Hello! I'm Matthew Turnbull. I'm fourteen years old. I live in Manchester, in the north of England.

These are my parents. Mum's a teacher. She works in a primary school. Dad's an electrician. He works for a big company.

I go to Springfield Comprehensive School, near my house. I like it. I've got lots of friends there.

My best friends at school are Jack and Rebecca. They're in my class. They're both fourteen, like me.

The teachers are OK, too. Our class teacher is Mr Roberts. He's funny. Everybody likes him! In the picture he's playing football.

English across the world

English as a first language

About 375 million people speak English as their first language. Most of them live in the United States, Britain, Australia, Canada, and New Zealand. But about a billion people (1,000,000,000) use English every day – and most of them are not native speakers.

English as a second language

In about 60 countries across the world people use English as a second language. This means that English is an official language in that country. It is used in documents and newspapers, and on the radio and television. English is used to communicate, because there are many different languages in the country. India and Nigeria are examples of countries where English is a second language.

English words in other languages

The Oxford English Dictionary has got about 500,000 words. Sometimes English words are used in other languages. They become international words, like hamburger, computer, snowboard and DVD. Some people in other countries don’t like this. But it is difficult to stop new words from coming into their language.

English everywhere!

When people from different countries meet they often use English. Many books and 80% of information on the Internet is in English. The reason is simple. People need an international language to communicate. For the moment, at the start of the twenty-first century, that language is English.

1 Listen and read.
2 Find these things in the text.
   1 The number of people who speak English as their first language.
   2 The number of people who use English every day.
   3 Two countries where English is a second language.
   4 Some examples of international words.
   5 The amount of information that is in English on the Internet.

Over to you!

3 Do a project on English words in your language.

Find examples of English words in your language. Here are a few places where you can find them:

- in advertisements
- on product packaging
- on clothes
- in newspapers
- in TV programmes

Make a poster about English words in your language. Give examples.

Game

Timeline

Work in small groups.

Draw a timeline with five important dates to you and your family. Other group members have to guess why these dates are important.

Example

A Did your parents get married in 1991?
B Yes, they did.
1. Jules Verne was a French writer. He lived in the 19th century. He wrote adventure books, like Journey to the Centre of the Earth and Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea. His favourite topic was modern (19th century) technology and inventions.

2. One of his most popular books is Around the World in Eighty Days. It is the story of an Englishman, Phileas Fogg. Phileas had an idea. He thought it was possible to travel around the world in eighty days, using modern forms of transport. His friends didn’t think it was possible. So one day in October 1872 Phileas had a bet with his friends, for £20,000. The same evening he left London, on the train for Paris.

3. Phileas and his companion, Passepartout, travelled around the world by train and ship. He took a ship from Brindisi in Italy and went east, through the Suez Canal in Egypt, to India. In India he found that the railway line from Bombay to Calcutta was not finished, so he went 50 kilometres on the back of an elephant. There are many more adventures. From Calcutta he sailed to Shanghai in China in bad weather, and missed the boat to Japan. In America he took a train from San Francisco to New York, but a group of Indians attacked it, so he missed the boat back to England.

4. At last Phileas arrived back in Britain on a different boat, but he was unhappy. He left London more than 80 days ago, and it was now too late for him to win the bet. But in London his friends told him he left only 79 days and 23 hours ago. This is because he travelled from east to west, and crossed the International Date Line. So Phileas had an extra day in his life, and £20,000 to put in the bank.
3 Work in pairs. Complete the questions to ask Phileas Fogg with the words in the box.

MUM OK. But you must stay with Matthew all the time and do what he says.

Transport in the USA

The United States is a big country. It is almost 4,000 kilometres from New York to Los Angeles. It takes four days to make the journey by car, across beautiful and dramatic scenery.

Cars and planes

The car is central to life in the USA. There are 745 cars for every 1000 people. Americans like travelling by car and they have a good road system. But for long journeys they need to fly. Every day about 2.5 million Americans take a plane to another town in their country. There are more than 200 big airports.

Buses and trains

Greyhound buses are popular with Americans and with tourists. Every day 18,000 buses leave for 2,600 different towns. The buses are modern and tickets are not expensive. You can sit in a comfortable seat, look out of the window, and relax. It’s a great way to see the US. There are trains, too. Once, trains were very important. The railroad linked the west and east coasts. Today there are not many railway lines, but travelling by rail is becoming popular again. The rail company Amtrak has fast trains linking main cities.

Thanks Frank. And you're a good manager!

And we're here to play for you tonight!

I've got news for you: a world tour...
Wow: The New Kids on tour! That's great. When do we start?

On Saturday, your plane leaves for New York at 11 am. You must get to the airport early.

Saturday morning...

Do you know the way? We mustn't be late.

Don't worry. I know the way, and we've got lots of time.

I can't wait! New York, San Francisco, Australia...!

Here we are. Well done, Mick. It's only nine o'clock.

Rebecca But how do we get there? Look. There's an underground station opposite. Let's take the tube.
Matthew But it's not far. This is Oxford Street. We walk along to Baker Street, turn left and we're there. It really isn't far.
Rebecca Matthew, you said that half an hour ago. Let's ask that man.
Man Excuse me. How do we get to Madame Tussaud's?
Rebecca Well done, Matthew!
Matthew I'm sorry!
Jack And look, now it's raining. Quick. Our jackets are in your bag.
Matthew OK. Here's yours, but where's mine? Oh no, I left it in that café we went to.

Skull and bones!

The 'Jolly Roger' is one of the most frightening flags in the world. For hundreds of years, it flew on the masts of pirate ships. It shows a skull and two crossed bones. The meaning for people on other ships was clear: surrender or die!

The flag appeared in the Mediterranean, after the Crusades. Maybe the first pirates who used it were crusaders. They used a red flag but later they changed it to black.

Like many road signs today, there were no words on the flag. There is a reason for this. People who spoke different languages could all understand the meaning. The skull and bones mean that life is short. You can find the same sign in many old buildings and churches in Britain, and in other countries in Europe too.

No ships fly the flag today. But you can still find the skull and crossbones symbol on bottles. This is a warning. It means there is poison inside the bottle. Don’t drink it!

1 Who were the first pirates to use the flag?
2 What colour was the flag before it was black?
3 Why are there no words on the flag?
4 Where can you find the skull and crossbones in Britain?
5 What does the skull and crossbones mean on a bottle?

If you see a word that you don't understand – don't panic. Try to guess the meaning from the context. Sometimes it can be easy. First, try to understand the general situation and then find words that will help you understand the details. If you still don't understand the word, use a good dictionary.
Australia is an island, and it is also a continent. It is very big – about 4,000 kilometres from east to west, and about 3,700 kilometres from north to south. Today people from many different origins live in Australia. It is a modern, multi-cultural society. Australians speak English because the first settlers who arrived there, about 250 years ago, were British.

But for 50,000 years only the Aboriginal people lived in Australia. They were nomads. They walked across the country and lived off the land. They ate plants and wild animals. To find their way they used things like plants, rocks and rivers. They were important because they gave directions, but they also had a religious and cultural meaning.

One of these rocks is a sacred place for Aborigines. Ayer’s Rock is in the heart of Australia. It is a huge rock which dominates the flat land all around. It is 300 metres tall, but continues under the ground for 3 kilometres. It is like an iceberg in the desert. In the Aboriginal language the rock is called Uluru. They believe that their ancestors lived there.

Today there are still Aborigines in Australia, but they are only about 1% of the population. Many of them live in towns. People all over the world are interested in their culture. Aboriginal culture is one of the oldest cultures in the world.

Can I Help With the Housework?

Will robots rule the world one day? Maybe not. But there is one place where they will have an important job — in the house. Japanese scientists think that many families will have a robot in the house by the year 2020. Forget the housework! A friendly robot will do it! Forget about cleaning the house and making the beds. Ask your robot!

There are already robots today. They can do lots of things. They can walk on two legs, and go up and down the stairs. They can shake hands and ring the doorbell, and they can switch lights on and off. Many of them can speak, too.

Most robots are made in Japan. They are quite small — about one metre tall. There is a reason for this. They are about the height of a person sitting in a chair. You can sit and relax, and tell the robot what to do. You can move the robot with a control like in a computer game.

The latest Japanese robot is called Nuvo. It is small and looks like a children's toy. It responds to your voice and can follow directions. It can speak. Parents can use Nuvo as a babysitter. They can tell it to go to the child's room. Nuvo will watch the child with a video camera.

There is one thing most robots can't do. They can't get up when they fall over. Scientists worked on the problem for years. Now Nuvo can get up if it falls. Scientists can solve many problems, and perhaps one day robots will be able to cook. But the food won't taste like Mum's cooking!

4. Answer the questions.
   1. Where will robots have an important job?
   2. Where do most robots come from?
   3. How big are they?
   4. What can Nuvo do?
   5. Will robots be the same as people?

Families today

Times are changing, in Britain and other countries. A hundred years ago families in Britain were big. Children had lots of brothers and sisters. Today most children have only one brother or sister. About 30% of families in the UK are one-parent families. This is because parents often don’t get married, or they get divorced or separated. But what is life like in a British family?

A week in Phil’s life

Phil lives with his father, mother and sister in a house. At the back of the house there’s a garden, where he plays with his sister. Phil gets up at seven and has breakfast with the family. Everyone leaves the house at 8.30. Phil’s Dad goes to work at a computer company. Phil walks to school with his Mum and his sister.

Then his Mum goes to work, in another school. She’s a classroom assistant.

School finishes at 3.15. Phil’s Mum picks him up and they often go shopping together. Dad comes home at 6 and dinner is at 6.30. Phil’s favourite meal is sausages, mashed potatoes and peas.

After dinner, Phil usually helps with the washing-up. In the evening he watches television or plays computer games. But on two evenings a week he goes out. On Tuesdays he goes to cub scouts, and on Fridays he does karate. Twice a year he goes camping with the scouts. He likes making fires and sleeping in a tent.

On Saturdays Phil and his family go to the market. His Mum buys fruit and vegetables, but there are lots of other things for sale. Phil enjoys looking at them all. He likes Saturdays, and he loves his family.

1 Listen and read.

2 Answer the questions.

1 How many children are there in a typical British family?

A year abroad

We live in a small village near Cambridge, in the east of England. My Dad is a university teacher, and my Mum is a nurse in a big hospital near Cambridge. I haven’t got any brothers or sisters. Last year Dad got the chance to work in Australia. The three of us decided to move to Australia for one year. Mum didn’t want Dad to go by himself.

So we spent a year in Sydney. It was interesting, because Sydney is so different from Cambridge. It’s a bigger city and much more modern. Sydney is warmer than Cambridge in the summer and the winter, and it isn’t as windy. And the wildlife is fantastic! The Australian animals, birds and plants are very different from home. I saw hundreds of kangaroos.

On my first day at school I was very nervous, because I didn’t know anybody. But I soon made friends. The teachers were very friendly, and the sports facilities were better than my school in England. At the end of the year we were sorry to leave Australia. But I was happy to come home and see my old friends again. Sydney’s great, but life in a small village is better.

The building

It's one of the most beautiful buildings in the world. It's bigger than a palace, but nobody lives in it. It's a tomb, built for just one person, the empress Mumtaz, wife of the Emperor of India, Shah Jehan. The Taj Mahal is made of marble and 28 different precious stones. 20,000 people worked on the Taj. They used 1,000 elephants to carry the stones. It took them more than 20 years, from 1630 to 1652.

The story

The story of the Taj is almost as beautiful as the building. It is a love story. Shah Jehan and Mumtaz met when they were 15 years old and got married at 20. One day the empress asked her husband to promise: 'Will you build a tomb for me when I die? And will you visit my tomb every year?' The Emperor agreed. Mumtaz died in 1630 having a baby. The emperor was heartbroken. His hair turned grey in just a few days. He built his wife the tomb she wanted. After his death his son put him in the Taj, next to his wife, to be with her again forever.

The tourists

Today, the Taj Mahal is the number one tourist attraction in India. More than two million people visit it every year. The Taj is in Agra, a short journey from Delhi, the capital of India. People come to see the Taj because it is a perfect building. They also come because they like the romantic story. As the light changes, the Taj changes too. It is always beautiful. But at night, by the light of the moon, it is even more beautiful.

Is shopping fun?

Kelly and Helen are 15-year-old twins. They look alike, but they don’t always like the same things.

Kelly

I just love shopping. I go into town nearly every Saturday with my friends. Sometimes I just look and don’t buy anything. That’s usually at the end of the month when I’ve got less money to spend. It can be a bit boring, but it’s still better than sitting at home. It’s more interesting after I get my pocket money.

I can’t save money, but I’m more sensible than one of my friends who automatically buys the most expensive clothes in the shop. Unfortunately, I always spend all my money very quickly. I don’t really know where it all goes. I buy clothes and CDs mostly.

Helen

I’m the opposite of Kelly. It’s strange really because we are alike in so many other ways. I like to save my money for something special. It isn’t that I don’t like clothes and music. I do. I often get money for my birthday or Christmas and then I usually treat myself to some new clothes or a CD. However, I don’t like shopping. I’m happier reading a book or doing sport with my friends. It’s good that Kelly likes shopping because I can borrow her clothes when I really need something special!

1 True or false?
   1 Kelly only goes shopping when she has lots of money.
   2 Kelly saves her money.
   3 Helen and Kelly are different in a lot of ways.
   4 Helen is more sensible about money than Kelly.
   5 Helen doesn’t like clothes.
   6 Helen borrows her sister’s clothes.

2 At the weekend Helen likes doing sport with her friends. ______, Kelly thinks shopping is more interesting. She goes into town every Saturday ______ she doesn’t always buy something.

Study skills

Listening

When you're listening to recordings in English, don't try to understand every word. First, try to understand the general meaning. While you're listening to the recording the second time, concentrate on the details.

Learning how to listen requires practice, so listen to English songs, watch English TV, films and DVDs – first with subtitles in your own language, then with English subtitles.

The underground shopping mall

1. Canada is a very big country to the north of the United States. It is also very cold. Temperatures below -20°C are common. In winter, there is a lot of snow and travelling is difficult. But for people who want to go shopping in winter, Canada has the answer: underground shopping malls. In an underground shopping mall it is warm in winter, cool in summer, and it never rains. There is no weather!

2. The idea is not a new one. The oldest underground passages with shops opened about 100 years ago. Today all the big towns have underground malls. The biggest is in Toronto. It dates back to 1900, and is called PATH. There are 1,200 shops and services in the mall, as well as restaurants, cafés and cinemas. It takes about an hour to walk all the way through the mall.

3. It is easy to get lost in a big underground mall, so PATH uses colours for directions. Red means you are going south; orange – west; blue – north; and yellow – east. But you can pick up a free map when you arrive, too, and plan your shopping trip.

4. About 100,000 people go into the mall every day. They can enter it through shops at street level, or through special pedestrian access points. But the easiest way is to arrive by underground railway (or subway). There are six subway stations in the mall.

From: Rebecca         Date: 1st October 2007
Subject: La Rochelle   To: Mum

Hi Mum

It's my second day in La Rochelle, and the host family is great. Monsieur and Madame Gaultier are really kind. They've got two children, Chantal (my penfriend), and Thierry, who's two years younger.

I went to school today with Chantal. She's in class 4D of the college. Lessons last from 8 in the morning to 4 in the afternoon. There's a two-hour lunch break and lots of students go home. It's strange to go home at lunch-time.

Students don't have to wear a uniform, so I wore jeans today. The students in 4D are really friendly. They want to speak English to me. Their English is better than my French. But I have to speak French in the shops.

Tomorrow's Wednesday. There are no lessons on Wednesday afternoon, so Chantal and I are going to visit the town!

I'll email again tomorrow.

Love
Rebecca

La Rochelle is one of the most beautiful towns in France. Three hundred years ago it was an important port. Many people sailed from here to start a new life in America. Two big towers guard the entrance to the port. One of them was a prison for English sailors! Today you can visit the tower and read the messages they wrote on the walls.

La Rochelle is a great place for visitors. You can sit in a restaurant at the side of the port, enjoy the sunshine and watch the boats come and go. Don't forget to try the sea food – the oysters are very good.

2 Answer the questions.
1 Where is Rebecca staying?
2 Does she like the host family?
3 When does school start?
4 Why isn’t she going to school tomorrow afternoon?
5 What can tourists do in La Rochelle?

Present continuous for future actions

We can sometimes use the Present continuous to talk about actions in the future. We use it to talk about our plans and arrangements for the future, especially when the time and place have been decided, e.g., this evening, on Sunday, in November, next week.

Examples
I'm playing tennis tomorrow afternoon.
Paul's playing football on Sunday.
We're going to the cinema tonight.

1 Complete the sentences with the correct form of the verbs in brackets.
1 I ___________ the piano this afternoon. (practise)

• how you're going to get there,
• where you're going to eat after the film.

Tell your teacher what you decided.

Example

Look and learn!
When we talk about plans and arrangements for the future, we can also use going to. It is used in the same way as the Present continuous.

I am going to watch TV tonight.
You are going to watch TV tonight.
He/She is going to watch TV tonight.
We/You/They are going to watch TV tonight.

Game

Excuses
The whole class plays this game.
Imagine that someone that you don't like is inviting you to a party. Think of an excuse. Write what you would say on a piece of paper and give it to your teacher.

Example
I'm sorry. I'm cooking dinner for my grandma.

The teacher reads all the excuses and you have to vote for the best one.
Children in a school in south Wales found an old bottle in their school playground when work began on a new building. The bottle was a time capsule. It contained letters, photographs and advertisements from the year 1928. The advertisements included pictures of radios and the Graf Zeppelin — a large balloon which carried passengers across the Atlantic.

Students at the school were very excited about the discovery. Their History teacher, Martin Ferris, said that it made History a more interesting subject for them. ‘We are planning to make our own time capsule now,’ he said.

Time capsules are not a new idea. The ancient Egyptians left many things inside the pyramids with the bodies of their pharaohs. These things help us to understand what life in Egypt was like 4,000 years ago. They bring History to life. When the Voyager 1 spaceship left the earth in 1977 it carried a time capsule. Inside was a disk with pictures and sounds: the sounds of birds and animals, modern and classical music, and greetings in 55 different languages, including English. Today Voyager is still travelling. It is a long way outside our solar system.

About the same time that the children in Wales found the bottle, students in a school in Madison, Wisconsin, in the United States, closed their own time capsule. It included many everyday things, like comics, magazines, Pokemon stickers, a can of Diet Coke, nail polish and lip gloss, a bike helmet, and a copy of Harry Potter and the Sorcerer’s Stone. It also included letters the children wrote to themselves. Their teacher explained: ‘The children are planning to open the capsules on June 1st 2051, and to read their letters.’

2 Answer the questions.
1 What was in the bottle in the school in Wales?
2 What is on the Voyager spaceship?
3 Where is Voyager now?
4 What is in the Madison school time capsule?
5 Who did students write letters to?
6 When are they planning to open the capsule?
Listening

3 Listen to two students talking about a time capsule. Tick the things they decide to put in it.

- a dog
- a mobile phone
- a football shirt
- photos
- magazines
- a CD
- a five-pound note
- electrical equipment
- supermarket adverts
- things from the garden
- a set of coins (1p – £2)
- stamps

Speaking

4 Your class is burying a time capsule for people to find in 100 years' time. Work in a small group and list the things you want to include.

Useful language
Let's include a/some ...
Why don't we put a/some ... in?

Writing

5 Put some information about your class in the capsule. In groups, write two sentences about each of these things:
- your school,
- your class,
- your teachers,
- the subjects you learn,
- things you do after school.

Special days around the world

St. Patrick’s Day
This is a national holiday in Ireland. It’s on March 17th. There are parties and parades in Ireland, and in other countries too. One of the biggest parades is in New York, because lots of Irish people emigrated there in the 19th century. It is traditional to wear green clothes on St. Patrick’s Day.

Diwali
Diwali means ‘a row of lights’. It is an important religious festival in India, for Hindus and Sikhs. It is usually in November. Families put rows of lamps inside and outside their house. They visit the temple and give presents to friends. People wear their best clothes and eat special food.

Thanksgiving Day
Thanksgiving Day is an American special day. It is on the fourth Thursday in November. Everyone goes home to eat with their family – even if this means a long journey across the country. The food is always the same: turkey, and pumpkin pie. Some of the first settlers started the tradition in 1621. They wanted to thank God for the harvest after a hard year.

Winterlude
This is probably the longest winter festival in the world. It is celebrated in the Ottawa region of Canada and lasts for the first three weekends in February. People go ice skating and make ice sculptures. Winterlude is a new festival. It began in 1979. But it is very popular. Every year people come from all over North America to celebrate the winter.
