To the student

Do you use English in your work? Or is it a part of your studies? Maybe you are a legal professional; or a student of law. Whatever your background, if you need to improve your legal English, the tests in this book will help. They will check your knowledge of basic legal concepts, key words and essential expressions so that you can communicate more effectively and confidently in your work and for your studies.

There are eight sections in the book. The first section in this book is an introduction to general legal terms and concepts. The remaining seven sections each cover a different area of law – from contracts and agreements to international law. You can either work through the book from beginning to end or select chapters according to your interests and needs.

Many tests also have tips (advice) on language, language learning and professional information. Do read these explanations and tips: they are there to help you.

To make the book more challenging and more fun, many different kinds of tests are used, including sentence transformation, gap-filling, word families, multiple choice and crosswords. There is a key at the back of the book so that you can check your answers; and a word list to help you revise key vocabulary.

Your vocabulary is an essential resource for effective communication. Remember that the more words you know, the more meanings you can express. This book will help you develop your specialist vocabulary still further. Using the tests you can both check what you know and increase your knowledge of new concepts and terms in a structured and systematic way.

Introduction to law: basic concepts

Complete the following text about basic legal concepts using the following words and phrases. Use each term once.

authority court govern judges law enforcement agency lawyers legal action legal systems legislation rule the judiciary tribunal

Why do we have laws and __legal systems__? At one level, laws can be seen as a type of ____________ which is meant to ____________ behaviour between people. We can find these rules in nearly all social organizations, such as families and sports clubs.

Law, the body of official rules and regulations, generally found in constitutions and ____________, is used to govern a society and to control the behaviour of its members. In modern societies, a body with ____________, such as a ____________ or the legislature, makes the law; and a ____________, such as the police, makes sure it is observed.

In addition to enforcement, a body of expert ____________ is needed to apply the law. This is the role of ____________, the body of ____________ in a particular country. Of course, legal systems vary between countries, as well as the basis for bringing a case before a court or ____________. One thing, however, seems to be true all over the world – starting a ____________ is both expensive and time-consuming.

Nouns in English can be divided into countable and uncountable. Countable nouns have a singular and a plural form; uncountable nouns have only one form. Law is a countable noun; legislation is an uncountable noun.
3 The sources of law

Law has its origins in the early developments of civilized society, and through time there have been major influences on the laws that we follow today.

A  Match these sources of law with the descriptions below.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Common law</th>
<th>Roman law</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Napoleonic Code</td>
<td>The Ten Commandments</td>
</tr>
</tbody>

______________, which evolved in the 8th century BC, was still largely a blend of custom and interpretation by magistrates of the will of the gods.

______________ evolved from the tribal and local laws in England. It began with common customs, but over time it involved the courts in law-making that was responsive to changes in society. In this way the Anglo-Norman rulers created a system of centralized courts that operated under a single set of laws that replaced the rules laid down by earlier societies.

______________ formed the basis of all Israelite legislation. They can also be found in the laws of other ancient peoples.

______________ refers to the entire body of French law, contained in five codes dealing with civil, commercial, and criminal law.

B  Are the following sentences about the sources of law true or false?

1  The Ten Commandments are based on moral standards of behaviour.

2  In common law, judges resolve disputes by referring to statutory principles arrived at in advance.

3  Roman law is based on the principle of deciding cases by reference to previous judicial decisions, rather than to written statutes drafted by legislative bodies.

4  The Napoleonic Code was introduced into a number of European countries, notably Belgium, where it is still in force. It also became the model for the civil codes of Quebec Province in Canada, the Netherlands, Italy, Spain, some Latin American republics, and the state of Louisiana.
One way of classifying and understanding the law is by subject matter. Lawyers often divide the law and the legal system into two: criminal law and civil law. Classify the following terms into the appropriate column below. Two terms can appear in both columns.

- compensation
- contract
- crime
- damages
- family law
- intellectual property
- plaintiff
- police
- private individual
- prosecution
- the accused
- the defendant
- theft
- to bring a case
- to bring an action

- to charge someone with something

B  Now complete the following text contrasting criminal and civil law by choosing from the words/phrases above.

_Criminal Law vs Civil Law_

One category is the criminal law - the law dealing with _crime_. A case is called a ___________. The case is instituted by the prosecutor, who takes over the case from the ___________ who have already decided ___________ the defendant (or ___________) with specified crimes. The civil law is much more wide-ranging. The civil law includes the law of ___________ and ___________. In a civil case, the ___________, normally a ___________ ___________ or company, ___________ ___________ ___________ to win ___________. If the case is proven (on the balance of probabilities, meaning that one is more sure than not), the defendant normally pays the plaintiff ___________ (money).

Notice the distinction between damage and damages. Damage (uncountable singular) refers to physical harm; damages (uncountable plural) refers to financial compensation that a person claims for injury or harm that has been suffered.
The court structure

Every jurisdiction organizes the administration of justice in different ways. In England, the basic division between criminal and civil law is reflected in the court system. Look at the chart below and then complete the description that refers to each court.

The English Court System

- Court of Justice of the European Communities
  - House of Lords
    - Court of Appeal, Criminal Division
    - Court of Appeal, Civil Division
    - Crown Court
    - High Court
    - Magistrates Court
    - County Court
1. Claims of lesser value will start in a County Court. There are 250 of these around the country. They can also deal with divorce and bankruptcy matters.

2. Matters of important legal dispute arising in the Crown Court may be appealed to the ______________.

3. From the Court of Appeal, there can be an appeal to the ______________ on fact or law, but usually appeal is only allowed on matters of legal importance.

4. If the case involves a serious crime, it is heard in the ______________ (there is only one ______________ but it has about 70 centres around the jurisdiction).

5. In less serious criminal cases (which comprise over 90% of criminal cases), the case is sent for trial in one of over 400 ______________.

6. More substantial civil claims (over around £25,000) are heard in the ______________.

7. The ______________ was set up under the Treaty of Rome of 1957, by which the European Community was established. The court can overrule all other courts on matters of Community law.

8. Under the system of appeals in civil cases, it is possible to appeal from a County Court or the High Court to the ______________.

A case is presented by the __________, who takes over the case from the police who have already charged the defendant (or accused) with specified crimes.

In the upper courts, the judges are almost all former __________. But many cases are also heard by __________—part-time barristers from private practice. The Crown Court __________ consists of 12 persons, aged 18 to 70.

The jury in an English court is made up of 12 people. Their function is to decide on points of fact, in other words, whether the accused committed the crime with which s/he is charged; the role of the judge is to advise the jury on points of law.
Legal professionals

Every legal system needs professionals to provide legal services. These systems are organized in many different ways. In England this work is carried out by two groups of professionals – solicitors and barristers.

Below is a list of tasks carried out by solicitors and barristers. Classify them into the appropriate column.

'A solicitor is a man who calls in a person he doesn't know to sign a contract he hasn't seen to buy property he doesn't want with money he hasn't got.'

Attributed to: Dingwall Bateson (1698–1967), British lawyer
Legal training

The legal training for solicitors (who provide general legal advice to clients) and barristers (who present cases in the upper courts) is different. The following short texts describe the stages in legal training, but they are mixed up. Put the steps into the correct category and order.

1 PRACTICE AND CONTINUING EDUCATION
   The next stage is to obtain a ‘tenancy’: becoming an assistant to a practising barrister.

2 GETTING THE QUALIFICATIONS
   The next step is to acquire some legal training specific to the work of a barrister.

3 DEVELOPING PRACTICAL SKILLS
   Next the intending solicitor has to enter a two-year training contract with a firm of solicitors to gain practical experience in a variety of areas of law.

4 GETTING THE TRAINING AND EXPERIENCE: PUPILLAGE
   This is the ‘apprenticeship’ served by trainee barristers, who are known as pupils. It usually takes a year and consists of a mixture of assisting and observing experienced barristers, as well as more practical experience.

5 GETTING THE ACADEMIC QUALIFICATIONS
   The quickest and most common route to qualification is by means of a qualifying law degree.

6 GETTING THE VOCATIONAL QUALIFICATIONS
   You will have to undertake the Legal Practice Course, which is the professional training for solicitors. The course teaches the practical application of the law to the needs of clients.

7 GETTING THE ACADEMIC QUALIFICATIONS
   The first part of training to become a barrister is known as the academic stage, which provides a general theoretical introduction to the law.

Legal contracts are complex documents. Drafters use many specialist legal terms as well as particular words to navigate through the document and relate the different clauses together.
14 Standard Terms and Conditions of Sale

Below are the main paragraph titles from a Sale Agreement. Link the paragraph titles to the details of the contents of each paragraph.

1. PRICE AND PAYMENT
   a. The Buyer only receives title to the Goods once he has paid all sums due to the Seller.

2. GOODS
   b. This prevents a party from relying on something said in pre-contract negotiations that is not excluded in the Agreement itself with the exception of deliberate misrepresentations (which are impossible to exclude).

3. DELIVERY
   c. The Goods are as specified in the quotation.

4. ACCEPTANCE
   d. Allows for defaults in the event of happenings outside the control of the Seller.

5. TITLE AND RISK
   e. The Price is the quoted price; if the Price is not paid on time the Seller is entitled to interest at 4 per cent above base.

6. LIMITATION OF LIABILITY
   f. This does not prevent the buyer suing for breach of warranty after the 7th day. It is intended to prevent rejection.

7. FORCE MAJEURE
   g. Specifies which law applies and where the parties must sue.

8. ENTIRE AGREEMENT
   h. Delivery is as shown on the quotation.

9. GOVERNING LAW AND JURISDICTION
   i. This is required when selling to consumers. To sell to a consumer without this phrase would be a criminal offence.

10. RIGHTS OF CONSUMER
    j. Tries to exclude and restrict the liability of the Seller to personal injury and death (the minimum allowed by law). It specifically excludes economic loss and limits the liability of the Seller to the price. There is a risk that these terms would be deemed unfair in a consumer transaction.

This document sets out the terms and conditions on which a business supplies goods and is drafted as far as possible to exclude the business's liability for any faulty products. However, statute usually decrees that when a business contracts with a consumer then certain rights cannot be contracted out of.
15 Letters of reminder

Collecting unpaid debts requires a mix of tact and persistence. Many companies have to send a stream of reminders before sending the final demand. And it is the last one which usually produces the desired result.

Here are the extracts from three reminders and a final demand. Organize the extracts into the correct letters.

1. We are concerned that this matter is still unresolved and would be grateful to receive your cheque in full settlement of the outstanding sum without further delay.

2. We would like to remind you that the sum of £3500 is still outstanding on your account.

3. Since we have received no replies to our earlier letters, we have no option but to inform you that unless we receive a cheque for the outstanding sum of £3500 within seven days of the date of this letter, we shall place the matter in the hands of our solicitors.

4. I wrote to you on 1st July regarding your unpaid account, amounting to £3500.

5. Clearly, this situation cannot be permitted to continue, and we must urge you to take immediate action to clear the indebtedness.

6. If you are satisfied with the goods supplied to you, we would ask that you kindly settle the account as soon as possible.

7. We have now reminded you twice regarding the outstanding sum of £3500 on your account, but to no avail.

The modal verb shall is used in legal contracts and agreements to establish legal obligations. In other words we use shall with the meaning of must.
Franchise Agreement

A franchise is the granting by an individual (the franchisor) to another individual (the franchisee) of the right to run a business in the name of the franchisor. Examples include Body Shop and MacDonalds. Some franchises are exclusive, in other words, no other franchise may be granted in that area. Where the franchise is exclusive the franchisors will want to ensure uniformity with other franchises so that the reputation of the business is not damaged by one particular franchisee. Accordingly, Franchise Agreements tend to be broadly non-negotiable.

Read through Clause 5 on the obligations of the franchisor and then answer the True/False questions below.

5. OBLIGATIONS OF FRANCHISOR

During the Term the Franchisor shall:

5.1. permit the Franchisee to operate the Business and to use the Name and the Marks in accordance with the terms of this Agreement;

5.2. provide the Franchisee with a copy of the Manual and any amendments or updates of the same;

5.3. make available to the Franchisee such services as it makes available to other Franchisees;

5.4. provide the Franchisee with general advice and know-how relating to the Method;

5.5. provide within 30 days of the Commencement Date the Initial Training for the Training Fee;

5.6. within 30 days of the Commencement Date supply the Franchisee with the Equipment at the Equipment Fee;

5.7. not itself operate or grant the right to operate a business in competition with the Business in the Territory;

5.8. update the Manual with any improvements to the Method; and

5.9. keep the Franchisee informed of all relevant legislation
The franchisor

1. may not allow others to set up a competing business in the same area
   True

2. needn't inform the franchisee about new laws

3. must give the franchisee the operating instructions for the franchise

4. must allow the franchisee to use any names and trade marks so that the franchisee can develop the business

5. needn't treat all franchisees in the same way

6. must train the franchisee in how to operate the business as set out in the instructions

7. must supply the franchisee with the equipment needed by the business

8. must send the franchisee all relevant information

I'm thinking of franchising my business... any advice?

The ending -or or -er indicates one who grants; -ee indicates one who receives. Words using these endings include:
franchisor – franchisee; employer – employee
Loan Agreement

Complete the following discussion between a borrower and a lender about setting up a Loan Agreement. The words to complete the conversation are given in the box below.

account  arrears  bank  base rate  capital  conditions debit  decrease  increase  instalment  interest  loan payment  penalty  repay  repayment  terms

Lender: So, Mr Brown, we are happy to offer you £10,000 on the following (1) terms.

Mr Brown: Which are?

Lender: Well, if we go through the agreement together I can explain the (2) ________.

Mr Brown: OK.

Lender: The (3) _______ of the loan includes a (4) ________ repayment of £10,000 plus annual interest at the appropriate rate.

Mr Brown: I see.

Lender: And the (5) ________ can be repaid over 24 or 36 months.

Mr Brown: Right.

Lender: At present, (6) ________ on the loan will be calculated at 2% above the bank base rate.

Mr Brown: OK.

Lender: And we will collect the (7) ________ monthly in (8) ________.

Mr Brown: And how will you collect it?

Lender: We will (9) ________ it directly from your account.
Mr Brown: I see.

Lender: If you agree to the terms, we can arrange to have the money in your (10) ________ tomorrow. The first repayment (11) ________ will then be due exactly one month from tomorrow.

Mr Brown: Will the repayment amount be the same each month?

Lender: I’m afraid we can’t guarantee that. The exact amount will depend on the (12) ________. If there is an (13) ________, your monthly repayment will go up; if there is a (14) ________, it’ll go down.

Mr Brown: And what if I want to repay early?

Lender: You can (15) ________ the loan early but there will be a small (16) ________, equal to one month’s interest.

- Under a loan agreement a borrower borrows money from a lender at an agreed rate of interest. The lender may require some security for the loan or not (an unsecured loan). The loan is typically repaid in monthly instalments.

- Remember that the words capital and interest, when used in a financial sense, are not used in the plural.

The overall terms are usually decided by the Board although directors are not allowed to vote on their own service contract.
Consultancy Agreement

Consultants, like directors (see Test 19), are not company employees. A consultant provides services as an independent advisor to a company. A Consultancy Agreement is drafted from the company’s perspective and sets out the obligations of the consultant.

The clause dealing with ‘duties’ is central to the agreement. Below are extracts from this clause. Each missing word is derived from the word in brackets.

DUTIES

2.1 Subject as hereinafter provided (provision) and except at such times as the Consultant may be incapacitated by ________ (ill) or accident, the Consultant shall devote such of his time, _________ (attentive) and skill as may be necessary for the proper discharge of his duties, save that nothing in this Agreement shall require the Consultant to devote to his _________ (oblige) under this Agreement more than 60 hours _________ (month).

Notice the following words of frequency:

- daily
- hourly
- monthly
- quarterly

- yearly/annually

All these words can be used as adjectives and adverbs, except annually which is only an adverb.

Full-time Employment Contract

A contract of employment comes into existence as soon as a job offer is accepted whether that offer is oral or in writing. However, it is easier for both parties if the offer of employment is in writing to prevent disputes at a later date.

Below is an extract from a skeleton contract of employment for a full-time employee. The key word/phrase from each section has been removed. Complete the text using the words/phrases from the box.

Comments from interviews

1. You’ve been late twice this week. I talked to you before about this and made clear, I hope, that this is not acceptable.

2. I am sure that I don’t need to remind you that we agreed that the report would be ready by Friday afternoon. I am disappointed that the deadline came and went without any sign of the report and no explanation from you.

3. We cannot accept rudeness from any of our employees. I don’t just mean with customers, but with colleagues and suppliers.

4. We have noticed that you just don’t seem interested in your work. This creates a bad atmosphere in the office.

5. The PCs were left on again yesterday. Please make sure that this doesn’t happen again.

6. In general I have to tell you that I am not satisfied with your work. I have also had a number of comments from other members of staff that you are not doing the work to the standard that we expect.
Written warning

a. I understand from Patrick Standish that you were rude when dealing with a customer. I must emphasize that I shall not hesitate to take disciplinary action against you in the event of any recurrence.

b. Despite my instructions to the contrary, you are failing to arrive punctually for work. I find it annoying and disappointing that I should be required to write this. Please understand that if this continues it will certainly result in disciplinary action being taken against you.

c. Despite specific office instructions to the contrary, some of you are failing to switch off your computer equipment before leaving the office at the end of the day. Quite apart from aspects of security, such careless habits reflect badly on the department as a whole, and the individuals concerned in particular.

d. I wish to draw your attention to the manner in which you are currently dealing with your responsibilities as sales rep.

e. I must emphasize that this is just not acceptable, and I require you to bring about an immediate and marked improvement in your attitude.

f. Since I have heard nothing from you, I am forced to assume that there are no reasons for this delay – and I find this most disappointing. Please ensure that the completed document is with me by Monday morning.

A warning can serve as the basis for a disciplinary interview, which can, in turn, lead to dismissal. There are many grounds on which an employer can sack an employee. To be fair, however, she needs to explain the reason for dissatisfaction and give the employee an opportunity to improve.
Letter of redundancy

Making an employee redundant is one of the tougher tasks. So it needs to be done with care and sensitivity.

Below is a letter of redundancy. The sentences have been mixed up. Put them into order.

1. Details of your forthcoming redundancy and severance pay are enclosed.
2. Finally, I shall, of course, be only too pleased to supply any prospective employer with a reference on your behalf.
3. I am writing in connection with our discussion of earlier today.
4. Yours sincerely

   Anne O'Dwyer
   Personnel Manager

5. It is with much regret that I must ask you to accept this letter as formal notice of the redundancy of your position as administrative assistant with effect from 30 September 2001.

6. Dear Ms Bailey

7. On behalf of the Company, I would like to thank you for the services you have given us in the past and wish you every success in the future.

8. Please do not hesitate to contact me if you need clarification.

9. The Company will gladly grant you reasonable time off with pay for the purposes of attending job interviews or undertaking any training for alternative employment.

10. The services of the Personnel Department will, of course, be freely available to assist you in obtaining suitable alternative employment.

The normal conventions of greetings and farewells in letters are:

Dear Ms Bailey (named addressee)    Yours sincerely
Dear Sirs (unnamed addressee)      Yours faithfully
We normally use the name of the addressee if we know it.

26 Employee health and safety

The following text deals with aspects of employee health and safety. Complete the gaps with an appropriate word derived from the words given.

Workplace (1) safety (safe) and (2) health (healthy) laws establish basic standards aimed at reducing the number of (3) illness (ill), (4) injury (injure) and (5) death (die) in workplaces. Because most workplace safety (6) regulation (regulate) rely for their effectiveness on employees who are willing to report job (7) danger (dangerous), most laws also prevent employers from firing or discriminating against employees who report (8) safety (safe) conditions to proper authorities.

Workers' compensation laws are designed to ensure that employees who are (9) injured (injure) or (10) disabled (disable) on the job are provided with fixed (11) financial (money) awards, eliminating the need for litigation. These laws also provide benefits for (12) dependents (depend) of those (13) who (work) who are killed because of work-related accidents or illnesses. Some laws also provide (14) protection (protect) for employers and fellow workers by limiting the amount an injured employee can (15) recover (recovery) from an employer and by eliminating the (16) liability (liable) of co-workers in most accidents.

In recent years, workers in many countries have pushed strongly for laws to protect their health and safety on the job. In many cases they have been somewhat successful.

Sentence
1. bond
2. capital punishment
3. jail
4. parole
5. imprisonment
6. probation
7. concurrent sentence
8. binding over
9. suspended sentence
10. peace bond
11. community service
12. determinate sentence
13. prison
14. good behaviour

Definition
a. When two or more terms of imprisonment are served together.
b. A place for long-term incarceration for a crime.
c. A place of confinement for time periods longer than those usual for a police station lock-up and shorter than those usual for a prison.
d. Unpaid work undertaken pursuant to a court order upon conviction for an offence in lieu of a sentence of imprisonment.
e. A release from prison, before a sentence is finished, that depends on the person ‘keeping clean’ and doing what he or she is supposed to do while out. If the person fails to meet the conditions, the rest of the sentence must be served.
f. Conduct required for criminals to get out of jail early or other privileges while in prison.
g. A sentence (usually 'jail time') that the judge allows the convicted person to avoid serving (e.g. if the person continues on good behaviour, completes community service, etc.).

h. A document that promises to pay money if a particular future event happens, or a sum of money that is put up and will be lost if that event happens.

i. An act by which the court requires a bond or bail money.

j. The sentencing of a criminal to a period of time during which they will be deprived of their freedom.

k. A bond, required by a judge of a person likely to 'breach the peace', to guarantee the person's good behaviour for a period of time.

l. An exact prison term that is set by law, rather than one that may be shortened for good behaviour.

m. A kind of punishment given out as part of a sentence, which means that instead of jailing a person convicted of a crime, a judge will order that the person reports to an officer regularly and according to a set schedule.

n. The most severe of all sentences: that of death. Also known as the death penalty.

In countries following the Anglo-American legal tradition, sentencing is a function that is distinguished from that of determining guilt or innocence and is normally the responsibility of the judge rather than of the jury. Systems of law traditionally give the judge a wide discretion in determining both the kind of penalty to be imposed (imprisonment, fine, probation) and its extent. As modern sentencing systems provide an increasingly wide range of forms of sentence, the choice of sentence becomes a more complex task.
32 At trial

The climax of the legal proceedings is the trial. Read the following text about the trial and the answer the true/false questions below the text.

A trial may be defined broadly and comprehensively as a judicial examination of the issues between the parties. Although some variations may exist, trials are usually held before a judge sitting alone, a referee, or a judge and jury. The counsels for the prosecution and for the defence make opening statements to the jury, outlining what each sees as the nature of the case and what each hopes to prove as the trial proceeds. Next, the counsel for the prosecution presents his case by calling witnesses, questioning them, and permitting them to be cross-examined by the counsel for the defence. The counsel for each side then makes a closing argument to the jury, summarizing the evidence in a light most favourable to their respective clients. The function of the jury is to determine the facts of the case, whereas the function of the judge is to determine the applicable law and to oversee the parties' presentation of the facts to the court. After the judge has instructed the jury on the applicable law, the jury will retire to deliberate in private until it reaches a just verdict, which will then be announced in open court. The verdict of a jury terminates the trial. In a case tried before a judge sitting alone, the decision of the judge constitutes a termination of the trial.
1. Criminal trials are always held in front of a jury. False
2. A judge may sit alone to hear a legal case.
3. At the beginning of the trial both counsels outline their case.
4. The counsel for the defence may cross-examine prosecution witnesses.
5. The function of the jury is to decide the applicable law.
6. The judge may intervene if the counsels on either side fail to observe the court procedures.
7. The judge advises the jury on the law relevant to the case.
8. The jury discusses their verdict in open court.

Legal procedures and the role of the judge vary in different jurisdictions. In an adversarial system, the parties are cross-examined in order to find out the truth; the judge is an impartial referee. In an inquisitorial system, the judge plays a more proactive role, asking questions in order to find out the truth.
Key players in the criminal law

A number of agencies, organizations and individuals are involved in the administration of the criminal law. The most important are:

- the police
- the suspect
- the jury
- the magistrate
- the defence counsel
- the prosecutor
- the judge

Draw lines to combine the two halves of the sentences to describe the functions of each.

Accident and Injury: Compensation and Prevention

Accidents can happen in a variety of situations. Where there is a duty of care, then the injured party has grounds for a claim. Modern insurance practice makes it easier to satisfy the injured without financially crushing the injurer.

This area of law covers a number of different aspects:

- Damages
- Insurance
- Product Liability
- Torts and Personal Injury
- Workers’ Compensation

Read through the short texts below and then answer the questions.

1. Damages, in a legal sense, are the sum of money the law imposes for a breach of some duty or violation of some right. Generally, there are two types of damages: compensatory and punitive. The former are intended to compensate the injured party for his loss or injury; the latter are awarded to punish a wrongdoer.

2. In the absence of insurance, three possible individuals bear the burden of an economic loss: the individual suffering the loss; the individual causing the loss via negligence or unlawful conduct; or a particular party who has been allocated the burden by the legislature, such as employers under Workers’ Compensation statutes.

3. Product liability refers to the liability of any or all parties along the chain of manufacture of any product for damage caused by that product. This includes the manufacturer of component parts (at the top of the chain), an assembling manufacturer, the wholesaler, and the retail store owner (at the bottom of the chain). Products containing inherent defects that cause harm to a consumer of the product, or someone to whom the product was loaned or given, are the subjects of product liability suits.
4. Torts are civil wrongs that are recognized by law as grounds for a lawsuit. These wrongs result in an injury or harm which constitutes the basis for a claim by the injured party. The injured person may sue for an injunction to prevent the continuation of the tortious conduct or for monetary damages. Among the types of damages the injured party may recover are: loss of earning capacity, pain and suffering, and reasonable medical expenses. They include both present and future expected losses.

5. Workers' Compensation laws are designed to ensure that employees who are injured or disabled on the job are provided with fixed monetary awards, eliminating the need for litigation. These laws also provide benefits for dependants of those workers who are killed because of work-related accidents or illnesses. Some laws also protect employers and fellow workers by limiting the amount an injured employee can recover from an employer and by eliminating the liability of co-workers in most accidents.

1. What are the two types of damages? What is the difference between them?

2. When there is no insurance, who may have to bear the loss?

3. What are the parties along the chain of manufacture?

4. What remedies are open to the injured party in a tort case?

5. Who can benefit from Workers' Compensation laws?

Bankruptcy law provides for the development of a supervised plan that allows a debtor, who is unable to pay his creditors, to resolve his debts through the division of his assets among his creditors. This allows the interests of all creditors to be treated with some measure of equality. Certain bankruptcy proceedings allow a debtor to stay in business and help him pay his debts. An additional purpose of bankruptcy law is to allow certain debtors to be released from their financial obligations after their assets are distributed, even if their debts have not been paid in full.

- The mediator is a trained, neutral third party.
- The objective of ADR is to define the interests involved and reach solutions which are practical and beneficial to all parties.
- ADR is less expensive than litigation.
- ADR is faster than litigation.
- ADR allows the parties to keep the proceedings private.
- All the parties involved in the dispute should attend the ADR proceedings.
- Ideally ADR should be conducted in a neutral site.

Introduction to international law

International Law (or Public International Law) consists of rules and principles which govern the relations and dealings of nations with each other. It concerns itself only with questions of rights between several nations or nations and the citizens or subjects of other nations. In contrast, Private International Law deals with controversies between private persons, natural or juridical, arising out of situations having significant relationship to more than one nation. In recent years the line between public and private international law has become increasingly uncertain, because issues of private international law may also involve issues of public international law, and vice versa.

Look at the following legal areas and classify them into Public International Law or Private International Law.

Immigration is the movement of people to a new country; emigration is the movement of people from a country.
Public International Law derives its authority from three main sources.

1. Treaties and international conventions are written agreements concluded by two or more sovereign nations or by a nation and an international organization, such as the European Union. The power to enter into treaty relations is an essential attribute of sovereignty. There is a cardinal law of international law that treaties validly concluded must not be broken by the signatories. This source is also known as conventional international law.

2. International agreements or conventions create law for the parties of the agreement. They may also lead to the creation of customary international law when they are intended for adherence generally and are in fact widely accepted. Treaties and conventions were, at first, restricted in their effects to those countries that ratified them. They are particular, not general, international law; yet regulations and procedures contained in treaties and conventions have often developed into general customary usage, that is, have come to be considered binding even on those states that did not sign and ratify them. Some customs may become part of international law because of general acceptance by most nations, even if not embodied in a written treaty instrument.

3. General principles common to systems of national law fall into the same category and are, in fact, often difficult to distinguish from customs as a source of international law.

The International Criminal Court

Rome Statute of the International Criminal Court

'In the prospect of an international criminal court lies the promise of universal justice. That is the simple and soaring hope of this vision. We are close to its realization. We will do our part to see it through till the end. We ask you... to do yours in our struggle to ensure that no ruler, no State, no junta and no army anywhere can abuse human rights with impunity. Only then will the innocents of distant wars and conflicts know that they, too, may sleep under the cover of justice; that they, too, have rights, and that those who violate those rights will be punished.'

Kofi Annan, United Nations Secretary-General

2. To end impunity for abuse of human rights
3. To help end conflicts
4. To remedy the deficiencies of ad hoc tribunals

Test 2
Why do we have laws and legal systems? At one level, laws can be seen as a type of rule which is meant to govern behaviour between people. We can find these rules in nearly all social organizations, such as families and sports clubs.

Law, the body of official rules and regulations, generally found in constitutions and legislation, is used to govern a society and to control the behaviour of its members. In modern societies, a body with authority, such as a court or the legislature, makes the law; and a law enforcement agency, such as the police, makes sure it is observed.

In addition to enforcement, a body of expert lawyers is needed to apply the law. This is the role of the judiciary, the body of judges in a particular country. Of course, legal systems vary between countries, as well as the basis for bringing a case before a court or tribunal. One thing, however, seems to be true all over the world – starting a legal action is both expensive and time-consuming.

Roman law, which evolved in the 8th century BC, was still largely a blend of custom and interpretation by magistrates of the will of the gods.

Common law evolved from the tribal and local laws in England. It began with common customs, but over time it involved the courts in law-making that was responsive to changes in society. In this way the Anglo-Norman rulers created a system of centralized courts that operated under a single set of laws that replaced the rules laid down by earlier societies.

The Ten Commandments formed the basis of all Israelite legislation. They can also be found in the laws of other ancient peoples.

Napoleonic Code refers to the entire body of French law, contained in five codes dealing with civil, commercial, and criminal law.

Criminal Law vs Civil Law
One category is the criminal law – the law dealing with crime. A case is called a prosecution. The case is instituted by the prosecutor, who takes over the case from the police who have already decided to charge the defendant (or accused) with specified crimes. The civil law is much more wide-ranging. The civil law includes the law of contract and family law (or intellectual property). In a civil case, the plaintiff, normally a private individual or company, brings an action to win compensation. If the case is proven (on the balance of probabilities, meaning that one is more sure than not), the defendant normally pays the plaintiff damages (money).

The judiciary are perhaps the most prominent amongst those involved in running the court. The largest group of judges are magistrates, ordinary citizens who are not legal professionals but are appointed to ensure that the local community is involved in the running of the legal system. They sit as a group of three (as a ‘bench’). Magistrates sit with a legally qualified clerk, who can advise on points of law. A case is presented by the prosecutor, who takes over the case from the police who have already charged the defendant (or accused) with specified crimes.

In the upper courts, the judges are almost all former barristers. But many cases are also heard by recorders – part-time barristers from private practice. The Crown Court jury consists of 12 persons, aged 18 to 70.

- The police carry out arrests, searches, and seizures.
- The magistrate sometimes conducts the investigation in cases of serious criminal offences.
- The prosecutor conducts the case in court on behalf of the police.
- The suspect has the right to remain silent.

- The defence counsel assists the suspect in gathering exonerating evidence.
- The defence counsel protects the suspect from violations of his rights at the hands of law-enforcement personnel.
- The judge presides over the court.
- The judge decides on the sentence to be imposed.
- The jury decides whether the accused is guilty or not.
Appellate procedure consists of the rules and practices by which a court of appeal reviews trial court judgements. The procedure focuses on several main themes:
- what judgements are appealable,
- how an appeal is to be brought before the court,
- what will be required for a reversal of the lower court,
- what procedures the parties must follow.

Often an appeal bond will be put up to pay the other side's costs in case the appeal fails.

Normally leave to appeal will be requested by the appellant, who is seeking a review of the decision of a subordinate court or person. The other party, the appellee, is usually, but not always, the winner in the lower court.

Test 42

A company is a legal entity, allowed by legislation, which permits a group of people, as shareholders, to create an organization, which can then focus on pursuing set objectives. It is empowered with legal rights which are usually only reserved for individuals, such as the right to sue and be sued, own property, hire employees or loan and borrow money. The primary advantage of a company structure is that it provides the shareholders with a right to participate in the dividends, a proportionate distribution of profits made in the form of a money payment to shareholders, without any personal liability.

There are various forms of legal business entities ranging from the sole trader, who alone bears the risk and responsibility of running a business, taking the profits, but as such not forming any association in law and thus not regulated by special rules of law, to the registered company with limited liability and to multinational corporations.

In a partnership, members ‘associate,’ forming collectively an association in which they all participate in management and sharing profits, bearing the liability for the firm’s debts and being sued jointly and severally in relation to the firm’s contracts or tortious acts.

Limited-liability companies, or corporations, unlike partnerships, are formed not simply by agreements entered into between their first members; they must also be registered at a public office or court designated by law or otherwise obtain official acknowledgement of their existence.

Each of the Shareholders represents to the other that it has taken all necessary other actions to enable him validly to accept and perform the obligations required under the terms of this Agreement and that performance of the provisions of this Agreement will not result in a breach of or constitute a default under any agreement or other contractual restriction binding upon him.

The Shareholders undertake with each other that they shall not without the prior written consent of the other parties while a shareholder in the Company become involved in any business other than that of the Company and that they shall during such period use all reasonable endeavours to promote the interests of the Company and devote to its business such of their respective time and attention and resources as are reasonably required for the efficient and profitable conduct of the business of the Company.

The process is similar to the litigation process as it involves adjudication. However, the parties choose their arbitrator and the manner in which the arbitration will proceed. For example, if the dispute is fairly straightforward and does not involve any factual questions, the parties may agree to waive a formal hearing and provide the arbitrator with written submissions and documentation only, called a documents only arbitration. However, in other cases the parties may wish a full hearing. Therefore, the parties create their own adjudicatory forum which is tailor-made to the particular needs of the parties and the nature of the dispute.

The advantages of arbitration over court adjudication can include the following:

- Expertise of the decision-maker: The parties can choose an arbitrator who has expert knowledge of the law, business or trade in which the dispute has arisen.
- Low cost: Arbitration is not expensive if the process is kept simple.
- Speed: Arbitration can be arranged within days, weeks or months.
- Duration: Arbitration does not take as long as litigation.
