Text A

Hi Ralph,

Sorry we didn’t get to see each other while I was in town, but my day didn’t quite go according to plan!

I started by 1) bolting down my breakfast, as I wanted to leave early to avoid the traffic. By 8.00 I was 2) bombing along the M4 until I got stopped for speeding by a police officer. I started to explain but he 3) butted in, saying, “The speed limit 4) applies to everyone, you know.” Luckily, he 5) let me off with a warning.

When I eventually got to town my adventure really began. Anyway, when you’ve read this clipping from ‘The Evening Star’, I’m sure you’ll forgive me for not calling you.

See you next time!

Dominic

Ted: Hello, Val. Have any of the others arrived yet?
Val: Not yet. I haven’t been here long myself. Let me get you a drink. After all, it is nearly Christmas.
Ted: Thanks, Val. Cheers!
Val: You know, Ted, it was a great idea of yours to 1) eat out instead of the usual office party — and this is a fabulous restaurant! How did you find it?
Ted: By accident, really. You have to book weeks in advance to 2) get into the “Taj Mahal”, which is the first place I thought of. Anyway, I 3) rang around the other Indian restaurants in town and eventually got us in here. I didn’t actually know what it was like.
Val: Well, the decor is marvellous — and I must say, from 4) browsing through the menu, the range of dishes they offer is most impressive, too. Have you always liked Indian food?
Ted: I used to … To be honest, I’ve 5) gone off it now, but everyone else in the office likes it. By the way, before the others arrive, I need to ask you a favour. I was in such a hurry to get here I forgot my credit card, and I haven’t got much cash with me. Could you pay my share of the bill tonight? I’ll 6) settle up with you tomorrow.
Val: Don’t worry, there’s no need for you to pay. Mr Turnbull has given us £200 from the company expense account. If the bill 7) amounts to more than that, we’ll just 8) divide the rest into equal shares. It shouldn’t be more than a few pounds each.
Ted: That’s a relief! I was afraid I’d end the evening having to 9) wash up!
Val: Well, now you can relax and enjoy yourself, Ted. Oh, look, here are the others. 10) Drink up and let’s join them at the table.

1 Read the text, which is the first part of a letter, and match the words in bold to the definitions on the right.

Dear Mike,

Well, here we are at last, although there were times when I really didn't think we'd make it. So far this has been the worst holiday of our lives! Still, I suppose we'll 1) get by somehow!

On Friday we 2) set off for the airport with plenty of time to spare, but our troubles started almost at once. There had just been some sort of bomb scare at the airport and the traffic was 3) held up for hours while the police searched every single car entering the airport complex.

When we eventually got to Terminal Three, there were thousands of people 4) queueing up to check in for their flights. There was nothing we could do except wait patiently with everyone else. Anyway, at last we reached the head of the line, only to be told at the check-in desk that we were in the wrong queue!

By the time this problem had been 5) sorted out, passengers for our flight were already boarding. We hurried through Immigration and 6) got on the plane as they were closing the doors. Then — would you believe it? — there was some technical problem with the plane and we didn't 7) take off for another four hours!

Of course, since we'd already boarded, we couldn't 8) get off the plane again. We just sat there, bored out of our minds, while the stewardesses 9) brought round drinks and food. At this stage I honestly felt like 10) giving up and going home.

We spent the whole time in the airport, and it was freezing. We were asked to 3) line up just to get a bowl of hot soup.

Eventually we arrived in Sydney. I was expecting the worst, of course, but our luck seemed to have changed. We 4) sailed through customs, 5) got into a taxi and 6) headed for our hotel.

I could've cried when we got there. When we tried to 7) book in, it 8) turned out the hotel had given our room to somebody else by mistake. To make matters worse, every other hotel in the area was 9) booked up. We finally found a nice one in the end, so let's hope our troubles are over and the holiday turns out to be enjoyable.

See you soon. Love to all.

Alan

Dear Sue,

What a shame you couldn’t be at the wedding. June looked beautiful, of course. She wore the pearl necklace which my mother 1) hand down to me when I got married. We both had tears in our eyes when she 2) put the necklace on.

We almost had a disaster with June’s dress. When she put it on, she stood on the hem and ripped it — you can imagine the panic! After she’d 3) take it off, though, I could see it wasn’t badly torn and I managed to 4) stitch it up again. I ironed it to 5) smooth out the creases and no one ever knew!

I was really pleased with my outfit. After weeks of 6) shopping around I finally found a lovely dress. Then, with all the preparations, I lost weight and had to have the dress 7) taken in. But I don’t complain about that!

The flowers were beautiful — actually, June couldn’t bear to 8) throw away her bouquet afterwards, so we dried it for her. The weather could have been better, but everyone enjoyed themselves 9) in spite of the rain.

I can’t help worrying about what lies 10) in store for Mark and June, but they make each other happy and that’s the main thing, isn’t it?

I do hope you’re feeling better now. You must come to see the photos when you feel well enough.

Love to you and the family.

Sir Alexander Fleming (1881-1955) is 1) credited with leading the way in the use of antibiotics to treat bacterial infections. His discovery of penicillin in 1928 came at a time when many people died of tuberculosis, diphtheria and other infectious diseases, which made such a cure highly 2) sought after.

After obtaining his medical degree in 1906 at St Mary’s Hospital Medical School in London, Fleming began to 3) work on antibacterial substances which could be used with humans. He was 4) in the middle of his career when the First World War began, but was fortunate to be able to continue his research while serving in the Royal Army Medical Corps. He made his first major discovery in 1921, when he identified and isolated lysozyme, an enzyme found in human tears and saliva. Its antibiotic activity helps to prevent infections.

It was not until seven years later, however, that Fleming became internationally famous. He was working with the bacterium Staphylococcus aureus when he noticed that it was 5) killed off by a green fungus, Penicillium notatum, which had contaminated the culture. Further investigation showed that there was a substance in the fungus which prevented growth of the bacteria, even when the substance was diluted 800 times.

The development of penicillin, which 6) derives its name from the fungus, must also be 7) attributed to Ernst Chain and Howard Florey. The work of these two men 8) revolved around isolating the active ingredient in the fungus so that it could safely be administered to humans. They finally achieved this, and in 1945 Chain, Florey and Fleming were jointly awarded the Nobel Prize.

Since this ground-breaking work, scientists have discovered numerous further antibiotics to treat a variety of bacterial diseases. All of these discoveries, however, are 9) grounded in the work of Fleming, and even today he is 10) looked up to as a leading figure in the treatment of infectious diseases. Indeed, a museum has now been opened at the site of his old laboratory at St Mary’s in Paddington, London.

4 Read the text and match the words in bold to the definitions below.

While I was waiting at the dentist's recently, I began 1) leafing through some magazines I found at reception. The articles were pretty run-of-the-mill, 2) with the exception of one particular piece in Good Eating. It was a short text which gave a really interesting insight into the intellectual history of vegetarianism.

Anyway, the writer frequently 3) made reference to the work of J A Parris, a 19th century social reformer. I wanted to know more about him, so when I got home I 4) looked him up in my History of Politics. I couldn't find much information on him there, so I looked on the Internet. It was really easy. I just typed in "Parris J A" and the computer 5) churned out loads of information about him.

Apparently he was 6) in sympathy with the ideas of the Cambridge Movement, a group of social reformers who were 7) drawn to Eastern mysticism. As a member of this movement he tried to 8) bring about various changes in British society, to fit in with its Utopian ideals. The movement had several influential followers and — initially, at least — the converts 9) poured in. With the onset of the First World War however, their philosophies were 10) out of keeping with the realities of the time, and the Cambridge movement fell into decline.

It's amazing what you can learn at the dentist's!

Manchester United’s aim from the start of the season has been to maintain their position at the top of the Premiership. As the competition 1) hots up, though, teams like Liverpool and Chelsea have 2) put together a run of results good enough to threaten Manchester’s position.

Last night’s match between United and Everton did much to dispel any lack of confidence Manchester may have felt creeping up on them. Starting badly, Everton 3) fell behind after just eight minutes due to a beautiful goal from Andy Cole. They recovered quickly, though, and 4) hit back in the twentieth minute when a fine cross from Cadamarteri enabled Ferguson to score the equaliser.

United maintained their control of the game in the second half, keeping Everton’s forwards 5) hemmed in for long stretches at a time. Then, in the 62nd minute, United strikers Blomqvist and Beckenham set up a great move that allowed Cole to score off the post, and six minutes later a deflated Everton 6) gave away a goal following an unlucky deflection.

Everton’s manager, Walter Smith, 7) put the defeat down to player unrest and managerial upheaval.

United’s brilliant win means that they 8) go back to being number one in the table, making it easier for them to 9) psych themselves up for next week’s game against Chelsea. They are the perfect example of how to get up and stay up in the Premiership, and it looks certain that they will still 10) rank among the top three teams next season.

4 Read the text and match the words in bold to the definitions below.

Brenda Coltrane, the Scottish long-distance runner, put out a statement today to quell rumours that she is unfit. She says that not only is she fit, but she feels on form to win next month’s Edinburgh marathon. Here’s Vicki Aziz with the details ...

“Rumours began to circulate following Coltrane’s second disappointing performance so far this season. She failed to live up to expectations by performing poorly in the half marathon in Athens, and stories of muscle strain started after her surprising defeat in her last race in Milan.

“Coltrane has denied any injury and admits that she let herself be psyched out by the tactics of her main rival, Miriam Burante from Argentina. Coltrane says she lost concentration and found herself boxed in by the other runners, which Burante used to full advantage by picking up speed and shooting past the group to establish a lead that eventually won her the race. Coltrane came in fourth, behind Rosa Mercier of Spain and Sally Jones from Wales.

“In Edinburgh, Coltrane will again be pitted against Burante and Jones, but not Mercier, who has pulled out due to a knee injury. Coltrane has the ability to beat Burante if she can regain her previous form. She says she will build on her recent experience to win the marathon. Let’s hope she can pull it off.”

4 Read the letter and match the words in bold to the definitions below.

Dear Mike,

I thought of you this morning when I came into work because things have changed so much since you were here. Hazel Watson has 1) taken over as boss, and the whole office has been 2) shaken up. I'm second-in-command now, so work 3) takes up a lot more of my time. I still have to 4) draw up plans for every department, of course, but I also have to 5) sit in on endless management meetings as an adviser. These meetings sometimes go on for hours, because we have to 6) go through all the other departments' plans one by one.

Anyway, I like Hazel. I mean, it's a shame old Dave Jarvis was 7) kicked out — or, as the official story has it, "decided to 8) step down" — but I think he was just too old for the job. I'll miss Dave, of course, but at least I won't have to 9) put up with that disgusting pipe smoke in the office any more. Hazel doesn't smoke, and she doesn't 10) go on and on about how things used to be in her day, either.

Anyway, I've got to go now. If you're passing the office, do drop in and see us!

All the best,
Tina

4 Read the text and match the words in bold to the definitions below.

In a detective story, the hero 1 thrives on mystery, and after a glance at the evidence he 2 hits on a brilliant solution. Real-life detective work isn't like that, of course. Solving a mystery 3 comes about through routine checking and forensic evidence. This murder was no exception.

The victim was found to be Charles Parr, Barry Jones' partner in crime. Anonymous calls brought Jones and the police to Parr's house at the same time — because somebody wanted us to find Jones there and assume he was guilty. Forensic evidence showed, however, that Parr had died on Monday morning, the day before, when Jones had been in court on a charge of theft.

Real-life detectives all want to 4 improve on their past record of successes, but we also have to 5 cut down on valuable police time spent in long, fruitless investigations. With no clear leads, I almost decided to 6 call off our enquiries and 7 sit on the investigation for a while, hoping for a lucky break. I didn't want the murderer to 8 get away with the crime, but I couldn't waste time checking on every possible suspect.

Then I had an idea. Why try to make us think Parr had been killed on Tuesday rather than on Monday? Of course — the killer had established a solid alibi for Tuesday! I 9 concentrated on those suspects with the best alibis for Tuesday, and soon discovered the truth.

We had already interviewed Sean Sayers, because of his threats to "get" Jones and Parr 10 in revenge for cheating him in a business deal. He had eagarly shown us several receipts from shops, restaurants and a hotel, proving he had been 250 miles away on Monday night and all of Tuesday. This made me suspicious enough to check the hotel phone records. Sure enough, the calls to Jones and the police had been made from Sayers' hotel room, so I ordered a careful search of his home. A forensic examination found traces of the victim's blood on a pair of Sayers' shoes, and he confessed to the crime — caught by his own attempt to be clever!

Eddie: Dawn, I’ve got a problem with my computer. Can you help me?
Dawn: Sure. I presume you’ve 1) plugged it in and
2) switched it on properly.
Eddie: Very funny.
Dawn: I’m only joking. Can you 3) boot up okay?
Eddie: Yes, I can 4) log on to the server without any difficulty. It’s after that the problem starts.
Dawn: What’s the matter, then?
Eddie: There’s something wrong with my e-mail.
Dawn: You need a password. Have you got one?
Eddie: Yes, but when I type it in, the computer whirrs like it’s trying to load and nothing happens.
Dawn: It could be the software. Try rebooting — switch off, 5) leave it alone for thirty seconds and switch on again ....
Eddie: Okay, I’ve done that. I’ve got my Windows screen.
Dawn: Now go to your e-mail and 6) click on one of the messages.
Eddie: Okay. Now I have to 7) type in my password.
And ... the screen’s frozen again.

Eddie: No. I know it’s right because it worked when I used it yesterday.
Dawn: Then it looks like you’ve got a real problem!
8) Leave it to me — I’ll look into it later.
Eddie: Thanks, Dawn. Do you think you could deal with it today? I’m expecting something really important.
Dawn: Well, I’m rather busy, but 9) out of kindness to you I’ll get started on this straight away.
Eddie: Thanks, Dawn.

Dear Miss Appleton,
I am writing 1) in response to your letter of 25th May, 2) with reference to the problems you have experienced with your Berry 192 computer.
Firstly, 3) in answer to your query as to how long a computer should be turned off before rebooting, I suggest at least two minutes. 4) With regard to the speed at which your GraphMaster program loads, I should 5) point out that this is a very large program 6) in proportion to the amount of memory available on your computer. 7) In fairness to Berry, the 192 model was not designed to handle programs of this size, and I would recommend that you buy a second memory card which can be used 8) in addition to the existing memory.
Finally, one of our engineers will be 9) on a visit to colleges in your area next month to talk to students 10) doing research into electronics. I have asked him to contact you 11) with respect to carrying out safety checks on your equipment.
Yours sincerely,
Thomas Benson

Dear Claire,

I need your advice, because I've got a real problem involving my ex-fiancé and I don't know who else to turn to.

I'd been 1) going out with Steve for a year when he asked me to marry him. I was over the moon and everyone was happy for us because we 2) got on so well. Then, two months later, he started to get moody and he eventually told me that he wanted us to 3) split up. It was a real shock. I just couldn't 4) figure out what I had done to upset him and he couldn't come up with a good reason for his change of heart.

Steve wouldn't even talk to his friends about it. If they tried to broach the subject, he'd just 5) cut them off, saying it was none of their business.

I know that Steve didn't leave me for someone else, because whenever our friends saw him he was on his own. He is also very shy when it comes to 6) asking girls out. Even so, the whole thing hurt me a lot. It took me a long time before I felt as though I was 7) getting over him.

My problem is that I 8) ran into Steve at a party last week and he told me that he wants to 9) patch things up. All my friends and family say that I should agree to 10) make up, but I'm not so sure. How do I know that he won't run out on me again? Please help me decide what to do.

4 Read the text and match the words in bold to the definitions below.

My grandson Jonathan felt very 1) let down when he wasn’t picked for the school rugby team last year, so I was delighted to hear that he has finally been selected. I am proud of him and, as you can imagine, Jonathan is 2) beside himself with joy. He intends to train really hard to make sure that he keeps his place on the team.

Failing the first time was a shame, though. Most of his so-called friends kept teasing him and 3) putting him down, asking him why he didn’t 4) take after his brother Chris, who was the school’s star player and captain of the team for three years.

The fact that his schoolmates 5) looked down on him almost 6) put him off playing rugby altogether. For a while he 7) fell in with a strange crowd, stopped making any effort at school and became very moody. I felt sure, having 8) brought up three sons myself, that this was just a passing phase and that sooner or later he would 9) bounce back. It’s a great relief to see that I was right, and Jonathan is his old happy self again.

A Good Turn of Phrase consists of sixteen units, each presenting and practising English phrasal verbs and prepositional phrases in current use. Phrasal verbs and prepositional phrases are presented in context, then they are tested in such activities as "key-word" transformation, multiple choice, gap filling and word matching. Unit 16 contains supplementary exercises offering students further practice with phrasal verbs and prepositions. The Teacher's Book contains the answers to the exercises as well as three tests, each of which has two alternative versions.

A Good Turn of Phrase is aimed at students at post-intermediate and advanced levels. It can be used in the classroom or for self-study to help learners use the English language successfully.
