How is soccer played? To answer these questions, you must tell about an event or an action as it changes over time. To tell about changes in time, you usually use chronological, or time, order.

You can use chronological order to tell a story (what happens to the character in the Arctic), to explain a process (how to play soccer), or to explain causes and effects (why the Titanic sank).

- Using chronological order to tell a story On the following page is a story, passed down from one generation to the next, about some curious escapes from slavery before the Civil War.
Using chronological order to explain a process When you tell how to do something or how something works, you are explaining a process. Often, this means telling how to do something step by step—what is done first, then next, and so on. The following paragraph tells how kites may have developed.

No one is quite sure how kite flying started. Perhaps an ancient Chinese first noticed big leaves of certain plants fluttering at the end of long vines. Then, after watching “leaf-kites” for a while, he tied his straw hat to a string just for fun and happily found that the wind kept it flying. Later, he may have stretched a piece of animal skin over a bamboo frame and flown that from the end of a line.

Dan Carlinsky, “Kites,” Boys’ Life

Uncle Mingo’s forehead wrinkled like a mask in the moonlight. “Don’t make light of what old folks tell you, son,” he warned. “If the old folks say they seen slaves pick up and fly back to Africa, like birds, just don’t you dispute them. If they tell you about a slave preacher what led his whole flock to the beach and sat down on the sand with them, looking across the ocean toward home, don’t ask no questions. Next morning nobody could find trace of that preacher or his people. And no boat had been there neither. One day when I was chopping cotton in the field, I looked up and the old fellow working in the row next to mine was gone. He was too feeble to run away, and I couldn’t see no place for him to hide. None of the others in the field saw him leave either, but later on an old woman drinking water at a well told us she noticed something pass in front of the sun about that time, like a hawk or a buzzard maybe, but she didn’t pay it much mind.”

Arna Bontemps, Chariot in the Sky: A Story of the Jubilee Singers
• Using chronological order to explain causes and effects

Chronological order is also used to explain a cause-and-effect chain. A cause-and-effect chain is a set of events that starts with a cause, and the effect that follows causes yet another event to occur. The chain continues with each event triggering yet another event, just as a stone thrown in the water causes a series of ripples. The following paragraph shows a cause-and-effect chain that started with some dogs getting sick.

Dogs may be man’s best friend. But to the lions of Serengeti National Park in Tanzania, dogs unintentionally have been worst enemies. In 1994, distemper, a deadly disease, started spreading to the lions from pet dogs living in villages near the park. Then it spread to lions in nearby Masai Mara Reserve in Kenya. Eventually distemper killed about 1,200 lions, reports biologist Craig Packer, who studies lions in Africa. In response, wildlife agents inoculated thousands of dogs against distemper. Now few animals catch the disease. Packer happily reports that the area’s lion population has rebounded to 3,000, about as many as there were before the epidemic began.

Scott Stuckey, “Lions Recover from Dog Disease,” National Geographic

Exercise 6 Arranging Details by Using Chronological Order

Follow the directions for each item on the next page to practice telling about events in the order in which they happen.
1. Tell a story. Select one of the following topics, and make up three or more events to include in a story about it. Arrange the events in chronological order.
   a. A mysterious light follows you down an empty street one night.
   b. A tall, shy new student enters your school. He has trouble fitting in at first, but soon the situation changes.

2. Explain a process. Pick one of the following activities. Then, list three or more steps involved in performing this activity. Arrange the steps in chronological order—that is, the order in which they should happen.
   c. how to wash a car
   d. how to clean up your room

3. Explain cause and effect. Create a cause-and-effect chain for one of the following situations.
   e. missing the school bus
   f. finding a litter of puppies

Spatial Order When you describe something, you often use spatial order. Spatial order organizes details according to their location. Think of a video camera shooting a scene. The camera acts as a roving eye, beginning in one place, then moving around to show viewers other parts of the scene. Writers use spatial order in much the same way. In the following paragraph, notice how the writer uses spatial order to describe her father’s farm.

The farm my father grew up on, where Grandpa Welty and Grandma lived, was in southern Ohio in the rolling hills of Hocking County, near the small town of Logan. It was one of the neat, narrow-porched, two-story farmhouses, painted white, of the Pennsylvania-German country. Across its front grew feathery cosmos and barrel-sized peony bushes with stripy heavy-scented blooms pushing out of the leaves. There was a springhouse to one side, down a little walk only one brick in width, and an old apple orchard in front, the barn and the pasture and fields of corn

(continued)
Exercise 7  Arranging Details by Using Spatial Order

How would you describe an insect, a rock star, or a movie set? Working with one or two others, choose a subject below, and list details that describe it. Arrange the details in spatial order.

1. the most unusual animal you have ever seen
2. your favorite car
3. the best setting for a science fiction movie
4. your classroom, moments before a vacation break

Logical Order  When you write about information that fits into categories, you will use logical order. For example, an informative paragraph about sea otters might group together details about where they live, then explain what they eat, and finally tell how they act. When you compare and contrast, it is logical to group related ideas together.

It is easy to confuse frogs with toads. After all, they have a similar body shape and are basically the same size, and both are amphibious. There are some observable differences, though, that can help you tell them apart. The first is their skin texture. Frogs have smooth skin, while toads’ skin is more bumpy. Their body shapes are slightly different, too. Frogs look leaner and sleeker than toads. Finally, they move differently. Most frogs can leap long distances, while toads will usually take only small hops.
Exercise 8  Arranging Details by Using Logical Order

Think about two subjects that are alike enough to be compared yet different enough to be interesting. Write down three ways that these subjects are alike and three ways that they are different. You might compare and contrast the following items:

1. being a child and being a teenager
2. live-action movies and animated movies
3. living in a large city and living in a small community

Transitional Words and Phrases

The second way of creating coherence in paragraphs is to use transitional words or phrases to connect ideas. These are words and phrases such as for example, mainly, and in addition. They connect ideas and tell why and how they are related.

The following chart shows examples of some of the common transitional words and phrases that help to create coherence.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Transitional Words and Phrases</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Comparing and Contrasting Ideas</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Showing Cause and Effect</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Showing Time</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Identifying Transitional Words and Phrases

The following paragraph tells how American Indians are recognized everywhere they go. The writer uses transitional words to show how ideas are connected. Notice, for example, how “at first” kids pretend not to see him. “Then,” they turn and look.

> When I go someplace, most of the time those little people see me. At first they’ll pretend not to see me. They go past me a little ways, and then they will turn back and look at me. Then they’ll nudge their mama or daddy or grandma or grandpa, and I’ll hear them say, “There’s an Indian back there.” So the Indians are still here. We never phased away. We didn’t just blend into society and vanish. In fact, we’re appearing more and more and more.

Wallace H. Black Elk and William S. Lyon, Black Elk: The Sacred Ways of a Lakota

---

Exercise 9

Identifying Transitional Words and Phrases

Using the chart on pages 302–303 as a guide, make a list of all the transitional words and phrases in the paragraph that follows on the next page.
When she was elected principal chief of the Cherokee Nation in 1987, Wilma Mankiller took on a huge job. She was used to challenges, though. For example, she had developed many needed projects for Cherokees in rural Oklahoma in 1976. First, she taught people how to build their own homes. Next, she installed new water supply lines. Finally, she started new rural health clinics. Then, she had to overcome serious injuries she suffered in an auto accident in late 1979. While others were impressed with the new chief's dedication, no one who really knew her well found her leadership ability surprising. Once elected chief, Mankiller continued her work to improve Cherokee communities. She focused on housing and education needs, and she encouraged her people to be proud of their language and culture. After serving two terms as chief, Wilma Mankiller continued to work for the Cherokee Nation by speaking across the country.

Elaboration

A good paragraph does not give just bare facts. It elaborates, or expands, on the supporting details so that readers get enough information to understand the subject. To elaborate, you must expand an idea by using details, facts, or examples. A writer who does not elaborate risks leaving the reader with an unclear or incomplete picture of the subject.

The paragraph below has a main idea and supporting details, but the supporting details need more elaboration.

Cheetahs are the fastest animals on land. A typical cheetah runs faster than a car moving at average speed. Cheetahs can sprint so well because their bodies are adapted for speed. Cheetahs use this incredible speed to hunt prey and to outrun predators.
Now read the elaborated paragraph. Notice how the writer has expanded on the supporting details by adding several new facts, a new example, and a new detail. Does this new information give you a clearer picture of the subject?

Cheetahs are the fastest animals on land. A typical cheetah runs faster than a car moving at average speed. In fact, cheetahs can move from a standstill to 45 miles per hour in two seconds. Their top speed has been clocked at 70 miles per hour, as fast as many highway speed limits. Cheetahs can sprint so well because their bodies are adapted for speed. They have small heads, short ears, and long sleek bodies. Unlike other cats, they also have claws that do not retract. Their nonretractable claws enable them to turn corners quickly and maintain good traction. Cheetahs use this incredible speed to hunt prey and to outrun predators.

Exercise 10 Elaborating Details

The following paragraph does not have enough elaboration. Add details, facts, or examples to improve the paragraph. Be ready to explain the elaboration strategies you used.

Getting to school on time is not easy. I usually have to wait in line to get in the bathroom. Then, I have to pick out something to wear. Finally, I have to make my own breakfast. Sometimes I think school should start an hour later.

Copyright © by Holt, Rinehart and Winston. All rights reserved.
What Are the Types of Paragraphs?

There are four different types of paragraphs.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Type</th>
<th>Purpose</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Narrative</td>
<td>used to tell a story or a sequence of events</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Descriptive</td>
<td>used to describe a scene or an object</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Expository</td>
<td>used to provide information, including facts, instructions, and definitions</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Persuasive</td>
<td>used to share opinions and convince others to agree or take action</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

The type of paragraph you use will depend on your purpose for writing. To entertain readers or express themselves, writers use narration or description. Exposition and narration are used to inform readers about something. Writers use persuasion to influence people. Several paragraphs written about the same subject might be very different, depending on why the writers wrote them. The four paragraphs that follow all talk about roller coasters, but in different ways.

Narrative paragraphs tell about an event or series of events, usually in chronological order. Most short stories and newspaper articles are examples of narrative writing.

Reference Note
For more information and practice on chronological order, see page 297.

Your knuckles are white, your palms are drenched, and it feels like your dentist has just switched on the drill. Worse still, as the click of the chain pulls the train skyward, you glance back at the gum-chewing guy who strapped you in and wonder what possessed you to put your life in the hands of a kid you wouldn’t trust to wrap your sandwich. That’s when you realize: This is all a big mistake. Only now you’re at the top, staring into the air, the track seems to have vanished, and the car teeters on the edge of nothingness. Then gravity takes hold and whooooooa . . . you’re hurtling

(continued)
Descriptive paragraphs do exactly what you think they do; they describe a person, an object, or a scene in detail.

Rising ominously from the frozen Muskegon landscape, it is a sight both exhilarating and unnerving, this man-made mountain range of wood. Under a cold grey sky, the soul of this creation waits in silent hibernation for the warmth of spring. Then, when the clouds part, the snows melt, and the earth awakens, it shall be silent no more. A gorgeous, textbook example of the classic “out-and-back” roller coaster, Shivering Timbers will be Michigan’s largest coaster. Even more, this humongous lumber wonder will rank as the third longest wooden coaster in the United States.

“1998 Preview,” Thrillride! Web site

Expository paragraphs are used for explanation. They can list facts, give directions, or explain ideas. Writers also use expository paragraphs to define terms, make comparisons, and show cause and effect. Since information in expository writing can usually be put into categories, it often uses logical order.

In the Nickel Empire, attractions grew bigger, faster, weirder: horses diving from platforms; “guess men” who guessed your weight, age, occupation; clowns with cattle prods who mildly shocked innocent bystanders. Every amusement park had its Ferris wheel, but only Coney Island

(continued)
Persuasive paragraphs are used to share an opinion about a particular subject. Writers of persuasive paragraphs try to convince readers to agree with the opinions in the paragraphs and, sometimes, to take action. A persuasive paragraph often uses order of importance.

Going on amusement park rides is one of the safest forms of recreation. According to the International Association of Amusement Park Attractions, you are more likely to be injured when you play sports, ride a horse, or even ride a bicycle. Statistics show the occurrence of death to be approximately one in 250 million riders. This group’s statistics are supported by those of the National Consumer Product Safety Commission. It estimates that more than 270 million people visit amusement parks each year, and that 7,000 people out of those 270 million go to emergency rooms for injuries they receive on amusement park rides—that’s only 0.00259 percent of riders.

“Amusement Park Physics,” Learner on Line Web site

Reference Note
For more on order of importance, see page 218.
Exercise 11  Identifying Types of Paragraphs

With two or three other students, find an example of each of the four paragraph types in magazines, newspapers, books, or on Web sites. Then, answer the following questions for each paragraph.

1. Do you think the paragraph is narrative, descriptive, expository, or persuasive? How can you tell?

2. How are the details organized in each paragraph (chronologically, spatially, logically)? How do you know? Could the information have been organized in a different way? How?

3. What was the writer’s purpose for writing each piece (to entertain, inform, influence, express)? Does your group feel that the writer achieved his or her purpose? Why?

How Are Paragraphs Used in Longer Pieces of Writing?

So far, you have had practice with paragraphs that can stand on their own or are part of the body of a longer piece of writing. There are two other kinds of paragraphs you will need to use in your writing: introduction and conclusion paragraphs. The body paragraphs in a composition are like the supporting details in a paragraph—they serve as the filling for your “idea sandwich.” Introduction and conclusion paragraphs are the bread for that sandwich. They are like larger versions of your topic and clincher sentences.

Dividing a Piece into Paragraphs

When you write a longer piece, you need to divide the body into paragraphs to give your readers’ eyes a rest and to switch to a new main idea. To help your readers understand changes in a longer piece of writing, start a new paragraph when

- you express a new or different main idea
- you explain another part of your subject or step in a process
- you provide another kind of support for your opinion
- the setting—time or location—of your piece changes
- a different person or character speaks

Reference Note

For more on introductions and conclusions, see “Writing” in the Quick Reference Handbook.
Exercise 12  Dividing a Piece into Paragraphs

The paragraph indentations from the following selection have been removed. Read the selection with a small group of classmates and decide where to start and end each paragraph.

It was supposed to be a simple nature walk. In August 1995, eight middle school students and their teacher were hiking in a field near Henderson, Minnesota, as part of their study of the region’s environment. But then they saw the frogs. “At first, when we saw that some of their back legs were twisted and bent or sticking straight out, we thought we had broken their legs,” says Jack Bovee, now 16. “Then we found three or four that were missing one leg.” The students abandoned their planned walk and headed to nearby Ney Pond to search for more frogs. “It seemed like the closer we got to the pond, the grosser the deformities,” Jack says. “We saw one with three legs. It was like, Great, there’s a problem here. Cool.” By the end of the day, the students had caught twenty-two frogs. Half of them were seriously deformed. Their discovery generated much more than a couple of freaky frog jokes. The case of the deformed frogs has alarmed scientists across the country and turned into one of the nation’s greatest environmental mysteries. Scientists want to know what happened to the frogs, and whether what’s affecting them could affect us.

Susan Hayes, “The Celebrated Deformed Frogs of Le Sueur County,” Scholastic Update

Review A  Writing a Narrative Paragraph

Write a narrative paragraph on one of the following topics. Use chronological (time) order to organize details in your supporting sentences.

- an event you saw recently
- a story you have heard before
Review B  Writing a Descriptive Paragraph

Apply what you have learned to write a descriptive paragraph on one of the following topics. Use plenty of sensory details to describe what your subject looks like, sounds like, smells like, and so on. Organize the details using spatial (place) order.

- a favorite pet or place
- a park you have visited

Review C  Writing an Expository Paragraph

This is the type of writing you will use most often, whether answering an essay test question or sharing your favorite recipe. Use an expository paragraph to explain what you know about a topic. Remember to support your main idea using facts, examples, and sensory details. Here are some ways you might approach your expository paragraph.

- Explain how to do something simple, such as tying shoelaces. (Use time order.)
- Compare and contrast two things, for example, dogs and cats. (Use logical order.)
- Provide information about a topic you know well, such as the history of hip-hop music or types of aquarium fish. (Use chronological order for history topics and logical order when explaining types of things.)

Review D  Writing a Persuasive Paragraph

You have probably used spoken persuasion since you were old enough to talk. Putting persuasion into writing gives you an edge, because you can better plan what you want to say. Remember that the supporting sentences of your persuasive paragraph should give good reasons for your opinion. Choose one of the following prompts and write a persuasive paragraph.

- Express your opinion about a school or community issue. For example, you might propose making passing periods between classes longer or building a new city park.
- Ask a parent for a privilege, such as a later bedtime.
A. Identifying Sentences

Identify each of the following word groups as a sentence or a sentence fragment. If a word group is a sentence, write it in the correct form, using a capital letter at the beginning and adding the appropriate punctuation mark at the end.

EXAMPLES

1. having forgotten their homework
   1. sentence fragment

2. how strong the wind is
   2. sentence—How strong the wind is!

1. after we visit the library and gather information for the research paper
2. are you ready for the big game next week
3. listen closely to our guest speaker
4. have read the first draft of my paper
5. an excellent short story, “The Medicine Bag,” is in that book
6. that we helped Habitat for Humanity to build
7. Mrs. Chin, our math teacher this year
8. be prepared to give your speech tomorrow
9. fishing, skiing, and swimming in the lake
10. what a good idea you have, Amy
B. Identifying Simple Subjects and Simple Predicates

Write the simple subject and the simple predicate in each of the following sentences.

EXAMPLE 1. A computer can be a wonderful tool for people with disabilities.
   1. computer—simple subject; can be—simple predicate

11. Specially designed machines have been developed in the past several years.
12. Have you ever seen a talking computer?
13. It is used mainly by people with visual impairments.
14. Most computers display writing on a screen.
15. However, these special models can give information by voice.
16. Closed-captioned television is another interesting and fairly recent invention.
17. Subtitles appear on the television screens of many hearing-impaired viewers.
18. These viewers can read the subtitles and enjoy their favorite television shows.
19. With a teletypewriter (TTY), people can type messages over phone lines.
20. Many new inventions and devices make life easier.

C. Punctuating and Classifying Sentences

Copy the last word of each of the following sentences, and then punctuate each sentence with the correct end mark. Classify each sentence as declarative, interrogative, imperative, or exclamatory.

EXAMPLE 1. Flowers and insects depend on one another for life
   1. life.—declarative

21. Have you ever watched a honeybee or a bumblebee in a garden
22. The bee flies busily from one flower to another, drinking nectar
23. Notice the yellow pollen that collects on the legs and body of the bee
24. The bee carries pollen from flower to flower, helping the plants to make seeds
25. What a remarkable insect the bee is
The Sentence

10a. A sentence is a word or word group that contains a subject and a verb and that expresses a complete thought.

A sentence begins with a capital letter and ends with a period, a question mark, or an exclamation point.

EXAMPLES
- She won a prize for her book.
- Why did you stop running?
- Wait! [The understood subject is you.]

Sentence or Sentence Fragment?

A sentence fragment is a group of words that looks like a sentence but does not contain both a subject and a verb or does not express a complete thought.

SENTENCE FRAGMENT
- Sailing around the world. [The word group lacks a subject.]
- The hike through the Grand Canyon. [The word group lacks a verb.]
- After they pitched the tent. [The word group contains a subject and a verb, but does not express a complete thought.]

SENTENCE
- They are sailing around the world.
- The hike through the Grand Canyon was long and hard.
- After they pitched the tent, they rested.

Exercise 1  Identifying Sentences

Identify each of the following word groups as a sentence or a sentence fragment. If a word group is a sentence, write it in the correct form, using a capital letter at the beginning and adding the appropriate punctuation mark at the end.

EXAMPLES
1. during her vacation last summer
   1. sentence fragment
2. my friend Michelle visited Colorado
   2. sentence—My friend Michelle visited Colorado.
1. do you know what happened during Michelle’s boat trip
2. down the rapids on the Colorado River
3. at first her boat drifted calmly through the Grand Canyon
4. then the river dropped suddenly
5. and became foaming rapids full of dangerous boulders
6. many of which can break a boat
7. Michelle’s boat was small
8. with one guide and four passengers
9. some passengers prefer large inflatable boats with outboard motors
10. carrying eighteen people

Subject and Predicate

Sentences consist of two basic parts: subjects and predicates.

The Subject

10b. The subject tells whom or what the sentence is about.

EXAMPLES    Nicholasa Mohr is a writer and an artist.
             The girls on the team were all good students.
             He shared his lunch with the boy on the other team.
             Swimming is good exercise.

To find the subject, ask who or what is doing something or whom or what is being talked about. The subject may come at the beginning, middle, or end of a sentence.

EXAMPLES    The pitcher struck Felicia out. [Who struck Felicia out? The pitcher did.]
             After practicing for hours, Timmy bowled two strikes. [Who bowled two strikes? Timmy did.]
             How kind you are! [Who is kind? You are.]
             When will the afternoon train arrive? [What will arrive? The afternoon train will.]
             Hiding in the tall grass was a baby rabbit. [What was hiding? A baby rabbit was.]
Writing Subjects and Punctuating Sentences

Add subjects to fill in the blanks in the following sentences. Use a different subject in each sentence. Begin each sentence with a capital letter, and end it with a punctuation mark.

EXAMPLE

1. ___ is very heavy
   1. This is very heavy.

1. ___ is a difficult game to play
2. ___ works in the post office
3. Luckily for me, ___ was easy to read
4. Tied to the end of the rope was ___
5. Did ___ help you
6. ___ eventually became President of the United States
7. Have ___ always wanted to visit Peru
8. Luis, ___ was the score
9. Before the game, ___ will meet in the gym
10. ___ has always been one of my favorite books
11. What a great basketball player ___ is
12. Has ___ called you yet
13. In the afternoon ___ takes a nap
14. ___ is playing at the theater this weekend
15. When did ___ start making that sound
16. In a minute ___ will feed you, Spot
17. Under the pile of leaves in the front yard was ___
18. ___ is the group’s best-known song
19. In my opinion ___ is a better goalie than Alex
20. Where in the world did ___ get that hat

Simple Subject and Complete Subject

10c. The simple subject is the main word or word group that tells whom or what the sentence is about.

The complete subject consists of all the words that tell whom or what a sentence is about.

EXAMPLES

- The four new students arrived early.

Complete subject

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Complete subject</th>
<th>Simple subject</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>The four new students</td>
<td>students</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Is the winner of the go-cart race present?

Complete subject  the winner of the go-cart race

Simple subject  winner

A round walnut table with five legs stood in the middle of the dining room.

Complete subject  A round walnut table with five legs

Simple subject  table

A simple subject may consist of one word or several words.

EXAMPLES

- Jets often break the sound barrier.  [one word]
- Does Aunt Carmen own a grocery store?  [two words]
- On the library shelf was The Island of the Blue Dolphins.  [six words]

NOTE In this book, the simple subject is usually referred to as the subject.

Exercise 3 Identifying Subjects

Write the subject of each of the following sentences.

EXAMPLE  1. A book by N. Scott Momaday is on the table.

   1.  book

1. Born in 1934 in Oklahoma, Momaday lived on Navajo and Apache reservations in the Southwest.
2. Momaday’s father was a Kiowa.
3. As a young man, Momaday attended the University of New Mexico and Stanford University.
5. The book includes poems, an essay, and stories about the Kiowa people.
7. After Momaday’s book came works by other modern American Indian writers.
8. William Least Heat-Moon traveled in a van across the United States and wrote about his journey.
9. Was he inspired to write by his travels?
10. Readers of this Osage writer enjoy his beautiful descriptions of nature.
Exercise 4  Identifying Complete Subjects and Simple Subjects

Write the complete subject in each of the following sentences. Then, underline the simple subject.

EXAMPLES

1. Stories about time travel make exciting reading.
   1. Stories about time travel

2. Samuel Delany writes great science fiction.
   2. Samuel Delany

1. Ray Bradbury is also a writer of science fiction.
2. The Golden Apples of the Sun is a collection of Bradbury’s short stories.
3. Is your favorite story in that book “A Sound of Thunder”?
4. The main character in the story is called Mr. Eckels.
5. For ten thousand dollars, Mr. Eckels joins Time Safari, Inc.
6. He is looking for the dinosaur Tyrannosaurus rex.
7. With four other men, Bradbury’s hero travels more than sixty million years back in time.
8. On the safari, trouble develops.
9. Because of one mistake, the past is changed.
10. Do the results of that mistake affect the future?

The Predicate

10d. The predicate of a sentence tells something about the subject.

EXAMPLES

- The phone rang.
- Old Faithful is a giant geyser in Yellowstone National Park.
- Jade Snow Wong wrote about growing up in San Francisco’s Chinatown.

Like the subject, the predicate may be found anywhere in a sentence.

EXAMPLES

- Outside the tent was a baby bear.
- Late in the night we heard a noise. [The predicate in this sentence is divided by the subject, we.]
Has the dough risen enough? [The predicate is divided by the subject, the dough.]

Stop right there! [The subject in this sentence is understood to be you.]

Exercise 5 Identifying Predicates

Write the predicate in each of the following sentences.

EXAMPLES

1. My favorite sports poster is this one of Roberto Clemente.
   1. is this one of Roberto Clemente

2. Have you heard of this famous sports hero?
   2. Have heard of this famous sports hero

1. Also among my baseball treasures is a book about Clemente’s life and career.
2. Clemente played right field for the Pittsburgh Pirates, my favorite team.
3. During his amazing career, he won four National League batting titles.
4. In 1966, he was named the league’s Most Valuable Player.
5. Twice Clemente helped lead the Pirates to World Series victories.
6. In fourteen World Series games, Clemente never went without a hit.
7. Roberto Clemente died in a plane crash off the coast of his homeland, Puerto Rico.
8. The plane crash occurred on a flight to Nicaragua to aid earthquake victims.
9. After his death, Clemente was elected to the National Baseball Hall of Fame.
10. In New York, a park has been named for this beloved ballplayer.
Exercise 6 Writing Predicates

Make a sentence out of each of the following word groups by adding a predicate to fill the blank or blanks.

EXAMPLES
1. A flock of geese _____.
   1. A flock of geese flew high overhead.

2. ____ a poster of Nelson Mandela.
   2. Over Kim’s desk hung a poster of Nelson Mandela.

1. My favorite food _____.
2. A course in first aid _____.
3. ____ our car ____?
4. Rock climbing _____.
5. Spanish explorers in the Americas _____.
6. Several computers _____.
7. ____ a new pair of roller skates.
8. The skyscrapers of New York City _____.
9. Some dogs _____.
10. ____ my family _____.
11. Winning the championship _____.
12. ____ all sorts of birds _____.
13. The new store at the mall _____.
14. ____ a small, brown toad.
15. The flowers in Mr. Alvarez’s garden _____.
16. ____ my chores _____.
17. Gerry’s allowance _____.
18. ____ we ____?
19. The cool of the morning _____.
20. The tiny kittens _____.

Simple Predicate and Complete Predicate

10e. The simple predicate, or verb, is the main word or word group that tells something about the subject.

The complete predicate consists of a verb and all the words that describe the verb and complete its meaning.

EXAMPLES The pilot broke the sound barrier.

- Complete predicate broke the sound barrier
- Simple predicate (verb) broke
We should have visited the diamond field in Arkansas.

Complete predicate should have visited the diamond field in Arkansas

Simple predicate (verb) should have visited

The telephone on the table rang.

Complete predicate rang

Simple predicate (verb) rang

NOTE In this book, the simple predicate is usually referred to as the verb.

Exercise 7 Identifying Complete Predicates and Verbs

Write the complete predicate of each of the following sentences. Then, underline the verb.

EXAMPLE 1. Who created the U.S. flag?
   1. created the U.S. flag

1. Many scholars are unsure about the history of the Stars and Stripes.
2. The Continental Congress approved a design for the flag.
3. The flag’s design included thirteen red stripes and thirteen white stripes.
4. The top inner quarter of the flag was a blue field with thirteen white stars.
5. The name of the designer has remained a mystery.
6. During the American Revolution, the colonists needed a symbol of their independence.
8. Unfortunately, the flags did not arrive until the end of the Revolutionary War.
9. According to legend, Betsy Ross made the first flag.
10. However, most historians doubt the Betsy Ross story.

The Verb Phrase

Some simple predicates, or verbs, consist of more than one word. Such verbs are called verb phrases (verbs that include one or more helping verbs).

EXAMPLE Kathy is riding the Ferris wheel.

Reference Note

For information on helping verbs, see page 361.
The carnival has been in town for two weeks. Should Imelda have gotten here sooner?

The words not and never are not verbs; they are adverbs. They are never part of a verb or verb phrase.

She has not written to me recently. I will never forget her.

They don’t know my cousins. [Don’t is the contraction of do and not. The n’t is not part of the verb phrase do know.]

Exercise 8 Identifying Verbs and Verb Phrases

Write the verb or verb phrase in each of the following sentences.

EXAMPLES
1. Look at these beautiful pictures of Hawaii.
   1. Look
   2. They were taken by our science teacher.
   2. were taken

1. Hawaii is called the Aloha State.
2. It was settled by Polynesians about 2,000 years ago.
3. The musical heritage and rich culture of the original Hawaiians have contributed to the islands’ popularity.
4. Have you ever seen a traditional Hawaiian dance, one with drums and chants?
5. The Hawaiian islands are also known for their lush, exotic scenery.
6. I can certainly not imagine anything more spectacular than an active volcano at night.
7. Would you like a helicopter ride over misty waterfalls like those in Hawaii?
8. What an incredible sight that surely is!
9. Those Hawaiian dancers must have been practicing for years.
10. Save me a place on the next flight!
Finding the Subject

To find the subject of a sentence, find the verb first. Then, ask “Who?” or “What?” before the verb.

EXAMPLES

In high school we will have more homework. [The verb is will have. Who will have? We will have. We is the subject of the sentence.]

Can you untie this knot? [Can untie is the verb. Who can untie? You can untie. You is the subject of the sentence.]

The peak of Mount Everest was first reached by Sir Edmund Hillary and Tenzing Norgay. [The verb is was reached. What was reached? Peak was reached. Peak is the subject of the sentence.]

Ahead of the explorers lay a vast wilderness. [The verb is lay. What lay? Wilderness lay. Wilderness is the subject of the sentence.]

Where are the Canary Islands located? [Are located is the verb. What are located? Canary Islands are located. Canary Islands is the subject of the sentence.]

Pass the salad, please. [Pass is the verb. Who should pass? You pass. Understood you is the subject of the sentence.]

Compound Subjects and Compound Verbs

Compound Subjects

10f. A compound subject consists of two or more subjects that are joined by a conjunction and that have the same verb.

The conjunctions most commonly used to connect the words of a compound subject are and and or.

EXAMPLES

Paris and London remain favorite tourist attractions. [The two parts of the compound subject have the same verb, remain.]

Nelson Mandela or Archbishop Desmond Tutu will speak at the conference. [The two parts of the compound subject have the same verb, will speak.]

Among my hobbies are reading, snorkeling, and painting. [The three parts of the compound subject have the same verb, are.]

TIPS & TRICKS

When you are looking for the subject of a sentence, remember that the subject is never part of a prepositional phrase. Cross through any prepositional phrases; the subject will be one of the remaining words.

EXAMPLE

Several of the puzzle pieces are under the sofa.

SUBJECT

Several

VERB

are

Reference Note

For information on prepositional phrases, see page 371.
Exercise 9 Identifying Compound Subjects

Write the compound subject in each of the following sentences.

EXAMPLE

1. The shapes and sizes of sand dunes are determined by the wind.
   1. shapes, sizes

1. The national parks and monuments of the United States include many of the world’s most spectacular landforms.
2. The Grand Canyon and the waterfalls of Yosemite are examples of landforms shaped by erosion.
3. Water, wind, and other natural forces are continuing the age-old erosion of landforms.
4. On the Colorado Plateau, for example, natural bridges and arches, like the one in the photograph on the left, have been produced by erosion.
5. Likewise, Skyline Arch and Landscape Arch in Utah are two natural arches formed by erosion.
6. Underground, caves and immense caverns are created by rushing streams and waterfalls.
7. Stalagmites and stalactites, such as the ones in the photograph on the right, are formed by lime deposits from drops of water seeping into these caverns.

8. In river systems throughout the world, canyons and gorges are cut into the earth by erosion.
9. Many rapids and waterfalls have also originated through the process of erosion.
10. Do steep areas with heavy rainfall or dry regions with few trees suffer more from erosion?
Exercise 10  Writing Compound Subjects

Add a compound subject to each of the following predicates. Use and or or to join the parts of your compound subjects.

EXAMPLE

1. _____ were at the bottom of my locker.
   1. My bus pass and a pair of gym socks were at the bottom of my locker.

1. Yesterday _____ arrived in the mail.
2. _____ make loyal pets.
3. On the beach _____ spotted a dolphin.
4. _____ will present their report on the adventures of Álvar Núñez Cabeza de Vaca.
5. In the attic were piled _____.
6. Ever since first grade, _____ have been friends and neighbors.
7. Is _____ coaching the tennis team this year?
8. For Indian food, _____ always go to the Bombay Cafe in the shopping center nearby.
9. To our great surprise, out of my little brother’s pockets _____ spilled _____.
10. Both _____ may be seen on the African plains.

Compound Verbs

10g. A compound verb consists of two or more verbs that are joined by a conjunction and that have the same subject.

The conjunctions most commonly used to connect the words of a compound verb are and, or, and but.

EXAMPLES

The rain has fallen for days and is still falling.

The team played well but lost the game anyway.

Will Rolando mop the floor or wash the dishes?

A sentence may contain both a compound subject and a compound verb. Notice in the following example that both subjects carry out the action of both verbs.

EXAMPLE

A few vegetables and many flowers sprouted and grew in the rich soil. [The vegetables sprouted and grew, and the flowers sprouted and grew.]

STYLE TIP

Using compound subjects and verbs, you can combine ideas to make your writing less wordy. Compare the examples below.

WORDY

Orville and Wilbur Wright built one of the first airplanes. Orville and Wilbur Wright flew it near Kitty Hawk, North Carolina.

REVISED

Orville and Wilbur Wright built one of the first airplanes and flew it near Kitty Hawk, North Carolina.
Exercise 11 Identifying Compound Verbs

Write each compound verb or verb phrase in the following sentences.

EXAMPLE

1. Have you heard of the game Serpent or learned the game Senet?

   1. have heard, learned

1. Just like children today, children in ancient Egypt played games and enjoyed toys.
2. For the Egyptian board game Serpent, players found or carved a serpent-shaped stone.
3. Players placed the serpent in the center of the board and then began the game.
4. They used place markers and threw bones or sticks as dice.
5. The players took turns and competed with one another in a race to the center.
6. Senet was another ancient Egyptian board game and was played by children and adults alike.
7. Senet looked like an easy game but was actually difficult.
8. Players moved their playing pieces toward the ends of three rows of squares but sometimes were stopped by their opponents.
9. Senet boards were complex and had certain squares for good luck and bad luck.
10. These squares could help players or could block their pieces.

Exercise 12 Identifying Subjects and Verbs

Identify the subject and verb in each of the following sentences.

EXAMPLE

1. American pioneers left their homes and traveled to the West.

   1. pioneers—subject; left, traveled—verbs

1. Settlers faced and overcame many dangers.
2. Mount McKinley and Mount Whitney are two very high mountains.
3. Sacagawea of the Shoshone people helped open the West to explorers and settlers.
4. Every winter many skiers rush to the Grand Tetons.
5. Did all of the mountaineers successfully ascend and descend Mount Everest?
6. Valleys and dense forests cool and refresh travelers in the Appalachian Mountains.
7. On Beartooth Highway in Montana, excellent campgrounds and scenic overlooks provide many views of distant glaciers.
8. Mount Evans is west of Denver and can be reached by the highest paved road in the United States.
9. Is the view from the top slopes of Mount Evans breathtaking?
10. Thick forests cover the Great Smoky Mountains and help form the peaks’ smoky mist.

Review A  Identifying Subjects and Predicates

Write the simple subject and the verb or verb phrase in each of the following sentences.

EXAMPLE
1. Even the ancient Incas and the Aztecs paid and collected taxes.
   1. Incas, Aztecs; paid, collected

1. Among the obligations of citizens in large cities is the prompt payment of taxes.
2. The ancient citizens of Mesoamerica were no exception to this rule.
3. Are some of these taxes also known today as “tribute”?
4. Bowls, blankets, honey, or even warriors’ shields were given and accepted as tribute.
5. High officials and the sick did not, however, pay taxes.
6. In the interest of fairness, taxes must be counted and recorded in some way by accountants.
7. As a record, Incas knotted a string or cord and counted the number of knots.
8. The Codex Mendoza is a formal record of the Aztecs’ taxes.
9. Both the Incas and the Aztecs used the number 20 as the base of their mathematics.
10. Might roads, buildings, or emergency supplies have been paid for with the tribute, or taxes?
Review B  Identifying Subjects and Predicates

Write the following sentences. Underline the complete subjects once and the complete predicates twice. Then, circle each simple subject and each verb.

EXAMPLES

1. The entire continent of Australia is occupied by a single country.
   1. The entire [continent] of Australia [is occupied] by a single country.

2. What do you know about this continent?
   2. What [do you] [know] about this continent?

1. It is located within the Southern Hemisphere.
2. Can you name the capital of Australia?
3. Australia is a federation of six states and two territories.
4. The continent of Australia was claimed for Britain by Captain James Cook.
5. The native people of Australia live mainly in the desert regions and, traditionally, have a very close bond with their environment.
6. A large number of British colonists settled in cities and towns on the coast.
7. Many ranchers raise sheep and export wool.
8. In addition, large quantities of gold and uranium are mined in Australia.
9. The country is also highly industrialized and produces a variety of goods, ranging from shoes to airplanes.
10. Among Australia’s most unusual animals are the platypus and the anteater.

Kinds of Sentences

10h. A declarative sentence makes a statement and ends with a period.

EXAMPLES
   Amy Tan was born in Oakland, California.
   I couldn’t hear what Jason said.

10i. An imperative sentence gives a command or makes a request. Most imperative sentences end with a period. A strong command ends with an exclamation point.
EXAMPLES  Be quiet during the play. [command]

Please give me another piece of melon. [request]

Stop! [strong command]

The subject of a command or a request is always you, even if you doesn’t appear in the sentence. In such cases, you is called the understood subject.

EXAMPLES  (You) Be quiet during the play.

(You) Please give me another piece of melon.

(You) Stop!

The word you is the understood subject even when the person spoken to is addressed by name.

EXAMPLE  Miguel, (you) please answer the phone.

10j. An interrogative sentence asks a question and ends with a question mark.

EXAMPLES  When did you return from your camping trip?

Did the surfboard cost much?

10k. An exclamatory sentence shows excitement or expresses strong feeling and ends with an exclamation point.

EXAMPLES  Gabriella won the match!

How terrifying that movie was!

Exercise 13  Classifying Sentences by Purpose

Label each of the following sentences declarative, imperative, interrogative, or exclamatory.

EXAMPLE  1.  Ask Yoshiko for the address.

1. imperative

1. Will your grandfather compete in the Kansas City Marathon again this year?
2. Our school’s project, cleaning up the Silver River Nature Preserve, was a success.
3. Bring more sandbags over here now!
4. Is the Rig-Veda the oldest of the Hindu scriptures?
5. Read this poem by Naomi Shihab Nye.
6. How huge this library is!
7. Origami is the fascinating Japanese folk art of folding paper into shapes.
8. How did you make that paper crane?
9. Please line up alphabetically.
10. After we eat supper, we’re going to my aunt’s house down the block.

Review C Classifying and Punctuating Sentences

Write the last word of each of the following sentences, adding the correct end mark. Then, label each sentence as declarative, imperative, interrogative, or exclamatory.

EXAMPLE

1. Are prairie dogs social creatures
   1. creatures?—interrogative

1. Many of these small mammals live together in underground “towns” like the one shown below
2. Look at how prairie dogs dig family burrows
3. How large are the burrows
4. The burrows sometimes cover several acres
5. These creatures can usually be seen at night or in the early morning
6. What alert animals prairie dogs are
7. At least one prairie dog always keeps a lookout for threats to the community
8. Look at how it sits up to see better
9. It then dives headfirst into the burrow and alerts the colony
10. How shrill the prairie dog’s whistle of alarm is
A. Identifying Sentences
Identify each of the following groups of words as a sentence or a sentence fragment.

1. Trying a double somersault.
2. She barely caught her partner’s hands!
3. As she began the triple.
4. She fell into the net.
5. The crowd gasped.
6. Even the clowns turned and looked.
7. Was she hurt?
8. Rolled off the net to the ground.
9. Smiling as she waved to the crowd.
10. She was fine!

B. Identifying Subjects
Identify the complete subject of the following sentences. Then, underline the simple subject. The simple subject may be compound.

11. Foods and beverages with large amounts of sugar can contribute to tooth decay.
12. The lava from a volcano hardens when it cools.
13. The earthquake survivors camped on blankets in the rubble.
14. In Beijing, bicyclists weave through the busy streets.
15. By 1899, many gold prospectors had rushed to Alaska.
16. The weather during an Alaskan summer can be hot.
17. Have you read this collection of Claude McKay’s poems?
18. In the center of the table was a huge bowl of fruit.
19. Linked forever in legend are Paul Bunyan and Babe the Blue Ox.
20. Have many famous racehorses been trained in Kentucky?
21. The bright lights and the tall buildings amaze and delight most visitors to New York City.
22. Are Lita and Marisa going to give their presentation?
23. After soccer practice tomorrow afternoon, please come to my house for dinner.
24. Inside the box were letters and postcards written around the turn of the century.
25. The book Come a Stranger was written by the award-winning author Cynthia Voigt.

C. Identifying Predicates
Identify the complete predicate of the following sentences. Then, underline the simple predicate (verb or verb phrase). The simple predicate may be compound.

26. Teenagers need a balanced diet for good health.
27. A balanced diet improves student performance in school.
28. Students are sometimes in a hurry and skip breakfast.
29. For a nutritious breakfast, they can eat cereal and fruit.
30. Cheese and juice also provide good nutrition.
31. The cheese contains calcium, an important mineral.
32. People need protein as well.
33. Protein builds body tissue.
34. Protein can be supplied by eggs, dried beans, red meat, fish, and poultry.
35. Carbohydrates include whole grains, vegetables, and fruits.
36. Junk foods can ruin your appetite.
37. Sweets cause tooth decay and contain many calories.
38. According to nutritionists, sweets are low in nutrients and fill the body with “empty” calories.
39. Good eating habits keep you healthy and help you live longer.
40. Start eating right!

D. Classifying and Punctuating Sentences
Classify each of the following sentences as declarative, interrogative, imperative, or exclamatory. Then, write each sentence with the correct end punctuation.

41. In ancient times, the Julian calendar was used
Writing Application
Writing a Letter

Using Complete Sentences  Yesterday, you went to a birthday party. Write a letter describing the party to a friend or relative who lives far away. Include details about the activities you enjoyed and about the other people who were there. Use complete sentences to make sure your thoughts are clear.

Prewriting  Make a list of the details that you would like to include in your letter. At this stage, you do not have to use complete sentences. Simply jot down your thoughts.

Writing  Use your prewriting list of details as you write your rough draft. Choose details that would be interesting to your friend or relative. You might organize your letter chronologically (describing events in the order in which they occurred).

Revising  Read your letter aloud. As you read, mark any parts of the letter that seem unclear. Add, cut, or rearrange details to make your letter clear and interesting to your reader.

Publishing  Check your work to make sure you have used only complete sentences. Read your letter for any errors in spelling and punctuation. You and your classmates may want to collect the letters in a booklet. Make a copy for each member of the class.

Reference Note
For information on writing a letter, see “Writing” in the Quick Reference Handbook.
Identifying Nouns, Pronouns, and Adjectives

Identify each italicized word in the following paragraphs as a noun, a pronoun, or an adjective.

1. noun
2. adjective

sunset to observe the sun and the moon. [19] He then marked on the stick what he saw. According to one researcher, this calendar is the [20] oldest indication we have that native North American peoples recorded the year day by day.

The Noun

11a. A noun is a word or word group that is used to name a person, a place, a thing, or an idea.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Persons</th>
<th>Jessye Norman, teacher, chef, Dr. Ling</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Places</td>
<td>Grand Canyon, city, Namibia, kitchen</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Things</td>
<td>lamp, granite, Nobel Prize, Golden Gate Bridge</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ideas</td>
<td>happiness, self-control, liberty, bravery</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Notice that some nouns are made up of more than one word. A compound noun is a single noun made up of two or more words used together. The compound noun may be written as one word, as a hyphenated word, or as two or more words.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>One Word</th>
<th>grandmother, basketball</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Hyphenated Word</td>
<td>mother-in-law, light-year</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Two Words</td>
<td>grand piano, jumping jack</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Exercise 1 Identifying Nouns

Identify the nouns in the following sentences.

EXAMPLE

1. We have been reading about patriotic heroines in our textbook.
   1. heroines, textbook

1. Rebecca Motte was a great patriot.
2. During the Revolutionary War, British soldiers seized her mansion in South Carolina.
3. General Harry Lee told Motte that the Americans would have to burn her home to smoke out the enemy.
4. Motte supported the plan and was glad to help her country.
5. She even supplied flaming arrows and a bow for the attack.
6. The house was saved after the enemy raised the white flag of surrender.
7. Other people might not have been so generous or patriotic.
8. Afterward, Motte invited soldiers from both sides to dinner.
9. How their laughter must have filled the air!
10. The colonies and all citizens of the United States are in her debt.

Proper Nouns and Common Nouns

A proper noun names a particular person, place, thing, or idea and begins with a capital letter. A common noun names any one of a group of persons, places, things, or ideas and is generally not capitalized.

Common Nouns
- girl
- writer
- country
- monument
- compact disc
- book
- religion
- language
- city

Proper Nouns
- Kay O’Neill
- Octavio Paz
- Morocco
- Eiffel Tower
- A Long Way Home
- Tiger Eyes
- Buddhism
- Arabic
- Ottawa

Exercise 2  Identifying Common Nouns and Proper Nouns

Write the nouns in each of the following sentences. Then, identify each noun as a common noun or proper noun.

EXAMPLE

1. Mark visited an interesting museum in Colorado last month.

   1. Mark—proper; museum—common; Colorado—proper; month—common
1. Mark and his parents went to the Black American West Museum and Heritage Center in Denver.
2. The museum displays many items that cowboys used.
3. These items are from the collection of Paul Stewart, the man who founded the museum.
4. Mark saw saddles, knives, hats, and lariats.
5. He also saw many pictures of African American cowboys.
6. The museum is located in an old house that is listed in the National Register of Historic Places.
7. The house once belonged to Dr. Justina L. Ford.
8. She was the first black female physician in Colorado.
9. Mark was amazed by all of the old medical instruments in one display.
10. He said he was glad doctors don’t use equipment like that anymore.

Exercise 3 Revising Sentences by Using Proper Nouns

Revise the following sentences by substituting a proper noun for each common noun. You might have to change some other words in each sentence. You may make up proper names.

EXAMPLE

1. An ambassador visited a local school and spoke about his country.

   1. Ambassador Rios visited Jackson High School and spoke about Brazil.

1. That painting is in a famous museum.
2. The police officer cheerfully directed us to the building on that street.
3. My relatives, who are originally from a small town, now live in a large city.
4. The librarian asked my classmate to return the book as soon as possible.
5. That newspaper is published daily; this magazine is published weekly.
6. The girl read a poem for the teacher.
7. That state borders the ocean.
8. The owner of that store visited two countries during a spring month.
9. A man flew to a northern city one day.
10. Last week the mayor visited our school and talked about the history of our city.
Exercise 4  Identifying and Classifying Nouns

Identify the nouns in the following sentences, and label each noun as a common noun or a proper noun.

EXAMPLE
1. Lillian Evanti performed in Europe, Latin America, and Africa.

   1. Lillian Evanti—proper noun; Europe—proper noun; Latin America—proper noun; Africa—proper noun

   [1] Evanti was the first African American woman to sing opera professionally. [2] Her talent was recognized early; when she was a child, she gave a solo concert in Washington, D.C. [3] As an adult, she performed in a special concert at the White House for President Franklin Roosevelt and his wife, Eleanor. [4] Evanti also composed a musical piece titled “Himno Panamericano,” which was a great success. [5] Her career inspired many other African American singers.

   [6] A few years later Marian Anderson stepped into the limelight. [7] Always a champion of the arts, Mrs. Roosevelt again aided a great performer. [8] With the assistance and encouragement of the former First Lady, Anderson sang at a most appropriate site—the Lincoln Memorial. [9] Like Evanti, Anderson broke barriers, for before her, no other African American had sung at the famous Metropolitan Opera House in New York City. [10] Honors Anderson earned include a place in the National Arts Hall of Fame.

Concrete Nouns and Abstract Nouns

A concrete noun names a person, place, or thing that can be perceived by one or more of the senses (sight, hearing, taste, touch, smell). An abstract noun names an idea, a feeling, a quality, or a characteristic.

Concrete Nouns: photograph, music, pears, filmmaker, sandpaper, rose, Brooklyn Bridge

Abstract Nouns: love, fun, freedom, self-esteem, beauty, honor, wisdom, Buddhism
Exercise 5  Writing Sentences with Concrete and Abstract Nouns

Identify each noun in the following list as concrete or abstract. Then, use each noun in an original sentence.

EXAMPLE

1. truth
   1. abstract—People should always tell the truth.

2. soy sauce
3. brotherhood
4. ice
5. excitement
6. health
7. motor
8. pillow
9. honor
10. laughter

Collective Nouns

A collective noun is a word that names a group.

audience batch class committee crew family herd jury litter quartet swarm team

Review A  Using the Different Kinds of Nouns

Complete the following poem, which is based on this painting. Add common, proper, concrete, abstract, or collective nouns as directed. For proper nouns, you’ll need to make up names of people and places. Be sure you capitalize all proper nouns.

Eduardo, [8] (proper), and I really enjoy The [9] (abstract) of hanging on tight Way above the [10] (concrete) and swinging, Held up by the muscleman’s might.
The Pronoun

11b. A pronoun is a word that is used in place of one or more nouns or pronouns.

EXAMPLES
- Ask Dan if Dan has done Dan’s homework.
  - Ask Dan if he has done his homework.
- Both of Lois’s friends said both would help Lois find Lois’s missing books.
  - Both of Lois’s friends said they would help her find her missing books.

The word or word group that a pronoun stands for (or refers to) is called its antecedent.

EXAMPLES
- Frederick, have you turned in your report?
  - Antecedent: you
- Walking the dog is fun, and it is good exercise.

Sometimes the antecedent is not stated.

EXAMPLES
- Who asked that question?
  - I did not understand what you said.
- Someone will have to clean up the mess.

Personal Pronouns

A personal pronoun refers to the one speaking (first person), the one spoken to (second person), or the one spoken about (third person).

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Personal Pronouns</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Singular</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>First Person</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Second Person</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Third Person</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

HELP

Some authorities prefer to call possessive pronouns (such as my, your, and their) possessive adjectives. Follow your teacher’s directions when you are labeling these words.

Reference Note

For information about choosing pronouns that agree with their antecedents, see page 475.
Reflexive and Intensive Pronouns

A reflexive pronoun refers to the subject and is necessary to the meaning of the sentence. An intensive pronoun emphasizes a noun or another pronoun and is unnecessary to the meaning of the sentence.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Reflexive and Intensive Pronouns</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>First Person</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>myself, ourselves</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Second Person</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>yourself, yourselves</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Third Person</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>himself, herself, itself, themselves</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

REFLEXIVE
Tara enjoyed herself at the party.
The team prided themselves on their victory.

INTENSIVE
I myself cooked that delicious dinner.
Did you redecorate the room yourself?

Demonstrative Pronouns

A demonstrative pronoun points out a person, a place, a thing, or an idea.

Demonstrative Pronouns

| this | that | these | those |

EXAMPLES
This is the book I bought for my sister.
Are those the kinds of plants that bloom at night?

NOTE
This, that, these, and those can also be used as adjectives.
When they are used in this way, they are called demonstrative adjectives.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>DEMONSTRATIVE PRONOUN</th>
<th>DEMONSTRATIVE ADJECTIVE</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Those</td>
<td>are very sturdy shoes.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Those</td>
<td>shoes are very sturdy.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>DEMONSTRATIVE PRONOUN</th>
<th>DEMONSTRATIVE ADJECTIVE</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Did you order this?</td>
<td>Did you order this salad?</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

TIPS & TRICKS

If you are not sure whether a pronoun is reflexive or intensive, use this test:
Read the sentence aloud, omitting the pronoun. If the basic meaning of the sentence stays the same, the pronoun is intensive. If the meaning changes, the pronoun is reflexive.

EXAMPLES
The children amused themselves all morning.
[Without themselves, the sentence doesn’t make sense. The pronoun is reflexive.]

Mark repaired the car himself.
[Without himself, the meaning stays the same. The pronoun is intensive.]
Interrogative Pronouns

An interrogative pronoun introduces a question.

EXAMPLES
- What is the best brand of frozen yogurt?
- Who wrote Barrio Boy?

Indefinite Pronouns

An indefinite pronoun refers to a person, a place, a thing, or an idea that may or may not be specifically named.

Common Indefinite Pronouns

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>all</th>
<th>each</th>
<th>many</th>
<th>nobody</th>
<th>other</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>any</td>
<td>either</td>
<td>more</td>
<td>none</td>
<td>several</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>anyone</td>
<td>everything</td>
<td>most</td>
<td>no one</td>
<td>some</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>both</td>
<td>few</td>
<td>much</td>
<td>one</td>
<td>somebody</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

EXAMPLES
- Both of the girls forgot their lines.
- I would like some of that chow mein.

NOTE

Most indefinite pronouns can also be used as adjectives.

PRONOUN
- Some are bored by this movie.

ADJECTIVE
- Some people are bored by this movie.

Relative Pronouns

A relative pronoun introduces a subordinate clause.

Common Relative Pronouns

| that | which | who | whom | whose |

EXAMPLES
- Thomas Jefferson, who wrote the Declaration of Independence, was our country’s third president.
- Exercise is something that many people enjoy.
Exercise 6  Identifying Pronouns

Identify each pronoun in the following sentences. Then, tell what type of pronoun each one is.

EXAMPLES

1. The drama coach said he would postpone the rehearsal.
   1. he—personal

2. Does Pamela, who is traveling to Thailand, have her passport and ticket?
   2. who—relative; her—personal

1. “I want you to study,” Ms. Gaines said to the class.
2. The firefighter carefully adjusted her oxygen mask.
3. The children made lunch themselves.
4. Jenny and Rosa decided they would get popcorn, but Amy didn’t want any.
5. Who will be the next president of the school board?
6. Mr. Yoshira, this is Mrs. Volt, a neighbor of yours.
7. Ralph Bunche, who was awarded the Nobel Peace Prize, was a diplomat for his country at the United Nations.
8. Of all United States Olympic victories, perhaps none were more satisfying than Jesse Owens’s 1936 triumphs in the 200-meter dash and broad jump.
9. Oh, yes, the puppy taught itself how to open the gate.
10. Only one of seventy-five fine boys and girls will win the grand prize.

Exercise 7  Writing Appropriate Pronouns

Rewrite each sentence, replacing the repeated nouns with pronouns.

EXAMPLE

1. The boy forgot the boy’s homework.
   1. The boy forgot his homework.

1. Put the flowers in water before the flowers’ petals droop.
2. The canoe capsized as the canoe neared the shore.
3. The players convinced the players that the players would win the game.
4. Lorraine oiled the bicycle before Lorraine put the bicycle in the garage.
5. Tim said, “Tim answered all six questions on the quiz.”
6. Ben folded the newspapers for Ms. Glinsmann, and then Ben stuffed the newspapers in plastic bags for Ms. Glinsmann.
7. Sarah, Keith, and I arrived early so that Sarah, Keith, and I could get good seats.
8. Her wheelchair was amazingly fast, and her wheelchair was lightweight, too.
9. Grandpa just graduated from college, and Grandpa is now working as a computer programmer.
10. Because Japan fascinates Ron and Ron’s brother, this film will interest Ron and Ron’s brother.

The Adjective

11c. An adjective is a word that is used to modify a noun or a pronoun.

To modify a word means to describe the word or to make its meaning more definite. An adjective modifies a noun or a pronoun by telling what kind, which one, how much, or how many.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>What Kind?</th>
<th>Which One or Ones?</th>
<th>How Much or How Many?</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Korean children</td>
<td>seventh grade</td>
<td>several days</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>busy dentist</td>
<td>these countries</td>
<td>five dollars</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>braided hair</td>
<td>any book</td>
<td>no marbles</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Sometimes an adjective comes after the word it modifies.

EXAMPLES

A woman, kind and helpful, gave us directions. [The adjectives kind and helpful modify woman.]

The box is empty. [The predicate adjective empty modifies box.]
Articles

The most commonly used adjectives are a, an, and the. These adjectives are called articles. A and an are called indefinite articles because they refer to any member of a general group. A is used before a word beginning with a consonant sound. An is used before a word beginning with a vowel sound.

EXAMPLES

- A frog croaked.
- An orange is a good source of vitamin C.
- My cousin Jimmy wears a uniform to school. [Even though u is a vowel, the word uniform begins with a consonant sound.]
- This is an honor. [Even though h is a consonant, the word honor begins with a vowel sound. The h is not pronounced.]

The is called the definite article because it refers to someone or something in particular.

EXAMPLES

- The frog croaked.
- Where is the orange?

Nouns or Adjectives?

Many words that can stand alone as nouns can also be used as adjectives modifying nouns or pronouns.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Nouns</th>
<th>Adjectives</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>bean</td>
<td>bean soup</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>spring</td>
<td>spring weather</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>gold</td>
<td>gold coin</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>football</td>
<td>football game</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Labor Day</td>
<td>Labor Day weekend</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Super Bowl</td>
<td>Super Bowl party</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Milan</td>
<td>Milan fashions</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>White House</td>
<td>White House security</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Persian Gulf</td>
<td>Persian Gulf pearls</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Reference Note

For more about words used as different parts of speech, see pages 351 and 379.
Demonstrative Adjectives

This, that, these, and those can be used both as adjectives and as pronouns. When they modify a noun or pronoun, they are called demonstrative adjectives. When they are used alone, they are called demonstrative pronouns.

DEMONSTRATIVE ADJECTIVES

- This drawing is mine, and that drawing is his.
- These soccer balls are much more expensive than those soccer balls are.

DEMONSTRATIVE PRONOUNS

- This is mine and that is his.
- These are much more expensive than those are.

---

Exercise 8 Identifying Adjectives

Identify the adjectives in the following sentences, and give the noun or pronoun each modifies. Do not include the articles a, an, and the.

EXAMPLE

1. Why don’t you take the local bus home from school on cold days?
   1. local—bus; cold—days

1. On winter afternoons, I sometimes walk home after band practice rather than ride on a crowded, noisy bus.
2. I hardly even notice the heavy traffic that streams past me on the street.
3. The wet sidewalk glistens in the bright lights from the windows of stores.
4. The stoplights throw green, yellow, and red splashes on the pavement.
5. After I turn the corner away from the busy avenue, I am on a quiet street, where a jolly snowman often stands next to one of the neighborhood houses.
6. At last, I reach my peaceful home.
7. There I am often greeted by my older brother, Kenny, and my sister, Natalie.
8. I know they are glad to see me.
9. Delicious smells come from the kitchen where Mom and Dad are cooking dinner.
10. This quiet, private walk always makes me feel a little tired but also happy.
Exercise 9 Writing Appropriate Adjectives

Complete the following story by writing an appropriate adjective to fill each blank.

Examples

1. Many parks have wooded trails for hikers.
   1. Many
   2. wooded

   The hikers went exploring in the forest. Sometimes they had difficulty getting through the undergrowth. On occasions they almost turned back. They kept going and were rewarded for their effort. During the hike through the woods, they discovered kinds of animals. In the afternoon the hikers pitched camp in a clearing. They were for supper and rest.

Proper Adjectives

A proper adjective is formed from a proper noun.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Proper Nouns</th>
<th>Proper Adjectives</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Thanksgiving</td>
<td>Thanksgiving dinner</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Catholicism</td>
<td>Catholic priest</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Middle East</td>
<td>Middle Eastern country</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Africa</td>
<td>African continent</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Notice that a proper adjective, like a proper noun, is capitalized. Common adjectives are generally not capitalized.

Note: Some proper nouns, such as Thanksgiving, do not change spelling when they are used as adjectives.

Exercise 10 Identifying Common and Proper Adjectives

Identify the adjectives in the sentences on the next page. Then, tell whether each is a common or proper adjective. Do not include the articles a, an, and the.

Reference Note

For more about capitalizing proper adjectives, see page 584.
EXAMPLE

1. We have been studying how various animals protect themselves.
   1. various—common

1. Many small animals defend themselves in unusual ways.
2. For example, South American armadillos wear suits of armor that consist of small, bony scales.
3. Armadillos seem delicate, with their narrow faces.
4. However, their tough armor protects them well.
5. Likewise, the Asian anteater has scales that overlap like the shingles on a roof.
6. Unlike anteaters, armadillos are a New World animal.
7. Armadillo is a Spanish word that can be translated as “little armor.”
8. Texas and Florida residents as well as Mexican citizens are familiar with these shy creatures.
9. At early twilight, look for armadillos, energetic and ready for a meal of unlucky spiders or insects.
10. Like tortoises, armadillos can pull in their noses and all four of their feet for better protection.

Exercise 11 Writing Proper Adjectives

Change the following proper nouns into proper adjectives.

EXAMPLE

1. Spain
   1. Spanish

1. Rome
2. Victoria
3. Memorial Day
4. Korea
5. Congress
6. New Year’s Day
7. Inca
8. Shakespeare
9. Judaism
10. Celt

Review B Identifying Nouns, Pronouns, and Adjectives

Identify each italicized word in the following paragraph as a noun, a pronoun, or an adjective.

EXAMPLE

Four [1] forces govern the flight of an aircraft.
   1. noun
Lift and thrust must overcome [1] drag and weight. If an airplane is very [2] heavy, it cannot lift off unless it has great thrust or speed. If the craft is slow, [3] it may not have enough thrust to achieve lift. By 1783, the [4] French Montgolfiers had learned how to beat gravity and achieve lift in their hot-air balloon. However, it had little thrust and didn’t steer well. Nevertheless, [5] Parisians didn’t mind the unpredictability. In fact, everybody [6] who was anybody wanted to hitch a ride on a balloon. With a rudder and propellers, airships (also known as blimps, dirigibles, and Zeppelins) achieved enough thrust to be steered but became unpopular after the [7] Hindenburg met [8] its fiery fate. Not until Orville and [9] Wilbur Wright put an engine on their famous craft and made its wings slightly [10] movable was the quest for thrust and lift achieved. As you know, the rest is history.

Determining Parts of Speech

Remember, the way a word is used in a sentence determines what part of speech it is. Some words may be used as nouns or as adjectives.

NOUN The helmet is made of steel.

ADJECTIVE It is a steel helmet.

Some words may be used as pronouns or as adjectives.

PRONOUN That is a surprise.

ADJECTIVE That problem is difficult.
Identifying Nouns, Pronouns, and Adjectives

Identify the nouns, pronouns, and adjectives in the following sentences. Do not include the articles a, an, and the.

EXAMPLE

1. We walked along the empty beach at sundown.

   1. We—pronoun; empty—adjective; beach—noun; sundown—noun

1. When the tide comes in, it brings a variety of interesting items from the sea.
2. When the tide ebbs, it leaves behind wonderful treasures for watchful beachcombers.
3. Few large creatures live here, but you almost certainly will find several small animals if you try.
4. Some live in shallow burrows under the wet sand and emerge in the cool evening to dine on bits of plants and other matter.
5. A number of different species of beetle like this part of the beach.
6. Around them you can find bristly flies and tiny worms.
7. You might also come across old pieces of wood with round holes and tunnels in them.
8. These holes are produced by shipworms.
9. If you watch the shoreline carefully, you will see many signs of life that casual strollers miss.
10. Low tide is a marvelous time to search along the shore.
A. Identifying Types of Nouns

For each of the following sentences, identify the noun of the type indicated in parentheses. There may be more than one type of noun in the sentence.

1. No one understands why whales sometimes strand themselves. (common)
2. Since 1985, people in a group called Project Jonah have used an inflatable pontoon to rescue stranded whales and other marine mammals. (proper)
3. The people in Project Jonah find fulfillment in helping stranded mammals. (abstract)
4. More than two thousand marine mammals have been helped in recent years. (concrete)
5. The group has rescued mammals ranging in size from dolphins to whales. (collective)

B. Identifying Types of Pronouns

For each of the following sentences, identify the pronoun of the type indicated in parentheses. There may be more than one type of pronoun in the sentence.

6. Which of all the animals do you think has the worst reputation? (interrogative)
7. I believe the skunk is the animal that most people want to avoid. (relative)
8. The skunk can easily protect itself from others. (reflexive)
9. It can spray those nearby with a bad-smelling liquid. (personal)
10. This is a repellant that drives away predators. (demonstrative)
11. What do you think a skunk uses as its warning? (interrogative)
12. It warns possible predators by stamping its feet, which is intended to frighten the predator. (relative)
13. When the skunk needs to “attack” some other animal, it sprays in the direction of the victim. (personal)
14. Anyone who has ever been sprayed by a skunk will never forget the smell. (indefinite)

15. I myself would prefer never to upset a skunk. (intensive)

C. Identifying Adjectives

Identify the adjectives in each of the following sentences. Then, write the word the adjective modifies. Do not include the articles a, an, and the. A sentence may have more than one adjective.

16. Chapultepec is the name of a historic castle on a hill in Mexico City.
17. This word means “hill of the grasshopper” in the language of the early Aztecs.
18. Aztec emperors used the park area for hunting and relaxation.
19. In 1783, the hilltop was chosen as the location for the castle of the Spanish viceroy.
20. Even though the castle was never finished, it was used as a fortress during the colonial period of Mexican history.
21. After several decades of neglect, the unfinished castle became the home of the National Military Academy in 1842.
22. In 1847, during a war with the United States, this castle was captured by enemy troops.
23. The emperor of Mexico, Maximilian, converted the castle into an imperial residence.
24. After the downfall of Maximilian in 1867, it became the summer residence of Mexican presidents.
25. In 1937, the property was converted into a national museum.

D. Identifying Nouns, Pronouns, and Adjectives

The following paragraph contains twenty numbered, italicized words. Identify each italicized word as a noun, a pronoun, or an adjective.

Writing Application

Using Pronouns in a Report

Clear Pronoun Reference Your class is creating a bulletin board display for the school's Special People Day. For the display, write a brief report about someone you think is special. Tell why you think so. Be sure that the pronouns you use refer clearly to their antecedents.

Prewriting First, you will need to select your subject. Make a list of the different people you know. Which of these people do you find really remarkable? After you choose a subject, jot down notes about this person. Tell what this person has done to earn your respect and admiration.

Writing As you write your first draft, refer to your notes. Your thesis statement should briefly state what is special about your subject. In the rest of your paragraphs, give specific examples that illustrate why the person is special.

Revising Now, read through your report and imagine that you do not know the subject. What do you think about him or her? Does the person sound special? If not, you may want to add or cut details or rearrange your report. Read your report aloud. Combine short, related sentences by inserting prepositional phrases or appositive phrases.

Publishing Look closely at your use of pronouns. Be sure that each pronoun has a clear antecedent. You may need to correct some sentences to make the antecedents clear. You and your classmates may want to use your reports to make a classroom bulletin board display. If possible, include pictures or drawings of your subjects. You may also wish to send a copy of your report to the special person.

Reference Note

For more about combining sentences, see page 273.
Identifying Verbs, Adverbs, Prepositions, Conjunctions, and Interjections

Identify each italicized word or word group in the following paragraphs as a verb, an adverb, a preposition, a conjunction, or an interjection.

EXAMPLES

1. adverb
2. verb
3. preposition

I do puzzles strictly for fun. Best of all, I can work on them by myself. That way, no one knows whether I succeed or fail. I occasionally brag about my successes. “Aha!” I exclaim. “That was a tough one, but I filled in every space.”

The Verb

12a. A verb is a word that expresses action or a state of being.

EXAMPLES We celebrated the Chinese New Year yesterday.

The holiday is usually in February.

NOTE In this book, verbs are classified as action or linking verbs, as helping or main verbs, and as transitive or intransitive verbs.

Action Verbs

12b. An action verb is a verb that expresses either physical or mental activity.

EXAMPLES The owls hooted all night. [physical action]

Gloria plays volleyball. [physical action]

She thought about the problem. [mental action]

I believe you. [mental action]

NOTE Action verbs may be transitive or intransitive.

Exercise 1 Classifying Verbs

Tell whether each of the following action verbs expresses physical or mental action.

EXAMPLE 1. visualize

1. mental

1. pounce 5. rest 9. shout
2. consider 6. remember 10. nibble
3. wish 7. dash
4. want 8. anticipate
Exercise 2 Identifying Action Verbs

Identify each action verb in the following sentences.

EXAMPLE

1. I saw that movie last week.
   1. saw

1. For a science project, Elena built a sundial.
2. Mr. Santos carefully explained the word problem to each of the students.
3. I enjoy soccer more than any other sport.
4. This waterfall drops two hundred feet.
5. Mike’s bicycle suddenly skidded and fell hard on the wet pavement.
6. Mrs. Karras showed us the way to Johnson City.
7. Mix the ingredients slowly.
8. The heavy traffic delayed us.
9. For the Jewish holiday of Purim, Rachel and her sister Elizabeth gave a party.
10. The early Aztecs worshiped the sun.

Linking Verbs

12c. A linking verb is a verb that expresses a state of being. A linking verb connects, or links, the subject to a word or word group that identifies or describes the subject.

EXAMPLES

Denzel Washington is an actor. [The verb is connects actor with the subject Denzel Washington.]

The children remained quiet. [The verb remained links quiet with the subject children.]

NOTE Linking verbs never have objects (words that tell who or what receives the action of the verb). Therefore, linking verbs are always intransitive.

Some Forms of the Verb Be

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>am</th>
<th>were</th>
<th>will be</th>
<th>can be</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>is</td>
<td>has been</td>
<td>shall be</td>
<td>should be</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>are</td>
<td>have been</td>
<td>may be</td>
<td>would be</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>was</td>
<td>had been</td>
<td>might be</td>
<td>been</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Other Linking Verbs

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>appear</th>
<th>grow</th>
<th>seem</th>
<th>stay</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>become</td>
<td>look</td>
<td>smell</td>
<td>taste</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>feel</td>
<td>remain</td>
<td>sound</td>
<td>turn</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

NOTE
Be is not always a linking verb. Be can express a state of being without having a complement (a word or word group that identifies or describes the subject). In the following sentences, forms of be are followed by words or word groups that tell where.

EXAMPLES
We will be there.

The apples are in the bowl.

Some words may be either action verbs or linking verbs, depending on how they are used.

ACTION
Amy looked through the telescope.

LINKING
Amy looked pale. [The verb looked links pale with the subject Amy.]

ACTION
Stay in your seats until the bell rings.

LINKING
Stay calm. [The verb stay links calm with the understood subject you.]

---

Exercise 3
Identifying Linking Verbs

Identify the linking verb in each of the following sentences.

EXAMPLE
1. A radio station can be the voice of a community.

   1. can be

1. This is Roberto Martínez, your weather forecaster.
2. Unfortunately, the forecast looks bad today.
3. Outside the window here at Station WOLF, the skies appear cloudy.
4. It certainly felt rainy earlier this morning.
5. According to the latest information, it should be a damp, drizzly day with an 85 percent chance of rainfall.
6. Our sportscaster this morning is Marta Segal.
7. Things have been quiet here around Arlington for the past few days.
8. Stay alert for sports action tonight.
9. It should be an exciting game between our own Arlington Angels and the visiting Jackson City Dodgers.
10. The team looked great at practice today, and I predict a hometown victory.

Review A  Identifying Action Verbs and Linking Verbs

Identify the verbs in the following sentences. Then, label each verb as either an action verb or a linking verb.

EXAMPLE
1. I always enjoy field trips.
   1. enjoy—action verb

1. Last spring, our earth science class visited the Hayden Planetarium.
2. It is a wonderful place, full of amazing sights.
3. We wandered slowly through the various displays and saw a collection of fascinating exhibits.
4. One space vehicle seemed like something from a science fiction movie.
5. Another amazing and interesting display showed a thirty-four-ton meteorite.
6. When this meteorite fell to earth many years ago, it made a huge crater.
7. After a delicious lunch, we stayed for the show in the observatory.
8. As the room became darker, the picture of a galaxy appeared on the ceiling of the dome above us.
9. The lecturer said that the galaxy is so far away from here that its light reaches us centuries after its first appearance.
10. When we look at such stars, we actually see the ancient past!
Exercise 4  Identifying Action Verbs and Linking Verbs

Identify the verb in each of the following sentences. Then, label each verb as either an action verb or a linking verb. If the verb is a linking verb, give the words that it connects.

EXAMPLES

1. We sent our dog to obedience school.
   1. sent—action verb

2. Some breeds are extremely nervous.
   2. are—linking verb; breeds, nervous

1. Everyone felt sorry about the misunderstanding.
2. In daylight, we looked for the lost ring.
3. The temperature plunged to ten degrees below zero.
4. The local museum exhibited beautiful Inuit sculptures.
5. Loretta felt her way carefully through the dark, quiet room.
6. The city almost always smells musty after a heavy summer thunderstorm.
7. Dakar is the capital of Senegal.
8. The firefighter cautiously smelled the burned rags.
9. Antonia Novello was the first female surgeon general of the United States.
10. They looked handsome in their party clothes.

Helping Verbs and Main Verbs

12d. A helping verb (auxiliary verb) helps the main verb express action or a state of being.

EXAMPLES

- can speak
- has been named
- were sent
- should have been caught

A verb phrase contains one main verb and one or more helping verbs.

EXAMPLES

- Many people in Africa can speak more than one language.
- The packages were sent to 401 Maple Street.
- Kansas has been named the Sunflower State.
- The ball should have been caught by the nearest player.
Some verbs can be used as either helping verbs or main verbs.

HELPING VERB  Do you like green beans?
MAIN VERB     Did you do this math problem?

HELPING VERB  She is arriving at noon.
MAIN VERB     Her luggage is over there.

HELPING VERB  Have they arrived yet?
MAIN VERB     They have a dog.

HELPING VERB  Where has he gone?
MAIN VERB     He has his homework in his backpack.

Sometimes a verb phrase is interrupted by another part of speech. Often the interrupter is an adverb. In a question, however, the subject often interrupts the verb phrase.

EXAMPLES  Our school has always held a victory celebration when our team wins.

Did you hear Jimmy Smits’s speech?
Should Anita bring her model airplane to class?
Ken does not [or doesn’t] have a new desk.

Notice in the last example that the adverb not [or its contraction –n’t] is not included in the verb phrase.
Exercise 5  Identifying Verb Phrases and Helping Verbs

Identify the verb phrases in the following sentences. Underline the helping verbs.

EXAMPLE

1. You can recognize redwoods and sequoias by their bark.

   1. can recognize

1. Have you ever visited Redwood National Park?
2. The giant trees there can be an awesome sight.
3. For centuries, these trees have been an important part of the environment of the northwest United States.
4. Surely, these rare trees must be saved for future generations.
5. More than 85 percent of the original redwood forest has been destroyed over the years.
6. Because of this destruction, the survival of the redwood forest is being threatened.
7. With proper planning years ago, more of the forest might already have been saved.
8. Unfortunately, redwood forests are still shrinking rapidly.
9. According to some scientists, redwood forests outside the park will disappear within our lifetime.
10. However, according to other experts, the redwood forests can still be saved!

Review B  Identifying Action Verbs and Linking Verbs

Identify the verbs in the following sentences. Then, label each verb as an action verb or a linking verb.

EXAMPLE

1. Have you ever seen a play in Spanish?

   1. Have seen—action verb

1. The Puerto Rican Traveling Theatre performs plays about Hispanic life in the United States.
2. Over the past twenty years, this group has grown into a famous Hispanic theater group.
3. Sometimes, a production has two casts—one that speaks in English and one that speaks in Spanish.
4. In this way, speakers of both languages can enjoy the play.
5. In recent years many young Hispanic playwrights, directors, and actors have begun their careers at the Traveling Theatre.
6. Some became well-known at the Puerto Rican Traveling Theatre and then moved on to Broadway or Hollywood.
7. Others remain happy at the Traveling Theatre, where they enjoy the warm, supportive atmosphere.
8. Each production by the Traveling Theatre has its own style.
9. Some shows are musicals, full of song and dance, while other plays seem more serious.
10. Light or serious, Puerto Rican Traveling Theatre productions present a lively picture of Hispanic life today.

Transitive and Intransitive Verbs

12e. A transitive verb is a verb that expresses an action directed toward a person, a place, a thing, or an idea. With transitive verbs, the action passes from the doer—the subject—to the receiver of the action. Words that receive the action of a transitive verb are called objects.

EXAMPLES

Derrick greeted the visitors. [The action of the verb greeted is directed toward the object visitors.]

When will Felicia paint her room? [The action of the verb will paint is directed toward the object room.]

12f. An intransitive verb expresses action (or tells something about the subject) without the action passing to a receiver, or object.

EXAMPLES

The train stopped.

Last night we ate on the patio.

A verb may be transitive in one sentence and intransitive in another.

EXAMPLES

The children play checkers. [transitive]

The children play quietly. [intransitive]

Mr. Lopez is baking bread. [transitive]

Mr. Lopez is baking this afternoon. [intransitive]

Have Roland and Tracy left their coats? [transitive]

Have Roland and Tracy left yet? [intransitive]
Exercise 6  Identifying Transitive and Intransitive Verbs

Identify the italicized verb in each of the following sentences as either transitive or intransitive.

EXAMPLE 1. She runs early in the morning.
   1. intransitive

1. If you do different kinds of exercises, you are exercising in the correct way.
2. When you exercise to improve endurance, flexibility, and strength, your body develops.
3. Aerobic exercise builds endurance and strengthens the heart and lungs.
4. When you walk quickly, you exercise aerobically.
5. Many active people in the United States attend classes in aerobics.
6. They enjoy the fun of exercising to popular music.
7. Exercises that improve flexibility require you to bend and stretch.
8. Perform these exercises slowly to gain the maximum benefit from them.
9. Through isometric and isotonic exercises, your muscle strength increases.
10. These exercises contract your muscles.

Exercise 7  Writing Sentences with Transitive and Intransitive Verbs

For each verb given below, write two sentences. In one sentence, use the verb as a transitive verb and underline its object. In the other, use the verb as an intransitive verb. You may use different tenses of the verb.

EXAMPLE 1. write
   1. Alex is writing a research report. (transitive)
      Alex writes in his journal every day. (intransitive)

1. fly  5. drive  9. climb  13. turn  17. skip
2. leave  6. jump  10. watch  14. pay  18. read
3. return  7. hear  11. visit  15. row  19. help
The Adverb

12g. An adverb is a word that modifies a verb, an adjective, or another adverb.

Just as an adjective makes the meaning of a noun or a pronoun more definite, an adverb makes the meaning of a verb, an adjective, or another adverb more definite.

Adverbs answer the following questions:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Where?</th>
<th>How often? or How long?</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>When?</td>
<td>To what extent?</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>How?</td>
<td>or How much?</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

EXAMPLES

The sprinter ran swiftly. [The adverb swiftly modifies the verb ran and tells how.]

I read the funny pages early on Sunday morning. [The adverb early modifies the verb read and tells when.]

Jolene was comforting a very small child. [The adverb very modifies the adjective small and tells to what extent.]

The fire blazed too wildly for anyone to enter. [The adverb too modifies the adverb wildly and tells to what extent. The adverb wildly modifies the verb blazed and tells how.]

Dad will sometimes quote from Archbishop Desmond Tutu’s speech. [The adverb sometimes modifies the verb will quote and tells how often.]

Put the apples there, and we will eat them later. [The adverb there modifies the verb put and tells where. The adverb later modifies the verb will eat and tells when.]
The word not is nearly always used as an adverb modifying a verb. When not is part of a contraction, as in hadn’t, aren’t, and didn’t, the –n’t is still an adverb and is not part of the verb.

Adverb or Adjective?

Many adverbs end in –ly. These adverbs are generally formed by adding –ly to adjectives.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Adjective</th>
<th>–ly</th>
<th>Adverb</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>clear</td>
<td>–ly</td>
<td>clearly</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>quiet</td>
<td>–ly</td>
<td>quietly</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>convincing</td>
<td>–ly</td>
<td>convincingly</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

However, some words ending in –ly are used as adjectives.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Adjectives Ending in –ly</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>daily</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>friendly</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>lonely</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>early</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>kindly</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>timely</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

NOTE The adverb very is often overused. In your writing, try to use adverbs other than very to modify adjectives. You can also revise sentences so that other words carry more of the descriptive meaning.

EXAMPLE
Chloe is very tall.
REvised
Chloe is amazingly tall.

or
Chloe is 5’11” tall and is a guard on the varsity basketball team.
Exercise 8 Identifying Adverbs

Identify each adverb and the word or words it modifies in each of the following sentences.

EXAMPLE

1. Today, many Cherokee people make their homes in Oklahoma.
   1. Today—make

1. Oklahoma is not the Cherokees’ original home.
2. The Cherokees once lived in Georgia, North Carolina, Alabama, and Tennessee.
3. A number of Cherokees still live in the Great Smoky Mountains of North Carolina.
4. Settlers often ignored the Cherokees’ right to the land.
5. Feeling threatened by the settlers, the Cherokees readily supported the British during the Revolutionary War.
6. In 1829, people hurried excitedly to northern Georgia for the first gold rush in the United States.
7. Many white settlers of the region were extremely eager to find gold.
8. Later, the Cherokees were forced by the United States government to leave their land.
9. The Cherokee people were hardly given a chance to collect their belongings.
10. Many Cherokees will never forget the Trail of Tears, which led their ancestors to Oklahoma.

The Position of Adverbs

One of the characteristics of adverbs is that they may appear at various places in a sentence. Adverbs may come before, after, or between the words they modify.

EXAMPLES

We often study together.

We study together often.

Often we study together.

When an adverb modifies a verb phrase, it frequently comes in the middle of the phrase.

EXAMPLE

We have often studied together.
An adverb that introduces a question, however, appears at the beginning of a sentence.

EXAMPLES
When does your school start? [The adverb When modifies the verb phrase does start.]

How did you spend your vacation? [The adverb How modifies the verb phrase did spend.]

---

Exercise 9  Identifying Adverbs

Identify the adverbs and the words they modify in the following sentences.

EXAMPLE
1. “To Build a Fire” is a dramatically suspenseful short story.

   1. dramatically—suspenseful

---

1. In this story, a nameless character goes outdoors on a terribly cold day in the Yukon.
2. Except for a dog, he is traveling completely alone.
3. Soon both the dog’s muzzle and the man’s beard are frosted with ice.
4. Along the way, the man accidentally falls into a stream.
5. Soaked and chilled, he desperately builds a fire under a tree.
6. The flames slowly grow stronger.
7. Unfortunately, he has built his fire in the wrong place.
8. A pile of snow suddenly falls from a tree limb and kills the small fire.
9. Unable to relight the fire, the man again finds himself in serious trouble.
10. Based on what you now know about the story, what kind of ending would you write for “To Build a Fire”?

---

Exercise 10  Writing Adverbs

Write ten different adverbs to fill the blanks in the following sentences.

EXAMPLE
I have [1] _____ been a music lover.

1. always

   Every Friday I [1] _____ go to the record store. I can [2] _____ wait to see what new cassettes and CDs have arrived. As soon as

The Preposition

12h. A preposition is a word that shows the relationship of a noun or pronoun to another word.

Notice how changing the preposition in these sentences changes the relationship of walked to door and kite to tree.

- The cat walked through the door.
- The cat walked toward the door.
- The cat walked past the door.
- The kite in the tree is mine.
- The kite beside the tree is mine.
- The kite in front of the tree is mine. [Notice that a preposition may be made up of more than one word. Such a preposition is called a compound preposition.]

Commonly Used Prepositions

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>aboard</th>
<th>before</th>
<th>for</th>
<th>off</th>
<th>toward</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>about</td>
<td>behind</td>
<td>from</td>
<td>on</td>
<td>under</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>above</td>
<td>below</td>
<td>in</td>
<td>out</td>
<td>underneath</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>across</td>
<td>beneath</td>
<td>in front of</td>
<td>out of</td>
<td>unlike</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>after</td>
<td>beside</td>
<td>inside</td>
<td>over</td>
<td>until</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>against</td>
<td>between</td>
<td>instead</td>
<td>past</td>
<td>up</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>along</td>
<td>beyond</td>
<td>into</td>
<td>since</td>
<td>up to</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>among</td>
<td>by</td>
<td>like</td>
<td>through</td>
<td>upon</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>around</td>
<td>down</td>
<td>near</td>
<td>throughout</td>
<td>with</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>as</td>
<td>during</td>
<td>next to</td>
<td>till</td>
<td>within</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>at</td>
<td>except</td>
<td>of</td>
<td>to</td>
<td>without</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Exercise 11 Writing Prepositions

Write two prepositions for each blank in the following sentences. Be prepared to tell how the meanings of the two resulting sentences differ.

EXAMPLE 1. The car raced ____ the highway.
   1. along, across

1. We practiced karate ____ dinner.
2. She jumped up and ran ____ the park.
3. A boat with red sails sailed ____ the river.
4. The hungry dog crawled ____ the fence.
5. The marathon runner jogged easily ____ the track at the stadium.
6. Put the speakers ____ the stage, Cody.
7. Brightly colored confetti streamed ____ the piñata when it burst open.
8. Why does Roseanne always sit ____ the door?
9. Excuse me, but the blue fountain pen ____ your chair is mine, I believe.
10. Parrots ____ the South American jungle squawked all through the hot afternoon.

The Prepositional Phrase

A prepositional phrase includes a preposition, a noun or pronoun called the object of the preposition, and any modifiers of that object.

EXAMPLES

You can press those leaves under glass. [The noun glass is the object of the preposition under.]

Fred stood in front of us. [The pronoun us is the object of the compound preposition in front of.]

The books in my new pack are heavy. [The noun pack is the object of the preposition in. The words my and new modify pack.]

A preposition may have more than one object.

EXAMPLES Thelma’s telegram to Nina and Ralph contained good news. [The preposition to relates its objects, Nina and Ralph, to telegram.]
The objects of prepositions may have modifiers.

EXAMPLE It happened during the last examination. [The and last are adjectives modifying examination, which is the object of the preposition during.]

NOTE Be careful not to confuse a prepositional phrase beginning with to (to the park, to him) with an infinitive beginning with to (to sing, to be heard).

Exercise 12 Identifying Prepositional Phrases

Identify the prepositional phrases in the following sentences. Underline the preposition once and its object twice.

EXAMPLES

1. Commander Robert Peary claimed that he reached the North Pole in 1909.
   1. in 1909

2. Peary and Matthew Henson searched for the North Pole for many years.
   2. for the North Pole, for many years

3. Henson traveled with Peary on every expedition except the first one.

4. However, for a long time, Henson received no credit at all for his role.

5. Peary had hired Henson as an assistant on a trip Peary made to Nicaragua.

6. There, Peary discovered that Henson had sailing experience and could also chart a path through the jungle.

7. As a result, Peary asked Henson to join his Arctic expedition shown in the photograph on this page.

8. The two explorers became friends during their travels in the North.

9. On the last three miles to the North Pole, Henson did not go with Peary.

10. Because he was the leader of the trip, Peary received the credit for the achievement.

11. Finally, after many years, Henson was honored by Congress, Maryland’s state government, and two U.S. presidents.

12. Both Peary and Henson wrote books about their experiences.
Preposition or Adverb?

Some words may be used either as prepositions or as adverbs. Remember that a preposition always has an object. An adverb never does. If you can’t tell whether a word is used as an adverb or a preposition, look for an object.

ADVERB I haven’t seen him since.

PREPOSITION I haven’t seen him since Thursday. [Thursday is the object of the preposition since.]

ADVERBS The bear walked around and then went inside.

PREPOSITIONS The bear walked around the yard and then went inside the cabin. [Yard is the object of the preposition around. Cabin is the object of inside.]

Exercise 13 Identifying Adverbs and Prepositions

Identify the italicized word in each of the following sentences as either an adverb or a preposition.

EXAMPLE

1. He watches uneasily as the hunter slowly brings the pistol up.

   1. up—adverb

2. “The Most Dangerous Game” is the story of Rainsford, a famous hunter who falls off a boat and comes ashore on a strange island.

3. Rainsford knows that this island is feared by every sailor who passes by.

4. In fact, among sailors, the place is known as Ship-Trap Island.

5. After looking around for several hours, Rainsford can’t understand why the island is considered so dangerous.

6. Finally, he discovers a big house on a high bluff.

7. A man with a pistol in his hand answers the door.

8. Putting his pistol down, the man introduces Rainsford to the famous hunter General Zaroff.

10. Soon, however, Rainsford wishes he could get out and never see Zaroff again.

11. Rainsford has finally discovered the secret about the island—Zaroff likes to hunt human beings!
The Conjunction

12i. A conjunction is a word that joins words or word groups.

(1) Coordinating conjunctions join words or word groups that are used in the same way.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Coordinating Conjunctions</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>and but for nor or so yet</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

EXAMPLES
- Jill or Anna [Or joins two nouns.]
- strict but fair [But joins two adjectives.]
- over the river and through the woods [And joins two prepositional phrases.]
- Alice Walker wrote the book, yet she did not write the movie script. [Yet joins two independent clauses.]

The word for may be used either as a conjunction or as a preposition. When for joins word groups that are independent clauses, it is used as a conjunction. Otherwise, it is used as a preposition.

CONJUNCTION
- He waited patiently, for he knew his ride would be along soon.

PREPOSITION
- He waited patiently for his ride.

NOTE
Coordinating conjunctions that join independent clauses are almost always preceded by a comma. When for is used as a conjunction, there should always be a comma in front of it.

EXAMPLES
- She has read the book, but she has not seen the movie.
- We can bathe the dog, or you can do it when you get home from school.
- Did Nazir call her, and has she called him back?
- We asked Jim to be on time, yet he isn’t here.
- I’ll be home late, for I have basketball practice until 4:30 or 5:00 today.
Correlative conjunctions are pairs of conjunctions that join words or word groups that are used in the same way.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Correlative Conjunctions</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>both . . . . . and</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>not only . . . . but also</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>either . . . . . or</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>whether . . . . . or</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>neither . . . . nor</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

EXAMPLES

- Both Bill Russell and Larry Bird played for the team. [The pair of conjunctions joins two nouns.]
- She looked neither to the left nor to the right. [The pair of conjunctions joins two prepositional phrases.]
- Not only did Wilma Rudolph overcome her illness, but she also became an Olympic athlete. [The pair of conjunctions joins two independent clauses.]

NOTE

A third kind of conjunction—the subordinating conjunction—introduces an adverb clause.

EXAMPLES

- Meet me in the park after the bell chimes.
- Before I washed the dishes, I let them soak in the sudsy water.

Exercise 14 Identifying Conjunctions

Identify the conjunction or conjunctions in each of the following sentences. Be prepared to tell what words or word groups each conjunction or pair of conjunctions joins.

EXAMPLE

1. Both she and her mother enjoy sailing.

1. Both . . . and

1. I wanted to see Los Lobos in concert, but I didn’t have the money.
2. Our class is recycling not only newspapers but also glass bottles and aluminum cans.
3. He set the table with chopsticks and rice bowls.
4. Have you seen either LeAnn Rimes or Janet Jackson in person?
5. We learned to use neither too many adjectives nor too few.
6. That diet is dangerous, for it does not adequately meet the body’s needs.
7. Both the Mohawk and the Oneida are part of the famous Iroquois Confederacy.
8. It rained all day, yet we enjoyed the trip.
9. Shall we walk home or take the bus?
10. Revise your paper, and proofread it carefully.

Exercise 15  Writing Conjunctions

Provide an appropriate conjunction for each blank in the following sentences.

EXAMPLES

1. solve the problem yourself, ask your teacher for help.
   1.  Either . . . or

   2. Would she prefer juice iced tea?
   2.  or

1. We will visit the Johnson Space Center Astroworld in Houston, Texas.
2. Alaska Hawaii were the last two states admitted to the Union.
3. Those two students are twin sisters, they do not dress alike.
4. They were hungry thirsty.
5. turn that radio down, take it into your room while I’m studying.
6. These nails aren’t long enough, I’m going to buy some others.
7. You could put the chair in the living room, in your bedroom, even in the dining room.
8. Their weather forecaster isn’t sure it will rain not.
9. In the delicate ecosystem of the river, motorboats personal watercraft are allowed.
10. His bike is old, it takes him anywhere he needs to go.
Exercise 16  Writing Sentences with Conjunctions

Follow the directions given below to write sentences using conjunctions.

EXAMPLE 1. Use and to join two verbs.
   1. Jessye Norman smiled at the audience and bowed.

1. Use and to join two adverbs.
2. Use or to join two prepositional phrases.
3. Use for to join word groups that are sentences.
4. Use but to join two linking verbs.
5. Use either . . . or in an imperative sentence.
6. Use or to join two nouns.
7. Use both . . . and to join two subjects.
8. Use neither . . . nor to join two adverbs.
9. Use yet to join two adjectives.
10. Use whether . . . or in an interrogative sentence.

The Interjection

12j. An interjection is a word that expresses emotion.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Commonly Used Interjections</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>aha</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>hey</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>hurray</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

An interjection has no grammatical relationship to the rest of the sentence.

Usually an interjection is followed by an exclamation point.

EXAMPLES  Ouch! That hurts!

Goodness! What a haircut!

Aha! I know the answer.

Sometimes an interjection is set off by a comma.

EXAMPLES  Oh, I wish it were Friday.

Well, what have you been doing?
Exercise 17 Writing Interjections

Choose an appropriate interjection for each blank in the following sentences. Use a variety of interjections.

EXAMPLE
1. _____, I’d love to go to your party.
   1. Hey, I’d love to go to your party.

1. _____! The heel just fell off my shoe.
2. There’s, _____, about seven dollars in the piggy bank.
3. _____, finally we’re finished raking those leaves.
4. _____! You squirrels, stop eating the birds’ food!
5. Young Eric, _____, you certainly have grown!
6. _____! I sprained my ankle during the obstacle course!
7. Weren’t the special effects in the movie amazing? _____!
8. _____, there’s only one round left in the tournament.
9. _____! I knew you were planning a surprise!
10. _____, what a relief it is to have that term paper finished.

Review C Identifying Parts of Speech

Label each italicized word or word group in the following sentences as a verb, an adverb, a preposition, a conjunction, or an interjection.

EXAMPLE
1. Both otters and owls hunt from dusk to dawn.
   1. Both . . . and—conjunction; from—preposition

1. Oh! I just spilled tomato soup on the new white tablecloth!
2. Luis Alvarez closely studied atomic particles for many years.
3. Did Toni Morrison or Toni Cade Bambara write the book that you are reading?
4. The Inuit hunters ate their meal inside the igloo.
5. They were tired, yet they did not quit working.
6. I like Persian carpets, for they are beautiful and wear well.
7. The plane from Venezuela nears the terminal and taxis down the runway.
8. Either geraniums or daisies would grow well in that sunny corner of the garden.
9. Put your pencils down, class, during the instructions for this test.
10. Computers and, oh, all that electronic stuff seem so easy for you, Brittany.
Determining Parts of Speech

12k. The way a word is used in a sentence determines what part of speech it is.

The same word may be used as different parts of speech.

- NOUN The play had a happy ending.
- VERB The actors play their roles.
- NOUN The outside of the house needs paint.
- ADVERB Let’s go outside for a while.
- PREPOSITION I saw the birds’ nest outside my window.
- NOUN The well has run dry.
- ADVERB Did you do well on the quiz?
- ADJECTIVE I don’t feel well today.
- INTERJECTION Well, that’s a relief.

Review D Identifying Verbs, Adverbs, Prepositions, Conjunctions, and Interjections

For each of the following sentences, identify the italicized, numbered word or word group as a verb, an adverb, a preposition, a conjunction, or an interjection.

EXAMPLE
[1] Hey, I recognize that place!

1. interjection

Though you might recognize the scene at right from the movies, it is not a fake movie set. Khasneh al Faroun, or the “Pharaoh’s Treasury,” is the name of this magnificent structure, and it is quite real. Located south of Jerusalem and west of the Jordan River, the Pharaoh’s Treasury is one of many sites in the ancient city of Petra. The word Petra means “rock,” and the city is carved out of solid sandstone. Petra served as a busy center of trade, and thousands of people strolled its streets or sat in its outdoor theater. The theater seats about four thousand people and is so old that the Romans had to repair it in A.D. 106. After a short occupation by Crusaders, the city was forbidden to Europeans for about seven hundred years.
[8] Well, you’re probably wondering about the “treasury” part of the name. For many years, the large urn atop the dome over the statue [9] was believed to be full of gold. However, as Bedouin treasure hunters [10] discovered long ago, the urn is just rock.

Review E  Writing Sentences

Write ten sentences, following the directions given below. Underline the given word in each sentence, and identify how it is used.

EXAMPLE

1. Use yet as an adverb and as a conjunction.

   1. Are we there yet?—adverb
   2. The sky grew somewhat brighter, yet the rain continued falling.—conjunction

1. Use walk as a verb and as a noun.
2. Use like as a preposition and as a verb.
3. Use well as a noun and as an adjective.
4. Use inside as an adverb and as a preposition.
5. Use fast as an adjective and as an adverb.
A. Identifying Types of Verbs

Identify each italicized verb in the following sentences as a linking verb, a transitive action verb, or an intransitive action verb.

1. A land survey is a method of measuring land.
2. When he was cutting lumber, my father used a table saw.
3. Each concert in the series was an hour long.
4. The water became ice when the temperature dropped.
5. Hang the banner from the ceiling.
6. The astronomer calculated the distance to the galaxy.
7. Mr. Lurie and Ms. Modeski walked hand in hand.
8. The cook multiplied the ingredients of the stew by three.
9. Substitute teachers work hard!
10. Are they weary at the end of the day?

B. Identifying Verb Phrases

Identify the verb phrase in each of the following sentences, and underline the helping verb.

11. Have you ever heard of a mongoose?
12. Do these small carnivores inhabit parts of Africa and Asia?
13. In captivity they have lived for more than twenty years.
14. They will attack even the largest snakes.
15. The mongoose was made famous by a Rudyard Kipling story.

C. Identifying Adverbs

Identify the adverb in each of the following sentences. Then, write the word it modifies.

16. The lonely boy looked longingly across the street.
17. “I’m going there after I’ve graduated,” Rochelle said decisively, as she pointed to a map of Malaysia.
18. It is always easier for a child than for an adult to learn a second language.
19. I unfailingly read the newspaper at breakfast.
20. Did Joni remember the details of the accident later?

D. Identifying Prepositions and Prepositional Phrases
Identify the prepositional phrases in each of the following sentences. Underline the preposition once and its object twice. A sentence may have more than one prepositional phrase.

21. Will I find the broom beside the refrigerator?
22. My cat Sam likes to sit upon the television.
23. Mr. Takei used tofu in the recipe instead of chicken.
24. My mom gets upset when people talk throughout the film.
25. During the storm the windowpane streamed with rain.

E. Identifying Conjunctions
Identify the conjunctions in each of the following sentences.

26. Are you coming to the party, or are you staying home?
27. Not only did he produce the film, but he also wrote it.
28. I didn’t finish the Odyssey, but I enjoyed what I did read.
29. We will have beans and rice for dinner.
30. Both Taj Mahal and B.B. King performed at the blues festival.

F. Identifying Verbs, Adverbs, Prepositions, Conjunctions, and Interjections
The following paragraphs contain twenty numbered, italicized words and word groups. Identify each of these italicized words as a verb, an adverb, a preposition, a conjunction, or an interjection.

Have you ever [31] hiked into the wilderness [32] with a pack on your back? Have you ever [33] camped under the stars? Backpacking [34] was once popular only with mountaineers, [35] but now almost anyone who loves the outdoors [36] can become a backpacker.

First, however, you [37] must be able to carry a heavy pack long distances [38] over mountain trails. To get in shape, start with short walks and [39] gradually increase them to several miles. Exercising [40] and going on practice hikes can [41] further build your strength. [42] After a few short hikes, you [43] should be ready for a longer one.

[44] Oh, you [45] may be thinking, what equipment and food should I take? Write [46] to the International Backpackers Association [47] for a checklist. The first item on the list will [48] usually be shoes with rubber [49] or synthetic soles. The second item on the list will [50] certainly be a sturdy backpack.

Writing Application
Using Prepositions in Directions

Prepositional Phrases  Your class has decided to provide a “how-to” manual for seventh-graders. The manual will have chapters on crafts and hobbies, personal skills, school skills, and other topics. Write an entry for the manual, telling someone how to do a particular activity. In your entry, be sure to use prepositional phrases to make your directions clear and complete. Underline the prepositional phrases that you use.

Prewriting  First, picture yourself doing the activity you are describing. As you imagine doing the activity, jot down each step. Then, put each step in the order it is done.

Writing  Refer to your prewriting notes as you write your first draft. You may find it necessary to add or rearrange steps to make your directions clear and complete.

Revising  Ask a friend or a classmate to read your paragraph. Then, have your reader repeat the directions in his or her own words. If any part of the directions is unclear, revise your work. Make sure you have used prepositional phrases correctly.

Publishing  Read your entry again to check your spelling, grammar, and punctuation. You may want to share your how-to hints with other students.
Identifying Complements

Identify the complement or complements in each of the following sentences. Then, label each complement as a direct object, an indirect object, a predicate nominative, or a predicate adjective.

EXAMPLE 1. A respirator pumps oxygen into the lungs.
   1. oxygen—direct object

1. Our cat avoids skunks and raccoons.
2. Jim Thorpe was an American Indian athlete.
3. The teacher showed us a film about the Revolutionary War.
4. The television commercials for that new product sound silly.
5. Who put the tangerines in that basket?
6. I sent my grandparents a gift for their anniversary.
7. During her interview on television, Zina Garrison-Jackson appeared relaxed and confident.
8. At first the colt seemed frightened.
9. Mrs. Constantine offered us olives and stuffed grape leaves.
10. The DJ played songs by Will Smith, Shania Twain, and Paula Cole.
11. The newspaper story prompted an investigation by the mayor’s office.
12. My sister has become a computer-repair technician.
13. Write your name and address on the envelope.
14. The weather forecasters haven’t issued a tornado warning.
15. Before long, the mistake became obvious to nearly everyone.
16. The sky looked gray and stormy.
17. The Irish poet Seamus Heaney won the Nobel Prize in literature in 1995.
18. The consumer group wrote the senator a letter about this type of airbag.
19. Red Azalea is the autobiography of Anchee Min.
20. The presidential candidate and his running-mate seem ambitious and sincere.

Recognizing Complements

13a. A complement is a word or word group that completes the meaning of a verb.

Every sentence has a subject and a verb. In addition, the verb often needs a complement to complete its meaning. A complement may be a noun, a pronoun, or an adjective.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>S</th>
<th>V</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>INCOMPLETE</td>
<td>Dr. Charles Drew made [what?]</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>COMPLETE</td>
<td>Dr. Charles Drew made advances in the study of blood plasma.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>S</th>
<th>V</th>
<th>C</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>INCOMPLETE</td>
<td>Medical societies honored [whom?]</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>COMPLETE</td>
<td>Medical societies honored him.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>S</th>
<th>V</th>
<th>C</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>INCOMPLETE</td>
<td>Dr. Drew’s research was [what?]</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>COMPLETE</td>
<td>Dr. Drew’s research was important.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

An adverb is never a complement.

ADVERB  The package is here. *(Here modifies the verb is by telling where the package is.)*

COMPLEMENT The package is heavy. *(The adjective heavy modifies the subject package by telling what kind of package.)*
A complement is never in a prepositional phrase.

PREPOSITIONAL PHRASE Erin is painting in the garage.
[The prepositional phrase in the garage is an adverb phrase telling where Erin is painting.]

COMPLEMENT Erin is painting her room.
[The noun room completes the verb by telling what she is painting.]

---

Direct Objects

13b. A direct object is a noun, pronoun, or word group that tells who or what receives the action of the verb.

A direct object answers the question Whom? or What? after a transitive verb.

EXAMPLES
I met Dr. Mason.
[I met whom? I met Dr. Mason. Dr. Mason receives the action of the verb met.]

Did Bill hit a home run?
[Bill did hit what? Bill did hit a home run. Home run receives the action of the verb hit.]

Please buy fruit, bread, and milk.
[Please buy what? Please buy fruit, bread, and milk. Fruit, bread, and milk receive the action of the verb buy.]

My uncle repairs engines and sells them.

Because a linking verb does not express action, it cannot have a direct object.

LINKING VERB Augusta Savage was a sculptor during the Harlem Renaissance.
[The verb was does not express action; therefore, it has no direct object.]

A direct object is never in a prepositional phrase.

PREPOSITIONAL PHRASE She worked with clay.
[Clay is not the direct object of the verb worked; it is the object of the preposition with.]

DIRECT OBJECT She worked the clay with her hands.
[She worked what? She worked the clay. Clay receives the action of the verb worked.]
A direct object may be a compound of two or more objects.

EXAMPLE We bought ribbon, wrapping paper, and tape. [The compound direct object ribbon, wrapping paper, and tape receives the action of the verb bought.]

Exercise 1 Identifying Direct Objects

Identify the direct object in each of the following sentences.

EXAMPLE

1. Many sports test an athlete’s speed and agility.
   1. speed, agility

1. Long-distance, or marathon, swimming requires strength and endurance.
2. A swimmer in training may swim five or six miles every day.
3. Marathon swimmers smear grease on their legs and arms for protection against the cold water.
4. During a marathon, some swimmers may lose several pounds.
5. Fatigue, pain, and huge waves challenge marathon swimmers.
6. As they swim, they endure extreme isolation from the rest of the world.
7. Toward the end of the marathon, swimmers hear the loud applause and shouts of encouragement from their fans.
8. Spectators generally watch only the finish of a marathon.
9. Nevertheless, they know the long distance traveled by the accomplished athletes.
10. Emerging from the cold water, the exhausted swimmers have successfully completed another marathon.
Exercise 2 Identifying Direct Objects

Identify the direct object in each of the following sentences. If a sentence does not contain a direct object, write no direct object.

EXAMPLES
1. Have you ever flown a hang glider?
   1. hang glider

2. Hang gliding has become a popular sport.
   2. no direct object

1. Many adventurous people enjoy the thrill of gliding through the air.
2. As you can see, a hang glider can carry a full-grown person in its harness.
3. The hang glider has a lightweight sail with a triangular control bar underneath.
4. At takeoff, the pilot lifts the glider shoulder-high and runs hard down a slope into the wind.
5. The wind lifts the hang glider and the pilot off the ground.
6. Because of wind currents, takeoffs from a hilltop or a cliff are the easiest.
7. Once airborne, the glider pilot directs the path of flight.
8. He or she also controls the glider’s speed by either pushing or pulling on the control bar.
9. For example, a gentle pull increases speed.
10. To land, the pilot stalls the glider near the ground and drops lightly to his or her feet.

Indirect Objects

13c. An indirect object is a noun, pronoun, or word group that sometimes appears in sentences containing direct objects.

Indirect objects tell to whom or to what, or for whom or for what, the action of the verb is done. If a sentence has an indirect object, it always has a direct object also.

EXAMPLES
The waiter gave her the bill. [The pronoun her is the indirect object of the verb gave. It answers the question “To whom did the waiter give the bill?”]
Pam left the waiter a tip. [The noun waiter is the indirect object of the verb left. It answers the question “For whom did she leave a tip?”]

Did she tip him five dollars? [The pronoun him is the indirect object of the verb Did tip. It answers the question “For whom did she tip five dollars?”]

If the word to or for is used, the noun or pronoun following it is part of a prepositional phrase and cannot be an indirect object.

Objects of Prepositions
The ship’s captain gave orders to the crew.
Vinnie made some lasagna for us.

Indirect Objects
The ship’s captain gave the crew orders.
Vinnie made us some lasagna.

Like a direct object, an indirect object can be a compound of two or more objects.

Example
Felicia threw David, Jane, and Paula slow curveballs. [The compound indirect object David, Jane, and Paula tells to whom Felicia threw curveballs.]

Exercise 3 Identifying Direct Objects and Indirect Objects

Identify and label the direct objects and the indirect objects in the following sentences. Make sure that you include all parts of compound objects.

Example
1. Did you buy Mom a calculator for her birthday?
   1. Mom—indirect object; calculator—direct object

   1. The usher found us seats near the stage.
   2. I’ll gladly lend you my new Garth Brooks CD.
3. The Nobel Foundation awarded Octavio Paz the Nobel Prize in literature.
4. Please show me your beaded moccasins.
5. They owe you and me an apology.
6. Our teacher taught us some English words of American Indian origin.
7. After the ride to Laramie, I fed the horse and the mule some hay and oats.
8. My secret pal sent me a birthday card.
9. Mai told the children stories about her family’s escape from Vietnam.
10. Will you please save Ricardo a seat?

Review A Identifying Objects of Verbs

Identify and label the direct objects and the indirect objects in the following sentences. Make sure that you include all parts of compound objects.

EXAMPLES

1. Did you bring the map?
   - map—direct object
2. My parents gave me a choice of places to go on our camping vacation.
   - me—indirect object; choice—direct object

1. I told them my answer quickly.
2. I had recently read a magazine article about the Flathead Reservation in Montana.
3. A Salishan people known as the Flatheads governs the huge reservation.
4. We spent five days of our vacation there.
5. We liked the friendly people and the rugged land.
6. I especially liked the beautiful mountains and twenty-eight-mile-long Flathead Lake.
7. My sister and I made camp beside the lake.
8. Someone gave my father a map and some directions to the National Bison Range, and we went there one day.
9. We also attended the Standing Arrow Pow-Wow, which was the highlight of our stay.
10. The performers showed visitors traditional Flathead dances and games.
Subject Complements

13d. A subject complement is a word or word group in the predicate that identifies or describes the subject.

EXAMPLES Julio has been president of his class since October.
President identifies the subject Julio.

Was the masked stranger you?
You identifies the subject stranger.

The racetrack looks slippery.
Slippery describes the subject racetrack.

A subject complement is connected to the subject by a linking verb.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Common Linking Verbs</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>appear</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>be</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

There are two kinds of subject complements—predicate nominatives and predicate adjectives.

Predicate Nominatives

13e. A predicate nominative is a word or word group in the predicate that identifies the subject.

A predicate nominative may be a noun, a pronoun, or a word group that functions as a noun. A predicate nominative is connected to its subject by a linking verb.

EXAMPLES A dictionary is a valuable tool.
Tool is a predicate nominative that identifies the subject dictionary.

This piece of flint could be an old arrowhead.
Arrowhead is a predicate nominative that identifies the subject piece.

The winner of the race was she.
She is a predicate nominative that identifies the subject winner.

Is that what you ordered?
What you ordered is a predicate nominative that identifies the subject that.

TIPS & TRICKS

To find the subject complement in a question, rearrange the sentence to make a statement.

EXAMPLE
Is Reagan the drummer in the band?
Reagan is the drummer in the band.

STYLE TIP

Expressions such as It is I and That was he may sound awkward even though they are correct. In conversation, many people say It’s me and That was him. Such expressions may one day become acceptable in formal writing and speaking as well as in informal situations. For now, however, it is best to follow the rules of standard, formal English, especially in your writing.
Like other sentence complements, a predicate nominative may be compound.

EXAMPLES
The discoverers of radium were Pierre Curie and Marie Sklodowska Curie.

The yearbook editors will be Maggie, Imelda, and Clay.

Be careful not to confuse a predicate nominative with a direct object. A predicate nominative always completes a linking verb. A direct object always completes an action verb.

PREDICATE We are the delegates from our school.

NOMINATIVE

DIRECT OBJECT We elected the delegates from our school.

A predicate nominative is never part of a prepositional phrase.

PREPOSITIONAL PHRASE Bill Russell became famous as a basketball player.

PREDICATE Bill Russell became a famous basketball player.

NOMINATIVE

Exercise 4 Identifying Predicate Nominatives

Identify the linking verb and the predicate nominative in each of the following sentences.

EXAMPLE
1. Are whales mammals?

   1. Are—mammals

1. Kilimanjaro is the tallest mountain in Africa.
2. The kingdom of Siam became modern-day Thailand.
3. Dandelions can be a problem for gardeners.
4. Sue Mishima should be a lawyer or a stockbroker when she grows up.
5. When will a woman be president of the United States?
6. Reuben has become a fine pianist.
7. The team captains are Daniel, Mark, and Hannah.
8. At the moment, she remains our choice as candidate for mayor.
9. Is Alaska the largest state in the United States?
10. According to my teacher, philately is another name for stamp collecting.
Predicate Adjectives

13f. A predicate adjective is an adjective that is in the predicate and that describes the subject.

A predicate adjective is connected to the subject by a linking verb.

EXAMPLES
Cold milk tastes good on a hot day. [Good is a predicate adjective that describes the subject milk.]

The pita bread was light and delicious. [Light and delicious form a compound predicate adjective that describes the subject bread.]

How kind you are! [Kind is a predicate adjective that describes the subject you.]

Exercise 5 Identifying Predicate Adjectives

Identify the linking verbs and the predicate adjectives in the following sentences.

EXAMPLES
1. became—restless
2. Do seem—high, rough

1. Everyone felt good about the decision.
2. The milk in this container smells sour.
3. Don’t the black beans mixed with rice and onions taste delicious?
4. The situation appears dangerous and complicated.
5. Everyone remained calm during the emergency.
6. Why does the water in that pond look green?
7. During Annie Dillard’s speech, the audience grew thoughtful and then enthusiastic.
8. Jan stays cheerful most of the time.
9. She must be happy with her excellent results on the science midterm.
10. From my seat in the stadium, I thought the big bass drums sounded too loud.
Review B  Identifying Predicate Nominatives and Predicate Adjectives

Identify each subject complement in the following sentences. Then, label each complement as a predicate nominative or a predicate adjective.

EXAMPLE
1. Are these your shoes, Janelle?
   1. shoes—predicate nominative

1. This tasty eggplant dish is a favorite in Greece.
2. The twins are tired after the long flight.
3. How beautiful that kimono is, Keiko!
4. This perfume smells sweet and almost lemony.
5. When will the piñata be ready?
6. The winners of the race are Don, Shelby, and she.
7. Vijay Singh is a professional golfer.
8. What good dogs they are!
9. Why is your little brother acting so shy?
10. Loyal and true are the royal bodyguards.

Review C  Writing Predicate Nominatives and Predicate Adjectives

Choose an appropriate predicate nominative or predicate adjective for each blank in the following sentences. Then, label each answer as a predicate adjective or predicate nominative.

EXAMPLES
1. The currents looked ___ than they were.
   1. slower—predicate adjective

   2. Should I become a ___?
      2. veterinarian—predicate nominative

1. He remained a ___ in the army for more than twenty years.
2. My sister became a ___ after many years of study.
3. In the night air, the jasmine smelled ___.
4. The Navajo way of life was sometimes ___.
5. Peggy seemed ___ with her new kitten.
6. For many travelers, a popular vacation spot is ___.
7. My favorite season has been ___ ever since I was five.
8. Don’t these Japanese plums taste ___, Alex?
9. How ___ Grandpa will be to see us!
10. One of the most dangerous animals in the ocean is the ___.
Identifying Complements

Identify the complement or complements in each of the following sentences. Then, label each complement as a direct object, an indirect object, a predicate nominative, or a predicate adjective.

EXAMPLES

1. Our teacher read us stories from The Leather-Stocking Tales.
   1. us—indirect object; stories—direct object
2. James Fenimore Cooper is the author of these tales.
   2. author—predicate nominative

1. Leather-Stocking is a fictional scout in Cooper’s popular novels.
2. He is also a woodsman and a trapper.
3. He cannot read, but he understands the lore of the woods.
4. To generations of readers, this character has been a hero.
5. He can face any emergency.
6. He always remains faithful and fearless.
7. Leather-Stocking loves the forest and the open country.
8. In later years he grows miserable.
9. The destruction of the wilderness by settlers and others greatly disturbs him.
10. He tells no one his views and retreats from civilization.

Review E

Identifying Complements

Identify the complement or complements in each of the following sentences. Then, label each complement as a direct object, an indirect object, a predicate nominative, or a predicate adjective.

EXAMPLES

1. Sean, my brother, won three medals at the Special Olympics.
   1. medals—direct object
   2. Are the Special Olympics an annual event?
   2. event—predicate nominative

1. Sean was one of more than one hundred special-education students who competed in the regional Special Olympics.
2. The games brought students from many schools to our city.
3. The highlights of the games included track events such as sprints and relay races.
4. These were the closest contests.
5. Sean’s excellent performance in the relays gave him confidence.
6. The softball throw and high jump were especially challenging events.
7. Sean looked relaxed but determined as he prepared for the broad jump.
8. He certainly felt great after his winning jump, shown in the top photograph.
9. Mrs. Duffy, one of the coaches, told us the history of the Special Olympics.
10. Eunice Kennedy Shriver founded the program in 1968.
11. To begin with, the program was a five-week camp.
12. Several years later, the camp became an international sports event with contestants from twenty-six states and Canada.
13. Today, the organizers of the Special Olympics sponsor regional and international games.
14. The Special Olympics are exciting and inspiring.
15. Many of the contestants have physical impairments; some cannot walk or see.
16. Teachers and volunteers train contestants in the different events.
17. However, the young athletes themselves are the force behind the program.
18. The pictures on the left give you a glimpse of the excitement at the Special Olympics.
19. In the middle photograph, a volunteer guides a runner.
20. In the photo on the left, this determined boy prepares himself for the wheelchair race.
A. Classifying Complements

Classify each italicized complement in the following sentences as a direct object, an indirect object, a predicate adjective, or a predicate nominative.

1. Pamela was the star of the play.
2. The guidebook gave the lost tourists the wrong directions.
3. Monet is famous for the way his paintings captured light.
4. Manuel offered Anita some good advice.
5. Ms. Benton is our next-door neighbor.
6. Bring me the cutting board, please.
7. The box was big and awkward to handle.
8. The library receives many new books each week.
9. Mexico celebrates its independence on September 16.
10. The new president of the bank will be Ms. Morales.
11. Angel became a professional jai alai player.
12. Amelia Earhart flew her plane across the Atlantic in 1932.
13. The glow from the diamond is dazzling!
14. Thomas Edison provided people with electric light bulbs.
15. New York City was briefly the capital of the United States.
16. The Simpsons showed him slides of China.
17. My chair was hard and uncomfortable.
18. The machine can produce two crates a day.
19. Have you seen Akiho’s yellow sweater?
20. The house appeared empty.

B. Identifying Complements

Write the complement or complements in each sentence. Then, identify each complement as a direct object, an indirect object, a predicate adjective, or a predicate nominative. Write none if the sentence does not contain a complement.

21. American Indian peoples taught the English colonists many useful skills for survival.
22. Steven Spielberg is a famous director and producer of motion pictures.

23. A hurricane of immense power lashed the Florida coast a few years ago.

24. The fans became very anxious during the final minutes of the game.

25. This winter was colder and drier than most.

26. Nora sent postcards from Argentina to her friends.

27. The new homeowners found some rare photographs in the back of the attic.

28. Although many eggshells are white, others are brown, and still others are light green.

29. Lita and Trenell studied until seven o’clock.

30. During this month, Mars is too close to the sun to be seen easily from Earth.

31. Both the House and the Senate gave the President their support on the bill.

32. The movers carried the sofa and dining room table up the front stairs.

33. Armand worked all day with his grandfather.

34. That gigantic reflector is considered the world’s most powerful telescope.

35. Our dog Spike is both a good watchdog and an affectionate family pet.

36. A Raisin in the Sun was certainly Lorraine Hansberry’s most successful play.

37. Why do animals seem nervous during a storm?

38. The theater manager will pay each usher an extra five dollars this week.

39. Luis Alvarez won a Nobel Prize for his important research in nuclear power.

40. Our neighbor has offered my mother and father a good price for their car.
Writing Application

Using Subject Complements to Write Riddles

Predicate Nominatives and Predicate Adjectives

A magazine for young people is sponsoring a riddle-writing contest. Whoever writes the best riddle will win the most advanced computer game on the market. You are determined to write the best riddle and win. Write two riddles to enter in the contest. In each one, use at least two subject complements.

Prewriting  The best way to make up a riddle is to begin with the answer. List some animals, places, and things that suggest funny or hidden meanings. For each animal, place, or thing, jot down a description based on the funny or hidden meaning. Then, choose the two topics that you think will make the best riddles.

Writing  Use your prewriting notes as you write your first draft. In each riddle, make sure that your clues will help your audience guess the answer. Be sure that you use a subject complement (a predicate nominative or a predicate adjective) in the riddle.

Revising  Ask a friend to read your riddles. If the riddles are too difficult or too simple, revise them. You may want to add details that appeal to the senses. Linking verbs such as appear, feel, smell, sound, and taste can help you add such details.

Publishing  Read through your riddles again to check for errors in spelling, punctuation, and capitalization. Pay special attention to the capitalization of proper nouns. You and your classmates may want to publish a book of riddles. Collect your riddles and draw or cut out pictures as illustrations. Make photocopies for all the members of the class.
A. Identifying and Classifying Prepositional Phrases

Identify the prepositional phrase in each of the following sentences. Then, classify each phrase as an adjective phrase or an adverb phrase, and write the word that the phrase modifies.

EXAMPLE
1. The chairs in the kitchen need new cushions.
   1. in the kitchen—adjective phrase—chairs

1. I wish I were better at tennis.
2. The Rio Grande is the boundary between Texas and Mexico.
3. Those apples come from Washington State.
4. The most popular name for the United States flag is the Stars and Stripes.
5. The pony with a white forelock is Sally's.
6. Through the window crashed the baseball.
7. Cathy Guisewite is the creator of that comic strip.
8. During the last presidential election, we watched the national news often.
9. The first United States space shuttle was launched in 1981.
10. Outside the door the hungry cat waited patiently.
B. Identifying and Classifying Verbal Phrases

Identify the verbal phrase in each of the following sentences. Then, classify each phrase as a participial phrase or an infinitive phrase.

EXAMPLE

1. The snow, falling steadily, formed huge drifts.
   1. falling steadily—participial phrase

11. We expect to do well on the test.
12. The bus, slowed by heavy traffic, arrived at our stop later than it usually does.
13. Breaking the eggs into the wok, he made egg foo yong.
14. To remain calm is not always easy.
15. She wants to study Japanese in high school.
16. The magazine featuring that article is in the school library.
17. Chilled to the bone, the children finally went inside.
18. Who are the candidates that they plan to support in the election?
19. Bethune-Cookman College, founded by Mary McLeod Bethune, is in Daytona Beach, Florida.
20. Teresa called to ask about tonight’s homework assignment.

What Is a Phrase?

14a. A phrase is a group of related words that is used as a single part of speech and that does not contain both a verb and its subject.

- VERB PHRASE could have been hiding [no subject]
- PREPOSITIONAL PHRASE in the kitchen [no subject or verb]
- INFINITIVE PHRASE to go with them [no subject or verb]

NOTE If a word group has both a subject and a verb, it is called a clause.

EXAMPLES

- The wind howled. [Wind is the subject of the verb howled.]
- when the Wilsons left [Wilson is the subject of the verb left.]

Reference Note

For information on clauses, see Chapter 15.
Exercise 1 Identifying Phrases

Identify each of the following word groups as a phrase or not a phrase.

EXAMPLES

1. on the paper
   1. phrase

2. after we eat
   2. not a phrase

1. when you know
2. as they walked in
3. in the garden
4. is sleeping
5. how she remembered
6. smiling brightly
7. to the supermarket
8. where the car is
9. to laugh at myself
10. if he says so

Prepositional Phrases

14b. A prepositional phrase includes a preposition, the object of the preposition, and any modifiers of that object.

EXAMPLES  under the umbrella  for ourselves among good friends  next to them

Notice that an article or another modifier may appear in a prepositional phrase. The first example above contains the article the. In the second example, good modifies friends.

The noun or pronoun that completes a prepositional phrase is called the object of the preposition.

EXAMPLES  Linh Phan has the lead in the school play. [The noun play is the object of the preposition in.]
           Standing between them was the Russian chess champion. [The pronoun them is the object of the preposition between.]

Any modifier that comes between the preposition and its object is part of the prepositional phrase.

EXAMPLE  Into the thick mist vanished the carriage. [The adjectives the and thick modify the object mist.]

An object of a preposition may be compound.

EXAMPLE  Come with Rick and me to the concert. [Both Rick and me are objects of the preposition with.]
NOTE Be careful not to confuse an infinitive with a prepositional phrase beginning with to. A prepositional phrase always has an object that is a noun or a pronoun. An infinitive is a verbal that usually begins with to.

PREPOSITIONAL PHRASE Send the package to them.
INFINITIVE Are you ready to go?

Exercise 2 Identifying Prepositional Phrases

Identify the prepositional phrases in each of the following sentences.

EXAMPLE 1. Many soldiers fought bravely during the Vietnam War.
1. during the Vietnam War

1. One of these soldiers was Jan C. Scruggs.
2. When the war was over, he and other veterans wondered why there was no national memorial honoring those who had served in Vietnam.
3. Scruggs decided he would raise funds for a Vietnam Veterans Memorial.
4. The memorial would include the names of all American men and women who were missing in action or who had died.
5. Organizing the project took years of great effort.
6. Many different people contributed their talents to the project.
7. Maya Ying Lin, a college student, designed the memorial that now stands in Washington, D.C.
8. This picture shows the V-shaped, black granite wall that was built from Lin’s design.
9. A glass company from Memphis, Tennessee, engraved each name on the shiny granite.
10. Now the names of those who died in Vietnam will never be forgotten by the American people.

Reference Note
For more information about infinitives, see page 414.
Adjective Phrases

A prepositional phrase used as an adjective is called an adjective phrase.

ADJECTIVE Rosa chose the blue one.
ADJECTIVE PHRASE Rosa chose the one with blue stripes.

14c. An adjective phrase modifies a noun or a pronoun.

Adjective phrases generally come after the words they modify and answer the same questions that single-word adjectives answer.

What kind? Which one?
How many? How much?

EXAMPLES The store with the neon sign is open. [The prepositional phrase with the neon sign is used as an adjective modifying the noun store. The phrase answers the question Which one?]
We bought a CD by Janet Jackson. [By Janet Jackson is used as an adjective modifying the noun CD. The phrase answers the question What kind?]

Exercise 3 Identifying Adjective Phrases

Identify the adjective phrase in each of the following sentences, and write the word that each phrase modifies.

EXAMPLE 1. Marie Sklodowska Curie, a scientist from Poland, was awarded the Nobel Prize in 1911.
   1. from Poland—scientist

   1. While she was a student in France, Marie met Pierre Curie.
   2. Pierre had already gained fame as a scientist.
   3. Paris was where the two of them became friends.
   4. Their enthusiasm for science brought them together.
   5. The marriage between the two scientists was a true partnership.
   6. The year after their marriage another scientist discovered natural radioactivity.
   7. The Curies began researching the radioactivity of certain substances.
   8. Their theories about a new element were proved to be true.
9. Their research on the mineral pitchblende uncovered a new radioactive element, radium.
10. In 1903, the Curies and another scientist shared a Nobel Prize for their discovery.

More than one adjective phrase may modify the same noun or pronoun.

EXAMPLE Here’s a gift for you from Uncle Steve. [The prepositional phrases for you and from Uncle Steve both modify the noun gift.]

An adjective phrase may also modify the object in another adjective phrase.

EXAMPLE A majority of the mammals in the world sleep during the day. [The adjective phrase of the mammals modifies the noun majority. The adjective phrase in the world modifies the noun mammals, which is the object of the preposition in the first phrase.]

Exercise 4 Identifying Adjective Phrases

Identify the adjective phrases in the following sentences. Then, write the word that each phrase modifies.

EXAMPLE

1. R.I.C.E. is the recommended treatment for minor sports injuries.

   1. for minor sports injuries—treatment

1. The first letters of the words Rest, Ice, Compression, and Elevation form the abbreviation R.I.C.E.
2. Total bed rest is not necessary, just rest for the injured part of the body.
3. Ice helps because it deadens pain and slows the loss of blood.
4. Ice also reduces swelling of the injured area.
5. Compression with a tight bandage of elastic cloth prevents further strain on the injury.
6. This photograph shows an ice pack treating the injured knee of the athlete Robert Horry.
7. The last step in the treatment is elevation of the injured area.
8. The effect of gravity helps fluid drain away.
9. If pain continues, someone with medical training should be called to examine the injured person.
10. Even injuries of a minor nature need proper attention.

Exercise 5 Using Adjective Phrases

Write an adjective phrase for each blank in the following sentences. Then, write the word that the phrase modifies.

EXAMPLE
1. A flock ____ flew overhead.
   1. of small gray birds—flock

1. The sound ____ suddenly filled the air.
2. The theater ____ often shows kung-fu movies.
3. May I have some more ____?
4. Our vacation ____ was relaxing.
5. Her photograph ____ looks like a prizewinner.
6. Andrea found the answer ____.
7. He put the flowers in a vase ____.
8. A boy ____ hung a piñata in the tree.
9. The nest is in the top branch ____.
10. Someone ____ shouted for quiet.

Adverb Phrases

A prepositional phrase used as an adverb is called an adverb phrase.

ADVERB The cavalry will reach the fort soon.

ADVERB PHRASE The cavalry will reach the fort by noon.

14d. An adverb phrase modifies a verb, an adjective, or an adverb.

EXAMPLES

We got our new puppy at the animal shelter. [The adverb phrase at the animal shelter modifies the verb got, telling where.]

A puppy is always ready for a game. [The adverb phrase for a game modifies the adjective ready, telling how.]

He barks loudly for a puppy. [The adverb phrase for a puppy modifies the adverb loudly, telling to what extent.]
Unlike adjective phrases, which generally follow the word or words they modify, adverb phrases may appear at various places in sentences.

EXAMPLES

At dusk, we went inside to eat dinner.
We went inside at dusk to eat dinner.
We went inside to eat dinner at dusk.

Exercise 6 Identifying Adverb Phrases

Identify the adverb phrase in each of the following sentences. Then, write the word that each phrase modifies. Do not list adjective phrases.

EXAMPLE

1. Pecos Bill will live forever in the many legends about him.
   1. in the many legends—will live

1. When he was only a baby, Pecos Bill fell into the Pecos River.
2. His parents searched for him but couldn’t find him.
3. He was saved by coyotes, who raised him.
4. He thought for many years that he was a coyote.
5. After a long argument, a cowboy convinced Bill that he was not a coyote.
6. During a drought, Bill dug the bed of the Rio Grande.
7. On one occasion he rode a cyclone.
8. A mountain lion once leaped from a ledge above Bill’s head.
9. Bill was always ready for trouble and soon had the mountain lion tamed.
10. Stories like these about Pecos Bill are common in the West.

Like adjective phrases, more than one adverb phrase may modify the same word.

EXAMPLES

She drove for hours through the storm. [Both adverb phrases, for hours and through the storm, modify the verb drove.]

The library is open during the day on weekends. [Both adverb phrases, during the day and on weekends, modify the adjective open.]

On Saturday we will rehearse our drill routine before the game. [Both adverb phrases, On Saturday and before the game, modify the verb phrase will rehearse.]
An adverb phrase may be followed by an adjective phrase that modifies the object in the adverb phrase.

EXAMPLE The boat landed on an island near the coast. [The adverb phrase on an island modifies the verb landed. The adjective phrase near the coast modifies the noun island.]

Exercise 7  Identifying Adverb Phrases

Identify the adverb phrases in the following sentences. Then, write the word or words that each phrase modifies. Do not list adjective phrases.

EXAMPLE

1. Never before had a blizzard struck the coastal area with such force.
   1. with such force—had struck

1. Andrea saw the dark clouds and turned toward home.
2. The raging wind blew the eleven-year-old over a sea wall near the shore.
3. She found herself trapped in a deep snowdrift.
4. No one could hear her shouts over the howling wind.
5. Andrea’s dog charged through the snow toward the beach.
6. He plunged into the snow around Andrea and licked her face, warming the skin.
7. Then the huge dog walked around Andrea until the snow was packed down.
8. The dog pulled her to an open area on the beach.
9. With great effort, Andrea and her dog made their way home.
10. Grateful to their dog, Andrea’s family served him a special steak dinner.

Review A  Identifying and Classifying Prepositional Phrases

Identify the prepositional phrase in each of the following sentences, and classify it as an adjective phrase or an adverb phrase. Then, write the word or words the phrase modifies.

EXAMPLE

1. Here is some information about sharks.
   1. about sharks—adjective phrase; information
1. Did you know that there are hundreds of shark species?
2. Scientists group these species into twenty-eight families.
3. Sharks within the same family share many traits.
4. The body shape, tail shape, and teeth determine the differences among families.
5. Sharks are found throughout the world’s oceans.
6. As the map shows, some sharks prefer cold waters, and others live mostly in warm tropical oceans.
7. Only thirty kinds of sharks are dangerous.
8. The huge whale shark, however, falls under the “not dangerous” category.
9. Divers can even hitch a ride on its fins.
10. Beautiful yet frightening to most people, sharks are perhaps the world’s most awesome creatures.

Review B Writing Sentences with Prepositional Phrases

For each of the following items, write a sentence using the given prepositional phrase. Then, tell whether you have used each phrase as an adjective phrase or an adverb phrase.

EXAMPLE

1. through the tollbooth
   1. A car passed through the tollbooth.—adverb phrase

1. in the movie theater
2. for the party
3. along the water’s edge
4. about Madeleine
5. into the department store
6. underneath the bed
7. with chopsticks
8. of the equipment
9. in front of city hall
10. at the campsite
Verbals and Verbal Phrases

A verbal is a word that is formed from a verb but is used as a noun, an adjective, or an adverb.

The Participle

14e. A participle is a verb form that can be used as an adjective.

Two kinds of participles are present participles and past participles.

(1) Present participles end in –ing.

EXAMPLES Mr. Sanchez rescued three people from the burning building. [Burning is the present participle of the verb burn. The participle modifies the noun building.]

Chasing the cat, the dog ran down the street. [Chasing is the present participle of the verb chase. The participle modifies the noun dog.]

(2) Past participles usually end in –d or –ed. Some past participles are formed irregularly.

EXAMPLES Well trained, the soldier successfully carried out her mission. [*The past participle trained modifies the noun soldier.]

We skated on the frozen pond. [*The irregular past participle frozen modifies the noun pond.]

NOTE Be careful not to confuse participles used as adjectives with participles used in verb phrases. Remember that the participle in a verb phrase is part of the verb.

ADJECTIVE Discouraged, the fans went home.

VERB PHRASE The fans were discouraged by the string of losses.

ADJECTIVE Singing cheerfully, the birds perched among the branches of the trees.

VERB PHRASE The birds were singing cheerfully among the branches of the trees.
Identifying Participles and the Nouns They Modify

Identify the participles used as adjectives in the following sentences. Then, write the noun that each participle modifies.

EXAMPLE

1. The deserted cities of the Anasazi are found in the Four Corners area of the United States.
   1. deserted—cities

1. Utah, Colorado, New Mexico, and Arizona are the bordering states that make up the Four Corners.
2. Because of its natural beauty, Chaco Canyon is one of the most visited sights in this region of the Southwest.
3. Among the remaining ruins in Chaco Canyon are the houses, public buildings, and plazas of the Anasazi.
4. What alarming event may have caused these people to leave their valley?
5. Historians are studying the scattered remains of the Anasazi culture to learn more about these mysterious people.
6. Woven baskets were important to the earliest Anasazi people, who were excellent basket weavers.
7. On the floors of some caves are pits for stored food and other vital supplies.
8. Surviving descendants of the Anasazi include today’s Zuni, Hopi, and some of the Pueblo peoples.
9. Programs protecting archaeological sites help ensure the preservation of our nation’s heritage.
10. There are several national parks and monuments commemorating the Pueblo’s past.

Identifying Participles and the Words They Modify

Identify the participles used as adjectives in the following sentences. Then, write the noun or pronoun each participle modifies.

EXAMPLE

1. Buzzing mosquitoes swarmed around me.
   1. Buzzing—mosquitoes

1. Annoyed, I went inside to watch TV.
2. I woke my sleeping father to ask about mosquitoes.
3. Irritated, he directed me to an encyclopedia.
4. I learned that some flying insects carry diseases.
5. Biting mosquitoes can spread malaria.
6. Bites make the skin swell, and the swollen skin itches.
7. Sucking blood for food, mosquitoes survive in many different climates.
8. Sometimes you can hear mosquitoes buzzing.
9. Their beating wings make the sound.
10. Mosquitoes, living only a few weeks, may go through as many as twelve generations in a year.

The Participial Phrase

14f. A participial phrase consists of a participle together with its modifiers and complements. The entire phrase is used as an adjective.

EXAMPLES

Stretching slowly, the cat jumped down from the windowsill. [The participle Stretching is modified by the adverb slowly. The phrase modifies cat.]

The tornado predicted by the meteorologist did not hit our area. [The participle predicted is modified by the prepositional phrase by the meteorologist. The whole participial phrase modifies tornado.]

Reading the assignment, she took notes carefully. [The participle Reading has the direct object assignment. The phrase modifies she.]

A participial phrase should be placed close to the word it modifies. Otherwise, the phrase may appear to modify another word, and the sentence may not make sense.

MISPLACED Hopping along the fence, I saw a rabbit. [Was I hopping along the fence?]
CORRECTED I saw a rabbit hopping along the fence.

Exercise 10 Identifying Participial Phrases and the Words They Modify

Identify the participial phrases in the following sentences. Then, write the word or words each phrase modifies.
EXAMPLE 1. Living over four hundred years ago, Leonardo da Vinci kept journals of his ideas and inventions.

1. Living over four hundred years ago—Leonardo da Vinci

1. The journals, written backwards in “mirror writing,” are more than five thousand pages long.
2. Leonardo drew many pictures showing birds in flight.
3. He hoped that machines based on his sketches of birds would enable humans to fly.
4. Shown here, his design for a helicopter was the first one in history.
5. Studying the eye, Leonardo understood the sense of sight.
6. He worked hard, filling his journals with sketches like the ones on this page for a movable bridge.
7. The solutions reached in his journals often helped Leonardo when he created his artworks.
8. He used the hands sketched in the journals as models when he painted the hands in the Mona Lisa.
9. Painting on a large wall, Leonardo created The Last Supper.
10. Leonardo, experimenting continually, had little time to paint in his later years.

Exercise 11 Writing Sentences with Participial Phrases

For each of the following items, write a sentence using the given participial phrase. Make sure the participial phrase modifies a noun or pronoun.

EXAMPLE 1. cheering for the team

1. Cheering for the team, we celebrated the victory.

1. confused by the directions
2. gathering information on the Hopi
3. practicing my part in the play
4. followed closely by my younger brother

HELP In Exercise 11, place a comma after a participial phrase that begins a sentence.

Reference Note For more information about punctuating participial phrases, see pages 607 and 613.
5. searching through the crowd
6. shaped by wind and water
7. freshly painted at the shop
8. born in Tahiti
9. reading a book by the window
10. holding the Ming vase

The Infinitive

14g. An infinitive is a verb form that can be used as a noun, an adjective, or an adverb. Most infinitives begin with to.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Infinitives</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Used as</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
| Nouns | To succeed is my goal. [To succeed is the subject of the sentence.]
My ambition is to teach Spanish. [To teach is a predicate nominative.]
She tried to win. [To win is the direct object of the verb tried.]
| Adjectives | The place to meet tomorrow is the library. [To meet modifies the noun place.]
She is the one to call. [To call modifies the pronoun one.]
| Adverbs | Tamara claims she was born to surf. [To surf modifies the verb was born.]
This math problem will be hard to solve without a calculator. [To solve modifies the adjective hard.]

Reference Note

For more information about prepositional phrases, see page 371.
Exercise 12 Identifying Infinitives

Identify the infinitives in the following sentences. If a sentence does not contain an infinitive, write none.

EXAMPLE

1. I would like to go to New York City someday.
   1. to go

1. My first stop would be to visit the Statue of Liberty.
2. Thousands of people go to see the statue every day.
3. They take a boat to Liberty Island.
4. The statue holds a torch to symbolize freedom.
5. The idea of a statue to represent freedom came from a French historian.
6. France gave the statue to the United States in 1884.
7. The statue was shipped to this country in 214 cases.
8. It was a gift to express the friendship between the two nations.
9. In the 1980s, many people helped to raise money for repairs to the statue.
10. The repairs were completed in time to celebrate the statue’s hundredth anniversary on October 28, 1986.

The Infinitive Phrase

14h. An infinitive phrase consists of an infinitive together with its modifiers and complements. The entire phrase may be used as a noun, an adjective, or an adverb.

EXAMPLES

To be a good gymnast takes hard work. [The infinitive phrase is used as a noun. The infinitive To be has a complement, a good gymnast.]

The first person to fly over both the North Pole and the South Pole was Richard Byrd. [The infinitive phrase is used as an adjective modifying the noun person. The infinitive to fly is modified by the prepositional phrase over both the North Pole and the South Pole.]

Are you ready to go to the gym now? [The infinitive phrase is used as an adverb modifying the adjective ready. The infinitive to go is modified by the prepositional phrase to the gym and by the adverb now.]
Identifying Infinitive Phrases

Identify the infinitive phrase in each of the following sentences.

EXAMPLE

1. We went to the park to watch birds.
   1. to watch birds

1. A bird is able to control many of its feathers individually.
2. Birds use their feathers to push their bodies through the air.
3. Human beings learned to build aircraft by carefully studying the way birds fly.
4. A bird sings to claim its territory.
5. To recognize the songs of different birds takes many hours of practice.
6. By molting (or gradual shedding), birds are able to replace their feathers.
7. Eagles use their feet to catch small animals.
8. Since they have no teeth, many birds have to swallow their food whole.
9. In many cases both parents help to build a nest.
10. Most birds feed their young until the young are ready to fly from the nest.

Writing Sentences with Infinitive Phrases

For each of the following items, write a sentence using the given infinitive phrase. Try to vary your sentences as much as possible.

EXAMPLE

1. to see the carved masks of the Haida people
   1. Terry wants to see the carved masks of the Haida people.

1. to sing with the Boys Choir of Harlem
2. to ask a question about the test
3. to write a poem to his girlfriend
4. to understand the assignment
5. to give a report on the Spanish exploration of California
6. to learn a little Japanese over the summer
7. to predict accurately the weather patterns
8. to imitate that style
9. to be the best at everything
10. to dry in the sun
Identifying and Classifying Participial Phrases and Infinitive Phrases

Identify the participial phrase or the infinitive phrase in each sentence of the following paragraph. Classify each phrase as a participial phrase or an infinitive phrase.

EXAMPLES

1. My family is proud to celebrate our Jewish holidays.

   1. to celebrate our Jewish holidays—infinitive phrase

2. Observing Jewish traditions, we celebrate each holiday in a special way.

   2. Observing Jewish traditions—participial phrase

[1] During Rosh Hashana we hear writings from the Torah read in our synagogue. [2] Celebrated in September or October, Rosh Hashana is the Jewish New Year. [3] On this holiday, our rabbi chooses to wear white robes instead of the usual black robes. [4] Representing newness and purity, the white robes symbolize the new year. [5] My favorite food of Rosh Hashana is the honey cake baked by my grandmother. [6] During this holiday everyone eats a lot, knowing that Yom Kippur, a day of fasting, is only ten days away. [7] Yom Kippur, considered the holiest day of the Jewish year, is a serious holiday. [8] To attend services like the one you see here is part of my family’s Yom Kippur tradition. [9] I am always pleased to see many of my friends and neighbors there. [10] Sunset, marking the end of the day, brings Yom Kippur to a peaceful close.
Review D Writing Phrases for Sentences

For each of the following sentences, write the kind of phrase that is called for in parentheses.

EXAMPLE 1. Clapping loudly, the audience cheered Yo-Yo Ma’s performance. (participial phrase)

1. We walked slowly _____ (adverb phrase)
2. The people _____ applauded Mayor Garza’s speech. (adjective phrase)
3. My little brother is afraid _____ (adverb phrase)
4. The water _____ dripped steadily. (adjective phrase)
5. _____ we saw many beautiful Navajo rugs. (adverb phrase)
6. _____, the principal entered the classroom. (participial phrase)
7. Suddenly, _____, the lion pounced. (participial phrase)
8. My friends and I like _____ (infinitive phrase)
9. _____ is my greatest ambition. (infinitive phrase)
10. She wrote a poem _____ (participial phrase)
A. Identifying Prepositional Phrases
Identify each prepositional phrase in the following sentences. Then, write the word each phrase modifies. There may be more than one prepositional phrase in a sentence.

1. The view from Mount Fuji is spectacular.
2. Boulder Dam was the original name of Hoover Dam.
3. Eat something before the game.
4. We heard stories about our Cherokee ancestors.
5. The coach paced nervously on the sidelines.
6. The second-longest river in Africa is the Congo.
7. For the costume party, Jody dressed as a lion tamer.
8. Has the hiking party returned to the campsite?
9. The Hudson River was once the chief trading route for the western frontier.
10. Hearing a loud noise, Rita stopped the car and looked underneath it.

B. Identifying Adjective and Adverb Phrases
Classify each italicized prepositional phrase in the following sentences as an adjective phrase or an adverb phrase. Then, write the word the phrase modifies.

11. The jacket with the gray stripes is mine.
12. The man across the aisle is sleeping.
13. Mai spoke with confidence at the leadership conference.
14. A young woman in a blue uniform answered the phone.
15. Nobody except Alicia was amazed at the sudden downpour.
16. Were you upset about the delay?
17. Does your doctor work at Emerson Hospital?
18. Along the Appalachian National Scenic Trail, you will find painted rocks that indicate the route.
19. Masud’s friends from New Jersey are coming to visit.
20. He is tall for his age.
C. Classifying Verbal Phrases
Identify each italicized verbal phrase in the following sentences as an infinitive phrase or a participial phrase.

22. Commander Scott, chilled by the brisk wind, pulled on her gloves.
23. To become a park ranger is Keisha’s dream.
24. The awards dinner planned for this evening has been canceled because of a snowstorm.
25. A soufflé can be difficult to prepare properly.
26. Organized in 1884, the first African American professional baseball team was the Cuban Giants.
27. Guillermo hopes to visit us soon.
28. My brother was the first person to see a meteor last evening.
29. Stella did not disturb the cat sleeping in the window.
30. How do you plan to tell the story?

D. Identifying Verbal Phrases
Identify the verbal phrase in each of the following sentences. Then, classify each phrase as an infinitive phrase or a participial phrase.

31. To skate around the neighborhood was Lee’s favorite pastime.
32. Racing around on his in-line skates, he felt as if he were flying.
33. Then one afternoon, prevented from skating by the rain, Lee wondered about the history of skates.
34. He decided to search the Internet for information.
35. Lee learned that Joseph Merlin, an eighteenth-century Dutchman, was the first person to adapt ice skates for use on dry land.
36. Merlin’s idea was to attach wooden spools to a plate that supported them.
37. First fashioned in 1763, skates with metal wheels were in use for a century.
38. Appearing in 1863, the first modern skates were invented by an American.
39. Skates with more durable ball-bearing wheels, introduced later in the nineteenth century, popularized roller skating.

40. At the end of the afternoon, Lee exclaimed, “It’s fun to know the history of skates!”

Writing Application

Using Prepositional Phrases in a Note

Adjective and Adverb Phrases You are writing a note to a friend explaining how to care for your pet while you are away on vacation. In your note, use a combined total of at least ten adjective phrases and adverb phrases to give detailed instructions to your friend.

Prewriting Begin by thinking about a pet you have or would like to have. Then, make a chart or list of the pet’s needs. If you need more information about a particular pet, ask a friend or someone else who owns such a pet.

Writing As you write your first draft, focus on giving information about each of your pet’s needs. Tell your friend everything he or she needs to know to care for your pet properly.

Revising Ask a family member or friend to read your note. Add any missing information and take out any unnecessary instructions. Be sure that you have used both adjective phrases and adverb phrases and that you have used a total of at least ten phrases.

Publishing Read over your note again to check the grammar, punctuation, and spelling. You and your classmates may wish to create a pet care guide. Gather your notes in a three-ring binder and group your instructions by type of pet.
CHAPTER 15

The Clause
Independent and Subordinate Clauses

Diagnostic Preview

A. Identifying and Classifying Independent and Subordinate Clauses

Identify each of the following clauses as either independent or subordinate.

EXAMPLE 1. when I was eleven years old
   1. subordinate

1. because I have lived in Chile and Ecuador
2. his writing has improved
3. although Gullah is still spoken on South Carolina’s Sea Islands
4. when the Philadelphia Phillies baseball team won the National League pennant
5. she served as secretary of labor
6. which we brought to the Juneteenth picnic
7. everyone laughed
8. whose mother you met yesterday
9. during the storm the power failed
10. to whom his mother explained the reason for the delay
B. Identifying and Classifying Subordinate Clauses

Identify the subordinate clause in each of the following sentences. Then, classify each as either an adjective clause or an adverb clause.

EXAMPLES 1. Today is the day that you are eating at my house.
   1. that you are eating at my house—adjective clause

   2. I will give you a map so that you can find my house.
   2. so that you can find my house—adverb clause

11. If you have never had Caribbean food, you are in for a treat.
12. My mother, who was born and raised in Jamaica, really knows how to cook.
13. Whenever I have a chance, I try to learn her secrets.
14. My grandmother, whose cooking is spectacular, is making her special sweet potato pone for dessert.
15. Some of the fruits and vegetables that grow in Jamaica are hard to find in the markets around here.
16. Today we are shopping for coconuts, avocados, and callaloo greens, which were introduced to the Caribbean by Africans.
17. We must also remember to buy the fresh hot peppers, onions, and spices that are needed for seasoning the meat.
18. Although my mother never uses measuring spoons, she seems to know just how much of each spice to add.
19. As soon as we pay for these items, let’s take them home.
20. Part of your treat will be to smell the delicious aroma from the kitchen before you even begin eating.

What Is a Clause?

15a. A clause is a word group that contains a verb and its subject and that is used as a sentence or as part of a sentence.

Every clause contains a subject and a verb. However, not all clauses express complete thoughts. A clause that does express a complete thought is called an independent clause. A clause that does not make sense by itself is called a subordinate clause.

NOTE A subordinate clause that is capitalized and punctuated as if it were a sentence is a sentence fragment.

Reference Note For information about correcting sentence fragments, see page 269.
The Independent Clause

15b. An independent (or main) clause expresses a complete thought and can stand by itself as a sentence.

EXAMPLES

- I woke up late this morning.
- Do you know Joseph?

When an independent clause stands alone, it is called a sentence. Usually, the term independent clause is used only when such a clause is joined with another clause.

EXAMPLES

- My mother drove me to school. [This entire sentence is an independent clause.]
- My mother drove me to school, but my brother rode his bicycle. [This sentence contains two independent clauses.]
- Since I missed the bus, my mother drove me to school. [This sentence contains one subordinate clause and one independent clause.]

The Subordinate Clause

15c. A subordinate (or dependent) clause does not express a complete thought and cannot stand by itself as a complete sentence.

Words such as because, if, since, that, until, which, and whom signal that the clauses following them may be subordinate. Subordinate means “lesser in rank or importance.” A subordinate clause must be joined with at least one independent clause to make a sentence and express a complete thought.

SUBORDINATE CLAUSES

- if the dress is too long
- that the veterinarian recommended

SENTENCES

- If the dress is too long, we will hem it.
- The new food that the veterinarian recommended is good for our hamster.

Subordinate clauses may appear at the beginning, in the middle, or at the end of a sentence.
Exercise 1  Identifying Independent and Subordinate Clauses

Identify the italicized clause in each of the following sentences as independent or subordinate.

EXAMPLE 1. If you know any modern music history, then you are probably familiar with the Motown sound.
   1. subordinate

1. Do you recognize the entertainers who are shown in the photographs on this page and the next?
2. These performers had hit records in the 1950s and 1960s when the music business in Detroit (the Motor City, or “Motown”) was booming.
3. Berry Gordy, who founded the Motown record label, began his business in a small office in Detroit.
4. He was a songwriter and producer, and he was able to spot talent.
5. Gordy went to clubs to hear local groups whose sound he liked.
6. The Miracles, which was the first group discovered by Gordy, had a lead singer named Smokey Robinson.
7. Robinson was also a songwriter, and Gordy included him in the Motown team of writers and musicians.
8. Gordy carefully managed all aspects of the Motown sound, which is a special combination of rhythm and blues and soul.

9. Diana Ross and the Supremes, Stevie Wonder, Marvin Gaye, the Four Tops, the Temptations, Gladys Knight and the Pips, and Michael Jackson are just some of the performers that Gordy discovered.

10. As you look carefully at the photographs again, can you and your classmates recognize these music legends?

Exercise 2  Identifying Subordinate Clauses

Identify the subordinate clause in each of the following sentences.

EXAMPLE 1. When you get up in the morning, do you look at your sleepy face in a mirror?

1. When you get up in the morning

1. A mirror is a piece of polished metal or glass that is coated with a substance such as silver.

2. The most common type of mirror is the plane mirror, which is flat.

3. The image that is reflected in a plane mirror is reversed.

4. As you look into a mirror, your left hand seems to be the image’s right hand.

5. When an image is reversed, it is called a mirror image.

6. A sailor who looks through the periscope of a submarine is using a system of lenses and mirrors in a tube to see above the water’s surface.

7. Right-hand rearview mirrors on cars, which show a wide area of the road behind, are usually convex, or curved outward.

8. Drivers must be careful because convex mirrors make reflected objects appear far away.

9. Because the mirror in a flashlight is concave, or curved inward, it strengthens the light from a small lightbulb.

10. When you look in a concave mirror, you sometimes see a magnified reflection of yourself.
Exercise 3 Writing Sentences with Subordinate Clauses

Write ten sentences by adding an independent clause to each of the following subordinate clauses. Underline the independent clause in each of your sentences. Make your sentences interesting by using a variety of independent clauses.

EXAMPLES

1. who lives next door to us

   1. Have you or Peggy met the woman who lives next door to us?

2. that Alexander bought

   2. The sleeping bag that Alexander bought was on sale.

1. when I bought the CD
2. who won the contest
3. if my parents agree
4. as Jessye Norman began to sing
5. because we are going to a concert
6. that you made
7. who built the pyramids
8. for which this musician is famous
9. since the introduction of the telephone
10. whose paintings are now famous

The Adjective Clause

15d. An adjective clause is a subordinate clause that modifies a noun or a pronoun.

Like an adjective or an adjective phrase, an adjective clause may modify a noun or a pronoun. Unlike an adjective phrase, an adjective clause contains both a verb and its subject.

ADJECTIVE a blue flower

ADJECTIVE a flower with blue petals [The phrase does not have a verb and its subject.]

ADJECTIVE PHRASE have a verb and its subject.

ADJECTIVE CLAUSE a flower that has blue petals [The clause does have a verb and its subject.]

An adjective clause usually follows the word or words it modifies and tells which one or what kind.
EXAMPLES  Emma Willard was the one who founded the first women’s college in the United States. [The adjective clause modifies the pronoun one, telling which one.]

I want a bicycle that I can ride over rough ground. [The adjective clause modifies the noun bicycle, telling what kind.]

The Relative Pronoun

An adjective clause is usually introduced by a relative pronoun.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Commonly Used Relative Pronouns</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>that</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>which</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>who</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>whom</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>whose</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

These words are called relative pronouns because they relate an adjective clause to the noun or pronoun that the clause modifies.

EXAMPLES  A snorkel is a hollow tube that lets a diver breathe underwater. [The relative pronoun that begins the adjective clause and relates it to the noun tube.]

The team’s mascot, which is a horse, is called Renegade. [The relative pronoun which begins the adjective clause and relates it to the noun mascot.]

Gwendolyn Brooks is the writer who is the poet laureate of Illinois. [The relative pronoun who begins the adjective clause and relates it to the noun writer.]

Those whose library books are overdue must pay fines. [The relative pronoun whose begins the adjective clause and relates it to the pronoun Those.]

NOTE  In some cases, the relative pronoun can be omitted.

EXAMPLE  The person [that or whom] we met at the market was Mrs. Herrera.

Exercise 4  Identifying Adjective Clauses

Identify the adjective clause in each of the sentences on the next page. Underline the relative pronoun that begins the clause.
EXAMPLE

1. The person who wrote the Declaration of Independence was Thomas Jefferson.
   1. who wrote the Declaration of Independence

1. In his later years, Jefferson lived at his home, Monticello, which he designed.
2. Jefferson planned a daily schedule that kept him busy all day.
3. He began each day by writing himself a note that recorded the morning temperature.
4. Then he did his writing, which included letters to friends and businesspeople.
5. Afterward, he ate breakfast, which was served around 9:00 A.M.
6. Jefferson, whose property included stables as well as farm fields, went horseback riding at noon.
7. Dinner, which began about 4:00 P.M., was a big meal.
8. From dinner until dark, he talked to friends and neighbors who came to visit.
9. His large family, whom he often spent time with, included twelve grandchildren.
10. Jefferson, whose interests ranged from art and architecture to biology and mathematics, read each night.

Exercise 5 Writing Appropriate Adjective Clauses

Complete each of the following sentences with an adjective clause. Then, underline the relative pronoun.

EXAMPLE

1. We read the Greek legend ____.
   1. *We read the Greek legend that tells the story of the Trojan horse."

1. You should proofread every composition ____.
2. My best friend, ____, is a good student.
3. Mrs. Rivera, ____, was my fifth-grade teacher.
4. We heard a sound ____.
5. Our neighbors ____ are from Fez, Morocco.
6. The ship, ____, carried bananas.
7. Anyone ____ is excused from the final exam.
8. Carmen, can you tell us about the scientist ____?
9. Is Victor Hugo the author ____?
10. Wow! I didn’t know you had a dog ____.
The Adverb Clause

15e. An adverb clause is a subordinate clause that modifies a verb, an adjective, or an adverb.

Like an adverb or an adverb phrase, an adverb clause can modify a verb, an adjective, or an adverb. Unlike an adverb phrase, an adverb clause contains both a verb and its subject.

ADVERB
Bravely, Jason battled a fierce dragon.

ADVERB PHRASE
With great bravery, Jason battled a fierce dragon. [The phrase does not have both a verb and its subject.]

ADVERB CLAUSE
Because Jason was brave, he battled a fierce dragon. [The clause does have a verb and its subject.]

EXAMPLES
- I feel as though I will never catch up. [The adverb clause tells how I feel.]
- After I finish painting my bookcases, I will call you. [The adverb clause tells when I will call you.]
- I paint where there is plenty of fresh air. [The adverb clause tells where I paint.]
- I have more work to do today because I didn’t paint yesterday. [The adverb clause tells why I have more work to do.]
- Jennifer can run faster than Victor can. [The adverb clause tells to what extent Jennifer can run faster.]
- I will paint until Mom comes home; then I will clean my brushes and set the table for supper. [The adverb clause tells how long I will paint.]
- If I paint for two more hours, I should be able to finish. [The adverb clause tells under what condition I should be able to finish.]

Notice in the preceding examples that adverb clauses may be placed in various positions in sentences. When an adverb clause comes at the beginning, it is usually followed by a comma.
Subordinating Conjunctions

Adverb clauses begin with subordinating conjunctions.

Some words that are used as subordinating conjunctions, such as after, as, before, since, and until, can also be used as prepositions.

- PREPOSITION Before sunrise, we left for the cabin.
- SUBORDINATING CONJUNCTION Before the sun had risen, we left for the cabin.

- PREPOSITION In the nineteenth century, buffalo skins were used as blankets and clothing.
- SUBORDINATING CONJUNCTION Around 1900, as the buffalo became nearly extinct, conservationists fought for its protection.

Exercise 6 Identifying Adverb Clauses

Identify the adverb clause in each of the following sentences.

EXAMPLE

1. As long as they have been a people, the Chinese have been making kites.

   1. As long as they have been a people

1. Although the following story is only a legend, many people believe that a kite like the one pictured on the next page may have saved the people of China’s Han dynasty.

2. The Chinese were about to be attacked by an enemy army when an advisor to the emperor came up with a plan.

3. As the advisor stood beside an open window, his hat was lifted off by a strong wind.

4. He immediately called for a number of kites to be made so that they might be used to frighten the enemy.

Common Subordinating Conjunctions

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>after</th>
<th>because</th>
<th>though</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>although</td>
<td>before</td>
<td>unless</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>as</td>
<td>how</td>
<td>until</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>as if</td>
<td>if</td>
<td>when</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>as long as</td>
<td>in order that</td>
<td>whenever</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>as much as</td>
<td>since</td>
<td>where</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>as soon as</td>
<td>so that</td>
<td>wherever</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>as though</td>
<td>than</td>
<td>while</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
5. The kite makers had no trouble finding lightweight bamboo for their kite frames because bamboo grows widely in China.
6. As each frame was completed, silk was stretched over it.
7. The emperor’s advisor attached noisemakers to the kites so that they would produce an eerie sound.
8. He ordered his men to fly the kites in the darkest hour of night because then the enemy would hear the kites but would not be able to see them.
9. Unless the advisor was wrong, the enemy would think that the kites were gods warning them to retreat.
10. According to the legend, the enemy retreated as if they were being chased by a fire-breathing dragon.

Exercise 7 Writing Adverb Clauses

Complete each of the following sentences with an adverb clause. Then, underline the subordinating conjunction.

EXAMPLE

1. If I’m right, digital cameras will become quite popular.

1. ____

1. ____ everything seemed fresh and new.
2. The gears jammed ____.
3. ____ the African dancers began their routine.
4. From the trees, a Bengal tiger watched the herd ____.
5. ____ , maybe he’ll help you clean your room.
6. Call us ____.
7. ____ , the cement mixer backed up to the wooden frame.
8. The buses have been running on time ____.
9. ____ , street sweepers rolled slowly next to the curb.
10. His map looked ____.

Review A Identifying and Classifying Subordinate Clauses

Identify the subordinate clause in each of the following sentences. Then, classify each clause as an adjective clause or an adverb clause.

EXAMPLES

1. American history is filled with stories of people who performed heroic deeds.
   1. who performed heroic deeds—adjective clause
   2. As the American colonists struggled for independence, women played important roles.
   2. As the American colonists struggled for independence—adverb clause

1. When you study the American Revolution, you may learn about the adventures of a woman known as Molly Pitcher.
2. Molly Pitcher, whose real name was Mary, was the daughter of farmers.
3. Although she was born in New Jersey, she moved to the Pennsylvania colony.
4. There she married William Hays, who was a barber.
5. Hays joined the colonial army when the Revolution began.
6. Mary Hays went to be with her husband in Monmouth, New Jersey, which was the site of a battle on a hot June day in 1778.
7. At first, she carried water to the soldiers so that they would not be overcome by the intense heat.
8. The soldiers nicknamed her “Molly Pitcher” because she carried the water in pitchers.
9. Later, when her husband collapsed from the heat, she took over his cannon.
10. George Washington, who was the commander of the Continental Army, made Molly an honorary sergeant.
Review B  Writing Sentences with Subordinate Clauses

Write twenty different sentences of your own. In each sentence, include a subordinate clause that begins with one of the following words or word groups. Underline the subordinate clause. After the sentence, classify the subordinate clause as an adjective clause or an adverb clause.

EXAMPLES
1. so that
   1. We hurried so that we wouldn’t miss the bus going downtown.—adverb clause

2. whom
   2. Jim Nakamura, whom I met at summer camp, is now my pen pal.—adjective clause

1. which
2. before
3. since
4. who
5. than
6. whose
7. as though
8. although
9. that
10. if
11. because
12. unless
13. as soon as
14. whom
15. while
16. whenever
17. after
18. where
19. as much as
20. wherever
A. Identifying Independent and Subordinate Clauses

Identify the italicized clause in each of the following sentences as an independent or a subordinate clause.

1. As Jawan walked to school, he saw a strange sight.
2. If you go to the library, you should take a look at the young adult section.
3. The book that I read last night was very scary!
4. Long after the rain had stopped, the ground was still wet.
5. If the trip is cancelled, we can play tennis.
6. When the spin cycle stops, please take the laundry out of the washing machine.
7. The shells that they found are still in the closet.
8. Most people are asleep when the morning newspaper is delivered.
9. Was the movie that the reviewers liked sold out?
10. Since we moved here from Chile, we have met many people.

B. Identifying Adjective and Adverb Clauses

Identify each italicized clause in the following sentences as an adjective clause or an adverb clause. Then, write the word each clause modifies.

11. We camped near Lake Arrowhead when we went fishing last year.
12. Because the weather was cold, I wore a sweater under my jacket.
13. The coat that my mother bought for me was blue.
14. As she left her office, Cletha heard the phone.
15. Vince hit the home run that won the game!
16. Everyone who signed up for the marathon should meet at 8:00 A.M. tomorrow in the school parking lot.
17. On Tuesday the Chavez family went to the Rex parade, which is held every year in New Orleans during Mardi Gras.
18. Larry is a little taller than Dana is.
19. The CD that Rita wanted to buy was out of stock.
20. Louise stayed home today because she has a bad case of the flu.
21. Play soccer if you need more exercise.
22. The turtle moves faster than I expected.
23. My older sister, who is on the varsity basketball team, practices after school every day.
24. Since it was such a beautiful evening, we decided to take a long walk.
25. Will the students whose families observe the Jewish Sabbath be excused early on Friday?

C. Identifying Subordinate Clauses
Identify the subordinate clause in each sentence. Then, classify the clause as an adjective clause or an adverb clause. Write none if the sentence does not contain a subordinate clause.

26. The denim blue jeans that are known as Levi’s have an interesting history.
27. They were created in 1873 by Levi Strauss.
28. Strauss, who had immigrated to the United States from Bavaria, founded a clothing company called Levi Strauss & Co.
29. Six years after his arrival in the United States, he sailed to San Francisco because his sister and brother-in-law had a dry goods business there.
30. In 1872, Strauss had received a letter from Jacob Davis, a tailor in Nevada who was one of his regular customers.
31. Davis told Strauss about riveting the pocket corners of work pants so that the pants would be more durable.
32. Since Davis lacked the money to patent this invention, he asked Strauss to be his partner.
33. Both men were named as patent holders in 1873.
34. The copper-riveted overalls were popular with working people who needed tough but comfortable pants.
35. In 1880, the company, whose sales had reached $2.4 million, was selling denim pants to retailers for about $1.50 a pair.
36. Strauss died in 1902, four years before an earthquake and fire in San Francisco destroyed his company’s factories.

37. After the earthquake, the company built a new factory that is still operating today.

38. The company suffered financially, as did many other businesses, during the Great Depression of the 1930s.

39. Since the 1940s, the pants have become increasingly fashionable among young people.

40. In the 1950s, when actors such as James Dean wore them in film roles, the jeans skyrocketed in popularity.

Writing Application

Using Clauses in a Manual

Subordinate Clauses  Your class project for National Safety Week is to write a safety manual. Each class member will write one page of instructions telling what to do in a particular emergency. Use subordinating conjunctions to show the relationships between your ideas.

Prewriting  Think of a specific emergency that you know how to handle. List the steps that someone should follow in this emergency. Number the steps in order. If you aren’t sure of the order or don’t know a particular step, stop writing and get the information you need.

Writing  Use your prewriting list to begin your first draft. As you write, make your instructions as clear as possible. Define or explain terms that might be unfamiliar to your readers. Be sure that your instructions are in the right order.

Revising  Read over your instructions to be sure that you’ve included all necessary information. Add, cut, or rearrange steps to make the instructions easy to follow. Be sure to use appropriate subordinating conjunctions to make the order of the steps clear.

Publishing  Check your work carefully for any errors in grammar, punctuation, and spelling. To publish your class safety manual, gather all the pages and make booklets out of printouts or photocopies. Organize your topics alphabetically, or group them by kinds of emergencies.

HELP  A health teacher, the school nurse, or an organization such as the Red Cross should be able to provide information.

Reference Note  For information about punctuating introductory adverb clauses, see page 613.
Kinds of Sentence Structure
Simple, Compound, Complex, and Compound-Complex Sentences

Diagnostic Preview

A. Identifying and Classifying Clauses
Identify each clause in the following sentences. Then, classify each clause as an independent clause or a subordinate clause.

EXAMPLE
1. Students who are interested in attending the science fair at the community college should sign up now.
   1. Students should sign up now—Independent clause; who are interested in attending the science fair at the community college—Subordinate clause

1. We did warm-up exercises before we practiced the routine.
2. The musical West Side Story is a modern version of the story of Romeo and Juliet.
3. The first poem in the book is about spring, and the second one is about autumn.
4. Molasses, which is made from sugar cane, is a thick brown liquid used for human food and animal feed.
5. Before the test we studied the chapter and did the chapter review exercises.
6. While our teacher discussed the formation of the African nation of Liberia, we took notes.
7. It rained Saturday morning, but the sun came out in time for the opening of the Special Olympics.
8. The player whose performance is judged the best receives the Most Valuable Player Award.
9. Not all stringed instruments sound alike, for their shapes and the number of their strings vary.
10. The tourists that we saw wandering up Esplanade Avenue went to the Japanese ceramics exhibit after they had reached the museum.

B. Identifying Simple, Compound, Complex, and Compound-Complex Sentences

Identify each of the following sentences as simple, compound, complex, or compound-complex.

EXAMPLE 1. The Museum of Science and Industry, which is in Chicago, features a German submarine captured during World War II.

1. complex

11. Either Ana or Lee will sing the opening song for the fair.
12. We visit the Liberty Bell whenever we go to Philadelphia.
13. Have you chosen a topic for your report yet, or are you still making your decision?
14. When George Washington Carver was working on soil improvement and plant diseases, the South was recovering from the Civil War, and his discoveries gave planters a competitive edge.
15. A Tree Grows in Brooklyn, which was written by Betty Smith, is one of my favorite books.
16. The call of a peacock sounds very much like that of a person in distress.
17. Although it was warm enough to go swimming on Monday, snow fell the next day.
18. The student whose photographs of American Indian cliff dwellings won the contest was interviewed on the local news.
19. The house looked completely empty when I first saw it, yet a party was going on in the backyard.
20. The game was tied at the top of the ninth inning, but then Earlene hit a home run.
The Simple Sentence

16a. A simple sentence contains one independent clause and no subordinate clauses.

EXAMPLES
- A good rain will help the farmers.
- Up for the rebound leaped Reggie.
- Where are my keys?
- Please put that down near the table in the corner.
  [The understood subject is you.]

A simple sentence may have a compound subject, a compound verb, or both.

EXAMPLES
- Chalupas and fajitas are two popular Mexican dishes. [compound subject]
- Kelly read The Planet of Junior Brown and reported on it last week. [compound verb]
- The dog and the kitten lay there and napped. [compound subject and compound verb]

Exercise 1 Identifying Subjects and Verbs in Simple Sentences

Identify the subjects and the verbs in each of the following sentences.

EXAMPLE
1. I enjoy urban life but need to escape from the city once in a while.
   1. I—subject; enjoy, need—verbs

1. My favorite escape from city life is the green world of Central Park in New York City.
2. Its beautiful woods and relaxing outdoor activities are just a few minutes from our apartment.
3. The enormous size of the park, however, can sometimes be a problem.
4. Often, I take this map with me for guidance.
5. Using the map, I can easily find the zoo, the band shell, and the Lost Waterfall.
6. In the summertime my brothers and I row boats on the lake, climb huge rock slabs, and have picnics in the Sheep Meadow.
7. I also watch birds and often wander around the park in search of my favorite species.
8. Last month a pair of purple finches followed me along the pond.
9. Near Heckscher Playground, the birds tired of the game and flew off.
10. In Central Park my family and I can enjoy a little bit of nature in the middle of a bustling city.

The Compound Sentence

16b. A compound sentence contains two or more independent clauses and no subordinate clauses.

| INDEPENDENT | Melvina wrote about her mother’s aunt |
| CLAUSE | |
| INDEPENDENT | Leroy wrote about his cousin from Jamaica |
| COMPOUND SENTENCE | Melvina wrote about her mother’s aunt, and Leroy wrote about his cousin from Jamaica. |

The independent clauses of a compound sentence are usually joined by a comma and a coordinating conjunction (and, but, for, nor, or, so, or yet).

EXAMPLES

- A variety of fruits and vegetables should be a part of everyone’s diet, for they supply many important vitamins.

- Kathryn’s scene is in the last act of the play, so she must wait in the wings for her cue.

- No one was injured in the fire, but several homes were destroyed, and many trees burned down.

Reference Note

For more about using commas in compound sentences, see page 605.
The independent clauses of a compound sentence may be joined by a semicolon.

EXAMPLES
Pedro Menéndez de Avilés founded St. Augustine, the first permanent European settlement in the United States; he also established six other colonies in the Southeast.

My favorite places are Miami, Florida, and Aspen, Colorado; Bernie’s favorites are San Diego, California, and Seattle, Washington.

Exercise 2
Identifying Subjects and Verbs in Compound Sentences

Identify the subject and verb in each independent clause. Then, give the punctuation mark and coordinating conjunction (if there is one) that join the clauses.

EXAMPLE
1. A newspaper reporter will speak to our class next week, and we will learn about careers in journalism.
   1. reporter—subject; will speak—verb; we—subject; will learn—verb; comma +

1. Ruth Benedict was a respected anthropologist, and Margaret Mead was one of her students.
2. An area’s weather may change rapidly, but its climate changes very slowly.
3. Linh Phan lived in Vietnam for many years, so he could tell us about Vietnamese foods such as nuoc mam.
4. Students may prepare their reports on the computer, or they may write them neatly.
5. Our apartment manager is kind, yet she will not allow pets in the building.
6. Daniel Boone had no formal education, but he could read and write.
7. Sofia’s favorite dance is the samba; Elena enjoys the merengue.
8. Benjamin Franklin is known for his inventions, and he should also be remembered for his work during the Constitutional Convention.
9. Sheena did not play soccer; she had sprained her ankle.
10. They did not watch the shuttle take off, nor did they watch it land.
Simple Sentence or Compound Sentence?

A simple sentence has only one independent clause. It may have a compound subject or a compound verb or both.

A compound sentence has two or more independent clauses. Each independent clause has its own subject and verb. Any of the independent clauses in a compound sentence may have a compound subject, a compound verb, or both.

SIMPLE SENTENCE

Kim and Maureen read each other's short stories and made many suggestions for improvements. [compound subject and compound verb]

COMPOUND SENTENCE

Kim and Maureen read each other's stories, and they gave each other suggestions for improvements. [The first independent clause has a compound subject and a single verb. The second independent clause has a single subject and a single verb.]

NOTE

When a subject is repeated after a coordinating conjunction, the sentence is not simple.

SIMPLE SENTENCE

We studied the artist Romare Bearden and went to an exhibit of his paintings.

COMPOUND SENTENCE

We studied the artist Romare Bearden, and we went to an exhibit of his paintings.

Exercise 3 Distinguishing Compound Sentences from Sentences with Compound Subjects or Compound Verbs

Identify the subjects and verbs in each of the sentences on the following page. Then, identify each sentence as either simple or compound.
EXAMPLES

1. A rain forest is a tropical evergreen forest and has heavy rains throughout the year.
   1. rain forest—subject; is, has—verbs; simple

2. The trees and other plants in a rain forest grow close together, and they rise to different heights.
   2. trees, plants—subjects; grow—verb; they—subject; rise—verb; compound

1. The Amazon River is located in South America and is one of the longest rivers in the world.
2. The Amazon begins in Peru, and it flows across Brazil to the Atlantic Ocean.
3. This river carries more water than any other river and drains about one fifth of the earth’s entire freshwater supply.
4. The Amazon is actually a network of several rivers, but most people think of these combined rivers as only one river.
5. These rivers drain the largest rainy area in the world, and during the flood season, the main river often overflows its banks.
6. In the photo at the left, the Amazon does twist and curve.
7. Generally, it follows a fairly straight course and flows at an average rate of about one and one-half miles an hour during the dry season.
8. The Amazon rain forest is only two hundred miles wide along the Atlantic, but it stretches to twelve hundred miles wide at the foot of the Andes Mountains in Peru.
9. The variety of plant life in the Amazon rain forest is remarkable; in fact, of all rain forests in the world, this area may contain the greatest number of plant species.
10. Raw materials are shipped directly from ports deep in the rain forest, for oceangoing ships can sail more than two thousand miles up the Amazon.
The Complex Sentence

16c. A complex sentence contains one independent clause and at least one subordinate clause.

Two kinds of subordinate clauses are adjective clauses and adverb clauses. Adjective clauses usually begin with relative pronouns such as who, whom, whose, which, and that. Adverb clauses begin with subordinating conjunctions such as after, as, because, if, since, and when.

EXAMPLES Patricia Roberts Harris, who served as President Carter’s secretary of housing and urban development, was the first African American woman to be a Cabinet member. [complex sentence with adjective clause]

When I hear classical music, I think of Aunt Sofia. [complex sentence with adverb clause]

One interesting annual event that is held in the Southwest is the Inter-Tribal Indian Ceremonial, which involves many different American Indian peoples. [complex sentence with two adjective clauses]

Exercise 4 Identifying Subordinate Clauses

Identify the subordinate clause in each of the following sentences. Then, underline the relative pronoun or the subordinating conjunction that begins the subordinate clause.

EXAMPLES 1. Helen Keller, who overcame severe physical impairments, showed great determination.
   1. who overcame severe physical impairments
   2. Keller was fortunate because she had such a skillful and loving teacher.
   2. because she had such a skillful and loving teacher

1. Helen Keller, who is shown in the photograph at right, became very ill as a small child.
2. After she recovered from the illness, she could no longer see or hear.
3. Because she could not hear, she also lost her ability to speak.

Reference Note

For more information on adjective clauses, see page 427. For more about adverb clauses, see page 430. For more about relative pronouns, see page 344. For more about subordinating conjunctions, see page 431.

Reference Note

For information on using commas with subordinate clauses, see page 607.
4. Helen’s parents asked Alexander Graham Bell, who trained teachers of people with hearing impairments, for his advice about the child’s education.

5. Upon Bell’s suggestion, a special teacher, whose name was Anne Sullivan, stayed at the Kellers’ home to teach Helen.

6. Sullivan spelled words into Helen’s hand as the child touched the object represented by the word.

7. From this basic understanding of language, Helen went on to learn Braille, which is the alphabet used by people with visual impairments.

8. Sullivan, whose own vision had been partly restored by surgery, remained with Helen for many years.

9. Because she had triumphed over her impairments, Helen Keller was awarded the Medal of Freedom.

10. Keller’s autobiography, which is titled The Story of My Life, tells about her remarkable achievements.

Classifying Simple, Compound, and Complex Sentences

Classify each of the following sentences as simple, compound, or complex.

EXAMPLE

1. The Mississippi River, which begins in the town of Lake Itasca, Minnesota, is the setting for many of Mark Twain’s stories.

   1. complex
1. I drew an illustration for a poem that was written by Robert Hayden.
2. The Olympic skaters felt anxious, but they still performed their routine perfectly.
3. Kamehameha Day is an American holiday that honors the king who united the islands of Hawaii.
4. For the first time in his life, Luke saw the ocean.
5. If you had a choice, would you rather visit China or Japan?
6. The bull was donated to the children’s zoo by the people who bought it at the auction.
7. Lookout Mountain, which is in Tennessee, was the site of a battle during the Civil War.
8. The guide led us through Mammoth Cave; she explained the difference between stalactites and stalagmites.
9. Wilhelm Steinitz of Austria became famous after he was officially recognized as the first world champion of chess.
10. Amy Tan is the author of the book The Joy Luck Club.

The Compound-Complex Sentence

16d. A compound-complex sentence contains two or more independent clauses and at least one subordinate clause.

In the examples below, independent clauses are underlined once. Subordinate clauses are underlined twice.

EXAMPLES

The band began to play, and Clarissa was pulled onto the floor for a dance that was starting. [compound-complex sentence with adjective clause]

Whenever we go on vacation, our neighbors mow our yard, and they collect our mail. [compound-complex sentence with adverb clause]

Style Tip

Simple sentences are best used to express single ideas. To describe more complicated ideas and to show how the ideas fit together, use compound and complex sentences.

Simple Sentences

We went camping in the national park. Darla saw a snake. At first she was afraid. Then she looked more closely at it. [The sentences are choppy, and the ideas seem unrelated.]

Complex and Compound Sentences

When we went camping in the national park, Darla saw a snake. At first she was afraid, but then she looked more closely at it.

Reference Note

For more about adjective and adverb clauses, see pages 427 and 430.
Exercise 5 Identifying Compound, Complex, and Compound-Complex Sentences

Identify each of the following sentences as either compound, complex, or compound-complex.

EXAMPLE

1. I’ll sweep the porch, and Ben will start supper before Mom gets home.
   1. compound-complex

1. If you’ve never tried Indian curry, try some of Usha’s.
2. The disk drive light went on, and the drive motor whirred, but the computer would not read the disk.
3. Although the river appeared calm, crocodiles lay motionless beneath the surface.
4. Several small herds of mustangs roam these hills; we’re going to find them.
5. An antique wagon, whose wheels once rolled along the Chisholm Trail, stood next to the barn.
6. You can talk to me whenever you have a problem, or you can talk to your mom.
7. Since daylight saving time started, the sky doesn’t get dark until late, and that just doesn’t seem right to me.
8. The plaster, which had been given a rough texture, cast shadows on itself.
9. They don’t have the book that we need, so let’s go to the library.
10. Did you really live in Nairobi, or are you just kidding?

Review B Classifying Simple, Compound, Complex, and Compound-Complex Sentences

Classify each of the following sentences as simple, compound, complex, or compound-complex.

EXAMPLE

1. The Iroquois people traditionally held a Green Corn Festival in August when their crops were ready for harvesting.
   1. complex

1. For the early Iroquois, the Green Corn Festival was a celebration that included many events, so it often lasted several days.
2. During the celebration, all children who had been born since midwinter received their names.
3. Iroquois leaders made speeches, and adults and children listened to them carefully.
4. In one traditional speech, the leader would give thanks for the harvest.
5. After they had heard the speeches, the people sang and danced.
6. On the second day of the festival, the people performed a special dance; during the dance they gave thanks for the sun, the moon, and the stars.
7. On the third day, the Iroquois gave thanks for the helpfulness of their neighbors and for good luck.
8. The festival ended on the fourth day when teams of young people would play a bowling game.
9. During the festival the people renewed their friendships, and they rejoiced in their harmony with nature.
10. This Iroquois festival resembles the U.S. Thanksgiving holiday, which has its roots in similar American Indian celebrations.

The Corn Dance

Review C Writing Simple, Compound, Complex, and Compound-Complex Sentences

Write ten sentences of your own, following the guidelines given below.

EXAMPLE 1. Write a simple sentence with a compound subject.
   1. Jorge and Pilar gave me their recipe for guacamole.

1. Write a simple sentence with a compound verb.
2. Write a simple sentence with a compound subject and a compound verb.
3. Write a compound sentence with two independent clauses joined by a comma and the coordinating conjunction and.
4. Write a compound sentence with two independent clauses joined by a comma and the coordinating conjunction but.
5. Write a compound sentence with two independent clauses joined by a semicolon.
6. Write a compound sentence with three independent clauses.
7. Write a complex sentence with an adjective clause.
8. Write a complex sentence with an adverb clause.
9. Write a compound-complex sentence with an adjective clause.
10. Write a compound-complex sentence with an adverb clause.
Chapter Review

A. Identifying Independent and Subordinate Clauses

Identify each clause in the following sentences. Then, classify each clause as an independent clause or a subordinate clause.

1. Yvette raked the leaves, and Tito mowed the lawn.
2. Lupe and Ben went to the park so that they could watch the fireworks display.
3. Carl and I chose enchiladas instead of sandwiches from the cafeteria’s menu.
4. The new camp that offers instruction in computer programming will be in session from August 17 through August 28.
5. The rain changed to snow that was mixed with sleet.
6. Practice your tai chi exercises when you go to the beach.
7. My grandparents, who enjoy exciting vacations, visited Nepal last year.
8. Since last year Simone has grown three inches, but she still can’t reach the top shelf in the kitchen.
9. Will Martin loan me this book by Jamaica Kincaid when he is through with it?
10. Aretha hopes to be a veterinarian because she likes to be around animals.

B. Identifying Simple and Compound Sentences

Classify each of the following sentences as simple or compound.

11. Do Nathan and Shenille read only science fiction or fantasy short stories?
12. My sister and brother-in-law live in Colorado, and they raise sheep and grow fruit trees.
13. Chai wants to walk to the theater, but I want to take the bus.
14. Aunt Evelyn and Uncle Michael are both surgeons and work at Riverside Hospital.
15. The good queen pardoned the jester, for he had meant no real harm.
16. Taking the train, Mei-Ling and her parents can be in Chicago in two hours.
17. Blair is interested in becoming an astronaut, so she wrote to NASA for information.
18. Tate laid out the patio and built it himself.
19. After eating, Marcia’s cat Bartinka likes to take a long nap.
20. Mike designed and constructed the sets for the play, and Mary Anne designed the costumes and makeup.

C. Identifying Compound and Complex Sentences

Identify each of the following sentences as compound or complex. If the sentence is compound, write the comma and coordinating conjunction or the semicolon that joins the clauses. If the sentence is complex, write the relative pronoun or subordinating conjunction that joins the clauses.

21. Nineteenth-century shopkeepers often attracted customers by placing a carved wooden figure, which was called a shop figure, outside their shops.
22. The shop figures were usually carved by ship carvers, who had learned to carve figures by creating ship figureheads.
23. The figures cost a great deal to make, and they were expensive to maintain.
24. Many shopkeepers were upset because the figures were so very costly.
25. Many of the wooden figures were of politicians and baseball players; others represented American Indians.
26. One surviving figure represents Father Time, and another one represents a New York City firefighter.
27. The firefighter, which commemorates Columbian Engine Company 14, now stands in the New York City Fire Museum.
28. The figures were popular between the 1840s and the 1890s, and during that time they actually became a fad.
29. By the end of the century, the carved shop figure was no longer widely used since new types of advertising had become available.
30. People saw shop figures as old-fashioned, so shopkeepers stopped using them.
D. Classifying Compound, Complex, and Compound-Complex Sentences

Classify each of the following sentences as compound, complex, or compound-complex.

31. Islam, which originated in Arabia, is the religion of the Muslims, and it is based on a belief in one God.

32. Most Muslims live in Africa, the Middle East, and Malaysia; in recent years many have come to the United States and have brought their religion with them.

33. Some American Muslims are members of the Nation of Islam, which was founded in the United States after World War II.

34. When a mosque was opened in New York in May 1991, religious leaders and other Muslims went there to pray.

35. Some worshipers wore the traditional clothing of their homelands; others were dressed in typical American clothes.

36. Muslims were particularly pleased that the new mosque opened in the spring.

37. The Muslim month of fasting, which is called Ramadan, had just ended, so the holiday after Ramadan could be celebrated in the new house of worship.

38. Although Muslims share a common religion, their languages differ.

39. Many Muslims speak Arabic, but those in Iran, Turkey, and neighboring countries, for example, speak other languages as well.

40. Of course, Muslims who were born in the United States generally speak English, and many Muslims who are recent immigrants are learning it as a new language.

E. Classifying Sentences by Structure

Classify each of the following sentences as simple, compound, complex, or compound-complex.

41. Easter Island, which is also known as Rapa Nui, is a small Polynesian island in the South Pacific.

42. The island is the most remote inhabited place on the planet.
43. The Polynesians were among the most accomplished sailors in the world; they are especially known for their skill at navigation.

44. The earliest evidence of people on Easter Island dates from around A.D. 700, but the island may have been inhabited earlier than that.

45. The island is best known for its giant stone statues with long noses and pursed lips.

46. The statues, which are called moai, were carved out of volcanic rock, and some of them were placed upright on platforms called ahu.

47. The moai that were set up on platforms were transported as far as six miles from the quarry, but no one knows for certain how the islanders moved them.

48. Several theories have been proposed, yet no single theory explains all the evidence.

49. When the British explorer Captain Cook visited the island in 1774, he noticed that many of the statues had been overturned.

50. The oral tradition of the islanders speaks of a civil war that broke out between two peoples on the island, the Hanau Eepe and the Hanau Momko.

Writing Application

Writing a Letter

Using a Variety of Sentence Structures Anyone can enter the “Win Your Dream House” Contest. All you have to do is describe your ideal house. Write a letter to the contest judges, describing where your dream house would be and what it would look like. Use a variety of sentence structures to make your letter interesting for the judges to read.
Prewriting Make a list of the special features of the house you want to describe. To help you think of ideas, you may want to look through magazines or books to find pictures of interesting homes. You may also find it helpful to draw a rough diagram of the rooms, yard, and other features you would want to add. Take notes on the details you want to include.

Writing As you write your first draft, use your notes to include vivid details that will give the contest judges a clear picture of your dream house.

Revising Read your letter to make sure it is interesting and clear. Also, check to see whether you can combine similar ideas by using either compound or complex sentences. Ask an adult to read your letter. Does he or she think your description would impress the contest judges?

Publishing Check the grammar and spelling in your letter. Also, make sure that you have used commas correctly in compound sentences and complex sentences. You and your classmates may want to create a bulletin board display of the pictures or diagrams you used in designing your dream house and to post your descriptions next to the display.

Reference Note For information on using commas, see page 602.
A. Identifying Correct Subject-Verb Agreement and Pronoun-Antecedent Agreement

Choose the correct word or word group in parentheses in each of the following sentences.

EXAMPLE

1. Some of the paintings (is, are) dry now.
   1. are

1. Three hours of work (is, are) needed to finish the charcoal drawing for art class.
2. Everybody has offered (his or her, their) advice.
3. Harlem Shadows (is, are) a collection of poems by the writer Claude McKay.
4. Either Stu or Ryan can volunteer (his, their) skill in the kitchen.
5. Black beans, rice, and onions (tastes, taste) good together.
6. Not one of them has offered (his or her, their) help.
7. Sometimes my family (disagrees, disagree) with one another, but usually we all get along fairly well.
8. Five dollars (is, are) all you will need for the matinee.
9. ( Doesn’t, Don’t) too many cooks spoil the broth?
10. One of my aunts gave me (her, their) silk kimono.
B. Proofreading for Subject-Verb Agreement and Pronoun-Antecedent Agreement

Most of the following sentences contain an agreement error. Write the incorrect verb or pronoun. Then, write the correct form. If the sentence is already correct, write C.

EXAMPLE
1. Most stargazers has seen points of light shooting across the night sky.
   1. has—have

11. These points of light is commonly called shooting stars.
12. Scientists who study our solar system calls these points of light meteors.
13. Some meteors are pieces of asteroids that exploded long ago.
14. Each of these pieces are still flying through space on the path of the original asteroid.
15. Most nights, a person is lucky if they can see a single meteor now and then.
16. Throughout the year, however, there is meteor “showers.”
17. None of these showers are as big as the ones that come each year in August and November.
18. Either Katie or Carla once saw a spectacular meteor shower on their birthday.
19. In November 1833, one of the largest meteor showers in history were recorded.
20. Two hundred forty thousand meteors observed in just a few hours are a record that has never been matched!

Number

Number is the form a word takes to indicate whether the word is singular or plural.

17a. When a word refers to one person, place, thing, or idea, it is singular in number. When a word refers to more than one, it is plural in number.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Singular</th>
<th>igloo</th>
<th>she</th>
<th>one</th>
<th>child</th>
<th>class</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Plural</td>
<td>igloos</td>
<td>they</td>
<td>many</td>
<td>children</td>
<td>classes</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Exercise 1  Classifying Nouns and Pronouns by Number

Classify each of the following words as singular or plural.

EXAMPLES

1. girl 2. rivers
1. singular 2. plural

1. evening 6. teeth 11. hoof 16. magazine
2. wolves 7. tacos 12. mice 17. oxen
3. women 8. we 13. I 18. he
5. they 10. armies 15. geese 20. cargo

Agreement of Subject and Verb

17b. A verb should agree in number with its subject.

Two words agree when they have the same number. The number of a verb should agree with the number of its subject.

(1) Singular subjects take singular verbs.

EXAMPLES

Ed takes the bus. [Ed is singular, so takes is also singular.]

Jan takes the bus. [Jan is singular, so takes is also singular.]

(2) Plural subjects take plural verbs.

EXAMPLES

Cheetahs run fast. [Cheetahs is plural, so run is also plural.]

New families move into our neighborhood often. [Families is plural, so move is also plural.]

When a sentence contains a verb phrase, the first helping verb in the verb phrase agrees with the subject.

EXAMPLES

The motor is running.

The motors are running.

The girl has been delayed.

The girls have been delayed.

Is anyone filling the aquarium?

Are any students filling the aquarium?
Identifying Verbs That Agree in Number with Their Subjects

Identify the form of the verb in parentheses that agrees with its subject.

EXAMPLE

1. wind (howls, howl)
   - howls

2. people (talks, talk)
3. rain (splashes, splash)
4. birds (flies, fly)
5. we (helps, help)
6. geese (hisses, hiss)
7. night (falls, fall)
8. roofs (leaks, leak)
9. baby (smiles, smile)
10. it (appears, appear)
   - tooth (aches, ache)

Exercise 3 Identifying Verbs That Agree in Number with Their Subjects

Identify the form of the verb in parentheses that agrees with its subject.

EXAMPLE

1. Special tours (is, are) offered at the National Air and Space Museum in Washington, D.C.
   - are

1. This museum (has, have) been called the best of all the Smithsonian museums.
2. This enormous building (covers, cover) three blocks.
3. Twenty-three galleries (offers, offer) visitors information and entertainment.
4. The different showrooms (deals, deal) with various aspects of air and space travel.
5. As you can see, the exhibits (features, feature) antique aircraft as well as modern spacecraft.
6. In another area, a theater (shows, show) films on a five-story-high screen.
7. A planetarium (is, are) located on the second floor.
8. Projectors (casts, cast) realistic images of stars on the ceiling.
9. Some tours (is, are) conducted by pilots.
10. In addition, the museum (houses, house) a large research library.
Exercise 4  Proofreading for Errors in Subject-Verb Agreement

Most of the following sentences contain errors in subject-verb agreement. If a verb does not agree with its subject, write the correct form of the verb. If a sentence is already correct, write C.

EXAMPLE 1. More than fifteen million people lives in and around Mexico’s capital.

1. live

1. Located in an ancient lake bed, Mexico City have been built on Aztec ruins.
2. Visitors admire the colorful paintings of Diego Rivera at the National Palace.
3. In one of the city’s many subway stations, an Aztec pyramid still stand.
4. Sculptures grace the Alameda, which is Mexico City’s main park.
5. Atop the Latin American Tower, an observatory offer a great view on a clear day.
6. At the National Autonomous University of Mexico, the library’s outer walls is famous as works of art.
7. Juan O’Gorman’s huge mosaics shows the cultural history of Mexico.
8. Usually, tourists is quite fascinated by the Great Temple of the Aztecs.
9. Many fiestas fills Mexico City’s social calendar.
10. In addition, the city has one of the largest soccer stadiums in the world.

Problems in Agreement

Phrases Between Subject and Verb

17c. The number of a subject is not changed by a phrase following the subject.

EXAMPLES The hero of those folk tales is Coyote. [The verb is agrees with the subject hero, not with tales.]

The successful candidate, along with two of her aides, has entered the auditorium. [The helping verb has agrees with the subject candidate, not with aides.]
Scientists from all over the world have gathered in Geneva. [The helping verb have agrees with the subject Scientists, not with world.]

The crystal pitcher, oozing water droplets, was cracked along the base. [The helping verb was agrees with the subject pitcher, not with droplets.]

NOTE If the subject is the indefinite pronoun all, any, more, most, none, or some, its number may be determined by the object of a prepositional phrase that follows it.

EXAMPLES Most of the essays were graded. [Most refers to the plural word essays.]
Most of this essay is illegible. [Most refers to the singular word essay.]

Exercise 5 Identifying Verbs That Agree in Number with Their Subjects

Identify the form of the verb in parentheses that agrees with its subject.

EXAMPLE 1. The water in the earth’s oceans (cover, covers) much of the planet’s surface.
1. covers

1. A tidal wave, despite its name, (is, are) not caused by the tides.
2. Earthquakes beneath the sea (causes, cause) most tidal waves.
3. A network of warning signals (alert, alerts) people in coastal areas of an approaching tidal wave.
4. The tremendous force of tidal waves sometimes (causes, cause) great destruction.
5. Walls of earth and stone along the shore (is, are) often too weak to protect coastal villages.
6. Some tidal waves, according to this encyclopedia article, (travel, travels) more than five hundred miles an hour.
7. Tidal waves in the open ocean generally (do, does) not cause much interest.
8. The height of tidal waves there often (remain, remains) low.
9. However, waves up to one hundred feet high (occur, occurs) when tidal waves hit land.
10. The scientific name for tidal waves (are, is) tsunamis.
Indefinite Pronouns

You may recall that personal pronouns refer to specific people, places, things, or ideas. A pronoun that does not refer to a definite person, place, thing, or idea is called an indefinite pronoun.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Personal Pronouns</th>
<th>Indefinite Pronouns</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>she</td>
<td>anybody</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>them</td>
<td>both</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>we</td>
<td>either</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>you</td>
<td>everyone</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

17d. The following indefinite pronouns are singular: anybody, anyone, anything, each, either, everybody, everyone, everything, neither, nobody, no one, nothing, one, somebody, someone, and something.

EXAMPLES

- Each of the newcomers was welcomed to the city.
- Neither of these papayas is ripe.
- Does anybody on the bus speak Arabic?

---

Exercise 6 Identify Verbs That Agree in Number with Their Subjects

Choose the form of the verb in parentheses that agrees with its subject.

EXAMPLE

1. One of these books (is, are) yours.

   1. is

1. Neither of the movies (were, was) especially funny.
2. Everybody in those classes (gets, get) to leave early.
3. Someone among the store owners (donates, donate) the big trophy each year.
4. Each of the Jackson brothers (study, studies) dance.
5. No one on either team (was, were) ever in a playoff before.
6. Everyone with an interest in sports (are, is) at the tryouts.
7. Anybody with binoculars (are, is) popular at a large stadium.
8. Each of our neighbors (have, has) helped us plant the new community garden.
9. One of the new Spanish teachers (supervises, supervise) the language lab.
10. Nobody in our family (speak, speaks) Greek well, but we all can speak a little bit.

17e. The following indefinite pronouns are plural: both, few, many, several.

EXAMPLES Few of our neighbors have parakeets.
Many of them keep dogs as pets.

17f. The indefinite pronouns all, any, more, most, none, and some may be either singular or plural, depending on their meaning in a sentence.

The number of the pronouns all, any, more, most, none, and some is often determined by the number of the object in a prepositional phrase following the subject. These pronouns are singular when they refer to a singular word and are plural when they refer to a plural word.

EXAMPLES All of the fruit is ripe. [All is singular because it refers to the singular word fruit. The verb is is singular to agree with the subject All.]
All of the pears are ripe. [All is plural because it refers to the plural word pears. The verb are is plural to agree with the subject All.]
Some of the harvest has been sold. [Some is singular because it refers to the singular word harvest. The helping verb has is singular to agree with the subject Some.]
Some of the apples have been sold. [Some is plural because it refers to the plural word apples. The helping verb have is plural to agree with the subject Some.]

NOTE The pronouns listed in Rule 17f aren’t always followed by prepositional phrases.

EXAMPLES All are here.
Some has spilled.

In such cases you should look at the context—the sentences before and after the pronoun—to see if the pronoun refers to a singular or a plural word.
Exercise 7  Identifying Verbs That Agree in Number with Their Subjects

Identify the verb form in parentheses that agrees with its subject.

EXAMPLE 1. Somebody in the club (want, wants) the meetings held on a different day.
   1. wants

1. “Both of the tapes (sound, sounds) good to me,” Gregory said.
2. If anyone (know, knows) a better way to get to Washington Square, please tell me.
3. Each of the problems (are, is) easy to solve if you know the correct formulas.
4. Probably everyone in the class (remember, remembers) how to boil an egg.
5. All of the new research on dreams (is, are) fascinating.
6. Most of our dreams (occur, occurs) toward morning.
7. Few of us really (understand, understands) the four cycles of sleep.
8. Most of the research (focus, focuses) on the cycle known as rapid eye movement, or REM.
9. None of last night’s dream (is, are) clear to me.
10. Many of our dreams at night (is, are) about that day’s events.

Review A  Identifying Verbs That Agree in Number with Their Subjects

Identify the verb form in parentheses that agrees with its subject.

EXAMPLE 1. The flying object shown on the next page probably (look, looks) familiar to you.
   1. looks

1. Many people throughout the world (claims, claim) to have seen objects like this.
2. However, no one (know, knows) for sure what they are.
3. They (resembles, resemble) huge plates or saucers.
4. Not surprisingly, people (call, calls) them flying saucers.
5. Since 1947, they (has, have) been officially called unidentified flying objects, or UFOs.
6. The U.S. government (has, have) investigated many unusual UFO sightings.
7. The U.S. Air Force (was, were) responsible for conducting these investigations.
8. Government records (shows, show) that more than twelve thousand sightings were reported between 1948 and 1969.
9. Most reported sightings (has, have) turned out to be fakes, but others remain unexplained.
10. None of the official reports positively (proves, prove) that UFOs come from outer space.

Compound Subjects

17g. Subjects joined by and usually take a plural verb.

EXAMPLES

Our dog and cat get baths in the summer.

Mr. Duffy and his daughter have gone fishing.

A compound subject that names only one person or thing takes a singular verb.

EXAMPLES

A famous singer and dancer is going to speak at our drama club meeting. [One person is meant.]

Macaroni and cheese is my favorite supper. [One dish is meant.]
Identifying Verbs That Agree in Number with Their Subjects

Identify the correct form of the verb in parentheses. If you choose a singular verb with any of these compound subjects, be prepared to explain why.

EXAMPLE

1. Chris and her sister (is, are) in the school band.
   1. are

1. (Is, Are) the brown bear and the polar bear related?
2. Wind and water (erodes, erode) valuable farmland throughout the United States.
3. My guide and companion in Bolivia (was, were) Pilar.
4. New words and new meanings for old words (is, are) included in a good dictionary.
5. Mrs. Chang and her daughter (rents, rent) an apartment.
6. Iron and calcium (needs, need) to be included in a good diet.
7. Mr. Marley and his class (has, have) painted a wall-size map.
8. A horse and buggy (was, were) once a common way to travel.
9. Tornadoes and hurricanes (is, are) dangerous storms.
10. Fruit and cheese (tastes, taste) good together.

17h. Singular subjects joined by or or nor take a singular verb.

EXAMPLES
The chief geologist or her assistant is due to arrive tonight. [Either one is due, not both.]

Neither a rabbit nor a mole does that kind of damage. [Neither one does the damage.]

Plural subjects joined by or or nor take a plural verb.

EXAMPLES
Either mice or squirrels are living in our attic.

Neither the senators nor the representatives want the bill to be vetoed by the president.

17i. When a singular subject and a plural subject are joined by or or nor, the verb agrees with the subject nearer the verb.

EXAMPLES
A book or flowers usually make an appropriate gift. [The verb agrees with the nearer subject, flowers.]

Flowers or a book usually makes an appropriate gift. [The verb agrees with the nearer subject, book.]
Exercise 9  Identifying Verbs That Agree in Number with Their Subjects

Identify the correct form of the verb in parentheses in each of the following sentences. Be prepared to explain the reason for your choice.

EXAMPLE 1. The club president or the officers (meets, meet) regularly with the sponsors.

1. meet

1. Neither pens nor pencils (is, are) needed to mark the ballots.
2. Either my aunt or my uncle (is, are) going to drive us.
3. That table or this chair (was, were) made by hand in Portugal.
4. (Has, Have) the sandwiches or other refreshments been served yet?
5. Index cards or a small tablet (is, are) handy for taking notes.
6. Neither that clock nor my wristwatch (shows, show) the correct time.
7. One boy or girl (takes, take) the part of the narrator.
8. During our last visit to Jamaica, a map or a guidebook (was, were) my constant companion.
9. The dentist or her assistant (checks, check) my braces.
10. Either Japanese poetry or Inuit myths (is, are) going to be the focus of my report.

Review B  Proofreading for Subject-Verb Agreement

Identify each verb that does not agree with its subject in the following sentences. Then, write the correct form of each verb.

EXAMPLE 1. The players in the photograph on the next page is competing in the most popular sport in the world—soccer.

1. is—are

1. One expert in the field of sports have described soccer as the world’s favorite type of football.
2. Some sports writers has estimated that there are over thirty million registered soccer players around the globe.
3. Youth leagues and coaching clinics has helped make amateur soccer the fastest-growing team sport in the United States.
4. In Dallas, Texas, neither baseball nor American football attract as many young players as soccer does.
5. Also, more colleges now have varsity soccer teams than have football teams.
6. This increase in soccer fans is a trend that started in 1967, when professional teams began playing in the United States.
7. Additional interest was generated when the U.S. Youth Soccer Association was formed.
8. Both males and females enjoy playing this sport.
9. In fact, by the 1980s, many of the soccer teams in the country were women’s teams.
10. In the past, professional soccer were more popular abroad, but the United States hosted the World Cup in 1994.

Other Problems in Subject-Verb Agreement

17j. A collective noun may be either singular or plural, depending on its meaning in a sentence.

A collective noun is singular in form but names a group of persons, animals, or things.
A collective noun takes a singular verb when the noun refers to the group as a unit. A collective noun takes a plural verb when the noun refers to the individual parts or members of the group.

EXAMPLES
The class has decided to have a science fair in November. [The class as a unit has decided.]
The class were divided in their opinions of the play. [The members of the class were divided in their opinions.]

My family plans to attend Beth’s graduation. [The family as a unit plans to attend.]
My family are coming from all over the state for the reunion. [The members of the family are coming.]

17k. When the subject follows the verb, find the subject and make sure that the verb agrees with it.

The subject usually follows the verb in questions and in sentences beginning with here or there.

EXAMPLES
Where was the cat?
Where were the cats?

Does Jim know the Chens?
Do the Chens know Jim?

Here is my umbrella.
Here are our umbrellas.

There is a scary movie on TV.
There are scary movies on TV.
When the subject of a sentence follows part or all of the verb, the word order is said to be inverted. To find the subject of a sentence with inverted order, restate the sentence in normal subject-verb word order.

INVERTED Here _are_ your _gloves_.

NORMAL Your _gloves are_ here.

INVERTED _Were you arriving_ late, too?

NORMAL _You were arriving_ late, too.

INVERTED In the pond _swim_ large _goldfish_.

NORMAL Large _goldfish swim_ in the pond.

The contractions _here’s_, _there’s_, and _where’s_ contain the verb _is_ and should be used only with singular subjects.

NONSTANDARD There’s our new neighbors.

STANDARD There’s our new _neighbor_.

STANDARD There _are_ our new _neighbors_.

Exercise 10 Identifying Verbs That Agree in Number with Their Subjects

Identify the subject in each of the following sentences. Then, write the correct form of the verb in parentheses.

EXAMPLE 1. That flock of geese (_migrates, migrate_) each year.

   1. _flock—migrates_

1. There (_is, are_) at least two solutions to this complicated Chinese puzzle.

2. The soccer team (_was, were_) all getting on different buses.

3. (_Is, Are_) both of your parents from Korea?

4. Here (_comes, come_) the six members of the decorations committee for the dance.

5. Here (_is, are_) some apples and bananas for the picnic basket.

6. There (_is, are_) neither time nor money for that project.

7. (_Here’s, Here are_) the social studies notes I took.

8. At the press conference, there (_was, were_) several candidates for mayor and two for governor.
9. The family (has, have) invited us over for a dinner to celebrate Grandma’s promotion.
10. Here (is, are) some masks carved by the Haida people.

17l. Some nouns that are plural in form take singular verbs.
EXAMPLES  Electronics is a branch of physics.
            Civics is being taught by Ms. Gutierrez.
            Measles is the most unpleasant disease I’ve ever had.
            The news was not encouraging.

17m. An expression of an amount (a measurement, a percentage, or a fraction, for example) may be singular or plural, depending on how it is used.

A word or phrase stating an amount is singular when the amount is thought of as a unit.
EXAMPLES  Fifteen dollars is enough for that CD.
            Sixteen ounces equals one pound.
            Is two weeks long enough for a hiking trip?

Sometimes, however, the amount is thought of as individual pieces or parts. If so, a plural verb is used.
EXAMPLES  Ten of the dollars were borrowed.
            Two of the hours were spent at the theater.

A fraction or a percentage is singular when it refers to a singular word and plural when it refers to a plural word.
EXAMPLES  One fourth of the salad is gone.
            Forty percent of the students are new.

NOTE  Expressions of measurement (such as length, weight, and area) are usually singular.
EXAMPLES  Ten feet is the height of a regulation basketball hoop.
            Seventy-five pounds is the maximum baggage weight for this airline.
17n. Even when plural in form, the title of a creative work (such as a book, song, film, or painting), the name of an organization, or the name of a country or city generally takes a singular verb.

EXAMPIES

World Tales is a collection of folk tales retold by Idries Shah. [one book]

Tonya’s painting Sunflowers was inspired by the natural beauty of rural Iowa. [one painting]

Friends of the Earth was founded in 1969. [one organization]

The Philippines is an island country in the southwest Pacific Ocean. [one country]

Is Marble Falls a city in central Texas? [one city]

Exercise 11  Identifying Verbs That Agree in Number with Their Subjects

Identify the correct form of the verb in parentheses in each of the following sentences.

EXAMPLE

1. Three inches in height (is, are) a great deal to grow in one year.

1. is

1. The Friends (is, are) a book about a girl from the West Indies and a girl from Harlem.
2. Two cups of broth (seems, seem) right for that recipe.
3. Fifteen feet (was, were) the length of the winning long jump.
4. Navarro and Company (is, are) selling those jackets.
5. The National Council of Teachers of English (is, are) holding its convention in our city this year.
6. Mumps (is, are) a highly infectious disease.
7. Three hours of practice (is, are) not unusual for the band.
8. Arctic Dreams (was, were) written by Barry Lopez.
9. Two weeks of preparation (has, have) been enough.
10. A dollar and a half (is, are) the cost of a subway ride.

17o. Don’t and doesn’t should agree in number with their subjects.

The word don’t is a contraction of do not. Use don’t with plural subjects and with the pronouns I and you.
EXAMPLES  The children don’t seem nervous.

I don’t understand.

Don’t you remember?

The word doesn’t is a contraction of does not. Use doesn’t with singular subjects except the pronouns I and you.

EXAMPLES  Kim doesn’t ride the bus.

He doesn’t play tennis.

It doesn’t snow here.

Oral Practice 1 Using Don’t and Doesn’t

Read the following sentences aloud, stressing the italicized words.

1. My friend doesn’t understand the problem.
2. Doesn’t she want to play soccer?
3. The tomatoes don’t look ripe.
4. Our school doesn’t have a gymnasium.
5. Italy doesn’t border Germany.
6. The geese don’t hiss at Mr. Waverly.
7. Our Muslim neighbors, the Nassers, don’t eat pork.
8. He doesn’t play chess.

Review C Identifying Verbs That Agree in Number with Their Subjects

Write the verb form in parentheses that agrees with its subject.

EXAMPLE  1. Wheelchairs with lifts (help, helps) many people.

1. help

1. Twenty-five cents (is, are) not enough to buy the Sunday newspaper.
2. Everyone in her family (prefers, prefer) to drink water.
3. Allen and his parents (enjoy, enjoys) basketball.
4. Jan (don’t, doesn’t) know the rules of volleyball.
5. Neither the cassette player nor the speakers (work, works) as well as we had hoped.
6. There (is, are) 132 islands in the state of Hawaii.
7. Many California place names (comes, come) from Spanish.
8. The principal or her assistant (is, are) the one who can help you.
9. Home economics (is, are) a required course in many schools.
10. A flock of sheep (was, were) grazing on the hill.

Proofreading for Subject-Verb Agreement

Most of the following sentences contain errors in subject-verb agreement. If a verb does not agree with its subject, write the correct form of the verb. If a sentence is already correct, write C.

EXAMPLE

1. Here is two pictures of Wang Yani and her artwork.
   1. are

1. There surely is few young artists as successful as Yani.
2. In fact, the People’s Republic of China regard her as a national treasure.
3. She has shown her paintings throughout the world.
4. Yani don’t paint in just one style.
5. Her ideas and her art naturally changes over the years.
6. The painting below shows one of Yani’s favorite childhood subjects.
7. Many of her early paintings features monkeys.
8. In fact, one of her large works portray 112 monkeys.
9. However, most of her later paintings is of landscapes, other animals, and people.
10. As her smile suggests, Yani fill her paintings with energy.
Agreement of Pronoun and Antecedent

A pronoun usually refers to a noun or another pronoun called its antecedent. Whenever you use a pronoun, make sure that it agrees with its antecedent.

17p. A pronoun should agree in number and gender with its antecedent.

Some singular pronouns have forms that indicate gender. Feminine pronouns refer to females. Masculine pronouns refer to males. Neuter pronouns refer to things (neither male nor female) and sometimes to animals.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Feminine</th>
<th>she</th>
<th>her</th>
<th>hers</th>
<th>herself</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Masculine</td>
<td>he</td>
<td>him</td>
<td>his</td>
<td>himself</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Neuter</td>
<td>it</td>
<td>it</td>
<td>its</td>
<td>itself</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

EXAMPLES
Carlotta said that she found her book.

Aaron brought his skates with him.

The plant with mold on it is losing its leaves.

The antecedent of a pronoun can be another kind of pronoun. In such cases, you may need to look in a phrase that follows the antecedent to determine which personal pronoun to use.

EXAMPLES
Each of the girls has offered her ideas. [Each is the antecedent of her. The word girls tells you to use the feminine pronoun to refer to Each.]

One of the men lost his key. [One is the antecedent of his. The word men tells you to use the masculine pronoun to refer to One.]

Some antecedents may be either masculine or feminine. In such cases, use both the masculine and the feminine forms.

EXAMPLES
Every one of the parents praised his or her child’s efforts that day.

No one in the senior play forgot his or her lines on opening night.

Reference Note
For more information on antecedents, see page 342.

STYLE TIP
In conversation, people often use a plural personal pronoun to refer to a singular antecedent that may be either masculine or feminine. This nonstandard usage is becoming more common in writing, too.

NONSTANDARD
Everybody brought their swimsuit.

Every member of the club sold their tickets.

For now, however, it is best to follow the rules of standard usage in formal situations.

STYLE TIP
To avoid the awkward use of his or her, try to rephrase the sentence.

EXAMPLES
Everybody brought a swimsuit.

All the members of the club sold their tickets.
17q. Use a singular pronoun to refer to anybody, anyone, anything, each, either, everybody, everyone, everything, neither, nobody, no one, nothing, one, somebody, someone, or something.

EXAMPLES   Each of the snakes escaped from its cage.
            Someone in the class left behind his or her pencil.

17r. Use a plural pronoun to refer to both, few, many, or several.

EXAMPLES   Both of the sailors asked their captain for shore leave.
            Many among the others waiting below deck hoped that they could go, too.

17s. The indefinite pronouns all, any, more, most, none, and some may be singular or plural, depending on how they are used in a sentence.

EXAMPLES   All of the book is interesting, isn’t it?
            All of the books are interesting, aren’t they?
            None of the casserole is left; it was terrific!
            None of the casseroles are left; they were terrific!

17t. Use a singular pronoun to refer to two or more singular antecedents joined by or or nor.

EXAMPLES   Either Ralph or Carlos will display his baseball cards.
            Neither Nina nor Mary will bring her CD player.

17u. Use a plural pronoun to refer to two or more antecedents joined by and.

EXAMPLES   Isaac and Jerome told me that they were coming.
            Elena and Roberto sent letters to their cousin.

Exercise 12 Using Pronouns in Sentences

For each of the following sentences, write a pronoun or a pair of pronouns that will correctly complete the sentence.
EXAMPLE 1. Dominic or Martin will show ____ slides.
   1. his

1. A writer should proofread ____ work carefully.
2. One of the boys had finished ____ homework.
3. No, Joyce has not given me ____ answer.
4. The store sent Paula and Eric the posters that ____ had ordered last week.
5. Mark or Hector will arrive early so that ____ can help us.
6. Everyone read one of ____ poems aloud.
7. One of the students raised ____ hand.
8. ____ of the tennis rackets were damaged by the water leak.
9. The dogs had eaten none of ____ food.
10. Each of the dogs ate the scraps that we gave ____.
11. The principal and the Spanish teacher announced ____ plans for the Cinco de Mayo fiesta.
12. All of the bowling pins were on ____ sides.
13. The movie made sense to ____ of the audience members.
14. Everyone in my class has ____ own writer’s journal.
15. Neither recalled the name of ____ first-grade teacher.
16. ____ of the players, Sharon and P. J., agreed that the game was a draw.
17. Ms. Levine said ____ was proud of the students.
18. Frank had tried on all of the hats before ____ chose one.
19. Anyone may join if ____ collects stamps.
20. Either Vanessa or Marilyn was honored for ____ design.

17v. A pronoun that refers to a collective noun has the same number as the noun.

A collective noun is singular when it refers to the group as a unit and plural when it refers to the individual members of the group.

EXAMPLES The cast is giving its final performance tonight. [The cast as a unit is giving its final performance.]
The cast are trying on their costumes. [The members of the cast are trying on their individual costumes.]
The faculty has prepared its report. [The faculty as a unit has prepared its report.]
The faculty are returning to their classrooms. [The members of the faculty are returning to their separate classrooms.]
17w. An expression of an amount may take a singular or plural pronoun, depending on how the expression is used.

EXAMPLES
Five dollars is all I need. I hope my sister will lend it to me. [The amount is thought of as a unit.]

Two dollars are torn. The vending machine won’t take them. [The amount is thought of as individual pieces or parts.]

17x. Even when plural in form, the title of a creative work (such as a book, song, film, or painting), the name of an organization, or the name of a country or city usually takes a singular pronoun.

EXAMPLES
Have you read Great Expectations? It is on our summer reading list.

The United Nations, which has its headquarters in New York, also has offices in Geneva and Vienna.

My grandmother, who is from the Maldives, told us of its coral reefs and lagoons.

Exercise 13 Choosing Pronouns That Agree with Their Antecedents

Choose the correct word or words in parentheses in the following sentences.

EXAMPLE

1. Even a trio can have a big sound if (it, they) can arrange the score properly.
   1. it

1. They are asking two hundred dollars, but (it, they) should be a lower price because there is no chair with the desk.
2. Darla, The Hero and the Crown has been checked out; however, (it, they) should be back next Wednesday.
3. If the high school band doesn’t show up soon, (it, they) won’t lead the parade.
4. These plans call for ten feet of African ebony, and although (it, they) would look great, I have no idea where we could even find ebony.
5. Seven points may not seem like much, but in jai alai, (it, they) can be enough to decide the game.
6. The unit took up (its, their) position on the hill.
7. “Sixteen Tons” has always been one of my favorite songs, and \( (it, they) \) always will be.
8. Six of the sales teams exceeded \( (its, their) \) goals.
9. Will the board of directors alter \( (its, their) \) decision?
10. Try Harper Brothers Appliances first; if \( (it, they) \) happens to be closed, go up the street to Smith’s Hardware.

Review E Proofreading Sentences for Correct Pronoun-Antecedent Agreement

Most of the following sentences contain errors in pronoun-antecedent agreement. Identify each error, and write the correct pronoun or pronouns. If a sentence is already correct, write \( C \).

EXAMPLE

1. At the meeting, each member of the Small Business Council spoke about their concerns.

1. \( their—his or her \)

1. Everybody had a chance to express their opinion about the new shopping mall.
2. Mrs. Gomez and Mr. Franklin are happy about his or her new business locations at the mall.
3. Both said that his or her profits have increased significantly.
4. Neither Mr. Chen nor Mr. Cooper, however, feels that his or her customers can find convenient parking.
5. Anyone shopping at the mall has to park their car too far from the main shopping area.
6. Several members of the council said that the mall has taken away many of their customers.
7. One of the women on the council then presented their own idea about creating a farmers’ market on weekends.
8. Many members said he or she favored the plan, and a proposal was discussed.
9. Each farmer could have their own spot near the town hall.
10. The Small Business Council then agreed to take their proposal to the mayor.

Review F Writing Sentences That Demonstrate Correct Subject-Verb and Pronoun-Antecedent Agreement

Using the following words or word groups as subjects, write twenty sentences. In each sentence, underline the verb that agrees with the subject. Then, underline twice any pronoun that agrees with the subject.

EXAMPLE
1. all of the players
   1. All of the players were tired; they had had a long practice.

1. both Jed and Bob
2. none of the puppies
3. Los Angeles
4. fifty cents
5. Anne of Green Gables
6. news
7. either the teacher or the students
8. the litter of kittens
9. neither Nancy nor Tim
10. everyone
11. The Adventures of Tom Sawyer
12. the football team
13. each of the chairs
14. athletics
15. the Masters tournament
16. few armadillos
17. most of the apple
18. several days
19. any of the orange juice
20. none of the pizza

HELP Not every sentence in Review F needs to have a pronoun that agrees with the subject.

Go to the Chapter Menu for an interactive activity.
A. Determining Subject and Verb Agreement

Identify the correct form of the verb given in parentheses in each of the following sentences. Base your answers on the rules of standard, formal usage.

1. Elephants (has, have) worked with people for centuries.
2. A blue vase (is, are) the only thing in the room.
3. (Doesn’t, Don’t) Midori come here every afternoon?
4. The exhibit of drawings by John James Audubon (was, were) fascinating, don’t you think?
5. Civics (was, were) only one of the classes that challenged me.
6. Since Mom repaired them, both of the radios (work, works).
7. Everyone (calls, call) Latisha by her nickname, Tish.
8. Fifty cents (was, were) a lot of money in 1910!
10. (Is, Are) there any other blacksmiths in town?
11. I’m sorry, but somebody (has, have) checked out that book.
12. (Was, Were) the geese in the cornfield again?
13. All of the shells in my collection (was, were) displayed.
14. Neither Cindy nor her cousins (knows, know) how to sew.
15. Outside the back door (is, are) a few of your friends.
16. My brother and my uncles (plays, play) rugby.
17. The Netherlands (has, have) a coastline on the North Sea.
18. Here (is, are) several subjects for you to consider.
19. The team (has, have) all received their jerseys and hats.
20. Some of Ernest Hemingway’s writings (was, were) autobiographical.
21. This news (was, were) just what Barb wanted to hear.
22. Giants of Jazz (is, are) an interesting book.
23. Everyone (is, are) expected to attend.
24. Most of our reading (was, were) done on weekends.
25. Either Gordon or Ruben (knows, know) the right answer.
B. Determining Pronoun and Antecedent Agreement

If the italicized pronoun in each of the following sentences does not agree with its antecedent, write the correct form of the pronoun. If the pronoun does agree with its antecedent, write C. Base your answers on the rules of standard, formal usage.

26. Everyone put their suitcases on the bus.
27. Either Marcia or Christina will bring her serving platter to the dinner party.
28. Both Sarah and Sue agreed with her counselor.
29. Several of my friends do his or her homework after school.
30. One of the boys used their bat in the game.
31. My grandfather’s favorite television show is The Honeymooners. He watches them every night on cable.
32. All of the horses received its vaccinations.
33. Either Maria or Louise will receive their award today.
34. Everybody should know their ZIP Code.
35. Each student in the class has given their report on an African American folktale.
36. Every one of the dogs obeyed its owner.
37. I found twenty dollars in my sock drawer. Do you think I should spend them on Christmas presents?
38. Will either Hector or Tony read his paper aloud?
39. Not one of the students had finished their science project on time this semester.
40. After Celia finished her solo, the audience roared their approval for five minutes.

Writing Application

Using Agreement in a Composition

Subject-Verb Agreement If you could be any person in history, who would you be? Why? Your social studies teacher has asked you to answer these questions in a short composition. Be sure to use correct subject-verb agreement in explaining your choice.
Prewriting  First, decide what historical person you would like to be, and freewrite about that person. As you write, think about why the person is noteworthy and why you would want to be him or her.

Writing  Use your freewriting ideas to write your first draft. Begin with a sentence that states the purpose of your composition and identifies your historical figure. Then, give your main reasons for wanting to be that person. Summarize your main points in a conclusion.

Revising  Read through your composition, and then answer these questions: (1) Is it clear what person from history I want to be? If not, revise your main idea statement. (2) Is it clear why I want to be that person? If not, explain your reasons in more detail.

Publishing  Make sure that all subjects and verbs agree in number. Check your composition for errors in spelling, capitalization, and punctuation. Your class may want to create a display using the compositions and pictures of the historical figures chosen.
Proofreading Sentences for Correct Verb Forms

If a sentence contains an incorrect past or past participle form of a verb, write the correct form. If a sentence is already correct, write C.

EXAMPLE
1. Melissa drunk the medicine in one gulp.

   1. drank

1. We swum in the lake last weekend.
2. Carlos come from the Dominican Republic.
3. The crow just set there on the wire fence.
4. The balloon burst with a loud pop.
5. I seen that magician on television.
6. The leader raised his tambourine to begin the dance.
7. You should have went with Thomas to the game.
8. The ice cube has shrinked to half its original size.
9. Meanwhile, the water level has rose.
10. I would have wrote to you much sooner, but I lost your address after you moved.
11. Sandra throwed the ball to the shortstop.
12. Ms. Lopez has spoke before many civic groups.
Principal Parts of Verbs

The four basic forms of a verb are called the principal parts of the verb.

18a. The principal parts of a verb are the base form, the present participle, the past, and the past participle.

When they are used to form tenses, the present participle and the past participle forms require helping verbs (forms of be and have).

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Base Form</th>
<th>Present Participle</th>
<th>Past</th>
<th>Past Participle</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>talk</td>
<td>[is] talking</td>
<td>talked</td>
<td>[have] talked</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>draw</td>
<td>[is] drawing</td>
<td>drew</td>
<td>[have] drawn</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Because talk forms its past and past participle by adding –ed, it is called a regular verb. Draw forms its past and past participle differently, so it is called an irregular verb.

The principal parts of a verb are used to express time.

PRESENT TIME He draws excellent pictures.
Susan is drawing one now.

PAST TIME Last week they drew two maps.
She has often drawn cartoons.

FUTURE TIME Perhaps she will draw one for you.
By Thursday, we will have drawn two more.
Regular Verbs

18b. A regular verb forms its past and past participle by adding –d or –ed to the base form.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Base Form</th>
<th>Present Participle</th>
<th>Past</th>
<th>Past Participle</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>clean</td>
<td>[is] cleaning</td>
<td>cleaned</td>
<td>[have] cleaned</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>hope</td>
<td>[is] hoping</td>
<td>hoped</td>
<td>[have] hoped</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>inspect</td>
<td>[is] inspecting</td>
<td>inspected</td>
<td>[have] inspected</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>slip</td>
<td>[is] slipping</td>
<td>slipped</td>
<td>[have] slipped</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

One common error in forming the past or the past participle of a regular verb is to leave off the –d or –ed ending.

NONSTANDARD Our street use to be quieter.
STANDARD Our street used to be quieter.

Another common error is to add unnecessary letters.

NONSTANDARD The swimmer almost drownded in the riptide.
STANDARD The swimmer almost drowned in the riptide.

NONSTANDARD The kitten attackted that paper bag.
STANDARD The kitten attacked that paper bag.

Oral Practice 1 Using Regular Verbs

Read each of the following sentences aloud, stressing the italicized verbs.

1. We are supposed to meet at the track after school.
2. The twins happened to buy the same shirt.
3. They have already called me about the party.
4. Do you know who used to live in this house?
5. I had hoped they could go to the concert with us.
6. The chairs have been moved into the hall for the dance.
7. That salesclerk has helped my mother before.
8. Eli may not have looked under the table for the cat.

Exercise 1 Writing the Forms of Regular Verbs

Write the correct present participle, past, or past participle form of the italicized verb given before each of the following sentences.

EXAMPLES
1. learn   Many people today are _____ folk dances from a variety of countries.
   1. learning

2. hope   Dad and I had _____ to take lessons in folk dancing this summer.
   2. hoped

1. practice These Spanish folk dancers must have _____ for a long time.

2. perform Notice that they are _____ in their colorful native costumes.

3. wish Have you ever _____ that you knew how to do any folk dances?

4. use Virginia reels _____ to be popular dances in the United States.

5. promise Mrs. Stamos, who is from Greece, _____ to teach her daughter the Greek chain dance.

6. lean The young Jamaican dancer _____ backward before he went under the pole during the limbo dance competition.

7. start The group from Estonia is _____ a dance about a spinning wheel.

8. request Someone in the audience has _____ an Irish square dance called “Sweets of May.”

9. dance During the Mexican hat dance, the woman _____ around the brim of the sombrero.

10. fill The Jewish wedding dance _____ the room with both music and movement.
Irregular Verbs

18c. An irregular verb forms its past and past participle in some way other than by adding –d or –ed to the base form.

Irregular verbs form their past and past participle in various ways:

• by changing vowels

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Base Form</th>
<th>Past</th>
<th>Past Participle</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>sing</td>
<td>sang</td>
<td>[have] sung</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>become</td>
<td>became</td>
<td>[have] become</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>drink</td>
<td>drank</td>
<td>[have] drunk</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

• by changing consonants

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Base Form</th>
<th>Past</th>
<th>Past Participle</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>make</td>
<td>made</td>
<td>[have] made</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>build</td>
<td>built</td>
<td>[have] built</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>lend</td>
<td>lent</td>
<td>[have] lent</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

• by changing vowels and consonants

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Base Form</th>
<th>Past</th>
<th>Past Participle</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>do</td>
<td>did</td>
<td>[have] done</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>go</td>
<td>went</td>
<td>[have] gone</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>buy</td>
<td>bought</td>
<td>[have] bought</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

• by making no changes

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Base Form</th>
<th>Past</th>
<th>Past Participle</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>hurt</td>
<td>hurt</td>
<td>[have] hurt</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>put</td>
<td>put</td>
<td>[have] put</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>let</td>
<td>let</td>
<td>[have] let</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Common Irregular Verbs

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Base Form</th>
<th>Present Participle</th>
<th>Past Form</th>
<th>Past Participle</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>begin</td>
<td>[is] beginning</td>
<td>began</td>
<td>[have] begun</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>bite</td>
<td>[is] biting</td>
<td>bit</td>
<td>[have] bitten or bit</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>blow</td>
<td>[is] blowing</td>
<td>blew</td>
<td>[have] blown</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>break</td>
<td>[is] breaking</td>
<td>broke</td>
<td>[have] broken</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>bring</td>
<td>[is] bringing</td>
<td>brought</td>
<td>[have] brought</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>build</td>
<td>[is] building</td>
<td>built</td>
<td>[have] built</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>burst</td>
<td>[is] bursting</td>
<td>burst</td>
<td>[have] burst</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>buy</td>
<td>[is] buying</td>
<td>bought</td>
<td>[have] bought</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>catch</td>
<td>[is] catching</td>
<td>caught</td>
<td>[have] caught</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>choose</td>
<td>[is] choosing</td>
<td>chose</td>
<td>[have] chosen</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>come</td>
<td>[is] coming</td>
<td>came</td>
<td>[have] come</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>cost</td>
<td>[is] costing</td>
<td>cost</td>
<td>[have] cost</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>cut</td>
<td>[is] cutting</td>
<td>cut</td>
<td>[have] cut</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>do</td>
<td>[is] doing</td>
<td>did</td>
<td>[have] done</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>draw</td>
<td>[is] drawing</td>
<td>drew</td>
<td>[have] drawn</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>drink</td>
<td>[is] drinking</td>
<td>drank</td>
<td>[have] drunk</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>drive</td>
<td>[is] driving</td>
<td>drove</td>
<td>[have] driven</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>eat</td>
<td>[is] eating</td>
<td>ate</td>
<td>[have] eaten</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>fall</td>
<td>[is] falling</td>
<td>fell</td>
<td>[have] fallen</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>feel</td>
<td>[is] feeling</td>
<td>felt</td>
<td>[have] felt</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>fight</td>
<td>[is] fighting</td>
<td>fought</td>
<td>[have] fought</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>find</td>
<td>[is] finding</td>
<td>found</td>
<td>[have] found</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>fly</td>
<td>[is] flying</td>
<td>flew</td>
<td>[have] flown</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>forgive</td>
<td>[is] forgiving</td>
<td>forgave</td>
<td>[have] forgiven</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>freeze</td>
<td>[is] freezing</td>
<td>froze</td>
<td>[have] frozen</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>get</td>
<td>[is] getting</td>
<td>got</td>
<td>[have] got or gotten</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>give</td>
<td>[is] giving</td>
<td>gave</td>
<td>[have] given</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>go</td>
<td>[is] going</td>
<td>went</td>
<td>[have] gone</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>grow</td>
<td>[is] growing</td>
<td>grew</td>
<td>[have] grown</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

(continued)
Using Irregular Verbs

Read the following sentences aloud, stressing the italicized verbs.

1. Edward's sister drove him to the mall this afternoon.
2. My parents came to the spelling bee last year.
3. I should have known the test would be difficult.
4. He's going to Cape Canaveral this summer.
5. Maya has been chosen to play on our team.
6. The water pipe burst during the ice storm.
7. Did you see the northern lights last night?
8. Wyatt brought his new computer game to the slumber party at Alexander's house.

Writing the Past and Past Participle Forms of Irregular Verbs

Write the correct past or past participle form of the italicized verb given before each of the following sentences.

EXAMPLE 1. choose Sara has ___ her song for the piano recital next week.
   1. chosen

1. drive Last summer we ___ to Denver, where we visited the U.S. Mint.
2. begin The concert ___ an hour ago.
3. break  Mike Powell ____ the world long-jump record by jumping 29 feet 4½ inches.
4. blow  The wind has ____ the tent down.
5. get  We ____ tickets to ride The Silverton.
6. fall  Several people have ____ over that log.
7. do  Mother ____ her best, and she got a promotion.
8. drink  According to legend, the Aztec emperor Montezuma ____ chocolate.
9. build  People in Africa ____ large cities hundreds, even thousands, of years ago.
10. go  You’ve never ____ to Puerto Rico, have you?
11. bite  I think that Roseanne ____ into a green chile!
12. grow  Well, nephew, you surely have ____!
13. catch  You look like you just ____ the brass ring!
14. give  Mom had already ____ us a color copy of her grandmother’s journal.
15. eat  The Japanese have box lunches, too, but they call them obentos; we have ____ them several times.
16. feel  They ____ better after taking a short nap.
17. cost  Those tickets shouldn’t have ____ so much.
18. buy  Have you ever ____ a Greek sandwich called a gyro?
19. find  My cousin said that she has ____ a new canyon trail.
20. freeze  The pond ____ last winter, and we went skating.

---

More Common Irregular Verbs

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Base Form</th>
<th>Present Participle</th>
<th>Past</th>
<th>Past Participle</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>leave</td>
<td>[is] leaving</td>
<td>left</td>
<td>[have] left</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>lend</td>
<td>[is] lending</td>
<td>lent</td>
<td>[have] lent</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>let</td>
<td>[is] letting</td>
<td>let</td>
<td>[have] let</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>light</td>
<td>[is] lighting</td>
<td>lighted or lit</td>
<td>[have] lighted or lit</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>lose</td>
<td>[is] losing</td>
<td>lost</td>
<td>[have] lost</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>make</td>
<td>[is] making</td>
<td>made</td>
<td>[have] made</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>meet</td>
<td>[is] meeting</td>
<td>met</td>
<td>[have] met</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>pay</td>
<td>[is] paying</td>
<td>paid</td>
<td>[have] paid</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

(continued)

STYLE TIP

Some verbs have two correct past or past participle forms. However, these forms are not always interchangeable.

EXAMPLES

I shone the flashlight into the woods. [Shined also would be correct in this usage.]

I shined my shoes. [Shone would be incorrect in this usage.]

If you are unsure about which past participle form to use, check an up-to-date dictionary.
More Common Irregular Verbs

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Base Form</th>
<th>Present Participle</th>
<th>Past</th>
<th>Past Participle</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>put</td>
<td>[is] putting</td>
<td>put</td>
<td>[have] put</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>read</td>
<td>[is] reading</td>
<td>read</td>
<td>[have] read</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>ride</td>
<td>[is] riding</td>
<td>rode</td>
<td>[have] ridden</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>ring</td>
<td>[is] ringing</td>
<td>rang</td>
<td>[have] rung</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>run</td>
<td>[is] running</td>
<td>ran</td>
<td>[have] run</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>say</td>
<td>[is] saying</td>
<td>said</td>
<td>[have] said</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>see</td>
<td>[is] seeing</td>
<td>saw</td>
<td>[have] seen</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>seek</td>
<td>[is] seeking</td>
<td>sought</td>
<td>[have] sought</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>sell</td>
<td>[is] selling</td>
<td>sold</td>
<td>[have] sold</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>send</td>
<td>[is] sending</td>
<td>sent</td>
<td>[have] sent</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>shrink</td>
<td>[is] shrinking</td>
<td>shrank or shrunk</td>
<td>[have] shrunk</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>sing</td>
<td>[is] singing</td>
<td>sang</td>
<td>[have] sung</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>sink</td>
<td>[is] sinking</td>
<td>sank or sunk</td>
<td>[have] sunk</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>speak</td>
<td>[is] speaking</td>
<td>spoke</td>
<td>[have] spoken</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>spend</td>
<td>[is] spending</td>
<td>spent</td>
<td>[have] spent</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>stand</td>
<td>[is] standing</td>
<td>stood</td>
<td>[have] stood</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>steal</td>
<td>[is] stealing</td>
<td>stole</td>
<td>[have] stolen</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>swim</td>
<td>[is] swimming</td>
<td>swam</td>
<td>[have] swum</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>swing</td>
<td>[is] swinging</td>
<td>swung</td>
<td>[have] swung</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>take</td>
<td>[is] taking</td>
<td>took</td>
<td>[have] taken</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>teach</td>
<td>[is] teaching</td>
<td>taught</td>
<td>[have] taught</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>tear</td>
<td>[is] tearing</td>
<td>tore</td>
<td>[have] torn</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>tell</td>
<td>[is] telling</td>
<td>told</td>
<td>[have] told</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>think</td>
<td>[is] thinking</td>
<td>thought</td>
<td>[have] thought</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>throw</td>
<td>[is] throwing</td>
<td>threw</td>
<td>[have] thrown</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>wear</td>
<td>[is] wearing</td>
<td>wore</td>
<td>[have] worn</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>win</td>
<td>[is] winning</td>
<td>won</td>
<td>[have] won</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>write</td>
<td>[is] writing</td>
<td>wrote</td>
<td>[have] written</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Oral Practice 3 Using Irregular Verbs

Read the following sentences aloud, stressing the italicized verbs.

1. When the bell rang, we hurried out of the building.
2. The audience was quiet as the acrobats swung from the trapeze.
3. That dress had already shrunk before I washed it.
4. Otherwise, Lily would have worn it to the dance.
5. Have you met the new foreign exchange student?
6. We were late to the picnic because I lost the map.
7. My father lent me the money to buy a new watch.
8. Would you believe that Raymond took singing lessons?

Exercise 3 Writing the Past and Past Participle Forms of Irregular Verbs

Write the correct past or past participle form of the italicized verb given before each of the following sentences.

EXAMPLE 1. see I have _____ that movie twice already.
1. seen

1. run Michael ____ the 100-meter dash in excellent time.
2. sell My aunt has ____ more houses than any other real estate agent in the city.
3. speak The director of the state health department ____ to our class today.
4. win The Mexican poet Octavio Paz ____ the Nobel Prize in literature.
5. write I have ____ some poems, but I am shy about showing them to anyone.
6. ride Tamisha’s whole family ____ mules to the bottom of the Grand Canyon.
7. sing At the concert, the group ____ my favorite song.
8. throw Someone must have ____ this trash from a car.
9. swim Within minutes, the two beautiful swans had ____ across the lake.
10. sink King Arthur’s sword Excalibur had ____ slowly to the bottom of the lake.
11. send My aunt in South America ____ me a fabulous sweater made from the wool of an alpaca, which is an animal similar to a llama.
12. tell  Mr. Noguchi ____ us that R.S.V.P. at the bottom of an invitation means that you should let the host know whether you are coming or not.

13. lend  Before the softball game, my friend Gabriela ____ me her glove.

14. wear  Shouldn’t you have ____ a warmer jacket for the hike this morning?

15. swim  Soon-hee, who is training for a triathlon, ____ two miles on Saturday.

16. ring  I have ____ the doorbell several times, but no one has come to the door.

17. lose  The swan living in the pond ____ many large feathers; Tony says it must be molting.

18. take  It has ____ more than four hours to find the last item for the scavenger hunt.

19. sing  Gerald, Annie, and Trish have ____ the national anthem at assembly.

20. say  The weather forecast this morning ____ to expect snow flurries.

Review A
Writing the Past and Past Participle Forms of Irregular Verbs

Write the correct past or past participle form of the italicized verb given before each of the following sentences.

EXAMPLE
1. tell  Has Alameda ____ you about the book The Indian Tipi: Its History, Construction, and Use?

   1. told

1. write  Reginald and Gladys Laubin ____ that book and others about American Indian culture.

2. build  The Laubins ____ their own tepee.

3. stand  Tepees of various sizes once ____ all across the Great Plains.

4. see  I have ____ pictures of camps full of beautifully decorated tepees.

5. make  For many years, American Indians have ____ tepees out of cloth rather than buffalo hides.

6. come  The word tepee, or tipi, has ____ into English from the Sioux language.
7. draw  On the outside of their tepees, the Sioux and Cheyenne peoples ___ designs like the ones shown on the previous page.
8. take  Because the Plains Indians followed animal herds, they needed shelter that could be easily ___ from place to place.
9. know  Even before reading the book, I ___ that the inside of a tepee cover was rarely painted.
10. do  Traditionally, women ___ all the work of making tepees and putting them up.

Review B  Writing the Past and Past Participle Forms of Irregular Verbs

Write the correct past or past participle form of the italicized verb given before each of the following sentences.

EXAMPLE

1. write  I ___ a report on Jim Thorpe.
   1. wrote

1. blow  Yesterday the wind ___ the leaves into our yard.
2. break  My pen pal from Australia has never ___ his promise to write once a week.
3. bring  I ___ the wrong book to class.
4. burst  The children almost ___ with excitement.
5. choose  The director ___ James Earl Jones for the role.
6. come  My aunt and her friend ___ to dinner last night.
7. do  I have always ___ my homework right after supper.
8. drink  The guests ___ four quarts of fruit punch.
9. fall  One of Julian’s Russian nesting dolls has ___ off the shelf.
10. freeze  Has the pond ___ yet?
11. go  We have never ___ to see the Parthenon in Nashville.
12. know  Had I ____, I would have called you sooner.
13. ring  Suddenly the fire alarm ___.
14. run  Joan Samuelson certainly ___ a good race.
15. see  I ___ you in line at the movies.
16. shrink  The apples we dried in the sun have ___.
17. speak  After we had ___ to George Takei, who played Mr. Sulu, we went to the Star Trek convention banquet.
18. swim  We ___ out to the float and back.
19. write  She has ____ me several long letters.
20. throw  You shouldn’t have ____ the ball to second base.

Tense

18d. The tense of a verb indicates the time of the action or of the state of being that is expressed by the verb.

Examples

Yesterday, Denise served lox and bagels for breakfast.

Randy has played bass guitar for the band, but now he plays drums.

Once they have painted the signs, Jill and Cody will finish the decorations for the dance.

Verbs in English have six tenses.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Tense</th>
<th>Present</th>
<th>Past</th>
<th>Future</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Present Perfect</td>
<td></td>
<td>Past Perfect</td>
<td>Future Perfect</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Present</td>
<td></td>
<td>Past Perfect</td>
<td>Future Perfect</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Present Perfect</td>
<td></td>
<td>Present</td>
<td>Future</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Past</td>
<td>Existing or happening in the past</td>
<td>Present</td>
<td>Future</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Past Perfect</td>
<td>Existing or happening before a specific time in the past</td>
<td>Present</td>
<td>Future</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Present Perfect</td>
<td>Existing or happening sometime before now; may be continuing now</td>
<td>Future</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Future Perfect</td>
<td>Existing or happening before a specific time in the future</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

The following time line shows the relationship between the six tenses.

Listing the different forms of a verb is called conjugating the verb.
Conjugation of the Verb See

Present Tense

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Singular</th>
<th>Plural</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>I see</td>
<td>we see</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>you see</td>
<td>you see</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>he, she, or it sees</td>
<td>they see</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Past Tense

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Singular</th>
<th>Plural</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>I saw</td>
<td>we saw</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>you saw</td>
<td>you saw</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>he, she, or it saw</td>
<td>they saw</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Future Tense

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Singular</th>
<th>Plural</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>I will (shall) see</td>
<td>we will (shall) see</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>you will (shall) see</td>
<td>you will (shall) see</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>he, she, or it will (shall) see</td>
<td>they will (shall) see</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Present Perfect Tense

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Singular</th>
<th>Plural</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>I have seen</td>
<td>we have seen</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>you have seen</td>
<td>you have seen</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>he, she, or it has seen</td>
<td>they have seen</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Past Perfect Tense

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Singular</th>
<th>Plural</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>I had seen</td>
<td>we had seen</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>you had seen</td>
<td>you had seen</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>he, she, or it had seen</td>
<td>they had seen</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Future Perfect Tense

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Singular</th>
<th>Plural</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>I will (shall) have seen</td>
<td>we will (shall) have seen</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>you will (shall) have seen</td>
<td>you will (shall) have seen</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>he, she, or it will (shall) have seen</td>
<td>they will (shall) have seen</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Style Tip

Traditionally, the helping verbs shall and will were used to mean different things. Now, however, shall can be used almost interchangeably with will.
The progressive form is not a separate tense but an additional form of each of the six tenses.

Each tense has an additional form called the progressive form, which expresses continuing action or state of being. In each tense, the progressive form of a verb consists of the appropriate tense of be plus the verb’s present participle.

- Present Progressive am, is, are seeing
- Past Progressive was, were seeing
- Future Progressive
  will (shall) be seeing
- Present Perfect Progressive has been seeing, have been seeing
- Past Perfect Progressive
  had been seeing
- Future Perfect Progressive will (shall) have been seeing

Consistency of Tense

18e. Do not change needlessly from one tense to another.

When writing about events that take place at the same time, use verbs that are in the same tense. When writing about events that occur at different times, use verbs that are in the different tenses.

INCONSISTENT
When we go to the movies, we bought some popcorn.
[The events occur at the same time, but go is in the present tense and bought is in the past tense.]

CONSISTENT
When we go to the movies, we buy some popcorn.
[Both go and buy are in the present tense.]

CONSISTENT
When we went to the movies, we bought some popcorn.
[Both went and bought are in the past tense.]

Exercise 4  Making Tenses of Verbs Consistent

Read the following sentences, and choose whether to rewrite them in the present or past tense. Then, rewrite the sentences, changing the verb forms to correct any needless changes.

EXAMPLE
[1] I picked up the telephone receiver quickly, but the line is still dead.

1.
   I picked up the telephone receiver quickly, but the line was still dead.

   or

   I pick up the telephone receiver quickly, but the line is still dead.
Lightning struck our house, and I run straight for cover. [2] “Oh, no!” I exclaim. [3] The electricity was out! [4] My parents get out the flashlights, and we played a game. [5] Later, since the stove, oven, and microwave didn’t work without electricity, we have a cold supper in the living room—picnic style! [6] My younger brother asks me what lightning is. [7] “Lightning is a big spark of electricity from a thundercloud,” I tell him. [8] He nods. [9] I started to tell him about positive and negative charges creating lightning, but he doesn’t understand what I’m talking about and walks away. [10] In the morning, we were all glad when the sun shone and our electricity is on again.

Active and Passive Voice

A verb in the active voice expresses an action done by its subject. A verb in the passive voice expresses an action done to its subject. In passive voice, the verb phrase always includes a form of be and the past participle of the main verb. Other helping verbs may also be included. Compare the following sentences:

ACTIVE VOICE
The pilot instructed us. [The subject, pilot, performs the action.]

PASSIVE VOICE
We were instructed by the pilot. [The subject, we, receives the action.]

ACTIVE VOICE
Alice caught a fly ball. [The subject, Alice, performs the action.]

PASSIVE VOICE
A fly ball was caught by Alice. [The subject, ball, receives the action.]

ACTIVE VOICE
The firefighters have put out the blaze. [The subject, firefighters, performs the action.]

PASSIVE VOICE
The blaze has been put out by the firefighters. [The subject, blaze, receives the action.]

Exercise 5 Identifying Active and Passive Voice

Tell whether the verb is in the active voice or passive voice in each of the following sentences.

EXAMPLE
1. The 10K race was won by Mikki.
   1. passive voice

Reference Note

For more about helping verbs, see page 361.

Style Tip

In general, you should avoid using the passive voice because it can make your writing sound weak and awkward. Using the active voice helps make your writing direct and forceful.

PASSIVE VOICE
A no-hitter was pitched by Valerie, and the game was won by her team.

ACTIVE VOICE
Valerie pitched a no-hitter, and her team won the game.
1. On Sunday afternoon we painted the den.
2. Brianne was elected to the student council.
3. The CD has been misplaced by my cousin.
4. The new animation software creates vivid images.
5. Many of the yearbook photos were taken by Adrienne.
6. Shoddy work was done on the building.
7. Mike and I don’t understand this algebra problem.
8. I am unloading the food and supplies at the campsite.
9. The tickets had been sold months before the concert.
10. Andre was awarded the certificate for his service to the community.

Six Troublesome Verbs

Sit and Set

The verb sit means “to be seated” or “to rest.” Sit seldom takes an object. The verb set usually means “to place (something somewhere)” or “to put (something somewhere).” Set usually takes an object. Notice that set has the same form for the base form, past, and past participle.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Verbs</th>
<th>Base Form</th>
<th>Present Participle</th>
<th>Past</th>
<th>Past Participle</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Sit</td>
<td>[is] sitting</td>
<td>sat</td>
<td></td>
<td>[have] sat</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Set</td>
<td>[is] setting</td>
<td>set</td>
<td></td>
<td>[have] set</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

EXAMPLES

Who is sitting on the blanket by the pool? [no object]
Theresa is setting the lawn chairs by the pool. [Theresa is setting what? Chairs is the object.]

Three boys sat on the platform. [no object]
The boys set the instruments on the platform. [The boys set what? Instruments is the object.]

We had sat on the pier for an hour before Suzanne arrived with the bait. [no object]
I had set the bucket of bait on the pier. [I had set what? Bucket is the object.]
Oral Practice 4 Using the Forms of Sit and Set Correctly

Read each of the following sentences aloud, stressing the italicized verbs.

1. Darnell and I sat down to play a game of chess.
2. After we had been sitting for a while, he decided to make bread.
3. I set the pan on the table.
4. After Darnell had set out the ingredients, he mixed them.
5. We returned to our game but could not sit still for long.
6. We had not set the pan in the oven.
7. Then, we almost sat too long.
8. If it had sat in the oven much longer, it would have burned.

Exercise 6 Writing the Forms of Sit and Set Correctly

Write the correct form of sit or set for each blank in the following sentences.

EXAMPLE

1. I ____ my suitcase on the rack.
   1. set

1. On the train to Boston, I ____ next to a woman wearing a shawl.
2. She ____ a large covered basket on the floor by her feet.
3. When the conductor asked her if she would like to ____ it in the baggage rack, she refused.
4. She insisted that the basket must ____ by her feet.
5. As I ____ beside her, I wondered what was in the basket.
6. I ____ my book down and tried to see inside the tightly woven basket.
7. Perhaps I was ____ next to a woman with a picnic lunch.
8. Maybe she had ____ next to me because I looked hungry.
9. As the woman ____ her packages down, I watched the basket.
10. A sudden movement of the train caused the basket to open, and inside it ____ a small, white rabbit.

Rise and Raise

The verb rise means “to move upward” or “to go up.” Rise does not take an object. The verb raise means “to lift (something) up.” Raise usually takes an object.
EXAMPLES
The fans were rising to sing the national anthem. [no object] Fans were raising signs and banners. [Fans were raising what? Signs and banners are the objects.]
The student rose to ask a question. [no object] The student raised a good question. [The student raised what? Question is the object.]
Prices had risen. [no object] The store had raised prices. [The store had raised what? Prices is the object.]

Oral Practice 5 Using Forms of Rise and Raise Correctly

Read the following sentences aloud, stressing the italicized verbs.

1. Mount Everest rises over 29,000 feet.
2. He raises the flag at sunrise.
3. The TV reporter raised her voice to be heard.
4. She rose from her seat and looked out the window.
5. The constellation Orion had not yet risen in the southern sky.
6. They had raised the piñata high in the tree.
7. I hope the bread is rising.
8. He will be raising the bucket from the well.

Exercise 7 Identifying the Correct Forms of Rise and Raise

Identify the correct verb of the two given in parentheses in each of the following sentences.

EXAMPLE 1. After the storm, Diana (rose, raised) the window.

1. raised
2. They used a jack to \( (\text{rise, raise}) \) the car so that they could change the tire.
3. The fire juggler is \( (\text{rising, raising}) \) two flaming batons over his head to signal the start of the show.
4. Some people have trouble remembering that the sun always \( (\text{rises, raises}) \) in the east.
5. He gently \( (\text{rose, raised}) \) the injured duckling from the lake.
6. Only half of Mauna Kea, a volcano on the island of Hawaii, \( (\text{rises, raises}) \) above the ocean.
7. The proud winner has \( (\text{risen, raised}) \) her trophy so that everyone can see it.
8. The guests have \( (\text{risen, raised}) \) from their seats to see the bride enter.
9. Yeast makes the dough for pizza and other baked goods, such as bread and rolls, \( (\text{rise, raise}) \).
10. They will \( (\text{rise, raise}) \) the couch while I look under it.

Lie and Lay

The verb lie generally means “to recline,” “to be in a place,” or “to remain lying down.” Lie does not take an object. The verb lay generally means “to put (something) down” or “to place (something somewhere).” Lay usually takes an object.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Base Form</th>
<th>Present Participle</th>
<th>Past</th>
<th>Past Participle</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>lie</td>
<td>[is] lying</td>
<td>lay</td>
<td>[have] lain</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>lay</td>
<td>[is] laying</td>
<td>laid</td>
<td>[have] laid</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

EXAMPLES

- The silverware is lying on the table. \([\text{no object}]\)
- The waiter is laying silverware beside each plate. \([\text{The waiter is laying what? Silverware is the object.}]\)
- The apple dolls lay drying in the sun. \([\text{no object}]\)
- Aunt Martha laid her apple dolls in the sun to dry. \([\text{Aunt Martha laid what? Dolls is the object.}]\)
- That bicycle had lain in the driveway for a week. \([\text{no object}]\)
- Bill had laid that bicycle in the driveway. \([\text{Bill had laid what? Bicycle is the object.}]\)

The verb lie can also mean “to tell an untruth.” Used in this way, lie still does not take an object.

EXAMPLE

Don’t lie to her, Beth.

The past and past participle forms of this meaning of lie are lied and \([\text{have} \text{ lied}]\).
Oral Practice 6 Using Forms of Lie and Lay Correctly

Read the following sentences aloud, stressing the italicized verbs.

1. If you are tired, lie down for a while.
2. Lay your pencils down, please.
3. Two huge dogs lay by the fire last night.
4. The cat has been lying on the new bedspread.
5. Mr. Cortez laid the map of Puerto Rico on the table.
6. In our state, snow usually lies on the ground until late March or the first weeks of April.
7. He had laid your coats on the bed in my room.
8. After the baby had lain down for a nap, she still wanted to play with her new toy.

Exercise 8 Identifying the Correct Forms of Lie and Lay

Identify the correct verb of the two in parentheses for each of the following sentences.

EXAMPLE 1. Marc (lay, laid) his new tennis shoes on the floor.
   1. laid

1. The islands of American Samoa (lie, lay) about 4,800 miles southwest of San Francisco.
2. Dad quickly (lay, laid) the hermit crab down when it began to pinch him.
3. I don’t know where I have (lain, laid) my copy of Chinese Proverbs by Ruthanne Lum McCunn.
4. I have often (lain, laid) under the oak tree and napped.
5. Many visitors (lie, lay) flowers and wreaths at the Vietnam Veterans Memorial in Washington, D.C.
6. My brother, who is sick, has been (lying, laying) in bed all day.
7. The clerk (lay, laid) the small package on the scale.
8. (Lie, Lay) your backpack down, and come see the new comic books I bought yesterday.
9. Those clothes will (lie, lay) on the floor until you pick them up.
10. After he had circled several times, the puppy (lay, laid) down and slept.

COMPUTER TIP

Most word processors can help you check your writing to be sure that you’ve used verbs correctly. For example, a spellchecker will highlight misspelled verb forms such as attacked or drowned.

Grammar-checking software can point out inconsistent verb tense, and it may also highlight questionable uses of problem verb pairs such as lie and lay or rise and raise. Some programs can also identify verbs in the passive voice.

Remember, though, that the computer is just a tool. As a writer, you are responsible for making all the style and content choices that affect your writing.
Identifying the Correct Forms of Sit and Set, Rise and Raise, and Lie and Lay

Identify the correct verb of the two given in parentheses in each of the following sentences.

EXAMPLE
1. The bricklayer (rose, raised) from the patio floor and dusted himself off.
   1. rose

1. These rocks have (lain, laid) here for centuries.
2. Please (sit, set) there until your name is called.
3. The nurse (lay, laid) her cool hand on the sick child’s brow and decided to take his temperature.
4. The horses are (lying, laying) in the pasture.
5. The senator and her advisors had (sat, set) around the huge conference table.
6. After the picnic, everyone (lay, laid) on blankets to rest in the shade of the oak tree.
7. Smoke (rose, raised) from the chimney.
8. The farmhands (sat, set) their lunch boxes under a tree to keep them cool.
9. Have you been (sitting, setting) there all afternoon?
10. The sun has already (risen, raised).
11. Why has the stage manager (rose, raised) the curtains before the second act has begun?
12. A gust of hot air caused the enormous balloon to (rise, raise) out of sight of the spectators.
13. Be sure to (lie, lay) these windowpanes down carefully.
14. When the queen enters, each guest should (rise, raise) from his or her chair.
15. Who (sat, set) the glasses on my chair?
16. “(Lie, Lay) down!” the trainer sharply ordered the puppy, but the puppy didn’t obey him.
17. If we had a pulley, we could (rise, raise) that stone.
18. Just (sit, set) those green beans by the sink; I’ll get to them in a minute.
19. Mom and Aunt Opal must have been (lying, laying) tile in the kitchen all night.
20. You (rise, raise) the garage door, and I’ll bring the bikes in out of the rain.
Proofreading Sentences for Correct Verb Forms

Most of the following sentences contain incorrect verb forms. If a sentence contains the wrong form of a verb, write the correct form. If a sentence is already correct, write C.

EXAMPLE
1. During the 1800s, many German settlers chose to live in the Hill Country of central Texas.
   1. chose

1. These hardy, determined pioneers built towns and cleared land for farming.
2. I have went to the town of Fredericksburg several times with my family.
3. This interesting town lays about 80 miles west of Austin.
4. Fredericksburg use to be in Comanche territory.
5. Early on, German settlers made peace with neighboring Comanche chiefs.
6. The town then grew rapidly.
7. German-style churches, public buildings, and houses like the one shown here raised along the town’s central street.
8. On one of our visits, my family sat and talked about the town with a woman who had been born there.
9. She said that she had spoke German all her life.
10. When we left, she raised a hand and said, “Auf Wiedersehen” (until we meet again).
A. Using Irregular Verbs

Write the correct past or past participle form of the italicized irregular verb provided before each sentence.

1. break  The thunder ____ the silence.
2. ring  Who ____ the fire alarm so quickly?
3. shrink  Either my jeans have ____ or I’ve put on weight.
4. throw  You’ve ____ the ball out of bounds!
5. lead  Julio ____ the parade last year, so now it’s my turn.
6. rise  The sun ____ over the pyramids of Giza in Egypt.
7. swim  We have ____ only three laps.
8. choose  Vera was ____ as captain of the volleyball team.
9. go  I have ____ to visit the Grand Canyon twice.
10. sit  The tiny tree frog ____ motionless.
11. write  Joan has ____ a story about aliens from the Andromeda galaxy.
12. do  During lunch, Jorge ____ his impersonation of Rubén Blades.
13. steal  Three runners ____ bases during the first inning.
14. break  This summer’s heat wave has ____ all records.
15. drink  Have you ____ all of the tomato juice?
16. sink  The log had slowly ____ into the quicksand.
17. lie  The old postcards have ____ in the box for years.
18. drive  Have you ever ____ across the state of Texas?
19. begin  Our local PBS station ____ its fund-raising drive.
20. set  Have you ____ the paper plates and napkins on the picnic table?
21. throw  Who ____ the ball to first base?
22. know  I have ____ some of my classmates for six years.
23. take  Kadeem ____ the role of Frederick Douglass.
24. tear  My mother ____ the tag off the mattress.
25. come  We ____ close to winning the tournament.
B. Changing Tenses of Verbs
Rewrite each of the following sentences to change the verb or verbs to the tense indicated in italics.

26. present perfect Every time Roger comes to visit me, he brings his dog Zip with him.

27. past perfect The dog will sleep on the kitchen floor for the entire visit.

28. present Zip moved only if he heard the sounds of food being prepared.

29. future perfect Zip has broken all records for a dog not moving a muscle.

30. past We had known Zip before he had grown old.

C. Making Verb Tenses Consistent
Read the following sentences, and choose whether to rewrite them in the present or past tense. Then, rewrite the sentences, changing the verb forms to make the verb tense consistent.

31. My uncle comes back to Michigan for Christmas, and he drove his vintage sports car.

32. Ava finished her assignment, but she forgets to put a title page on it.

33. The stages of the booster rocket dropped away as the space shuttle climbs into the sky.

34. Aunt Maureen jumped to her feet and cheers when Mia made the winning basket.

35. When Barbara presents her science fair project, all the judges were very impressed.

D. Identifying Active and Passive Voice
Tell whether the italicized verb is in the active voice or the passive voice in each of the following sentences.

36. The grass clippings and the kitchen scraps were placed on the compost pile.

37. Most of the class had already gone to see that movie.
38. All of the pencils were sharpened by Erica and Austin before the test began.

39. My father was asked for his advice on repairing the old playground equipment.

40. Every Friday night the Lopez family invites us to their house for dinner.

Writing Application

Using Verbs in a Story

Verb Forms and Tenses   A local writers’ club is sponsoring a contest for the best “cliffhanger” opening of an adventure story. Write an exciting paragraph to enter in the contest. Your paragraph should leave readers wondering, “What happens next?” In your paragraph, use at least five verbs from the lists of Common Irregular Verbs in this chapter.

Prewriting   First, you will need to imagine a suspenseful situation to describe. Jot down several ideas for your story opening. Then, choose the one you like best. With that situation in mind, scan the lists of irregular verbs. Note at least ten verbs you can use. Include some lively action verbs like burst, swing, and throw.

Writing   As you write your rough draft, think of your readers. Choose words that create a suspenseful, believable scene. Remember that you have only one paragraph to catch your readers’ interest.

Revising   Ask a friend to read your paragraph. Does your friend find it interesting? Can he or she picture the scene clearly? If not, you may want to add, delete, or revise some details.

Publishing   Check your spelling, usage, punctuation, and grammar. Check to make sure the forms of verbs are correct and the tenses are consistent. You may want to exchange your cliffhanger with a partner, and complete each other’s stories. With your teacher’s permission, you can then read the completed stories aloud to the class.
Correcting Errors in Pronoun Forms

Most of the following sentences contain errors in the use of pronoun forms. Identify the error, and give the correct pronoun form for each of the following sentences. If a sentence is already correct, write C.

EXAMPLE 1. The Garcia children and them grew up together in East Texas.
   1. them—they

1. Omar and him offered us some pita, a Middle Eastern bread.
2. Us basketball players know the value of warming up.
3. The computer experts in our class are Rosalinda and her.
4. There’s more than a three-year age difference between Edward and I.
5. Pablo and me are planning to visit the Andes Mountains someday.
6. At Passover, my grandparents make gefilte fish and other traditional foods for my cousins and me.
7. Give Sue and him this invitation to the Japanese tea ceremony.
8. Josh made hisself a bookcase in industrial arts class.
9. Two angry hornets chased Earline and she all the way home.
10. The first actors on stage were Jesse and him.
11. Mr. Mendez and us organized a debate about the rights of students.
12. Will you attend the rally with Dominick and me?
13. I helped Kimberly and they with their play about Hiawatha.
14. Jeannette and her know a great deal about Greek myths.
15. The hickory smoke smelled good to we campers.
16. The only seventh-graders in the marching band this year are Bianca and me.
17. Liang was telling them and me about his home in Hong Kong.
18. Julia and them learned how to use hot wax to make batik patterns on cloth.
19. During the marathon, Lionel ran just behind Jim and she.
20. Thomas asked Marvella and he if they wanted to join a gospel chorus.

Case

19a. Case is the form that a noun or pronoun takes to show its relationship to other words in a sentence.

English has three cases for nouns and pronouns:
- nominative
- objective
- possessive

The form of a noun is the same for both the nominative and the objective cases. For example, a noun used as a subject (nominative case) will have the same form when used as a direct object (objective case).

NOMINATIVE CASE That Ming vase is very old. [subject]
OBJECTIVE CASE Who bought the vase? [direct object]

A noun changes its form only in the possessive case, usually by adding an apostrophe and an s.

POSSESSIVE CASE The Ming vase’s new owner is pleased.

---

HELP

The nominative case is sometimes referred to as the subject form. The objective case is sometimes referred to as the object form. Follow your teacher’s instructions when using these terms.

Reference Note

For more about forming the possessive case of nouns, see page 638.
Unlike nouns, most personal pronouns have different forms for all three cases.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Personal Pronouns</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Nominative</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Case</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Singular</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>I</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>you</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>he, she, it</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Plural</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>we</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>you</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>they</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

NOTE The personal pronouns in the possessive case—my, mine, your, yours, his, her, hers, its, our, ours, their, theirs—are used to show ownership or relationship.

The possessive pronouns mine, yours, his, hers, its, ours, their are used as parts of sentences in the same ways in which the pronouns in the nominative and the objective cases are used.

EXAMPLES
His book and mine are overdue.
This desk is his.
We completed ours this morning.

The possessive pronouns my, your, his, her, its, our, their are used as adjectives before nouns.

EXAMPLES
My shoes need to be cleaned.
Have you proofread her report for her yet?
There goes their dog Rex.

NOTE Some authorities prefer to call these words adjectives. Follow your teacher’s instructions regarding these possessive forms.
The Nominative Case

19b. The subject of a verb should be in the nominative case.

Examples

- He and I mowed lawns. [He and I are used together as the compound subject of mowed.]
- Did they craft candles from antique molds? [They is the subject of Did craft.]
- She took orders while we made change. [She is the subject of took. We is the subject of made.]

Oral Practice 1 Using Pronouns as Subjects

Read each of the following sentences aloud, stressing the italicized pronouns.

1. Dr. Chen and they discussed the usefulness of herbal medicines.
2. He and I live next door to each other.
3. They should try to get along better.
4. Yesterday she and they gave their reports on modern African American poets.
5. You and she left the party early.
6. Since the third grade, we have been friends.
7. He and his family are moving to Puerto Rico.
8. I will miss them.

Exercise 1 Identifying Correct Pronoun Forms

Choose the correct form of the pronoun in parentheses in each of the following sentences.

Example

1. My friends and (I, me) like to spend time outdoors.
   1. I

1. Lou and (me, I) asked my mother to drive us to a nearby state park.
2. There (he and I, him and me) set out on a marked trail through the woods.
3. Before long, (he and I, him and me) were exploring a snowy area off the beaten track.
4. At midday Lou and (me, I) reluctantly followed our tracks back to the path.
5. (Us, We) had had the best time of our lives.
6. I told Mother that I thought (she, her) would enjoy the trail.
7. To my surprise, (she, her) wanted to walk part of the trail then.
8. Lou and (she, her) immediately started hiking down the trail.
9. (They, Them) knew that I would follow.
10. (Us, We) had fun but were ready to ride instead of walk home!

19c. A predicate nominative should be in the nominative case.

A predicate nominative is a word or word group that is in the predicate and that identifies or refers to the subject of the verb. A pronoun used as a predicate nominative completes the meaning of a linking verb, usually a form of the verb be (such as am, are, is, was, were, be, been, or being).

EXAMPLES
The candidates should have been he and she. [He and she follow the linking verb should have been and identify the subject candidates.]
The members of the team are they. [They follows the linking verb are and identifies the subject members.]

Oral Practice 2 Using Pronouns as Predicate Nominatives

Read each of the following sentences aloud, stressing the italicized pronouns.

1. Were the only Spanish-speaking people you and they?
2. The caller could have been she.
3. The leaders will be my mother and he.
4. The three candidates for class president are she and we.
5. That must be the pilot and he on the runway.
6. The three winners were Eduardo, Maya, and I.
7. The first ones on the scene were our neighbors and they.
8. The speakers at the rally were she and Jesse Jackson.

Exercise 2 Identifying Correct Pronoun Forms

Choose the correct form of the pronoun in parentheses in each of the following sentences.

EXAMPLE
1. Were the ones who left early (they, them)?
   1. they

1. Two witnesses claimed that the burglar was (him, he).
2. The volunteers must be (them, they).
3. Is the last performer (she, her)?
4. The next speaker will be (him, he).
5. The guests of honor are Luther and (us, we).
6. I knew the one in red was (she, her), of course.
7. The hardest workers are Susan, Trầnh, and (me, I).
8. Can that be (she, her) in the Indian sari?
9. The next batter should be (she, her).
10. Our newest neighbors are the Blumenthals and (them, they).

Review A  Writing Sentences That Contain Pronouns in the Nominative Case

The busy scene you see on the next page was painted by the Mexican American artist Carmen Lomas Garza. It shows one of her childhood birthday parties. The fish-shaped object is a piñata, full of treats for the children. Carmen is getting ready to take a swing at the piñata. Answer each of the following questions by writing a sentence. Follow the directions after each question.

EXAMPLE

1. What are the kneeling boys in the lower right-hand corner doing? (Use a plural personal pronoun as the subject.)

   1. They are getting ready to play marbles.

1. What is Carmen using to hit the piñata? (Use a singular personal pronoun as the subject.)
2. For whom are the presents on the table? (Use a plural personal pronoun as the subject.)
3. Who will get the gifts and treats inside the piñata? (Use a person’s name and a plural personal pronoun as the compound subject.)
4. Have you and your classmates ever played a game that requires a blindfold? (Use a plural and a singular personal pronoun as the compound subject.)
5. Why does the boy at the far left have presents in his hand? (Use a singular personal pronoun as the subject.)
6. What would Carmen say if you asked her, “Who’s the birthday girl?” (Use a singular personal pronoun as a predicate nominative.)
7. Did Carmen’s parents and her grandmother plan the party? (Use a plural and a singular personal pronoun as a compound predicate nominative.)
8. Are the baby and his mother near the table having a good time? (Use the baby and a singular personal pronoun as the compound subject.)

9. Is Carmen’s father the man holding the piñata rope? (Use a singular personal pronoun as a predicate nominative.)

10. Who is the one now looking at the picture of Carmen Lomas Garza’s birthday party? (Use a singular personal pronoun as a predicate nominative.)

The Objective Case

19d. Direct objects and indirect objects of verbs should be in the objective case.

A direct object is a noun, pronoun, or word group that tells who or what receives the action of the verb.

EXAMPLES

- Mom called me to the phone. [Me tells whom Mom called.]
- Julia bought sweet potatoes and used them to make filling for the empanadas. [Them tells what she used.]
An indirect object is a noun, pronoun, or word group that often appears in sentences containing direct objects. An indirect object tells to whom or to what or for whom or for what the action of the verb is done.

An indirect object generally comes between an action verb and its direct object.

EXAMPLES

- The hostess handed her a name tag. [Her tells to whom the hostess handed the name tag.]
- Mr. Tanaka raises large goldfish; he often feeds them rice. [Them tells to what Mr. Tanaka feeds rice.]

NOTE

Indirect objects do not follow prepositions. If to or for precedes a pronoun, the pronoun is an object of a preposition, not an indirect object.

OBJECT OF A PREPOSITION

- Send a letter to me.

INDIRECT OBJECT

- Send me a letter.

Oral Practice 3

Using Pronouns as Direct Objects and Indirect Objects

Read each of the following sentences aloud, stressing the italicized pronouns.

1. I took Joe and her to a performance by French mimes.
2. The bus driver let Melba, Joe, and me off at the next corner.
3. An usher gave us programs.
4. Another usher showed them and me our seats.
5. The performers fascinated Melba and me.
6. Their costumes delighted the crowd and her.
7. No one else impressed Joe and me as much as the youngest mime did.
8. We watched her exploring the walls of an invisible room.

Exercise 3

Writing Pronouns Used as Direct Objects and Indirect Objects

Write an appropriate pronoun for each blank in the sentences on the following page. Use a variety of pronouns, but do not use you or it.

EXAMPLE

1. Have you seen Kim and ____?
   1. her
1. The manager hired Susana and ____.
2. Lana sent ____ and ____ invitations.
3. We gave Grandpa López and ____ round-trip tickets to Mexico City.
4. The firefighters rescued ____ and ____.
5. Aunt Coretta showed my cousins and ____ a carved mask from Nigeria.
6. The show entertained the children and ____.
7. The waiter served ____ and ____ a variety of dumplings.
8. Our team chose ____ and ____ as representatives.
9. The election committee nominated Gerry and ____.
10. The clerk gave Misako and ____ the receipt for the paper lanterns.

Review B Identifying Correct Pronoun Forms

Choose the correct form of each pronoun in parentheses in the following sentences.

EXAMPLE

1. Paul told Ms. Esteban that (he, him) and (I, me) need a topic for our report.
   1. he, I

1. In our American history class, some of the other students and (he, him) thought that there should be more reports on women.
2. We were interested in Amelia Earhart and wanted to give (she, her) the recognition she deserves.
3. The picture on the left, showing Amelia Earhart looking relaxed and confident, interested Paul and (I, me).
4. Both (he, him) and (I, me) were eager to find out more about her contribution to aviation.
5. We learned that it was (she, her) who made the first solo flight by a woman across the Atlantic.
6. The fact that Amelia Earhart was the first pilot to fly from Hawaii to California surprised the rest of the class and (we, us), too.
7. In 1937, her navigator and (she, her) took off in a twin-engine plane for a trip around the world.
8. After (they, them) had completed two thirds of the trip, Earhart and her navigator lost contact with radio operators.
9. No one ever saw (they, them) or the airplane again.
10. Ms. Esteban and (we, us) are among the many people still puzzling over this mystery.

19e. The object of a preposition should be in the objective case.

A noun or pronoun that follows a preposition is called the object of a preposition. Together, the preposition, its object, and any modifiers of the object make a prepositional phrase.

EXAMPLES

Before us lay rows of green cornstalks. [Us is the object of the preposition Before.]
The secret is between him and me. [Him and me are the compound object of the preposition between.]
Please stand next to her. [Her is the object of the compound preposition next to.]

Oral Practice 4 Using Pronouns as Objects of Prepositions

Read each of the following sentences aloud, stressing the italicized prepositions and pronouns.

1. Mr. Torres divided the burritos among them and us.
2. At the game Maria sat near him and her.
3. Rose walked toward Nell and me.
4. Sam stood between him and me.
5. Mom ordered sandwiches for Hannah and her.
6. “Without Squanto and me, the Pilgrims won’t last another winter,” thought Samoset.
7. I have read biographies about him and Martin Luther.
8. David’s parents gave a bar mitzvah party for him.

Exercise 4 Choosing Pronouns Used as Objects of Prepositions

Choose the correct form of the pronoun in parentheses in each of the sentences on the following page.

EXAMPLE

1. Of all the people who traveled with Lewis and Clark, Sacagawea was particularly helpful to (them, they).
   1. them
1. Sacagawea’s husband, a guide named Toussaint Charbonneau, joined the expedition with (her, she) and their newborn baby.
2. The Shoshone were Sacagawea’s people, and she longed to return to (them, they).
3. Captain Clark soon realized how important she would be to Lewis and (he, him).
4. The land they were exploring was familiar to (she, her).
5. Luckily for (she, her) and the expedition, they met a group of friendly Shoshone.
6. From (them, they), Sacagawea obtained the ponies that Lewis and Clark needed.
7. Sacagawea’s baby boy delighted the expedition’s leaders, and they took good care of (he, him).
8. In fact, Captain Clark made a promise to (she, her) and Charbonneau that he would give the boy a good education.
9. At the age of eighteen, the boy befriended a prince and traveled with (him, he) in Europe.
10. Although sources disagree about when Sacagawea died, a gravestone for (she, her) in Wyoming bears the date April 9, 1884.

Review C Identifying Correct Pronoun Forms

Choose the correct form of the pronoun in parentheses in each of the following sentences. Then, tell what part of the sentence each pronoun is: subject, predicate nominative, direct object, indirect object, or object of a preposition.

EXAMPLE

1. My brother Pete and (I, me) wanted to know more about Elizabeth Blackwell.
   1. I—subject

1. Mom told Pete and (I, me) the story of Elizabeth Blackwell, the first woman to graduate from medical school in the United States.
2. Geneva College granted (she, her) a degree in 1849.
3. At first, because she was a woman, no male doctor would let her work for (he, him).
4. Pete and (I, me) admire Elizabeth Blackwell for not giving up.
5. She wanted to help the poor and opened her own clinic for (they, them).
6. Wealthy citizens were soon supporting (she, her) and the clinic with donations.

7. Before long, one of the most talked-about topics in medical circles was (she, her) and the excellent work she was doing for the poor.

8. Mom and (we, us) read more about Dr. Blackwell, and we learned that she opened a medical school just for women.

9. Dr. Blackwell set high standards for students and gave (they, them) hard courses of study to complete.

10. Her teaching prepared (they, them) well, and many went on to become successful physicians.

Special Pronoun Problems

Who and Whom

The pronoun who has different forms in the nominative and objective cases. Who is the nominative form; whom is the objective form.

When you need to decide whether to use who or whom in a question, follow these steps:

- STEP 1 Rephrase the question as a statement.
- STEP 2 Decide how the pronoun is used in the statement—as a subject, a predicate nominative, a direct or an indirect object, or an object of a preposition.
- STEP 3 Determine the case of the pronoun according to the rules of formal, standard English.
- STEP 4 Select the correct form of the pronoun.

EXAMPLE (Who, Whom) is she?

- STEP 1 The statement is She is (who, whom).
- STEP 2 The pronoun is a predicate nominative that refers to the subject She.
- STEP 3 A pronoun used as a predicate nominative should be in the nominative case.
- STEP 4 The nominative form is who.

ANSWER: Who is she?

STYLE TIP

In informal English, the use of whom is becoming less common. In fact, in informal situations, you may correctly begin any question with who regardless of the grammar of the sentence. In formal English, however, you should distinguish between who and whom.
EXAMPLE  (Who, Whom) will you invite to the dance?

STEP 1  The statement is You will invite (who, whom) to the dance.

STEP 2  The pronoun is the direct object of the verb will invite.

STEP 3 A pronoun used as a direct object should be in the objective case.

STEP 4  The objective form is whom.

ANSWER:  Whom will you invite to the dance?

Oral Practice 5 Using Who and Whom

Read each of the following sentences aloud, stressing the italicized pronouns.

1. Who is captain of the football team this year?
2. To whom did you give your old skateboard?
3. Whom will you call to come and pick us up after band practice?
4. Who were the first Americans?
5. In the last play of the game, who passed the ball to whom?
6. Who’s that woman in the green sari?
7. For whom did you buy those flowers?
8. Who painted that beautiful picture?

Exercise 5 Choosing Who or Whom

Choose the correct form of the pronoun in parentheses in each of the following sentences.

EXAMPLE  1. (Who, Whom) helped load the hay on the wagon this morning?
   1. Who
   2. To (who, whom) are you going to give the award?
   2. whom

1. (Who, Whom) will your brother invite to his birthday party?
2. (Who, Whom) will be our substitute teacher while Mr. Chen is away?
3. (Who, Whom) has Ms. Spears appointed?
4. Of the three candidates, in (who, whom) do you have the most confidence?
5. To (who, whom) do you wish these balloons sent?
6. For (who, whom) is the package that was delivered?
7. (Who, Whom) is the architect of the new library building?
8. With (who, whom) would you most like to talk?
9. Among your friends, (who, whom) has the quickest smile?
10. (Who, Whom) have the students elected class president?

Pronouns with Appositives

Sometimes a pronoun is followed directly by a noun that identifies the pronoun. Such a noun is called an appositive. To help you choose which pronoun to use before an appositive, omit the appositive and try each form of the pronoun separately.

EXAMPLE

On Saturdays, (we, us) cyclists ride to Mount McCabe and back. [Cyclists is the appositive identifying the pronoun.]
We ride or Us ride?

ANSWER

On Saturdays, we cyclists ride to Mount McCabe and back.

EXAMPLE

The speaker praised (we, us) volunteers. [Volunteers is the appositive identifying the pronoun.]
The speaker praised we or The speaker praised us?

ANSWER

The speaker praised us volunteers.

Exercise 6 Choosing Correct Pronouns

Choose the correct form of the pronoun in parentheses in each of the following sentences.

EXAMPLE

1. Hanukkah is always an exciting holiday for (we, us) Feldmans.
   1. us

1. Tiger Woods is a role model for (we, us) golfers.
2. Miss Jefferson, (we, us) students want to thank you for all your help.
3. (We, Us) contestants shook hands warmly.
4. The woman gave (we, us) girls five dollars for shoveling the snow.
5. The attorneys politely answered the questions from (we, us) reporters.
6. For (we, us) volunteers, service is its own reward.
7. Frank loaned (we, us) fans two classical tapes.
8. The huge dog knocked (we, us) joggers off the sidewalk.
9. (We, Us) actors need to rehearse again before Friday night.
10. The new team members were (we, us) boys.

Reflexive Pronouns

Do not use the nonstandard forms hisself and theirselves or theirselfs in place of himself and themselves.

NONSTANDARD The secretary voted for hisself in the last election.
STANDARD The secretary voted for himself in the last election.

NONSTANDARD The cooks served theirselves some of the hot won-ton soup.
STANDARD The cooks served themselves some of the hot won-ton soup.

Exercise 7 Identifying Correct Pronoun Forms

Choose the correct form of the pronoun in parentheses in each of the following sentences.

EXAMPLE 1. The contestants promised (theirselves, themselves) it would be a friendly competition.

1. themselves

1. Before he started to read, Zack asked (hisself, himself) three questions to set his purpose.
2. My little brother often falls down, but he never seems to hurt (himself, hisself).
3. The guests helped (theirselves, themselves) to the nuts and raisins.
4. John Yellowtail enjoys (himself, hisself) when he is making fine silver jewelry.
5. When the early settlers wanted cloth, they had to spin it (theirselves, themselves).
6. My brother was upset with (hisself, himself) for being rude.
7. Andrew gave (himself, hisself) an early birthday present—a new CD.
8. The Sartens talked (theirselves, themselves) out of buying a second vehicle.
9. Uncle Allen took the last potatoes for (hisself, himself) and passed the onions to me.
10. Bart and Una consider (theirself, themselves) authorities on stamp collecting.

---

Review D Identifying Correct Pronoun Forms

Choose the correct form of the pronoun in parentheses in each of the following sentences.

EXAMPLE

1. To me, the two most interesting explorers are (he, him) and Vasco da Gama.

   1. he

---

1. The team captains will be Jack and (he, him).
2. The finalists in the local talent contest are Alfredo, Sylvia, and (I, me).
3. We were warned by our parents and (they, them).
4. The Washington twins and (I, me) belong to the same club.
5. Both (he and she, her and him) have promised to write us this summer.
6. Pelé and (he, him) both played soccer for the New York Cosmos.
7. “What do you think of (he and I, him and me)?” I asked.
8. “You and (he, him) are improving,” they replied.
9. When Miriam Makeba and the troupe of African musicians arrived, we gave (she and they, her and them) a party.
10. Do you remember my sister and (I, me)?
11. The coach spoke to (we, us) players before the game.
12. Was the joke played on you and (he, him)?
13. Are you and (she, her) going to celebrate Kwanzaa this year?
14. Père Toussaint taught my brother and (I, me) several French phrases.
15. Mom, Andy gave (himself, himself) the biggest piece of banana bread.
16. Who are (they, them), Travis?
17. They congratulated (themselves, theirselves) on a difficult job well done.
18. Don’t leave without (he and I, him and me).
19. (We, Us) skiers had a beautiful view from the lift.
20. (Who, Whom) were you expecting?
21. When we met at the auditions for the school play last year, (he and I, him and me) got along very well right away.
22. (Who, Whom) recommended that book about the history of Ireland to you?
23. When Dawna, Sharon, and (I, me) work on homework together, we always get through it faster and remember it better.
24. (Who, Whom) will you be tutoring from the elementary school, Margaret Tanaka or Billy Worthington?
25. Everyone agreed that the science project designed by Shannon and (him, he) was the best one in the show.
A. Identifying Correct Pronoun Forms

Identify the correct form of the pronoun in parentheses in each of the following sentences.

1. One hot afternoon Mabel and (I, me) walked to the old mill.
2. Grandma sent a crate of apples to my family and (I, me).
3. The counselor chose (we, us) eighth-graders to give the school tour.
4. Don’t worry; my stepmother will take you and (I, me) home.
5. Ms. Chavez sat between Kareem and (I, me) at the assembly.
6. It’s a shame that the boys hurt (themselves, theirselves) last night.
7. Will you and (I, me) be able to reach them in time?
8. Mayor Petrakis asked my mom and (she, her) to help.
9. After I mailed the letter, Willie and (they, them) arrived.
10. Is this (she, her) to whom we spoke yesterday?
11. The senator (himself, hisself) sent me a reply.
12. Our coach sent e-mails to (we, us) marathon runners about the race tomorrow.
13. The fastest typists in class are Gene and (they, them).
14. Will you and (she, her) please come to my house this Wednesday?
15. While we were at the store, we saw my cousin and (she, her).
16. Our dog Piper will bring the ball to (he, him) or (she, her).
17. Last night Dad told Canditha and (I, me) a story.
18. (Whom, Who) wrote The Wind in the Willows?
19. (We, Us) students were not expecting the pop quiz.
20. The referee told (we, us) players that the game would go into overtime.
21. The best calligrapher in the school is (she, her).
22. (Whom, Who) is the better candidate?
23. To (who, whom) is the letter addressed?
24. Roger and (I, me) are studying for our lifeguard certificates.
25. Derek looked at (hisself, himself) in the mirror.
B. Correcting Errors in Pronoun Forms

Most of the following sentences contain an error in the use of pronoun forms. Identify the error, and give the correct form for each of the following sentences. If a sentence is already correct, write C.

26. The closing procession of the powwow will be led by he and the other Dakota dancers.
27. May us choir members leave science class early today?
28. To who are you sending the flowers?
29. Please give these copies of Consuela’s report to her and the committee members.
30. Him and his best friend watched Antz for the third time.
31. Darnell enjoyed hisself at the African Heritage Festival.
32. The last tennis player to beat my sister in straight sets was her.
33. Who have you asked for help with your math homework?
34. Tell Jennifer and I what your science project will be this year.
35. Whom did you invite to the awards ceremony?
36. Us science fiction fans are going to see Forbidden Planet.
37. Who will we see at the mosque?
38. Mario’s mother will be driving Elena and we to the stadium.
39. Emilio and him volunteered to decorate the cafeteria.
40. The perfect person to play Lady Macbeth in the school play is she.
41. Neither Kevin nor I can decide which of Ray Bradbury’s stories we like best.
42. Whom are the most famous inventors in history?
43. Last year, the best piñata was designed by the twins and she.
44. They really outdid theirselves!
45. You should hear the fight song written by us four fans this year!
46. My father and me watched The Man Who Would Be King on video last night.
47. Between you and I, I don’t think Bill will finish his Web page in time for the contest.
48. The state trooper gave her a ticket for an illegal left turn.
49. The last people to arrive at the party were Cordelia and him.
50. Mom, will you take us tired yard workers out for dinner?
Writing Application

Using Pronouns in a Letter

Nominative and Objective Case  Your favorite radio station is having a “Create a Radio Show” contest. Write a letter to the manager of the station explaining what you would like to include in a half-hour weekly radio show. In your letter, use a variety of pronouns in the nominative case and the objective case. Be sure to include enough nouns so that the meaning of all your pronouns is clear.

Prewriting  Discuss your ideas for a radio program with a group of your classmates. List the kinds of entertainment and information you could present. Above all, think about what you would like to hear on the radio.

Writing  As you write your first draft, follow the format for a business letter. Give specific examples of what you want to do on the show, and give reasons for your choices. Remember that even though your ideas may be very creative, your writing must be formal.

Revising  Ask the other group members to read your letter to see if your ideas sound interesting and are clearly stated. Ask them if the relationship between each pronoun and its antecedent is clear. If your meaning is not clear, revise your letter.

Publishing  Re-read your letter, and correct any remaining errors in usage, spelling, punctuation, or capitalization. Be sure that you have followed the correct format for a business letter. Also, make sure that you have used all pronouns according to the rules for standard written English. Your class might want to create a bulletin board display of the letters. With your teacher’s permission, the class might vote on the best idea for a show and then produce and tape the pilot episode.

Reference Note

For information about business letters, see “Writing” in the Quick Reference Handbook.
Using Modifiers Correctly
Comparison and Placement

Diagostic Preview

Revising Sentences by Correcting Errors in the Use of Modifiers

Most of the following sentences contain errors in the use, form, or placement of modifiers. Revise each incorrect sentence to eliminate the error. If a sentence is already correct, write C.

EXAMPLE
1. There wasn’t nothing missing.
   1. There wasn’t anything missing.
      or
   There was nothing missing.

1. Please weigh both packages to see which of them is heaviest.
2. Alarmed, the wildfire started to spread quickly to our camp.
3. Did you read that Eduardo Mata received an award in the newspaper?
4. The bean soup tasted good.
5. We pass my aunt and uncle’s restaurant walking to school.
6. I think the play Fiddler on the Roof is better than the movie.
7. Reading a magazine, my cat jumped up in my lap.
8. Jason tried to push the huge desk but couldn’t scarcely move it.
9. The balloons startled the young children when they burst.
10. A jet taking off can sound more noisier than a jackhammer.
11. Surprised, my coin collection interested a local coin dealer.
12. He examined two old Greek coins but couldn’t see no date.
13. The shinier of those two coins looked newer.
14. That coin turned out to be the oldest of the two, however.
15. I showed one coin to the dealer valued at nearly twenty dollars.
16. He said he couldn’t hardly pay more than fifteen dollars for it.
17. If I had bargained good, I might have gotten more for it.
18. Those two coins come from Ireland that have images of harps on them.
19. Collecting coins, my knowledge about other countries and peoples increases.
20. I polished my Saudi Arabian fifty-halala piece careful so that I could see the Arabic writing on it.

What Is a Modifier?

A modifier is a word, a phrase, or a clause that makes the meaning of a word or word group more specific. The two kinds of modifiers are adjectives and adverbs.

One-Word Modifiers

Adjectives

20a. Adjectives make the meanings of nouns and pronouns more specific.

ADJECTIVES
Andy gave a loud cheer. [The adjective loud tells what kind of cheer.]

The one I made is blue. [The adjective blue tells which one.]

Adverbs

20b. Adverbs make the meanings of verbs, adjectives, and other adverbs more specific.

ADVERBS
Andy cheered loudly. [The adverb loudly makes the meaning of the verb cheered more specific.]
The design is very modern. [The adverb very makes the meaning of the adjective modern more specific.]

The crocodile moved surprisingly quickly. [The adverb surprisingly makes the meaning of the adverb quickly more specific.]

Phrases Used as Modifiers

Like one-word modifiers, phrases can also be used as adjectives and adverbs.

EXAMPLES

- Leaping from the step, the toddler flapped his arms in the air. [The participial phrase Leaping from the step acts as an adjective that modifies the noun toddler.]
- The Greek salad is the one to try. [The infinitive phrase to try acts as an adjective that modifies the pronoun one.]
- Ms. Elizondo planted rosebushes along the fence. [The prepositional phrase along the fence acts as an adverb that modifies the verb planted.]

Clauses Used as Modifiers

Like words and phrases, clauses can also be used as modifiers.

EXAMPLES

- Italian is the language that I like best. [The adjective clause that I like best modifies the noun language.]
- Before Albert went to school, he took the trash to the curb. [The adverb clause Before Albert went to school modifies the verb took.]

Comparison of Adjectives and Adverbs

When adjectives and adverbs are used in comparisons, they take different forms. The specific form they take depends upon how many things are being compared. The different forms of comparison are called degrees of comparison.
20c. The three degrees of comparison of modifiers are the positive, the comparative, and the superlative.

(1) The positive degree is used when at least one thing is being described.

EXAMPLES
- This suitcase is heavy.
- Luis cheerfully began the job.
- Those murals are colorful.

(2) The comparative degree is used when two things or groups of things are being compared.

EXAMPLES
- My suitcase is heavier than yours.
- Luis talked more cheerfully than Albert.
- Those murals are more colorful than these.

(3) The superlative degree is used when three or more things or groups of things are being compared.

EXAMPLES
- Sylvia’s suitcase is the heaviest of all.
- Of the four boys, Luis worked at the task most cheerfully.
- Those murals are the most colorful that I’ve seen.

Regular Comparison

Most one-syllable modifiers form the comparative degree by adding –er and the superlative degree by adding –est.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Positive</th>
<th>Comparative</th>
<th>Superlative</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>close</td>
<td>closer</td>
<td>closest</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>slow</td>
<td>slower</td>
<td>slowest</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>soon</td>
<td>sooner</td>
<td>soonest</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>straight</td>
<td>straighter</td>
<td>straightest</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Notice that both adjectives and adverbs form their degrees of comparison in the same way.

Style Tip

In conversation, you may hear and use expressions such as Put your best foot forward and May the best team win. Such uses of the superlative are acceptable in spoken English. However, in your writing for school and other formal occasions, you should generally use superlatives only when three or more things are compared.

Reference Note

For guidelines on how to spell words when adding –er or –est, see page 661.

Tips & Tricks

Here is a way to remember which form of a modifier to use. When comparing two things, use –er (the two-letter ending). When comparing three or more things, use –est (the three-letter ending).
Two-syllable modifiers form the comparative degree by adding –er or by using more. They form the superlative degree by adding –est or by using most.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Positive</th>
<th>Comparative</th>
<th>Superlative</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>simple</td>
<td>simpler</td>
<td>simplest</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>easy</td>
<td>easier</td>
<td>easiest</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>jealous</td>
<td>more jealous</td>
<td>most jealous</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>swiftly</td>
<td>more swiftly</td>
<td>most swiftly</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Modifiers that have three or more syllables form the comparative degree by using more and the superlative degree by using most.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Positive</th>
<th>Comparative</th>
<th>Superlative</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>powerful</td>
<td>more powerful</td>
<td>most powerful</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>illegible</td>
<td>more illegible</td>
<td>most illegible</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>joyfully</td>
<td>more joyfully</td>
<td>most joyfully</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>attractively</td>
<td>more attractively</td>
<td>most attractively</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Exercise 1 Forming the Degrees of Comparison of Modifiers

Give the forms for the comparative and superlative degrees of the following modifiers.

EXAMPLE

1. light
   1. lighter; lightest

1. near  6. tiny  11. healthy  16. confident
2. proud 7. timidly 12. tall  17. enthusiastically
3. carefully 8. loyal 13. grateful 18. dry
5. small 10. shady 15. easy 20. generous

Decreasing Comparison

To show decreasing comparisons, modifiers form the comparative degree by using less and the superlative degree by using least.
Irregular Comparison

The comparative and superlative degrees of some modifiers are irregular in form.

Writing Comparative and Superlative Forms of Modifiers

Correctly complete each of the following sentences with the comparative or superlative form of the italicized adjective or adverb given.

EXAMPLE

1. unusual
   The Corn Palace in Mitchell, South Dakota, is one of the ____ buildings in the United States.

   1. most unusual

1. big
   The Corn Palace is ____ than I thought it would be.

2. pretty
   People in Mitchell try to make each year’s Corn Palace decorations ____ than the ones before.

3. fresh
   The building looks the ____ in September after new corn and grasses are put on it.

4. easy
   Some workers find it ____ to saw and nail the corn to panels, while others prefer to hang the finished panels on the building.
5. well I could not decide which of the many corn murals on the Corn Palace I liked ____.

6. mysterious The mural of the dancing figure was the _____ one to me.

7. famous Until his death in 1983, Mitchell’s ____ artist, Oscar Howe, helped to design and paint these murals.

8. interesting The life of this Sioux artist is the ____ story I’ve ever heard.

9. slowly My parents walked ____ around the Corn Palace than I did and studied every design.

10. far I met a family from Mexico who had traveled ____ than we had to see the Corn Palace.

---

Special Problems in Using Modifiers

20d. Use good to modify a noun or a pronoun in most cases. Use well to modify a verb.

EXAMPLES

The weather was good on the day of the match. [Good modifies the noun weather.]

If you want a pear, here is a good one. [Good modifies the pronoun one.]

The trees are producing well this fall. [Well modifies the verb phrase are producing.]

---

Reference Note

For more about using good and well, see page 557.
Good should not be used to modify a verb.

NONSTANDARD  Both teams played good.
STANDARD  Both teams played well.

Although well is usually used as an adverb, well may also be used as an adjective meaning “in good health” or “in good condition.”

EXAMPLE  Mom feels quite well today. [Meaning “in good health,” well modifies Mom.]

20e. Use adjectives, not adverbs, after linking verbs.

Linking verbs are often followed by predicate adjectives modifying the subject.

EXAMPLES  Ingrid looked sleepy [not sleepily] this morning. [The predicate adjective sleepy modifies the subject Ingrid.]

Christina felt uncertain [not uncertainly] about running in the relay race. [The predicate adjective uncertain modifies the subject Christina.]

NOTE  Some verbs can be used as either linking or action verbs. As action verbs, they may be modified by adverbs.

EXAMPLES  Ingrid looked sleepily at the clock. [Sleepily modifies the action verb looked.]

Christina uncertainly felt her way along the hall. [Uncertainly modifies the action verb felt.]

Exercise 2 Using Adjectives and Adverbs Correctly

Choose the adjective or adverb that will make each sentence correct.

EXAMPLE  1. John seems (nervous, nervously) about his speech.
    1. nervous

1. When we came into the house after ice-skating, the fire felt (good, well).
2. The wind sounds (fierce, fiercely) at night.
3. Tino looked (good, well) after recovering from his operation.
4. After all, it doesn’t taste (bad, badly).
5. Venus looks (beautiful, beautifully) tonight.
6. Liang cooked a (good, well) meal of vegetables and shrimp.
7. Is the sick child feeling (good, well) enough to eat something?
8. We looked (close, closely) at the fragile cocoon.
9. A cup of soup tastes (good, well) on a cold day.
10. Kudzu grows (rapid, rapidly) in the South.

20f. Avoid using double comparisons.

A double comparison is the use of both –er and more (or less) or –est and most (or least) to form a comparison. When you make a comparison, use only one form, not both.

NONSTANDARD  This is Kathleen Battle’s most finest performance.
STANDARD   This is Kathleen Battle’s finest performance.

NONSTANDARD  His hair is more curlier than his sister’s.
STANDARD   His hair is curlier than his sister’s.

NONSTANDARD  The baby is less fussier in the morning than in the evening.
STANDARD   The baby is less fussy in the morning than in the evening.

Exercise 3  Correcting Double Comparisons

Identify the incorrect modifier in each of the following sentences. Then, give the correct form of the modifier.

EXAMPLES  1. I have been studying more harder lately.
1. more harder—harder

2. Frederick Douglass was one of the most brilliantest speakers against slavery.
2. most brilliantest—most brilliant

1. Sunday was less rainier than Saturday.
2. That is the most saddest story I have ever heard.
3. Are you exercising more oftener than you used to?
4. That evening was the least cloudiest one in weeks.
5. Native arctic peoples have learned to survive in the most coldest weather.
6. Please show me the most finest tennis racket in the shop.
7. It is more farther from New York to Montreal than from New York to Boston.
8. Grumpkins was less joller than the other elves.
9. Your suitcase is more lighter since you took out the boots.
10. Is Venus the most brightestest object in the sky tonight?

Double Negatives

20g. Avoid using double negatives.

A double negative is the use of two or more negative words to express one negative idea. Most of the negative words in the chart below are adjectives or adverbs.

Common Negative Words

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>barely</th>
<th>never</th>
<th>none</th>
<th>nothing</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>hardly</td>
<td>no</td>
<td>no one</td>
<td>nowhere</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>neither</td>
<td>nobody</td>
<td>not (–n’t)</td>
<td>scarcely</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

NONSTANDARD We couldn’t hardly move in the subway car.
STANDARD We could hardly move in the subway car.

NONSTANDARD Yolanda didn’t eat no breakfast this morning.
STANDARD Yolanda didn’t eat any breakfast this morning.
STANDARD Yolanda ate no breakfast this morning.

NONSTANDARD Didn’t she get you nothing for your birthday?
STANDARD Didn’t she get you anything for your birthday?
STANDARD Did she get you nothing for your birthday?

Exercise 4 Correcting Double Negatives

Revise each of the following sentences to eliminate the double negative.

EXAMPLE

1. I couldn’t find no one to go camping with me.
   1. I couldn’t find anyone to go camping with me.
   or
   I could find no one to go camping with me.

1. I didn’t see no one I knew at the game.
2. Early Spanish explorers searched that area of Florida for gold, but they didn’t find none.
3. We couldn’t hardly hear the guest speaker.
4. The cafeteria didn’t serve nothing I like today.
5. Double negatives don’t have no place in standard English.
6. The bird-watchers saw scarcely no bald eagles this year.
7. The club officers never do none of the work themselves.
8. We wouldn’t never need three tractors on our small farm.
9. Jesse couldn’t barely see the top of the waterfalls.
10. The Paynes didn’t go nowhere special during the three-day holiday weekend.

Review B Using Modifiers Correctly

Most of the following sentences contain errors in the use of modifiers. Revise each incorrect sentence to eliminate the error. If a sentence is already correct, write C.

EXAMPLES

1. My cold is worst today than it was yesterday.
   1. My cold is worse today than it was yesterday.

2. There wasn’t nobody willing to go into that house alone.
   2. There wasn’t anybody willing to go into that house alone.

1. She is the funnier of the two comedians.
2. Kendo, a Japanese martial art, is more gracefuller than many other sports.
3. No one in our class can play volleyball as good as Sylvia Yee.
4. Time passes real slowly during the summer.
5. After a long swim, she felt good.
6. I wasn’t scarcely able to hear you.
7. Which of the Rogers twins is strongest?
8. Some people don’t seem to have no control over their tempers.
9. He hardly ever visit us.
10. Of all the folk dances my grandfather taught me, the polka is the most simplest.

Placement of Modifiers

20h. Place modifying words, phrases, and clauses as close as possible to the words they modify.
Notice how the meaning of the following sentence changes when the position of the phrase from Cincinnati changes.

EXAMPLES
The basketball player from Cincinnati gave a TV interview for his fans. [The phrase modifies player.]
The basketball player gave a TV interview for his fans from Cincinnati. [The phrase modifies fans.]
From Cincinnati the basketball player gave a TV interview for his fans. [The phrase modifies gave.]

A modifier that seems to modify the wrong word in a sentence is called a misplaced modifier. A modifier that does not clearly modify another word in a sentence is called a dangling modifier.

MISPLACED
Ringing, everyone glared at the man with the cell phone.

CORRECT
Everyone glared at the man with the ringing cell phone.

DANGLING
Before moving to Philadelphia, Mexico City was their home.

CORRECT
Before moving to Philadelphia, they lived in Mexico City.

Prepositional Phrases

A prepositional phrase consists of a preposition, a noun or a pronoun called the object of the preposition, and any modifiers of that object.

A prepositional phrase used as an adjective generally should be placed directly after the word it modifies.

MISPLACED
The hat belongs to that girl with the feathers.

CLEAR
The hat with the feathers belongs to that girl.

A prepositional phrase used as an adverb should be placed near the word it modifies.

MISPLACED
She read that a new restaurant had opened in today's newspaper.

CLEAR
She read in today's newspaper that a new restaurant had opened.

STYLE TIP
Be sure to place modifiers correctly to show clearly the meaning you intend.

EXAMPLES

Only Mrs. Garza teaches Spanish. [Mrs. Garza, not anybody else, teaches Spanish.]

Mrs. Garza only teaches Spanish. [Mrs. Garza teaches Spanish; she does not research Spanish texts.]

Mrs. Garza teaches only Spanish. [Mrs. Garza does not teach any other subjects.]

Reference Note
For more about prepositions, see page 370. For more about prepositional phrases, see page 371.
Avoid placing a prepositional phrase so that it seems to modify either of two words. Place the phrase so that it clearly modifies the word you intend it to modify.

MISPLACED Manuel said in the afternoon he would call Janet.

[Does in the afternoon modify said or would call?]

CLEAR Manuel said he would call Janet in the afternoon.

[The phrase modifies would call.]

CLEAR In the afternoon Manuel said he would call Janet.

[The phrase modifies said.]

Exercise 5
Revising Sentences with Misplaced Prepositional Phrases

Each of the following sentences contains a misplaced prepositional phrase. Decide where the prepositional phrase belongs; then, revise the sentence.

EXAMPLES

1. In the United States, Zora Neale Hurston grew up in the first self-governed black township.
   1. Zora Neale Hurston grew up in the first self-governed black township in the United States.

2. The cat toy rolled down the hall with a clatter.
   2. With a clatter, the cat toy rolled down the hall.

1. Joshua and Reginald heard that there was a destructive hailstorm on the news.
2. The poster caught my eye on the wall.
3. In the tiny bird’s nest, we thought there might be eggs.
4. Our teacher said on Monday the class would put on a play.
5. Don’t forget to take the box to the store with the empty bottles.
6. We saw José Clemente Orozco’s beautiful murals on vacation in Guadalajara.
7. Tranh read that a wasp larva spins a cocoon in the encyclopedia.
8. A beautiful Bolivian weaving hangs on our living room wall from the town of Trinidad.
9. Did you find the kimonos worn by your grandmother in that old trunk?
10. In confusion, they watched with amusement as the puppies scrambled all over each other.
Exercise 6  Placing Prepositional Phrases Correctly

Rewrite each of the following sentences, adding the prepositional phrase given in parentheses.

EXAMPLE  1. Many paintings show strange, fantastical scenes. (by Marc Chagall)
   1. Many paintings by Marc Chagall show strange, fantastical scenes.

1. Chagall’s The Green Violinist contains many delightful mysteries and surprises. (for the eye and mind)
2. As you can see in the painting, a gigantic violinist sits among the buildings of a small village. (with a green face and hand)
3. Dark windows look just like the windows of the houses. (on the musician’s pants)
4. A man waves to the violinist, and a dog taller than a house seems to smile at the music it hears. (above the clouds)
5. As you look at the painting’s bright colors, perhaps you can almost hear the enchanting music. (of the green violinist)
6. You may be surprised to learn that the fiddler is found in many of Chagall’s other works. (in this painting)
7. Chagall enjoyed listening to his uncle play the violin. (during his childhood)
8. The Green Violinist and other paintings of the fiddler are tributes. (to Chagall’s uncle)
9. In a painting titled Violinist, Chagall painted himself standing. (beside the violinist)
10. In that unusual painting, Chagall has three heads turned to show enjoyment of the music. (toward the uncle)

HELP

Be careful to place each prepositional phrase in Exercise 6 near the word or words it modifies.

The Granger Collection, New York

Copyright © by Holt, Rinehart and Winston. All rights reserved.

Placement of Modifiers 543
Participial Phrases

A participial phrase consists of a present participle or a past participle and its modifiers and complements. A participial phrase is used as an adjective to modify a noun or a pronoun. Like a prepositional phrase, a participial phrase should be placed as close as possible to the word it modifies.

EXAMPLES

- Walking to school, Celia and James found a wallet. [The participial phrase modifies Celia and James.]
- I. M. Pei, born in China, is a gifted architect. [The participial phrase modifies I. M. Pei.]

A participial phrase that is not placed near the noun or pronoun that it modifies is a misplaced modifier.

MISPLACED Stolen from the media center, the deputies found the videocassette recorder. [Were the deputies stolen from the media center?]

CLEAR The deputies found the videocassette recorder stolen from the media center.

MISPLACED Sleeping on the roof, I saw the neighbor’s cat. [Was I sleeping on the roof?]

CLEAR I saw the neighbor’s cat sleeping on the roof.

MISPLACED We’re used to the noise living by the airport. [Is the noise living by the airport?]

CLEAR Living by the airport, we’re used to the noise.

A participial phrase that does not clearly and logically modify a word in the sentence is a dangling modifier.

DANGLING Cleaning the attic, an old trunk was found. [Who was cleaning the attic?]

CLEAR Cleaning the attic, we found an old trunk.

Exercise 7 Placing Participial Phrases Correctly

Rewrite each of the following sentences, adding the participial phrases given in parentheses. Be sure to use commas to set off participial phrases that begin or interrupt your sentences.
EXAMPLES

1. Finn and Darcy searched for their younger sister. (scanning the crowd)

   1. Scanning the crowd, Finn and Darcy searched for their younger sister.

2. The sea turtle ducked back into its shell. (startled by the sound of the boat’s engine)

   2. Startled by the sound of the boat’s engine, the sea turtle ducked back into its shell.

1. My older sister will be working at the garden center near my house. (beginning next week)

2. Our new kitten crawled under the sofa. (exploring the house)

3. By mistake, we sat on the swings. (freshly painted)

4. Lucy helped her brother find the books. (lost somewhere in his messy room)

5. Josie and Fred passed the playground. (walking through the park)

6. Ms. Surat told us about Sri Lanka and its people. (pointing to the map)

7. The two girls yelled loudly. (surprised by their little brother)

8. The horse likes to watch people. (munching on grass)

9. Andrea picked up the pencil and waited for the test to begin. (sharpened moments earlier)

10. On the beach this morning, the children found a mysterious note. (folded in a blue bottle)

---

Exercise 8

Revising Sentences to Correct Misplaced and Dangling Participial Phrases

Revise all sentences that contain misplaced or dangling participial phrases. If a sentence is already correct, write C.

EXAMPLE

1. Made from matzo meal, Rachel cooks tasty dumplings.

   1. Rachel cooks tasty dumplings made from matzo meal.

1. Pacing in its cage, I watched the lion.

2. Talking on the telephone, Amanda did not hear the doorbell ringing.

3. Exploring the cave, a new tunnel was discovered.
4. Wearing a bright orange suit and floppy yellow shoes, the circus featured a clown.
5. Filled with countless daisies, the two young girls walked slowly through the field.
6. Reading his part, the nervousness was hard to overcome.
7. The turkey was large enough for three families stuffed with sage and bread crumbs.
8. Tired from the long walk through the snow, food and rest were welcomed.
9. Checking the shelves, Judy found all the reference books she needed.
10. Selling the old farm, sadness welled up inside.

Adjective Clauses

An adjective clause modifies a noun or a pronoun. Most adjective clauses begin with a relative pronoun—that, which, who, whom, or whose. Like an adjective phrase, an adjective clause should generally be placed directly after the word it modifies.

MISPLACED  The Labor Day picnic in the park that we had was fun.

CLEAR  The Labor Day picnic that we had in the park was fun.

MISPLACED  The girls thanked their coach who had won the relay race.

CLEAR  The girls who had won the relay race thanked their coach.

Exercise 9  Revising Sentences with Misplaced Clause Modifiers

Revise each of the following sentences by placing the adjective clause near the word it should modify.

EXAMPLE  1. My friend Beverly visited me who lives in Sarasota, Florida.

CLEAR  1. My friend Beverly, who lives in Sarasota, Florida, visited me.

1. The students received an A who made the first presentation.
2. The kitten belongs to my neighbor that is on the branch.
3. I showed the colorful cotton fabric to my sister that was made in Kenya.
4. The doctor said that the triplets were quite healthy who examined them.
5. The cleanup program was supported by all of the students that the president of the seventh-grade class suggested.
6. The flight attendant welcomed us aboard the plane whose brother I know.
7. The friend has a broken leg whom I called.
8. Donald’s package is from his mother which came in the mail.
9. Quasars fascinate me which many astronomers throughout the world study.
10. The dog barked at the letter carrier that has been running loose in the neighborhood.

Review C Correcting Errors in the Use of Modifiers

Each of the following sentences contains an error in the use, form, or placement of a modifier. Revise each sentence by changing the form of a modifier or by adding, deleting, or rearranging words.

EXAMPLE

1. I have never been more happier in my life.
   1. I have never been happier in my life.

1. My stepsister plays both soccer and softball, but she likes soccer best.
2. The waiter brought plates to Terrell and me piled high with spaghetti and meat sauce.
3. Very frustrated, her locker just would not open!
4. Barking and growling loudly, the stranger was frightened by the dogs.
5. The antique German cuckoo clock still runs good after all these years.
6. I didn’t do too bad on the geography quiz this morning.
7. Our puppy is much more playfuller than our older dog is.
8. We drove slow past the duck pond to see if any new ducklings had hatched.
9. They never did find no sponsor for their team.
10. The CD is the soundtrack of my favorite movie that we heard.
Review D  Proofreading Sentences for Correct Use of Modifiers

Each of the following sentences contains an error in the use, form, or placement of a modifier. Revise each sentence by changing the form of a modifier or by adding, deleting, or rearranging words.

EXAMPLE 1. Of all the important women featured in this book, Dolores S. Atencio is the one I admire more.

1. Of all the important women featured in this book, Dolores S. Atencio is the one I admire most.

1. Her mother thought that a law career would offer her daughter the most brightest future.

2. Ms. Atencio always knew she would become a lawyer, but she didn’t never expect to be so successful.

3. Looking ahead to college and law school, her grades in high school were excellent.

4. Along with two other Hispanic women, her efforts helped to launch Denver’s first bilingual radio station in 1985.

5. Ms. Atencio felt quite proudly about helping to organize Colorado’s first minority women lawyers’ conference.

6. She decided to run for president of the Hispanic National Bar Association (HNBA) receiving encouragement from a friend.

7. Serving as president of HNBA, the legal rights of Hispanics were her main focus.

8. In 1991, she was named one of the most outstanding Hispanic women in Hispanic Business Magazine.

9. She also was given the Outstanding Young Woman Award from the city of Denver, which she received for all the time she had devoted to community service.

10. In addition to enjoying community service, Ms. Atencio feels really well when she is spending time with her family.
A. Using the Correct Modifier

Identify the word in parentheses that will make each sentence correct.

1. I have to admit that this recording sounds (bad, badly).
2. Our Irish setter came (shy, shyly) toward the new puppy.
3. Yoki was anxious, but she appeared (calm, calmly).
4. Must the twins play so (noisy, noisily)?
5. We’re pleased that you did so (good, well).
6. The storm ended as (sudden, suddenly) as it began.
7. With a little oil, the engine started (easy, easily).
8. Their performance is now (good, well) enough for any stage.
9. The kitchen counter looks (clean, cleanly).
10. It is (good, well) to be alive on a beautiful day like today.
11. Of the five designs, which one do you like (better, best)?
12. José Canseco played (good, well).
13. This ring is the (more, most) expensive of the two.
14. That striped tie would go (good, well) with your green shirt.
15. Choose the (larger, largest) of the two poodles.

B. Writing Comparative and Superlative Forms of Modifiers

Write the comparative or superlative form of the italicized adjective or adverb in each of the following sentences.

16. dry  The towels felt ____ after an afternoon on the clothesline than they had felt coming out of the washer.
17. grateful  We were ____ for Mr. Chang’s advice than we could say.
18. small  The screwdriver my father used to repair my glasses was the ____ one he had.
19. proud  After the awards ceremony, Kerry seemed ____ of her son than she ever had before.
20. slow  The ____ horse of them all finished last in the race.
21. enthusiastically Pleased by all the performances, the audience applauded ____ for the dancers.

22. tasty Since Dad started taking cooking classes, each dinner is ____ than the previous one.

23. loyal Tadger is the ____ of our three dogs.

24. easily With more practice, we solved the second puzzle ____ than the first one.

25. tall Which of the five Romine girls do you think is ____?

C. Correcting Double Comparisons and Double Negatives

Rewrite the following sentences to correct errors in the use of modifiers.

26. These Hawaiian shirts don’t have no pockets.

27. Pineapple juice tastes more sweeter than orange juice to me.

28. What is the most funniest thing that ever happened to you?

29. I can’t hardly take another step.

30. Sakima couldn’t barely catch her breath after running so far.

D. Correcting Misplaced and Dangling Modifiers

Each sentence below contains a misplaced or dangling modifier. Rewrite the sentences so that they are clear. You may need to add, delete, or rearrange words.

31. The fruit was marked for quick sale bruised by the storm.

32. Those tapes came from the library that you heard.

33. After leaving India, Singapore was the next destination.

34. Opening a savings account, a form of identification was required.

35. Skateboarding down the street, a large dog chased my brother.

36. Black Hawk was a chief of the Sauk people born in Virginia.

37. Trying to study, the noise from the chainsaw was distracting.

38. These salmon are using fish ladders, which are returning to spawn.
39. Sifting carefully through the sand, an old Spanish coin called a doubloon was found.
40. I saw the gazelles jumping through the binoculars.

Writing Application

Using Comparisons in a Letter

Comparative and Superlative Forms An anonymous donor has given a large sum of money for improvements to your school. Write a letter to the administrators describing the improvements you would like to see. Use at least three comparative and two superlative forms of adjectives and adverbs in your writing.

Prewriting What facilities, equipment, or supplies would make your school a better place? List your improvement ideas. You may want to discuss your ideas with a classmate or a teacher before you select the ones to include in your letter. Also, note why the improvements are needed.

Writing As you write your first draft, use your list to help you make clear and accurate comparisons. Keep your audience in mind. The administrators need practical suggestions for how to spend the money, so let them know exactly what improvements your school needs and why.

Revising Read your letter to a parent or other adult to see if your arguments are convincing. Add, delete, or rearrange details to make your letter more interesting and effective.

Publishing Be sure you have used the correct comparative and superlative forms of adjectives and adverbs. Check the form of your letter to make sure it follows the guidelines for business letters. Read through your letter a final time to catch any errors in spelling, grammar, usage, or punctuation. Share your ideas for improving the school with the rest of the class, and make a chart displaying the most popular suggestions.

Reference Note See “Writing” in the Quick Reference Handbook for guidelines on writing business letters.
Correcting Errors in Usage

Each of the following sentences contains an error in the use of formal, standard English. Revise each sentence to correct the error.

EXAMPLE

1. They did they’re best to help.
   1. They did their best to help.

1. We are already for our trip to Washington, D.C.
2. They divided the crackers equally between the four toddlers.
3. Please take those packages here to me.
4. Elena had a cold, but she is feeling good now.
5. Mr. Chang he is my tai chi instructor.
6. Will you learn me how to play chess?
7. May I borrow that there collection of Cheyenne folk tales?
8. Tara might of come with us, but she had to baby-sit.
9. We use to live in Karachi, Pakistan.
10. She is the woman which owns the Great Dane.
11. I dropped the pictures, but I think they’re alright.
12. I read where Mayor Alvarez will visit our school.
13. Their the best players on the team this season.
14. The pipes busted last winter during a hard freeze.
15. We cannot go sailing without we wear life jackets.
16. Her new apartment is bigger then her last one.
17. The group went everywheres together.
18. Lydia acted like she was bored.
19. Antonyms are when words are opposite in meaning.
20. I hope that you will except my apology.

About the Glossary

This chapter contains an alphabetical list, or glossary, of many common problems in English usage. You will notice throughout the chapter that some examples are labeled nonstandard, standard, formal, or informal. Nonstandard English is language that does not follow the rules and guidelines of standard English. Standard English is language that is grammatically correct and appropriate in formal and informal situations. Formal identifies usage that is appropriate in serious speaking and writing situations (such as in speeches and compositions for school). The label informal indicates standard usage common in conversation and in everyday writing such as personal letters.

The following are examples of formal and informal English.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Formal</th>
<th>Informal</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>angry</td>
<td>steamed</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>unpleasant</td>
<td>yucky</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>agreeable</td>
<td>cool</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>very impressive</td>
<td>totally awesome</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

a, an  Use a before words beginning with a consonant sound. Use an before words beginning with a vowel sound. Keep in mind that the sound, not the actual letter, that a word begins with determines whether a or an should be used.

EXAMPLES

They are building a hospital near our house.

I bought a one-way ticket. [Even though o is a vowel, the word one begins with a consonant sound.]

I would like an orange.

We worked for an hour. [Although h is a consonant, the word hour begins with a vowel sound. The h is not pronounced.]

Reference Note

For a list of words often confused, see page 666.

COMPUTER TIP

The spellchecker on a computer will help you catch misspelled words such as anywheres and nowheres. The grammar checker may help you catch errors such as double negatives. However, in the case of words that are often misused, such as than and then and between and among, you will have to check your work yourself for correct usage.

HELP

In doing the exercises in this chapter, be sure to use only standard English.
accept, except
Accept is a verb; it means “to receive.” Except may be used as either a verb or a preposition. As a verb, it means “to leave out.” As a preposition, except means “excluding.”

EXAMPLES
Ann accepted the gift.  [verb]
No one will be excepted from writing a research paper.  [verb]
All my friends will be there except Jorge.  [preposition]

ain’t
Do not use this nonstandard word in formal situations.

all right
Used as an adjective, all right means “satisfactory” or “unhurt.” Used as an adverb, all right means “well enough.” All right should be written as two words.

EXAMPLES
Your science project looks all right to me.  [adjective]
Judy cut her toe, but she is all right now.  [adjective]
I did all right in the drama club tryouts.  [adverb]

a lot
A lot should be written as two words.

EXAMPLE
I have read a lot of American Indian folk tales.

already, all ready
Already means “previously.” All ready means “completely prepared.”

EXAMPLES
By 5:00 P.M., I had already cooked dinner.
The students were all ready for the trip.

among
See between, among.

anyways, anywheres, everywheres, nowheres, somewheres
These words should have no final s.

EXAMPLE
I looked everywhere [not everywheres] for it!

as
See like, as.

as if, as though
See like, as if, as though.

at
Do not use at after where.

NONSTANDARD
Where are the Persian miniatures at?

STANDARD
Where are the Persian miniatures?

bad, badly
Bad is an adjective. It modifies nouns and pronouns. Badly is an adverb. It modifies verbs, adjectives, and adverbs.
A Glossary of Usage

Examples

The fruit tastes bad. [The predicate adjective bad modifies fruit.]

Don’t treat him badly. [The adverb badly modifies the verb Do treat.]

Exercise 1 Identifying Correct Usage

For each of the following sentences, choose the word or word group in parentheses that is correct according to the rules of formal, standard usage.

Example

1. Navajo people came to the American Southwest from (somewhere, somewheres) in the North.
   - somewhere

1. One group of Navajos settled in the region where the Pueblo people (lived, lived at).

2. The Pueblo people were (already, all ready) farming and living in permanent dwellings by the time the Navajos arrived.

3. The Navajos may have (excepted, accepted) the practice of sand painting from the Pueblos and adapted it to fit their own customs.

4. When the Navajo artists are (all ready, already) to begin a sand painting, they gather in a circle, as shown in the picture here.

5. When creating a sand painting, (a, an) artist receives directions from the singer, who leads the ceremony.

6. The painter might make a certain design when things are not (all right, allright) in the community.

7. The Navajo sand painter may also use this art to help someone who is injured or feeling (badly, bad).

8. Because sand paintings used in healing ceremonies are swept away at the end of each ceremony, the designs are recorded nowhere (accept, except) in the artist’s imagination.

9. However, the patterns used in sand painting (ain’t, aren’t) limited to this art form.

10. Variations of the sacred designs can be found almost (anywheres, anywhere) on items that the Navajos make.

Style Tip

The expression feel badly has become acceptable in informal situations although it is not strictly grammatical English.

Informal
Carl felt badly about losing the race.

Formal
Carl felt bad about losing the race.
between, among Use between when referring to two items at a time, even when they are part of a group consisting of more than two.

EXAMPLES Who was standing between you and Sue?

Between the season’s track meets, I trained very hard. [Although there may have been more than two meets, the training occurred between any two of them.]

There isn’t much difference between these three brands of juice. [Although there are more than two brands, each one is being compared with the others separately.]

Use among when referring to a group rather than to separate individuals.

EXAMPLES We divided the burritos among the five of us.

There was much discussion among the governors about the new tax plan. [The governors are thought of as a group.]

bring, take Bring means “to come carrying something.”

Take means “to go carrying something.” Think of bring as related to come (to), take as related to go (from).

EXAMPLES Please bring that chair here.

Now take this one over there.

bust, busted Avoid using these words as verbs in formal English. Use a form of either burst or break or catch or arrest.

EXAMPLES The pipe burst [not busted] after the storm.

The Japanese raku vase broke [not busted] when it fell.

Mom caught [not busted] our dog Pepper digging in the garden.

Did the police arrest [not bust] the burglar?

can’t hardly, can’t scarcely The words hardly and scarcely are negative words. They should not be used with another negative word.

EXAMPLES I can [not can’t] hardly wait to hear your new CD.

We had [not hadn’t] scarcely enough food for everyone at the Juneteenth picnic.
could of  Do not write of with the helping verb could. Write could have. Also avoid ought to of, should of, would of, might of, and must of.

EXAMPLES  Abdullah could have [not could of] helped us.

You should have [not should of] hung the piñata higher.

don’t, doesn’t  See page 472.

everywheres  See anyways, etc.

except  See accept, except.

fewer, less  Fewer is used with plural words. Less is used with singular words. Fewer tells “how many”; less tells “how much.”

EXAMPLES  We had expected fewer guests.

Please use less salt.

good, well  Good is an adjective. Do not use good to modify a verb; use well, which can be used as an adverb.

NONSTANDARD  The steel-drum band played good.

STANDARD  The steel-drum band played well.

Although it is usually an adverb, well is also used as an adjective to mean “healthy.”

EXAMPLE  I did not feel well yesterday.

had of  See of.

had ought, hadn’t ought  The verb ought should not be used with had.

NONSTANDARD  You had ought to learn to dance the polka.

You hadn’t ought to be late for class.

STANDARD  You ought to learn to dance the polka.

or

You should learn to dance the polka.

You oughtn’t to be late for class.

or

You shouldn’t be late for class.
Exercise 2  Identifying Correct Usage

For each of the following sentences, choose the word or word group in parentheses that is correct according to the rules of formal, standard usage.

EXAMPLE 1. Bike riders (had ought, ought) to know some simple rules of safety.
   1. ought

1. Just about (everywheres, everywhere) you go these days, you see people riding bikes.
2. Riders who wear helmets have (fewer, less) major injuries than riders who don’t.
3. When Aunt Shirley came for a visit, she (brought, took) her bicycle with her.
4. In choosing clothes, cyclists (can hardly, can’t hardly) go wrong by wearing bright, easy-to-see colors.
5. On busy streets, groups of cyclists should ride in single file and leave space (among, between) their bikes in case of sudden stops.
6. Members of cycling clubs decide (between, among) themselves on special communication signals.
7. A cyclist who is involved in an accident should not try to ride home, even if he or she seems to feel (well, good).
8. The cyclist should call a family member or friend who can (bring, take) both the rider and the bike home.
9. A tire that is punctured can usually be patched, but you may not be able to fix one that has (burst, busted).
10. Many of the cycling accidents that have happened over the years (could of, could have) been avoided if cyclists and motorists had been more careful.

Review A  Proofreading for Correct Usage

Each of the following sentences contains an error in formal, standard English usage. Identify each error. Then, write the correct word or words.

EXAMPLE 1. Don’t almonds grow somewheres in Africa?
   1. somewheres—somewhere

1. Check the hoses to see whether a seal has busted.
2. When rainfall is low here, there are less rabbits because there are not as many plants for them to eat.
3. I didn’t know you could program computers that good.
4. Except for the spelling errors, you could of gotten an A.
5. Tracy’s new hamster has all ready escaped.
6. Even a ten-ton truck can’t hardly haul a load this size.
7. That bull ain’t likely to appreciate anybody trespassing on his property.
8. Bring a glass of ice water outside to your father.
9. Chutzpah is a term applied to people who have alot of nerve.
10. You really had ought to hear Thelonious Monk’s music.

he, she, they  Do not use a pronoun along with its antecedent as the subject of a verb. This error is called the double subject.

NONSTANDARD  Michael Jordan he was named Most Valuable Player.
STANDARD  Michael Jordan was named Most Valuable Player.

hisself, theirself, theirselves  These words are nonstandard English. Use himself and themselves.

EXAMPLES  Bob hurt himself [not hisself] during the game.
They served themselves [not theirselves] last.

how come  In informal English, how come is often used instead of why. In formal English, why is preferred.

INFORMAL  How come caribou migrate?
FORMAL  Why do caribou migrate?

its, it’s  Its is a personal pronoun in the possessive case. It’s is a contraction of it is or it has.

EXAMPLES  The kitten likes its new home. [possessive pronoun]
We have Monday off because it’s Rosh Hashana. [contraction of it is]
It’s been a long day. [contraction of It has] kind, sort, type  The words this, that, these, and those should agree in number with the words kind, sort, and type. This and that are singular. These and those are plural.

EXAMPLES  That kind of watch is expensive. [singular]
Those kinds of jokes are silly. [plural]
kind of, sort of  In informal English, kind of and sort of are often used to mean “somewhat” or “rather.” In formal English, somewhat or rather is preferred.

INFORMAL  I feel kind of tired.

FORMAL  I feel somewhat tired.

learn, teach  Learn means “to acquire knowledge.” Teach means “to instruct” or “to show how.”

EXAMPLES  My brother is learning how to drive.

The driving instructor is teaching him.

leave, let  Leave means “to go away” or “to depart from.” Let means “to allow” or “to permit.”

NONSTANDARD  Leave her go to the movie.

STANDARD  Let her go to the movie.

STANDARD  Let’s leave on time for the movie.

less  See fewer, less.

lie, lay  See page 503.

like, as  Like is a preposition; it introduces a prepositional phrase. In informal English, like is often used before a clause as a conjunction meaning “as.” In formal English, as is preferred.

EXAMPLES  Your uncle’s hat looked like a sombrero. [Like introduces the phrase like a sombrero.]

Marcia trained every day as the coach had suggested. [As the coach had suggested is a clause and needs the conjunction as, not the preposition like, to introduce it.] like, as if, as though  In formal, standard English, like should not be used for the subordinating conjunction as if or as though.

EXAMPLES  The Swedish limpa bread looks as if [not like] it is ready.

The car looks as though [not like] it needs to be washed.

might of, must of  See could of.

nowheres  See anyways, etc.
Exercise 3  Identifying Correct Usage

For each of the following sentences, choose the word or word group in parentheses that is correct according to the rules of formal, standard usage.

EXAMPLE 1. Young rattlesnakes (learn, teach) themselves to make a rattling noise by imitating their parents.

1. teach

1. (Its, It’s) a sound that most people have learned to dread.
2. The snake’s rattle consists of “buttons” of flesh at the end of (its, it’s) tail, which are shaken against rings of loose skin.
3. The rings of skin (themselves, theirselves) are fragile.
4. (Like, As) zookeepers have discovered, snakes that rattle at visitors all day may damage their rattles.
5. (This kind, These kind) of snake delivers a poisonous bite, but rattlesnakes do not attack unless threatened.
6. Not all scientists agree about (how come, why) certain snakes have rattles.
7. According to many scientists, rattlesnakes (they use, use) the rattling sound to frighten enemies.
8. Some scientists believe that snakes use the rattles (as, like) other animals use different sounds—to communicate with each other.
9. Snakes don’t have ears; however, they are (sort of, rather) sensitive to sound vibrations.
10. When people hear a rattlesnake, they may react (like, as if) the situation is an emergency—and it often is.

Review B  Proofreading for Correct Usage

Each of the following sentences contains an error in formal, standard English usage. Identify each error. Then, write the correct word or words.

EXAMPLE 1. I should of known that the painting on the next page was done by Grandma Moses.

1. should of—should have

1. My art teacher gave me a assignment to write a report about any artist I chose.
2. Between all the artists that I considered, Grandma Moses appealed to me the most.
3. I went to the library and looked for a quiet place where I could do my research at.
4. I learned that Anna Mary Robertson Moses didn’t start painting until she was all ready in her seventies.
5. By then, her children were grown, and she had less responsibilities.
6. Grandma Moses had no art teacher accept herself.
7. As you can see in the self-portrait Rockabye, Grandma Moses felt well about her role as a grandmother.
8. You can’t hardly help feeling that Grandma Moses really loves these children.
9. My sister Kim likes this painting alot.
10. My report is already for class now, and I can’t wait to tell my classmates about Grandma Moses.

of  Do not use of with prepositions such as inside, off, and outside.

EXAMPLES  We waited outside [not outside of] the theater for the ticket window to open.

The glass fell off [not off of] the table.

Only Muslims are allowed inside [not inside of] the city of Mecca in Saudi Arabia.

Of is also unnecessary with the verb had.

EXAMPLE  If we had [not had of] tried harder, we would have won.

ought to of  See could of.

real  In informal English, the adjective real is often used as an adverb meaning “very” or “extremely.” In formal English, very, extremely, or another adverb is preferred.

INFORMAL  The new car is real quiet.

FORMAL  The new car is very quiet. rise, raise  See page 501.
she, he, they  See he, etc.
should of  See could of.
sit, set  See page 500.
some, somewhat  Do not use some for the adverb somewhat.
NONSTANDARD  I like classical music some.
STANDARD  I like classical music somewhat.
somewheres  See anyways, etc.
sort  See kind, etc.
sort of  See kind of, etc.
take  See bring, take.
teach  See learn, teach.
than, then  Than is a subordinating conjunction used in making comparisons. Then is an adverb meaning “next” or “after that.”
EXAMPLES  I sing better than I act.
          We’ll eat first, and then we’ll ride our bikes.
that  See who, etc.
that there  See this here, that there.
their, there, they’re  Their is the possessive form of they. There is used to mean “at that place” or to begin a sentence. They’re is a contraction of they are.
EXAMPLES  Do you have their CDs?
          The lake is over there.
          There are five movie theaters in town. [There begins the sentence but does not add to its meaning.]
          They’re writing a report on the poet Ámerico Paredes.
theirself, theirselves  See hisself, etc.
them  Them should not be used as an adjective. Use these or those.
EXAMPLE  Where did you put those [not them] papers?
they  See he, etc.
this here, that there  The words here and there are not needed after this and that.

EXAMPLE  I like this [not this here] Chinese dragon kite, but I like that [not that there] one better.

this kind, sort, type  See kind, etc.

try and  In informal English, try and is often used for try to. In formal English, try to is preferred.

INFORMAL  I will try and be there early.
FORMAL  I will try to be there early.

type  See kind, etc.

---

Exercise 4  Identifying Correct Usage

For each of the following sentences, choose the word or word group in parentheses that is correct according to the rules of formal, standard usage.

EXAMPLE  1. The Amish people (try and, try to) maintain a simple, traditional way of life.

1. try to

1. In the early 1700s, the Amish were not allowed to practice (their, they’re, there) religion in Germany and Switzerland.
2. Hearing that there was more freedom in the Americas (than, then) in Europe, the Amish left their homes and settled in North America.
3. Since that time, they have remained (outside of, outside) the mainstream of American life.
4. The Amish work (real, very) hard at producing organically grown crops.
5. In Amish communities such as (this, this here) one, modern conveniences such as telephones, cars, and televisions are not used.
6. The closeness of Amish family life is evident in the way (these, them) people build their homes.
7. (They’re, There, Their) are often three generations—grandparents, parents, and children—living in a large residence made up of several houses.
8. Pictures and photographs are not allowed (inside of, inside) Amish homes, but the Amish brighten their plain houses with colorful pillows, quilts, and rugs.
9. If an Amish person gets sick, he or she is almost always cared for by family members rather (than, then) by a doctor.
10. The Amish way of life might surprise you (somewhat, some), yet Amish communities have thrived in North America for nearly three hundred years.

Review C Proofreading for Correct Usage

Each of the following sentences contains an error in the use of formal, standard English. Identify each error. Then, rewrite the sentence to correct the error.

EXAMPLE

1. It was real cold that spring!

   real—It was extremely cold that spring!

1. Few people commanded more respect and admiration than Mother Teresa did.
2. Nobody can dance like you do, Ariel.
3. These sort of questions can be found on every standardized test.
4. Oh, no! The baby’s gotten oatmeal all over hisself.
5. The structure of molecules like these, it can most easily be understood by building a model.
6. What I want to know is how come we can’t go to the concert.
7. Who learned your dog all those tricks?
8. A howdah is one of those seats that have a canopy and that sit on a camel or an elephant.
9. The RV campsite is just outside of town.
10. Mrs. Whitfield will try and explain how the European Economic Community is organized.

use to, used to  Don’t leave off the d when you write used to. The same advice applies to supposed to.

EXAMPLE  Gail used to [not use to] be on the softball team.

way, ways  Use way, not ways, in referring to a distance.

EXAMPLE  Do we have a long way [not ways] to drive?

well  See good, well.

when, where  Do not use when or where incorrectly to begin a definition.

NONSTANDARD  A homophone is when a word sounds like another word but has a different meaning and spelling.

STANDARD  A homophone is a word that sounds like another word but has a different meaning and spelling.

where  Do not use where for that.

EXAMPLE  Did you read in the newsletter that [not where] the teen center is closing?

who, which, that  The relative pronoun who refers to people only. Which refers to things only. That refers to either people or things.

EXAMPLES  Jolene is the one who called. [person]

Here is the salad, which is my favorite part of the meal. [thing]

The book that you want is here. [thing]

This is the salesperson that helped me choose the gift. [person] who, whom  See page 521.

whose, who’s  Whose is used as the possessive form of who and as an interrogative pronoun. Who’s is a contraction of who is or who has.
A Glossary of Usage

EXAMPLES

Whose book is this? [possessive pronoun]

Whose is this? [interrogative pronoun]

Who’s the new student? [contraction of who is]

Who’s read “A Walk to the Jetty”? [contraction of who has]

without, unless Do not use the preposition without in place of the conjunction unless.

EXAMPLE I can’t go unless [not without] I ask Dad.

would of See could of.

your, you’re Your is the possessive form of you. You’re is the contraction of you are.

EXAMPLES Your Saint Patrick’s Day party was great!

You’re a good friend.

Exercise 5 Identifying Correct Usage

For each of the following sentences, choose the word or word group in parentheses that is correct according to the rules of formal, standard usage.

EXAMPLE

1. Last week I received a letter from Sandra Joyce, (who’s, whose) a good friend of mine.

   1. who’s

1. When I opened the envelope, I saw (where, that) she had sent me chopsticks and these instructions.

2. “I thought you’d like (you’re, your) own pair of chopsticks, with instructions showing how to use them,” Sandra wrote.

3. Instructions like the ones Sandra sent me are helpful because chopsticks can be hard to use (unless, without) you are shown how.

4. In the letter, Sandra told me (that, where) she and her family had been to New York.

5. Because Sandra lives in a small town, she wasn’t (use, used) to the crowds.
6. She enjoyed visiting her grandparents, (who's, whose) home is near Chinatown, on Manhattan Island.
7. While her family was eating in a Chinese restaurant, one of the servers, (which, who) was very helpful, showed her how to use chopsticks.
8. “(Your, You’re) not going to believe this,” she wrote, “but by the end of the meal, I was using chopsticks quite well.”
9. Etiquette is (when you use good manners, the use of good manners); Sandra wondered whether using chopsticks to eat Chinese food was a matter of etiquette or of skill.
10. I’ll write Sandra that I have a long (ways, way) to go before I’m an expert in using chopsticks.

Review D Proofreading for Correct Usage

Each of the following sentences contains an error in the use of formal, standard English. Rewrite each sentence to correct the error.

EXAMPLE

1. If the quarterback can’t play, whose the backup?
   1. If the quarterback can’t play, who’s the backup?

1. Are you selling you’re old bike or one of theirs?
2. If they’re not their, you can have their seats.
3. Don’t go outside without you wear those galoshes!
4. Is Alfonso García Robles the man which was awarded the 1982 Nobel Peace Prize?
5. “Buzzing the runway” is when a plane flies low and fast over the runway.
6. I read where the word Nippon means “where the sun rises.”
7. If this hat isn’t lucky, then how come every time I wear it, I win?
8. Yes, I use to live in Madrid.
9. Please try and be ready on time tonight.
10. Listen to Lydia’s new poem; its dedicated to Queen Liliuokalani.
A. Identifying Correct Usage

For each of the following sentences, choose the word or word group in parentheses that is correct according to the rules of formal, standard English usage.

1. Helene made (fewer, less) mistakes this time.
2. That restaurant looks (as if, like) it might be expensive.
3. Those (kind, kinds) of games are easy to learn.
4. Terrance felt (badly, bad) about losing the house key.
5. Leticia practiced an hour every day (like, as) her teacher had recommended.
6. Divide the sheet music (among, between) the three musicians.
7. We brought the juice, but (it's, its) still in the car.
8. Both cars had pinstripes painted on (their, there) hoods.
9. The rice will feed more people (then, than) the bread will.
10. “(Your, You’re) a polite young man,” Aunt Henrietta told Jason.
11. There’s the police officer (which, who) helped me yesterday.
12. Did you see in the newspaper (that, where) farmers are losing their crops because of the drought?
13. Chika is the woman (whose, who’s) going to be my math tutor.
14. The child cried out when her balloon (busted, burst).
15. Vincent van Gogh did not receive (a lot, alot) of recognition during his lifetime.
16. Just do your best, and everything will be (allright, all right).
17. Will you (take, bring) that National Geographic to me?
18. Elyssa must (of, have) left her wallet here.
19. Petra likes salsa music (somewhat, some).
20. Can your brother (learn, teach) me how to play the drums?
21. Let the bread rise for (a, an) hour, and then put it in the oven.
22. Is Emily coming to the party, or (ain’t, isn’t) she?
23. (Leave, Let) me walk to the concert by myself.
24. We (should not, hadn’t ought to) let the cat eat whatever it wants.
25. Where did you (sit, set) the bag of groceries?
B. Proofreading for Correct Usage

Read each sentence below, and decide whether it contains an error in the use of formal, standard English. If the sentence contains an error in usage, rewrite the sentence correctly. If the sentence is already correct, write C.

26. Try to be real quiet while you are inside the library.
27. We cannot ride our bikes without it stops raining.
28. Be careful not to knock the lamp off of the table.
29. The cartoon page looks as if it got wet.
30. I told Gretchen to try and keep still.
31. Where’s the salt shaker at?
32. Robbie said that the lock on the back door is busted.
33. Andrea thought we should have turned right at the stop sign.
34. Mr. Funicello seems kind of uncomfortable.
35. This here poem would be easier to memorize than that one.
36. Before 1920, farmers use to grow strawberries here.
37. My grandmother she worked in a factory when she was my age.
38. Sakura knows how come the play was canceled.
39. Those game tickets are somewheres in this drawer.
40. Before our trip, we ought to buy a map.
41. Where did Rory put them CDs?
42. Their are two bridges downriver.
43. The tollbooth will except quarters and dimes but not pennies.
44. A pronoun is when a word is used in place of a noun.
45. By noon we had all ready seen Mr. Kerr’s film.
46. The class can’t hardly wait to go on the field trip to the power plant.
47. The Immerguts have a long ways to drive to visit their grandparents.
48. My older sister is doing very well in law school.
49. In the final seconds of the game, Lee tripped hisself and missed the winning basket.
50. It’s true: Mimi doesn’t want to come to the New Year’s Eve party.
Writing Application

Writing a Speech

Using Formal English  A local television station has started a new program called Sound-Off. Each speaker on the program gets five minutes on the air to express an opinion about a community issue. Choose a topic that you think is important, and write a speech to submit to the TV station. Use only formal, standard English in your speech.

Prewriting  First, choose a specific topic that interests you. List important facts and information about the issue. Do you have all the information you need? If not, do some research at your school or local library. Also, be sure to include your own feelings and opinions about your topic. Finally, make a rough outline of what you want to say.

Writing  Use your notes and outline to help you write a draft of your speech. Try to write a lively introduction that will grab your listeners’ attention. In your introduction, give a clear statement of opinion. Then, discuss each supporting point in a paragraph or two. Conclude your speech by restating your main point.

Revising  Ask a friend to time you as you read your speech aloud. Then, ask your friend the following questions:

• Is the main idea clear?
• Does the speech give useful information?

Publishing  Proofread your speech for errors in grammar or formal, standard usage. You and your classmates may want to present your speeches to the class. You might also want to investigate whether a local TV or radio program would allow you to give your speeches on the air.

Reference Note

For more about statements of opinion, see page 212.
Proofreading Sentences for Correct Capitalization

Write each word that requires capitalization in the following sentences. If a sentence is already correct, write C.

EXAMPLE
1. Next saturday rachel and i will get to watch the taping of our favorite TV show.
   1. Saturday, Rachel, I

1. The curtiss soap corporation sponsors the television show called three is two too many.
2. The show’s theme song is “you and i might get by.”
3. My favorite actor on the show is joe fontana, jr., who plays the lovable dr. mullins.
4. The female lead, janelle bledsoe, used to go to our junior high school right here in houston, texas.
5. The action is set in the west just after the civil war.
6. The program is on monday nights, except during the summer.
7. One episode took place at a fourth of july picnic, at which dr. mullins challenged the sheriff to a grapefruit-eating contest.
8. Ms. Bledsoe plays a teacher who is married to Mr. reginald wilson foster II, president of the flintsville National bank.
9. Mrs. foster teaches latin, home economics, and arithmetic I at flintsville’s one-room school.
10. One local character, uncle Ramón, once played a practical joke on Judge Grimsby right outside the mayor’s office.

11. Some people, including my mother, think that the program is silly, but my father enjoys watching it occasionally.

12. Even I don’t think it will receive an Emmy from the Academy of Television Arts and Sciences.

13. When Grandma Murray and Aunt Edna from Mobile, Alabama, visited us, they watched the program.

14. In that Monday night’s show, an alien named Romax from the planet Zarko stayed at the Sidewinder Hotel.

15. The alien, who looked like President Zachary Taylor, spoke English perfectly and could read people’s minds.

16. He settled a dispute between the Union Pacific Railroad and the Flintsville Ranchers’ Association.

17. In another show a United States senator and Romax discussed their views of justice.

18. In the silliest show, the people in the next town, Longview, thought that a sea monster was living in Lake Cranberry and reported it to the Department of the Interior.

19. A week later, Mayor Murdstone lost the only copy of his secret recipe for Irish stew and saw the recipe in the next issue of the Flintsville Weekly Gazette.

20. One time a mysterious stranger appeared, claiming he had sailed around Cape Horn on the ship the Gem of the Ocean.

21. Another time, the wealthy landowner Mabel Platt hired the law firm of Crumbley, Lockwood, and Starr to sue Mayor Murdstone and threatened to take the case all the way to the United States Supreme Court.

22. In the next episode, a Buddhist priest who just happened to be traveling through the West on his way back to China stopped off in Flintsville.

23. Once, when someone mistakenly thought he had found gold down at Cutter’s Creek, thousands of prospectors flocked to Flintsville, including three bank-robbing members of the feared Gumley Gang.

24. The programs are taped before a live audience in the Metro Theater in Los Angeles, California.

25. You can get tickets to be in the audience by writing to Curtiss Soap Corporation, 151 Holly Avenue, Deerfield, MI 49238.
Using Capital Letters Correctly

22a. Capitalize the first word in every sentence.

EXAMPLES
My dog knows several tricks. Does yours?

The first word of a directly quoted sentence should begin with a capital letter.

EXAMPLE
Mrs. Hernandez said, “Don’t forget to bring your contributions for the bake sale.”

Traditionally, the first word of every line of poetry begins with a capital letter.

EXAMPLE
In the night
The rain comes down.
Yonder at the edge of the earth
There is a sound like cracking,
There is a sound like falling.
Down yonder it goes on slowly rumbling.
It goes on shaking.

A Papago poem, “In the Night”

NOTE Some modern poets do not follow this style. If you are using a quotation from a poem, be sure to use the capitalization that the poet uses.

22b. Capitalize the first word in both the salutation and the closing of a letter.

SALUTATIONS
Dear Service Manager:
Dear Emily,

CLOSINGS
Sincerely,
Yours truly,

22c. Capitalize the pronoun I.

EXAMPLE
This week I have to write two essays.

22d. Capitalize proper nouns.

A proper noun names a particular person, place, thing, or idea. Proper nouns are capitalized. A common noun names a kind or type of person, place, thing, or idea. A common noun generally is not capitalized unless it begins a sentence or is part of a title.
Some proper nouns consist of more than one word. In these names, short words such as prepositions (those of fewer than five letters) and articles (a, an, the) are generally not capitalized.

EXAMPLES
House of Representatives
Ivan the Terrible

(1) Capitalize the names of persons and animals.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Persons</th>
<th>Common Nouns</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Monica Sone</td>
<td>high school</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Charlayne Hunter-Gault</td>
<td>day</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Aaron Neville</td>
<td>woman</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mohandas K. Gandhi</td>
<td>country</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Shamu</td>
<td>bear</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Socks</td>
<td>Smokey</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Trigger</td>
<td>USS Nautilus</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Rikki-tikki-tavi</td>
<td>submarine</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

(2) Capitalize geographical names.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Type of Name</th>
<th>Examples</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Continents</td>
<td>Europe, Antarctica, South America, Asia</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Countries</td>
<td>Australia, El Salvador, Egypt, Saudi Arabia</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Cities, Towns</td>
<td>Miami, Los Angeles, Indianapolis, Manila</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>States</td>
<td>Tennessee, Rhode Island, Delaware, Wyoming</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

(continued)
In a hyphenated street number, the second part of the number is not capitalized.

EXAMPLE  West Thirty-fourth Street

Reference Note

In addresses, abbreviations such as St., Blvd., Ave., Dr., and Ln. are capitalized. For more about punctuating abbreviations, see page 599.

NOTE

Words such as east, west, northern, or southerly are not capitalized when the words merely indicate direction. However, they are capitalized when they name a particular region.

EXAMPLES  A car was going south on Oak Street. [direction]

The South has produced some of America’s great writers. [region of the country]
Exercise 1  Writing Proper Nouns

For each common noun given below, write two proper nouns. You may need to use a dictionary and an atlas. Be sure to use capital letters correctly.

EXAMPLE

1. country
   1. Canada, Japan

1. lake
2. continent
3. president
4. highway
5. teacher
6. athlete
7. park
8. ocean
9. city
10. region

Exercise 2  Correcting Errors in Capitalization

Each of the following sentences contains at least one capitalization error. Correct these errors by writing the words that are incorrectly capitalized and either changing capital letters to lowercase letters or changing lowercase letters to capital letters.

EXAMPLE

1. The original Settlers of Hawaii came from the Marquesas Islands and Tahiti.
   1. Settlers, Hawaii, Marquesas Islands, Tahiti

1. our Class is studying Hawaii.
2. The Hawaiian islands are located in the Pacific Ocean, nearly twenty-four hundred miles West of San Francisco, California.
3. Hawaii officially became the fiftieth State in the United States in 1959.
4. Our teacher, Ms. Jackson, explained that the Capital City is Honolulu; she said that it is located on the southeast coast of Oahu Island.
5. The largest of the Islands is Hawaii.
6. On the southeast shore of Hawaii island is Hawaii Volcanoes National Park.
7. Ms. Jackson asked, “can anyone name one of the Volcanoes there?”
8. Since I had been reading about National Parks, I raised my hand.

11. Its crater, Halemaumau crater, is the largest active crater in the World.

12. “We’ll go into much more detail about volcanoes tomorrow,” Ms. Jackson said.

13. Then Ms. Jackson told us that Honolulu is probably the most important business center in the Pacific Ocean.

14. Ever since Captain William Brown sailed into the harbor in 1794, Hawaii has played an increasingly important role in business.

15. It’s easy to see why—Hawaii is midway between Continents.

16. Hawaii’s largest city has a fine seaport; it links Japan, China, and even Australia with North and South America.

17. Cultural and academic studies thrive there in places such as the University of Hawaii and the East-West Center.

18. You can even get a look at the Iolani Palace where the Rulers of Hawaii once lived.

19. Perhaps best of all, Hawaii offers Tourists a day in the sun at Waikiki Beach.

20. Suddenly, I blurted out, “Wouldn’t it be great if we could all go there now!”
(3) Capitalize names of organizations, teams, institutions, and government bodies.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Type of Name</th>
<th>Examples</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Organizations</td>
<td>Clark Drama Club</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Junior League</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Modern Language Association</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Teams</td>
<td>Boston Celtics</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Dallas Cowboys</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Los Angeles Dodgers</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Hutto Hippos</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Institutions</td>
<td>Westside Regional Hospital</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Roosevelt Junior High School</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Government Bodies</td>
<td>United Nations</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Peace Corps</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Congress</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>York City Council</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

(4) Capitalize the names of historical events and periods, special events, calendar items, and holidays.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Type of Name</th>
<th>Examples</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Historical Events and Periods</td>
<td>Revolutionary War</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Bronze Age</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Holocaust</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>United States Bicentennial</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Age of Reason</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Special Events</td>
<td>Texas State Fair</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Special Olympics</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Calendar Items and Holidays</td>
<td>Monday</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Memorial Day</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>February</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Thanksgiving Day</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

NOTE Do not capitalize the name of a season unless it is part of a proper name.

EXAMPLES the winter holidays the Quebec Winter Carnival

(5) Capitalize the names of nationalities, races, and peoples.

EXAMPLES Mexican Nigerian African American Iroquois

HELP The names of organizations, businesses, and government bodies are often abbreviated to a series of capital letters.

EXAMPLES National Organization for Women National Science Foundation AT&T

Usually the letters in such abbreviations are not followed by periods, but always check an up-to-date dictionary or other reliable source to be sure.

STYLE TIP The words black and white may or may not be capitalized when they refer to races. Either way is correct.

EXAMPLE In the 1960s, both Blacks and Whites [or blacks and whites] worked to end segregation.

Within each piece of writing, be sure to be consistent in your use of capitals or lowercase letters for these words.
(6) Capitalize the names of businesses and the brand names of business products.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Type of Name</th>
<th>Examples</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Businesses</td>
<td>Sears, Roebuck and Co.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Thirfty Dry Cleaners</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Business Products</td>
<td>Schwinn Mesa</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>GMC Jimmy</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

NOTE Names of types of products are not capitalized.

EXAMPLES Schwinn bicycle, Apple computer, Callaway golf club

(7) Capitalize the names of ships, trains, aircraft, and spacecraft.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Type of Name</th>
<th>Examples</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Ships</td>
<td>Queen Elizabeth 2</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Trains</td>
<td>City of New Orleans</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Aircraft</td>
<td>Memphis Belle</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Spacecraft</td>
<td>Voyager 2</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

(8) Capitalize the names of buildings and other structures.

EXAMPLES Sydney Opera House, St. Louis Cathedral, Aswan Dam, Eiffel Tower, Brooklyn Bridge

NOTE Do not capitalize such words as hotel, theater, or high school unless they are part of the name of a particular building or institution.

EXAMPLES Capital Theater a theater
| Lane Hotel | the hotel |
| Taft High School | this high school |
(9) Capitalize the names of monuments, memorials, and awards.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Type of Name</th>
<th>Examples</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Monuments</td>
<td>Great Sphinx</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Navajo National Monument</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Memorials</td>
<td>Lincoln Memorial</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Coronado Memorial</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Tomb of the Unknown Soldier</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Awards</td>
<td>Emmy Award</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Congressional Medal of Honor</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Nobel Prize</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Pulitzer Prize</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

(10) Capitalize the names of religions and their followers, holy days and celebrations, sacred writings, and specific deities.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Type of Name</th>
<th>Examples</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Religions and Followers</td>
<td>Judaism</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Hinduism</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Christian</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Muslim</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Holy Days and Celebrations</td>
<td>Easter</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Yom Kippur</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Christmas Eve</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sacred Writings</td>
<td>Koran</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Dead Sea Scrolls</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Upanishads</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Specific Deities</td>
<td>God</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Jehovah</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Allah</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Krishna</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

NOTE The words god and goddess are not capitalized when they refer to a deity of ancient mythology. However, the names of specific gods and goddesses are capitalized.

EXAMPLES

- The king of the Norse gods was Odin.
- Athena was the Greek goddess of wisdom and warfare.
STYLE TIP
The word earth is not capitalized unless it is used along with the names of other heavenly bodies that are capitalized. The words sun and moon are generally not capitalized.

EXAMPLES
Oceans cover three fourths of the earth's surface.
Which is larger—Saturn or Earth?
How many moons does Jupiter have?

(11) Capitalize the names of planets, stars, constellations, and other heavenly bodies.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Type of Name</th>
<th>Examples</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Planets</td>
<td>Mercury, Venus</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Stars</td>
<td>Rigel, Proxima Centauri</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Constellations</td>
<td>Ursa Major, Andromeda</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Other Heavenly Bodies</td>
<td>Milky Way, Comet Kohoutek</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Exercise 3 Proofreading Sentences for Correct Capitalization

Supply capital letters wherever they are needed in each of the following sentences.

EXAMPLE 1. Each arbor day the students at Franklin Junior High School plant a tree.

1. Arbor Day, Franklin Junior High School

1. The golden gate bridge spans the entrance of San Francisco Bay.
2. Our Muslim neighbors, the Rashads, fast during the month of Ramadan.
3. The Peace Corps became a government agency by an act of Congress.
4. Do you think the Henderson Hornets will win the play-offs?
5. Thousands of Cherokee people live in the Smoky Mountains in and around North Carolina.
6. To stop flooding in the South, the Tennessee Valley Authority, a government agency, built thirty-nine dams on the Tennessee River and the streams that flow into it.
7. Which biographer won the Pulitzer Prize this year?
8. On New Year’s day, many fans crowd into football stadiums for annual bowl games such as the Rose Bowl.
9. Can you see Neptune or any of its moons through your telescope?
10. Have you read any myths about Apollo, a god once worshiped by the Greeks?
Proofreading Sentences for Correct Capitalization

Rewrite the following sentences, using capital letters wherever they are needed.

EXAMPLE

1. according to my sister, i’m a mall rat.
   1. According to my sister, I’m a mall rat.

1. the branford mall is the largest in melville county.
2. It is on jefferson parkway, two miles north of duck lake state park and the big bridge that crosses duck lake.
3. Across the parkway from the mall is our new local high school with its parking lots, playing fields, and stadium, home of the branford panthers.
4. Near the mall are the american legion hall, bowlarama, and king skating rink.
5. The mall includes two jewelry stores, nicholson’s department store, the palace cinema, and thirty-five other businesses.
6. They range from small stationery stores to one of the finest restaurants in the midwest.
7. The restaurant larue is run by marie and jean larue, who are from france.
8. Also in the mall is the american paper box company, which sells boxes for every packaging need.
9. My friends sharon and earl always shop at gene’s jeans, which specializes in denim clothing.
10. An outlet store for northwestern leather goods of chicago sells uffizi purses and wallets.

Correcting Errors in Capitalization

Each of the following sentences contains errors in capitalization. Correct these errors by changing incorrect capital letters to lowercase letters and incorrect lowercase letters to capital letters.

EXAMPLE

1. African americans in massachusetts have played an important part in American history.
   1. Americans, Massachusetts

1. In Boston, the Crispus attucks monument is a memorial to attucks and the other men who died in the boston Massacre.
2. According to many Historians, attucks was a former slave who fought against the british in the american Revolution.
3. The department of the Interior has made the Home of Maria Baldwin a historic building in Cambridge.

4. Baldwin was a leader in the league for Community Service, an organization to help the Needy.

5. One of the founders of the National association for the Advancement of colored people, W.E.B. DuBois, was born in great Barrington, Massachusetts.

6. A marker stands on the spot where DuBois lived.

7. Jan Ernst Matzeliger, who lived in Lynn, invented a machine that made shoes easier and cheaper to manufacture.

8. The Nantucket Whaling Museum has information about Peter Green, a sailor on the ship John Adams.

9. During a storm at sea, Green saved the ship and crew.

10. Use the Map of Massachusetts shown above to locate the towns and cities in which these notable African Americans lived.

22e. Capitalize proper adjectives.

A proper adjective is formed from a proper noun and is capitalized.
22f. Do not capitalize the names of school subjects, except course names followed by numerals and names of language classes.

EXAMPLES  history, typing, algebra, English, Spanish, Latin, History 101, Music III, Art Appreciation I

Exercise 4 Proofreading Sentences for Correct Capitalization

Supply capital letters where they are needed in each of the following sentences.

EXAMPLE

1. Rosa said we were eating mexican bread.
   1. Mexican

1. The program featured russian ballet dancers.
2. The european Common Market improves international trade.
3. The scandinavian countries include both Norway and Sweden.
4. In geography, we learned about the platypus and the koala, two australian animals.
5. We read several english plays in my literature class.
6. I am planning to take computers I next year.
7. On the floor was a large persian rug.
8. England, France, Scotland, Russia, and the United States played important roles in canadian history.
9. The backyard was decorated with chinese lanterns.
10. Are you taking french or art II?

Review C Correcting Errors in Capitalization

Each of the sentences on the following page contains errors in capitalization. Correct these errors by writing the words that are incorrectly capitalized and changing capital letters to lowercase letters or changing lowercase letters to capital letters.
EXAMPLE 1. “what do you know about Modern architecture at the beginning of the Century, sean?”

1. What, modern, century, Sean

1. In Social Studies, I learned about the famous Architect Frank Lloyd Wright.
2. One of wright’s best-known works is his house, fallingwater, in bear run, Pennsylvania.
3. “Yes, wright still may be the best-known american architect,” Mrs. Lee said.
4. Louis sullivan (1856–1924) was among the first Builders in the united States to use a steel frame.
5. A german architect helped design the Seagram Building, an early Skyscraper in the east.
6. Both architects and the Public wanted new ideas after world war II, according to my architecture 101 teacher.
7. the use of reinforced Concrete made possible large, thin roofs such as the one at the Massachusetts institute of technology.
8. Next tuesday we will see a Film about inventive designs in the brazilian capital.
9. I imagine that brazilian Citizens are proud of the architect Oscar niemeyer.

22g. Capitalize titles.

(1) Capitalize the title of a person when the title comes before a name.

EXAMPLES President Lincoln Mrs. Oliver Wendell
Mayor Bradley Commissioner Rodriguez

Generally, a title that is used alone or following a person’s name is not capitalized, especially if the title is preceded by a or the.

EXAMPLES The secretary of defense held a news conference.
Lien Fong, our class secretary, read the minutes.

However, a title used by itself in direct address is usually capitalized.
EXAMPLES

Is it very serious, Doctor?

How do you do, Sir [or sir]?

(2) Capitalize a word showing a family relationship when the word is used before or in place of a person’s name.

EXAMPLES

We expect Uncle Fred and Aunt Helen soon.

Both Mom and Dad work at the hospital.

However, do not capitalize a word showing a family relationship when a possessive comes before the word.

EXAMPLE

We asked Pedro’s mother and his aunt Celia to be chaperons.

(3) Capitalize the first and last words and all important words in titles and subtitles.

Unimportant words in titles include

- articles (a, an, the)
- coordinating conjunctions (and, but, for, nor, or, so, yet)
- prepositions of fewer than five letters (such as by, for, on, with)

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Type of Name</th>
<th>Examples</th>
</tr>
</thead>
</table>
| Books                               | The Mask of Apollo
Mules and Men
Long Claws: An Arctic Adventure |
| Chapters and Other Parts of Books   | "The Circulatory System"
"Language Handbook"
"The Civil War Begins"
"Epilogue" |
| Magazines                           | Popular Mechanics
Ebony
Seventeen
Sports Illustrated |
| Newspapers                          | The Tennessean
the Boston Globe
The Wall Street Journal |
| Poems                               | "Season at the Shore"
"Birches" |

(continued)
The article the at the beginning of a title is not capitalized unless it is the first word of the official title.

EXAMPLES

- My father reads The Wall Street Journal.
- Does she work for the Texas Review?

Type of Name Examples

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Type of Name</th>
<th>Examples</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Short Stories</td>
<td>&quot;The Purloined Letter&quot; &quot;Zlateh the Goat&quot; &quot;Broken Chain&quot;</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Plays</td>
<td>The Three Sisters A Midsummer Night's Dream A Doll's House I Never Sang for My Father</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Movies and Videos</td>
<td>Fairy Tale: A True Story Babe It's a Wonderful Life The Wizard of Oz</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Television Series</td>
<td>Home Improvement Kratt's Creatures Star Trek: The Next Generation</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Cartoons and Comic Strips</td>
<td>Jump Start Cathy Scooby Doo Dilbert</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Audiotapes and CDs</td>
<td>Butterfly Falling into You Dos Mundos Spirit</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Computer Games and Video Games</td>
<td>Sonic the Hedgehog Math Blaster Rockett's New School Logical Journey SimCity Space Kids</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Works of Art</td>
<td>Mona Lisa David The Night Watch Mankind's Struggle</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Musical Compositions</td>
<td>The Marriage of Figaro &quot;America the Beautiful&quot;</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Historical Documents</td>
<td>Magna Carta Treaty of Paris The Declaration of Independence</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Exercise 5 Correcting Sentences by Capitalizing Words

Most of the following sentences contain at least one word that should be capitalized but is not. Correctly write each incorrect word. If a sentence is already correct, write C.

EXAMPLE 1. Ms. Chang is meeting with principal Hodges.
   1. Principal

1. Tom Hanks’ career really took off after he starred in the movie big.
2. In 1998, John Glenn, a former senator, became the oldest person to travel in space.
3. The assignment is to compare and contrast Amy Tan’s story “Two kinds” with Bernard Malamud’s “The first seven years.”
4. Rummaging through the pile of used books, Marcia found a copy of the Complete Poems Of Stephen Crane.
5. Our English teacher, mrs. Fernandez, has a small sculpture of the globe theatre sitting on her desk.
6. Isn’t it a coincidence that your aunt Jenny and my uncle Herbert work for the same company?
7. Which do you prefer, Bob Dylan’s CD Nashville skyline or his son’s The wallflowers?
8. Some of my friends claim that The Empire strikes back is the best movie of the series.
9. Did you remember to clip that article we read yesterday in The Washington post?
10. Mom and dad always chuckle when they read Hagar the Horrible.

Review D Proofreading Sentences for Correct Capitalization

Write the sentences on the following page, using capital letters wherever they are needed.

EXAMPLE 1. The series all creatures great and small is being rerun on public television.
   1. The series All Creatures Great and Small is being rerun on public television.
1. While waiting to interview Mayor Ward, I read an article in Newsweek.
2. Have you read Leslie Marmon Silko’s poem “Story from Bear Country”?
3. You have probably seen a picture of The Thinker, one of Rodin’s best-known sculptures.
4. On television last night, we saw the movie The Return of the Native.
5. Every four years voters elect a president and several United States senators.
7. The reporter asked, “Can you tell us, Senator Inouye, when you plan to announce the committee’s final decision?”
8. The main speaker was Dr. Andrew Holt, a former president of the University of Tennessee.
9. Besides Uncle Don, our visitors included Aunt Pat, Aunt Jean, both of my grandmothers, and my great-grandfather.
10. The soccer players listened to Coach Daly as he outlined defensive strategy.

Review E  Proofreading Sentences for Correct Capitalization

The following sentences each contain at least one capitalization error. Correctly write the words that require capital letters.

EXAMPLE

1. The waters of the Caribbean are pleasantly warm.

   1. Caribbean

1. The Greeks believed that Zeus, the king of the gods, lived on Mount Olympus.
2. The Titanic sank after hitting an iceberg off the coast of Newfoundland.
4. Stephanie is taking English, Math II, and Biology.
5. On Friday we were cheered by the thought that Monday, Memorial Day, would be a holiday.
6. My picture is in today’s Austin American-Statesman.
7. The Quaker Oats company has introduced a new corn cereal.
8. In Roots, Alex Haley, a famous author, traces the history of his family.
9. She usually travels to Boston on American Airlines.
10. I wanted to name my persian cat after one of the justices on the supreme court.

Review F  Proofreading a Paragraph for Correct Capitalization

Each sentence in the following paragraph contains at least one error in capitalization. Correctly write the words that require capital letters.

EXAMPLE

1. Before thanksgiving, I learned some interesting facts about Africa in my History II class.

   1. Thanksgiving, I, Africa, History II

   [1] My teacher, Mr. Davidson, told us about the mighty kingdoms and empires that existed for hundreds of years in Africa. [2] Some of these kingdoms dated back to the time of the Roman empire. [3] Others rose to power during the period known as the Middle Ages in Europe. [4] For many years, the people in the kingdom of Cush did ironwork and traded along the Nile River. [5] Later, the Cush were defeated by the people of Axum, led by King Ezana. [6] As you can see in the map below, several kingdoms in Africa developed between Lake Chad and the Atlantic Ocean. [7] Three of these kingdoms were Ghana, Mali, and Songhai. [8] These kingdoms established important trade routes across the Sahara. [9] Tombouctou’s famous university attracted Egyptian and other Arab students. [10] I read more about these African kingdoms and empires in our textbook, World History: People and Nations.

---

African Kingdoms and Empires

- Cush, c. 200 B.C.
- Axum, c. A.D. 500
- Ghana, c. A.D. 900
- Mali, c. A.D. 1300
- Songhai, c. A.D. 1500
- Trade route

---

Using Capital Letters Correctly
Correcting Errors in Capitalization
Each of the following sentences contains at least one error in capitalization. Correctly write each incorrect word, changing capital letters to lowercase letters or changing lowercase letters to capital letters.

EXAMPLE

1. On June 25, 1876, Sioux and Cheyenne warriors defeated General George A. Custer and his troops.

1. June, Sioux, Cheyenne, General George A., troops

1. The Defeat of General Custer occurred at the Battle of the Little Bighorn.
2. In December of 1890, many Sioux were killed by Soldiers in a battle at Wounded Knee Creek in South Dakota.
3. Depicted by artists, writers, and filmmakers, both Battles have become part of American History.
4. In the late nineteenth century, the Sioux Artist Kicking Bear painted the Battle of the Little Bighorn.
5. The painting, done on muslin Cloth, is shown below.
6. Kicking Bear, who himself fought in the Battle, painted at the Pine Ridge agency in South Dakota, where he lived.
7. Soldiers who fought against Kicking Bear described him as courageous.
8. The well-known American Poet Stephen Vincent Benét wrote about the battle of Wounded Knee in a Poem called “American Names.”

9. More recently, the author Dee Brown wrote about the American Indians of the West in his book Bury My Heart at Wounded Knee.

10. In 1970, the movie Little Big Man told the story of a fictional 121-year-old character who had survived the Battle against General Custer.
Chapter Review

A. Correcting Errors in Capitalization

Each of the following sentences contains at least one error in capitalization. Correct the errors either by changing capital letters to lowercase letters or by changing lowercase letters to capital letters.

1. Please pick up a box of Tide Detergent at the store.
2. The “Battle Hymn Of The Republic” was written by Julia ward Howe.
3. Are we going to uncle Ted’s house for Thanksgiving again?
4. Charing cross book shop is on Thirty-Second Street.
5. Ms. wong always stays at the Four Seasons hotel when she’s in New York city on business.
6. Do you know if professor Ezekiel will be teaching Creative Writing during the spring semester?
7. In what year was the battle of gettysburg fought?
8. My aunt remembers when Mother Teresa won the Nobel Peace prize.
9. Every winter my Grandparents travel to the southwest.
10. My Uncle sid once met sir Winston Churchill.
11. Mr. Salter often remembers his old house on vine street in McAllen, Texas.
12. Father and mother traveled all over the World when they were buying furniture for their antique store.
13. The principal asked me, “how would you like to study Geography next semester?”
14. When Jim went back to New York for Christmas, he left his dog, piper, at the kennel.
15. Sometimes my Mother works at home on friday.
16. Grand Canyon National park was closed this weekend because of heavy snow.
17. Shall we renew our subscription to national geographic?
18. This june we plan to welcome a swedish exchange student to our home.
19. We’re going to Washington, D.C., to see the white house.
20. At the Henry Ford Museum in Dearborn, Michigan, you can see a replica of the spirit of st. louis, the plane that Charles Lindbergh used to fly solo across the atlantic.
21. At the Crossbay Market, I bought a can of progresso soup.
23. The Rosenbach museum and library in Philadelphia is open Tuesday through Sunday.
24. dear Mr. Boylan:
   I enjoyed your book enormously.
   sincerely yours,
   Jimmy Connolly
25. In History class, we learned about queen Elizabeth I.

B. Proofreading Sentences for Correct Capitalization

Write the following sentences, and correct errors in capitalization either by changing capital letters to lowercase letters or by changing lowercase letters to capital letters.

26. Mars, Venus, and Jupiter were roman gods.
27. The wind in the willows is my Mother’s favorite book.
28. Davis Housewares emporium has moved to Fifth street.
29. The lozi people in Africa live near the Zambezi river.
31. Do you know when David Souter was appointed to the supreme court?
32. Next Monday is memorial day.
33. When we traveled through the south, we visited the Antietam National Battlefield.
34. Ms. Ling is teaching us about chinese culture.
35. Cayuga lake stretches North from Ithaca, New York.
36. The main religion in Indonesia is islam, but there are also many Indonesian buddhists.
37. My older sister is taking Spanish, Science, Mathematics II, and Art.
38. Carlos and I had turkey sandwiches made with German mustard on French bread.

39. We turned west onto route 95 and stayed on it for five miles.

40. George Copway, who was born in Canada, wrote about his people, the Ojibwa.

Writing Application

Using Capital Letters in a Letter

Proper Nouns  Students in your class have become pen pals with students in another country. You have been given the name of someone to write. Write your pen pal a letter introducing yourself and telling about your school and your community. In your letter, be sure to use capitalization correctly.

Prewriting  Note the information you want to give in your letter. You may wish to include information such as your age; a description of yourself; your favorite books, movies, actors, or musicians; some clubs, organizations, or special activities you participate in; some special places, events, or attractions in your community or state.

Writing  As you write your draft, keep in mind that your pen pal may not recognize names of some people, places, and things in the United States. For example, he or she may not recognize the names of your favorite movies or musical groups. Be sure to use correct capitalization to show which names are proper nouns.

Revising  Read through your letter carefully. Have you left out any important information? Are any parts of your letter confusing? If so, you may want to add, cut, or revise some details. Is the tone of your letter friendly? Have you followed the correct form for a personal letter?

Publishing  Read your letter carefully to check for any errors in grammar, spelling, and punctuation. Use the rules in this chapter to help you double-check your capitalization. With your teacher’s permission, post a map of the world on the classroom wall and display the letters around the map.

Reference Note

For more about writing personal letters, see “Writing” in the Quick Reference Handbook.
Using End Marks, Commas, Semicolons, and Colons

The following sentences lack necessary periods, question marks, exclamation points, commas, semicolons, and colons. Rewrite each sentence, inserting the correct punctuation.

EXAMPLE

1. Snakes, lizards, crocodiles, and turtles are reptiles.

HELP

All of the punctuation marks that are already in the sentences in the Diagnostic Preview are correct.

1. Toads and frogs on the other hand are amphibians.
2. Some turtles live on land, others live in lakes, streams, or oceans.
3. Turtles have no teeth, but you should watch out for their strong, hard beaks.
4. The words turtle and tortoise are similar in meaning, but tortoise usually refers to a land dweller.
5. The African pancake tortoise, which has a flat, flexible shell, uses an unusual means of defense.
6. Faced with a threat, it crawls into a narrow crack in a rock, takes a deep breath, and wedges itself in tightly.
7. Because some species of tortoises are endangered, they cannot be sold as pets.
8. Three species of tortoises that can be found in the United States are as follows the desert tortoise the gopher tortoise and the Texas tortoise.

9. The gopher tortoise lives in the Southeast and the desert tortoise comes from the Southwest.

10. Is the Indian star tortoise which is now an endangered species very rare?

11. As this kind of tortoise grows older its shell grows larger the number of stars on the shell increases and their pattern becomes more complex.

12. The Indian star tortoise requires warmth sunlight and a diet of green vegetables.

13. Living in fresh water soft-shelled turtles have long flexible beaks and fleshy lips.

14. Their shells are not really soft however but are covered by smooth skin.

15. Sea turtles are the fastest turtles the green turtle can swim at speeds of almost twenty miles per hour.

16. Most turtles can pull their head, legs, and tail into their shell however sea turtles cannot do so.

17. Mr Kim my neighbor up the street has several turtles in his backyard pond.

18. Come to my house at 4:30 in the afternoon, and I’ll show you our turtle.

19. At 7:00 PM, we can watch that new PBS documentary about sea turtles.

20. Wanda may I introduce you to Pokey my pet turtle.

21. Pokey who has been part of our family for years is a red-eared turtle.

22. The book Turtles A Complete Pet Owner’s Manual has helped me learn how to take care of Pokey.

23. Pokey has been in my family for fifteen years and my parents say that he could easily live to be fifty if he is cared for properly.

24. What a great pet Pokey is.

25. Don’t you agree with me Wanda that a turtle makes a good pet.
End Marks

An end mark is a mark of punctuation placed at the end of a sentence. Periods, question marks, and exclamation points are end marks.

23a. Use a period at the end of a statement.
EXAMPLE Tea is grown in Sri Lanka.

23b. Use a question mark at the end of a question.
EXAMPLE Did you see the exhibit about lightning?

23c. Use an exclamation point at the end of an exclamation.
EXAMPLE What a high bridge that was!

23d. Use either a period or an exclamation point at the end of a request or a command.

When an imperative sentence makes a request, it is generally followed by a period. When an imperative sentence expresses a strong command, an exclamation point is generally used.

EXAMPLES Please call the dog. [a request]
Call the dog! [a command]

Exercise 1 Adding End Marks to Sentences
Rewrite each of the following sentences, adding the necessary end marks.

EXAMPLE 1. Did you know that a choreographer is a person who creates dance steps
1. Did you know that a choreographer is a person who creates dance steps?

1. Why is Katherine Dunham called the mother of African American dance
2. She studied anthropology in college and won a scholarship to visit the Caribbean
3. How inspiring the dances she saw in Haiti were
4. When Dunham returned to the United States, she toured the country with her own professional dance company
5. How I admire such a talented person
6. Ask me anything about Katherine Dunham
7. How many honors has Dunham’s creativity won her
8. She was named to the Hall of Fame of the National Museum of Dance in Saratoga, New York
9. She was also given the National Medal of Arts for exploring Caribbean and African dance
10. The editors of Essence magazine praised Dunham for helping to break down racial barriers

23e. Many abbreviations are followed by a period.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Types of Abbreviations</th>
<th>Examples</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Personal Names</td>
<td>A. B. Guthrie</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>W. E. B. DuBois</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Livie I. Durán</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Titles Used with Names</td>
<td>Mr. Mrs. Ms. Jr. Sr. Dr.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

NOTE Abbreviations for government agencies and other widely used abbreviations are written without periods. Each letter of the abbreviation is capitalized.

EXAMPLES FBI NAACP NIH NPR PTA TV UN YWCA

STYLE TIP When writing the initials of someone’s name, place a space between two initials (S. E. Hinton). Do not place spaces between three initials (M. F. K. Fisher).

STYLE TIP An acronym is a word formed from the first (or first few) letters of a series of words. Acronyms are written without periods.

EXAMPLES

- UNICEF (United Nations International Children’s Emergency Fund)
- VISTA (Volunteers in Service to America)
A two-letter state abbreviation without periods is used only when it is followed by a ZIP Code. Both letters of such abbreviations are capitalized.

EXAMPLE Orlando, FL 32819

Abbreviations for units of measure are usually written without periods and are not capitalized.

EXAMPLES mm kg dl oz lb ft yd mi

However, to avoid confusion with the word in, you should use a period with the abbreviation for inch (in).

NOTE When an abbreviation with a period ends a sentence, another period is not needed. However, a question mark or an exclamation point is used as needed.

EXAMPLES

1. We will arrive by 3:00 P.M.
2. Can you meet us at 3:30 P.M.?*
3. Oh no! It’s already 3:30 P.M.!!

Exercise 2 Punctuating Abbreviations

Some of the following sentences contain abbreviations that have not been correctly punctuated. Correct each error. If a sentence is already correct, write C.

EXAMPLE

1. Of course, we watch P.B.S.; we love the science shows it broadcasts.

ANSWER

1. PBS

1. Not everyone knows that WEB DuBois eventually became a Ghanaian citizen.
2. The writing isn’t clear, but I think it says 10 ft 6 in or 10 ft 5 in.
3. Write me in care of Mrs. Audrey Coppola, 10 Watson Ave.
5. Were those clay statues made as far back as 500 B.C?
6. Send your check or money order to Lester’s Low-Cost Computer Chips, Inc, Duluth, Minn, and receive your new chips in two days!
7. Could you be there at 7:00 P.M.?
8. I would never do business with a company whose only address was a PO box.
9. Miss Finch, Dr. Bledsoe will see you now.
10. His full name is Marvin French Little Hawk, Jr., but everyone calls him Junior.

Review A Adding Periods, Question Marks, and Exclamation Points to Sentences

Rewrite each of the following sentences, adding the necessary periods, question marks, and exclamation points.

EXAMPLE

1. Do you ever think about how electricity is produced?

   1. Do you ever think about how electricity is produced?

1. Electricity can come from large hydroelectric power stations.
2. Wow, these stations certainly do create a lot of power.
3. How do hydroelectric power stations work?
4. Look at the diagram to gain a better understanding.
5. Falling water from natural falls or artificial dams provides the initial power in the process.
6. Have you ever been to Niagara Falls, New York, to see the famous falls?
7. From 12:00 AM. to 12:00 AM.—constantly, in other words—the falls are a tremendous power source.
8. As you can see, rushing water turns turbines, which then drive generators.
9. What exactly are generators, and what do they do?
10. J D explained that generators are the machines that turn the motion of the turbines into electricity.
Commas

End marks are used to separate complete thoughts. Commas, however, are generally used to separate words or groups of words within a complete thought.

23f. Use commas to separate items in a series.

A series is a group of three or more items in a row. Words, phrases, and clauses may appear in a series.

Words in a Series

January, February, and March are all summer months in the Southern Hemisphere. [nouns]
The engine rattled, coughed, and stalled. [verbs]
The baby was happy, alert, playful, and active. [adjectives]

Phrases in a Series

There were fingerprints at the top, on the sides, and on the bottom. [prepositional phrases]
Cut into pieces, aged for a year, and well dried, the wood was ready to burn. [participial phrases]
To pitch in a World Series game, to practice medicine, and to run for mayor are all things I hope to do someday. [infinitive phrases]

Clauses in a Series

We sang, we danced, and we played trivia games. [short independent clauses]
I knew that we were late, that the ice cream was melting, and that the car was nearly out of gas. [short subordinate clauses]

NOTE

Only short independent clauses in a series may be separated by commas. A series of independent clauses that are long or that contain commas should be separated by semicolons.

EXAMPLE

Yawning, Mother closed the curtains; Father, who had just come in, turned on the porch light; and my little sister, Christina, put on her pajamas.
Always be sure that there are at least three items in the series; two items generally do not need a comma between them.

INCORRECT  You will need a pencil, and plenty of paper.

CORRECT  You will need a pencil and plenty of paper.

When all the items in the series are joined by and or or, do not use commas to separate them.

EXAMPLES  Take water and food and matches with you.

Stephen will take a class in karate or judo or aikido next year.

Exercise 3  Proofreading Sentences for the Correct Use of Commas

Some of the following sentences need commas; others do not. If a sentence needs any commas, write the word before each missing comma and add the comma. If a sentence is already correct, write C.

EXAMPLES

1. Seal the envelope stamp it and mail the letter.
   1. envelope, it,

2. You should swing the club with your knees bent and your back straight and your elbows tucked.
   2. C

1. The mountains and valleys of southern Appalachia were once home to the Cherokee people.
2. Cleveland Cincinnati Toledo and Dayton are four large cities in Ohio.
3. The captain entered the cockpit checked the instruments and prepared for takeoff.
4. Luisa bought mangos and papayas and oranges.
5. The speaker took a deep breath and read the report.
6. Rover can roll over walk on his hind feet and catch a tennis ball.
7. The neighbors searched behind the garages in the bushes and along the highway.
8. Rubén Blades is an attorney an actor and a singer.
9. Eleanor Roosevelt’s courage her humanity and her service to the nation will always be remembered.
10. Tate dusted I vacuumed and Blair washed the dishes.
23g. Use a comma to separate two or more adjectives that come before a noun.

EXAMPLES
- A white dwarf is a tiny, dense star.
- Venus Williams played a powerful, brilliant game.

Do not place a comma between an adjective and the noun immediately following it.

INCORRECT
- My spaniel is a fat, sassy, puppy.

CORRECT
- My spaniel is a fat, sassy puppy.

Sometimes the final adjective in a series is thought of as part of the noun. When the adjective and the noun are linked in such a way, do not use a comma before the final adjective.

EXAMPLES
- A huge horned owl lives in those woods.
- An unshaded electric light hung from the ceiling.

NOTE
When an adjective and a noun are closely linked, they may be thought of as a unit. Such a unit is called a compound noun.

EXAMPLES
- Persian cat
- Black Sea
- French bread

---

Review B

Proofreading Sentences for the Correct Use of Commas

Most of the following sentences need commas. If a sentence needs any commas, write the word before each missing comma and add the comma. If a sentence is already correct, write C.

EXAMPLE
1. Chen participated in debate volleyball and drama.
   1.  debate, volleyball,

1. Carla sneaked in and left a huge gorgeous fragrant bouquet of flowers on the desk.
2. I chose the gift Michael wrapped it and Charley gave it to Gina and Kelly.
3. Smoking is a costly dangerous habit.
4. In the human ear, the hammer anvil and stirrup carry sound waves to the brain.
5. Buffalo Bill was a Pony Express rider a scout and a touring stunt performer.
7. According to Greek mythology, the three Fates spin the thread of life measure it and cut it.
8. LeVar Burton played the intelligent likable character Geordi on Star Trek: The Next Generation.
9. The fluffy kitten with the brown white and black spots is my favorite.
10. Falstaff begged for mercy in a fight ran away and later bragged about his bravery in battle.

Compound Sentences

23h. Use a comma before and, but, for, nor, or, so, or yet when it joins independent clauses in a compound sentence.

EXAMPLES
- Tamisha offered me a ticket, and I accepted.
- They had been working very hard, but they didn’t seem especially tired.
- The Mullaney twins were excited, for they were going to day care for the first time.

When the independent clauses are very short and there is no chance of misunderstanding, the comma before and, but, or or is sometimes omitted.

EXAMPLES
- It rained and it rained.
- Come with us or meet us there.

NOTE Always use a comma before for, nor, so, or yet when joining independent clauses.

EXAMPLE
- I was tired, yet I stayed.

Do not be misled by a simple sentence that contains a compound verb. A simple sentence has only one independent clause.

SIMPLE SENTENCE WITH COMPOUND VERB
- Usually we study in the morning and play basketball in the afternoon.

COMPOUND SENTENCE
- Usually we study in the morning, and we play basketball in the afternoon. [two independent clauses]
Exercise 4 Correcting Compound Sentences by Adding Commas

If a sentence needs a comma, write the word before the missing comma and add the comma. If a comma is unnecessary, write the words before and after the comma and omit the comma. If the sentence is already correct, write C.

EXAMPLE 1. American Indian artists have a heritage dating back thousands of years and many of them draw on this heritage, to create modern works.

1. years, heritage to

1. Today’s artists sometimes work with nontraditional materials but they often use traditional techniques.

2. In the photograph below, you can see the work of the Tohono O’odham artist Mary Thomas, and begin to appreciate this basket weaver’s skill.

3. The baskets in the photograph are woven in the “friendship design” and show a circle of human figures in a traditional prayer ceremony.

4. Yucca and devil’s claw are used to make these baskets and each plant’s leaves are a different color.

5. The Navajo artist Danny Randeau Tsosie listened to his grandmother’s stories, and learned about his family’s heritage.

6. Tsosie’s works show her influence but also express his own point of view.

7. Christine Nofchissey McHorse learned the skill of pottery making from her grandmother and now McHorse can make beautiful bowls.

8. McHorse has an unusual style for her designs combine traditional Navajo and Pueblo images.
9. American Indian jewelry makers often use pieces of turquoise and coral found in North America and they also use other stones from around the world.
10. American Indian art often looks very modern yet some of its symbols and patterns are quite old.

Interrupters

23i. Use commas to set off an expression that interrupts a sentence.

Two commas are needed if the expression to be set off comes in the middle of the sentence. One comma is needed if the expression comes first or last.

EXAMPLES

Ann Myers, our neighbor, is a fine golfer.

Naturally, we expect to win.

My answer is correct, I think.

(1) Use commas to set off nonessential participial phrases and nonessential subordinate clauses.

A nonessential (or nonrestrictive) phrase or clause adds information that is not needed to understand the basic meaning of the sentence. Such a phrase or clause can be omitted without changing the main idea of the sentence.

NONESSENTIAL PHRASES

My sister, listening to her radio, did not hear me.

Paul, thrilled by the applause, took a bow.

NONESSENTIAL CLAUSES

The Wizard of Oz, which I saw again last week, is my favorite movie.

I reported on Secret of the Andes, which was written by Ann Nolan Clark.

Each boldface clause or phrase above can be omitted because it is not essential to identify the word or phrase it modifies. Omitting such a clause or phrase will not change the meaning of the sentence.

EXAMPLES

Paul took a bow.

I reported on Secret of the Andes.
Do not set off an essential (or restrictive) phrase or clause. Since such a phrase or clause tells which one(s), it cannot be omitted without changing the basic meaning of the sentence.

ESSENTIAL PHRASES The people waiting to see Michael Jordan whistled and cheered. [Which people?]

A bowl made by Maria Martínez is a collector’s item. [Which bowl?]

ESSENTIAL CLAUSES The dress that I liked has been sold. [Which dress?]

The man who tells Navajo folk tales is Mr. Platero. [Which man?]

Notice how the meaning changes when an essential phrase or clause is omitted.

EXAMPLES The people whistled and cheered.

A bowl is a collector’s item.

The dress has been sold.

The man is Mr. Platero.

NOTE A clause beginning with that is usually essential.

EXAMPLE This is the birdhouse that I made.

Exercise 5 Adding Commas to Sentences with Nonessential Phrases and Clauses

Some of the following sentences need commas to set off nonessential phrases and clauses. Other sentences are correct without commas. If a sentence needs commas, write the word that comes before each missing comma and add the comma. If the sentence is already correct, write C.

EXAMPLE 1. My grandfather’s favorite photograph which was taken near Ellis Island shows his family after their arrival from Eastern Europe.

1. photograph, Island,

1. Millions of immigrants who came to the United States between about 1892 and 1954 stopped at Ellis Island which is in Upper New York Bay.
2. Families arriving from Europe were interviewed there.
3. The island and its buildings which were closed to the public for many years are now part of the Statue of Liberty National Monument.
4. In 1990, Ellis Island rebuilt as a museum was officially opened to the public.
5. Visitors who wish to see the museum can take a ferry ride from Manhattan Island.
6. The museum's lobby crowded with steamer trunks and other old baggage is the visitors' first sight.
7. One special attraction in the museum consists of audiotapes and videotapes that describe the immigrants' experiences.
8. The Registry Room which is on the second floor sometimes held as many as five thousand people.
9. The immigrants who came from many countries hoped to find freedom and a happier life in America.
10. Immigrants who came to the United States brought with them a strong work ethic and a variety of skills that helped to make our country great.

(2) Use commas to set off nonessential appositives and nonessential appositive phrases.

An appositive is a noun or a pronoun used to identify or describe another noun or pronoun.

NONESSENTIAL APPOSITIVE

My oldest sister, Alicia, will be at basketball practice until 6:00 P.M.

NONESSENTIAL APPOSITIVE PHRASES

Jamaica, a popular island for tourists, is in the Caribbean Sea.

May I introduce you to Vernon, my cousin from Jamaica?
Do not use commas to set off an appositive that is essential to the meaning of a sentence.

ESSENTIAL APPOSITIVES

- My sister Alicia is at basketball practice.
  [The speaker has more than one sister and must give a name to identify which sister.]
- The planet Mercury is closer to the Sun than any other planet in our solar system.
  [The solar system contains more than one planet. The name is needed to identify which planet.]

---

Exercise 6

Proofreading for the Correct Use of Commas with Appositives and Appositive Phrases

Rewrite each of the following sentences, and underline the appositive or appositive phrase. Then, supply commas where needed.

EXAMPLE

1. Mars one of the planets closest to Earth can be seen without a telescope.

   1. Mars, one of the planets closest to Earth, can be seen without a telescope.

1. The whole class has read the novel Old Yeller.
2. Shana Alexander a former editor of a popular magazine was the main speaker at the conference.
3. The character Sabrina is Josie’s favorite.
4. The Galápagos Islands a group of volcanic islands in the Pacific Ocean were named for the Spanish word that means "tortoise."
5. Rubber an elastic substance quickly restores itself to its original size and shape.
6. This bowl is made of clay found on Kilimanjaro the highest mountain in Africa.
7. The North Sea an arm of the Atlantic Ocean is rich in fish, natural gas, and oil.
9. At Gettysburg a town in Pennsylvania an important battle of the Civil War was fought.
10. My friend Imelda is teaching me how to make empanadas.
(3) Use commas to set off words that are used in direct address.

EXAMPLES
- Ben, please answer the doorbell.
- Mom needs you, Francine.
- Would you show me, ma’am, where the craft store is?

Exercise 7 Correcting Sentences by Using Commas with Words of Direct Address

Identify the words used in direct address in the following sentences. Then, rewrite each sentence, inserting commas before, after, or both before and after the words, as needed.

EXAMPLE
1. Listen folks to this amazing announcement!

   1. folks—Listen, folks, to this amazing announcement!

1. Andrea when are you leaving for Detroit?
2. Pay attention now class.
3. Let us my sisters and brothers give thanks.
4. Please Dad may I use your computer?
5. Senator please summarize your tax proposal.
6. Help me move this table Marlene.
7. “Tell me both of you what movie you want to see,” Jo said.
8. Hurry William and give me the phone number!
9. Mrs. Larson where is Zion National Park?
10. I’m just not sure friends that I agree with you.

(4) Use commas to set off parenthetical expressions.

A parenthetical expression is a side remark that adds information or shows a relationship between ideas.

EXAMPLES
- Carl, on the contrary, prefers soccer to baseball.
- To tell the truth, Jan is one of my best friends.

Common Parenthetical Expressions

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Expression</th>
<th>Example</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>by the way</td>
<td>in fact</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>for example</td>
<td>in my opinion</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>however</td>
<td>I suppose</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>I believe</td>
<td>nevertheless</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>of course</td>
<td>on the contrary</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>in fact</td>
<td>on the other hand</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>in my opinion</td>
<td>to tell the truth</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>I suppose</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>nevertheless</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>on the contrary</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>on the other hand</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>to tell the truth</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Some of these expressions are not always used parenthetically.

EXAMPLES

- Of course it is true. [not parenthetical]

  That is, of course, an Indian teakwood screen. [parenthetical]

- I suppose we ought to go home now. [not parenthetical]

- He’ll want a ride, I suppose. [parenthetical]

Exercise 8 Correcting Sentences by Using Commas to Set Off Parenthetical Expressions

The following sentences contain parenthetical expressions that require commas. Write the parenthetical expressions, inserting commas before, after, or both before and after the expressions, as needed.

EXAMPLES

1. Everyone I suppose has heard of the Hubble Space Telescope.
   1. , I suppose,

2. As a matter of fact even a small refracting telescope gives a good view of Saturn’s rings.
   2. As a matter of fact,

1. You don’t need a telescope however to see all the beautiful sights in the night sky.
2. For instance on a summer night you might be able to view Scorpio, Serpens, and the Serpent Bearer.
3. By the way you should not overlook the Milky Way.
4. The Milky Way in fact is more impressive in the summer than at any other time of year.
5. Hercules of course is an interesting constellation.
6. Studying the constellations is in my opinion a most interesting hobby.
7. It takes an active imagination however to spot some constellations.
8. Sagittarius for example is hard to see unless you’re familiar with a constellation map.
9. Scorpio on the other hand is quite clearly outlined.
10. Astronomy is a fascinating science I think.
Introductory Words, Phrases, and Clauses

23j. Use a comma after certain introductory elements.

(1) Use a comma after yes, no, or any mild exclamation such as well or why at the beginning of a sentence.

EXAMPLES
Yes, you may borrow my bicycle.
Why, it’s Lena!
Well, I think you are wrong.

(2) Use a comma after an introductory participial phrase.

EXAMPLES
Beginning a new school year, Zelda felt somewhat nervous.

Greeted with applause from the fans, Rashid ran out onto the field.

(3) Use a comma after two or more introductory prepositional phrases.

EXAMPLES
At the bottom of the hill, you will see the baseball field.

Until the end of the song, just keep strumming that chord.

Use a comma after a single introductory prepositional phrase when the comma is necessary to make the meaning of the sentence clear.

EXAMPLES
In the morning they left. [clear without a comma]

In the morning, sunlight streamed through the window. [The comma is needed so that the reader does not read “morning sunlight.”]

(4) Use a comma after an introductory adverb clause.

EXAMPLES
After I finish my homework, I will go to the park.

When you go to the store, could you please pick up a gallon of milk?

NOTE
An adverb clause that comes at the end of a sentence does not usually need a comma.

EXAMPLE
I will go to the park after I finish my homework.
Using Commas with Introductory Elements

If a comma is needed in a sentence, write the word before the missing comma and add the comma. If a sentence is already punctuated correctly, write C.

EXAMPLE

1. Walking among the tigers and lions the trainer seemed unafraid.
   1. lions,

1. Because pemmican remained good to eat for several years it was a practical food for many American Indians.
2. Although Jesse did not win the student council election he raised many important issues.
3. On the desk in the den you will find your book.
4. Yes I enjoyed the fajitas that Ruben made.
5. Walking home from school Rosa saw her brother.
6. When I go to bed late I sometimes have trouble waking up in the morning.
7. Well we can watch television or play checkers.
8. Attracted by the computer games in the store window George decided to go in and buy one.
9. At the stoplight on the corner of the next block they made a right turn.
10. After eating the chickens settled down.

Conventional Situations

23k. Use commas in certain conventional situations.

(1) Use commas to separate items in dates and addresses.

EXAMPLES

- She was born on January 26, 1988, in Cheshire, Connecticut.
- A letter dated November 26, 1888, was found in the old house at 980 West Street, Davenport, Iowa, yesterday.

Notice that a comma separates the last item in a date or in an address from the words that follow it. However, a comma does not separate a month from a day (January 26) or a house number from a street name (980 West Street).
NOTE Use the ZIP Code correctly on every piece of mail you address. The ZIP Code follows the two-letter state abbreviation; no punctuation separates the state abbreviation from the ZIP Code.

EXAMPLE Fargo, ND 58102-2728

(2) Use a comma after the salutation of a personal letter and after the closing of any letter.

EXAMPLES Dear Dad, Dear Sharon,

With love, Yours truly,

Exercise 10 Using Commas Correctly

Rewrite the following sentences, inserting commas wherever they are needed.

EXAMPLE 1. I received a package from my friend who lives in Irving Texas.

1. I received a package from my friend who lives in Irving, Texas.

1. On May 25 1935 the runner Jesse Owens tied or broke six world track records.

2. The American Saddle Horse Museum is located at 4093 Iron Works Pike Lexington KY 40511-8462.

3. Marian Anderson was born on February 27 1902 in Philadelphia Pennsylvania.

4. Our new address will be 1808 Jackson Drive Ames IA 50010-4437.

5. Ocean City New Jersey is a popular seaside resort.

6. October 15 1988 is an important date because I was born then.

7. Have you ever been to Paisley Scotland?

8. We adopted our dog, King Barnabus IV, in Lee’s Summit Missouri on May 9 1995.

9. The national headquarters of the Environmental Defense Fund is located at 257 Park Avenue South New York NY 10010-7304.

10. Dear Lynn I am fine. How are you and your family?
Review C Proofreading Sentences for the Correct Use of Commas

For the following sentences, write each word that should be followed by a comma and add the comma after the word.

EXAMPLE 1. The substitute’s name is Mr. Fowler I think.
   1. Fowler,

1. What time is your appointment Kevin?
2. My aunt said to forward her mail to 302 Lancelot Drive Simpsonville SC 29681-5749.
3. George Washington Carver a famous scientist had to work hard to afford to go to school.
4. Quick violent flashes of lightning cause an average of 14,300 forest fires a year in the United States.
5. My oldest sister Kim sent a postcard from Ewa Hawaii.
6. A single branch stuck out of the water and the beaver grasped it in its paws.
7. The beaver by the way is a rodent.
8. This hard-working mammal builds dams lodges and canals.
9. Built with their entrances underwater the lodges of American beavers are marvels of engineering.
10. The beaver uses its large tail which is flat to steer.

Review D Proofreading Sentences for the Correct Use of Commas

Each of the following sentences contains at least one error in the use of commas. Write each word that should be followed by a comma, and add the comma.

EXAMPLES 1. Kyoto’s palaces shrines and temples remind visitors of this city’s importance in Japanese history.
   1. palaces, shrines,

2. In Japanese Kyoto means “capital city” which is what Emperor Kammu made Kyoto in A.D. 794.
   2. Japanese, city,

1. Kyoto a beautiful city was Japan’s capital for more than one thousand years.
2. It still may be called the cultural capital of Japan for it contains many Shinto shrines Buddhist temples the Kyoto National Museum, and wonderful gardens.
3. Yes Kyoto which was called Heian-kyo during the ninth century was so important that an entire period of Japanese history, the Heian period, is named for it.
4. Originating from the monasteries outside ancient Kyoto the magnificent mandala paintings feature universal themes.
5. Oh haven’t you seen the wonderful ukiyo-e paintings of vast mountains and tiny people?
6. Believe it or not readers there are now more than twenty colleges and universities in this treasured city.
7. Its people historic landmarks and art are respected across the globe.
8. With attractions like these it’s no surprise that Kyoto is a popular tourist stop.
9. Used in industries around the world the tools of fine crafts are made in Kyoto.
10. Kyoto manufactures silk for the fashion industry copper for artists and electricians and machines for businesses.
11. Fine delicate porcelain from Kyoto graces many tables around the world.
12. The Procession of the Eras celebrated every autumn takes place in Kyoto.
13. The Procession of the Eras festival which celebrates Kyoto’s history begins on October 22.
14. The beautiful solemn procession is a remarkable sight.
15. At the beginning of the festival priests offer special prayers.
16. Portable shrines are carried through the streets and thousands of costumed marchers follow.
17. Elaborate headgear and armor for example are worn by marchers dressed as ancient warriors.
18. Because the marchers near the front represent recent history they wear costumes from the nineteenth-century Royal Army Era.
19. Marching at the end of the procession archers wear costumes from the eighth-century Warrior Era.
20. The procession is in fact a rich memorial to Kyoto’s long and varied history.
Semicolons are most effective when they are not overused. Sometimes it is better to separate a compound sentence or a heavily punctuated sentence into two sentences rather than to use a semicolon.

ACCEPTABLE
Garden visitors include butterflies, bats, and ladybugs; such creatures benefit gardens in various ways, some by adding color, some by controlling pests, and all by pollinating plants.

BETTER
Garden visitors include butterflies, bats, and ladybugs. Such creatures benefit gardens in various ways, some by adding color, some by controlling pests, and all by pollinating plants.

A semicolon looks like a combination of a period and a comma, and that is just what it is. A semicolon can separate complete thoughts much as a period does. A semicolon can also separate items within a sentence much as a comma does.

23l. Use a semicolon between independent clauses if they are not joined by *and, but, for, nor, or, so, or yet.

EXAMPLES
- Jimmy took my suitcase upstairs; he left his own travel bag in the car.
- After school, I went to band practice; then I studied in the library for an hour.

Use a semicolon to link clauses only if the clauses are closely related in meaning.

INCORRECT
- Uncle Ray likes sweet potatoes; Aunt Janie prefers the beach.

CORRECT
- Uncle Ray likes sweet potatoes; Aunt Janie prefers peas and carrots.
- or
- Uncle Ray likes the mountains; Aunt Janie prefers the beach.

23m. Use a semicolon rather than a comma before a coordinating conjunction to join independent clauses that contain commas.

CONFUSING
- I wrote to Ann, Ramona, and Mai, and Jean notified Charles, Latoya, and Sue.

CLEAR
- I wrote to Ann, Ramona, and Mai; and Jean notified Charles, Latoya, and Sue.

NOTE
Semicolons are also used between items in a series when the items contain commas.

EXAMPLES
- They visited Phoenix, Arizona; Santa Fe, New Mexico; and San Antonio, Texas.

- Mr. Schultz, my science teacher; Ms. O’Hara, my English teacher; Mrs. Gomez, my math teacher; and Mr. Kim, my social studies teacher, attended the seventh-grade picnic.
Exercise 11 Using Semicolons Correctly

Most of the following sentences have a comma where there should be a semicolon. If the sentence needs a semicolon, write the words before and after the missing semicolon and insert the punctuation mark. If the sentence does not need a semicolon, write C.

EXAMPLE 1. Human beings have walked on the moon, they have not yet walked on any planet but earth.
   1. moon; they

1. Miyoko finished her homework, then she decided to go to Sally’s house.
2. Each January some people try to predict the major events of the upcoming year, but their predictions are seldom accurate.
3. Tie these newspapers together with string, put the aluminum cans in a bag.
4. I called Tom, Paul, and Francine, and Fred called Amy, Luis, Carlos, and Brad.
5. Reading is my favorite pastime, I love to begin a new book.
6. In 1991, Wellington Webb was elected mayor of Denver, he was the first African American to hold that office.
7. The two companies merged, and they became the largest consumer goods firm in the nation.
8. Your grades have definitely improved, you will easily pass the course.
9. Paris, France, Cairo, Egypt, and Copenhagen, Denmark, are all places that I would like to visit someday.
10. We haven’t seen the movie, for it hasn’t come to our town yet.

Colons

23n. Use a colon before a list of items, especially after expressions such as the following or as follows.

EXAMPLES You will need these items for map work: a ruler, colored pencils, and tracing paper.

           Jack’s pocket contained the following items: a key, a note from a friend, a button, and two quarters.

           The primary colors are as follows: red, blue, and yellow.
Do not use a colon between a verb and its object or between a preposition and its object. Omit the colon, or reword the sentence.

INCORRECT Your heading should contain: your name, the date, and the title of your essay.

CORRECT Your heading should contain your name, the date, and the title of your essay.

CORRECT Your heading should contain the following information: your name, the date, and the title of your essay.

INCORRECT This marinara sauce is made of: tomatoes, onions, oregano, and garlic.

CORRECT This marinara sauce is made of tomatoes, onions, oregano, and garlic.

CORRECT This marinara sauce is made of the following ingredients: tomatoes, onions, oregano, and garlic.

NOTE Colons are also often used before long formal statements or quotations.

EXAMPLE My opinion of beauty is clearly expressed by Margaret Wolfe Hungerford in Molly Bawn: “Beauty is in the eye of the beholder.”

---

Conventional Situations

23o. Use a colon between the hour and the minute.

EXAMPLE 8:30 A.M. 10:00 P.M.

23p. Use a colon after the salutation of a business letter.

EXAMPLES Dear Sir or Madam: Dear Mrs. Foster:

To Whom It May Concern: Dear Dr. Christiano:

23q. Use a colon between chapter and verse in Biblical references and between all titles and subtitles.

EXAMPLES I Chronicles 22:6–19

“Oral Storytelling: Making the Winter Shorter”

Exercise 12 Using Colons and Commas Correctly

Make each of the following word groups into a complete sentence by supplying the item called for in the brackets. Insert colons and commas where they are needed.

EXAMPLE
1. The test will begin at [time].

   1. The test will begin at 9:30 A.M.

1. So far, the class has studied the following topics [list].
2. You will need these supplies for your science-fair experiment [list].
3. If I were writing a book about my friends and me, I would call it [title and subtitle].
4. Meet me at the mall at [time].
5. My classes this year are the following [list].
6. You should begin your business letter with [salutation].
7. The concert begins at [time].
8. I need the following from the hardware store [list].
9. Three countries I would like to visit are [list].
10. The alarm is set to go off at [time].

Review E Using End Marks, Commas, Semicolons, and Colons Correctly

The sentences in the following paragraph lack necessary end marks, commas, semicolons, and colons. Write each sentence, inserting the correct punctuation.

EXAMPLE

[1] What an unusual clever caring way to help animals that is

   1. What an unusual, clever, caring way to help animals that is!

   [1] Animal lovers have you heard about the Sanctuary for Animals [2] Founded by Leonard and Bunny Brook the sanctuary is a safe home for all kinds of animals [3] Through the years hundreds of stray unwanted and abused animals have found a home at the sanctuary [4] It is located on the Brooks’ land in Westtown New York [5] On their two hundred acres the Brooks take care of the following animals dogs cats camels elephants lions and even an Australian kangaroo [6] Of course Mr. and
Mrs. Brook also raise chickens keep horses and look after their other farm animals [7] The Brooks their family and their friends care for animals like this young cougar they also let the animals work for themselves [8] How do the animals work [9] The Brooks formed the Dawn Animal Agency and their animals became actors and models [10] You may have seen a camel or some of the other animals in magazines movies television shows and commercials
A. Using End Marks, Commas, Semicolons, and Colons Correctly

The following sentences lack necessary periods, question marks, exclamation points, commas, semicolons, and colons. Write each sentence, inserting the correct punctuation.

1. The following students gave reports Carlos Sue and Alan
2. Tanay carved this beautiful soapstone cooking pot
3. Walter this is Ellen who has transferred to our school
4. Calling Simon’s name I ran to the door
5. The Wilsons’ new address is 3100 DeSoto St New Orleans LA 70119-3251
6. Have you listened to that Bill Cosby tape Felix
7. Let me know of course if you can’t attend
8. Joy our club president will conduct the meeting and Gary our recently elected secretary will take notes
9. Looking at the harsh bright glare Mai closed the blinds
10. Carlos Montoya picked up the guitar positioned his fingers and strummed a few chords of a flamenco song
11. If you hurry you can get home before 9 00
12. Help This is an emergency
13. By the way Rosa have you seen any of Alfred Hitchcock’s movies
14. Dave hit a long fly ball but Phil was there to catch it
15. Flooding rapidly the gully quickly became a tremendous torrent
16. The Grapes of Wrath which is one of my favorite movies is about a family’s struggles during the Great Depression
17. Nicaragua Panama and Honduras are in Central America and Colombia Peru and Chile are in South America
18. One of our cats Gypsy scooted through the door across the room and out the window
19. The Lock Museum of America a fascinating place in Terryville Conn has more than twenty thousand locks
20. Could the surprise gift be in-line skates a new football or tickets to a concert
B. Proofreading a Business Letter

The following business letter lacks periods, commas, semicolons, and colons. Correct each error. If a sentence is already correct, write C.

Gable Books
387 Monocle Lane
Bozeman, MT  59715
June 28, 2001

[21] Dear Mr Gable

[22] Please find enclosed a copy of Edith Wharton A Biography by R W B Lewis.

[23] I purchased this book recently at your book shop but I have since discovered that several pages are missing

[24] I am not happy with the book please send me a new copy.

[25] Sincerely

E. Frome

C. Proofreading for Correct Punctuation

Most of the following sentences lack at least one period, question mark, exclamation point, comma, semicolon, or colon. Correct each error. If a sentence is already correctly punctuated, write C.

26. He went shopping, cooked dinner, and washed the dishes.
27. For the good of us all please think before you act next time
28. Mr T E Hawk a friend of my mother’s helps me with math.
29. Caroline pardon me have your relatives arrived
30. Yes Mario they came just last week.
31. At the center of a map of Texas you will find Brady.
32. Our new address is 72 Maple Ave Rochester NY 14612.
33. Inger designs the clothes her mother sews them
34. We followed the trail it led around the garage.
35. The world record in the long jump was held by Jesse Owens for several years but the record is now held by another outstanding athlete.
36. On June 15 1983 my father opened his first florist shop.
37. Your use of materials, for example, is very artistic.
38. My hobbies are as follows baseball ballet and magic tricks.
39. After I carry the groceries into the house my sister puts them away.
40. Stop that now Veronica

Writing Application
Using Punctuation in an Announcement

Correct Punctuation  Your class is sponsoring a carwash to raise money for a special project or trip. You have been chosen to write an announcement about the carwash for publication in a community newsletter. Write a brief announcement telling when and where the carwash will be, how much it will cost, what the money will be used for, and any other important details. Be sure to use end marks, commas, semicolons, and colons correctly in your announcement.

Prewriting  List the information that you will include in your announcement. Make sure you have included all the facts people will need to know about the purpose, time, location, and cost of the carwash.

Writing  As you write, remember that the purpose of your announcement is to attract customers. Start with an attention-grabbing first sentence that explains the purpose of the carwash. Be sure to present all your information in clear, complete sentences. Add any important details that you did not list earlier.

Revising  Ask a friend to read your announcement. Is it clear and straightforward? Does it convince your friend that the carwash is for a good cause? If not, revise, rearrange, or add details.

Publishing  As you proofread your announcement, pay special attention to your use of punctuation. Remember to check the placement of colons in expressions of time. You may wish to offer your announcement-writing services to a club or service organization at your school.
A. Proofreading Sentences for the Correct Use of Underlining (Italics), Quotation Marks, Apostrophes, Hyphens, Parentheses, Brackets, and Dashes

Revise each of the following sentences so that underlining, quotation marks, apostrophes, hyphens, parentheses, brackets, and dashes are used correctly.

EXAMPLE

1. “May I borrow your copy of ‘Life’ magazine?” Phil asked Alan.

   1. “May I borrow your copy of Life magazine?” Phil asked Alan.

1. Boris Karloff (his real name was William Henry Pratt) played the monster in the original movie version of Frankenstein.
3. “It (the new version of the software) corrects that problem,” said Steve.
4. I’ve heard that the programs announcer and interviewer will be Connie Chung, a favorite of mine.
5. Anne said that “Norma couldn’t understand why twenty two people had voted against having the dance on a Friday night.

6. “A two thirds majority said they didn’t want to have it then, Shawn said.

7. Fred said, This magazine article titled Luxury Liners of the Past is interesting.”

8. “Does the public library have copies of The Seminole Tribune or any other American Indian newspapers”? Tanya asked.

9. My sisters’ enjoy reading folk tales like the stories in Two Ways to Count to Ten by Ruby Dee.

10. The Garcia’s cat is I don’t think they know living in our garage,” Mary said.

B. Punctuating Quotations Correctly

Add quotation marks where they are needed in each of the following sentences.

EXAMPLE 1. I wonder why so many people enjoy collecting things, said J. D.

2. “I wonder why so many people enjoy collecting things,” said J. D.

11. I know I do! Julia exclaimed.

12. Tomás said, My grandmother said, It’s the thrill of the hunt.

13. Do you collect anything as a hobby? Josh asked Marsha.

14. No, Marsha answered, but I know a person who collects old cameras and antique costume jewelry.

15. My aunt collects John McCormack’s records, Kevin said. Do you know who he is?

16. I’m not sure, Julia said, but I think that he was an Irish singer.

17. Yes, he sang in the opera; he also sang popular Irish songs such as The Rose of Tralee, Kevin said.

18. My stepbrother has a collection of arrowheads. He hasn’t been collecting them very long, Sydney said.

19. You should see Mrs. Kominek’s collection of Chinese jade carvings, J. D. said. It’s great!

20. Some people—I’m sure you know—have odd collections, Josh said. For instance, my aunt collects old shoelaces.
Underlining (Italics)

Italics are printed letters that lean to the right—like this. When you write or type, you show that a word should be italicized by underlining it. If your composition were printed, the typesetter would set the underlined words in italics. For example, if you typed the sentence would be printed like this:

Gary Soto wrote Pacific Crossing.

Gary Soto wrote Pacific Crossing.

24a. Use underlining (italics) for titles and subtitles of books, plays, periodicals, films, television series, works of art, and long musical works.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Type of Name</th>
<th>Examples</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Books</td>
<td>My Life and Hard Times</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>To Kill a Mockingbird</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Life on the Mississippi</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Maud Martha</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Plays</td>
<td>Our Town</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Hamlet</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>I Never Sang for My Father</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Periodicals</td>
<td>the Daily News</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Essence</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>National Geographic</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Films</td>
<td>The Maltese Falcon</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Stand and Deliver</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Television Series</td>
<td>Nova</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Sesame Street</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Bill Nye the Science Guy</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Works of Art</td>
<td>Starry Night</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>American Gothic</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>The Dream</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>View of Toledo</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Long Musical Works</td>
<td>Carmen</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>An American in Paris</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Don Giovanni</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Music for the Royal Fireworks</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
24b. Use underlining (italics) for the names of ships, trains, aircraft, and spacecraft.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Type of Name</th>
<th>Examples</th>
</tr>
</thead>
</table>
| Ships        | HMS Titanic
               the Pequod
               the USS Eisenhower |
| Trains       | the City of New Orleans the Orient Express Golden Arrow |
| Aircraft     | the Silver Dart the Hindenburg |
| Spacecraft   | Soyuz XI
               Atlantis |

NOTE Underline (italicize) an article at the beginning of a title only if it is the first word of the official title. Check the table of contents or the masthead to find the preferred style for the title.

EXAMPLES Would you like to subscribe to the San Francisco Chronicle?

The Seattle Times is a daily newspaper.

24c. Use underlining (italics) for words, letters, and numerals referred to as such.

EXAMPLES Double the final n before you add -ing in words like running.

If your Z's look like 2's, your reader may see 200 when you meant zoo.

Exercise 1 Using Underlining (Italics) Correctly

For each of the following sentences, write and underline each word or item that should be italicized.

EXAMPLE 1. Does Dave Barry write a humor column for The Miami Herald?

1. The British spell the word humor with a u after the o.
2. In Denmark, you might see the spelling triathlon for the word triathlon.
3. The current Newsweek has an informative article on the famine in Africa.
4. Our school paper, the Norwalk Valley News, is published weekly.
5. Luis Valdez wrote and directed La Bamba, a movie about the life of the singer Ritchie Valens.
6. Mr. Weyer said that the Oceanic is one of the ocean liners that sail to the Caribbean.
7. I think the movie The Sound of Music has some of the most beautiful photography that I have ever seen and some of the most memorable songs.
8. Our local theater group is presenting The Time of Your Life, a comedy by William Saroyan.
9. Charles Lindbergh’s Spirit of St. Louis is on display at the museum, along with the Wright brothers’ Flyer and NASA’s Gemini IV.
10. The best novel that I read during vacation was The Summer of the Swans.

Quotation Marks

24d. Use quotation marks to enclose a direct quotation—a person’s exact words.

Be sure to place quotation marks both before and after a person’s exact words.

EXAMPLES

The sonnet containing the words “Give me your tired, your poor, /Your huddled masses/ . . .” is inscribed on the Statue of Liberty.

“When the bell rings,” said the teacher, “leave the room quietly.”

Do not use quotation marks for an indirect quotation—a rewording of a direct quotation.

DIRECT QUOTATION

Tom predicted, “It will be a close game.”

[Tom’s exact words]

INDIRECT QUOTATION

Tom predicted that it would be a close game.

[not Tom’s exact words]
24e. A direct quotation generally begins with a capital letter.

EXAMPLES  Lisa said, “The carne asada isn’t ready yet, but please help yourself to the guacamole.”

While he was in prison, Richard Lovelace wrote a poem containing the well-known line “Stone walls do not a prison make.”

24f. When an expression identifying the speaker interrupts a quoted sentence, the second part of the quotation begins with a lowercase letter.

EXAMPLE  “Lightning has always awed people,” explained Mrs. Worthington, “and many of us are still quite frightened by it.”

A quoted sentence that is divided in this way is called a broken quotation. Notice that each part of a broken quotation is enclosed in a set of quotation marks.

When the second part of a divided quotation is a complete sentence, it begins with a capital letter.

EXAMPLE  “I can’t go today,” I said. “Ask me tomorrow.”

24g. A direct quotation can be set off from the rest of the sentence by one or more commas or by a question mark or an exclamation point, but not by a period.

To set off means “to separate.” If a quotation begins a sentence, a comma follows it. If a quotation ends a sentence, a comma comes before it. If a quoted sentence is interrupted, a comma follows the first part and comes before the second part.

EXAMPLES  “I think science is more interesting than history,” said Bernie.

Velma commented, “I especially like to do the experiments.”

“Yes,” Juan added, “Bernie loves experiments, too.”

When a quotation at the beginning of a sentence ends with a question mark or an exclamation point, no comma is needed.

EXAMPLES  “Is that a good video game?” Jane wanted to know.

“I’ll say it is!” Debbie exclaimed.
24h. A comma or a period should be placed inside the closing quotation marks.

EXAMPLES  “The Ramses exhibit begins over there,” said the museum guide.

Darnell replied, “I’m ready to see some ancient Egyptian jewelry and artwork.”

24i. A question mark or an exclamation point should be placed inside the closing quotation marks when the quotation itself is a question or an exclamation. Otherwise, it should be placed outside.

EXAMPLES “How far have we come?” asked the exhausted man. [The quotation is a question.]

Who said, “Give me liberty or give me death”? [The sentence, not the quotation, is a question.]

“Jump!” ordered the firefighter. [The quotation is an exclamation.]

I couldn’t believe it when he said, “No, thank you”! [The sentence, not the quotation, is an exclamation.]

When both the sentence and the quotation at the end of the sentence are questions (or exclamations), only one question mark (or exclamation point) is used. It is placed inside the closing quotation marks.

EXAMPLE Did Josh really say, “What’s Cinco de Mayo?”

Exercise 2 Punctuating and Capitalizing Quotations

Use commas, quotation marks, and capital letters where they are needed in each of the following sentences. If a sentence is already correct, write C.

EXAMPLE 1. Let’s go to a movie this afternoon, said Bob.

1. “Let’s go to a movie this afternoon,” said Bob.

1. When I shrieked in fear, the usher warned me to be quiet.

2. At the same time, Bob whispered it’s only a movie—calm down.

3. He pointed out that the people around us were getting annoyed.
4. I quietly replied I’m sorry.
5. You shouldn’t have screamed, he complained.
6. From now on I said to him I promise I’ll try to be quiet.
7. When the lights came on, Bob said “it’s time to go.”
8. Outside the theater he muttered something about people who shouldn’t go to scary movies.
9. I just couldn’t help it I explained.
10. You were even afraid Bob protested during the credits!

Exercise 3 Punctuating and Capitalizing Quotations

Use capital letters, quotation marks, and other punctuation marks where they are needed in each of the following sentences.

EXAMPLE

1. Ashley Bryan wore traditional African clothes when he came to our school Elton said.

   1. “Ashley Bryan wore traditional African clothes when he came to our school,” Elton said.

---

1. Oh, like the clothes Mr. Johnson showed us in class Janell exclaimed
2. Elton asked have you read any of Ashley Bryan’s books about African culture
3. I’ve read Janell quickly replied the one titled Beat the Story-Drum, Pum-Pum
4. I’d like to read that again Elton said those African folk tales are wonderful
5. Mrs. Ray thinks Walk Together Children is excellent Janell said
6. Isn’t that Elton asked about African American spirituals
7. You’re right Janell answered and Bryan wrote that spirituals are America’s greatest contribution to world music
8. She added he grew up in New York City and began writing stories and drawing when he was still in kindergarten
9. Did you know Elton asked that he illustrated his own books
Exercise 4 Creating Direct Quotations

Revise each of the following sentences by changing the indirect quotation to a direct quotation. Be sure to use capital letters and punctuation wherever necessary.

EXAMPLE

1. I asked my grandmother whether she would like to help us paint our float.

   1. “Grandma,” I asked, “would you like to help us paint our float?”

1. Mayor Alaniz announced that he would lead the parade this year.

2. Ms. Feldman asked me what my plans for the big parade were.

3. I answered that my brother and I were building a float.

4. She exclaimed that she thought that was terrific.

5. Ron remarked that our float probably had something to do with sports.

6. I told Ron that he was exactly right.

7. Alinda asked me what sports will be represented on the float.

8. I replied that the float will salute swimming, soccer, and tennis.

9. Ron said excitedly that he would love to help.

10. Ms. Feldman said that my brother and I would probably be glad to have help.

24j. When you write dialogue (a conversation), begin a new paragraph every time the speaker changes.

EXAMPLE

The young man smiled, and said, “My old master, now let me tell you the truth. My home is not so far away. It is quite near your temple. We have been old neighbors for many years.”

The old monk was very surprised. “I don’t believe it. You, young man, will have your joke. Where is there another house round here?”

“My master, would I lie to you? I live right beside your temple. The Green Pond is my home.”

“You live in the pond?” The old monk was even more astonished.

“That’s right. In fact,” said Li Aiqi, in a perfectly serious tone, “I’m not a man at all. I am a dragon.”

“Green Dragon Pond,” a Bai folk tale
24k. When a quotation consists of several sentences, put quotation marks only at the beginning and the end of the whole quotation.

EXAMPLE  “Mary Elizabeth and I will wait for you at Robertson’s Drugstore. Please try to get there as soon as you can. We don’t want to be late for the concert,” Jerome said.

24l. Use single quotation marks to enclose a quotation within a quotation.

EXAMPLES Brandon added, “My mom always says, ‘Look before you leap.’”

“Did Ms. Neuman really say, ‘It’s all right to use your books and your notes during the test’?” asked Sakura.

24m. Use quotation marks to enclose the titles of short works such as short stories, poems, songs, episodes of television series, essays, articles, and chapters and other parts of books.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Type of Name</th>
<th>Examples</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Short Stories</td>
<td>“A Day’s Wait”</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>“The Medicine Bag”</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Poems</td>
<td>“In Time of Silver Rain”</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>“Birdfoot’s Grampa”</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Songs</td>
<td>“The Star-Spangled Banner”</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>“Swing Low, Sweet Chariot”</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Episodes of Television Series</td>
<td>“This Side of Paradise”</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>“Growing Up Hispanic”</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Essays</td>
<td>“Self-Reliance”</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>“The Creative Process”</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Articles</td>
<td>“Rooting for the Home Team”</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>“Annie Leibovitz: Behind the Images”</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Chapters and Other Parts of Books</td>
<td>“The Natural World”</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>“The Myths of Greece and Rome”</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>“The Double Task of Language”</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Reference Note
For examples of titles that are italicized, see page 628.
Titles that are usually set in quotation marks are set in single quotation marks when they appear within a quotation.

Example

James said, “We learned The Star-Spangled Banner in music class today.”

Exercise 5 Using Quotation Marks

Insert quotation marks where they are needed in each of the following items. If a sentence is already correct, write C.

Example

1. Lani, have you seen my clarinet? asked Rob. It was on this table. I need it for my lesson this afternoon.
2. The most interesting chapter in The Sea Around Us is The Birth of an Island.
3. Didn’t Benjamin Franklin once say, Time is money? asked Myra impatiently.
4. I believe my favorite Langston Hughes poem is As I Grew Older, said Mom.
5. Lea Evans said, One of the greatest changes in architecture has been in the design of churches. They no longer necessarily follow traditional forms. Churches have been built that are shaped like stars, fish, and ships.
6. The latest issue of Discover magazine has a fascinating picture of a shark that swallowed an anchor.
7. Do you know which character asked What’s in a name? in Romeo and Juliet? I asked.
8. Yes, that was Juliet, answered Li. My mother used to say that to me when I was a little girl. That’s how I first heard of Shakespeare.
9. A human hand has more than twenty-seven bones and thirty-five muscles! exclaimed Marcus. No wonder it can do so much.
10. There is an article titled The Customers Always Write in today’s newspaper.
Review A  Punctuating Paragraphs

Revise the following paragraphs, adding quotation marks and other marks of punctuation wherever necessary. Remember to begin a new paragraph each time the speaker changes. If a sentence is already correct, write C.

EXAMPLES

[1] Mr. Brown asked Can you baby-sit tonight?
   1. Mr. Brown asked, “Can you baby-sit tonight?”

[2] Sure I said I’d be happy to.
   2. “Sure,” I said. “I’d be happy to.”

Apostrophes
Possessive Case

The possessive case of a noun or a pronoun shows ownership or possession.

EXAMPLES

- Kathleen’s desk
- anybody’s guess
- his bat
- an hour’s time
- their car
- those horses’ manes

24n. To form the possessive case of a singular noun, add an apostrophe and an s.

EXAMPLES

- a boy’s cap
- Cleon’s pen
- the baby’s toy
- Charles’s opinion

NOTE A proper noun ending in s may take only an apostrophe to form the possessive case if the addition of an apostrophe and an s would make the name awkward to say.

EXAMPLES

- the Philippines’ government
- Ms. Rodgers’ cat

Exercise 6 Using Apostrophes for Singular Possessives

Identify the word that needs an apostrophe in each of the following sentences. Then, write the word correctly punctuated.

EXAMPLE

1. The Prado in Madrid, Spain, is one of the world’s greatest museums.

   1. world’s—world’s

1. Shown on the next page is one of the Prado’s paintings by Diego Velázquez, Las Meninas.
2. Velázquez’s painting is known in English as The Maids of Honor.
3. In the center of the canvas is Princess Margarita, the royal couple’s daughter.
4. To the princess’s right, a kneeling maid of honor offers her something to drink.
5. To the royal child’s left, another maid of honor curtsies.
6. On the far left of the canvas, you can see the artist’s own image, for he has painted himself!
7. The palace’s other important people, such as the chamberlain and a court jester, also appear.
8. The faces of Margarita’s parents are reflected in the mirror on the back wall.
9. In the foreground, the royal dog ignores a young guest’s invitation to play.
10. This painting’s fame has grown since it was painted in 1656, and each year millions of people see it when they visit the Prado.

24o. To form the possessive case of a plural noun that does not end in s, add an apostrophe and an s.

EXAMPLES
- mice’s tracks
- men’s hats
- children’s games
- teeth’s enamel
- women’s shoes
- Sioux’s land

24p. To form the possessive case of a plural noun ending in s, add only the apostrophe.

EXAMPLES
- cats’ basket
- four days’ delay
- brushes’ bristles
- the Carsons’ bungalow

NOTE
In general, you should not use an apostrophe to form the plural of a noun.

INCORRECT
Three girl’s lost their tickets.

CORRECT
Three girls lost their tickets. [plural]

CORRECT
Three girls’ tickets were lost. [plural possessive]

Reference Note
For information on using apostrophes to form the plurals of letters, numerals, and symbols and of words used as words, see page 645.
Exercise 7  Writing Possessives

Using the possessive case, rewrite each of the following word groups. Be sure to insert an apostrophe in the correct place.

EXAMPLE 1. food for the dog
           1. the dog’s food

1. the nominee of the party
2. the clothes of the babies
3. the grades of my sister
4. the name tags of the guests
5. the dish for the cat
6. the yard of Mr. Granger
7. the muscles of my foot
8. the strength of the oxen
9. the computer of James
10. the members of the teams

24q. Do not use an apostrophe with possessive personal pronouns.

EXAMPLES Is that sticker yours or mine?
Our cat is friendlier than theirs.
His report on Cherokee folk tales was as good as hers.

NOTE Do not confuse the possessive pronoun its with the contraction it’s. The possessive pronoun its means belonging to it. The expression it’s is a contraction of the words it is or it has.

POSSESSIVE PRONOUN Please give the cat its rubber ball.
CONTRACTIONS It’s time for the soccer tournament.
           It’s taken three hours.

24r. To form the possessive case of some indefinite pronouns, add an apostrophe and an s.

EXAMPLES neither’s homework everyone’s choice
        somebody’s jacket

Exercise 8  Writing Possessives of Personal and Indefinite Pronouns

Rewrite each of the following expressions, using the possessive case of each pronoun.

EXAMPLE 1. the park for everyone
           1. everyone’s park
Constructions

24s. Use an apostrophe to show where letters, words, or numerals have been omitted (left out) in a contraction.

A contraction is a shortened form of a word, a numeral, or a word group. The apostrophe in a contraction shows where letters or numerals have been left out. Contractions are acceptable in informal writing, but in formal writing, you should generally avoid using them.

Common Contractions

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Contraction</th>
<th>Contraction</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>I am.........</td>
<td>I*m</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1999.........</td>
<td>1999</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>let us .......</td>
<td>let*s</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>of the clock</td>
<td>o*clock</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>she would ....</td>
<td>she*d</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>we have.......</td>
<td>we*ve</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>they are.......</td>
<td>they*re</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>they had.......</td>
<td>they*d</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>where is ......</td>
<td>where*s</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>we are .......</td>
<td>we*re</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>he is ............</td>
<td>he*s</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>you will ........</td>
<td>you*ll</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>what is ........</td>
<td>what*s</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>I would ........</td>
<td>I*d</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

The word not can be shortened to n’t and added to a verb, usually without any change in the spelling of the verb.

EXAMPLES

- is not ....................... isn’t
- have not ........ have*n’t
- had not ........ have*n’t
- should not .. should*n’t
- would not .... would*n’t
- could not ...... couldn’t

EXCEPTIONS

- cannot ............ can’t

STYLE TIP

In formal writing, avoid using a contraction of a year. In informal writing, if the reader cannot determine the time period from the context of the sentence, it is best to write out the year.

EXAMPLE

The famous tenor toured Europe in ’01. [Did the tenor tour in 1801, 1901, or 2001?] The famous tenor toured Europe in 2001.
Be careful not to confuse contractions with possessive pronouns.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Contraction</th>
<th>Possessive Pronoun</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>It’s Friday.</td>
<td>Its nest is over there.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>It’s a pleasure.</td>
<td>It has</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Who’s your server?</td>
<td>Whose is</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Who’s been practicing the piano?</td>
<td>Whose has</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>They’re arriving soon.</td>
<td>Their is</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>There’s the path.</td>
<td>There is</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Exercise 9 Using Apostrophes Correctly

Correct each error in the use of possessive forms and contractions in the following sentences. If a sentence is already correct, write C.

EXAMPLE

1. Aren’t you going with us at one o’clock?
   1. Aren’t; o’clock

1. Wed better chain our bicycles to the rack.
2. You’re old cars seen better days, hasn’t it?
3. She wasn’t too happy to see us.
4. Whose ringing the doorbell?
5. We won’t forget how helpful you’ve been.
6. I’m certain you’ll be invited.
7. Whose turn is it to take attendance?
8. Ann’s an excellent swimmer, but she can’t dive.
9. They’re turning in their’s now.
10. She’s sure they’ll show up before it’s over.

Exercise 10 Punctuating Contractions

For each of the following sentences, identify the word that needs an apostrophe to indicate a contraction. Then, write the word correctly.

EXAMPLE

1. What’s the best route from Lawrenceville, New Jersey, to Newtown, Pennsylvania?
   1. What’s
1. There’s one especially pretty route you can take to get there.
2. I think you’ll enjoy the drive.
3. You shouldn’t go due west directly.
4. You’ve got to go north or south first.
5. It’s easier to go south on Route 206 to Route U.S. 1, cross the Delaware River, and then go north on Route 32 to Yardley.
6. From Yardley, turn left on Route 322, and in a little while I’m sure you will find yourself in Newtown.
7. If you prefer a different route, go south on Route 206 to Route 546 and make a right turn to go west.
8. After you cross the Delaware River and the road becomes 532, don’t turn until Linton Hill Road.
9. When you turn left onto Linton Hill Road, it won’t be long before you arrive in Newtown.
10. Here’s a map you can use to help you find your way.

Exercise 11 Writing Contractions

Write a suitable contraction to correctly complete each of the following sentences.

EXAMPLE

1. Do you know _____ for supper?

   1. what’s

   1. what’s

1. _____ my sweater?
2. _____ lying on the beach.
3. We _____ help you right now.
4. _____ dinner ready?
5. They _____ played that game before.
6. She was in the class of _____.
7. _____ go to the museum.
8. I _____ know that game.
9. _____ rather order the salad.
10. Is it nine _____ yet?
Exercise 12  Writing Contractions

Write the contraction of the underlined word or words in each of the following sentences.

EXAMPLE
1. If you think it should have been easy to visit the building shown below, guess again!
   1. should’ve

1. It is the Potala Palace in Lhasa, Tibet, which my parents and I visited last year.
2. The city of Lhasa is two miles high in the Himalaya Mountains, and we could not move around much because the lack of oxygen made us tired.
3. The Potala Palace is the former residence of the Tibetan spiritual leader, who has been living in exile in India.
4. Because this palace is a holy shrine, pilgrims do not mind traveling on foot from all over the country to worship there.
5. After they have bought yak butter in the city square, they take it to the palace as an offering.
6. From the photograph, you cannot imagine how steep those stairs on the right are!
7. Because it would have taken a long time to climb them, our bus driver took us directly to the rear entrance on the left.
8. Once inside, we spent hours exploring the palace, but we were not able to visit most of its more than one thousand rooms!
9. I am sure we would never have found our way out without our guide, who led us to an exit on the right.
10. Walking down the stairs was not too hard, and soon we were in the beautiful central square in the Himalayan sunshine!
Plurals

24t. Use an apostrophe and an s to form the plurals of letters, numerals, and symbols, and of words referred to as words.

EXAMPLES

Your o’s look like a’s, and your u’s look like n’s.

There are three 5’s and two 8’s in his telephone number.

Place $’s before monetary amounts and ¢’s after.

One sign of immature writing is too many and’s.

Review B Using Underlining (Italics) and Apostrophes Correctly

For each of the following sentences, add underlining or apostrophes as necessary. The punctuation already supplied is correct.

EXAMPLE

1. One of my oldest brothers college textbooks is History of Art by H. W. Janson.
   1. brother’s; History of Art

1. Whos the painter who inspired the musical play Sunday in the Park with George?
2. Hes Georges Seurat, one of Frances greatest painters.
3. “The young childrens reactions to Jacob Lawrences paintings were surprising,” Angie said.
4. Didnt you read the review in Entertainment Weekly of the movie Vincent & Theo?
5. Its about Vincent van Gogh and his brother, who often supported him.
6. “I like Jasper Johns,” Rick said, “but I cant tell if that is one of Johnss paintings.”
7. Have you ever tried counting all the 2s or 4s in his painting Numbers in Color?
8. On a class trip to Chicago, we saw a bronze statue titled Horse, by Duchamp-Villon.
9. In our group, everybodys favorite painting is Cow’s Skull: Red, White and Blue, by Georgia O’Keeffe.
Hyphens

24u. Use a hyphen to divide a word at the end of a line.

EXAMPLE Will you and Marguerite help me put the silverware on the table?

When dividing a word at the end of a line, remember the following rules:

1. Divide a word only between syllables.
   - INCORRECT The man in the pinstriped suit sat beside the tree, looking bewildered.
   - CORRECT The man in the pinstriped suit sat beside the tree, looking bewildered.

2. Do not divide a one-syllable word.
   - INCORRECT Exercises like push-ups help to develop strength of the arm muscles.
   - CORRECT Exercises like push-ups help to develop strength of the arm muscles.

3. Do not divide a word so that one letter stands alone.
   - INCORRECT The seating capacity of the new stadium is enormous.
   - CORRECT The seating capacity of the new stadium is enormous.

24v. Use a hyphen with compound numbers from twenty-one to ninety-nine and with fractions used as modifiers.

EXAMPLES

- During a leap year, there are twenty-nine days in February.
- Thirty-two species of birds are known to live in the area.
- Did you know that Congress may override a president’s veto by a two-thirds majority? [Two-thirds is an adjective that modifies majority.]
- The pumpkin pie was so good that only one sixth of it is left. [One sixth is not used as a modifier. Instead, sixth is a noun modified by the adjective one. Fractions used as nouns do not have hyphens.]
24w. Use a hyphen with the prefixes ex–, self–, all–, and great– and with the suffixes –elect and –free.

EXAMPLES
- ex-coach
- president-elect
- all-star
- great-uncle
- self-propelled
- fat-free

Exercise 13 Using Hyphens Correctly

Write an expression—using words, not numerals—to fit the blank in each of the following sentences. Use hyphens where they are needed with compound numbers or fractions.

EXAMPLE

1. The sum of ten and fifteen is ____.
   1. twenty-five

1. January, March, May, July, August, October, and December are the months that have ____ days.
2. ____ of the moon is visible from the earth, but the other half can be seen only from outer space.
3. In twenty years I will be ____ years old.
4. I used ____ cup, which is 25 percent of the original one cup.
5. Our seventh-grade class has ____ students.
6. The train ride is short; the route is only ____ miles long.
7. The doctor said that the heel of my shoe needs to be raised ____ of an inch.
8. Who decided that there should be ____ hours in a day?
9. ____ teaspoon of vanilla is not enough in the cake batter.
10. Only about ____ of the expected people actually attended.

Review C Punctuating Sentences Correctly

Rewrite the following sentences, correcting any errors in the use of underlining, quotation marks, commas, apostrophes, and hyphens.

EXAMPLE

1. For the talent show, Leila is planning to recite Poe’s poem The Raven.
   1. For the talent show, Leila is planning to recite Poe’s poem “The Raven.”

1. Queen Hatshepsut seized the throne of Egypt in 1503 B.C. and ruled for twenty one years.
2. Who’s borrowed my scissors? demanded Jean.
3. It’s hard to decide which author’s story I should read first.
4. A week’s vacation never seems long enough.
5. After we had eaten supper, we decided to watch an old episode of Star Trek.
6. The driver shouted, "Move to the rear of the bus!"
7. We didn't eat any salmon at all during our visit to Oregon.
8. I wasn't very sorry—admitted the clerk to see those picky customers leave.
10. Our new phone number starts with two 6s and ends with two 4s.

Parentheses

24x. Use parentheses to enclose material that is added to a sentence but is not considered of major importance.

EXAMPLES Emilio Aguinaldo (1869–1964) was a Filipino patriot and statesman.

Mom and Dad bought a kilim (pronounced ki • lēm′) rug from our Turkish friend Ali.

Material enclosed in parentheses may be as short as a single word or as long as a short sentence. A short sentence in parentheses may stand alone or be contained within another sentence. Notice that a parenthetical sentence within a sentence is not capitalized and has no end mark.

EXAMPLES Please be quiet during the performance. (Take crying babies to the lobby.)

Jack Echohawk (he's Ben's cousin) told us about growing up on a reservation.

Exercise 14 Correcting Sentences by Adding Parentheses

Insert parentheses where they are needed in the following sentences.

EXAMPLE 1. My bicycle I've had it for three years is a ten-speed.
   1. My bicycle (I've had it for three years) is a ten-speed.
1. At the age of fourteen, Martina Hingis began playing tennis my favorite sport professionally.

2. Elijah McCoy 1843–1929 invented a way to oil moving machinery.

3. I bought a new calculator my old one stopped working and a notebook.

4. Charlemagne pronounced shär’lə • män’ was one of Europe’s most famous rulers.

5. Lian Young’s a friend of mine told our class about her school in China.

---

Brackets

24y. Use brackets to enclose an explanation added to quoted or parenthetical material.

EXAMPLES

Elena said in her acceptance speech, “I am honored by this [the award], and I would like to thank the students who volunteered to help with the Special Olympics this year.” [The words are enclosed in brackets to show that they have been inserted into the quotation and are not the words of the speaker.]

By a vote of 6 to 1, the council approved the petition to build a nature preserve. (See next page for a map [Diagram A] of the proposed reserve.)

---

Dashes

A parenthetical expression is a word or phrase that breaks into the main thought of a sentence. Parenthetical expressions are usually set off by commas or parentheses.

EXAMPLES

Grandma Moses, for example, started painting in her seventies.

In the first act of the play, the butler (Theo Karras) was the detective’s prime suspect.

Some parenthetical elements need stronger emphasis. In such cases, a dash is used.
24z. Use a dash to indicate an abrupt break in thought or speech.

EXAMPLES  The right thing to do—I know it’ll be hard—is to apologize.

“Do you think Ann will mind—I really hope she won’t—if I borrow her sunglasses?” asked Melody.

Exercise 15  Correcting Sentences by Adding Dashes and Brackets

Insert dashes or brackets where they are needed in the following sentences.

EXAMPLE  1. The school lunchroom—it was a dull green—has been painted a cheery yellow.

1. The school lunchroom—it was a dull green—has been painted a cheery yellow.

1. Fireflies I can’t remember where I read this make what is called cold light.
2. Roberto has always wanted to be can’t you guess? an astronaut.
3. Shania Twain I really want to see her concert has a great new song out.
4. Do you mind I don’t if Jill and Marcus go to the mall with us tomorrow?
5. The best way to learn how to swim that is, after you’ve learned the basic strokes is to practice.
6. (See page 8 Box A of the school yearbook for a list of the drama club’s best performers.)
7. Where is the computer game I’ve looked everywhere for it that I borrowed from Alex?
8. Please hand me if you don’t mind the stack of magazines on the table behind you.
9. The newspaper quoted our principal as saying, “The girls’ volleyball team took both the district District 14–5A and regional championships.”
10. The class trip to Chicago I’ve never been there will include a visit to the Art Institute.
Chapter Review

A. Using Underlining (Italics), Quotation Marks, Dashes, Parentheses, and Brackets

The following sentences contain errors in the use of underlining (italics), quotation marks, dashes, parentheses, and brackets. Rewrite the sentences correctly.

1. The song Amazing Grace has been sung for many years.
2. Garth Brooks I love his music is giving a benefit concert.
3. Did you see the article called Yogamania that appeared in last month’s Seventeen magazine?
4. The poet Wallace Stevens 1879–1955 won a Pulitzer Prize.
5. (See the map of Normandy Figure D for the deployment of the German forces on June 6.)
6. The reading list included the novel Great Expectations.
7. Sharon she’s my youngest cousin asked me to tell her a story.
8. The bearded man you probably guessed this is really the thief in disguise.
9. He misspelled the word accommodate by leaving out one c.
10. Aunt Rosie the aunt I told you about went to Mexico on the cruise ship Princess.

B. Proofreading for the Correct Use of Punctuation and Capitalization in Quotations

The following sentences contain errors in the use of punctuation and capitalization in quotations. Rewrite the sentences correctly. If a sentence is already correct, write C.

12. “Who’s your favorite baseball player.” asked Don?
13. “Meet me at 2:30 sharp,” my sister’s note read.
14. Why did Ms. Redfeather say, “I need to see a doctor”?
15. Ms. Liu said, Turn to Chapter 7, ‘Fractions,’ now.
16. “Did you know,” Katrina said, “That Robin Williams organizes fund-raisers for the homeless”?
17. Akeem exclaimed, “Those giant redwoods are more than three hundred feet tall!”
18. “Are the La Vernia Bears playing tomorrow? Lorraine asked Ted.
19. Chang predicted that “it would be a rainy summer.”
20. “He can work ten hours a week”, said Liang.

C. Writing Dialogue Correctly
Revise the following paragraphs, adding quotation marks and other punctuation marks wherever necessary. Begin a new paragraph each time the speaker changes.

[21] A few of us are starting a reading group said Michael.

[28] What books are you going to read asked Audra or haven’t you decided that yet? [29] I’m going to suggest that we start with The Owl Service, by Alan Garner, said Michael but only if it is everyone’s choice. [30] I’d love to join! said Audra.

D. Using Apostrophes and Hyphens
The following sentences contain errors in the use of apostrophes and hyphens. Correctly write each incorrectly punctuated word.

31. The test includes twentytwo questions.
32. Its easy to see that you like to use &s instead of writing out the word and each time.
33. One fourth of the childrens toys were broken.
34. My two sisters bicycles are sporty, but neither is as sporty as mine.
35. Isn’t this play often considered one of Shakespeares best works, Stephanie?
36. What’s the lowest common denominator of these two numbers?
37. Are those lawn chairs our’s or the Millers?
38. They’re drawings of Augusta Savages sculptures.
39. My baby brother’s a good sleeper; he should have a mobile made of Zs instead of airplanes over his crib.

40. Who’s going to help repaint the clubs float for the parade?

Writing Application
Using Quotations in Reports

Direct Quotations  Your social studies class is taking a survey of people’s attitudes toward recycling. Interview at least three people from different households in your community. Ask them specific questions to find out whether they think recycling is important; what items, if any, they recycle; and how they think recycling could be made easier for people in the community. Based on the information you gather, write a brief report about recycling in your community. In your report, quote several people’s exact words.

Prewriting  First, think of several questions to ask. Next, decide whom you want to interview. Begin each interview by recording the person’s name, age, and occupation. When all your interviews are completed, compare your interviewees’ responses. What conclusions can you draw about attitudes toward recycling in your community? Jot down some notes to help you organize your information.

Writing  In the first paragraph of your draft, give a statement that sums up the main idea of your report. Then, use your interviewees’ answers to support your main idea.

Revising  Re-read your first draft. Does the body of your report support your main idea? If not, you may need to rethink and revise your main idea.

Publishing  As you proofread your report, check your quotations against your notes. Make sure that you have put quotation marks around direct quotations and that you have capitalized and punctuated all quotations correctly. Your class may want to combine the information from all the reports and create a wall chart showing the community’s attitudes toward recycling.
Proofreading Sentences for Correct Spelling

Write correctly all of the misspelled words in the following sentences.

EXAMPLE
1. Andrew carefully lifted the massive lid and peekked inside the trunk.
   1. carefully, peeked

1. Do you have any fresh tomatoes or strawberrys?
2. Alex rides her bicycle forty miles dayly when she is in trainning.
3. The experienced tour guide lead the students to the base of the Mayan pyramid.
4. My sister made the salad while I layed the spoons and knifes on the table for dinner.
5. Would you please hand me the scissor’s?
6. Mr. Escobar’s too neices went to the annual family reunion.
7. Icicles formed on the park benches when the temperature dropped below freezing.
8. Angela’s favorite classes are social studys and swiming.
9. On Wednesday our science class watched Weavving Ants, a film about the insect world.
10. Take out a peice of paper, and then prosede with the test.
Good Spelling Habits

Practicing the following techniques can help you spell words correctly.

1. To learn the spelling of a word, pronounce it, study it, and write it. Pronounce words carefully. Mispronunciation can lead to misspelling. For instance, if you say *ath*a*lete* instead of ath•lete, you will be more likely to spell the word incorrectly.
   - First, make sure that you know how to pronounce the word correctly, and then practice saying it.
   - Second, study the word. Notice especially any parts that might be hard to remember.
   - Third, write the word from memory. Check your spelling.
   - If you misspelled the word, repeat the three steps of this process.

2. Use a dictionary. When you find that you have misspelled a word, look it up in a dictionary. Do not guess about the correct spelling.

3. Spell by syllables. A syllable is a word part that is pronounced as one uninterrupted sound.

   EXAMPLES
   - thor•ough [two syllables]
   - sep•a•rate [three syllables]

   Instead of trying to learn how to pronounce and spell a whole word, break it up into its syllables whenever possible.

Exercise 1  Spelling by Syllables

Look up the following words in a dictionary, and divide each one into syllables. Pronounce each syllable correctly, and learn to spell the word by syllables.

1. legislature
2. perspire
3. modern
4. temperature
5. probably
6. similar
7. library
8. definition
9. recognize
10. awkward
11. accept
12. interest
13. temperament
14. conscious
15. separate
16. opportunity
17. eliminate
18. government
19. business
20. appreciation
4. Proofread for careless spelling errors. Re-read your writing carefully, and correct any mistakes and unclear letters. For example, make sure that your i’s are dotted, that your t’s are crossed, and that your g’s don’t look like q’s.

5. Keep a spelling notebook. Divide each page into four columns:

   COLUMN 1 Correctly spell any word you missed. (Never enter a misspelling.)

   COLUMN 2 Write the word again, dividing it into syllables and indicating which syllables are accented or stressed.

   COLUMN 3 Write the word once more, circling the spot that gives you trouble.

   COLUMN 4 Jot down any comments that might help you remember the correct spelling.

Here is an example of how you might make entries for two words that are often misspelled.

Spelling Rules

ie and ei

25a. Write ie when the sound is long e, except after c.

   EXAMPLES chief, brief, believe, yield, receive, deceive

   EXCEPTIONS seize, leisure, either, neither, protein
Write ei when the sound is not long e, especially when the sound is long a.

EXAMPLES
sleigh, veil, freight, weight, height, foreign

EXCEPTIONS
friend, mischief, ancient, pie

---

Exercise 2
Writing Words with ie and *ei

Rewrite the following words, adding the letters ie or ei.

EXAMPLE
1. conc...t
   1. conceit

1. dec...ve
2. n...ther
3. rec...ve
4. h...ght
5. fr...nd
6. l...sure
7. misch...f
8. w...ght
9. ...ght
10. sl...gh
11. fr...ght
12. n...ghbor
13. c...ling
14. shr...k
15. rec...pt
16. p...ce
17. r...gn
18. th...r
19. s...ze
20. br...f

---

Exercise 3
Proofreading Sentences to Correct Spelling Errors

Most of the following sentences contain a spelling error involving the use of ie or ei. Write each misspelled word correctly. If a sentence has no spelling error, write C.

EXAMPLE
1. Last summer I recieved an airline ticket as a birthday gift.
   1. received

1. I used the ticket to fly to Puerto Rico with my freind Alicia to see my grandmother and other relatives.
2. We flew to San Juan, where my grandmother’s nieghbor, Mr. Sanchez, met us and drove us to my grandmother’s house.
3. When we got there, all of my relatives—aunts, uncles, cousins, nieces, nephews—came to welcome us.
4. They couldn’t believe that niether of us had ever been to Puerto Rico before, so they took us sightseeing the next day.
5. First, we walked through a field in Humacao, which is located on the Caribbean Sea.
6. Then, we drove along the coast to Ponce, the island’s chief city after San Juan.
7. Continuing north from Ponce, we thought that we’d take a leisurely drive on the mountain road Ruta Panoramica, which means “Panoramic Road.”
8. However, the road turned and twisted so much that I was relieved to get back on the main road.
9. After we had a brief rest that afternoon, we explored the western part of the island.
10. Within a week, Puerto Rico no longer seemed foreign to us.

- cede, -ceed, and -sede

25b. The only English word ending in -sede is supersede. The only English words ending in -ceed are exceed, proceed, and succeed. Most other words with this sound end in -cede.

EXAMPLES  concede    recede exceed     succeed precede    secede

Prefixes and Suffixes

A prefix is a letter or a group of letters added to the beginning of a word to change its meaning. A suffix is a letter or a group of letters added to the end of a word to change its meaning.
25c. When adding a prefix to a word, do not change the spelling of the word itself.

EXAMPLES

- il + legal = illegal
- un + natural = unnatural
- dis + appear = disappear
- mis + spent = misspent

Exercise 4 Spelling Words with Prefixes

Spell each of the following words, adding the given prefix.

EXAMPLE

1. semi + circle
   - 1. semicircle

1. il + legible
   - 6. mis + spell
2. un + necessary
   - 7. dis + satisfy
3. im + partial
   - 8. dis + approve
4. in + offensive
   - 9. mis + understand
5. im + mortal
   - 10. over + rule

25d. When adding the suffix –ness or –ly to a word, do not change the spelling of the word itself.

EXAMPLES

- sudden + ness = suddenness
- truthful + ly = truthfully

EXCEPTION

For most words that end in y, change the y to i before adding –ly or –ness.

- kindly + ness = kindliness
- day + ly = daily

25e. Drop the final silent e before adding a suffix beginning with a vowel.

EXAMPLES

- nice + est = nicest
- love + ing = loving

EXCEPTION

Keep the silent e in words ending in ce and ge before a suffix beginning with a or o.

- notice + able = noticeable
- courage + ous = courageous
25f. Keep the final silent e before adding a suffix that begins with a consonant.

EXAMPLES
- care + less = careless
- plate + ful = plateful
- false + hood = falsehood

EXCEPTIONS
- argue + ment = argument
- true + ly = truly

Exercise 5 Spelling Words with Suffixes

Spell each of the following words, adding the given suffix.

EXAMPLE
1. like + able
   1. likable

1. awful + ly
2. care + ful
3. sincere + ly
4. write + ing
5. desire + able
6. change + able
7. cross + ing
8. advance + ment
9. true + ly
10. courageous + ous
11. notice + able
12. brave + est
13. accidental + ly
14. pace + ing
15. value + able
16. hope + ful
17. grateful + ly
18. pleasant + ness
19. sore + est
20. final + ly

25g. For words ending in y preceded by a consonant, change the y to i before any suffix that does not begin with i.

EXAMPLES
- beauty + ful = beautiful
- mystery + ous = mysterious
- carry + ing = carrying
- envy + able = enviable

EXCEPTIONS
- dry + ness = dryness
- fry + er = fryer

Words ending in y preceded by a vowel do not change their spelling before a suffix.
EXAMPLES

- key + ed = keyed
- buy + er = buyer
- pay + ment = payment
- enjoy + ing = enjoying

EXCEPTIONS

- lay + ed = laid
- say + ed = said
- day + ly = daily

25h. Double the final consonant before adding –ing, –ed, –er, or –est to a one-syllable word that ends in a single consonant preceded by a single vowel.

EXAMPLES

- sit + ing = sitting
- can + er = canner
- hop + ed = hopped
- flat + est = flattest

EXCEPTIONS

Do not double the final consonant in words ending in w or x.

- mow + ed = mowed
- tax + ing = taxing

For a one-syllable word ending in a single consonant that is not preceded by a single vowel, do not double the consonant before adding –ing, –ed, –er, or –est.

EXAMPLES

- reap + ed = reaped
- neat + est = neatest
- cold + er = colder
- hold + ing = holding

In words of more than one syllable, the final consonant is usually not doubled before a suffix beginning with a vowel.

EXAMPLES

- final + ist = finalist
- center + ed = centered

NOTE

In some cases, the final consonant may or may not be doubled.

EXAMPLES

- cancel + ed = canceled or cancelled
- travel + er = traveler or traveller

Most dictionaries list both spellings for each word as correct.

Exercise 6 Spelling Words with Suffixes

Spell each of the twenty words on the following page, adding the given suffix.

EXAMPLE

1. beauty + ful
   1. beautiful
1. bay + ing
2. show + ed
3. drop + ed
4. deny + ing
5. pity + less
6. qualify + er
7. trip + ed
8. employ + ment
9. happy + est
10. hit + ing
11. swim + er
12. tidy + er
13. hurry + ed
14. tap + ing
15. clean + er
16. fold + ed
17. day + ly
18. bounty + ful
19. fix + ing
20. help + ful

Review A  Proofreading Sentences for Correct Spelling

Most of the following sentences contain a word that has been misspelled. Write each misspelled word correctly. If a sentence is already correct, write C.

EXAMPLE
1. Have you seen the beautyful bonsai trees on display in the new garden center?
   1. beautiful

1. These trees can live to be hundreds of years old, yet you can quickly create one of your own in an afternoon.
2. Simply use these pictures to help you as you proceed through the following steps.
3. First, you will need an inexpensive plant (such as a juniper), some soil, some moss, and a shallow bowl.
4. When you are choosing a plant, try to get one with a trunk that has some of its roots showing above the soil so that your tree will look old.
5. Make a careful study of your plant, and decide how you want the bonsai to look in the bowl.
6. Then, cut or pinch away undesirable branches and leaves until the plant looks like a tree.
7. After trimming your plant, remove most of the large roots so that the plant can stand in the bowl.
8. Cover the remaining roots with soil, and if the weather is mild, put your bonsai in a shaded place outside.
9. You don’t have to water your plant daily, but you should keep the soil moist.
10. After your plant has healed, you will have succeeded in creating your very own bonsai.

Forming the Plurals of Nouns

25i. Observe the following rules for spelling the plurals of nouns.

(1) To form the plurals of most nouns, add –s.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>SINGULAR</th>
<th>girl</th>
<th>cheese</th>
<th>task</th>
<th>oat</th>
<th>banana</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>PLURAL</td>
<td>girls</td>
<td>cheeses</td>
<td>tasks</td>
<td>oats</td>
<td>bananas</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

NOTE Make sure that you do not confuse the plural form of a noun with its possessive form. Generally, you should not use an apostrophe to form the plural of a word.

INCORRECT The girl’s raced to the stadium for soccer practice.

CORRECT The girls raced to the stadium for soccer practice. [plural]

CORRECT The girls’ soccer team has practice today. [possessive]

(2) Form the plurals of nouns ending in s, x, z, ch, or sh by adding –es.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>SINGULAR</th>
<th>moss</th>
<th>wax</th>
<th>Sanchez</th>
<th>birch</th>
<th>dish</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>PLURAL</td>
<td>mosses</td>
<td>waxes</td>
<td>Sanchezes</td>
<td>birches</td>
<td>dishes</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

NOTE Some one-syllable words ending in z double the final consonant when forming plurals.

EXAMPLES quiz fez

quizzes fezzes
Exercise 7  Spelling the Plurals of Nouns

Spell the plural form of each of the following nouns.

EXAMPLE

1. match
   1. matches

1. box
2. crash
3. sneeze
4. address
5. church
6. tax
7. Gómez
8. ditch
9. miss
10. mask
11. mix
12. clip
13. gym
14. coach
15. dash
16. plate
17. key
18. pass
19. Walsh
20. business

(3) Form the plurals of nouns ending in y preceded by a consonant by changing the y to i and adding −es.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>SINGULAR</th>
<th>lady</th>
<th>hobby</th>
<th>county</th>
<th>strawberry</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>PLURAL</td>
<td>ladies</td>
<td>hobbies</td>
<td>counties</td>
<td>strawberries</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

EXCEPTION With proper nouns, simply add s.

the Applebys
the Trilbys

(4) Form the plurals of nouns ending in y preceded by a vowel by adding −s.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>SINGULAR</th>
<th>toy</th>
<th>journey</th>
<th>highway</th>
<th>Wednesday</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>PLURAL</td>
<td>toys</td>
<td>journeys</td>
<td>highways</td>
<td>Wednesdays</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

(5) Form the plurals of most nouns ending in f by adding −s. The plural form of some nouns ending in f or fe is formed by changing the f to v and adding −es.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>SINGULAR</th>
<th>gulf</th>
<th>belief</th>
<th>knife</th>
<th>loaf</th>
<th>wolf</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>PLURAL</td>
<td>gulfs</td>
<td>beliefs</td>
<td>knives</td>
<td>loaves</td>
<td>wolves</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

(6) Form the plurals of nouns ending in o preceded by a vowel by adding −s.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>SINGULAR</th>
<th>video</th>
<th>ratio</th>
<th>patio</th>
<th>Romeo</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>PLURAL</td>
<td>videos</td>
<td>ratios</td>
<td>patios</td>
<td>Romeos</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

(7) The plural form of many nouns ending in o preceded by a consonant is formed by adding −es.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>SINGULAR</th>
<th>veto</th>
<th>hero</th>
<th>tomato</th>
<th>potato</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>PLURAL</td>
<td>vetoes</td>
<td>heroes</td>
<td>tomatoes</td>
<td>potatoes</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

EXCEPTION silo—silos

---

MECHANICS HELP

When you are not sure about how to spell the plural of a noun ending in f or fe, look up the word in a dictionary.
With proper nouns, simply add –s.

EXAMPLES

the Sato\textsc{s}

the Korolenko\textsc{\textsc{s}}

However, you should form the plural of most musical terms ending in \textit{o} preceded by a consonant by adding –\textit{s}.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>SINGULAR</th>
<th>piano</th>
<th>alto</th>
<th>solo</th>
<th>trio</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>PLURAL</td>
<td>pianos</td>
<td>altos</td>
<td>solos</td>
<td>trios</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

To form the plural of some nouns ending in \textit{o} preceded by a consonant, you may add either –\textit{s} or –\textit{es}.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>SINGULAR</th>
<th>banjo</th>
<th>mosquito</th>
<th>flamingo</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>PLURAL</td>
<td>banjos</td>
<td>mosquitos</td>
<td>flamingos</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

or or or

| banjo\textsc{\textsc{es}} | mosquito\textsc{\textsc{es}} | flamingo\textsc{\textsc{es}} |

The best way to determine the plural forms of words ending in \textit{o} preceded by a consonant is to check their spelling in an up-to-date dictionary.

(8) The plurals of some nouns are formed in irregular ways.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>SINGULAR</th>
<th>man</th>
<th>mouse</th>
<th>foot</th>
<th>ox</th>
<th>child</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>PLURAL</td>
<td>men</td>
<td>mice</td>
<td>feet</td>
<td>oxen</td>
<td>children</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Exercise 8

Spelling the Plurals of Nouns

Spell the plural form of each of the following nouns.

EXAMPLE

1. industry
   1. industries

1. turkey  8. baby  15. bluff
2. studio  9. tomato  16. radio
3. chief  10. echo  17. lobby
4. soprano  11. ferry  18. wife
5. puppy  12. joy  19. foot
7. chimney

---

Style Tip

When it refers to the computer device, the word \textit{mouse} can form a plural in two ways: \textit{mouses} or \textit{mice}. Someday one form may be the preferred style. For now, either is correct.
(9) For most compound nouns written as one word, form the plural by adding –s or –es.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>SINGULAR</th>
<th>textbook</th>
<th>grandfather</th>
<th>toothbrush</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>PLURAL</td>
<td>textbooks</td>
<td>grandfathers</td>
<td>toothbrushes</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

(10) For compound nouns in which one word is modified by the other word or words, form the plural of the word modified.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>SINGULAR</th>
<th>sister-in-law</th>
<th>coat of arms</th>
<th>editor in chief</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>PLURAL</td>
<td>sisters-in-law</td>
<td>coats of arms</td>
<td>editors in chief</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

(11) Some nouns are the same in the singular and the plural.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>SINGULAR</th>
<th>moose</th>
<th>sheep</th>
<th>salmon</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>AND PLURAL</td>
<td>Sioux</td>
<td>Chinese</td>
<td>spacecraft</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

(12) Form the plurals of numerals, letters, symbols, and words referred to as words by adding an apostrophe and s.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>SINGULAR</th>
<th>1800</th>
<th>B</th>
<th>i</th>
<th>&amp;</th>
<th>that</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>PLURAL</td>
<td>1800’s</td>
<td>B’s</td>
<td>i’s</td>
<td>&amp;’s</td>
<td>that’s</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Review B  Spelling the Plurals of Nouns

Spell the plural form of each of the following nouns.

EXAMPLE

1. push-up
   1. push-ups

1. side-wheeler
2. deer
3. mother-in-law
4. A
5. hello
6. thirteen-year-old
7. aircraft
8. governor-elect
9. 0
10. commander in chief
11. maid of honor
12. runner-up
13. bookshelf
14. vice-president
15. x
16. lean-to
17. Swiss
18. $
19. Japanese
20. M

Words Often Confused

People often confuse the words in each of the following groups. Some of these words are homonyms—that is, their pronunciations are the same. However, these words have different meanings and spellings. Other words in the following groups have the same or similar spellings yet have different meanings.
Choosing Between Words Often Confused

From each pair in parentheses, choose the word or words that will make the sentence correct.

EXAMPLE

1. All of us (accept, except) Josh forgot our tickets.

   1. except

1. By the time Melba arrived, Roscoe had (already, all ready) baked the sweet potatoes.
2. One duty of the Cabinet is to (advice, advise) the president.
3. The soft music had a soothing (affect, effect) on the child.
4. The girls were (already, all ready) for the sleigh ride.
5. The (affect, effect) of Buddhism on Japanese culture was huge.
6. By this time of year, the snow has melted everywhere (accept, except) in the mountains.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Word</th>
<th>Definition</th>
<th>Example</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>accept</td>
<td>[verb] to receive; to agree to</td>
<td>The Lanfords would not accept our gift.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>except</td>
<td>[preposition] with the exclusion of; but</td>
<td>Everyone except Lauren agreed with Selena.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>advice</td>
<td>[noun] a recommendation for action</td>
<td>What is your mother’s advice?</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>advise</td>
<td>[verb] to recommend a course of action</td>
<td>She advises me to take the job.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>affect</td>
<td>[verb] to act upon; to change</td>
<td>Does bad weather affect your health?</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>effect</td>
<td>[noun] result; consequence</td>
<td>What effect does the weather have on your health?</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>already</td>
<td>[adverb] previously</td>
<td>We have already studied the customs of the Navajo people.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>all ready</td>
<td>[adjective] all prepared; in readiness</td>
<td>The crew is all ready to set sail.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>all right</td>
<td>[adjective] correct; satisfactory; safe; [adverb] adequately</td>
<td>Jesse will be all right when his injury heals.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>We did all right, didn’t we?</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

H E L P

All right is the only acceptable spelling. The spelling alright is not considered standard usage.
7. The doctor’s (advice, advise) was to drink plenty of fluids and get a lot of rest.
8. Sarita was happy to (accept, except) the invitation to the party.
9. Reading the newspaper usually (affects, effects) my ideas about current events.
10. Do you think it would be (alright, all right) to leave before the end of the movie?

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Reference Note</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>In the Glossary of Usage (Chapter 21), you can find many other words that are often confused or misused, or you can look them up in an up-to-date dictionary.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>TIPS &amp; TRICKS</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Here is a sentence to help you remember the difference between capital and capitol: There is a dome on the capitol.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Mechanics</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>altar</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>alter</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>altogether</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>all together</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>brake</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>break</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>capital</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>capitol</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>choose</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>chose</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>cloths</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>clothes</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Exercise 10 Choosing Between Words Often Confused

From each pair in parentheses, choose the word or words that will make the sentence correct.

EXAMPLE

1. If it rains, we will (altar, alter) our plans.
   1. alter

1. My summer (cloths, clothes) are loose and light.
2. In England, you can still see remains of (altars, alters) built by ancient peoples.
3. A bicyclist can wear out a set of (brakes, breaks) quickly.
4. You should use soft (cloths, clothes) to clean silver.
5. The cold weather did not (altar, alter) Ling’s plans for the Chinese New Year celebration.
6. Accra is the (capital, capitol) of Ghana.
7. Keep the pieces of the vase (altogether, all together), and I will try to repair it.
8. Did he (choose, chose) a partner during class yesterday?
9. On the dome of the (capital, capitol) stands a large statue.
10. The audience was (altogether, all together) charmed by the mime’s performance.

---

Words Often Confused

coarse

[adjective] rough; crude; not fine

- The coarse sand acts as a filter.

course

[noun] path of action; series of studies; also used in the expression of course

- What is the best course for me to take?
- You may change your mind, of course.

complement

[verb] to make complete; [noun] something that completes

- The piano music complemented Ardene’s violin solo.

- Red shoes are a good complement to that outfit.

compliment

[verb] to praise someone; [noun] praise from someone

- Mrs. Katz complimented Jean on her persuasive speech.

- Thank you for the compliment.
Choosing Between Words Often Confused

From each pair in parentheses, choose the word that will make the sentence correct.

EXAMPLE
1. At the end of dinner, we ate a (desert, dessert) made of fresh fruits and berries mixed with frozen yogurt.

   1. dessert

1. The city (council, counsel) will not meet unless seven of the ten (councilors, counselors) are present.
2. The patient received (council, counsel) from the doctor on the best (coarse, course) to a speedy recovery.
3. Chutney and yogurt (complement, compliment) an Indian meal very well.
4. When we were staying in Cairo last year, we saw the Nile River, of (coarse, course).

Definitions

- council: [noun] a group called together to accomplish a job

The mayor's council has seven members.

- counsel: [noun] advice; [verb] to give advice

  He needs legal counsel on this matter.

  His attorney will counsel him before the hearing.

- councilor: [noun] a member of a council

The mayor appointed seven councilors.

- counselor: [noun] one who advises

  Mr. Jackson is the guidance counselor for the seventh grade.

- desert: [noun, pronounced des••ert] a dry, barren, sandy region; a wilderness

  This cactus grows only in the desert.

- desert: [verb, pronounced de••sert] to abandon; to leave

  A good sport does not desert his or her teammates.

- dessert: [noun, pronounced des••sert] a sweet, final course of a meal

  Let's have fresh peaches for dessert.
5. Edward is preparing the enchiladas, and I’m making empanadas for \textit{(desert, dessert)} tonight.

6. Marilyn made a hand puppet out of \textit{(coarse, course)} burlap, buttons, and felt.

7. We all know the major would not \textit{(desert, dessert)} her regiment for any reason.

8. Please, I am asking for your \textit{(council, counsel)}, not your \textit{(complements, compliments)}.

9. My mother and father both took part in the \textit{(dessert, desert)} hiking trip last week.

10. What did you think when our camp \textit{(councilor, counselor)} \textit{(complemented, complimented)} us on our endurance?

\begin{center}
\begin{tabular}{|l|p{0.9\textwidth}|}
\hline
\textbf{formally} & [adverb] with dignity; following strict rules or procedures
We must behave \textit{formally} at the reception. \\
\hline
\textbf{formerly} & [adverb] previously; at an earlier date
Formerly, people thought travel to the moon was impossible. \\
\hline
\textbf{hear} & [verb] to receive sounds through the ears
You can \textit{hear} a whisper through these walls. \\
\textbf{here} & [adverb] in this place
How long have you lived \textit{here}? \\
\hline
\textbf{its} & [possessive form of the pronoun \textit{it}] belonging to \textit{it}
That book has lost \textit{its} cover. \\
\textbf{it’s} & [contraction of \textit{it is} or \textit{it has}]
\textit{It’s} [\textit{It is}] the coldest winter I can remember.
\textit{It’s} [\textit{It has}] been a long time. \\
\hline
\textbf{lead} & [verb, rhymes with \textit{feed}] to go first; to be a leader
Can she \textit{lead} us out of this tunnel? \\
\textbf{led} & [verb, past tense of \textit{lead}] went first
Elizabeth Blackwell \textit{led} the movement for hospital reform. \\
\textbf{lead} & [noun, rhymes with \textit{red}] a heavy metal;
graphite used in a pencil
There is no longer any \textit{lead} in \textit{lead} pencils. \\
\hline
\end{tabular}
\end{center}
Choosing Between Words Often Confused

From each pair in parentheses, choose the word that will make the sentence correct.

EXAMPLE

1. Kaya (lead, led) us to the ceremonial lodge.
   - 1. led

1. The woman who (formally, formerly) (lead, led) the band now teaches music in Alaska.
2. We do not expect to (loose, lose) any of our backfield players this year.
3. We (passed, past) three stalled cars this morning on our way to school.
4. “Why did you (lead, led) us (hear, here)” the bewildered tourist demanded.
5. Can you (hear, here) the difference between the CD and the digital audio tape?
6. The workers removed the (lead, led) pipes from the old house and replaced them with copper ones.
7. Has the (loose, lose) bolt lost (its, it’s) washer and nut?
8. The guests are to dress (formally, formerly) for the governor’s inauguration ball.
9. “I think (it’s, its) time for a pop spelling quiz,” announced Mrs. Ferrari.
10. Has the last school bus of the morning already gone (passed, past) our street, Tiffany?

Exercise 12

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Word</th>
<th>Definition</th>
<th>Usage</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>loose</td>
<td>[adjective, rhymes with moose] not tight</td>
<td>This belt is too loose.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>lose</td>
<td>[verb, rhymes with the verb use] to suffer loss</td>
<td>Fran will lose the race if she panics.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>passed</td>
<td>[verb, past tense of pass] went by</td>
<td>He passed us five minutes ago.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>past</td>
<td>[noun] time that has gone by; [preposition] beyond; [adjective] ended</td>
<td>Good historians make the past come alive.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>We rode past your house.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>That era is past.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Copyright © by Holt, Rinehart and Winston. All rights reserved.
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Word</th>
<th>Definition</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>peace</td>
<td>[noun] quiet order and security. World peace is the goal of the United Nations.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>piece</td>
<td>[noun] a part of something. Lian bought that piece of silk in Hong Kong.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>plain</td>
<td>[adjective] unadorned, simple, common; [noun] flat area of land. Jeans were part of his plain appearance. A broad, treeless plain stretched before them.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>plane</td>
<td>[noun] a flat surface; a tool; an airplane. The movers pushed the couch up an inclined plane and into the truck. I have just used a carpenter’s plane. Have you ever flown in a plane?</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>principal</td>
<td>[noun] the head of a school; [adjective] chief, main. Our principal spoke of his principal duties. I outlined the principal ideas.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>principle</td>
<td>[noun] a rule of conduct; a fundamental truth. Action should be guided by principles.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>quiet</td>
<td>[adjective] still and peaceful; without noise. The forest was very quiet.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>quite</td>
<td>[adverb] wholly or entirely; to a great extent. Some students are already quite sure of their career plans.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>shone</td>
<td>[verb, past tense of shine] gleamed; glowed. The moon shone softly over the grass in the silent meadow.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>shown</td>
<td>[verb, past participle of show] revealed; demonstrated. Tamisha has shown me how to crochet.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

NOTE
Shine can mean “to direct the light of” or “to polish,” but the preferred past tense form for these meanings is shined, not shone.

EXAMPLES

- The firefighters shined a light into the attic.
- Elton shined his shoes before the dance.
Exercise 13 Choosing Between Words Often Confused

From each pair in parentheses, choose the word that will make the sentence correct.

EXAMPLE

1. Mr. Ramírez used a (plain, plane) to smooth the board.
   1. plane

1. Each drop of water (shone, shown) like crystal.
2. Motor vehicles are one of the (principal, principle) sources of air pollution in our cities.
3. If you don’t hurry, you will miss your (plain, plane).
4. The (principals, principles) of justice and trust can lead to world (peace, piece).
5. Jan has (shone, shown) me how to change a tire.
6. It is clear that Luisa is acting on (principal, principle), not from a personal motive.
7. On Christmas Eve we each have a (peace, piece) of fruitcake.
8. “The bake sale was (quiet, quite) successful,” said Gloria.
9. “For once,” the (principal, principle) announced with a smile, “you do not have to be (quiet, quite).”
10. (Plain, Plane) fruits and vegetables can be delicious.

Review C Proofreading for Words Often Confused

Identify the misspelled words in the following sentences. Then, give the correct spelling of each word.

EXAMPLE

1. Portraits of people do not have to be plane.
   1. plane—plain

1. Some portraits have a striking affect.
2. A vivid portrait can often make people from the passed seem alive.
3. The painting on the left is by Rembrandt, one of the principle painters of the seventeenth century.
4. The portrait, probably of a rabbi in the city of Amsterdam, is quiet lovely.
5. It’s detail shows why Rembrandt was such a popular portrait artist.
6. The painting illustrates one of Rembrandt’s main artistic principals, the strong contrast between light and dark.
7. Light has shown only on the rabbi’s face, hands, and a peace of his clothing.
8. The rest of the painting is quiet dark, highlighting these lighted features.
9. The rabbi is shone in a state of piece, and the lack of detail in the painting gives an impression of quite elegance.
10. Rembrandt is excepted as a great artist because of his ability to give life to the human form.

| stationary | [adjective] in a fixed position
| Is that chalkboard stationary? |
| stationery | [noun] writing paper
| Do you have any white stationery? |
| than | [conjunction used in comparisons]
| Alaska is bigger than Texas. |
| then | [adverb] at that time
| If we meet, we can talk about it then. |
| their | [possessive form of the pronoun they]
| belonging to them
| Can you understand their message? |
| there | [adverb] at or to that place; [also used to begin a sentence]
| Let’s meet there.
| There are toys hidden inside the piñata. |
| they’re | [contraction of they are]
| They’re all from Guam. |
| threw | [verb, past tense of throw] hurled; tossed
| Ted threw me the mitt. |
| through | [preposition] in one side and out the opposite side
| I can’t see through the lens. |

Exercise 14 Choosing Between Words Often Confused

From each pair or group in parentheses, choose the word that will make the sentence correct.

EXAMPLE
1. (Their, They’re, There) first rehearsal is after school.
   1. Their

1. The stars appear to be (stationary, stationery), but we know that (their, there, they’re) moving at very high speeds.
2. Thailand is much larger (than, then) South Korea.
3. That noise is from a jet plane going (threw, through) the sound barrier.
4. The pitcher (threw, through) a curveball.
5. A (stationary, stationery) store usually sells paper, pencils, and other writing supplies.
6. We started our trip in Barcelona and (than, then) traveled west to Madrid.
7. The girls completed (their, there, they’re) displays for the science fair.
8. Is a moving target much harder to hit (than, then) a (stationary, stationery) one?
9. Each time Chris got a free throw, he lobbed the ball neatly (threw, through) the net to score one point.
10. The children in the back seat kept asking, “When will we get (their, they’re, there)?”

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>to</th>
<th>[preposition] in the direction of; toward [also used before the base form of a verb] We are going to Mexico to visit Gabriel.</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>too</td>
<td>[adverb] also; more than enough Audrey is going, too. Kazuo used too much miso, so the soup was salty.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>two</td>
<td>[adjective or noun] one plus one We bought two sets of chopsticks before we left the restaurant.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>waist</td>
<td>[noun] the midsection of the body The anchor of the tug-of-war team wrapped the rope around her waist.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>waste</td>
<td>[verb] to use foolishly; [noun] a needless expense Try not to waste all your film now. Rodney did not agree that golf is a waste of time.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>weak</td>
<td>[adjective] feeble; not strong Melinda’s illness has left her very weak.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>week</td>
<td>[noun] seven days We’ll wait for at least a week.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Choosing Between Words Often Confused

From each pair or group in parentheses, choose the word that will make the sentence correct.

EXAMPLE
1. What are (your, you’re) plans for celebrating Juneteenth?
   1. your

1. (Who’s, Whose) the present secretary of state of the United States, Elaine?
2. My stepsister and I built (to, too, two) snow forts on our front lawn yesterday.
3. “(Your, You’re) late,” my friend complained.
4. Would you be able to stand the (weather, whether) in Alaska?
5. That sounds like a (weak, week) excuse to me.
6. (Your, You’re) dog is (to, too, two) sleepy to learn any new tricks today.
7. “(Who’s, Whose) boots are these?” Mrs. Allen asked.
8. The pilot must decide very quickly (weather, whether) she should parachute to safety or try to land the crippled plane.
9. An obi is a sash that is worn around the (waist, waste).
10. My family is going (to, too, two) New Orleans.

Review D  Choosing Between Words Often Confused

From each pair or group in parentheses, choose the word that will make the sentence correct.

EXAMPLE My parents asked my [1] (advice, advise) about where we should spend our vacation.

1. advice

   My family could not decide [1] (weather, whether) to visit Boston or Philadelphia. Finally, we all agreed on Boston, the [2] (capital, capitol) of Massachusetts. We drove [3] (to, too, two) the city one week later. Even my parents could not conceal [4] (their, there, they’re) excitement. We did not [5] (loose, lose) a moment. Boston [6] (formally, formerly) was “the hub of the universe,” and we discovered that [7] (it’s, its) still a truly fascinating city.

   Everyone in my family [8] (accept, except) me had eaten lobster, and I ate it for the first time there in Boston. I was not [9] (altogether, all together) certain how to eat the lobster, but my doubt did not [10] (affect, effect) my appetite. My parents insisted that pear yogurt was a strange [11] (desert, dessert) to follow lobster, but I would not [12] (altar, alter) my order. After the pear yogurt, I thought about ordering a small [13] (peace, piece) of pie, but I decided to keep [14] (quiet, quite).

   While in Boston, we walked up and down the streets just to [15] (hear, here) the Bostonians’ accents. [16] (Their, There, They’re) especially noted for [17] (their, there, they’re) pronunciation of a’s and r’s.

   We had been in Boston for only a week or so when the [18] (weather, whether) bureau predicted a big snowstorm for the area. Since we had not taken the proper [19] (cloths, clothes) for snow, we decided to return home. On the way back, we were [20] (already, all ready) making plans for another visit to Boston.
A. Identifying Misspelled Words
Identify the misspelled word in each of the following groups of words. Then, write the correct spelling of the word.

1. height, weight, cheif
2. succeed, supercede, proceed
3. unnecessary, unavailable, unusual
4. happily, finally, truly
5. said, paid, keyd
6. cleaner, tapping, dripped
7. taxes, buzzes, foxs
8. switches, mixs, keys
9. knifes, tomatoes, solos
10. mothers-in-law, father-in-laws, drive-ins
11. achieve, feirce, friend
12. mowwer, followed, staying
13. acquire, arguement, always
14. tired, trys, guess
15. noticable, yield, daily
16. staying, priceless, easier
17. halfs, coughs, princesses
18. heating, hiting, trying
19. changable, drinkable, smiling
20. misspell, ilegible, unnoticed

B. Writing the Correct Plural Form
Write the correct plural form of each of the following words.

21. boss  25. freeway  28. 3
22. thief  26. ten-year-old  29. city
23. sheep  27. Vietnamese  30. soprano
24. woman
C. Choosing Between Words Often Confused

In each of the following sentences, choose the correct word from the pair in parentheses.

31. Have you (already, all ready) adopted a kitten from the animal shelter?

32. Although it’s only July, the store already has a display of winter (cloths, clothes).

33. “I believe that both candidates for senator have very high (principals, principles),” my aunt said.

34. The sophomore (councilor, counselor) is working on next year’s class schedules.

35. The moon is (quiet, quite) bright this evening.

36. Not getting enough exercise can (effect, affect) your health.

37. You must (formally, formerly) declare your interest in joining the club by filling out the membership card.

38. My (advise, advice) is that you buy a mountain bike.

39. (Its, It’s) hard to believe that the leatherback turtle can grow to be seven feet long!

40. The fabric on the couch in Dr. Alexander’s waiting room is (course, coarse) and scratchy.

D. Identifying Misused Words

In many of the following sentences, one word has been misused because it has been confused for another word. Write each incorrectly used word. Then, write the word that should have been used. If a sentence is already correct, write C.

41. An editor will altar this manuscript.

42. We had fruit and sherbet for desert.

43. I thanked Mr. Chu for the compliment.

44. While you are hear, use this towel.

45. Eventually, winter past and spring arrived.

46. Maria received a box of stationery for her birthday.

47. The blue chair is more comfortable then the green one.

48. The whether report comes on right after the news.

49. Whose the man speaking to Officer Grant?

50. The town voted to except the gift of a new library wing.
Writing Application
Using Correct Spelling in a Review

Spelling Words Correctly  Write a one- or two-paragraph review of your favorite book or movie. Be sure to use at least five of the words listed as Words Often Confused in this chapter.

Prewriting  Pick a favorite book or movie and make a list of the reasons that you prefer it over other books or movies. If you decide to write about a book, for example, you may want to compare it to a film that is based on that book.

Writing  As you write your first draft, be sure to include information about the book or film, such as who wrote it, who directed it, and who stars in it. Remember to use a dictionary to help with correct spelling.

Revising  Evaluate your draft and revise it to improve its content, organization, and style. Add sensory details that make the story come alive for the reader. Replace clichés and worn-out verbs and nouns with fresher, more precise words.

Publishing  Check your paragraph for spelling mistakes. Use a computer spellchecker if one is available, but remember that spellcheckers will not recognize a misused word (for example, piece for peace), as opposed to a misspelled word. Also, pay attention to the spelling of words in languages other than English, and consult a dictionary if you have any doubt. Exchange your report with a partner, and check each other’s spelling.

You and your classmates may want to gather the class’s reviews and create a bulletin board display of favorite books and movies.
| offshore | strawberry | daylight | seaweed | wildlife | grandparents | moonlight | chairperson | killer whale | watermelon | headache | typewrite |
| shoot | mist | birth | swayed | shown | tied | pane | shown | real | berth | chute | suede |
| gathered | hammered | controlling | bothering | ruined | listening | studying | swallowed | permitting | carrying | compelled | groaned |
| cafeteria | alligator | corral | vanilla | mosquito | stampede | guitar | coyote | jaguar | chili |
| cocoa | tortillas | classical | conductor | concert | instrument | clarinet | banjo | bugle | harmony | pianist | performance | violin | rehearsal |
| express | envelope | extend | excitement | exceed | explode | enthusiasm | enclose | expand | exclaim | exclude | excel |
| defeat | destroyed | decline | defects | disabled | disappeared | disappointment | dependent | deduction | disadvantages | disguised | dissolved |
| Spelling Words | Australia | Japanese | Greece | Australian | Vietnamese | arrange | accommodate | announced | approaching | accepted | appoint | accompanying | array | arrangements | accomplish | accelerate | annoy |
| selfish | marine | greenish | awkward | wholesome | grayish | childish | masculine | feminine | reddish | genuine | awesome |
| temperature | strength | length | vegetable | arctic | twelfth | probably | probably | probably | beverage |
| machinery | discovery | nursery | dictionary | century | injury | missionary | territory | scenery | revolutionary | treasury | luxury |
| barrier | corridor | umbrella | buffalo | gorilla | pinnacle | syllable | tobacco | massacre | opossum | moccasins | cinnamon |
| muscular | triangle | muscle | circular | regulation | particles | particular | rectangle | vehicles | rectangular | triangular | vehicular |
| doubtful | specialist | misfortune | fortunate | unfortunate | especially | specific | specifications | judicial | judgment | prejudice undoubtedly
- organize cooperate congratulate exercise calculate illustrate recognize compromise memorize paralyze criticize inaugurate
- depositing recess televised revised position constructing composition opposite structures destruction vision necessary
- existence
incident frequent endurance balance intelligent influence reluctant magnificent experience confidence elegant
- transmission
contracted commitment attract submit references offered omit admits
- distract subtraction refer
- portrait
buffet ballet bouquet dialogue antique unique vague fatigue technique plaque camouflage
- fantasy fantastic company companion editor editorial colony colonial strategy strategic diplomacy diplomatic
- hasten
autumn autumnal softly heritage designated designed reception signature haste sign resign
- diameter
graph meters astronomer barometer biography astronaut kilometers astronomy photography centimeters autograph
- trio
monopoly quartet tricycle decade octopus decimal quarters triangles binoculars triple monotonous
- desperate
lightning adjective penetrate aspirin athletes identity disastrous ecstatic platinum incidentally tentatively
- caravan luncheon champion gymnasium laboratory mathematics parachute submarine teenagers memorandum limousine examination
- logic biology monologue hydrant technology analogy mythology apologizing periscope telescope derhydrated psychology
- agricultural identification encyclopedia possibility exceptionally responsibilities characteristic recommendation rehabilitation acceleration simultaneously accumulation
- inspired convention formula adventure depends uniform inventor pending invention transformed perform suspended
- civilian historian guardian scientist biologist volunteer musician engineer physician technician politician psychiatrist
Key Language Skills Review

This chapter reviews key skills and concepts that pose special problems for writers.

- Sentence Fragments and Run-on Sentences
- Subject-Verb and Pronoun-Antecedent Agreement
- Verb Forms and Pronoun Forms
- Comparison of Modifiers
- Misplaced Modifiers
- Standard Usage
- Capitalization
- Punctuation—End Marks, Commas, Semicolons, Colons, Quotation Marks, and Apostrophes
- Spelling

Most of the exercises in this chapter follow the same format as the exercises found throughout the grammar, usage, and mechanics sections of this book. You will notice, however, that two sets of review exercises are presented in standardized test formats. These exercises are designed to provide you with practice not only in solving usage and mechanics problems but also in dealing with these kinds of problems on standardized tests.
Exercise 1  Finding and Revising Sentence Fragments

Most of the following groups of words are sentence fragments. Revise each fragment by (1) adding a subject, (2) adding a verb, or (3) attaching the fragment to a complete sentence. You may need to change the punctuation and capitalization, too. If the word group is already a complete sentence, write S.

EXAMPLE 1. Because she likes Chihuahuas.
   1. My mother bought a book about dogs because she likes Chihuahuas.

1. Wanted to study the history of Chihuahuas.
2. Small dogs with big, pointed ears.
3. When my mother’s Chihuahuas begin their shrill, high-pitched barking.
4. Chihuahuas lived in ancient Mexico.
5. Ancient stone carvings showing that the Toltecs raised Chihuahuas during the eighth or ninth century A.D.
6. Are related to dogs of the Middle East.
7. Travelers may have brought Chihuahuas to the Americas as companions.
8. That Chihuahuas score poorly on canine intelligence tests.
9. However, can be trained to assist people who have hearing impairments.
10. If you want a Chihuahua.

Exercise 2  Revising Sentence Fragments

Identify each of the following groups of words as a sentence fragment or a complete sentence. Write F if it is a sentence fragment and S if it is a sentence. Then, revise each sentence fragment by (1) adding a subject, (2) adding a verb, or (3) attaching the fragment to a complete sentence. You may need to change the punctuation and capitalization, too.

EXAMPLE 1. Juggling a fascinating hobby.
   1. F—Juggling is a fascinating hobby.

1. If you would like to be able to juggle.
2. You might start with a good, simple how-to book.
3. Most people can learn the basic moves.
4. Within a fairly short period of time.
5. While beginners first develop a sense of how to hold one juggling bag.
6. They also practice standing in the proper, relaxed way.
7. Next, must master the ability to toss one bag back and forth.
8. Then learning the right way to throw two bags.
9. Beginners often need to practice juggling with two bags for some time.
10. Before they move up to three bags.

Exercise 3 Finding and Revising Sentence Fragments

Some of the following groups of words are sentence fragments. Revise each sentence fragment by (1) adding a subject, (2) adding a verb, or (3) attaching the sentence fragment to a complete sentence. You may need to change the punctuation and capitalization, too. If the word group is already a complete sentence, write S.

EXAMPLE

1. Could have been the source of the world’s legends of dragons.

   1. Could dinosaur fossils have been the source of the world’s legends of dragons?

      or

      Large lizards, such as monitors, could have been the source of the world’s legends of dragons.

1. Eventually, taking root in the imaginations of many people.
2. Considering this.
3. The word dinosaur was first used around one hundred and fifty years ago.
4. That fact surprises many people.
5. Where the first dinosaur eggs were found.
6. For example, magnificent, full skeletons in museums, lifelike animations, television documentaries, and even children’s toys and cartoons.
7. Can explain the sudden disappearance of these mighty creatures.
8. The remarkable work of physicists Dr. Luis Alvarez and his son Walter on this mystery.
9. Their theory based on the idea of a meteor hitting the earth.
10. Sending a huge, dark cloud around the earth, killing many plants and destroying the dinosaurs’ food sources.
Revising Run-on Sentences

Each of the following items is a run-on sentence. Revise each sentence by following the italicized instructions in parentheses. Remember to use correct punctuation and capitalization.

EXAMPLE

1. The study of shells is called malacology, shell collections are particularly popular in Japan. (Make two sentences.)

   1. The study of shells is called malacology. Shell collections are particularly popular in Japan.

1. At four feet in diameter, the shell of the giant clam is the largest shell today during prehistoric times, the shell of the Nautiloidea sometimes grew to eight feet across. (Make two sentences.)

2. From the Mediterranean to Japan, shells have played an important part in everyday life they have functioned as money, as decoration, and even as magic charms. (Make two sentences.)

3. American Indians used wampum, beads cut from shells, as money West Africans and Arabs used the cowrie shell in the same way. (Use a comma and a coordinating conjunction.)

4. Africans prized the shell as jewelry shells are still sold as jewelry. (Use a comma and a coordinating conjunction.)

5. Jewelry, buttons, figurines, and all kinds of decorative objects can be purchased at tourist shops along the coasts, shells are plentiful nearby. (Make two sentences.)

6. The ancient Greeks boiled mollusks and created a valuable purple dye cloth treated with this dye may retain its color for hundreds of years. (Make two sentences.)

7. Perhaps because of their great beauty, shells have also played important parts in religious life they may be found in several belief systems. (Make two sentences.)

8. Quetzalcoatl, god of the Mayans, Toltecs, and Aztecs, was born from a seashell the chank shell is associated with the Hindu god Vishnu. (Make two sentences.)

9. Shells can be free for the taking their rarity can make them quite valuable. (Use a comma and a coordinating conjunction.)

10. Shells are regularly exported from the United States to Europe, Japan and the United States also ship shells back and forth. (Make two sentences.)
Exercise 5 Correcting Run-on Sentences

Correct each of the following run-on sentences by (1) making it into two separate sentences or (2) using a comma and a coordinating conjunction to make a compound sentence. Remember to use correct punctuation and capitalization.

EXAMPLE
1. Anthony uses chopsticks skillfully I have trouble with them.
   1. Anthony uses chopsticks skillfully, but I have trouble with them.

1. The large crane lifted the ten-ton boxes, it set them on the concrete deck.
2. My dad does not know much about computers he has learned to surf the Internet.
3. Allen Say wrote The Ink-Keeper’s Apprentice the events in the story are based on his boyhood in Japan.
4. Two robins landed on the ice in the birdbath one of them drank water from around the thawed edges.
5. Egyptian hieroglyphics may be written from left to right or from right to left, they may be written from top to bottom.
6. John is my youngest brother Levy is my oldest brother.
7. The nature preserve was beautiful some people had littered.
8. Grandma believes in keeping a positive attitude, she says that thinking positively is the key to a happy life.
9. Let’s see that new movie from Korea I have never seen a Korean movie.
10. All my friends like to shop for bargains at the downtown mall, I do, too.

Exercise 6 Revising Run-on Sentences

Revise each of the following run-on sentences by (1) making it into two separate sentences or (2) using a comma and a coordinating conjunction to make a compound sentence. Remember to use correct punctuation and capitalization.

EXAMPLE
1. James Earl Jones is a famous actor he has been in movies and plays.
   1. James Earl Jones is a famous actor. He has been in movies and plays.
1. You may not remember seeing James Earl Jones, you would probably recognize his voice.
2. Jones provided the voice of Darth Vader in the Star Wars movies, Jones’s deep voice helped make the character forceful and frightening.
3. Jones has a distinctive voice he has even won a medal for his vocal delivery.
4. The prize was given by the American Academy of Arts and Letters, is that the organization that gives the Academy Awards?
5. Jones’s autobiography was published in 1993 it is, quite appropriately, titled Voices and Silences.
6. Jones was born in Mississippi in 1931, he was raised by his grandparents on a farm in Michigan.
7. His father was a prizefighter and an actor Jones decided to be an actor, too, and studied in New York City.
8. He portrayed a boxing champion in The Great White Hope, he starred in both the Broadway production and the movie version of the play.
9. Jones won a Tony Award for his Broadway performance he was nominated for an Academy Award for his role in the movie.
10. Another of Jones’s movies is The Man, in that movie he plays the first African American to be elected president of the United States.

Exercise 7 Revising Sentence Fragments and Run-on Sentences

Identify each of the following word groups by writing F if it is a sentence fragment, R if it is a run-on sentence, and S if it is a complete sentence. Revise each fragment to make it into a complete sentence. Revise each run-on to make it into one or more complete sentences. Remember to use correct capitalization and punctuation.

Example

1. Because my ancestors were Scandinavian.

   1. F—I have heard many stories about Vikings because my ancestors were Scandinavian.

   1. The Viking Age lasted three centuries, it started at the end of the eighth century A.D.
2. Vikings from Scandinavian countries known today as Sweden, Denmark, and Norway.
3. Since the Vikings lived along the sea, they often became boatbuilders, sailors, and explorers.
4. The range of influence of the Vikings was enormous the Vikings developed trade routes in western Europe and also in the Middle East.
5. Also were skilled at fishing and farming.
6. All Vikings spoke the language called Old Norse they shared similar religious beliefs.
7. Odin was the chief god of the Vikings, Odin’s son Thor was worshiped more widely.
8. After they were converted to Christianity, the Vikings built many wooden churches.
9. Was divided into three main social classes—royal families, free citizens, and slaves.
10. Viking women held several important rights, they could own property and land, for example.

Exercise 8 Identifying Verbs That Agree in Number with Their Subjects

For each of the following sentences, choose the form of the verb in parentheses that agrees with the subject.

EXAMPLE

1. The band (play, plays) mostly reggae.

1. plays

1. Samantha and Matthew (take, takes) art classes at the museum on weekends.

2. The card table or the folding chairs (belong, belongs) in that closet by the front door.

3. Earlene (don’t, doesn’t) know the exact time because her watch stopped working last week.

4. Both the stalagmites and the stalactites (was, were) casting eerie shadows on the cave walls.

5. Several of the exchange students at our school (speak, speaks) Portuguese.

6. Neither an emu nor an ostrich (lay, lays) eggs that look like that.
7. The members of the audience always (clap, claps) as soon as the star appears onstage.
8. Mike said that either the main herd or the stragglers (is, are) in the near canyon.
9. The coaches on the visiting team (agree, agrees) with the referee’s decision.
10. Some of the fruit baskets (sell, sells) for less than three and a half dollars each.

Exercise 9 Identifying Verbs That Agree in Number with Their Subjects

For each of the following sentences, choose the form of the verb in parentheses that agrees with the subject.

EXAMPLE
1. (Do, Does) you know what a powwow is?
   1. Do

1. Each of us in my class (has, have) given a report about powwows, which are ceremonies or gatherings of American Indians.
2. Dancing and feasting (is, are) very important activities at powwows.
3. People in my family (come, comes) from around the country to attend the Crow Fair, which is held every August in Montana.
4. Many of the people at the powwow (has, have) come here from Canada.
5. Everyone here (know, knows) that it is the largest powwow in North America.
6. Peoples represented at the fair (include, includes) the Crow, Lakota, Ojibwa, Blackfoot, and Cheyenne.
7. Only one of my relatives (dance, dances) all four of the main kinds of dances at powwows.
8. Both skill and practice (go, goes) into the Traditional, Fancy, Grass, and Jingle-dress dances.
9. Last year, all of the costumes of the Fancy dancers (was, were) extremely colorful.
10. Either a row of porcupine quills or a band of beads (go, goes) all the way around some of the dancers’ headdresses.

Reference Note
For information about subject-verb agreement, see page 458.
Exercise 10 Correcting Errors in Subject-Verb Agreement

Most of the following sentences contain errors in subject-verb agreement. Identify each error, and give the correct form of the verb. If a sentence is already correct, write C.

EXAMPLE
1. All of us is very excited about our Drama Club’s next play.
   1. is—are

1. Six Friends and One Dog are the title of the play we are performing this fall.
2. The director and producer of the play are Mark Taylor.
3. Neither our sponsor nor the actors have ever staged a production like this.
4. Most of the actors was chosen last week.
5. Of course, the cast don’t know their lines yet.
6. Many of the costumes is still being made.
7. Either Lauren or Kawanda’s older brother is painting the backdrops.
8. Are five dollars too much for a ticket?
9. My friends and the crew hopes not, because the tickets are already printed!
10. Channel 6 News have promised to cover our opening night, so we’ll all be famous, at least for a little while.

Exercise 11 Choosing Correct Pronoun Forms

Choose the correct pronoun or pronouns in parentheses in each of the following sentences.

EXAMPLE
1. Tell anyone with an idea to take (their, his or her) suggestion to the vice-principal.
   1. his or her

1. Everyone on the field trip must bring (their, his or her) own sack lunch.
2. When my sister or mother comes back from the bakery, (they, she) will bring fresh-baked bread.
3. No, neither of the cowboys ever takes off (their, his) hat.
4. The United States was proud when (its, their) astronauts landed on the moon.
5. If Doug or Simon is in the clear downfield, pass (them, him) the ball.
6. Usually Rosita or Paula plays (her, their) guitar at our picnics.
7. If anybody is still in the gym, tell (them, him or her) to turn out the lights and shut the door.
8. The colonists and Governor William Bradford depended on Squanto as (his or her, their) interpreter.
9. This is a very large company, but (they, it) treats the employees with respect.
10. Ask Jennie or Sara what (her, their) middle name is.

Exercise 12  Proofreading Sentences for Correct Pronoun-Antecedent Agreement

Most of the following sentences contain errors in pronoun-antecedent agreement. Identify each error, and give the correct form of the pronoun. If a sentence is already correct, write C.

EXAMPLE  1. Jesse and Michael enjoyed his Kwanzaa activities.
   1. his—their

1. During Kwanzaa, which lasts from December 26 through January 1, several of our friends and neighbors celebrate his or her African heritage.
2. African American families affirm traditional values and principles during their Kwanzaa activities.
3. This year, both of my sisters made storybooks as her zawadi, or Kwanzaa gifts.
4. Either Uncle Willis or Uncle Roland will bring their candles for the observance.
5. One of them will bring their wooden candleholder, called a kinara.
6. The joyful celebration of Kwanzaa has its origins in African harvest festivals.
7. Each of my parents will discuss his or her own individual ideas about Kwanzaa.
8. Either Lily or Charlotte mentioned in their speech that Kwanzaa was created in 1966.
9. Nobody in our family likes to miss their turn to make up dances on the sixth day of Kwanzaa.
10. Jerry and Charles will volunteer his time on the third day of Kwanzaa, when collective work is celebrated.

Reference Note

For information about pronoun-antecedent agreement, see page 475.
Exercise 13  Proofreading Sentences for Correct Subject-Verb and Pronoun-Antecedent Agreement

Most of the following sentences contain agreement errors. For each error, identify the incorrect verb or pronoun and supply the correct form. If a sentence is already correct, write C.

EXAMPLE

1. Every animal, including humans, need water to survive.
   1. need—needs

1. The human body consist mostly of water.
2. You and I, along with everyone else, is about 65 percent water.
3. Everybody in my family tries to drink at least eight glasses of water a day.
4. “Don’t Carlos usually drink more than that?” Janet asked.
5. Either Angie or Ramona said that their family usually drinks bottled water.
6. Evidence shows that drinking water helps our bodies keep its proper temperature.
7. Ian or Calinda have studied the mineral content of our local water supply.
8. Industry and agriculture depend on a good water supply for its success.
9. Most of the world’s fresh water is frozen in polar icecaps and glaciers.
10. While more than 70 percent of the earth’s surface are covered by water, only 3 percent of that water is not salty.

Exercise 14  Writing the Forms of Regular and Irregular Verbs

Provide the correct present participle, past, or past participle form of the given verb to complete each of the following sentences.

EXAMPLE

1. eat  Angela has already _____ her serving of acorn squash.
   1. eaten

1. install  The shopping mall has ____ wheelchair ramps at all of the entrances.

Reference Note
For information about subject-verb agreement, see page 458. For information about pronoun-antecedent agreement, see page 475.

Reference Note
For information about using verbs correctly, see Chapter 18.
2. send We have already ____ for a new crossword-puzzle magazine.

3. see Have you ____ the koalas at the Australian wildlife exhibit?

4. put Marianna is ____ together a colorful mobile.

5. grow My uncle ____ the largest pumpkin in the United States this year.

6. draw Anthony has ____ two different self-portraits.

7. run Both of my stepbrothers have ____ in the Cowtown Marathon.

8. jump Have the cats ____ out of the tree?

9. write Murasaki Shikibu of Japan ____ what may be the world’s first novel.

10. go More than half of my friends ____ to the May Day parade.

Exercise 15 Proofreading Sentences for Correct Verb Forms

Identify any incorrect past or past participle verb forms in the following sentences, and write the correct forms. If a sentence is already correct, write C.

EXAMPLE 1. Many African American women maked names for themselves during the pioneer days.

   1. made

1. A friend of mine lended me a book called Black Women of the Old West.

2. It contains many biographies of African American women who leaded difficult but exciting lives.

3. For example, May B. Mason gone to the Yukon to mine gold during the Klondike Gold Rush.

4. Journalist Era Bell Thompson writed articles about the West for a Chicago newspaper.

5. In American Daughter she telled about her youth in North Dakota.

6. Our teacher has spoke highly of Dr. Susan McKinney Stewart, a pioneer physician.

7. During the 1800s, Cathy Williams wore men’s clothes and served under the name William Cathay as a Buffalo Soldier.

8. I seen a picture of Williams at work on her farm.
9. Mary Fields chose an exciting but sometimes hard life in the West.

Exercise 16  Proofreading Sentences for Correct Verb Forms

If any of the following sentences contains an incorrect past or past participle form of a verb, write the correct form. If a sentence is already correct, write C.

EXAMPLE

1. When I was ten, I begun to collect stamps.
   1. began

1. Over the years, my collection has growed large enough to fill three binders.
2. I have went to several stamp shows.
3. At nearly every show, I seen many rare and valuable stamps.
4. I telled my friend Warren that I aim to own some of those stamps one day.
5. I once saw a picture of a rare two-cent stamp that cost one collector $1.1 million in 1987.
6. As you might imagine, that price setted a world record!
7. Stamps have appear in many shapes.
8. My uncle, a mail carrier, sended me a banana-shaped stamp.
9. He also has giveme a book about the history of stamp collecting.
10. It sayed that stamp collecting was already a popular hobby by the 1860s.

Exercise 17  Choosing Correct Verb Forms

Choose the correct verb form in parentheses in each of the following sentences.

EXAMPLE

1. (Set, Sit) those packages down, and come help me catch these kittens.
   1. Set

1. Did Keefe (rise, raise) the flag for the ceremony?
2. The crowd roared when Sheila (sit, set) a new track record for the fifty-yard dash.
3. A giant lobster was (laying, lying) motionless on the seabed.
4. The incoming tide (rose, raised) the boat that had been beached on the sandbar.
5. An heirloom quilt (lays, lies) neatly folded on the bed.
6. Why is the price of housing (rising, raising) in this area?
7. Someone had (laid, lain) a row of stones carefully on either side of the path.
8. Freshly washed and brushed, the mare walked out to the corral, (lay, laid) down in the dust, and rolled over three or four times.
9. By noon, the fog had (risen, raised) and the sun had come out.
10. In the old photograph, five Sioux warriors (sat, set) and stared with dignity into the camera.

Exercise 18 Identifying Correct Pronoun Forms
Choose the correct form of the pronoun in parentheses in each of the following sentences.

EXAMPLE
1. Doris and (me, I) are planning a trip to Vietnam.
   1. I

1. Will you take the first-aid class with (we, us)?
2. The principal gave (he, him) the key to the trophy case.
3. The minister gave (they, them) a wedding present.
4. Ulani and (he, him) greeted their guests with “Aloha!”
5. Mr. Galvez saved the comics especially for (I, me).
6. (They, Them) are learning how to draw with pastels.
7. R. J. asked (she, her) for a new CD.
8. Stan’s jokes amused Martha and (I, me).
9. The person who called you last night was (I, me).
10. The captain of the debate team is (she, her).

Exercise 19 Identifying Correct Pronoun Forms
Choose the correct form of the pronoun in parentheses in each of the following sentences.

EXAMPLE
1. The guest speaker told (us, we) students many facts about Hispanic Americans in the arts.
   1. us

1. Mrs. Ramirez picked out some poems by Jimmy Santiago Baca and read (they, them) to us.
2. Jan and (he, him) agree that Barbara Carrasco’s murals are outstanding.
3. Between you and (I, me), Gaspar Perez de Villagrat’s account of an early expedition to the American Southwest sounds interesting.
4. (He, Him) wrote the first book to have been written in what is now the United States.
5. Our teacher showed (we, us) pictures of the work of the Puerto Rican artist Arnaldo Roche.
6. (Who, Whom) is your favorite artist?
7. The writings of Christina Garcia appeal to (we, us).
8. In Luz’s opinion, the best writer is (she, her).
9. Tito Puente has recorded at least one hundred albums and has appeared in several movies; we saw (he, him) in Radio Days.
10. (Who, Whom) did you research for your report?

Exercise 20  Proofreading for Correct Pronoun Usage

Most of the following sentences contain errors in pronoun usage. Identify each error, and give the correct pronoun. If a sentence is already correct, write C.

EXAMPLE
1. Who did the student council appoint?
   1. Who—Whom

1. Let me know whom will be in charge of decorating.
2. Mr. Rodriguez gave Nicole and we shop students a handout on using the jigsaw safely.
3. Waiting for us at the door were Grandma and they.
4. For Ron and myself, geometry is easy.
5. Gina, us girls are going to the park to fly our kites; come along with us!
6. Mr. Chin, his wife, and me are going to the Mayan exhibit at the museum next weekend.
7. The big dog always keeps the bowl of food for *his*self, so we feed the little dog on the porch.
8. From who could we borrow a map?
9. Yes, the team did all the planning and production of the video by themselves.
10. The only ones who can speak French are us boys from Miss LaRouche’s class.

Reference Note
For information about using pronouns correctly, see Chapter 19.
Exercise 21 Choosing Correct Forms of Modifiers

Choose the correct form of the modifier in parentheses in each of the following sentences.

EXAMPLE

1. Many people think that of all pets, Siamese cats are the (better, best).
   1. best

1. The boys thought that they were (stronger, strongest), but the girls beat them in the tug of war.
2. The (simplest, simpler) way to attract birds to a yard is by having water available for them.
3. Jovita is the (most intelligent, intelligentest) student in the seventh grade.
4. I worry about my grades (least often, less often) now that I do my homework every night.
5. Kim Lee has traveled (farthest, farther) on her bicycle than anyone else in our class has.
6. Hasn’t this year’s quiz-bowl team won (more, most) local competitions than last year’s team?
7. Grandfather says that this winter is the (colder, coldest) one he remembers.
8. Wynton Marsalis was born in the city (more, most) associated with jazz—New Orleans.
9. Bicyclists who wear helmets are injured (least, less) often than those who do not.
10. Louisiana has (fewer, fewest) wetlands than it once had.

Exercise 22 Proofreading for Correct Modifiers

Most of the following sentences contain errors in the use of modifiers. Identify each incorrect modifier, and supply the correct form. If the sentence is already correct, write C.

EXAMPLE

1. Low, green hills roll gentle in the dawn mist.
   1. gentle—gently

1. The tourists looked uncomfortably as they rode the elephant along the beach.
2. An Indian elephant calmly carried a surfboard with its trunk and did the job good, too.
3. The white waves of the Bay of Bengal smell quite well to us.
4. The island of Sri Lanka was once known as Ceylon, and tea grows good there.
5. At first, I felt bad for the workers up to their waists in mud.
6. I thought they had the worstest job in the world.
7. They were searching for rubies and garnets that might appear sudden in their muddy baskets.
8. I couldn’t recognize a raw gem very well; could you?
9. I thought the highlands, especially Sri Pada and World’s End, looked beautifully.
10. You can live simple when you are in Sri Lanka.

Exercise 23 Revising Sentences to Correct Double Comparisons and Double Negatives

Revise each of the following sentences to correct each double comparison or double negative.

EXAMPLES

1. Of the three games, the first was the least funnest.
   1. Of the three games, the first was the least fun.

2. There are not hardly any stores near the ranch.
   2. There are hardly any stores near the ranch.

1. The recycling center is much more busier than it used to be.
2. Sometimes even indoor water pipes freeze if they do not have no insulation around them.
3. I think that our dog Sammy is most happiest when the weather is cold.
4. I haven’t received a birthday card from neither of my grandmothers yet.
5. Almost any circle that you draw by hand will be less rounder than one you draw with a compass.
6. Wearing sunscreen with a high sun-protection factor can make being in the sun more safer.
7. My second-oldest cousin, Giovanni, is not like nobody else I know.
8. We never went nowhere during spring vacation this year.
9. That was probably the most cleverest chess move I’ve ever seen you use, Elise.
10. When I’m old enough to vote, I’m not never going to miss a chance to do so.
Exercise 24 Revised Sentences by Correcting the Placement of Modifiers

The following sentences contain errors in the placement of modifiers. Revise each sentence by adding or rearranging words or by doing both to correct the placement of each modifier.

EXAMPLE 1. My grandmother and I saw a horse on the way to the movie.
   1. On the way to the movie, my grandmother and I saw a horse.

1. The party was held in the park celebrating Mary’s birthday.
2. With wind-filled sails, I saw a ship approaching the harbor.
3. The tree was struck by lightning that we had pruned.
4. The Yamamotos enjoyed planting the iris that arrived from their Japanese relatives in a box.
5. The softball team is from my hometown that won the district championship.
6. Trying to steal home, the catcher tagged the runner.
7. Jaime told Katya about the kitten playing in a happy voice.
8. Painted bright colors, Kamal saw many houses.
9. Hanging from a clothes rack, the drama students finally found the costumes.
10. Recently picked from the orchard, the bowl was full of fruit.

Exercise 25 Identifying Correct Usage

From the word or words in parentheses in each of the following sentences, choose the answer that is correct according to the rules of formal, standard English.

EXAMPLE 1. The boys carried the new recycling containers (themselves, theirselves).
   1. themselves

1. This orange marmalade smells (bad, badly).
2. In science class last week, we learned (how come, why) water expands when it freezes.
3. The dam (busted, burst) because of the rising floodwaters.
4. Mario should plant (fewer, less) bulbs in that small flower bed.
5. This button looks (as if, like) it will match the material.
6. Let’s (try and, try to) arrive at the concert early so that we can get good seats.
7. The defending champion played (good, well) during the chess tournament.
8. Yes, our nearest neighbor lives a long (way, ways) from us.
9. Those (kind, kinds) of fabrics are made in Madras, India.
10. Did you share the leftover chop suey (among, between) the three of you?

Exercise 26 Identifying Correct Usage

From the word or words in parentheses in each of the following sentences, choose the answer that is correct according to the rules of formal, standard English.

EXAMPLE

1. Mrs. Lawrence is (learning, teaching) us about the Hohokam culture.
   1. teaching

1. The Hohokam civilization (might of, might have) begun around 300 B.C.
2. Where did the Hohokam people (live, live at)?
3. The Hohokam (use to, used to) live in the American Southwest.
4. Hohokam farmers grew their crops in a climate that was (real, extremely) dry.
5. The Hohokam irrigated the land by using (alot, a lot) of canals—more than six hundred miles of them!
6. (Them, These) canals sometimes changed the courses of rivers.
7. The Hohokam were also skilled artisans (who’s, whose) work included jewelry, bowls, and figurines.
8. I (can, can’t) hardly imagine what caused the culture to change so much around A.D. 1450.
9. (Their, They’re) descendants are the Papago and the Pima peoples.
10. We read (that, where) one Hohokam site is known as Snaketown.

Exercise 27 Proofreading Sentences for Correct Usage

Each of the following sentences contains an error in the use of formal, standard English. Identify each error. Then, write the correct usage.

EXAMPLE

1. If that ain’t the proper first aid for heat exhaustion, what is?
   1. ain’t—isn’t
1. During the track meet last Saturday, we used a American Red Cross guidebook for first aid.
2. Fortunately, there was a handy section that was about treating heat exhaustion.
3. The day of the meet, the temperature was hotter than it had been all summer.
4. The athletes were all ready hot by the time that the track meet began.
5. Some of the runners should be drinking more water than they were.
6. Several of the athletes which were not used to running in such high temperatures needed medical treatment for heat exhaustion.
7. We volunteers helped the runners like the first-aid guidebook instructed.
8. They soon felt alright after we led them out of the heat and helped them cool down.
9. The doctor on duty at the meet examined them and checked their vital signs.
10. According to the doctor, even athletes in good condition must protect themselves against heat exhaustion and heatstroke.
Grammar and Usage Test: Section 1

DIRECTIONS Read the paragraph that follows. For each numbered blank, select the word or word group that best completes the sentence.

EXAMPLE 1. The platypus is one of (1) mammals that lays eggs.
   (A) to
   (B) too
   (C) two
   (D) 2

ANSWER 1. A  B  C  D

The platypus is (1) very unusual mammal. It (2) external ears, (3) feet are webbed, and it has thick fur. A broad tail and a fleshy bill (4) to the platypus’s odd appearance. Platypuses use (5) bills to catch water worms and insects. Besides having a bill like a duck’s, a platypus is (6) like a bird than a mammal in another important way. Like a duck, the platypus (7) eggs. The mother deposits (8) in a nest, (9) she has dug in a riverbank. If you get to Australia, you may see a platypus making its nest (10) a burrow.

1. (A) an  5. (A) its
   (B) a  (B) it’s
   (C) the  (C) they’re
   (D) some  (D) their

2. (A) don’t have no  6. (A) more
   (B) doesn’t have no  (B) most
   (C) has any  (C) mostly
   (D) has no  (D) least

3. (A) its  7. (A) lays
   (B) it’s  (B) lies
   (C) its’  (C) is lying
   (D) their  (D) has lain

4. (A) adds  8. (A) it
   (B) add  (B) they
   (C) added  (C) them
   (D) adding  (D) their
9. (A) which
   (B) it
   (C) who
   (D) whom

10. (A) inside of
    (B) outside of
    (C) a ways from
    (D) inside

Grammar and Usage Test: Section 2

DIRECTIONS Part or all of each of the following items is underlined. Using the rules of formal, standard English, choose the revision that most clearly expresses the meaning of the item. If there is no error, choose A.

EXAMPLE 1. The chopsticks that my aunt sent us made of bamboo.
   (A) The chopsticks that my aunt sent us made of bamboo.
   (B) The chopsticks that my aunt sent us are made of bamboo.
   (C) The chopsticks are made of bamboo, that my aunt sent us.
   (D) That my aunt sent us chopsticks made of bamboo.

ANSWER 1. A B C D

1. Don’t buy none of that ripe fruit if you don’t plan to eat it soon.
   (A) Don’t buy none of that ripe fruit if you don’t plan to eat it soon.
   (B) Do buy none of that ripe fruit if you don’t plan to eat it soon.
   (C) Don’t buy none of that ripe fruit if you do plan to eat it soon.
   (D) Don’t buy any of that ripe fruit if you don’t plan to eat it soon.

2. The study group meeting in the library on Wednesday?
   (A) The study group meeting in the library on Wednesday?
   (B) The study group that will be meeting in the library on Wednesday?
   (C) Is the study group meeting in the library on Wednesday?
   (D) Will the study group meeting in the library on Wednesday?
3. Some visitors to the park enjoy rock climbing others prefer kayaking.
   (A) climbing others prefer kayaking
   (B) climbing, others prefer kayaking
   (C) climbing, others, who prefer kayaking
   (D) climbing, and others prefer kayaking

4. Martin prepares the salad, Justine sets the table.
   (A) prepares the salad, Justine sets the table
   (B) prepares the salad, and Justine sets the table
   (C) prepares the salad Justine sets the table
   (D) preparing the salad, and Justine sets the table

5. Many Cherokee now live in Oklahoma, but this area were not their original home.
   (A) this area were not their original home
   (B) this area was not their original home
   (C) this area was not they’re original home
   (D) this area were not they’re original home

6. Pulling weeds in the garden, a tiny toad was discovered by Ernie.
   (A) Pulling weeds in the garden, a tiny toad was discovered by Ernie.
   (B) A tiny toad was discovered pulling weeds in the garden by Ernie.
   (C) While pulling weeds in the garden, a tiny toad was discovered by Ernie.
   (D) Pulling weeds in the garden, Ernie discovered a tiny toad.

7. Will rehearse together for the class play.
   (A) Will rehearse together for the class play.
   (B) Will be rehearsing together for the class play.
   (C) We will rehearse together for the class play.
   (D) Because we will rehearse together for the class play.
8. Some people are more afraid of snakes than of any other kind of animal.
   (A) more afraid
   (B) afraid
   (C) more afraid
   (D) most afraid

9. Several important African kingdoms developed between Lake Chad and the Atlantic Ocean.
   (A) Several important African kingdoms developed between Lake Chad and the Atlantic Ocean.
   (B) Several important African kingdoms that developed between Lake Chad and the Atlantic Ocean.
   (C) Several important African kingdoms between Lake Chad and the Atlantic Ocean.
   (D) Several important African kingdoms developing between Lake Chad and the Atlantic Ocean.

10. The singer waved to some people he knew in the audience from the stage.
    (A) The singer waved to some people he knew in the audience from the stage.
    (B) The singer waved to some people from the stage he knew in the audience.
    (C) The singer waved to some people from the stage in the audience he knew.
    (D) The singer waved from the stage to some people he knew in the audience.
Exercise 28  Correcting Errors in Capitalization

The following groups of words contain errors in capitalization. Correct the errors either by changing capital letters to lowercase letters or by changing lowercase letters to capital letters.

EXAMPLE

1. a buddhist temple
   1. a Buddhist temple

1. appalachian state university
2. world history and math 101
3. tuesday, May 1
4. senator williams
5. Summer In texas
6. Thirty-Fifth avenue
7. saturn and the moon
8. a korean Restaurant
9. empire state building
10. will rogers turnpike

Exercise 29  Proofreading Sentences for Correct Capitalization

For each of the following sentences, find the words that should be capitalized but are not. Then, write the words correctly.

EXAMPLE

1. American indians gave the name Buffalo Soldiers to African American troops who served in the West during the civil war.
   1. Indians, Civil War

1. Thirteen Buffalo Soldiers won the congressional medal of honor, which is the highest military award in the United States.
3. A chapter about mary fields tells the story of a woman known as Stagecoach Mary who drove freight wagons and stagecoaches in the west.
4. One of the museums listed in the back of the book is the great plains black museum in Omaha, Nebraska.
5. The book also tells about benjamin singleton, who was born into slavery.
6. After the Civil War, he and some others bought land and founded the communities of Nicodemus and Dunlap, Kansas.
8. Bill Pickett, who was of black, white, and American Indian ancestry, was one of the most famous rodeo competitors of all time.
9. Pickett’s biography was published by the University of Oklahoma Press in 1977.
10. The businessman and gold miner Barney Ford became very wealthy and built Ford’s hotel on Fifteenth Street in Denver, Colorado.

Exercise 30  Proofreading Sentences for the Correct Use of Commas

For each of the following sentences, write each word or numeral that should be followed by a comma and then add the comma.

EXAMPLE

1. The colors of the French flag are red, white, and blue.
   1. red, white,

1. No the mountain dulcimer is not the same as the hammered dulcimer but both of them are stringed instruments.
2. Abraham Lincoln who was the sixteenth president of the United States died on April 15, 1865.
3. If you want to knit a sweater you will need to get knitting needles, yarn, and a pattern.
4. After oiling the wheels on his sister’s wagon Tyrel oiled the wheels on his skates and on his bicycle.
5. Competing in the 10K race Nathan found that he could run faster than his friends.
6. In my opinion a person should be fined if loose trash in the back of his or her pickup truck blows out and litters the road.
7. Lupe please show us how to use the new computer program.
8. Although Cody is afraid of heights he rescued a cat that was stuck high in a tree.
9. I hope that Amy Tan my favorite author will write another book soon.
10. Many people want to conserve resources yet some of these people overlook simple ways to conserve.

Reference Note

For information about using commas correctly, see page 602.
Exercise 31 Using Periods, Question Marks, Exclamation Points, and Commas Correctly

The following sentences lack necessary periods, question marks, exclamation points, and commas. Write the word before each missing punctuation mark, and insert the correct punctuation.

EXAMPLE

1. When will Anita Luís Martina and Sam be back from the mall?

   1. Anita, Luís, Martina, mall?

1. Wow look at the size of that alligator
2. Leaning against the mast I could feel the sails catch the wind
3. Won’t these new colorful curtains brighten this room
4. By the way that stack of newspapers should be recycled
5. Oil paints whether used for art projects or home improvement should be used only in well-ventilated areas
6. Hidiko watch out for that cactus
7. Was Uncle Jesse born in Cincinnati Ohio or Louisville Kentucky
8. As far as I am concerned the most interesting parts of the lecture were about the life of W E B DuBois
9. Monday Tuesday or Wednesday will be fine for our next meeting
10. Would you like to watch a movie tonight or should I bring over the model-plane kit to work on together

Exercise 32 Using Semicolons and Colons Correctly

The following sentences lack necessary semicolons and colons. Write the words or numerals that come before and after the needed punctuation, and insert the correct punctuation.

EXAMPLE

1. Elena learned Spanish and English at home she learned French and German at school.

   1. home; she

1. They should be here before 9 30 this morning.
2. Our recycling center accepts the following materials glass, newspaper, cardboard, and aluminum cans.
3. The landscape designer planted bushes around the school last fall she will plant flowers this spring.
4. Please be at the station by 2 15 P.M.
5. The children wanted to see bears, lions, and elephants but parrots, snakes, tortoises, and goats were the only animals there.
6. The sermon was based on Isaiah 61:1.
7. To refinish this dresser, we will need some supplies: varnish remover, sandpaper, steel wool, wood stain, and a clear polyurethane sealant.
8. Walking is terrific exercise; it improves both your stamina and your muscle tone.
9. Many children’s books have beautiful illustrations; some are worth having just for the art.
10. Many palaces in Europe are spectacular; Linderhof in Bavaria is my favorite.

Exercise 33  Punctuating and Capitalizing Quotations and Titles

For each of the following sentences, correct any capitalization errors and add or change quotation marks and other marks of punctuation where needed.

EXAMPLE  1. I learned how to play a new virtual-reality game today Pat said.

1. The most helpful chapter in my computer manual is “Search Tips” I explained to her.
2. Do Asian cobras look like African cobras Shawn asked.
3. I want to go to the fair after school Ivan said but my trumpet lesson is today.
4. The pilot said we are now beginning our descent into Orlando. Please fasten your seat belts, and return your seats to the upright position.
5. Goodness! what a surprise Taka exclaimed
6. Did some famous person say A smile is contagious
7. Cyclists should always wear helmets said the safety officer
8. Was it he who said a penny saved is a penny earned Troy asked
9. Carlos shouted, look at that dolphin near our boat!
10. During his speech at our school, the mayor said Our children are our future.

Reference Note  For information about punctuating and capitalizing quotations, see page 630.
Exercise 34  Punctuating and Capitalizing Quotations and Titles

For each of the following sentences, correct any capitalization errors and add or change quotation marks and other marks of punctuation where needed.

EXAMPLE

1. Sheila asked have you read about Rigoberta Menchú?
   1. Sheila asked, “Have you read about Rigoberta Menchú?”

1. She has lived a remarkable life Ernesto said and I admire her very much
2. Angela exclaimed yes, I know about Menchú!
4. I once wrote about Menchú in a poem called “The Heart of a Peacemaker” Gale said.
5. I think Rigoberta Menchú is a great role model Carla said.
6. Menchú has tried to make life better for the laborers. Her own family is of Quiché heritage explained Mark
7. Did Stephanie say My dream is to meet Rigoberta Menchú asked Ryan
8. Yes, and I’d like to meet her too exclaimed Emilio.
9. Mark continued Menchú worked long hours on cotton and coffee plantations when she was a child.
10. Menchú’s autobiography is I... Rigoberta Menchú said Mrs. Harper.

Exercise 35  Using Apostrophes Correctly

Add, delete, or move apostrophes where needed in the following word groups. If a word group is already correct, write C.

EXAMPLE

1. both boys shoes
   1. boys’

1. somebodys lunch 6. too many letter us
2. cant play 7. its engine
4. better than theirs 9. no more ifs
5. womens volleyball 10. the bushes branches
Correcting Spelling Errors

Most of the following words are misspelled. If a word is spelled incorrectly, write the correct spelling. If a word is already spelled correctly, write C.

EXAMPLE

1. succede
   1. succeed

| 1. taxa | 8. stathood | 15. improper |
| 2. vian | 9. lovelyer | 16. fancifully |
| 3. supercede | 10. clearest | 17. dryest |
| 4. disallow | 11. wolfs | 18. clueless |
| 5. countrys | 12. sheild | 19. overjoied |
| 6. emptyness | 13. preceed | 20. skiping |
| 7. tracable | 14. father-in-laws |

Choosing Between Words Often Confused

From each pair in parentheses, choose the word or words that make the sentence correct.

EXAMPLE

1. The school plans to (except, accept) the new computer company’s offer.
   1. accept

1. Did Coach Jefferson (advise, advice) you to take the first-aid course at the community center?
2. My cousins and I are (all ready, already) to enter the marathon.
3. Sacramento became the (capital, capitol) of California in 1854.
4. When garden hoses (brake, break), they sometimes can be mended with waterproof tape.
5. Avoid wearing (loose, lose) clothing when operating that equipment.
6. Many people know Mr. Perez, but I think he should be (formerly, formally) introduced.
7. My grandfather threw the football (passed, past) the trees and over the creek.
8. (Its, It’s) a good idea to test home smoke detectors frequently to make sure the batteries are still working.
9. One basic (principle, principal) of our Constitution is the right to free speech.
10. Some cats are called bobtails because of (their, there) very short tails.
Mechanics Test: Section 1

DIRECTIONS   Each numbered item below consists of an underlined word or word group. Choose the answer that shows the correct capitalization, punctuation, and spelling of the underlined part. If there is no error, choose D (Correct as is).

EXAMPLE   [1] 29 South Maple street
    (A) 29 south Maple Street
    (B) 29 South Maple Street
    (C) Twenty Nine South Maple Street
    (D) Correct as is

ANSWER   1.  B

[1] 29 South Maple Street
    Philadelphia, PA 19107

Mail-Order Sales Manager

    214-C Billings Boulevard

[3] New Castle, Ken. 40050

[4] Dear Sales Manager,

    The modem that I ordered from your company arrived today in [5] peices. The package was [6] open, and appeared not to have been sealed properly. [7] In addition I have not yet received the computer game that I also ordered. Please send me a new [8] modem the broken modem is enclosed.

    I appreciate [9] you’re prompt attention to both of these matters.

[10] Sincerely yours,

    Cameron Scott

Cameron Scott
Mechanics Test: Section 2

DIRECTIONS Each of the following sentences contains an underlined word or word group. Choose the answer that shows the correct capitalization, punctuation, and spelling of the underlined part. If there is no error, choose D (Correct as is).

EXAMPLE 1. Rosie said that her cousin sent her that soft colorful fabric from Kenya.

(A) soft, colorful, fabric
(B) soft, colorful fabric
(C) soft; colorful fabric
(D) Correct as is

ANSWER 1. A B C D
1. The following people have volunteered to make enchiladas, Manuel, Shawn, and Anita.
   (A) enchiladas; Manuel        (C) enchiladas: Manuel
   (B) enchiladas, Manuel        (D) Correct as is

2. Our school’s recycling program which is now three years old, has been quite successful.
   (A) recycling program, which  (C) recycling program; which
   (B) Recycling Program, which  (D) Correct as is

3. Looking at the astronomical map in my science book I spotted the constellations Orion, Taurus, and Pisces.
   (A) Looking at the astronomical map, in my science book I
   (B) Looking at the astronomical map, in my science book, I
   (C) Looking at the astronomical map in my science book, I
   (D) Correct as is

4. Donna asked, “who plans to work as a baby sitter over the summer?”
   (A) asked, “Who          (C) asked, Who
   (B) asked “who          (D) Correct as is

5. Angela and Wanda painted the mural, and Jamal attached it to the wall in the gym.
   (A) mural and Jamal        (C) mural, and jamal
   (B) mural: and Jamal        (D) Correct as is

6. Many television programs have closed captioning for people who can’t hear.
   (A) people, who can’t      (C) people who can’t
   (B) people, who can’t      (D) Correct as is

7. “What a great time we had at the park”! Sandy exclaimed as she got into the car.
   (A) Park”! Sandy           (C) park”, Sandy
   (B) park!” Sandy            (D) Correct as is

8. “Your aunt Helen certainly is a fascinating person,” Carla said.
   (A) “Your Aunt Helen       (C) Your aunt Helen
   (B) “Your aunt, Helen      (D) Correct as is
9. “Many of us would have gone to the picnic if we had known about it” Alan said.
   (A) it”,  (B) it,” (C) it,  (D) Correct as is

10. The Zunigas have a new puppy; its a cocker spaniel.
    (A) puppy; Its  (C) puppy, its
    (B) puppy; it’s  (D) Correct as is

11. The ants carried large leaves across John Henry’s backyard.
    (A) carryed large leafs  (C) carried large leaves
    (B) carryed large leaves  (D) Correct as is

12. Has the guide all ready led the hikers to the top of the mesa?
    (A) all ready lead  (C) already led
    (B) already lead  (D) Correct as is

13. If Carlos wants to play the role of Eddie in the musical, he’ll have to practice the solos.
    (A) musical, h’ll have to practice
    (B) musical; he’ll have to practice
    (C) musical he’ll have too practice
    (D) Correct as is

14. Sara said that the big guppy in the class aquarium is going to have babies.
    (A) Sara said “That the big guppy in the class aquarium is going to have babies.”
    (B) Sara said “that the big guppy in the class aquarium is going to have babies.”
    (C) Sara said “That the big guppy in the class aquarium is going to have babies”.
    (D) Correct as is

15. On October 1 1960 Nigeria became an independent nation.
    (A) October, 1 1960  (C) October 1, 1960
    (B) October 1, 1960,  (D) Correct as is
For permission to reprint copyrighted material, grateful acknowledgment is made to the following sources:

Annenberg/CPB Project: From “Amusement Park Physics” from The Annenberg/CPB Project Exhibits
Collections, online, August 5, 1998. Copyright © 1998 by The Annenberg/CPB Project. Available

Johnny D. Boggs: From “Home on the Range” by Johnny D. Boggs from Boys’ Life, June 1998. Copyright © 1998 by Johnny D. Boggs. Boys’ Life is published by the Boy Scouts of America.

Boyd’s Mills Press, Inc.: From “Hopi Snake Ceremonies” from Rattlesnake Dance: True Tales, Mysteries, and Rattlesnake Ceremonies by Jennifer Owings Dewey.
Copyright © 1997 by Jennifer Owings Dewey.

Carlinsky & Carlinsky, Inc.: From “Kites” by Dan
Carlinsky from Boys’ Life, May 1974. Copyright © 1974
by Dan Carlinsky.

Children’s Better Health Institute, Benjamin Franklin Literary & Medical Society, Inc., Indianapolis, Indiana:
From “Kachinas: Sacred Drama of the Hopis” by Lonnie Dyer from Young World. Copyright © 1976 by Saturday Evening Post Company.

Dell Publishing, a division of Random House, Inc.:
Jacket cover and flap copy from Where the Red Fern
Grows by Wilson Rawls. Copyright © 1961 by Sophie S.
Rawls, Trustee, or successor for Trustee(s) of the Rawls Trust, dated July 31, 1991; copyright © 1961 by The Curtis Publishing Company.

Doubleday, a division of Random House, Inc.: From The Richer, the Poorer by Dorothy West. Copyright
© 1995 by Dorothy West.

Farrar, Straus & Giroux, Inc.: From “A Walk to the Jetty” from Annie John by Jamaica Kincaid. Copyright
© 1985 by Jamaica Kincaid.

Lloyd Garver: From “No, You Can’t Have Nintendo” (retitled “A Veto on Video Games”) by Lloyd Garver from “My Turn” from Newsweek, June 11, 1990, p. 8.
Copyright © 1990 by Lloyd Garver.

Harcourt, Inc.: From “The No-Guitar Blues” from Baseball in April and Other Stories by Gary Soto.
Copyright © 1990 by Gary Soto.

HarperCollins Publishers, Inc.: From Black Elk: The Sacred Ways of a Lakota by Wallace H. Black Elk and William S. Lyon, Ph.D. Copyright © 1990 by Wallace H.
Black Elk and William S. Lyon.

Henry Holt and Company, Inc.: From “A Runaway Slave” from Chariot in the Sky: A Story of the Jubilee
Singers by Arna Bontemps. Copyright 1951 by Arna
Bontemps; copyright © 1979 by Mrs. Arna (Alberta)
Bontemps.

Alfred A. Knopf, Inc.: Front cover, text from front and back flap jackets, and back cover text from Crash by Jerry Spinelli. Copyright © 1996 by Jerry Spinelli; jacket illustration copyright © 1996 by Eleanor Hoyt.

Lothrop, Lee & Shepard Books, a division of HarperCollins Publishers, Inc.: From “Green Dragon Pond” from The Spring of Butterflies, translated by He Liyi. Copyright © 1985 by William Collins Sons & Co.
Ltd.

Macmillan General Reference USA: Entries, “escape” and “escaper,” from Webster’s New World Dictionary,
Third Edition, Editor in Chief, Victoria Neufeldt, Editor
in Chief Emeritus, David B. Guralnik. Copyright

Margaret K. McElderry Books, an imprint of Simon &
Schuster Children’s Publishing Division: From A Jar of Dreams by Yoshiko Uchida. Copyright © 1981 by Yoshiko Uchida.

Millbrook Press: From “The Voice in the Attic” from Voice Magic: Secrets of Ventriloquism & Voice Conjuring by Ormond McGill. Copyright © 1992 by Ormond McGill.

NASA: From “NASA’s Future: Online Multimedia Presentation” by Brian Dunbar from NASA Homepage, online, April 6, 1999. Available http://www.nasa.gov/

National Geographic Society: “Comeback: Lions
Recover from Dog Disease” by Scott Stuckey from “Geo
News” from National Geographic World, February 1999.
Copyright © 1999 by National Geographic Society.
From “It’s Touch and Go With Whiskers!” by Fiona
Sunquist from National Geographic World, no. 272, June 1997. Copyright © 1997 by National Geographic Society.

Newsweek, Inc.: From “A Doll Made to Order” from Newsweek, December 9, 1985. Copyright © 1985 by Newsweek, Inc. All rights reserved.

CHAPTER 24: Page 632, Classic PIO Partners; 637, Superstock; 644, James Montgomery/Bruce Coleman, Inc.

CHAPTER 25: Page 662 (bl) (bc) (br), Lightwave; 674, Scala/Art Resource, NY; 678, Image Copyright ©1998 Photodisc, Inc.

CHAPTER 26: Page 687, Image Copyright ©1998 Photodisc, Inc.; 691, John Kelly/HRW Photo; 694, Corbis Images; 696, Russell Dian/HRW Photo; 703, Tim Defrisco/Allsport; 708, Image Copyright ©2001 PhotoDisc, Inc.

CHAPTER 10: Page 332 (cl), Nancy Tucker.

CHAPTER 14: Page 409 (tc), Ortelius Design.

CHAPTER 16: Page 441 (tr), Ortelius Design.

CHAPTER 18: Page 494 (bl), Larry McEntire; 496 (b), Leslie Kell.

CHAPTER 21: Page 567 (br), Uhl Studios, Inc.

CHAPTER 22: Page 584 (r), 591 (br), Ortelius Design.

CHAPTER 23: Page 601 (br), Uhl Studios, Inc.

CHAPTER 24: Page 643 (tr), Leslie Kell.

CHAPTER 25: Page 656 (cl), Leslie Kell; 658 (c), Ortelius Design.

QRH: Page 730 (cl), HRW; 741 (tr), Leslie Kell; 750 (br), Gary Ferster.